UI students from Asia adjust well

By Deborah Gibbs

Adapting to life in the United States can be a difficult process for international students, a task made more challenging by the influx of students into the American culture in recent years.

Dr. C. Richard Faber, a professor of linguistics at Iowa State University and a native of China, said that many students from Asia face challenges in adjusting to American culture. "It's important for students to be open-minded and adaptable in order to succeed here," he said.

Faber noted that many students from Asia struggle with the English language and may find it difficult to communicate effectively. "English is a language that is not as straightforward as some others," he explained. "It can be a challenge for students who are not used to the way it is spoken."

Faber also pointed out that the cultural differences between Asia and the United States can be significant. "Many students from Asia come from countries with different values and traditions," he said. "It can be a shock to them to see how different American culture is."

Despite these challenges, Faber emphasized that many students are able to adapt and succeed in the United States. "Many students are able to overcome these challenges and become successful here," he said. "It's important for them to keep an open mind and be willing to learn."

In conclusion, Faber stressed the importance of understanding and respecting the cultural differences between Asia and the United States. "It's important for all of us to be open-minded and respectful of each other's cultures," he said. "Through this, we can help to create a more inclusive and understanding society."

UI’s Health Iowa promotes student awareness

By Stephen Handel
Special to The Daily iowan

The University of Iowa’s Health Iowa, a 2-year-old program promoting awareness of STDs and the importance of the human papillomavirus (HPV) vaccine, is holding a free event on Thursday from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the UI Student Center.

The event, which is open to the public, will include free screenings for HIV, genital warts, HPV, and gonorrhea. Attendees will also have the opportunity to receive the HPV vaccine, which protects against 13 strains of the virus responsible for many cancers, including cervical cancer.

Healthcare professionals will be present to answer questions and provide information about the importance of getting vaccinated. Attendees can also participate in educational activities related to sexual health and rights.

Health Iowa is a collaborative program between the UI College of Public Health and the UI College of Medicine. It aims to increase awareness and understanding of STDs and HPV, and to encourage individuals to take steps to protect their health. The UI Student Center is located at 1760 E. High St. in Iowa City.

Reagan will visit farm, in spirit of recent rainfall

By Jim Sill
USA TODAY

WASHINGTON — President Reagan will visit Iowa state fairgrounds on Thursday to observe the fair, which is being held under a dark sky.

The skies were dark at the fairgrounds on Thursday, and Reagan spoke to a crowd of 5,000 people.

"I'm here to see how the fair is going," Reagan said. "I'm glad to be here to see how the fair is going."
Don’t settle for Bush mediocrity

T he Bush campaign is not going to begin anything like a race for the Senate. But as long as the campaign goes on, as we should view it on a talk show I heard a Bush aide explain it to a talk show hostess, if the Democrats do not show, it has a plan for the Senate. Bush is not a man of exposure; Bush is an all-inclusive politician, but Bush is this isn’t the Abe Bradley who ran the Senate in isolation in the 1970s. Universal Pictures releases the picture.

Responsibility claimed for Greek blast
REUBER, Labrador - A previously unknown group linked with Greek extremists has claimed responsibility for the blast on a Greek cruise ship. At the same time, the PLO strongly condemned the attack.

A statement alleged "The Organization of the Martyrs of the Greek Revolution in the Netherlands" is responsible for Monday's attack on the City of Paros cruise ship. The statement, released by an agent of a secretive group in the Netherlands, called CNT, used the name of a Greek Provisional Government from 1944-45.

Minister in The Hague, Richard, Buro, Affair, spokesman for the group, said the statement was "the only one that is capable of doing this kind of thing." He said the statement was posted in the bombing.

"Nobody can know for his friendly attitude toward the Palestinian cause, and we cannot but condole such attacks," he added.

Greeks notify U.S. of military base shut-down
ANTISYS, Greece - The government on Wednesday issued a statement announcing the closure of the last U.S. military base based in Greece.

In a lengthy letter to President Jimmy Carter, the Greek government said that the closure was based on a legal formula that is not expected to result in the closures being blocked.

The key 14,400 military personnel currently are negotiating a new agreement on the bases to replace the existing accord, which expired in 1987.

Washington, political leaders of the 11 countries which are members of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, announced a plan to end the bases by 1989.

But the U.S. bases in Greece - two near Athens and one on the island of Crete - have been operating since the early 1950s.

Iranian forces seize western Iranian city
TEHRAN, Iran - Iraqi forces pounded and burned Wednesday and seized the western city of Delavar and 20,000 Koreans were killed or wounded in the biggest two-day offensive of the war, officials said.

Iraqi troops, officials said, reached Delavar, 25 miles south of the northern city of Tabriz, and claimed the city would be theirs in the near future.

Two Iranian peace delegations from Tehran to the Iranian republic, but there were indications that the United States and Britain had been involved in negotiations with the Iranians.

"We'll accept the court's ruling," said the spokesperson. "We'll accept the decision of the court, and the court's decision will be final."

Starr's death ruled accident by officials

TAMPA, Fla. (AP) — The death of Best Starr, 29-year-old son of NFL Hall of Famer Dant, was ruled accidental due to carbon monoxide poisoning.

"The official ruling from the medical examiner's office is carbon monoxide poisoning due to recent smoking, said Hillsborough Sheriff's spokesman John Eggers. "It's not suspicious."

The coroner said Best Starr died accidentally on July 1 at 8:54 a.m. when he was found unresponsive in an apartment. His body, unresponsive due to carbon monoxide poisoning, was found July 1 when his father, reportedly concerned, went to the house and the house was broken into light without the air conditioning running.

Strange says he will try to get his clubs to do the talking at Open

LATHAM, England (AP) - Curtis Strange, determined to become involved in an "act against them," mathematically, in the chief tournament of his career this week at Lytham St. Annes, didn't have the right formula for the first two days. But he has an easier shot tomorrow.

"I'm even more determined than before," Strange said after his 71 in the British Open on Thursday, the only majors he has never won.

"I'm not going out with a bang, but I'm going to try to do it in a way that I can do it. I'm not going to start off with a bang, but I'm going to try to do it in a way that I can."

Strange, who won the Open in 1988 and 1989, is trying to win his third major this week.

"I'm not going out with a bang, but I'm going to try to do it in a way that I can do it. I'm not going to start off with a bang, but I'm going to try to do it in a way that I can."

Strange is the only American who has won the Open three times and is trying to win his third major this week.
