Businessman charged with arson

By Traci Auble
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City businessman is being held in the Johnson County Jail on $100,000 bond after he was charged with first-degree arson for allegedly setting a fire in an apartment building early Saturday.

Michael R. Sack, 22, 522 E. College St., a co-owner of Sacks on the Plaza, 130 S. Dubuque St., was charged after residents at an apartment building at 806 E. College St. reported that a man started a fire in the hallway of the building and set a bed sheet on fire in one of the apartments.

Police arrested Sack a short while after an apartment resident and a local cab driver gave police descriptions of the arsonist.

Iowa City Police and Fire Department officials are investigating whether there is any link between the apartment arson and a series of car fires that have occurred in the Iowa City area recently, according to Iowa City Fire Captain Ronald Whittaker.

A total of 17 cars have been set on fire this month. Sixteen cars were damaged by fire over the weekend, including eight cars which were either damaged or destroyed early Saturday.

On Friday, five cars parked in the rear parking lots in the 400 blocks of S. Van Buren and S. Johnson Streets were set on fire. Three cars parked nearby also sustained damage. The total damage to all eight vehicles was set at $5,800.

On Saturday, eight more cars were set on fire. The victims included:

- John Dornfeld, 220 S. Johnson St., who had the front seat of his 1980 Chevette burned at 220 S. Johnson St.

- Byron Fjelstad, 622 Keokuk Ct., who had the front seat of his Camero burned on 200 block of S. Johnson Street.

- Kim Libenguth, 716 E. Burlington St., who had her Dodge Colt burned at her residence.

- Michael Reck, 716 E. Burlington St., who had his 1961 MG and 1980 Ford Fiesta burned at his residence.

- Laurreta Stringer, 715 Burlington St., who had her 1978 Fiat burned at 220 S. Johnson St.

- Linda Wangberg, 36 Westlawn, who had the front seat of her 1975 Plymouth burned at 618 E. Burlington St.

- David Woods, 521 E. College St., who had his 1978 VW burned at the 500 block of E. College Street.

Whittaker said the only thing the fires had in common so far is that the cars were all unlocked and easily accessible.

"The fires were all started with stuff that was handy either in garbage dumpsters or in the cars," Whittaker said.

While the investigation continues, the Iowa City Fire Department is advising all Iowa City residents lock their cars to avoid becoming targets of the arsonists.

The Iowa State Fire Marshal's Office is offering a $5,000 reward for information about the arson attempts. Anyone with information should call the Arson Hotline at 1-800-532-1459 or the Iowa City Fire Marshal's office at 356-5255.

Reck said he has no idea who started the fires or why, adding he is definitely upset at losing his 28-year-old MG convertible.

"I'm not certain why it happened. It seems to be random," he said. "I spent what money I had on the MG — it was a pretty little car to drive."

Libenguth, whose car was parked next to Reck's, said she was going to be hurt financially as a result of the fire.

"I'm screwed because I don't have any insurance," Libenguth said. "In my opinion, it's really irritating. There's no reason that I can see for the fires, except for kicks."

'Beach' offers sun, fun

By Cathy Jackson
The Daily Iowan

WILLIAMSBURG, Iowa — Clad in teeny bikinis, colorful leis and sun visors, thousands of Iowans flocked to Williamsburg's No-Wa-Wa Beach Saturday to prove they could be beach bums, too — or at least have a ball pretending.

An end to the drought would have been welcome elsewhere in the state, but most of the ersatz beachcombers attending the third annual World's Biggest Beach Party were glad there was no rain.

"Unless you dance, it's gonna rain," a member of Kool Ray and the Polaroidz shouted from the stage. "Do you want it to rain?"

The answer was an overwhelming no, and a few more dancers popped up from the crowd.

"This is kind of a depressed area (due to the drought)," Duane Schwarting, from Holmstead, Iowa, said. "But everyone is pretty happy out here. The party builds the morale."

Nestled on 3 million pounds of sand, which was imported to a 40-acre pasture just outside of Williamsburg for the weekend party, the crowd kept cool with spray bottles full of water, quarts of soda and gallons of wine coolers.

John Waihee, governor of Hawaii, loaned the Beach Party two days of aloha spirit to make this year's Hawaiian theme more authentic.

"Dogs on Skis (a local band), the sun and the wine coolers" were the best part of the day, Patti McTaggart, from Iowa City, said.

Participants in the World's Biggest Beach Party cheer to the tunes of the band Hot Rod Chevy Kevy Saturday afternoon in Williamsburg.

Five bands playing dance tunes from the '50s, '60s and '70s got scantily dressed partiers hopping in the hot sand all day.

"The crowd is hot," a member of Kool Ray and the Polaroidz, a band from Illinois, said. "There are always good crowds in Iowa."

But there was entertainment for everyone, from a water slide to a two-foot-deep pool to a mechanical surfboard.

"You've got to keep your upper body straight and let your legs do the work. It's a lot like skateboarding," Mike McAuley, who came from Windsor, Ontario, to emcee for the mechanical surfboard event, said. "(Iowans) actually are good."

Little girls age 10 and under pranced around the stage for the Itsy Bitsy Bikini Contest, daredevils took turns twisting and turning on the mechanical surfboard for the Iowa Surfing Championship, men took off their shirts for the Best Farmer Tan contest and candidates took a walk down the 24-foot runway to compete for the Seagram's Golden Girl title.

"I don't think I'll get nervous until I put on my heels," 1988 Seagram's Golden Girl Holly Snyder said before the competition.

In all, $12,000 worth of prizes, including a Hot Springs Spa, airline tickets to Honolulu, beach towels and T-shirts, were awarded during the weekend.

But what made the party a hit was the concept behind it — a beach party held in a rural Iowa pasture, hundreds of miles from the nearest ocean.

Democrats assemble in Atlanta

ATLANTA (AP) — Michael Dukakis, vowing to "launch a winning campaign" for the White House, arrived in Atlanta on Sunday to claim the Democratic nomination for president. Bargaining continued with Jesse Jackson's camp to assure convention-week unity.

"We're working hard to make sure we have a good convention, a strong and united party," the Massachusetts governor said after he and ticketmate Lloyd Bentsen touched down in their chartered Presidential Airways jet.

Jackson spent his day moving triumphantly around town, holding the convention-city spotlight even if he was far short of the delegates needed to dislodge Dukakis' hold on the nomination. "This is not a coronation," he said, "this is a convention."

The runner-up in the primary season said it was "too much to expect" a party gathering without debate. "That is in the highest and best traditions of the Democratic Party," he told CBS, although he predicted there would be unity by the end of the week.

Bentsen said he thought the Democrats were showing more unity than in any time in the past 20 years, adding, "The tide is really moving with us."

Advisers for the two rivals met for more than an hour in talks that seemed to be leading to a meeting of the candidates. "The time hasn't been determined," said Dukakis confidant Paul Broutas.

The Dukakis camp also worked to create the impression of a campaign looking toward the fall election. Senior aide Jack Corrigan announced that 35 state field directors met during the day. He said Jackson advisers would be among those yet to be named.

Dukakis — during farewell remarks from Boston — seemed to stiffen in the face of Jackson's continuing demands.

"You can't have two quarterbacks," he said in a blunt assessment of Jackson's call for "shared responsibility." He added, "Every team has to have a quarterback; that's the nominee."

He added, "No Democratic convention would be a Democratic convention without a little controversy."

As for Jackson, Dukakis told a Statehouse news conference in Boston, "We know each other, we like each other, we respect each other."

Ohio Democrats passed the word that Sen. John Glenn would place Bentsen's name in nomination for vice president on Thursday night, a gesture of unity by a man passed over when Dukakis picked his running mate.

Bentsen's nomination was assured, See Convention, Page 6

Regents OK final UI education budget

President to get $13,000 salary increase

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

OKOBOJI, Iowa — The state Board of Regents approved the final general educational fund budgets for the three regents universities for fiscal year 1989 — including salary raises for all three university presidents — at their meeting in Okoboji Friday.

The final budget approved for the three universities totaled $758,518,332, of which $454,174,214 went to the UI. Over half of the UI's funding — $229,699,342 — was designated for the General University budget, with the next largest amount, $199,021,000, going to UI Hospitals and Clinics.

Iowa State University received a total budget of $230,107,791 and University of Northern Iowa's budget was approved at $65,789,165.

Overall, the budget for the UI General University fund was increased by 7.4 percent over the previous year, and the budget for UI Hospitals represented an increase of 11 percent above the budget for fiscal year 1988, according to a summary of the budget issued by the regents.

Although the UI expects a decline of approximately 800 full-time students for fiscal year 1989, tuition-rate increases are expected to generate an additional $4.8 million in revenue.

The regents also approved salary raises of 10 percent for the presidents of the UI, Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa, as well as raises of about 7 percent for the presidents of the Iowa School for the Deaf and the Iowa Braille and Sight Saving School.

Effective July 1, 1988, the presidents of the UI and Iowa State University will make $143,000 a year, a $13,000 salary raise from the previous year. UI Interim President Richard Remington will

Steam power cools costs at chilled water plant

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

OKOBOJI, Iowa — A $1.2 million budget increase approved by the state Board of Regents Friday for the UI north campus parking and chilled water facility will allow the UI to power the planned structure's chillers with low-pressure steam rather than electricity, producing an annual operational savings of $450,000.

With the new funding approval, the project budget is increased from its original estimate of $8,745,000 to $9,931,875.

But Regent John Fitzgibbons praised the use of steam as an energy source, saying it will result in future savings.

Board of Regents President Marvin Pomerantz said the long-term savings was unexpected.

"We're very pleased with the savings, but we're curious as to how it got here," Pomerantz said.

UI Director of Planning and Administration Dick Gibson said at the outset of the project this spring, planners didn't realize low-pressure steam was a viable energy source for the structure.

"We were here in February on this project, but at that time — I don't want to point fingers or anything — we had a brand-new engineering staff working on the plan and so forth," Gibson said. "It was clear to us (at the time) that we did not have low-pressure steam in adequate quantities at the site of the project to generate as the energy source for the chillers, and so we went to electricity as a source. We immediately began questioning that decision."

After completing a new engineering study, Gibson said planners discovered there is adequate low-pressure steam available at the UI for the project and that steam could be used in lieu of electricity at a substantial savings.

"Savings are occurring as a result of the process of taking high-energy steam — which we produce out of our boilers — stepping it down, and in the process of stepping it down in one case can either simply be through pressure-reduction valves in which you get absolutely nothing," he said. "It's dissipated as heat. There's no economic benefit associated with it."

"You can alternatively run it through an electric generator and achieve the same end," Gibson said. "At the low-pressure end of the generator, you generate electricity as a by-product, then you use that low-pressure steam in the chilling plant."

Gibson said in this project the UI will use the latter, money-saving, low-pressure steam method.

Low-pressure steam energy will be transported from the main chilling plant to the structure south of North Hall eight blocks away in one of two ways, he said. The UI can install a small electric generator at the site of the new structure's chiller to obtain a low-pressure steam by-product and to generate enough steam to produce the savings, or the UI can construct a steamline between the central plant and the chiller site to channel the energy.

Board rejects residency appeal of UI student

The residency appeal of UI student John White was rejected by the state Board of Regents Registrars and Admissions Officers Coordination Committee Friday.

The committee reported White held nonresident status when he graduated from the UI in 1977, failed to find work when he came back to Iowa during the summers of 1982-86 and worked or attended school out-of-state until his return to the UI in spring 1987.

The committee ruled that White returned to Iowa for educational purposes and that he had not demonstrated his previous residence had been abandoned and an Iowa domicile established.

UI education majors to be eliminated

The state Board of Regents Friday approved the UI's request to terminate College of Education undergraduate majors in early childhood education, elementary mental retardation and secondary mental retardation when all current students in these areas have completed their programs.

The elimination of these majors will reduce some of the program duplication among the regents institutions and ensure students in these majors are able to work with regular students before undertaking specialized teaching.

Admission of new students to these programs would be suspended effective fall 1988.

Campus video system rates to be increased

UI student subscribers to Campus Video System entertainment, a programming service of Heritage Cablevision, will be subject to a 19 percent basic service increase for the 1988-89 academic year.

UI Vice President for Finance and University Services Susan Phillips said the need to increase rates resulted from lower-than-expected subscription rates.

Fewer than the expected 30 percent of the UI's academic residents subscribe to the basic service.

Board to discipline local physician Croskey

Iowa City resident Kent Croskey, an osteopath who has been serving in an anesthesia residency at UI Hospitals, was charged by the state Board of Medical Examiners with falsifying narcotic records as a means to divert the drugs to his own personal use.

The violations supposedly occurred in December 1987 and May and June 1988.

The board decided to file complaints and a statement of charges seeking to discipline Croskey and five other Iowa physicians, including William Catalona of Muscatine; Paul H. Rose of Mount Pleasant; Joseph H. Spearing of Harlan; Jerald King of Nevada; and David T. Bert of Des Moines.

UI Collegium Musicum to present concert

The UI Collegium Musicum will present a program of music for recorders and vocal works by the 17th-century German-Danish composer Dietrich Buxtehude at 8 p.m. on July 25 in Clapp Recital Hall.

UI music students soprano Heidi Irgens, mezzo-soprano Carolyn Simons, alto Amy Butler, tenor Joseph Spann and bass Ron May will be soloists in the Buxtehude performances.

The recorder consort will perform two sets — a group of pieces from the Renaissance and the Duet in E Minor for two unaccompanied recorders by French composer Joseph Bodin de Boismortier.

The Collegium Musicum is the early music performance group at the School of Music.

UI relies on 'traditional' approach to fund raising

By Stephen Horan
The Daily Iowan

The fund-raising efforts of colleges and universities nationwide are relying more on targeting single sources for substantial contributions, but UI Foundation officials say they are content with more traditional forms of alumni support.

Some universities have come under attack for reliance on locating potential big donors through a process known as "prospect research." In prospect research a potential donor's past financial history is studied and a request for a contribution is made at a time most convenient for both the donor and the university.

But Michael New, vice president of development programs at the UI Foundation, said he is wary of such methodology. He said prospect research is a trendy concept that implies questionable probing.

New said the foundation received more donations through long-term agreements than from outright gifts.

"Fund-raising is a process, not an event," said New.

New added that by emphasizing the regional aspects of the UI, positive feelings are "rekindled," which in the long run are more beneficial to the foundation than attempting a "hard-sell" approach.

The UI promotional film, "Light on the River," is an example of a regional fund-raising approach. New said the film is designed to encourage donations by a soft selling of the UI's positive aspects.

But foundation fund-raising is usually conducted in a less visible fashion.

"Light on the River" was the most expensive investment the foundation has been involved with, according to UI Foundation Vice President of Communications Alan Swanson. The project most comparable in expenditures would be the campaign for the building of Carver-Hawkeye Arena in 1979-80, he said.

Three major methods of gaining solicitations through individual donors come through bequests, gifts of life insurance and charitable remainder trusts. Reliance on these methods rather than outright giving are the norm at the foundation.

Currently, about one-third of the foundation's financial support comes from bequests. The proceeds from gifts of life insurance are paid to the foundation, eliminating the delays caused by the estate administration process.

The charitable remainder trusts relate to a donor passing his or her wealth on to a spouse or significant other. Upon that person's death, the remaining funds are received by the foundation.

One problem facing some universities is file security. Assuming staff personnel change jobs, there is the fear that they will take information on donors that have been targeted for university purposes elsewhere.

"We don't have a lot of staff turnover at the foundation," New said. "Working with loyal employees, we've never had a problem like that, but we're sensitive to that happening."

Since 1956 the UI Foundation has served as the focal point for private donations to the UI. Because the UI receives less than one-third of its funding from state appropriations, the need for private support will continue to be a main support of UI education.

After years of persistence, Coralville man wins lottery

By Heather Maher
The Daily Iowan

Most people have heard the saying "persistence pays off in the long run."

Now there's one more reason to believe it, because persistence paid off for a Coralville couple Wednesday in the form of $2.25 million.

Dwayne "Doc" Dahnke, a 60-year-old ice delivery man for the Wicks Ice Co., picked the winning numbers in the Iowa Lotto Jackpot drawing last week and won the $2.25 million jackpot after faithfully buying seven lottery tickets each week for the past few years.

The winning ticket, purchased Wednesday at the Coralville Pronto Market, 1003 E. Second St., was actually bought by Dahnke for his wife, Glenna, a 58-year-old food service worker in the Iowa City School District.

Dahnke used "easy pick" to find the winning numbers. He bought the ticket about 10 minutes before the deadline for entering the lottery Wednesday night.

The Dahnkes will share their $4.48 million prize with a dairy farmer from Bridgeport, Wis.

Dahnke said he was in Iowa City checking ice machines when the lottery was on, but his wife was watching the Lotto show when their number was picked.

He added that he plans on using the money to pay off his son's trailer home and possibly a few indulgences for his grandchildren. He also suggested he may retire from his job at Wicks Ice Co.

But Dahnke's wife, who is technically the owner of the ticket and recipient of the prize money, said she isn't as sure.

"I really don't know what we'll do with the money yet," she said, adding that both she and her husband will decide how to spend it.

The Dahnkes received their first check — $84,000 — on Thursday and will receive the rest of the money over the next 20 years.

Already, the publicity surrounding the winning has led to unsolicited advice as to how the Dahnkes should dispense of their winnings.

"We've received some phone calls from people who want to invest our money for us," said Mrs. Dahnke. "I tell them to send brochures, but I really don't know what we're going to do."

Northwest Iowa farmers get big rains

DES MOINES (AP)— Fresh rains Sunday provided a second drenching of the weekend to scattered parts of the state, with some northwest Iowa farms getting up to 4.5 inches of rain in the latest storms.

The thunderstorms also passed through central Iowa, prompting the National Weather Service to issue advisories for flooding of city streets in Des Moines after more than an inch of rain fell at the airport.

"This is the best rain we've had all year," said Melba Wilcox, who with her husband, Dave Wilcox, raises seed corn and soybeans on a farm near Bagley. She said her rain gauge showed 2.5 inches fell early Saturday. "I went outside to make sure it was real," she said.

But once again the rain was spotty and the drought continued in the driest areas of the state — east-central and southeast Iowa. Less than a quarter of an inch of rain fell in those areas late Friday and early Saturday.

A Coralville man was being held in Johnson County Jail on $6,000 bond on charges of indecent exposure and going armed with intent to harm Friday after allegedly masturbating in front of three women, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Douglas D. Vandamme Jr., 19, 2414 10th St., allegedly urinated in front of the three women on the 500 block of Fifth Street. He then was seen masturbating in front of them, according to court records.

While Vandamme was in front of the women he allegedly had a butterfly knife in his hand and was waving it in a threatening manner. He was then located running away, and officers had to place him on the ground at gunpoint due to the knife in his hand, according to court records.

When asked if he was urinating and masturbating in front of some women, he said, "Well, I probably was. You decide," according to court records.

A preliminary hearing in the case is set for July 22.

Research staff swells ranks at 3 universities

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

OKOBOJI, Iowa — An 8.6 percent increase in the number of full-time employees at the regents institutions in the past six years is primarily the result of increases in professionally and scientific full-time staff at the three state universities, according to a report released Friday by the state Board of Regents.

From March 1982 to March 1988, professional and scientific full-time staff increased 25.4 percent while academic full-time faculty at the five institutions increased nearly 1 percent and general services full-time staff increased 3.9 percent.

The report attributes the substantial increase of professional and scientific staff in large part to the universities' 44 percent increase in research made possible by gifts and grants.

"This is undoubtedly a result of increase in research," regents staff member Cynthia Eisenhower, who presented the report, said.

At the UI, census reports reflect a 22.8 percent increase in staff — 13 percent of that increase in full-time staffers — from March 1982 to March 1988. The majority of the increase is credited to full-time professional and scientific positions which have increased by 30.4 percent during that time period.

Increased activity generated by faculty research, additional support for health care provisions, faculty activity supports such as undergraduate advising, and the response to external requirements imposed by outside agencies are the principle factors responsible for the increase.

"We need to make sure staffs aren't outgrowing the institutions," Board of Regents President Marvin Pomerantz said. "We need to make sure the staffs are growing for the right reasons."

"We're limiting funding in terms of faculty that need to teach, and replacing them with researchers," he said.

The other significant shift in employment between March 1982 and March 1988, according to the regents report, has been from full-time to part-time employees. The number of full-time employees at the regents institutions as a percentage of the total has decreased from 52 to 48 percent, with a corresponding increase in other staff. This shift was generally attributed to the increase in student staff employment.

The number of part-time non-student staff, student staff and temporary staff employees at regents institutions has increased by over 30 percent from March 1982 to March 1988. The part-time non-student staff has increased by 20.7 percent; the student staff has increased by 32.6 percent. The number of temporary employees increased by 17.4 percent.

The increase of 3,975 student employees from March 1982 to March 1988 is an increase of 33 percent. The universities report the increased emphasis on student aid as well as research employing graduate assistants as contributing factors.

Mary Jo Small, UI associate vice president for finance and university services, said new research staffers are generally hired to aid faculty with research to allow those faculty members to spend more time teaching.

UI Associate Vice President for Academic Affairs Kenneth Moll said most of the research employees hired in the past six years are short-term, non-tenure track people helping the UI adjust to its needs.

At the UI the part-time staff has increased 42.2 percent in non-student staff, 34.4 percent in student staff and 22 percent in temporary staff. The university has experienced a shift in the mix of employees from full-time to part-time.

There was also a significant increase in number of student employees on the UI staff, attributed in part to student aid.

The regents Friday also reviewed a faculty activity analysis report of the five regents institutions.

According to the report, the total faculty effort for teaching at the regents universities is 76.1 percent at Iowa State University, 73.9 percent at the University of Northern Iowa and 60.7 percent at the UI.

Regents check progress of organizational audit

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

OKOBOJI, Iowa — The organizational audit currently being conducted at the five regents institutions is currently on schedule, according to a progress report reviewed at Friday's state Board of Regents meeting.

The audit, which is being conducted by the accounting firm of Peat Marwick Main & Co., was first approved in September 1987. The audit was seen as a way for the regents to gain an outside perspective on how resources at the regents institutions could be more effectively used.

Phase I of the audit, which identified areas for possible further study, was completed earlier this year.

Phase II of the study consists of 35 special studies, 11 of which are regent-wide issues. The other studies are concerned with individual areas at the five regents institutions.

Of these, eight are specifically related to the UI, six concern Iowa State University, five concern the University of Northern Iowa, three concern the Iowa Braille and Sight Saving School and two concern the Iowa School for the Deaf.

"We are moving forward on schedule. We are gaining information from on-campus interviews, board interviews and board-staff interviews," says Alceste Pappas of Peat Marwick.

The studies include an assessment of current institutional planning programs, an analysis of the school's organization and staff, a review of the mission of UI Hospitals and Clinics, an analysis of the program review process, an assessment of internal policies and procedures and an examination of faculty workloads.

The board was given an oral review of the process on Friday by Alceste Pappas of Peat Marwick. Pappas told the board that Phase II of the process began April 25 and will be completed in approximately 6½ months.

"We are moving forward on schedule," Pappas told the regents. "We are gaining information from on-campus interviews, board interviews and board-staff interviews."

Pappas said Peat Marwick has received strong institutional support and cooperation at all of the regents institutions, adding the audit was actually ahead of schedule in some areas of study.

Pappas said data collection for the organization and staffing studies for the UI are complete, and the findings of those studies are currently being assessed. The firm will also release a concept paper on strategic planning for the regents sometime this week.

"We're going to be bringing forward to you some pretty hard-driving suggestions," Pappas said.

In response to a question from regent Charles Duchon regarding the role of students in the auditing process, Pappas stressed that students would be included as much as possible by the firm.

"I think the student government associations on each of the campuses should be involved with this," Pappas said.

Rawlings meets with UI officials, prepares to assume presidency

By James Cahoy
The Daily Iowan

OKOBOJI, Iowa — Incoming UI President Hunter Rawlings III said he looked forward to a strong relationship with the state Board of Regents as he attended his first regents meeting in Okoboji on Friday.

Rawlings, who officially takes over as UI president on Aug. 1 from Interim President Richard Remington, praised the regents and said he did not expect any trouble in working with them.

"I think we have a very strong group of regents," Rawlings said. "I think we are fortunate to have people of this caliber on the board."

Rawlings said he has been spending the days before he officially takes over the presidency meeting with various UI faculty and administration members, including Remington, to try to help make a smooth transition to his presidency.

Although he currently resides in Colorado, Rawlings has made several visits to the UI campus. He described most of his contacts with

UI faculty members and administration officials as "positive."

"Not everything can go perfectly, there have been some problems," Rawlings said. "(But) overall, things have gone well. There are a lot of strong things and a lot of diligent people working at the university, and that's a great comfort to know."

Rawlings said that his first priorities as the new UI president would be preparing the budget for the 1989-90 school year and "pushing hard" on affirmative action programs at the UI.

Budget

be paid one month of this salary, with the other 11 months salary going to Hunter Rawlings III, who will take over as UI president on Aug. 1.

University of Northern Iowa President Constantine Curris will receive a salary of $110,000, an increase of $10,000. The salaries of Iowa School for the Deaf president William Johnson and Iowa Braille and Sight Saving School president Dennis Thurman will increase to $58,000.

The budget approved by the Board of Regents on Friday also means salary increases of about 10 percent for UI faculty members. The 10 UI colleges all receive increases in their instructional budgets for fiscal year 1989, with the largest being a 13 percent increase for the College of Law and the smallest being a 7.1 percent increase for the College of Education.

Among the new programs and positions being initiated at the UI this year include the creation of new faculty positions in five of the UI colleges; the initiation of the third phase of the Iowa Fellows Program, which is designed to attract graduate students to do their doctoral work at the university; and the creation of new programs designed to increase ethnic and cultural diversity at the UI.

There were no proposed changes in the budgets for the UI from the tentative budgets approved last month by the regents.

American soldiers attacked in Honduras

TEGUCIGALPA, Honduras — Attackers hurled bombs and opened fire on a group of American soldiers leaving a discotheque early Sunday in the northern city of San Pedro Sula, wounding four of them, a U.S. Embassy spokesman said.

Spokesman Charles Barkley said in a telephone interview the attack occurred shortly before 1 a.m. (3 a.m. EDT). He said the soldiers were on leave, carried no weapons and were dressed in civilian clothes. He refused to give their identities until next of kin were notified.

All four were hospitalized in stable condition, he said. In Washington, Pentagon spokeswoman Maj. Kathy Wood said nine soldiers were attacked as they drove out of the discotheque's parking lot. She said there were 10 or 12 attackers.

"I guess if there's a hero in this, it's the driver," Wood said. "He took evasive action. He drove away fast. He did things right." The driver's name was not available.

Maj. Wood said she knew of no claims of responsibility for the attack.

Barkley said he did not know who the attackers were or why they opened fire on the soldiers. He said all the soldiers are based at the Palmerola Air Force Base, 41 miles northeast of Tegucigalpa, the Honduran capital.

San Pedro Sula is Honduras' second-largest city. It is 125 miles north of the capital.

Peruvian soldiers fight leftist guerrillas

AYACUCHO, Peru — An army squad of a dozen soldiers encountered a group of some 50 leftist guerrillas near a highland town and killed six of the rebels in a firefight, the military said Sunday.

The communique made no mention of army casualties. It said the hourlong battle occurred Friday near the town of Tambo, 25 miles northeast of Ayacucho, and the surviving guerrillas of the Maoist Shining Path movement escaped into the rugged countryside.

Shining Path rebels raided the hamlet of Omas, 80 miles southeast of Lima, killing three village officials and burning a dozen houses, the Lima newspaper El Comercio reported Sunday.

It said the rebels tried to seize the Omas police post but officers repelled the attack. The newspaper gave no further details and government officials could not be reached Sunday for comment on the report.

Ayacucho, 225 miles southeast of Lima, is the stronghold of the Shining Path rebels.

Sadat assassins escape Egyptian prison

CAIRO, Egypt — Three former army officers convicted in the 1981 assassination of President Anwar Sadat overpowered their guards, took their rifles and shot their way out of a maximum-security prison Sunday, police said.

The escapees, members of a Moslem fundamentalist organization known as Jihad, or holy war, fled from their cell after one of them knocked a guard unconscious with an iron bar and another wounded a second guard while snatching his rifle, police officials said.

The three then seized the guards' automatic rifles and made their way through the main prison gate after exchanging fire with other guards, the officials said. Tora prison lies on the outskirts of Cairo.

Officials said the guards were unable to pursue the three before they disappeared. Officials were tight-lipped about whether the escapees received outside help.

The three were identified as Mohammed Khames, 40, Esam el-Kemary, 37, and Ahmed el-Aswani, 31. They were among 17 Jihad members sentenced to life imprisonment by the supreme military court in 1982 for involvement in the assassination.

Sadat was assassinated Oct. 6, 1981, during a military parade in Cairo. Hosni Mubarak succeeded him as president.

Passenger removed after striking attendant

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. — An Atlanta-bound jetliner made an unscheduled stop Sunday to remove a passenger for hitting a flight attendant over the correct change for a drink, an airline spokesman said.

The unidentified man was escorted off the Eastern Airlines plane about 5:45 a.m., said security personnel at Huntsville International Airport.

No injuries were reported. The passenger was not arrested. "We are not identifying him since he has not been charged," said FBI spokesman Tom Moore. "An investigation is continuing."

Moore said the man was traveling with his mother, who is a delegate to the Democratic National Convention. The man's mother left the flight voluntarily here, as did another man who was not identified.

A spokesperson said the passenger "argued with a male flight attendant, apparently over the correct change on liquor money. Apparently it was a rather heated argument. The word we have is that the passenger hit the flight attendant."

Shuttle gas leak may delay first post-Challenger launch

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Space agency officials decided Sunday to delay a decision on whether to take Discovery off the launch pad to fix a gas leak until after a test-firing of the shuttle's three main engines on July 28.

While preparing for that crucial test, engineers will decide whether there is a way to repair the leak with the ship still on the pad, National Aeronautics and Space Administration spokesman Chuck Hollinshead said.

"By doing and purging the line, engineers have stabilized the leak and feel it is safe to proceed with the flight readiness firing," Hollinshead said.

He said an option was to launch Discovery without repairing the leak, if it were determined not to be a flight hazard.

If Discovery has to be taken back to a hangar, its planned launch on the first post-Challenger shuttle flight would be delayed up to two months. The test firing already has been delayed two days, so even if the shuttle stays on the pad, there is likely to be a postponement of at least a few days from the launch target of Sept. 6.

Shuttle managers here, at NASA headquarters in Washington and at field centers in Houston and Huntsville, Ala., conferred by telephone before Sunday's announcement.

The decision came after engineers determined the source of the gas leak was in a fitting on a line leading to an oxidizer tank that serves an engine system used to steer the shuttle in orbit.

The steering engines maneuver the shuttle in orbit and are separate from the main propulsion engines.

The oxidizer tank is deep within an engine compartment and engineers said the leak probably could not be reached without removing the 22-foot-tall compartment, a very complex operation never before done on the launch pad.

By conducting the firing first, shuttle managers hoped to minimize lost time and eliminate the need for a second rollback of the shuttle to a hangar if a problem should develop during the test.

The purpose of the test-firing of the three engines is to check modifications made since the Challenger explosion and to provide the launch team with valuable launch countdown practice.

NAMES quilt honors AIDS victims

By Sara Langenberg
The Daily Iowan

A six-ton tribute to AIDS victims is touring U.S. cities.

The NAMES Project National AIDS Memorial Quilt consists of fabric panels created by the families, friends and lovers of people who have died of AIDS. One such group has formed in Iowa City to memorialize Kerry Grippe, a former UI associate professor of piano, who died last September of AIDS.

"He's been missed, by myself and others that knew him, whether they realize it or not," Alan Greedy, a friend of Grippe's, said. "He was really a beautiful person in my life and in the community."

The quilt has stopped mainly in cities hardest hit by the AIDS epidemic and will complete its four-month, 12,000-mile tour in Washington, D.C., October 8-9.

At its Chicago debut last week, the quilt consisted of 3,488 panels, each representing one person who has died of AIDS, and weighed nearly 12,000 pounds.

"It's quite an event to see the quilt panels — experiencing it with others, some laughing, some crying," said Greedy, who saw the quilt displayed in Chicago July 8-9.

Carmen Grier, another friend of Grippe's who has seen the quilt, said, "Each panel is very personal and beautiful. You learn something about the person (it is) in honor of. They are amateurish from an art point of view, but beautiful in their own way."

The quilt was inspired by the American folk art tradition of quilting and sewing bees. Donald Engstrom, a local artist and friend of Grippe's, said Native American women made quilts as memorials.

Engstrom left Friday for Minneapolis, where the quilt was on display through July 17. He also saw the quilt displayed in Washington last year.

"It's one of the best pieces I've ever seen, as far as folk art goes. It's just incredible," he said.

The victim's name, date of birth and date of death are sewn on many of the panels.

"(The quilt) is accomplishing a great deal, bonding people together lost in anger and sorrow," Greedy said. "I'm surprised how many people don't know anything about (the quilt). It's about the size of four or five football fields — just to see it is a form of communication."

But despite its weight, the names on the quilt only represent about 14 percent of the total AIDS toll. For each person named by the quilt, eight others have died.

Kot Flora, coordinator of the disease prevention and AIDS program in the Johnson County Health Department, said that as of July 8, the total number of reported AIDS cases in Iowa since February 1983 is 102. Of those, 50 have died.

Fear, of both their own mortality and of being ostracized for their condition, is a burden that many AIDS victims have to face alone, Greedy said.

"Many people are dying afraid and alone," he said. "They can't go home to die because their parents live in a small town where people will make fun of them."

As well as raising awareness to problems such as these, the NAMES Project hopes to raise funds and encourage support for people with AIDS and their families.

Greedy said he is aware of the funding problems that organizations sympathetic to AIDS victims and their families face.

"In the Reagan administration, hundreds of thousands of dollars were allocated (for AIDS-related projects) and they hadn't spent the money after the first year. They didn't even develop a structure for an organization," he said.

"The quilt is a slight bit of a barb to people. It is raising awareness to (needed) funding and to the Reagan administration's not dealing with this because it deals with people they'd rather ignore," he said.

Greedy, Grier and Engstrom are all involved in the production of the panel memorializing Kerry Grippe. They encourage individuals interested in contributing to Kerry's panel, whether in the form of a bead, a picture, colored scrap of material or money, to contact Carmen Grier at 354-9015.

Contributions should be no larger than 5 inches square since the entire panel can be no larger than 3 feet by 6 feet. They need to receive them before July 24 in order to complete the panel in time for it to be displayed at the quilt's San Francisco exhibition in early August.

Governor inspects tornado damage to Council Bluffs

COUNCIL BLUFFS (AP) — Gov. Terry Branstad inspected storm damage Sunday and declared Pottawattamie County a disaster area as local residents continued to marvel that no one was killed by a string of tornadoes that damaged 10,000 homes and injured 94 people.

"I think we were a whisper away from a major catastrophe," said Walt Calinger, mayor of neighboring Omaha, Neb.

An estimated 10,000 homes suffered some form of damage in Friday's storm and Council Bluffs Mayor Tom Hanafan said Sunday losses already total $16.5 million.

Insurance adjusters projected on Saturday damage would reach $20 million to $25 million.

The thunderstorm packing 92-mph winds and up to four funnel clouds skipped over the heart of downtown Omaha on Friday afternoon before one funnel touched down briefly on the Interstate 480 bridge that spans the Missouri River, connecting Omaha and Council Bluffs.

Within minutes, a tornado slammed into a 700-square-block area of western Council Bluffs, severely damaging at least 160 homes, uprooting 100-foot trees, downing power lines and upending scores of railroad cars.

Branstad toured the area Sunday afternoon and stopped to talk with some local residents along with Hanafan and state and federal disaster officials.

The governor declared Pottawattamie County a disaster area and said the proclamation will make state relief available as well as make the county eligible for federal funds. He said damage estimates would be presented today to the Federal Emergency Management Agency in an attempt to speed relief to victims of the tornadoes.

Ellen Gordon, the director of Iowa's office of disaster services, said officials from the FEMA Region 7 office in Kansas City would visit Council Bluffs on today. She told KKAR Radio in Omaha the area appeared to be a "borderline case" as far as its eligibility for federal funds.

Hanafan said round-the-clock work likely would continue through Wednesday to clear trees and return traffic lights to working order. Thousands of residents remained without power Sunday, but most of the electricity was expected to be restored by Monday.

The Iowa National Guard planned to stay on duty Sunday to enforce a curfew for the third night in a row, Hanafan said. He said some minor looting was reported early Saturday, but he downplayed the incidents and said no arrests were made.

The curfew area was reduced to a section of about 100 square blocks Sunday. Earlier it covered most of the northern half of the city.

"The real work starts when we get into the case work. This is really only the tip of the iceberg," said Jack Kellog, a volunteer for the Pottawattamie County Chapter of the Red Cross.

"For one day, they can eat canned beans. After that, they need some nutrition," he said.

Larry Allen, chairman of the Pottawattamie County Board of Supervisors, estimated 10,000 homeowners will file insurance claims for damage caused by the tornadoes.

"People will be working all summer long to repair some of the damage," he said.

Hanafan said it was difficult to estimate the overall economic impact on the city.

"There are a lot of commercial businesses closed. Those are economic dollars that will be lost if they stay closed two or three or four days," he said.

"People are traumatized," Hanafan added. "Roughly 24 hours later the reality starts to set in."

Utility officials said crews were being called in to help from Sioux City, Topeka, Kan., Kansas City, and St. Joseph, Mo.

A tornado hit neighboring Omaha in 1975, killing three, injuring 150 and causing $112 million damage over a 2,000-square-block area.

"Our people believe the tree problem is worse from this storm than it was in the storm from 1975," Omaha Mayor Walt Calinger said.

City officials estimated Council Bluffs lost 30 percent of its trees in Friday's storm.

Hanafan said the tornadoes gave the National Weather Service little time to warn residents. Many people complained they heard no sirens.

Atlanta police cut supremacist rally

ATLANTA (AP) — Police determined to avoid "blood in the streets" canceled a march and rally by white supremacists Sunday after helmeted officers used riot shields to shove aside hundreds of anti-racist demonstrators.

The leader of the white supremacist group, the Nationalist Movement, later was taken into protective custody by police.

There was frequent shoving between police and counterdemonstrators but no reports of violence or injuries outside the Georgia state Capitol, where the opposing groups gathered on the eve of the Democratic National Convention.

The entire Capitol was roped off as anti-racist contingents were confined to either end of Washington Avenue, separated by police in riot gear. As temperatures rose above 90, the protesters, representing a variety of groups, chanted such slogans as "No KKK, no Fascist USA."

An American flag and a Confederate flag were burned in the street as hundreds of reporters looked on. Bare-chested, shaggy youths danced wildly and chanted as others beat drums and played flutes.

Police with helmets and riot shields pushed the crowd back at one point. Firecrackers popped and mounted police moved in, then left the area.

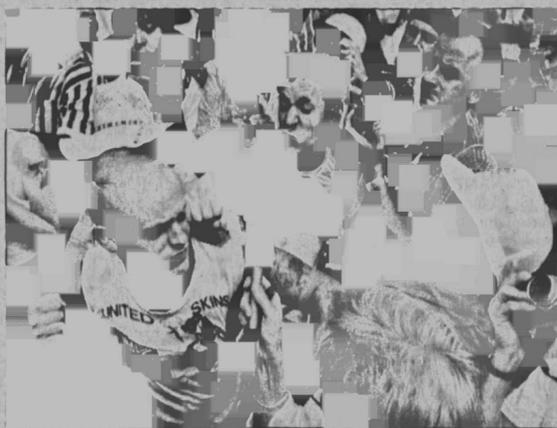

"This was a hostile, angry, nasty crowd and that's why we canceled the march," said Public Safety Commissioner George Napper.

"It was a tough call because this is America," he said, but he said he was determined to avoid "blood in the streets of Atlanta."

After the cancellation, about 250 counterdemonstrators marched from the Capitol to the official protest zone near the convention center, chanting "We just took the Klan's march."

Convention security spokeswoman Jackie Barrett said Richard Barrett, chief organizer of the Nationalist Movement march and no relation, was taken into protective custody when he entered the protest zone.

A small group of his backers tried to march to the protest zone despite the cancellation. The anti-racist protesters surrounded them but police separated the two groups again before there was any violence.

A member of the white supremacy group Skinheads, left, scuffles with anti-Klan demonstrators during a makeshift rally at the Georgia State Capitol in Atlanta Sunday. The confrontation arose after Atlanta police canceled a march by white supremacists and Klansmen. Atlanta is the host city of the 1988 Democratic Convention.

"If our Lord Jesus can ride into Jerusalem on the back of a donkey, Richard Barrett can drive down Marietta Street in his Chevrolet pickup truck," protested Barrett. "This is a shameful act on the part of the city," said Gene Guerrero, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union of Georgia, regarding the cancellation. The ACLU has gone to court several times on behalf of white supremacists' free speech rights.

but Jackson and his aides held out the possibility of a challenge just the same.

Some of Jackson's backers cautioned against pressing too hard. "There is a danger in taking your followers to the brink," said Birmingham, Ala., Mayor Richard Arrington, a Jackson delegate.

Bentsen professed optimism that a convention collision with Jackson could be avoided. "I think the process is under way and we're certainly reaching out to Rev. Jackson," he said.

Thousands of delegates flooded into heat-drenched Atlanta in plenty of time to sample the tourist attractions and restaurants before settling down to the business of anointing Dukakis as their man to lead the fall campaign against Republican George Bush.

Jim Smith from New Jersey may have spoken for many when he said, "I've checked in and I'm headed for the bar."

The latest polling information was good for the Democrats. A survey by the Chicago Tribune indicated that the Dukakis-Bentsen ticket led Bush in California, New York and Illinois — accounting for 107 of the 270 electoral votes needed to win the White House. The survey showed the Democrats running even or slightly ahead in Bentsen's home state and behind in Florida. Just before leaving Boston, Dukakis told reporters, "I'm looking forward to the week." He said, "I'm on my way to a convention where, if everything goes well, I'm going to be the Democratic presidential nominee. That's never happened to me before."

The Omni Hall was ready to receive the assemblage, a basketball arena transformed into a made-for-television facility. "When we made the selection of the Omni we looked at this hall as a television studio," said party Chairman Paul Kirk.

A parade of convention speakers took turns practicing their remarks in a rehearsal room beneath the podium. Keynote speaker Ann Richards said she was there to decide which color jacket would look best on television.

Party elders made the rounds of the morning talk shows, predicting the convention would end in unity.

Former President Jimmy Carter said Jackson would inflict political damage on himself if he demanded "selfish things for himself that are divisive in nature... He's not going to make that kind of mistake." Carter spoke on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley."

At the Bijou

"From the Life of the Marionettes" (1980) — Director Ingmar Bergman concentrates on Peter Egerman, a successful businessman, who has murdered a prostitute in a German nightclub. Why? As is usual in a Bergman film, the accused comes off more likable than the accuser. In German. 7 p.m.

"Pandora and the Flying Dutchman" (1950) — One of the great postwar fantasy/romances, this flick collapses present and distant past and stars James Mason as the Dutchman. 9 p.m.

Television

"Wildside — Sparrows of St. James" — This episode examines the behavior of these prolific little birds, who flit around all day long, mindlessly warbling the same old tunes over and over again and jumping all over each other every time they've got a private moment (6:30 p.m.; IPTV 12). "Land Between Two Rivers — The Wetlands: Enclosed in Change"

— Fourteen thousand years ago the retreat of the Wisconsin glacier, which scientists call "Maurice," created six million acres of prairie pothole marshland in Iowa. This program discusses this 95 percent reduction in wetland habitat (7 p.m.; IPTV 12).

Art

"Katsiaticas, Purington, Schedi" is an exhibition featuring works by three artists who use paper and fiber as art media. It will be on display in the UI Museum of Art through Aug. 14. Some of the best-known photographs of American master Paul Strand will be on display in the Museum of Art through Aug. 17.

Radio

Pianist Ivan Moravec joins conductor Herbert Blomstedt and the Chicago Symphony Orchestra in works by Bruckner and Mozart (8 p.m.; KSUI 91.7 FM).

Bowe wins Olympic boxing bid

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Super heavyweight Riddick Bowe, who has been boxing for several weeks with a damaged right hand, earned a trip to Seoul for the Olympic Games on Sunday by outpointing Robert Salters of the U.S. Army for the second straight day in the Olympic Box-Off.

Kelcie Banks, who won a world amateur title in 1986 and a Pan American Games gold medal in 1987, earned the 125-pound spot on the Olympic team by boxing his way to a 3-2 decision over Trials champion Ed Hopson, a 17-year-old high school junior from St. Louis. Banks had won 4-1 on Saturday.

Ray Mercer, a 27-year-old infantryman stationed in Germany, became the oldest member of the team when he qualified Saturday with a 3-2 decision over Michael Bent of New York.

Only making the Olympic team Saturday were Kennedy McKinney of Killeen, Texas, 119; Kenneth Gould of Rockford, Ill., 147; Romalis Ellis of Ellenwood, Ga., 132; Michael Carbajal of Phoenix, Ariz., 106; Arthur Johnson of Minneapolis, 112; Todd Foster of Great Falls, Mont., 139; Roy Jones of Pensacola, Fla., 156; and Anthony Hembrick of Fort Bragg, N.C., 165.

Barber takes Seniors Tour victory

JEREMY RANCH, Utah (AP) — Miller Barber played a steady round of 2-under-par 70 on Sunday to win his second consecutive Showdown Classic Senior PGA title and his third in four years.

Dick Rhyan, Orville Moody and Ben Smith, whose back nine blowup allowed Barber to take the lead, tied for second, two strokes behind Barber, who finished the 54 holes at 207, nine under par.

Barber won the first prize of $52,500 and Smith settled for $24,667.

Controversy hits Olympic boxing coach

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — The makeup of the U.S. Olympic boxing team was settled Sunday, but not so the controversy over its coaches.

Sniping continued over the selection of Tom Coulter as head coach, while Army coach Hank Johnson turned down a position as the second assistant coach on the team, saying he would not be an assistant because he thought he was a better coach than Coulter.

The second assistant's job opened up when Coulter was elevated to the head job last week after the USA Amateur Boxing Federation's board of directors rejected an appeal from Ken Adams of the U.S. Army, who was suspended from the top job after allegedly assaulting a staffer.

Walker nips Stephenson for LPGA triumph

DANVERS, Mass. (AP) — Colleen Walker survived a front-nine flurry by Jan Stephenson then surged on the back nine Sunday to win the Boston Five Classic by eight strokes, tying the biggest victory margin of the year on the LPGA Tour.

Walker, who led after each of the four rounds of the $300,000 tournament, picked up $45,000 for her first victory of the year and second in her seven years on tour. Stephenson threatened on each of the last two days but couldn't sustain rallies that had gotten her close.

7 records fall in 26-inning game

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — At least seven Texas League records were broken, along with a few hearts, when San Antonio beat Jackson 1-0 in a 26-inning game that took three days to play.

The teams played more than 7 hours Thursday night and into Friday morning, completing 25 innings in a scoreless tie, but when it was resumed Saturday, it took just 13 minutes for San Antonio to win.

"I wished they hadn't scored," said Manager Tucker Ashford of the New York Mets Class AA farm club in Jackson. "I also wished that we could have won the game. I was glad when it was suspended Friday morning."

Manny Francois' bases-loaded single in the bottom of the 26th gave the Missions the victory, ending what is believed to be the longest scoreless game in pro baseball.

The additional 13 minutes needed to settle the outcome extended the time of game to 7 hours 23 minutes, a Texas League record by 44 minutes.

In 1979, Pawtucket and Rochester of the International League battled for 33 innings over two days in a game witnessed from the dugout by Kevin Kennedy, the Missions manager who was then a Pawtucket player.

Among the Texas League records set or tied:

- Longest scoreless tie: The 25 innings broke the mark of 19 set when Cleburne and Fort Worth played July 6, 1906. The consecutive scoreless innings by two teams is also believed to be a pro record.

- Longest game to a decision: It broke the 25-inning mark set in Austin's 2-1 win over Dallas-Fort Worth June 17, 1965.
- Longest game by time: It beat the time of 6:39 in Tulsa's 11-7, 23-inning victory over Jackson July 6, 1982.
- Longest 1-0 game: The old mark was 18 innings, set in a Beaumont-Houston game in April 1942.
- Longest tie game: San Antonio held the old record of 23 innings in a game against Waco July 9, 1910.
- Most strikeouts between two teams: 36 (San Antonio struck out 20, Jackson 16), surpassing the mark of 31.

Bonds, Pirates slip by Giants

PITTSBURGH — Barry Bonds found out Sunday that it can be fun to come through in the pinch.

Bonds hit a tie-breaking, two-run pinch homer in the eighth inning as the Pittsburgh Pirates beat the San Francisco Giants 5-4 Sunday to extend their winning streak to nine games.

"A lot of times, in that situation, you try to do too much," Bonds said, "I wasn't trying to hit a home run, I was trying to make contact, but lately I've been doing the job. It's one of those times where everything is going your way."

Mets 4, Braves 2

ATLANTA (AP) — Bob Ojeda allowed five hits in eight-plus innings and Darryl Strawberry, Mookie Wilson and Tim Lincecum homered as New York beat Atlanta 4-2.

Ojeda, 7-7, retired the first 14 batters before Gary Roenicke lined a soft single to left just out of the reach of shortstop Kevin Elster.

Major League Baseball

Dodgers 4, Cubs 1

DODGERS 5, CUBS 2

CHICAGO (AP) — Steve Sax' two-out, run-scoring single snapped a seventh-inning tie as Los Angeles beat Chicago 5-2 for a sweep of Sunday's doubleheader and the five-game series at Wrigley Field.

In the first game, Franklin Stubbs hit a pinch three-run homer in the seventh inning to give the Dodgers a 4-1 victory.

The doubleheader sweep moved the Dodgers seven games ahead of second-place San Francisco in the National League West. The Cubs have lost nine of their last 10 games.

Phillies 10, Astros 4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Mike Schmidt's three-run triple sparked a five-run sixth inning and Ricky Jordan homered in his first official major league at-bat as Philadelphia defeated Houston 10-4.

Schmidt also hit a home run, the 538th of his career, in a game played in 101-degree temperatures.

Reds 3, Expos 1

MONTREAL (AP) — Rookie Jack Armstrong allowed two hits in seven innings and Paul O'Neill hit a two-run homer as Cincinnati defeated Montreal 3-1.

Armstrong, 2-3, the Reds' first pick in the 1987 amateur draft, struck out five and walked three. John Franco got the last three outs for his 16th save.

Padres 3, Cardinals 1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Eric Show pitched a five-hitter as San Diego defeated St. Louis 3-1 in 101-degree heat.

Show, 7-9, struck out six and walked one as San Diego took three out of four from St. Louis.

Twins 7, Orioles 2

BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Viola allowed two runs and five hits in five innings, the minimum number for a starting pitcher to gain a victory, as the Minnesota Twins defeated the Baltimore Orioles 7-2.

Viola was helped by two-run homers by Greg Gagne and Kirby Puckett and a solo homer by Gene Larkin.

Yankees 7, White Sox 3

NEW YORK — Ron Guidry pitched one-hit ball for five innings for his first victory since Sept. 5 and Don Mattingly continued his second-half surge with two more hits as the New York Yankees beat the Chicago White Sox 7-3.

Red Sox 10, Royals 8

BOSTON — Ellis Burks drove in five runs with a home run, a triple and a double as the Boston Red Sox completed their first-ever four-game sweep of Kansas City with a 10-8 victory over the Royals.

Staked to a 7-0 lead in the first two innings, converted reliever Wes Gardner, 3-1, scattered six hits, including a two-run homer by Mike MacFarlane, for six innings before tiring in the 99-degree heat.

Rangers 3, Brewers 0

ARLINGTON, Texas — Bobby Witt snapped a personal streak of six consecutive defeats this season with his first career complete-game shutout as the Texas Rangers halted a five-game losing skid with a 3-0 victory over the Milwaukee Brewers.

Witt, 1-6, scattered eight hits and four walks and struck out six in his second straight effective outing since being recalled from Class AAA Oklahoma City on July 7.

Angels 4, Tigers 0

ANAHEIM, Calif. — Brian Downing snapped a scoreless tie with a two-run single with two outs in the eighth inning and Terry Clark pitched a five-hitter for eight innings as the California Angels defeated the Detroit Tigers 4-0.

Swapping stories of Henry

BLACKPOOL, England — Sometimes I think I turn up at the British Open golf tournament every year for no other reason than to swap Henry Longhurst stories. We've all heard the best ones before, countless times, those of us around the sport who were privileged to be Henry's friend, but we never got tired of hearing them, of telling them.

Henry was a squat, pudgy Englishman with thinning hair combed straight back and slicked down, always in a jacket and tie, regardless of how warm the climate, and his constantly dour expression meant nothing more than the fact that he was thirsty.

He was a brilliant writer for The Times of London long before I met him, a one-time member of Parliament, and he ended up as the best golf announcer on TV, whether BBC, CBS or ABC, chiefly because he never said much.

"Ah, yes, there you have it."

That was Henry's way of telling the viewer that the viewer has just witnessed Arnold Palmer or Jack Nicklaus doing something miraculous.

And when the roars died down, he might add:

"What more can you say?"

Here at Royal Lytham & St. Annes, hard by the Irish Sea, hard by the usual railway line, Henry was once forced to say a bit more to his BBC viewers, at the request of a director barking in his earpiece.

This was in 1969, Tony Jacklin's year at Lytham.

Absolutely nothing was going on in the tournament. Jacklin was coasting to victory. It appeared that his nearest pursuer, Dave Thomas, had no hope in catching him.

The TV cameras were roving about and Henry was quiet.

"Henry, you must say something," the director begged.

Henry saw on his monitor a train chugging along beside the course, the front nine.

"Ah, yes," said Henry on the air, "here comes the train from Bolton. I'll just see if I can make out the numbers on her engine. Three ... four ... four ... five ... three ... three ... well, Dave Thomas could have done with a start like that on this outward half."

Henry was known for his thirst. One year when a group of us were at a brunch in Augusta, Ga., Henry arrived at the table late, took his seat painfully, ordered a juice of the juniper as quickly as the waitress could bring it, and once served, lifted the glass slowly with both paws.

He noticed most of us staring at him with amusement.

"Yes," he said. "The first one is always a two-hander, is it not."

And yet another time when some of us were caught in one of those "dry" areas where the only available beverages were soft drinks, Henry decided he liked the sound of root beer and requested one.

After one sip, he said, "What do you call this?"

"Root beer," he was told.

Shoving his glass aside, he said, "I shan't be making that mistake again."

Peter Alliss was one of the last to see Henry in the hospital before he passed on a few years ago. Peter loves to recall Henry's words that day, which were:

"Peter, you and I have had a wonderful life, being allowed to loiter about the game of golf all these years, under the pretense of work. You will have many more years doing it. I know you will enjoy them, and rest assured by the time you join me again, I shall have found the hospitality tent."

Fitzpatrick's stages Prime Time upset

Skinner scores at buzzer; Southgate Development falls

By Neil Lewis
The Daily Iowan

The smaller and less experienced Fitzpatrick's team played giant slayer once again Wednesday night, edging Southgate Development 100-98 in Prime Time Basketball League action at Iowa City High School.

Fitzpatrick's win was its second over Southgate this season. Trading baskets for the final 10 minutes of the second stanza, Fitzpatrick's nudged by at the buzzer when pesky incoming Iowa freshman guard Troy Skinner hit an off-balance runner in the lane.

"It was a lucky shot," a sweat-soaked Skinner said of the winning basket. Finishing with 22 points and 10 assists, he was part of Fitzpatrick's three-point-shot brigade that launched 24 such attempts in the first half alone.

The long bombs helped Fitzpatrick's, which was without inside force Michael Ingram.

The game resembled a Lakers-Celtics match-up in several ways; the faster, gold and yellow Southgate team fastbreaking, and the green and white Fitzpatrick's team favoring the slow tempo.

Skinner said that playing against experienced players like Southgate's Roy Marble, Bill Jones and Michael Morgan has been his biggest adjustment from high school ball.

"College ball is like another world," he said, "because the players have so much more quickness and height. It's going to take some time getting used to."

"Ball handling is what I'm working on the most. I need to work at bringing the ball up against Big Ten-caliber players."

Southgate trailed by 10 at the half when Iowa freshman Wade Lookingbill grabbed a long rebound and banked it in with one second left. But Southgate stormed out in the second half behind the inside game of Roy Marble.

Southgate capitalized on Fitzpatrick's faltering three-point shooting and tied it at 64 at the 15-minute mark. Northern Iowa's Maurice Newby put Southgate on top by five when he bombed a three-pointer.

A Skinner three-point shot tied the score with one minute left, both teams traded three-pointers, then the crowd at City High's old gym watched in amazement as Skinner's buzzer-beater sneaked over the front of the rim.

Lookingbill led Fitzpatrick's with 24 points and 10 rebounds. Southgate's Bill Jones had a game-high 30 points.

In the other 6 p.m. game, a battle of the moneylenders, Iowa State Bank defeated Hills Bank 100-91.

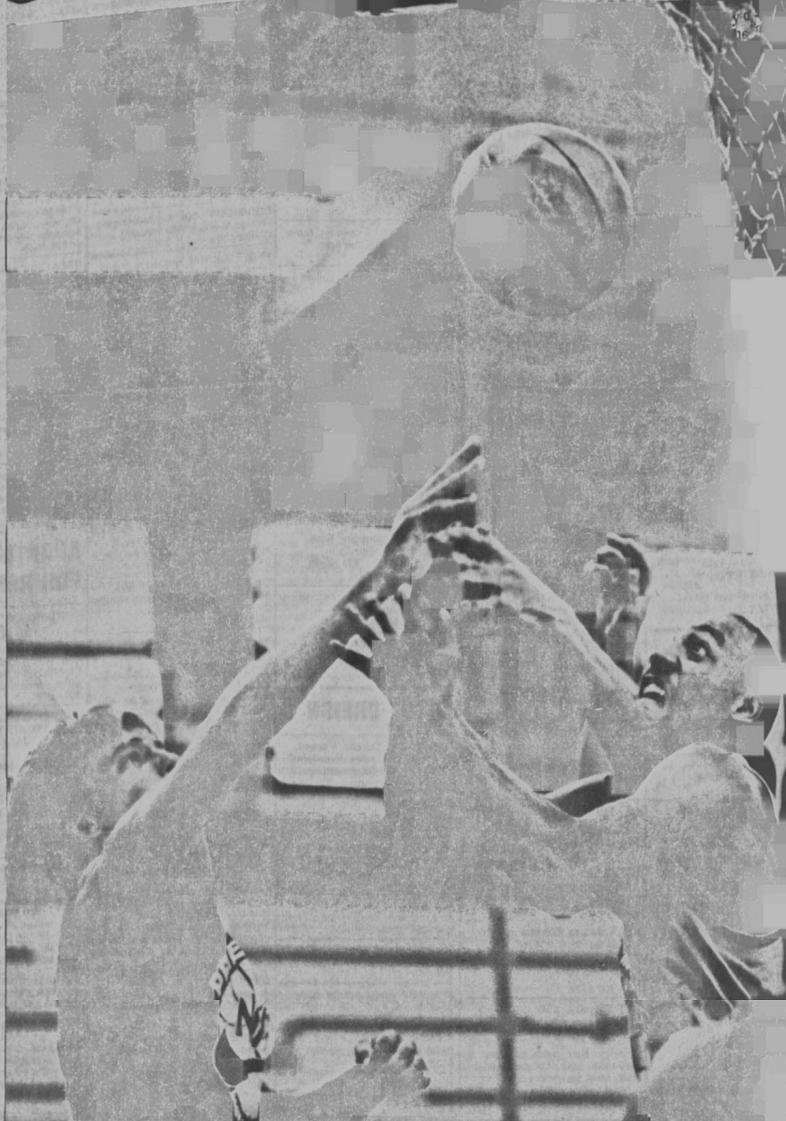

Jeff Moe had 23 and Northern Iowa's Jason Reese scored 22 for Hill's Bank. Former Iowa State standout and European professional Tom Schafer led Iowa State Bank with 31.

Randy Larson, commissioner of the Prime Time League, said players like Schafer are a big reason league play is tougher this year.

"Tom drives 250 miles round-trip and he hasn't missed a game," Larson said. "Most of the leagues like ours don't survive because players don't show."

The fact that the Iowa players are like celebrities, he said, is the reason crowds of 150-200 attend games despite the hot and humid gyms.

"I think most of the credit for the league's success has to go to Coach (Tom) Davis," Larson said. "He's got the kind of quality program that brings the good players."

McCallister earns first PGA win at Oakwood

COAL VALLEY, Ill. (AP)—Blaine McCallister got his name in the PGA Tour record book, shot up the earnings list and earned his first victory.

It all came with a 2-under-par 68 on Sunday in the final round of the $600,000 Hardee's Golf Classic for a three-stroke triumph and the lowest 72-hole total on tour this year.

The 29-year-old McCallister — who shot a 62 on Friday and followed with a third-round 63 to match the mark for consecutive rounds set by Ron Streck in the 1978 Texas Open — finished at 19-under-par 261, three shots in front of Dan Forsman.

McCallister had a seven-stroke lead with four holes to play Sunday, and despite a pair of bogeys, he held on for his first victory in six years on the PGA Tour.

"Oh, what a feeling!" said McCallister who threw his hands over his head and let out a couple of victory yells after securing the win. "I was in control all day. I felt comfortable out there."

The previous 72-hole low on tour this year was 262, set by Chip Beck at New Orleans in March. McCallister's total also broke the tournament record of 265, set last year by Kenny Knox.

McCallister, whose best previous finish was a playoff runner-up in the 1986 Boston Classic, tripled his 1988 earnings with the $108,000 first prize.

"Maybe I can hang out now with some of the big boys now," he said. McCallister, who putts left-handed but swings mostly from the right side on other shots, started the day at 17 under and with a four-stroke lead over Forsman, who won the 1985 title at the Oakwood Country Club, when the tournament was called the Quad Cities Open.

McCallister, playing with Forsman in the final twosome to tee off in the regionally televised event, rolled in a 50-foot putt on No. 14 to go 21 under. He bogeyed the next two holes but parred both 17 and 18.

Forsman had three birdies and no bogeys in his round, but the 30-year-old had too much of a deficit to overcome against McCallister and finished with a 67 for a 16-under-par 264.

Price takes 2-shot advantage at Open

LYTHAM, England (AP)—American forces faded Sunday and left the 117th British Open Golf Championship to front-running Nick Price and three eager European past champions.

No American is within six shots of the lead as Price, a native of Zimbabwe who carries a British passport, takes a two-shot advantage into today's rain-delayed final round.

The chief contenders are defending champion Nick Faldo of England, Masters champion Sandy Lyle of Scotland and Seve Ballesteros of Spain.

"I have more to prove than they do," Price said after his desperately-scrambling 69 put him through 54 holes at 206, 7-under-par. "They've all won this one before. There'll be more pressure on me."

"I'm just really happy that I'm in a position to have a shot at winning, that my game has held together this long."

Faldo, seeking to become the first

Briton in the modern game to win successive British Opens, had a slightly different view.

"Price has played in this situation and been around a long time. If you have survived the pressure of the third day, it eases the pressure for the last day."

"There are four great players right there and nobody is likely to back up. It should be a struggle," he said.

None of those players are American, however.

The leading Americans were six shots back going into today's final round of the chase for the oldest of all the world's golf titles — this being the 117th British Open — and one that hasn't been won by an American since 1933.

McGhee, Harris fall short at track Trials

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Two top Iowa hurdlers failed to qualify for the U.S. Olympic track and field squad Sunday as Edwin Moses continued to dominate the men's 400-meter intermediate hurdles.

Moses, the two-time Olympic gold medalist and world record-holder in the event, ran the fastest time in the world this year in winning his final at the U.S. Olympic Trials.

But Danny Harris, a former Iowa State hurdler who defeated Moses last year in Spain, and Iowa hurdler Pat McGhee failed to make the team.

Moses, 32, was timed in 47.37 seconds, the fastest ever run in the United States. He had held that the previous mark for more than 11 years, having clocked 47.45 on June 11, 1977.

Joining Moses on the U.S. Olympic team for the fourth consecutive year were Andre Phillips in 47.58, and two-time NCAA champion Kevin Young of UCLA in 47.72, a personal best.

Moses' time equalled the seventh-fastest clocking in history, but was far short of his world record of 47.02.

Still, Moses, who made the Olympic team for the fourth consecutive time, now owns the 11 fastest times in history.

Two other runners broke 48 seconds — David Patrick (47.75) and Harris (47.76) — making it the first time five hurdlers had broken that barrier in the same race.

Tranel Hawkins finished in 48.00, Kevin Henderson was clocked at 49.28 and McGhee was last in 49.48.

Jackson Dukakis negotiates

ATLANTA (AP)—Michael Jackson and Jesse Jackson met Sunday for a summit just hours before the Democratic National Convention opened Monday, pledging unity in the face of the party's split and Dukakis agreeing to steps to increase the support of his rival's supporters in the state.

Dukakis insisted on a deal, no fine print with the nearly three-hour meeting, only a better deal with the man who for presidential nomination.

"I want Jesse Jackson to play a major role in this campaign," he said. "I want his supporters, who are by the millions, to be involved in this campaign. I want to be involved actively."

The agreement between the two candidates includes the financing of party funds for Jackson's campaign, the ticket and the need for a convention manager.

"Of course funding is available for the transportation of Reverend Jackson," campaign chairman said.

"If the man's got to go, he's not going to let him go," said Joseph W. Price, a Dukakis supporter who has been involved in the
