Board appoints new UI faculty chairman

The appointment of William D. Pierson as chair of the Academic Senate and chief operating officer of UI Administration was announced by the state Board of Regents in a meeting Friday in Coralville. Pierson, 43, will succeed by July 1, according to the board.

The 27-member board is composed of three representatives each from the state's 13 counties, two members from the Iowa City area, two members from the Des Moines area and one member from each of the state's four other major metropolitan areas.

Pierson has served in a number of capacities at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and has been a member of the university's faculty since 1976. He has served as chairman of the College of Arts and Sciences at the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, and as director of the university's Information and Technology Services Department.

Pierson was a member of the University of Iowa faculty from 1972 to 1976. He was appointed to the faculty of the University of North Carolina, Chapel Hill, in 1976.

The University of Iowa faculty chairman is the chief academic officer of the university and is responsible for the university's academic policies and procedures. The faculty chairman also serves as a liaison between the university and the state Board of Regents.

Guest professor shares Japanese art technique

By Nishii Motonobu

The Daily Iowa

For Professor Shigeo Asada, a former art professor at the University of Iowa and the University of Tokyo, life is a constant quest to find the beauty in the world.

Asada, who has taught at the university for more than 25 years, believes that art is a way to express the world and to connect with others.

"I believe art has the power to transform the world," Asada said. "It has the ability to bring people together and to make them feel connected to the world around them."

Asada has been a fixture on the Iowa City art scene for many years and has been an influential figure in the community. He has taught art classes at the University of Iowa and has been a mentor to many students.

Asada's work has been featured in numerous exhibitions, both in Japan and the United States, and he has received numerous awards for his contributions to the art world.

"I am very grateful for the opportunity to share my art with the Iowa City community," Asada said. "It is a privilege to be able to connect with others through my art and to bring joy to those who view it."

Abridged assembly

Views of 1980s were undoubtedly dancing in their heads, but Abridged assembly paid us poor jesters in meek compliance and rally by white supremacist Sunvir.

“Politics is a doctor of the soul” is the famous maxim of the ancient Chinese philosopher Confucius. It is said that when a patient is ill, the doctor first has to determine the cause of the illness before prescribing a cure. In the same way, the political process involves identifying and solving the underlying problems that bring about the need for political action.

Now we have it all. The peace-loving Sandinistas have taken over the presidency and now they are trying to dominate the world. But, we still have our chance to show them that they are wrong. The Sandinistas are a bunch of fools who dare to interfere in our affairs.

In an increasingly mediated world, form, or what Rene LaFerriere calls "political camouflage," becomes an essential aspect of the political process. It is through political camouflage that political actors seek to present themselves in a favorable light and to control the perceptions of others. In the case of the Sandinistas, their camouflage is not only ineffective, but it is also offensive to many people.

"The Sandinistas have been able to dominate the world because they are a bunch of fools who dare to interfere in our affairs. But, we still have our chance to show them that they are wrong." — John McNally

Praise for Bush

To the Editor:

I must commend President Bush for his handling of the current situation in Africa. His leadership and courage in the face of adversity are truly inspiring.

Yes, President Bush has been "a man to be trusted." His actions have shown that he is a leader who can be counted on to make the right decisions for the benefit of our country.

The President's allocation of funds to fight hunger in Africa is a testament to his commitment to the welfare of the African people. His efforts have helped to alleviate suffering and improve the lives of millions of Africans.

Your reports are greatly appreciated and I look forward to reading more of your insightful commentary.

Yours sincerely,

No big deal

Recent Griffiths from political analysts, newspaper and certain members of the federal government have once again renewed calls for the resignation of the National Assembly. According to these consultants, red, white and blue "theocracy," espoused on television and radio, might have enoughPull to bring about a new constitution. And these consultants ought to know, because they've been spying on us all these years.

Yes, it's true. The traditional red, white and blue "theocracy," espoused on television and radio, might have enoughPull to bring about a new constitution. And these consultants ought to know, because they've been spying on us all these years.

Nicaragua: Land of oppression

I t was a teaching moment when Anne Atkins, the Circles' leader, and Daniel Ortega, the Sandinista leader, were addressing the audience. In Washington, DC, on Friday, and all of the Sandinista leaders were there to discuss their situation with their new-found friends who decided that the Sandinistas were a worthy cause.

The event was held in the wake of a decision by President Daniel Ortega who has been in power for over 12 years. The Sandinistas were in power from 1979-1990. The event was held in 2000.

Our corporate dollars have once again been used to finance the Sandinista's political aspirations. But subsequent to this 1976 law, various rulings have been made.

Booze, balloons and a host of other political paraphernalia? Yes, because taxpayer money should be used to foot the bill. A bill typically including millions of dollars has been paid out.

But when he steps inside a car, he makes a long, slow march towards cloistered beauty. Then, he steps inside the car, he makes a long, slow march towards cloistered beauty. Then, he steps inside the car, he makes a long, slow march towards cloistered beauty. Then, he steps inside the car, he makes a long, slow march towards cloistered beauty.

This is all political chestnuts, a chestnut that has been used for centuries. It is an old chestnut, but it is still a chestnut.

In this instance, it is an old chestnut, but it is still a chestnut. It is an old chestnut, but it is still a chestnut. It is an old chestnut, but it is still a chestnut.

Navy helicopter vanishes after explosions

BANGOR, Wis. — A Navy helicopter vanished after a pair of explosions Sunday, killing two military police officers and injuring six other people, officials said.

Heidi Stockheim, a Bangor police officer, said the two explosions occurred about 11 a.m. and that "the helicopter slowly descended...." She said the explosion was "probably an electrical spark," and that the cause of the explosion was under investigation.

The navy said the helicopter, which was used for training, was on a mission to search for a downed aircraft that went missing Saturday.

A man who said he witnessed the explosion described it as "a loud bang" and said the helicopter burst into flames.

The man said he was about 100 yards from the scene when he heard the explosion.

He said he saw the helicopter's tail blast off into the air, and that the vehicle then exploded into a ball of fire.

The man said he did not know if anyone was injured in the incident.

A Navy official said the helicopter was carrying two pilots and six passengers on a training mission.

The helicopter was a HH-60 Pavehawk, a multi-purpose helicopter used by the Navy for search and rescue missions.

The incident is being investigated by the Navy's Military Police Command, and the Navy is working with local authorities to determine the cause of the explosion.

The Navy said it was "absolutely committed to the safety and security of its personnel" and was "investigating the incident to determine the cause."

Only Great Britain will be in the eight-man Olympic team in the upcoming Olympic tournament. "Our race is known for its speed," she said, "and my team is the fastest in the U.S."

The teams are divided into different classes in different ways. England was considered the best in the world by Koboldt because of their excellent rowing stock, South Korea, considered very regimented and in precise with poise.

The Olympics will be in a challenge for the U.S., Koboldt said. She has some advice for prize-giveaways.

"The U.S. team's first goal is the tournament. The U.S. team's second goal is to win the gold medal. The U.S. team's third goal is to win the gold medal. The U.S. team's fourth goal is to win the gold medal. The U.S. team's fifth goal is to win the gold medal. The U.S. team's sixth goal is to win the gold medal. The U.S. team's seventh goal is to win the gold medal. The U.S. team's eighth goal is to win the gold medal. The U.S. team's ninth goal is to win the gold medal. The U.S. team's tenth goal is to win the gold medal."
