Salaries up, offers down for college graduates

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (AP) — This year's college graduates received higher salary offers than last year's graduates, especially in business fields, but the number of job offers declined slightly, according to a survey released Sunday.

The largest increase was in accounting, with graduates receiving salary offers 10.9 percent higher than last year. The average monthly offer rose from $1,812 to $2,010, for an average yearly salary of $24,120.

Job offers in accounting were down slightly from 5,478 to 5,264, according to a College Placement Council survey released Sunday.

The data included offers made to students graduating between Sept. 1, 1987, and Aug. 31, 1988. Placement offices at 154 colleges and universities participated in the survey. Acceptances were not reported because August graduates were included.

In business administration, the average salary offer rose 4.1 percent from $1,701 to $1,772, or $21,264 a year, but offers fell from 1,788 to 1,285, the survey said.

In banking, salary offers dropped 3.9 percent from $1,889 to $1,815, or $21,780 a year, but the number of jobs increased from 395 to 527.

Non-technical graduates received 48 percent of the job offers made to graduates with bachelor's degrees, while technical graduates received 52 percent of the offers.

For non-technical graduates, 40 percent of the job offers came from public accounting employers, while the electrical and electronic machinery and equipment industry provided 16 percent of the job offers to technical graduates.

The average monthly salary offered to non-technical graduates was $2,045, or $24,540 a year, according to the survey. Technical graduates averaged monthly offers of $2,465, or $29,580.

For master's of business administration candidates with non-technical undergraduate degrees, starting offers increased 5 percent to $2,791, or $33,492 annually. Inexperienced MBA candidates with technical undergraduate degrees attracted offers of $3,192, or $38,304, an 11.8 percent rise.

Technical and non-technical MBA graduates with previous experience garnered increased salary offers between 4 percent and 16 percent, the survey said.

The engineering field provided 42 percent of the job offers to graduates with bachelor's degrees and was followed by business with 40 percent, sciences at 10 percent, humanities and social sciences at 6 percent and communications at 2 percent.

However, for master's degree candidates, business disciplines made 52 percent of the offers; engineering, 36 percent; sciences, 8 percent; and humanities and social sciences, 4 percent.

The survey reported men received slightly higher salary offers in business administration, marketing and distribution, economics and several science disciplines. Women received slightly higher offers in engineering.

Housing project battles against discrimination

By Sara Langenberg
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa Civil Rights Commission and the human rights commissions of Iowa City, Dubuque and Des Moines are beginning the second phase of a Fair Housing Project designed to heighten awareness and knowledge of housing issues among Iowans.

An estimated 2 million instances of housing discrimination occur in the United States each year, but a majority of these go unreported, according to the Department of Housing and Urban Development. HUD receives 4,000 to 5,000 housing complaints at its agency each year.

During fiscal year 1988, approximately 1,500 civil rights complaints were filed at the Iowa Civil Rights Commission. Of these, 3.9 percent were alleged housing discrimination incidents, according to Executive Director Inga Bumbary-Langston. This figure is down from 4.5 percent in fiscal year 1987.

According to Assistant City Manager Dale Helling, there was only one housing discrimination complaint filed in Iowa City during the fiscal year July 1, 1987, to June 30, 1988.

"This is not to say that there haven't been other incidences," Helling said, thus making a distinction between a formal complaint and an incidence. "There are a lot of ways we assist people and help them work things out with their prospective landlord. It is up to the discretion of the individual to file a formal complaint."

The Fair Housing Project, funded by a $145,000 grant from HUD, is an effort to increase the public's awareness of their housing rights. Civil rights officials feel the number of reported cases of housing discrimination does not accurately reflect the actual number of incidences.

"From looking at the studies, it appears to us that people are not complaining," Bumbary-Langston said. "Part of our project is to educate people if they have been discriminated against."

According to Bumbary-Langston, a person's right to fair housing should not be abridged by sex, race, color, age, creed or national origin.

"(You have) a right to live where you want to live," she said.

A black person, after visiting four to five rental agencies, has a 72-percent chance of being discriminated against, Bumbary-Langston said.

The first phase of the Fair Housing Project involved a housing conference in Des Moines April 8 sponsored by the agencies. The topic of the conference was whether there is a fair housing problem in Iowa.

The second phase involves a series of presentations regarding U.S. and Iowa Fair Housing policies to be delivered by Project Manager Jan Alderton. She will address city and county officials, community organizations, landlord and tenant associations and boards of realtors in each of Iowa's 99 counties during the next 15 months.

Discussions of state and national Fair Housing procedures, laws and history will also be featured in Alderton's presentations.

Alderton will be touring Iowa in the Fair Housing Mobile, a 28-foot motor vehicle equipped with audio visual displays and fair housing information.

The mobile was paid for with the HUD funding. The HUD appropriations are also paying for a survey which will examine Iowan's attitudes toward race and fair housing, to be conducted by the UI.

Corn detasslers weather heat for big pay

By Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

Corn detasslers work long hours in temperatures of 90 to 100 degrees, dealing with problems ranging from corn cuts to rashes, but stick to the job because of the money they can earn, according to UI students and Iowa City residents who are working on detassling crews this summer.

More than 40,000 people across the Midwest will detassel corn this summer. Many of these people began work the first week of July and will complete their jobs this week.

Detasslers make cross-pollination between two hybrids possible by removing the tassels from chosen rows of corn. Some work as members of detassling crews while others contract individually with seed corn companies or farmers.

Salaries vary but are based on an hourly wage or the number of acres a contractor agrees to detassel, and must be at least 14 years old — are part of Pioneer's written policy this summer, Kuster said.

He added Pioneer received some complaints concerning a local contractor who allegedly overworked his crew, and the allegations were addressed by Pioneer.

Kuster said things occasionally happen in the fields which are out of the company's control but added written policies should be followed.

Several high-school age members of an Iowa City Pioneer crew said they found detassling a difficult job and one they would rather not do again.

Meeting at a school bus at 6:15 a.m. each morning for two weeks, many of the crew members received their first taste of a full-time, labor-intensive job.

Kristina Stolfus, 16, said she would probably not return to the $4.10-an-hour job next summer. "It's really hard work, and pretty soon I'm going to be able to drive wherever I want to work," Stolfus said.

Stolfus' supervisor, Doug Barnes, 24, said short corn has forced crews to walk the fields, although they've ridden on crew carriers in the afternoons, Barnes said.

"The corn is a lot shorter this year, only 3 to 6 feet in some places," he said. "It's harder to see the tassels."

Jonathan Krutz, a UI graduate student who serves as general manager for Oetting's Detassling Inc., said the hot weather requires contractors to be especially mindful of crew members' health.

He said his company provides a supervision training camp for crew leaders where they are trained to recognize heat exhaustion and treat minor injuries including corn cuts.

"Safety is an awfully important thing out there," Krutz said. "We have to take good care of our crew because if people aren't out there, the job isn't done. And if they aren't treated right, they won't come back."

Krutz added that the number of people in the 14- to 20-year-old group has dropped since 1980, and it has been more difficult to find people to fill detassling crews.

Job Service of Iowa refers teens seeking summer employment to local contractors.

Iowa City Job Service of Iowa General Manager Tom Bullington said this summer it has been difficult to fill corn detassling crews.

"I think there's probably fewer that have been interested, and I don't know the reason," he said. "There have been fewer applying. I've noticed more individual contractors rather than a crew."

Bullington said that families often contract for several acres each summer.

Pioneer Hi-Bred International Inc., Cargill Inc. and Garst Seed Co. are the main corn detassling employers in the Iowa City area.

Iran-Iraq treaty will reduce U.S. forces

WASHINGTON (AP) — A ceasefire in the Iran-Iraq war means the United States would reduce its naval forces in the Persian Gulf and halt the escort of tankers "as soon as we judge it safe, prudent to do so," Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci said Sunday.

Carlucci said it is too early to specify a date for a halt in the 1-year-old administration policy of protecting the reflagged Kuwaiti tankers from Iranian attacks.

"It's a little hard to make that kind of judgment at this point," Carlucci said on NBC's "Meet the Press" when asked about a date for ending the escorts.

"We want to watch the negotiations. We'd probably want to take some reasonable interval to make certain that the cease-fire holds," he said. "But there's no desire to keep 27 ships there any longer than possible."

Carlucci noted that Navy ships will remain in the gulf, as they have for 40 years, but said "we would certainly draw down (the number of U.S. ships) as soon as feasible." Until the reflagging policy began, the Navy had only five or six ships in the waterway.

Iran last week agreed to accept the terms of United Nations resolution 598, which proposes a ceasefire as the first major step toward a negotiated peace. That raised hopes that the bloody 8-year-old conflict would soon end.

But as representatives of both countries prepare to meet this week at the United Nations, Iraq has launched a series of attacks into Iran.

Carlucci and John Whitehead, the deputy secretary of state, both said Reagan administration policies deserve credit for influencing Iran's decision to accept the resolution.

"The fact that we have been resolute, that we have stood by our friends, that we have stood by the principles of freedom of navigation and that he (Iranian leader Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini) has not been able to drive us from the gulf has had a significant impact on Iranian thinking," Carlucci said.

"Furthermore, our staunchness in this area has helped to isolate Iran in the world community," Carlucci said. "We have been quite successful in preventing our countries from shipping arms to Iran, so gradually Iran came to the realization that their policies were not

Hezbollah head seeks end to hostage crisis

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The spiritual guide of a pro-Iranian group believed to be holding Western hostages in Lebanon called Sunday for a solution to the problem but also accused the United States of playing politics with the issue.

"We call for a just and practical solution to this problem to achieve a happy ending," said Sheikh Mohammed Hussein Fadlallah, the spiritual leader of Hezbollah, or Party of God.

Hezbollah is believed to be an umbrella group for extremist Shiite Moslem factions holding most of the 18 foreigners, including nine Americans, hostage in Lebanon.

Over the past two years Fadlallah has repeatedly called for a resolution of the hostage issue, but there has been no known response from the kidnappers.

The hostage held longest is Terry Anderson, 40, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, who was seized March 16, 1985.

Anderson's sister, Peggy Say, reached by telephone at her home in Cadiz, Ky., said, "I don't see that it (the holding of hostages) should be a political issue. It's a human issue."

"Everything I've been hearing out of the Middle East lately gives us reason to hope and it's been a very, very long time since we've had occasion to be hopeful."

She expressed appreciation to Fadlallah and Hashemi Rafsanjani, the speaker of Iran's Parliament, who she said have made positive statements about the hostage situation.

"We are aware that the (hostage) problem has reached such a degree of complexity that its political aspect has become mixed up with its humanitarian aspect," said Fadlallah. "We feel pain for the detention (of the hostages) because the issue has humanitarian aspects," he told hundreds of Shiites in a sermon marking the major Moslem feast of Eid al-Adha.

Swedish rookie leads Open

BALTIMORE (AP) — Swedish rookie Lisalotte Neumann shot a record-setting 67 Thursday to take a two-stroke lead in the storm-lashed and uncompleted first round of the 43rd U.S. Women's Open Golf Championship.

U.S. WOMEN'S OPEN

Neumann, 22, a rookie on the LPGA Tour but a veteran of European play, finished the best first round in tournament history with a 2-foot birdie putt on the final hole of the Five Farms course at Baltimore Country Club.

The previous U.S. Women's Open record was 68, set by Bettye Ann Carter, at 49 the oldest player in the field, overcame a key-bogey start and was tied for second with a 2-under-par 69 that was interrupted by a 43-minute moon thunderstorm delay.

Quinlan also was at 68 during the opening moments before play was suspended by darkness with 15 players on the course.

Quinlan appeared to have any chance of overtaking the leaders. They traded their positions and announced they would return at 8:15 a.m. to complete their rounds.

Quinlan's round, Colleen Walker, Vicki Benz, Vicki Ferguson, and Dottie Pepper were three strokes off the lead.

Lopez, still seeking her first U.S. Open title, shot a 72 that, she said, was a bad score.

Lopez, the LPGA's leading money-winner and the three-time winner this season, said she was "happy with a 72."

England also was in the large group at 72.

Turner, the LPGA's leading money-winner this season, shot a 76 and Dinah Shore winner Amy Alcock struggled to a 76.

Carlucci tied for 11th last week in Boston, the best finish of her American career, but won the German Open earlier this year and collected three other titles before joining American Tour.

Carlucci said her first-round effort exceeded her highest hopes.

Carlucci played seven tournaments in 1987 and I have been pretty good," she said.

Carlucci practiced this morning, thinking that if I could go out and shoot par, that would be a start.

Carlucci was four-under, it's just that better," she said.

Carlucci missed only three greens — two of those in the fringe, where she is still able to use her putter and played those holes in 1 par. She chipped in from 30 feet on the third hole for her first birdie of the day.

Carlucci dropped 15-foot birdie putts on the seventh and 14th, hit a sand trap to three feet for a birdie-4 on the 11th and then putted for a par on the 12th.

New financial director for Hancher appointed

Carol Green, an eight-year financial analyst for the UI, has been appointed to fill the vacancy left by Charles Swanson as financial director at Hancher Auditorium. Swanson has been promoted to assistant director of the auditorium. Green, originally from Mt. Lebanon, Pa., has a bachelor's degree from Allegheny College and a master's of business administration from the Wharton Graduate School of the University of Pennsylvania. At the UI, Green has been a financial analyst for the president's office, specializing in analysis of major capital projects.

UI business student wins $1,000 scholarship

Carol Bowman, a senior in the UI College of Business Administration from Iowa City, has been selected to receive a $1,000 E. Lester Williams Scholarship for the 1988-89 academic year.

Four UI students from Iowa City have received scholarships from the UI College of Engineering. Adam Cain has received the Tom Dimond Scholarship, Kent D. Carlson has received the Fred Stebler Scholarship, Bret M. Casey has received the Fred Stebler Scholarship and Janice Wiitala has received the Alcoa Scholarship.

Labor group requests Kubby for council

The Iowa City Federation of Labor, AFL-CIO, is drafting a letter to Iowa City Manager Stephen Atkins to request that Karen Kubby, a former candidate for Iowa City Council, be appointed to fill a vacant seat on the council.

Kubby was defeated in her bid for the District C council seat last year by current councilor Randy Larson.

The council is currently taking letters from people interested in filling the vacancy left by Kate Dickson, who announced she was resigning from the council earlier this month to marry. Kubby has previously indicated her interest in filling the seat.

Former Iowa City Mayor John Balmer is the only person who has officially submitted a letter to the council expressing interest in filling the seat.

Archaeologist office organizes exhibit

The Office of the State Archaeologist, located in the UI Eastlawn complex, has organized a new archaeological exhibit for the Mills County Historical Museum in Glenwood.

Prepared by Michael J. Perry, OSA survey archaeologist, the exhibit consists of prehistoric pottery recovered from archaeological sites in the Glenwood area.

Bill Green, state archaeologist at the UI, said the display incorporates pottery specimens excavated in advance of highway construction projects and other research efforts conducted over the past 30 years and will be on loan to the museum for the next several years.

Further information may be obtained by contacting Green at the Office of the State Archaeologist.

Unemployment benefits for Iowans decline

Unemployment insurance payments to jobless Iowans in the first six months of 1988 were down $9.3 million from the same period in 1987, according to the Department of Employment Services in Des Moines. Payments for the first half of 1988 totaled $75.7 million, as compared to $86 million last year.

Dick Freeman, director of the DES, said the decline in payments is due to increased employment in nearly every sector of Iowa's economy, and especially in the manufacturing trade.

Abebe calls for mild change as civil rights coordinator

By Heather Maher
The Daily Iowan

Saying that Ruby Abebe, Iowa City's new civil rights coordinator, is qualified for her new job is almost an understatement.

Abebe, the 39-year-old Waterloo native who was chosen for the post from a field of over 100 applicants, has a background filled with civil rights experience. She was appointed to the Iowa Civil Rights Commission in 1985 by Gov. Terry Branstad, was recently elected chairman of that commission, has been an active participant in civil rights struggles since the days of Martin Luther King, holds a master's degree in counseling and has met civil rights leader and former presidential candidate Jesse Jackson.

"I have been in civil rights all my life, and I feel that I am sensitive to those who are hurting and who have been discriminated against, but I'm also sensitive to those who have been unfairly accused," said Abebe. "Being involved with civil rights, I have learned to work with all sorts of people and personalities — I've also learned the importance of hard work and being honest and fair."

The main responsibility Abebe faces in her new post is participation in all cases filed in Iowa City that involve any type of discrimination charge — whether it has to do with sex, race, age or religion.

Although she cannot represent victims of discrimination in a legal capacity, as civil rights coordinator, Abebe will interview plaintiffs, gather facts on the case and then do an investigation to determine whether or not there is probable cause that discrimination was involved.

"I am not an attorney, but when someone feels that they have been discriminated against, they have the right to file a complaint," she said. "What I do then is decide if the complaint falls under one of those categories, and if so, a formal complaint can be filed, and I will investigate it."

"In investigating a discrimination case, what I do is get information and all the facts and make a determination if there's probable cause," Abebe added.

Abebe is a UI graduate with a bachelor's degree in English and secondary education. Presently she lives in Waterloo with her husband and three children, but she plans to relocate to Iowa City soon.

Abebe said there are aspects of her new job that she would like to change, as well as things she would like to continue that were started during the term of her predecessor, Phyllis Alexander.

"We're starting up the 'Civil Writes' newsletter again," she said. "It's a newsletter that is sent out to the community to ask for input from people who are interested in publishing some of their writings that are geared toward community events."

"I will also be setting up some educational things in the community that are very interesting," she added. "Things like different types of workshops, for example. I'm very interested in working with special interests groups in the community."

Abebe said she would like to start attending community meetings to receive input from all sectors of the Iowa City community, adding that she has a lot to learn about this area but is optimistic about working here.

"I'm trying to catch up, and I do hope that people will give me time to get into the job," said Abebe. "I believe that the people in Iowa City are educated, I believe the people of Iowa City are fair and that they will look at the facts in these discrimination cases. And I believe that Iowa City is one of the best places in the world to live — otherwise I wouldn't be here."

Video lottery machines stir new concerns among critics

DES MOINES (AP) — Critics claim the Iowa Lottery Board is about to embark on a dangerous escalation of the game through video lottery machines.

"They're literally a slot machine without a handle," said Rep. David Schrader, D-Monroe. "It's an impulse-type gambling."

But supporters say the coin-operated video gambling machines are no different in principle from a basic lottery scratch-card game. They say the video games inject some fun into playing the lottery, and have the potential of raising millions of dollars for the state.

"I don't see that it's any different than buying a scratch-off ticket over the counter, except you have a chance to play a game first," said House Speaker Don Avenson, D-Des Moines. "As for fast action, you can scratch five lottery cards very quickly."

Iowa Lottery Director Ed Stanek will recommend to the Lottery Board at its Aug. 18 meeting that the agency begin a search for a company to conduct a test of video lottery games in Iowa. He said lottery officials must periodically research new games to put into place when the current array of scratch cards, pull-tabs and lotto games ceases to be profitable.

The Iowa House of Representatives voted this year to ban video lotteries, but the Senate did not act on the matter.

"It's an issue that legislators are concerned about or that amendment wouldn't have passed," said Schrader.

Stanek said limiting video lottery games to taverns will minimize their use by people under age 18.

"Right now, I don't see a time they would be available in grocery stores, convenience stores or shopping centers," he said.

Although the video industry makes electronic games that resemble slot machines, Stanek said he wants games in Iowa with minimal similarities.

Ideally, they would be games of chance rather than skill, and would require some interaction with the player, Stanek said. He described one lottery game that requires a player to decide whether a prospector on the video screen should dig to the left, to the right or straight down.

The machine would issue a winning player a computer ticket indicating the number of credits amassed, which would be redeemed for money at the bar.

No state is now allowing video lotteries, although Illinois and Nebraska each allowed them at one time. Illinois officials found their customers unresponsive to the games, which Stanek said required players to read elaborate instructions. Until the Nebraska Legislature acted to ban videos in 1984, various cities used the devices for a few months in local lotteries.

Omaha lawyer Peter Hoagland, a former Nebraska legislator who led the fight to ban video lotteries, said lawmakers heard "horror stories" during public hearings about gamblers who were hooked on the games.

"The testimony pretty showed video lotteries are one of the most addictive of all forms of gambling," Hoagland said. "The gratification is virtually instant. It moves very fast."

Robert Carber of Urbandale, executive director of the Iowa Council on Compulsive Gambling, said he's concerned about the prospect of video gambling in Iowa.

"A compulsive gambler will get more excitement and more of a thrill out of video games than simply going down to the grocery store and buying a lottery ticket," he said. "Video games could be more of a problem."

A Johnson County judge awarded $252,000 to a Coralville man Friday after a semi-truck collided with his vehicle on March 27, 1984, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Mahbod Seraji, of Coralville, filed the lawsuit Jan. 9, 1986, after truck driver Michael A. Perket, of Wisconsin, collided with Seraji's vehicle on U.S. Highway 6 near Riverside Drive in Iowa City. Perket admitted his semi-truck jackknifed, causing the truck to cross the center of the road and collide with Seraji's vehicle, according to court records.

Seraji filed the suit against Perket and Lenertz Inc., the Minnesota freight-hauling business responsible for leasing the truck to Perket, according to court records.

Seraji claimed that Perket was the cause of permanent pain and injury and failed to give assistance to Seraji after the collision. Perket has been convicted of failing to maintain control of a motor vehicle and leaving the scene of a personal injury accident, according to court records.

Seraji also claimed that Perket acted with malice or gross disregard for the safety of others. The lawsuit filed by Seraji requested $7,855,452 total compensation for damages, according to court records.

An armed robbery involving two suspects in masks occurred early Sunday morning at an Iowa City business, according to police reports.

The suspects entered Pleasure Palace, 351 Kirkwood Ave., displayed an automatic handgun, stole an undisclosed amount of cash and fled on foot, according to the report and an Iowa City Police Department news release.

Both suspects were described as males about 6-foot with medium build and wearing dark clothing. One wore a ski mask and the other a Halloween mask, according to reports.

Regarding questions about details of the incident, an employee of the establishment said: "We're not talking to anyone about it."

Report: Iowa City police arrested a man wanted on a felony warrant for escape early Saturday after he allegedly failed to return to Hope

House late Friday night, according to police reports.

Jeffrey Scott Pilkington, 21, address unavailable, was charged with second-degree theft in the incident for alleged vehicle theft, according to the report.

Report: A vehicle that was reported stolen Saturday morning from a Riverside, Iowa, man was recovered, and two subjects were taken into custody in West Branch, Iowa, about a half hour later, according to Iowa City Police Department records.

The pickup truck and camper, valued at about $2,000, was stopped at a West Branch gas station at about 1:30 a.m. The report that the vehicle had been stolen was received at about 1:10 a.m., according to the report.

A West Branch police officer contacted Iowa City police at about 1:40 a.m. to report that two people had been taken into custody, according to the report.

Report: A fight at Burlington and Linn streets involving about 25 people, in which two people were reportedly struck by a man with a 2-by-4, was reported to Iowa City police early Saturday, according to police reports. The caller who reported the fight

Slayings anger Mexican attorney general

CIUDAD JUAREZ, Mexico — Mexico's attorney general, angered by the slayings of a TV anchorwoman and two others in a hail of police bullets, suspended the Juarez head of the federal police and vowed to press an investigation.

One federal police officer and three city police officers were arrested in the machine gun attack Saturday in downtown Juarez.

"My indignation is great," said Attorney General Sergio Garcia Ramirez, who visited Juarez late Saturday and vowed the four officers would be brought to justice.

Garcia pledged that "the bad elements (in the federal force) will be removed. There are good elements in the force, ones who devote their lives to it. That isn't the case in this instance. . . . We won't let this blow over."

The driver of the victims' car, the anchorwoman's husband, said he had refused to stop for men who identified themselves as police because he was afraid they were robbers. He said he had $12,000 in the car.

The four arrested officers told police they had mistaken the victims' car for a similar car carrying suspected narcotics traffickers who engaged in a shootout with police earlier Saturday.

The officers were accused of killing Linda Bejarano, 28, anchorwoman for station XHJ in Juarez; her mother-in-law, Lucrecia Martinez de Gomez, 58; and a family friend, Carlos Alfonso Garcia, 25. Station officials said Bejarano was three months pregnant. She had two daughters.

Bejarano's husband and co-anchor, Manuel Gomez Martinez, said he was driving the car but escaped injury by lying on the floor.

Pilot crashes plane, thought engine aflame

NEW DELHI, India — An Air France jet carrying 275 people swerved off a runway at New Delhi's airport and crashed into a field Sunday after the pilot aborted takeoff because he thought an engine was on fire, airport officials said.

No one was seriously injured in the accident, said the Airport Authority. Indian news agencies said several passengers were treated for minor cuts and bruises after evacuating the plane through emergency chutes.

The undercarriage and engines of the Boeing 747 jet were seriously damaged as the plane swerved off the runway, plowed across more than 300 yards of gravel and hit an airport antenna before coming to rest in a field, the Airport Authority said in a statement. Parts of the plane's wings were sheared off.

N.K. Singh, chairman of the Airport Authority, told the Press Trust of India news agency that the accident occurred when the pilot aborted takeoff at the last minute after noticing a cockpit warning light indicating that an engine was on fire.

Factions threaten Philippines' democracy

MANILA, Philippines — A grisly cycle of murders and reprisal killings by leftists and rightists is raising fears of a breakdown in law and order and threatening efforts to promote democracy and protect human rights.

"Hardly a day passes without a murder or more being headlined in our newspapers," the Catholic Bishops Conference of the Philippines said in a recent statement.

"Our sensibilities are being battered day in and day out, with reports of killings and ambushes, of slaughter and violence — acts of terrorism all," the bishops said.

According to the military's Capital Regional Command, at least 65 people, most of them police, soldiers and anti-communist civilians, were slain in the Manila area by the rebel New People's Army in the first six months of the year.

Those attacks have led to formation of right-wing "death squads," which methodically target trade unionists, leftists and social activists in an apparent bid to undercut their influence in politics.

Victims of the rightists include at least five Filipino human rights lawyers. A prominent leftist university president, Nemesio Prudente, has been wounded twice in two assassination attempts in the past seven months.

The violence is not limited to Manila. Nearly 40 people have been slain this year in politically motivated violence in Angeles, home of the U.S.-run Clark Air Base 50 miles north of Manila.

Drought-spawned fires enter Yellowstone

A big Wyoming forest fire edged into Yellowstone National Park on Sunday but appeared to be slowing down, and firefighters fought to keep a separate fire inside the park from burning into Idaho.

The south entrance to Yellowstone, along with the Grant Village hotel and two campgrounds, remained closed Sunday because of other fires in the park, but officials stressed that all major park attractions remained open.

Two fires that burned together over some 10,800 acres in California's Gold Rush country were contained Saturday and 80 percent controlled Sunday, officials said. A fire is considered contained when a fire break is built around it and controlled when it is reduced to smoldering patches.

Hot, dry weather remained a factor as hundreds of acres of trees and brush also burned Sunday in smaller fires in parts of Washington, Oregon, Montana, Colorado and Utah.

The 22,650-acre Mink Creek fire in the Bridger-Teton National Forest's Teton Wilderness grew by only 150 acres overnight but it crossed the boundary of Yellowstone into a rugged backcountry area, Dave Steinke, a fire information officer, said Sunday.

"It pushed past Falcon Creek last night and moved just slightly into the park, probably one-quarter of a mile," he said. "We have a few spots in the Yellowstone Meadows area. But we have a crew up there mopping that up and it looks pretty good on the north end."

Iowa City provides competitive market for Korean grocers

By Stephen Horan
The Daily Iowan

UI students provide an Iowa City market for a wide variety of specialty foods, but that market may not be quite big enough to support the specialized food stores operating in Iowa City.

Running a food store for a specialized clientele is a challenge for the Korean families of Park and Chong, who provide Iowa City customers international fare within two blocks of each other on South Gilbert Street.

"Iowa City is too small, I like not having to deal with large crowds, but the city is not big enough to make much money," Weon J. Park, owner of East-West Oriental Foods, 624 S. Gilbert St., said.

Park said since his business has been operating, two Oriental food stores have opened and failed within their initial year.

Park opened his family's first food store on Iowa Avenue in 1975. As a student at the UI, Park said he saw the untapped potential for serving the needs of international students and their families.

The Park family is currently using a building at 624 S. Gilbert St. as the location for both a food store and a restaurant. Adjacent to the Park's food store is the family's newly opened Aoeshe Japanese-Korean Restaurant.

Sin-Hwan Chong, who opened Chong's Super Market, 409 S. Gilbert St., eight months ago, also saw an opportunity for profit. Chong decided while visiting relatives in Iowa to open his own store in Iowa City, according to a Chong's employee who declined to be identified.

Park said although his business increases each year, competition from Chong's Super Market will have a negative effect on his financial resources.

Hail causes problems for west central Iowa

DES MOINES (AP) — Hail as big as golf balls pummeled parts of west central Iowa on Sunday, causing drivers to seek shelter from the storm, while high winds blew down some trees in a rural northeast part of the state.

But no injuries were reported and thousands of bicyclists on a cross-state excursion, including Gov. Terry Branstad and his 13-year-old son, Eric, avoided the most severe storms.

There was some drought relief as the severe weather also produced more than an inch of rain in 20 minutes at Carroll in west central Iowa and scattered rain elsewhere, the National Weather Service reported. But marble-sized hail also damaged some corn fields near Climbing Hill, a community southeast of Sioux City, the Woodbury County Sheriff's Department said.

Golfball-sized hail was reported at Rockwell City, where cashier Shelly Alcox at the Casey's General Store said: "It came down fast and hard. You could hear it everywhere. It hurt our ears in the store, even."

She said that during the storm, drivers were seeking shelter from the pounding hail.

"We had a lady pull over and stop," Alcox said. "She was in a

Baxter joins committee as Iowa at-large member

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa Secretary of State Elaine Baxter, one of the earliest backers of the presidential candidacy of Michael Dukakis, has been named an at-large member of the Democratic National Committee.

Baxter was one of 20 new at-large members named at the conclusion of the Democratic National Convention last week at Atlanta.

"Mike Dukakis is one of America's most innovative governors," said Baxter, a former state representative from Burlington.

Despite the fact each store has its own loyal customers, Park said he doubts both can exist comfortably, given their limited appeal.

An employee at Chong's Super Market said customers complained about Park's prices when Chong's first opened. The Park family finally dropped its prices to better compete with Chong's.

"Prices at both stores are too expensive," said UI business student Simon Cheng. "Food is cheaper at the other store (Park's), but here (Chong's) there is more variety."

Each Thursday at 4 a.m., members of the Park family set out for Chicago to buy food products from 15 different wholesalers.

Park said buying large amounts of food wholesale allows him to price Oriental products lower than larger area grocery stores.

"It is a family business. There are five of us working together. If I had to depend on outside help and paid the minimum wage, I couldn't stay in business," Park said.

The supportive nature of the international business community is reflected in part by the Park and Chong families supplying food for various Chinese restaurants in the Iowa City/Cedar Rapids area. The restaurants don't depend solely on the two groceries for their food purchases, but basic staples like oil, rice and bamboo shoots are often purchased through the food stores.

"Most restaurants are small businesses. If their business is dead, my business is dead too, so it makes sense to support each others' business," Park said.

Park credits his family's own success in providing face-to-face contact, having good store locations and loyal customers.

The Chong family is currently out of town and was unavailable for comment.

political science and director of the UI Social Science Institute, will be conducted by the survey. He said the interviews will not begin until late fall.

Miller said the survey will examine "regular, average" Iowans, but added there will be a higher number of black Iowans interviewed than a representative sample might dictate.

"There is a growing concern that, although blatant racism no longer exists in the U.S., something called symbolic racism does," he said.

"Thinking that if people would just go out and look for jobs they (wouldn't be poor anymore) is discrimination-oriented," Miller said. "Such thinking is equally detrimental to opportunities that minorities have."

Miller said an example of the type of discrimination that goes on in housing is when a minority goes to see an apartment and he or she is not given the same type of information as someone who is not a minority. Certain patterns recur even in a state where there are relatively few black people, he said.

The survey's findings will be presented at the project's final conference in August 1989. The UI survey is the third and final phase of the Fair Housing Project.

succeeding, that they were not going to drive us out of the area."

Whitehead, appearing on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," said, "this is a time if not for bragging, at least it's a time, I think, for all of us to be proud that our policy has been a success."

"Certainly Iran's decision is not solely attributable to U.S. policy," he said, "but our firmness of our military presence in the gulf, our indication that we planned to stay there as long as it was necessary, and at the same time our diplomatic track, principally at the United Nations, has finally achieved success."

Both men also said an end to the war could eventually lead to improved U.S.-Iran relations and the possible release of American hostages held in Lebanon by Iranian-backed groups.

Asked specifically about reports the U.S. hostages might be released, Carlucci said, "We're obviously not going to discuss any quid pro quo (with Iran), but if the Iranians want to talk to us about the hostage situation and how they're going to go about influencing their release, we'd be delighted to talk to them about it."

Nine Americans are being held hostage in Lebanon.

Park problems

Seeking reprieve from the pressures of the workplace, Americans typically set aside some time each summer to "get away from it all." Some take their kids to Disneyland. Others visit friends and relatives. But more and more Americans are discovering the joys of the wilderness, usually in America's national parks. The trouble is, as increasing numbers of people try to get away from it all in the nation's wilderness, they tend to bring a lot of problems with them.

In 1987, 287 million tourists visited the 341 national parks in the United States. That's double the number which passed through 15 years ago and the figure is expected to keep climbing. This influx of humanity spawns traffic jams, generates pollution, damages the nation's delicate ecosystems, and generally detracts from the quiet value of the outdoors.

In addition to the problems associated with the tourist invasion, the U.S. government has done its own damage with policies promoting development in the areas surrounding (if not within) the national parks. Logging, mining, road construction and housing development, even if kept beyond park boundaries, harm both flora and fauna within the park.

The encroachment of civilization may never be halted, but it can be controlled. That, after all, is the very idea behind the public park system: to set aside particularly valuable portions of the environment for the benefit of future generations. Steps such as limiting the number of tourists allowed into sensitive areas and curtailing development projects in and near national parks are imperative.

Clear message

Biological and chemical weapons are an intolerable misuse of legitimate biochemical research and represent a danger at least as great as the nuclear threat.

That was the message loudly delivered last week by more than 500 American scientists, including three novel laureates, who announced a "boycott" of the Reagan administration's enhanced biological and chemical weapon program.

Called the "poor man's nuclear weapons," biological and chemical weapons have enjoyed a frightening renaissance in this decade. Since he took office, President Ronald Reagan has quietly increased funding for these weapons 500 percent to match Soviet expenditures. Currently the administration is pressing for construction of a $5.4 billion research facility in the Utah desert.

This is classic Reagan defense upmanship — enormous, expensive and motivated entirely by the instinct to meet a perceived Soviet threat in volume and kind.

Critics of the boycott argue that, in a defense environment defined by the awesome destructive capability of nuclear weapons, biological and chemical weapons are a drop in the bucket. And if the Soviets have them, then our best defense is to have them, too.

Like the weapons themselves, these arguments reflect barbaric and unsophisticated thinking.

Above all, the existence of nuclear weapons justifies nothing, certainly not other weapons and the creation of disease.

Secondly, biological and chemical toxins are called the "poor man's nuclear weapons" not because they are cheaper to make (although they are), but because they are cruder and harder to control. They are "poor" weapons because they are bad at what weapons are supposed to do — selectively disable the enemy — and therefore they have little deterrent value.

By themselves, the boycotters can do little to slow the march of biochemical weapons research — there will always be other scientists who, fascinated by the interesting technical problem of building deadlier germs, will happily spend Pentagon dollars as fast as they can get them.

What the boycotters can do — and have already effectively done — is send a message to the scientific community and the public, here and abroad:

Thinking people will have nothing to do with this.

Shallow traits of our era

The streets of Chicago teemed with Hippies. The police arrived in riot gear and rained tear gas and billy clubs on their long-haired heads. Hippies were spurred to descend on Chicago by blood — the American blood that flowed from the jungles of Vietnam and the corpses of King and Kennedy. Hippies came to battle Wealthy Business America, which made tidy profits, feeding the war with American lives. Outraged Americans went to Chicago hoping to intercept the mantle of power as it went from the Old Guard to the Nominee. The youth of 1968, the voiceless engine, had demanded its say.

Now it's 1988, 20 years later, another election year. In this year's drama, many key roles of 1968 have been reprised: It stars Michael Dukakis, as the pretty Massachusetts Kennedy, Bobby; it co-stars the Rev. Jesse Jackson, as the fiery Martin Luther King; and has a cameo appearance by George Bush as the bumbling Vice President Nixon, Richard Milhous. The entire cast has been reprised, yet it's still a very dull show. In 1988, all the background extras, the Hippies, are missing. Back then, thousands went to Chicago to create anarchy for their beliefs. Today, that idealistic breed is nearly extinct.

If the streets of Atlanta were to fill with the youth of today, Yuppies and police would exchange cordial nods, and the officers would pat them on their neatly trimmed heads, like good little doggies.

Welcome to the Shallow Era.

If Yuppies can be pried from their televisions to go outdoors and "protest," they get neatly behind the ropes and do rehearsed chants, emphatically jiggling their signs, while cops stand by and smile, having no beef with these tame Yuppies. Who could? They're so polite, smartly dressed and have such neat hair. When they do protest, in three-piece suits and sundresses, they have the latest in protest outerwear, all except the ring of truth.

Authority loves Yuppies; they're so passive. Without a yelp they board the treadmill and strap into their yokes and harnesses. The almighty dollar is their god. No imagination, no fuss, just make money. The Yuppie says: "My mind equals my dress, and my ideas stem from fashion and money." No depth. In the '80s, whom do we adore? The Material Girl, Madonna. This generation eats the ethic of greed, where young men are paycheck engines and young women are Material Girls. The cycle praises superficial style, rather than substance.

Women in earlier eras focused their energy fighting for their rights and educating their minds. Too many today spend their energy preening and watching TV.

The '60s were imperfect, yet so much art and music emerged. The '80s have produced a trickle of art, compared with the torrent of greed.

Yet, all is not lost. A precious few of this generation have given up the stampee. They have turned off the TV and opened books. They emphasize thought and internal growth over greed and vanity. They no longer court the dollar sign, and don't turn up their collars and don sunglasses to the world's problems. They don't crumble into materialism, or buy glittery clothes.

Some '80s women seem content to stand pat on gains won by the '60s woman, or even to retreat into stereotypes; just as some '80s men seem content to turn their backs on the '60s man, while they loot the decade of its music and culture.

Twenty years ago, youth fought for its ideals. Now it doesn't fight for anything.

Tom Hunter is an Iowa City resident who wrote this column for The Daily Iowan.

Avoiding the special interest trap

Feminists, militant blacks, gays and lesbians pose a particularly compelling dilemma for the Democratic party in the 1988 campaign. How can they mobilize on behalf of their own group interests and yet be kept within the Democratic coalition? Moreover, how can they mobilize without harming the broader coalition?

The problem for the Democrats is that these highly visible, activist groups newly associated with their party appear to have displaced more moderate elements of the traditional coalition — most notably Catholics and the middle class — in the public perception. Perhaps most importantly, the newer groups are much less positively evaluated by the general public than the traditional partners.

As the election season has unfolded, Democratic presidential candidates and groups associated with the party appear to have learned from the events of 1984. With the exception of Jesse Jackson, the candidates largely avoided aligning themselves with groups which could be labeled "special" interests. Groups such as the AFL-CIO and the National Organization for Women have remained passive or at least much less visible than in 1984. Even Jackson has articulated a commitment to the broader Democratic electorate despite his demonstrated ability to mobilize groups such as blacks, liberals and the poor.

Despite having successfully avoided the "special interest" charge of 1984 thus far, Dukakis and the Democrats must still contend with the group nemesis. On the other hand, many political observers have argued that Dukakis must cater to these groups if the Democratic party is to succeed in mobilizing a majority to win this November. Even Dukakis has said that he is going to "reach out" to a variety of groups all over the country. In doing so, however, Dukakis would risk a perception which, as in 1984, will jeopardize the support of independents of the traditional Democratic coalition.

The other obvious option is to steer a middle course. The problem with this strategy is that the groups are unlikely to simply acquiesce. By demanding his attention the groups may force Dukakis to reach out, lest he risk alienating and demobilizing essential portions of his constituency.

Political analysis

The problem is further complicated by the fact that the Democratic coalition is not a collectively happy bunch. While blacks remain uniformly positive toward the various subgroups of the Democratic party, including the new groups, other elements of the traditional coalition are fairly negative toward some of the groups associated with the party. Union members in general are relatively more negative toward the other groups in the coalition, particularly militant blacks, gays and lesbians. While labor and other standing coalition members remain less enamored with the Republican party, they nevertheless have become increasingly negative toward the Democratic party in recent years. Reagan's 40 percent of the labor union vote in 1984 is instructive on this score, particularly given Walter Mondale's clear alignment with the cause of organized labor.

Therefore, while Dukakis says he can "bring the party together," he stands to lose labor support by reaching out to other sectors of the party. Reaching out to labor offers little consolation. After all, labor is perhaps the Democrats' quintessential special interest and one which Independents generally do not favor.

In theory Dukakis could escape the dilemma. But he does not possess the charisma to successfully rise above it. Nor has he articulated broad campaign themes that transcend group interests.

As a result, Dukakis' strategic choices are limited, and he stands to lose support no matter what course he takes. However, given the apparent exodus of the middle class from the party, it may be the case that Dukakis and the Democrats would benefit most by severing ties with particular activist segments of the Democratic group complex. Failing this, the Democratic party, which is fast becoming the party of minorities, may soon become the minority party.

Iraqi troops take thousands of prisoners in latest attack

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iraq said Sunday it withdrew its forces from Iranian territory after a major incursion, taking thousands of war prisoners. Iran's president headed for the front lines and called on his countrymen to join him in "divine duty."

Also Sunday, a four-man U.N. team arrived in Tehran to discuss prisoners of war. A second U.N. team is expected to arrive in the Iranian capital within the next few days to work out details of a cease-fire.

Iran's foreign minister said the Iraqi offensives threatened a cease-fire.

The official Iraqi News Agency announced that Iraq's incursion in the southern war front, which began Friday, was over and that Iraqi troops had withdrawn.

Iran said Saturday that Iraqi troops backed by tanks, warplanes and chemical weapons thrust nearly 40 miles into Iranian territory. The official Islamic Republic News Agency said Sunday the attack had been repulsed with 9,000 Iraqi dead and wounded.

Iranian President Ali Khamenei called his people to action in a message broadcast on Tehran radio.

"Now that the Iraqi troops have stepped on the Islamic territory of Iran, no response except that of weapons is permissible," Khamenei said in the message, which was monitored in Nicosia.

"The nation must rush to the assistance of the armed forces," Khamenei said, adding that he "will take my worthless body and life to the front of justice and present myself for divine duty."

As Khamenei headed for the front lines, Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akhbar Velayati left for New York to meet with U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar.

Velayati said he had sent Perez de Cuellar a letter saying Iraqi military action threatened a cease-fire and calling for the United Nations to take "timely and preventive action," Tehran radio said.

The U.N. chief has invited Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz to New York for peace talks.

Interviewed Sunday on ABC's "This Week with David Brinkley," Perez de Cuellar said he hoped hostilities would cease when he began discussions with the two leaders.

"Until there is a cease-fire, I cannot complain," the secretary-general said. "The only thing which I have done... is to make an appeal to both sides to exert restraint. And I hope, of course, that when... I start my discussion with the parties, I think there will not be military activities in the area."

Asked if upcoming Iran-Iraq peace talks would be held face-to-face, Perez de Cuellar said: "My idea is to discuss separately with both sides. Of course, I will be only too pleased if, at some stage, I could have the two sides together."

Iraq wants to hold direct negotiations. Iran refused but later indicated it might agree to them at Perez de Cuellar's request.

In the Iraqi capital of Baghdad, the state-run daily Ath-Thawra said Iraq has "no greedy intentions on Iranian territory and does not want to humiliate the Iranian people."

The article, quoted by the Iraqi News Agency, said Iraq's military

Support letter arrives in Gulf for Vincennes

MANAMA, Bahrain (AP) — A letter signed by about 10,000 people expressing support for the captain and crew of the USS Vincennes finally reached the Persian Gulf on Sunday after bouncing around in limbo for five days.

The letter, actually a bulky package weighing about 50 pounds, apparently went from San Diego, Calif., to Sydney, Australia, and then back to London before it landed here and was turned over to U.S. Navy officials.

In London, an employee of DHL, the express delivery service that handled the shipment, said it was not taken off an airliner that landed at Bahrain last Wednesday, and went on to Sydney. It was found there and returned to London.

A Navy spokesman, Lt. Cmdr. Brad Goforth, said the letter would be delivered to the Vincennes in a regular helicopter mail shipment, probably today.

U.S. Rep. Bill Lowrey, R-Calif., sponsored the signature-collection campaign last weekend to show support for the Vincennes after its crew shot down an Iranian jetliner, killing all 290 aboard, on July 3.

The Pentagon said the crew believed the airliner was an Iranian jet fighter coming in for attack.

San Diego is the missile cruiser's home port.

One Navy source, who asked not to be named, said U.S. officials were "not overjoyed" about the project even before the letter went astray, because it drew new attention to the jetliner tragedy.

The Vincennes left the gulf four days ago after spending weeks at anchor here while investigators took depositions and collected other data. Their report is due early next month.

Navy spokesmen said the Vincennes is now in the Arabian Sea, operating with the USS Forrestal's carrier battle group that supports Navy operations in the Persian Gulf.

It is due to return home in late August.

The letter, described as handwritten on a large poster board, expresses "strong support" for Capt. Will Rogers III and the crew of the Vincennes "as you strive to do your duty to God and country in troubled waters far from home."

Moscow rock band Black Coffee stands for peace and happiness

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Back in the Soviet Union, the five young Moscow rockers who make up Black Coffee rank as the nation's premier heavy metal heroes, boasting the country's two best-selling rock records.

But if a recent concert in Madrid — their first in the West — is any indication, their Western counterparts need not worry about developing strategic defenses.

The group, led by energetic frontman and singer Dmitri Varshavsky, 24, managed to attract an audience of 2,000 in the large open-air stadium where they played a deafening hourlong set.

Their soundman had asked Spanish officials for political asylum earlier in the day.

In the Soviet Union, the group is responsible for the two top-selling rock recordings: the album "Over the Threshold" and the four-song disc "Black Coffee," both recorded last year, group manager Oyanes Melik-Pashaev said in an interview.

After the Spanish gig, he said, Black Coffee has set its sights on other countries, especially the United States, and is rehearsing songs in English to record and perform in the West.

Despite his pre-concert claims that Black Coffee plays "melodic hard-rock with touches of heavy metal thrown in," on stage the group's grinding, ear-splitting, double-lead guitar attack sounded similar to aggressive Western bands such as Def Leppard.

But unlike Western bands that spout tough lyrics and glorify violent attitudes, Black Coffee promotes "peace, friendship and happiness," singer Varshavsky said through an interpreter.

"Our songs are very optimistic. They speak of the struggle between good and evil, with good triumphing over bad," he said.

Melik-Pashaev said there was no censorship of lyrics but added the group doesn't like to use offensive words "or the language of criminals."

Varshavsky said the group has not been influenced by any particular Western band but expressed admiration for Black Sabbath, Led Zeppelin and Whitesnake.

The group appeared in Madrid at the invitation of the municipal government which promoted the concert as part of the city's annual festival in honor of St. Isidro the Laborer, the city's patron saint.

The group's stage show is austere by Western standards. Bassist Kupriyanov, by far the fanciest dresser, showed off his black Michael Jackson-like military jacket embroidered in gold and swung the gold epaulets from side to side while running to and fro on stage.

8th Hemingway Days finish with Papa look-alike contest

KEY WEST, Fla. (AP) — Aficionados of Ernest Hemingway concluded a weeklong celebration Sunday, honoring the author with contests and plenty of Hemingway-esque celebrating at his favorite bar.

The eighth edition of the annual Hemingway Days Festival attracted almost 8,000 visitors over the weekend, according to festival Director Michael Whalton.

"The celebration continues to grow every year," Whalton said. "Ernest Hemingway continues to fascinate people and they come to Key West to relive some of his experiences."

Tom Cosselman, a retired plumbing contractor from Horton Bay, Mich., won the Hemingway Look-Alike Competition, which featured 52 entrants sporting — or attempting to sport — the late author's distinctive graying beard and piercing eyes.

"The competition was pretty tough," said Cosselman, following the final rounds held before a packed, raucous audience at Sloppy Joe's Bar, Hemingway's favorite Key West tavern.

"All the fellows looked real good and it's quite a feeling to be standing there with a bunch of people that look like you," he said. "I feel a little bit more like Hemingway now, and I think I'll go out and do a bit of fishing."

Edwin Crooks, Jr. of Shrewsbury, N.J., won the Hemingway Billfish Tournament by capturing a 238-pound blue marlin. The three-day fishing contest featured 37 anglers on sportfishing boats plying the same waters Hemingway fished more than 50 years ago.

The festival's popular short story contest garnered 580 entries from the United States, France and Switzerland.

Mary McDaniel of Charleston, Ill., won the writing competition with a story entitled "The Dance for Three."

"This is an extremely well-written story about the coming of age of an old woman who is in a wheelchair and is a former dancer," said Lorian Hemingway, Ernest Hemingway's niece and coordinator of the short story contest.

Hemingway wrote such classics as "For Whom the Bell Tolls," "A Farewell to Arms," "Green Hills of Africa" and "The Snows of Kilimanjaro" during the years he lived on this island.

Doak-Davis falls short at Trials

Former Iowa all-American Nan Doak-Davis failed to earn a spot on the 1988 Olympic track team in the 10,000 meters at the track and field Trials this past weekend.

Doak-Davis finished fourth in a personal-best time of 32 minutes, 14.05 seconds, 6 1/2 seconds behind third-place finisher Lynn Jennings.

The top three runners made the Olympic team. Lynn Nelson won the race in 31:51.27 and Francie Larriue-Smith was second in 32:03.63.

Brooks wins in sudden death at Hartford

CROMWELL, Conn. (AP)—Texan Mark Brooks knocked a 7-iron shot within five feet of the flagstick and made the birdie Sunday to win the Dave Barr on the second hole of a sudden-death playoff and the $700,000 Sammy Davis Jr.-Greater Hartford Open.

The playoff was set up when Brooks, who had made an eagle on the 12th hole and a birdie on No. 15 to go to 16-under, bogeyed the 16th to fall back into a three-way tie with Barr and Joey Sindelar.

Sindelar hit into the water and double-bogeyed the first playoff hole, No. 16, to fall out of the playoff.

After his second shot fell short on the par-4, 399-yard hole, Barr — using a club upside down from a left-handed stance — made a miraculous chip from the edge of a water hazard to get close to the pin on No. 17.

But the Canadian's shot went for naught when Brooks, who shot a 69 in regulation play, made his putt to earn the $126,000 winner's check and his first PGA Tour win.

Louganis dominates diving meet

IRVINE, Calif. (AP)—Two-time Olympic gold medalist Greg Louganis completed his expected domination of the U.S. Diving Outdoor Championships Sunday by winning the men's 10-meter platform, his third title of the meet.

Louganis, of Boca Raton, Fla., received 632.58 points for his 10-dive program in capturing his record 47th national title. Cynthia Potter, who's retired, is second on the all-time list with 28.

Connors advances to D.C. Tennis finals

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top-seeded Jimmy Connors, vying for his first tournament title in nearly four years, advanced to the finals of the $232,050 D.C. Tennis Classic Sunday with a 6-4, 6-0 victory over Aaron Krickstein.

Connors, who has never lost to Krickstein, will face No. 3 seed Andres Gomez Monday afternoon. Gomez will have the advantage of an extra day of rest, having advanced to the rain-delayed final round Saturday.

have been under such extreme scrutiny. Of the 108 athletes on the U.S. track and field team, only 39 — 23 men and 16 women — have competed in previous Olympics.

Only two of those 39 — discus thrower Mac Wilkins, 37, and 400-meter intermediate hurdler Edwin Moses, 32 — have medaled in any Olympics other than the 1984 Games, which were held on home soil in Los Angeles without participation from the Eastern Bloc. Both got golds in the 1976 Montreal Games, while Moses also had a gold in 1984 and Wilkins earned a silver.

Being so far away from home this year could be uncomfortable for many athletes, especially the younger ones.

Still, the U.S. team has a good nucleus from the 1984 team, which won more medals than any nation, 40, including 16 golds, 15 silvers and nine bronzes.

The American women, benefitting from the absence of the Eastern Bloc nations, amassed 16 medals, including seven golds. Their previous highs were nine medals and five golds, in 1932.

The U.S. men won 24 medals, including nine golds, in 1984. Both figures were their highest since 1968.

Expected to lead the way for the American team will be Carl Lewis, winner of four golds at Los Angeles.

Lewis qualified for the same four events he won four years ago — the 100- and 200-meter dashes, the long jump and the 400-meter relay.

He will be trying to become the first two-time Olympic winner in all three of his individual events, and the first track and field athlete to win four gold medals in two consecutive Games.

Lewis showed his brilliance during the Trials, winning the 100 in a wind-aided 9.78 seconds, the fastest ever run; finishing second in the 200 in 20.01, and winning the long jump at 28 feet 9 inches, equalling the fifth-best performance in history and the best in the world this year.

4-footer for her third putt. And that one missed, too.

That lapse, a confidence-dropping, four-putt double bogey, dropped her back into a three-way tie for the lead with Colleen Walker and Patty Sheehan.

Neumann, however, came back with a decisive burst of three consecutive birdies beginning on the 10th hole, took a two-shot lead and led the rest of the way.

Sheehan, with a closing 70, was second at 280. Walker, who dropped out of the race with a double bogey on the 12th, matched par 71 and tied for third at 283 with Dottie Pepper-Mochrie, another 22-year-old rookie. Mochrie had a final-round 68.

Jan Stephenson was next at par 284 after a 69 on Sunday.

Nicche Bertotti, 71, and Amy Benz, 72, were at 285. Kristi Albers, who scored a hole-in-one with a 6-iron on the fourth hole in her round of 71, tied at 286 with Juli Inkster, who shot a 72.

Nancy Lopez, never really in the title chase, shot 71 and was 11 strokes back at 288. Veteran JoAnne Carner also shot a final-round 71 and finished at 289.

Defending champion Laura Davies of England was 78-298.

Walker, playing in front of Neumann and Sheehan, briefly took the lead alone with a pitch that set up a 2-foot birdie putt on the 10th hole.

Neumann, however, matched it moments later with a 4-footer. Neumann kept the birdie-streak going with a little pitch from just short of the green on the uphill, par-5 11th and made about an 8-foot putt. Her 15-footer on the 12th made it three in a row.

That left Sheehan two back and Walker was out of it after she muffed a chip from the rough on the 12th.

Neumann stretched the lead to three shots with another 15-foot birdie putt on the 15th, but bogeyed the 16th and led by two with two to go.

When she ran a 25-foot birdie putt on the 17th, she broke into an engaging smile, raised both clenched fists to the skies, then waved to the gallery.

She had three strokes in hand with one to play and brought it home.

Bullard scored most of his game-high 28 points on quick-release jumpers from three-point range.

The 16 high school players in the league saw unprecedented playing time Sunday night. Iowa State Bank's Paul Burmeister, a senior at Iowa City West High School who played in the league last year, said each team is required to have two high school players on the roster.

"I read about it in the paper two summers ago," the 6-foot-4 forward said, "and I got drafted last year."

Burmeister said he was forced to improve his defense during the league games, playing against seasoned players who are bigger and quicker. "The biggest difference is in high school I would probably guard a slow guy and here I'm playing against players who can drive right by you," Burmeister said.

In the other 6 p.m. game Sunday, Hargrave-McEneley Motors clipped Eby's Athletic Company 96-93. Eby's Brig Tubbs led all scorers with 33 points, and former Coe College player Jeff Hrubec finished with 25 for the victors.

The Athlete's Foot faced Hill's Bank, and First National Bank met Fitzpatrick's in the 7:30 p.m. matches.

Seaver's number 41 retired by N.Y. Mets

NEW YORK (AP) — Tom Seaver's number 41 was retired by the Mets Sunday as he joined the ranks of New York's baseball legends.

Before a soldout Shea Stadium crowd, Seaver was joined by his family and friends as the Mets honored the man known as "Tom Terrific."

"At no time in the future will any New York Met ballplayer wear number 41," New York general manager Frank Cashen said during pregame ceremonies.

"This is absolutely a gorgeous day," Seaver said. "I feel blessed. For a beautiful family and friends and to be able to display a talent here at Shea Stadium for 10 years."

Seaver said there was only one way he could say thanks and goodbye to the fans, and then jogged out to the mound from the home plate area and took his final bows.

Seaver was joined on the field by his wife, Nancy, and their two daughters. The Mets gave the Seaver's a car, jewelry and a ski vacation in Europe.

Former teammates Jerry Grote, Bud Harrelson and Jerry Koosman also were part of the ceremonies and a letter of congratulations was sent by President Reagan.

"This is special coming in a town where some of the game's greats have had their numbers retired — the Mantle's, DiMaggio's, Ruth's and Gehrig's," Seaver said prior to the ceremonies.

"I don't feel like a legend, not yet anyway, he said. "That may not be my call, I think that may be a relationship that the fans and the press have."

Seaver, who is the Mets' all-time victory leader with 198, is the third number to be retired in the club's history.

Tom Seaver
The only other numbers retired by the Mets are Gil Hodges' 14 and Casey Stengel's 37 — both managers. In the pregame ceremonies, Seaver's 41 was placed on the left-field fence at Shea Stadium next to 14 and 37.

Red Sox win 11th straight

BOSTON (AP) — Mike Greenwell drove in one run with a triple and set up another with a double and Wade Boggs had three hits as the Boston Red Sox streaked to their 11th consecutive victory by defeating the Chicago White Sox 3-2 Sunday.

Boston's winning streak is the second longest in the majors this season. The Red Sox have won 16 in a row at Fenway Park.

Bruce Hurst, 10-4, who had not pitched since July 6 because of a viral infection, allowed 10 hits before being bailed out by Dennis Lamp with none out and runners on first and second in the sixth inning.

Lee Smith pitched 1 1/2 innings, striking out four, to earn his 15th save.

Boggs led off the Boston first against Bill Long, 4-5, with a single to right and scored on Greenwell's line triple to the 420-foot mark in center.

Major League Baseball

Twins 6, Orioles 1
MINNEAPOLIS — Eddie Murray's throwing error allowed two runs to score in the second inning and Randy Bush hit a three-run homer in the eighth as Minnesota defeated Baltimore 6-1.

Alan Anderson, 7-7, scattered nine hits, walked two and struck out one before needing relief help from Juan Berenguer in the seventh inning. Berenguer pitched 1 1/2 innings, Jeff Reardon closed.

Yankees 10, Royals 8
KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Jack Clark went 3-for-3 and hit a three-run home run in the sixth as New York won despite blowing a seven-run lead.

Clark, who also had an RBI double in the Yankees' seven-run first, drove in Don Mattingly and Dave Winfield with his 19th homer and handed Bret Saberhagen, 10-10, his fifth loss in six decisions.

Rangers 6, Brewers 4
MILWAUKEE — Paul Kligus allowed five hits in eight-plus innings and Pete Incauglia and Geno Petralli homered Sunday to lead Texas.

Giants 5, Cardinals 0
ST. LOUIS — The San Francisco Giants and St. Louis, teams with a history of bad blood, got into two bench-clearing altercations in the eighth inning Sunday and overshadowed Rick Reuschel's 25th career shutout in a 5-0 victory over the Cardinals.

Reuschel, 13-5, allowed seven hits. It was his first shutout since Sept. 17 and his first complete game this season in 21 starts.

Dodgers 2, Pirates 1
PITTSBURGH — Steve Sax had three hits and drove in both Los Angeles runs and rookie Shawn Hillegas limited Pittsburgh to one run over six innings as the Dodgers beat the Pirates 2-1.

Hillegas, 3-2, got the victory and Brian Fisher, 6-8, was the loser.

Braves 4, Mets 2
NEW YORK — Dale Murphy hit his 18th home run and German Jimenez got his first major league victory Sunday as the Atlanta Braves beat the New York Mets 4-2.

Jimenez, 1-3, gave up one run on four hits in five innings. Paul Assenmacher struck out the final two batters for his third save.

Phillies 6, Astros 4
HOUSTON — Mike Schmidt hit his 540th career homer, a disputed three-run drive, and Philadelphia Phillies beat Houston 6-4 Sunday and ended the Astros' longest winning streak of the season at six.

Kevin Gross, 10-6, left after Bill Doran led off the eighth with a home run and Terry Puhl walked. Steve Bedrosian got five outs for his 19th save.

Expos 5, Reds 3
CINCINNATI — Hubie Brooks hit a two-run homer and Wallace Johnson had an RBI single as the Montreal Expos rallied for three runs in the seventh inning and beat the Cincinnati Reds 5-3.

Padres 2, Cubs 1
CHICAGO — John Kruk homered on the first pitch of the game and Jimmy Jones combined with Mark Davis on a five-hitter, leading the San Diego Padres over the Chicago Cubs 2-1.

San Diego's Tony Gwynn went 0-for-4 and ended his 18-game hitting streak, the third-longest in the National League this season.

Kruk connected off Rick Sutcliffe, 7-9, for his seventh homer of the season and first since June 8. Roberto Alomar hit an RBI single in the second for a 2-1 lead.

Younger Perry wins battle of the bulge

While William "The Refrigerator" Perry tries to stay away from the icebox, his little brother has no need for a crash diet.

Michael Dean Perry, the Cleveland Browns' second-round pick from Clemson, says he's only five to seven pounds above his playing weight of 275.

"I keep my weight down pretty good," the 6-foot-1 defensive lineman said Sunday. "I don't have any problems with it."

Unfortunately, the same can not be said for brother William, a 6-foot-2 lineman for the Chicago Bears. The Fridge, who soared to 377 pounds in May, is undergoing treatment for an eating disorder after failing to show at the Bears' camp last week.

"I heard he was going into an eating center. That's about all I know," Michael Dean said. "Since day one he's been like that, so why should today be any different? It's been like that for three years so it didn't surprise me at all."

The younger Perry said he wasn't concerned that weight problems might run in the family.

"We're just big people, and William has a large frame," he said. "He can carry 300-plus pounds easily. If I got to 300, I'd be hurting, but a guy like William, with his frame, can carry it with ease."

If the younger Perry was taller, he might have been a first-round pick. But Tom Pratt, the Browns defensive line coach, says the former Clemson star compensates for his lack of height with quickness.

"I don't think his height will be a problem," Pratt said. "If you're good enough, you're tall enough. He's played well at his height for some time now."

HEAVYWEIGHT BATTLE

A pair of rookies, linebacker Marcus Cotton and tight end Alex Higdon, got into a helmet-slapping scuffle during an Atlanta Falcons' practice Sunday.

"Just say I'm getting ready for (Mike) Tyson," said Cotton, a second-round draft choice from Southern California.

It was the first practice for Higdon, a third-round pick from Ohio State who ended a one-week hold-out Sunday.

"It didn't look like he wanted to be held," Higdon said. "I don't even know what caused it."

Cotton declined to say what caused the confrontation.

Higdon, projected as a starter, signed a three-year contract believed to be worth about $660,000. He got a signing bonus of $160,000.

BOYCOTT

Pro Bowl linebacker Sam Mills boycotted the New Orleans Saints practice Sunday over a salary dispute.

"I don't want to talk about it," said Mills, who referred all questions to his agent, Brett Senior of Philadelphia.

SIGNINGS

Jesse Baker, the all-time sack leader for the Houston Oilers, reported to the Falcons Sunday after signing a free agent contract.

Baker had 67½ sacks during his 10-year career with the Oilers, who didn't offer the 6-foot-5, 260-pound defensive end a contract this year.

"Sure he has a shot," Falcons Coach Marion Campbell said. "He's a veteran. He's got some experience. He's got his weight down, so evidently he was serious about wanting to play again."

Baker, a native of the Atlanta area, was a second-round choice of the Oilers in the 1979 NFL draft. He earned defensive Rookie of the Year honors with 15½ sacks in his first pro season.

RETIREMENT LETTER

The Dallas Cowboys say holdout placekicker Roger Ruzek has sent a letter of retirement to NFL Commissioner Pete Rozelle.

Ruzek refused to report to training camp because the Cowboys wouldn't meet his contract demands. If Ruzek changes his mind, he would still be the property of the Cowboys because he has a year left on his contract.

Ruzek's refusal to report caused the Cowboys to file a $1.36 million lawsuit Friday against Ruzek's agent, Steven Weinberg, and the NFL Players Association.

Bullard totals 28; most Iowa players absent

By Neil Lewis
The Daily Iowan

Having a big-name Iowa player on the roster was a disadvantage Sunday night in the Prime Time Basketball League as Hawkeyes and former Hawkeyes were helping with Tom Davis' Iowa Basketball camp.

Iowa State Bank's team, led by redshirt Iowa junior Matt Bullard, was completely intact though and stomped Southgate Development 124-92. NCAA regulations prevented Bullard and other incoming Hawkeye players from attending the camp.

Guards Kenny Fullard and Northern Iowa's Maurice Newby kept Southgate close, despite the absence of starters Roy Marble, Bill Jones and Michael Morgan.

Southgate, down by 16 at one point, moved within eight at halftime when ex-Iowa City Regina player Kevin Drahozal banked in a five-footer.

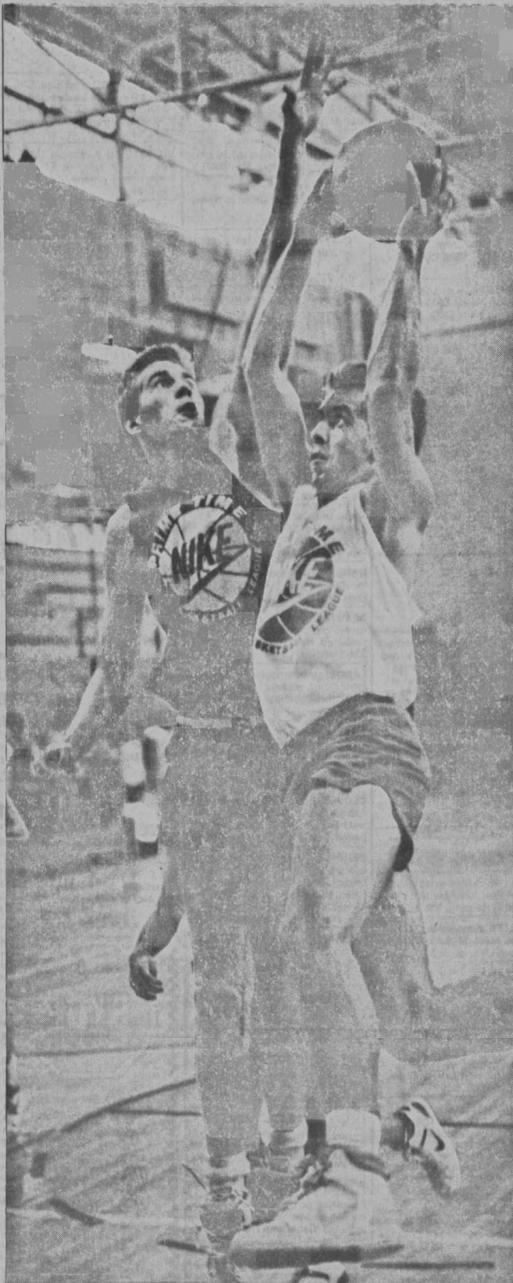

But former Des Moines Valley High School standout Bullard found his rhythm from three-point range. Iowa State Bank rung up 14 points in one minute, 40 seconds, and Southgate's fate was sealed.

Bullard said the Hawkeyes' team concept and his role with the team will be a big change from his days with the University of Colorado.

"At Colorado we ran kind of a slow-down offense," Bullard said. "At Iowa you have guys that can really get up and down the floor. It will be different because I won't be the main emphasis."

"I'm trying to work on my overall game and become more confident with my three-point shots," Bullard said. Uncertainty or shyness were not problems Sunday as

Delgado takes tour for Spain, mother

PARIS (AP) — Pedro Delgado of Spain added a bit of home to the 75th Tour de France cycling race as he took the overall title Sunday, ending a string of disappointments and heartbreaks.

He rushed down the Champs Elysees amid dozens of red-and-yellow Spanish flags. More than 5,000 residents from Delgado's home of Segovia, Spain, were among the crowd lining the Champs Elysees that was estimated at a quarter of a million persons under brilliant summer skies.

After completing the 2,036-mile race that started July 4, Delgado was greeted by Segovian Mayor Luciano Sanchez Reus and other Spanish officials. He also was congratulated by Paris Mayor Jacques Chirac while a band played the Spanish national anthem.

"In this moment I am thinking only of my mother," said Delgado, who was forced to withdraw from a previous Tour de France when his mother died during the race. "All the fatigue was worthwhile. I am happy, happy."

"I promised myself I would win this race for her. It is a small gift."

The Netherlands' Jean-Paul Van Poppel won the 22nd and final stage from Nemours to Paris, 106 miles, culminating with six laps from the Arc de Triomphe to the Tuilleries Garden. It was Van Poppel's fourth individual victory in this year's tour.

However, Delgado finished close enough in the last stage to maintain his lead of more than seven minutes over runner-up Steven Rooks of the Netherlands.

As Delgado raced across the finish line, all the church bells in the cyclist's Castilian home town rang out in unison, a special homage authorized by the city's Roman Catholic Bishop Antonio Palenzuela. Delgado is the third Spanish cyclist to win the Tour de France. Luis Ocana won in 1973, and Federico Bahamontes won in 1959.

The Spanish government sent a telegram to Delgado expressing the "enthusiastic congratulations of the entire government."

Government spokesperson Rosa Conde said the telegram contained the message: "The entire government is very proud that on the diamond anniversary of the Tour de France, the Spanish national hymn was heard in Paris to celebrate your victory."

Delgado also received a telegram from Spain's King Juan Carlos and Queen Sofia at the Marivent Palace on the island of Majorca where the royal couple are spending their summer holidays.

"The Queen and I send you our warmest congratulations and we join the satisfaction all other Spaniards feel for your victory," the telegram said.

It was a hard-won victory for the 28-year-old cyclist, who has survived controversy, heartache and narrow losses in past Tour de Frances.

The women's Tour de France ended shortly before the men's Sunday, with French cyclist Jeanne Longo winning her second

Swedish rookie wins U.S. Open

BALTIMORE (AP) — Swedish rookie Liselotte Neumann battled back from a four-putt double bogey and scored a record-setting victory Sunday in the U.S. Women's Open. Neumann rallied from that disaster on the sixth hole with three straight birdies on the back nine and won the most important of all the ladies' golf tournaments by a three-shot margin.

The 22-year-old called "Lotta" by her fellow competitors on the LPGA Tour had a closing round of 69 in the muggy heat on the Five Farms course at the Baltimore Country Club and won with a 277 total, seven under par.

Neumann, who lives with her parents in Finspang, Sweden, when she isn't traveling the world, hadn't finished higher than 11th in the United States this year, and had every opportunity to fade from contention early in the final round.

On the sixth hole, Neumann had a putt of about 30 feet and ran it about two feet past the cup. She missed that one, and had about a 10-foot putt to win. She missed that one, and had about a 10-foot putt to win. She missed that one, and had about a 10-foot putt to win.

While she's listed as a rookie on the American LPGA Tour, she is an experienced international player.

She won the German Women's Open earlier this year, has won other European victories and was second in the 1986 European women's order of merit.

Maintaining peak is U.S. track's goal

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The U.S. Olympic track and field team, riding an emotional high, realizes it must maintain its peak between now and the Seoul Games.

"We can't afford to let this go to our heads," long jumper-heptathlete Jackie Joyner-Kersey said after the U.S. Olympic Trials ended Saturday.

"This is just the beginning. We can't afford to be cocky. The Eastern Bloc will come to Seoul prepared."

The Eastern Bloc, mainly the Soviet Union and East Germany, perennially has been powerful in track and field, particularly in women's events. And this will be the first time since 1976 that the Eastern Bloc powers and the United States will be together at the Games, adding to the incentive.

The African nations, meanwhile, have been coming on strong in the men's long distance events in the past couple of years and will pose a problem for the Americans at Seoul.

The United States, as usual, will be strong in the men's and women's sprints, plus some field events.

"Some of our lads had to peak to make the team, and they'll have to do it again (in Seoul)," U.S. men's coach Stan Huntsman of the University of Texas said.

"It won't be easy reaching a peak a second time. This (the Indiana University Track and Field Stadium) is the fastest track in the world, and it might be deceiving to our team and the public," he said.

The Seoul track will be softer and not as fast as Indianapolis. Women's coach Terry Crawford, also of the University of Texas, was more optimistic.

"This has to be the all-time track and field meet of the ages for all women," she said. "We can come home with more medals than we've ever earned at an Olympics against the world powers."

"Their sights are higher and there won't be an intimidation factor."

If there's no intimidation factor, there could be a pressure factor. The Olympic Games are the most pressurized amateur sports competition in the world, and many of the track and field athletes never consecutive title. The 12th and last stage of the women's race was won by French cyclist Virginie Lafargue.

Last week, Delgado survived a drug scandal when the drug probe- noid was discovered in his urine.

Delgado took over the leader's yellow jersey 10 days ago following a mountain stage that ended in L'Alpe d'Huez. He won a time trial outside Grenoble July 15. The drug test following that stage led to the discovery of probenidol.

He was not penalized because the drug is not on the list of banned substances.

He had been criticized by French media and reacted against statements concerning why he had been using the drug.

S. Africa journalist writes on U.S. tour

By Heidi Mathews
The Daily Iowan

South African journalist Heidi Scholtz said Monday he has a 30-day tour of the U.S. will give him with a more thorough understanding of U.S. culture and politics. Scholtz, who holds a doctorate in history from Leyden University in Holland, is presently employed as a foreign editor for a chain of newspapers in South Africa. He is also a member of the National Pers Newspaper.

Scholtz was invited by members of the American Embassy in Africa to participate in the International Visitors Program. "I am becoming more and more saturated with impressions (of the United States)," said Scholtz. "One thing stands out — the I have met everywhere are remarkably hospitable. And learning a lot about American policies in different areas."

The International Visitors Program is a Washington, D.C. organization that invites foreign guests through members of the American Embassy and plan to spend their American vacations. The program also pays the cost of the guests' expenses.

"I am happy to be part of the program," Scholtz said. "I want to get an idea of what makes the United States (United States) tick. The United States is the number one country in the world, and it's direct bearing on South Africa. It is important that we (Africans) understand what it is all about."

Because of his professional background, Scholtz has concentrated on visiting as many cities and printing areas as possible along his American route. He is planning to write a series of articles centered around American democracy, relations between the United States and South Africa, and racial relations within the country when he returns home.

Thomas Baldrige, one of the co-coordinators for the International Visitors Program in Iowa City, said the individuals at the program are people who are opinion leaders within their countries.

"We're dealing with people who are up and coming," said Baldrige. "They will be able to explain to a large number of people in their countries who we (the United States) are and what we're doing. You see, in a way we're selling the American way of life."

Scholtz is concerned with relations between South Africa and the United States due to the issues of apartheid and investment in South Africa.

Many American companies and private businessmen have pulled out of business arrangements and investments in South Africa to show their anger toward the country of apartheid.

Up to this point, though, the practical effects of divestment have not been that great, Scholtz said.

"Now there is a bill in front of Congress called the Dillums-Act that is calling for the curbing of all bilateral trade between the two countries," he said.

But Scholtz said if this bill is passed, the end result would be catastrophic to both black and white in South Africa by cutting the economy to plummet.

"We need a strong economic system to uplift the blacks," Scholtz said. "Without one, the blacks will be integrated into the South African system. Also, an act such as the one in front of the U.S. Congress will not help."

Council

The Iowa City Council agreed to work with Iowa City vendors on the problem of proper placement of news vending machines before the formal action to regulate increases in the machines.

Iowa City Mayor John McCall said it was about time to address the vending issue, pointing to a recent survey in 1983 that showed newsracks in downtown Iowa City and currently there are 74 newsracks in downtown Iowa City. "I think it's reached a point
