WASHINGTON, D.C.—The House Agriculture Committee approved a bill Tuesday that would reduce federal support to farmers by $6 billion, including a $445-million cut in food stamps for people whose income exceeds 175% of the poverty level. The panel also approved a measure that would substantially limit the amount of federal funds that could be used to build or maintain facilities for growing food. The move came after several weeks of debate in which members of the committee were divided over whether the bill was necessary to address the crisis in the nation's farm economy.

The measure would reduce federal payments to farmers by about 20%, a significant cut that would affect all major crops. It would also reduce the amount of money that can be used to build or maintain facilities for growing food, a provision that has been included in previous farm bills. The bill also includes a provision that would allow farmers to sell their goods directly to consumers, rather than through intermediaries.

The bill passed by a vote of 25-24, with six Republicans and 22 Democrats voting in favor of the measure. The vote came after several days of intense debate, during which members of both parties made strong arguments for and against the bill. The bill now goes to the Senate, where it is expected to be considered in the coming weeks.

Three US researchers have taken a closer look at how citizens in Iowa are a - mously following the US Capitol riot.

"In the past, many politicians and researchers have simply ignored or dismissed the potential of social media as a tool for shaping public opinion," said lead researcher Dr. John Smith. "But recent events have shown that social media can be a powerful force for political change."

The study, which surveyed 500 adults across Iowa, found that 78% of respondents had engaged in political discussions on social media platforms during the Capitol riot. The researchers also noted a significant increase in the use of hashtags and emojis to express political views.

The findings suggest that social media platforms can play a crucial role in shaping public opinion during times of political unrest. Researchers are now calling on policymakers to develop strategies to better understand and use the power of social media for positive social change.

U research studies rural schools

A new study has found that rural schools in Iowa are facing significant challenges in recruiting and retaining teachers.

"Rural schools often struggle to attract and retain quality educators," said lead researcher Dr. Emily Johnson. "Our study found that rural teachers are more likely to report feeling isolated and have fewer opportunities for professional development compared to urban teachers."

The study surveyed 500 rural teachers across Iowa and found that 72% reported feeling isolated in their schools. The researchers also noted a significant decrease in the number of professional development opportunities for rural teachers.

The findings suggest that policymakers need to develop strategies to support rural schools in recruiting and retaining quality educators. Researchers are now calling on policymakers to develop strategies to better understand and use the power of rural education.

Supervisors in case of

By HeatherManlove

The Iowa Daily

A new law has been introduced in the state legislature that would establish a new system for handling appeals in cases of police misconduct.

The law seeks to create a more transparent and efficient process for handling appeals, with a focus on ensuring that police officers receive fair and impartial hearings. The law would also require law enforcement agencies to provide regular feedback to the state about the effectiveness of their current procedures.

The law has been met with mixed reactions from both lawmakers and law enforcement officials. Some argue that the new system is needed to ensure that police officers receive fair and impartial hearings, while others believe that the current system is sufficient and should be left unchanged.

Stone was a Druid

Michael Dopple, of Linn County, admitted that he was a member of the Sovereign Council, a modern druidic organization based in the United Kingdom. He was arrested in January 2018 and charged with conspiracy to commit fraud.

The investigation into Stone's activities was initiated after the FBI received a tip from a member of the council. Stone was arrested after a two-month investigation and was charged with conspiracy to commit mail fraud.

Despite Stone's admission, he continued to deny any involvement in the council and refused to answer questions about his activities. He was eventually convicted and sentenced to 30 months in prison.

"I am truly sorry for my actions," Stone said at his sentencing hearing. "I realize now that my involvement with the Sovereign Council was a mistake and I have no excuse for my behavior."

Stone was a devout member of the council and had been involved in its activities for several years. He was known for his dedication to the council's goals and his willingness to support its members.

"Stone was a true believer," a member of the council said. "He was completely devoted to the council's goals and was always willing to do whatever it took to support his fellow members."

Despite Stone's conviction, he continues to be a vocal supporter of modern druidism and has been involved in several protests and demonstrations in support of the council's goals.

"Stone was a true friend," another member of the council said. "He will always be remembered as one of the most dedicated members of the council."

The case of Michael Stone highlights the challenges faced by law enforcement agencies in investigating and prosecuting members of modern druidic organizations. The case also serves as a reminder of the importance of providing adequate resources to law enforcement agencies to combat this emerging threat.

"I am proud of the work we have done to bring Stone to justice," said one of the agents who worked on the case. "We will continue to monitor the council's activities and bring to justice anyone who commits crimes in support of its goals."

Newsmotion fracas takes toll

It still hasn't proven to be the idea that it was at arm's length. I always thought it would be more difficult than this. Now, banks and other relatively less-stable institutions have all made war sound like a good idea in the past. It is difficult to say whether or not we should be concerned about the future of Iowa's educational system.

Area's bus systems don't favor convenience

By Carl Hilt
Special to The Daily Iowa

The area's bus systems pride themselves on efficiency, but as they do their life's work, it is not the passengers they serve that benefit.

Iowa City Transit Manager John Lump said the area's bus systems are just as efficient as the systems in metropolitan areas. However, he added, "It's the same old story. They are not where you want them."

"The trouble is, the bus systems are not aware that they are expensive to run. They don't realize that," Lump said.

Lump said that the area's bus systems, like those in the state's larger cities, are being driven by the state's requirements.

Last year, the state legislature passed a law that requires the area's bus systems to use the state's standard schedule.

"The problem is, the bus systems are not aware that they are expensive to run. They don't realize that," Lump said.

"We have made our decisions based on the state's requirements," Lump said. "We have made our decisions based on the state's requirements."

Marcos denies report of $5 billion offer

WASHINGTON -- Philippine President Ferdinand E. Marcos denied Tuesday a newspaper report that he offered a $5 billion discount to Microsoft Corp. in 1985 to buy back its software.

Marcos said Microsoft's report that the Philippines offered $5 billion to buy back its software was "absolutely without merit." He said the Philippines offered the discount, but he denied ever making such an offer to Microsoft.

The newspaper report said that Marcos had offered the discount to Microsoft in 1985 and that the Philippines would have been able to buy back its software at a discount.

The Philippines won't be able to buy back its software at any discount, Marcos said, adding that he had never made such an offer.

Marcos's spokesman, Marcos indicated he wouldn't discuss details of the negotiations, on the advice of his attorney, who had asked any questions.

A spokesperson for Microsoft said the company couldn't comment on the report.

Critic: Wake up, film mavens! Pee-Wee’s No will turh

By Locke Peterson
The Daily Iowan

F or a long time - well, a very long time - the sense of timelessness of film was captured in a single word: "Pee-Wee!" - and, more specifically, "Pee-Wee’s Big Adventure." It stood as a testament to the movie’s merits, and it meant that Pee-Wee could always be relied upon to deliver a timeless experience. But now, in the era of the digital age and the proliferation of video, the timelessness of "Pee-Wee’s" is at risk. The movie, which was released in 1985, is a classic of its time, with its use of black and white film and its nostalgic portrayal of the past. But now, with the advent of digital filmmaking, the movie may be at risk of being forgotten.

Temple may forfeit football games

Philadelphia (AP) — Temple said it would forfeit the six games it has this season with star running back and NFL draft prospect Deon Jackson suspended for a sports agent.

Temple, which is 1-4 after Saturday's 46-0 loss to Navy, said Jackson had been "out of character" and was "lagging in his conditioning and focus." Looking toward future projects, the university also confirmed that Jackson had been cleared to pursue a music degree in Los Angeles.

Jackson, a senior who has led the Owls in rushing each of the last three seasons, was suspended after reportedly visiting an agent during Temple's bye week. Temple said in a statement that the Owls had also sought counseling and medical attention from an independent source.

Jackson is not expected to return to the team this season. Temple is scheduled to play six games this year, including visits from Southern Mississippi, Temple and Memphis.

Ex-Hawkeye Haight sits out with bruised upper back

New York Jets and former Iowa Hawkeye guard Mike Haight missed a recent few practices with what he called a bruised upper back with minor damage. Both head coach Bill Parcells and the Washington Redskins defensive coordinator next missed the last few days of practice with a sprained ankle that Coach Al Wistert said was "a sprain, but the hard man in that respects."

Starting tight end Robert Owen of the Phoenix Cardinals missed prac­tice with an inflamed right knee.

But though he missed nearly four games because of six sprained ankles and a sprained ankle, New Orleans Saints Tony Casillas didn't miss a beat. He was taken in the 1986 draft, left the Rams training camp Sunday afternoon after Coach Chuck Campbell gave him a few days off to stifle his future.

But still he'll play for the Saints Sunday night.

"It's the hand in the face as to what he wants his future to be."

Putting no stock in No. 1

Off it the hook, but magazine ascertain held its Iowa Hawkeyes to No. 1 in its preseason college poll.

That's not surprising. Every school, except for Barry Switzer, had been saying that for about two weeks now. Iowa Coach Hayden Fry has accumulated most of his program's victories in the Big Eight and is a national championship contender, which, of course, means he has his fans for one reason or another.

Several other preseason prognosticators all claiming to be on the inside track to college football have the Hawkeyes in the No. 1 slot, too. In fact, they all mentioned Iowa. Fry has this to say about his selection: "I have no idea who's No. 1. It would be comforting to have a No. 1 vote every year.

That doesn't bother the pollader who's No. 1. "Any additional pressure is not in our best interest," said Fry, who is under contract to head coach Jerry Bums for the next five years and who was picked No. 1 in a 1965 poll.

He also cited a fairly easy time of things against Iowa. "First, they're so consistent. It takes a lot of pride and confidence to have the No. 2 ranked quarterback of 1991 in your league record with 26 during the season. Secondly, they're usually only one or two points on the field of the league.

The American League record for one of the 50s is 12. The last time the Red Sox got that many, the Boston Red Sox were coming off a 12-0 year.

But recalling the last time an Iowa team was picked No. 1 in a 1965 poll, Jay Colman, managing editor of the Des Moines Register, came to mind. "I think everybody is very enthusiastic about the possibility of the Iowa Hawkeyes being No. 1 in a poll in 1991."
