

3 meet election deadline

By Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

Two incumbent Iowa City School Board members and a University Heights attorney were the only candidates Thursday to meet the 5 p.m. application deadline for the Sept. 13 school board election.

Lynne Cannon, 920 Hazelwood St.; Francis Malloy, 1023 Kirkwood Court; and Alan Leff, 215 Sunset St., University Heights, will seek election for the two vacant Iowa City School Board seats in the September elections.

The board's seven members serve 3-year terms and are responsible for funding, policy and hiring in the Iowa City School District.

Ten candidates sought three open seats last year, when all of the incumbents running lost. Several of the new board members who were elected cited a lack of communication between the board and district employees as a factor in their success, immediately after the election.

Malloy was one of last year's freshman board members. She served the remaining year of board member David Woodruff, who resigned.

Malloy said lobbying for funding at local, state and federal levels for public schools is a priority for the coming year, adding that class size is another issue the board should investigate.

"We have to seek creative solutions aimed at keeping the number of students in the classrooms to a manageable size," Malloy said.

Malloy works as a lay minister at the Newman Catholic Center and is the mother of two. She graduated from the University of Wisconsin, Madison, with a bachelor's degree in medical technology and a master's degree in adult education.

Her husband, Tom Linnsmeier, is an accounting professor at the UI College of Business Administration.

Current board president Lynne Cannon, a 9-year veteran, is also seeking re-election to the board.

Cannon said the most important issues facing the school board in the upcoming year are school finances and modifications in school standards that will be made by the state legislature.

Over 1,000 students graduate

By Jay Casini
The Daily Iowan

The UI will add more than 1,000 names to its list of graduates today at the UI Summer Commencement ceremonies in Hancher Auditorium.

UI Registrar Jerald Dallam said there will be two ceremonies to allow more people to attend commencement. The graduate student ceremony will begin at 2 p.m., and the undergraduate ceremony will be held at 8 p.m.

"We went to the split ceremonies last year to make sure everyone who wanted to attend is able to get a good seat," Dallam said. "Hancher is the largest air-conditioned auditorium on campus, but increasing interest in the graduation ceremonies has prompted crowds beyond what we can handle at one time."

Dallam said the UI will award 470 graduate degrees and 550 undergraduate degrees. The UI has had more than 203,000 graduates since it was founded in 1847.

New UI President Hunter Rawlings III will deliver the traditional charge to the graduates at both ceremonies.

UI English major Sean Benson of Cedar Rapids will give the undergraduate response to Rawlings' charge. There will be no response in the graduate exercises.

UI Vice President for Educational Development and Research D.C. Spriestersbach will serve as master of ceremonies for both commencement events.

Dallam said no alcohol would be permitted in Hancher during the commencement exercises.

Both ceremonies will be videotaped, and tapes will be made available through the Union Bookstore.

Students search for economical housing in diminishing market

By Lisa Swegle
The Daily Iowan

WANTED: Immediately. Economical housing for procrastinating UI students.

Finding an apartment for the fall has become an especially difficult task now that the main Aug. 1 deadline for apartment leases has passed.

"The market's real tight," said Bud Means, owner of The Means Agency Inc., 505 E. Washington St. "Almost everything that's available has been rented. The choice is not going to be too selective."

"In fact, I only have four out of 150 units left, and they're small efficiencies in one big house. Two of those won't be available until Sept. 1," Means said.

Aley Lehr, a Seville Apartments rental agent, said many students are still looking for an apartment.

"In the past few days, there have been numerous people coming in who haven't found an apartment yet, and I feel really sorry for them," Lehr said. "We have been completely full for the last two weeks."

Lehr said one threesome came to the Seville office exhausted after trying numerous apartment complexes.

"One of them made the comment, 'I guess we'll be out on the street,'" Lehr said.

The best place for UI students to find an apartment now is in newspaper advertisements, Means said.

"Usually, if there is a vacancy, it'll show up in the paper," Means said. The UI clearinghouse, located at the Union information desk, is another popular source for apartment searchers. The clearinghouse offers books of current listings for roommates, apartments and rooms.

Union information desk specialist Amy Petsh said anyone can fill out a form in one of the three categories and it will be listed.

"We have probably 50 to 100 people stop by daily," Petsh said. "They're just kind of taking what they can get. The best deals are gone."

However, Petsh said there is still hope for students seeking fall housing. Listings are added daily to the clearinghouse, and Petsh said 5 to 10 were added on Tuesday alone.

Clifford Walters, an Iowa City private landlord, said he has been swamped with phone calls from hopeful students.

plexes.

"I'm surprised at all the calls I've been getting," Walters said. "I've been saturated with calls for economical housing."

Walters said expensive housing is probably still available, but demand is high for economical housing. A shortage of single-dwelling homes also exists, according to Walters.

Walters said a fellow landlord advertised a three-bedroom house for $500 and was able to increase the price to $600 after "12 people came stuffing money into his hands," Walters said.

Although he doesn't have any current rental openings, Walters advises students with transportation to look at some of the outlying towns around Iowa City.

"There's some more economical housing out there than in Iowa City," Walters said.

Maurer, daughter of Moe Howard — the one with the trademark bangs and scowl — launched the stamp campaign last year in her fifth book on the Stooges.

After all, W.C. Fields was honored with a stamp in 1980, and recently the postmaster general said Laurel and Hardy could appear on a stamp.

But Stooge-lovers point out that while Fields and Laurel and Hardy are seldom seen nowadays, the Stooges — who began with vaudeville and reached their height in film — are still seen on television all over the world.

"If you stopped people on the street and showed them a picture of the Three Stooges, they'd know them right away," said Gary Lassin, president of the Three Stooges Fan Club, with about 2,000 members worldwide.

Stephanie Salter, a San Francisco Examiner columnist, is relaying hundreds of pro-Stooge letters to the Postal Service's Citizens Stamp Advisory Committee.

"I just think that it's the fact the world is getting heavier every day. I just can't emphasize the importance of silliness," Salter said.

The silliness as most people know it began in 1934, when Moe, brother Curly and a violin player with a receding mop named Larry Fine made "Women Haters," their first short for Columbia.

"The whole concept was that Moe was the brains of the outfit, supported by Larry the middleman, who was supposed to be a little less smart than Moe but more intelligent than Curly," Lenberg said.

"But Moe always came out as not so smart after all. He was as much a stooge as Curly or Larry."

But how much chance does the stamp campaign have?

Many of the 2,000 requests the Citizens Stamp Advisory Committee receives a month are for Elvis Presley, John Wayne or Marilyn Monroe, said Dick Rustin, manager of stamp information for the Postal Service. So far only a few have come from Stooge fans, he said.

Wedtech case finds 5 guilty of racketeering

NEW YORK (AP) — Rep. Mario Biaggi, a one-time hero cop, and four other people were convicted Thursday of racketeering for turning the now-defunct defense contractor Wedtech Corp. into an enterprise that paid out millions in bribes to public officials.

"We're obviously disappointed, and we're going to appeal," Biaggi, 70, said outside the courtroom. His attorney, James LaRossa, said Biaggi would make a full statement at a news conference Friday.

The verdicts came in the fifth day of the jury's deliberations.

Biaggi, a city police officer from 1942 to 1965 and at one time the most decorated policeman in the country, was convicted of all but one of the 16 counts against him, including conspiracy, extortion, tax evasion and receiving bribes. He was acquitted of one count of mail fraud.

Also convicted of racketeering were former Bronx Borough President Stanley Simon, 58; Wedtech founder John Mariotta, 58, of Scarsdale; Peter Neglia, 40, of Armonk; and Biaggi's former law partner, Bernard Ehrlich, 59, of Bedford.

Biaggi's eldest son, Richard, 39, of Fort Lee, N.J., was acquitted of racketeering charges but convicted of bribe receiving, mail fraud and tax charges.

Mario Biaggi faces up to 20 years in prison on the racketeering counts, which are the most serious charges. He previously was sentenced to 30 months in prison for his 1987 conviction in Brooklyn for obstructing justice and taking an illegal gratuity.

Biaggi, sitting closest to the jurors, never looked at them during the verdict. After his conviction on the first count, he spoke quietly to his attorney. He then removed his glasses, rubbed his eyes and shook his head.

Later, Biaggi went to the building nurses' office, and his private physician was called to examine him. He left the building by a side entrance to avoid photographers.

The staff of the House Ethics Committee recommended earlier this year that the New York Democrat be expelled for the 1987 conviction.

Fans lobby for stamp to remember Stooges

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fans of three knuckleheads famed for hopping each other on the head, throwing pies and chortling "nyuk, nyuk, nyuk" are writing letters and circulating petitions to get the government's attention.

The Three Stooges, they insist, deserve to be honored on a U.S. postage stamp.

"They were the longest-running comedy team in the history of motion pictures. Laurel and Hardy, Abbott and Costello and the Marx Brothers pale in significance compared with the Stooges," said Jeff Lenberg, a Southern California writer and Stooge historian.

Lenberg and other admirers of Moe, Larry and Curly — not to forget Shemp, Joe and Curly-Joe — say the Stooges are part of modern American culture.

"My father always said their comedy was based on the upsetting of dignity. And I thought of George Washington getting his wig knocked off. That's what the Stooges would have done to him," said Joan Howard Maurer.

Maurer, daughter of Moe Howard — the one with the trademark bangs and scowl — launched the stamp campaign last year in her fifth book on the Stooges.

After all, W.C. Fields was honored with a stamp in 1980, and recently the postmaster general said Laurel and Hardy could appear on a stamp.

UI buildings operate on reduced hours

Several UI buildings will be operating on reduced hours during the summer interim break from Aug. 6 through Aug. 29.

The UI Main Library will be open Monday through Friday from 7:30 a.m. to 10 p.m. during the break. It will be open Saturday from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Many of the various UI departmental libraries will be operating on reduced hours. The schedules for those libraries will be posted during the break.

The Union will operate on reduced hours beginning Aug. 5. On Aug. 7, the Union will be open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. From Aug. 8 through Aug. 13, the Union will operate on normal hours.

On Aug. 14, the Union will be open from 7 a.m. to 6 p.m., and from Aug. 15 through Aug. 19, the building will be open from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. On Aug. 20, the building will resume normal hours.

The Union Bookstore will be open from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays beginning Aug. 5. It will be closed on Saturdays and Sundays until Aug. 27, when normal hours will resume.

The Union Station will be closed beginning Aug. 6 except for Aug. 9 and Aug. 11. It will be open 7 a.m. to 7 p.m. on weekends and 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays beginning Aug. 28. Normal hours will resume Aug. 28.

The Union Pantry will be open 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on weekdays, opening an hour later on weekends, beginning Aug. 5. It will resume normal hours beginning Aug. 22.

The Union State Room and the Union Wheelroom will be closed beginning Aug. 7. Normal hours will resume Aug. 28.

The UI Campus will operate a Red Route and a Blue Route bus every half hour during the break until 10 p.m. The Pentacrest and Oakdale routes will operate as normal.

UI teaching assistant honored by students

Miao-Ling Phoebe Lin, a UI international teaching assistant, is the recipient of this year's Bhanu Murthy Memorial Prize for Excellence in Teaching Introduction to Marketing.

Based on evaluations by students, Lin received the highest rating of faculty members who taught the introduction to marketing course in the UI College of Business Administration Marketing Department during the 1987-88 academic year.

Marketing Professor Gerard Tellis administers the course, which serves about 1,500 students in multiple sections.

The award was founded in 1984 as a memorial to M. Bhanu Murthy, a teaching assistant and doctoral candidate at the UI who died of leukemia. In his memory, donations from his former students, UI faculty members and Murthy's former employer in India were invested by the UI Foundation.

News conference for Rawlings televised

A one-half hour version of new UI President Hunter R. Rawlings' III first official news conference will be presented on Heritage Cablevision in the Iowa City, North Liberty, Solon area at 6 p.m. and 9:30 p.m. Aug. 5, 6:30 p.m., Aug. 6 and 11 a.m. and 9:30 p.m., Aug. 7.

Iowa City's broadcast is on Channel 28, North Liberty's is on Channel 23 and Solon's is on Channel 23. It will also be shown on the same schedule on Campus Video System, Channel 3.

Rawlings will meet with reporters at 10:30 a.m. today in the Old Capitol Senate Chamber. It will be his first formal meeting with the news media representatives since taking over as UI president Aug. 1.

Journalism school may lose prestige without new funding

By Paula Roesler
The Daily Iowan

The UI School of Journalism will soon suffer from an "impending loss of national prestige" unless it receives additional funding for faculty and equipment, according to an external review released this April.

"We were pleased with this review in that it said what we had been saying for a long time," UI School of Journalism and Mass Communications Director Don Smith said, adding the review process is still in motion.

"It helps us see ourselves more clearly," he said.

The external report, administered by University of Minnesota School of Journalism and Mass Communications Director MaryAnn Yodelis Smith, is currently under review by UI Dean of Liberal Arts Gerhard Loewenberg.

Loewenberg and the UI College of Liberal Arts executive committee eventually will give an official response to the report and decide which suggestions will be followed.

Smith declined to discuss the review more specifically until Loewenberg reviews it.

The report states the school's current faculty does not have the resources to maintain its reputation of distinction. The UI's school of journalism is now ranked among the journalism schools at Wisconsin-Madison, Minnesota, North Carolina, Washington, Stanford, Illinois and Michigan.

To maintain its current ranking, the report suggests the school be supplied with the previously requested $71,000 fully equipped computer laboratory, access to electronic data bases in the resource center, full utility of redesigned space in the building, additional faculty, money earmarked for part-time or non-tenure-track faculty, two additional clerical/professional staff members, student laboratory assistants, competitive faculty salary levels and an increased supply budget.

Insufficient clerical staff is an area of immediate concern, according to the report.

"The personnel support system is appalling," the report states. "The administrative assistant and the other office personnel cannot possibly handle the needs of the school."

"It is not wise use of resources to use faculty for clerical work, and I observed a good deal of that," the report states. "At the least, the school requires an additional secretary to assist faculty in preparing course materials and the like."

A faculty shortage is another problem noted in the report.

"Clearly additional faculty are needed," the report states.

The report suggests the UI hire at least four additional faculty members within the next two years and perhaps at least three more in the following two years.

"With the loss of a half-dozen core faculty, the school would be a long time rebuilding," Yodelis Smith reported. "The school needs immediate support in order to prevent that sort of tragedy."

Yodelis Smith reports teaching in the school is generally good and some is excellent. To maintain the current quality of teaching, Smith's report suggests faculty consistently undergo student evaluations and peer reviews.

Most student complaints with teaching were aimed at part-time instructors, the report states. It suggests these instructors attend one-day seminars.

Advising problems could be alleviated by initiating mandatory advising clinics for faculty.

Due to equipment shortages and obsolescence, students have limited access to materials, the study states.

But $46,000 of computer equipment — 18 Macintosh computers and a LaserWriter — was installed this summer in the journalism building.

Audio equipment is also in "ill-repair," the report states. The report states there is an adequate supply of tape recorders, but the UI should support regular budget increases to maintain and eventually get new equipment for the school.

The UI Communication Center, which houses the school, needs remodeling, the report states. The first floor needs redesigning. The report states the unsoundproofed walls create security problems, and the photo lab is in need of plumbing repairs. There is also no air conditioning and poor heating in the building, according to the report.

Yodelis Smith interviewed Loewenberg, Liberal Arts Associate Dean Sarah Hanley and Liberal Arts Graduate College Dean Schultz to gain input for the report. She also held discussions with students in the department and reviewed existing materials on the UI School of Journalism.

The report by Yodelis Smith was in response to an earlier internal review also released April 1988.

Dukakis addresses farm policy

DES MOINES (AP)—Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis met for nearly four hours with key Farm Belt lawmakers to assure them "he is committed to making substantial change" in federal policies, U.S. Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said Thursday.

Harkin said Dukakis signaled a willingness to devote substantial campaign time and effort to the Midwest.

"He's got some ideas now for campaigning in the Midwest coming up very shortly which I think will draw a lot of attention," Harkin said during a conference call with reporters.

"He keeps coming back to his time in Iowa," Harkin said. "He just thinks there's something out there he can tap into."

Harkin said he met with Dukakis at his Brookline, Mass., home Wednesday night, along with former Democratic presidential candidate Richard Gephardt, the chairman of the House and Senate agriculture committees and other Midwestern lawmakers.

"He just wanted a long, uninterrupted discussion of agriculture," Harkin said.

While Dukakis said he will contest the Midwest, he has substantial hurdles to overcome. He finished third in Iowa's precinct caucuses and was criticized for his suggestion that Iowa farmers should grow Belgian endive in diversifying crops.

"I think he'd be the first to admit that he's not an expert," Harkin said. "What he has, and I think what people will recognize, is he is intelligent, and he cares, and he has a deep sense of the necessity of having a viable rural America."

"I have no doubt in my mind he is committed to making substantial changes in both farm and rural policy," Harkin said.

Courts

A Coralville man was being held in the Johnson County Jail Thursday on $1,500 bond after he was charged with assault causing injury and third-degree criminal mischief for allegedly striking his girlfriend, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Donald R. Fike, 25, 401 Sixth Ave., allegedly pulled his girlfriend by the hair, struck her and punched her. She suffered bruises and scrapes as a result of the assault, according to court records.

In an attempt to stop the victim from leaving, Fike jumped on top of the vehicle causing damage to the hood and top, according to court records.

A preliminary hearing is set for Aug. 14.

An Iowa City man was charged with second-degree burglary Thursday after he was found in a building that was closed to the public, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Randy G. Ferry, 20, 329 Maiden Lane, was observed in the McDonald Chiropractic Clinic, 934 S. Gilbert St., and was attempting to leave the building. Police noticed a broken window and blinds that were in disarray, according to court records.

Ferry stated he had no lawful purpose for entering the building. A preliminary hearing is set for Aug. 24, according to court records.

Police

By Belinda Bloor
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man reported to police Thursday that prescription drugs and dishes were stolen from his residence on Broadway Street, according to Iowa City police reports.

The man told police he suspected his former roommate took the items — which included dishes, silverware and three types of prescription painkillers — because the roommate was the only other person who had access to a file cabinet where the items were kept, according to the report.

The man told police the suspect may have left the state but that he wanted to inform police in case the suspect attempted to sell the drugs on the street, according to the report.

Report: An Iowa City man was arrested and charged with operating a vehicle while intoxicated early Thursday, according to police reports.

Scott Douglas Flynn, 22, 1064 Newton Road, was arrested at Highway 6 and Rocky Shore Drive after he allegedly lost control of his vehicle, left the roadway and struck a car parked in a motel lot, which in turn struck another car, according to the report.

Report: A woman was lectured and sent home by a police officer after allegedly exposing her upper body in the Downtown Pedestrian Mall early Thursday, according to police reports.

There were several people in the fountain at the College Street Plaza, one of whom was the 18-year-old woman who allegedly exposed herself, according to the report.

Theft: An Iowa City veterinarian reported Thursday that someone had broken into his place of business and that a camera and a gym bag were stolen, according to police reports.

The incident occurred at All Pets Veterinary Clinic, 512 S. Dubuque St., according to the report.

Theft: An Iowa City resident reported Thursday a bicycle was stolen from his residence, according to police reports.

The Sears men's bike, valued at about $120, was stolen after the chain was apparently cut, according to the report.

Computers cancel Shuttle engine test firing

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — NASA scrubbed a test firing of space shuttle Discovery's engines in the final second Thursday when a computer reported a valve problem, dealing another setback to America's effort to return to space.

Engineers said it will be three to seven days before they can try the test again. The postponement was the fifth in two weeks and made it almost certain that Discovery's flight will be delayed from late September into October.

No American has been launched into space since the shuttle Challenger exploded 73 seconds after liftoff Jan. 28, 1986, killing seven crew members.

The problem Thursday either was a valve that didn't close as fast as was supposed to or a sensor that gave a wrong reading of the valve's open-closed position.

IRA violence kills two in Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — Four gunmen fired more than 100 bullets at point-blank range and killed two men who were returning home Thursday from maintenance jobs at a police station in the town of Belleek, police said.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility, but suspicion fell on the Irish Republican Army, which has threatened any contractors working on police or army installations and killed several.

The IRA has killed four members of Britain's security forces this week — three in attacks in Northern Ireland and one in the bombing of an army barracks in north London. Forty-two people also were injured in the attacks.

Thursday's victims, aged 60 and 64, had been doing maintenance work at the Royal Ulster Constabulary station in Belleek, County Fermanagh, near the border with the Irish Republic, police said. Their names were not immediately released.

U.S. spokesman: S. Africa talks 'on track'

GENEVA — U.S.-mediated negotiations among Angola, Cuba and South Africa on a peace settlement in southern Africa are "on track," a U.S. spokesman said Thursday, and the four countries agreed to extend the talks.

The negotiators agreed to end the meeting Friday, one day beyond the originally scheduled closing date, sources close to the talks said.

Art Skop, the mission spokesman, said "the negotiations are on track and the full agenda of issues is under discussion." He declined to elaborate.

Skop's statement suggested that a controversy which arose earlier in the week over South African peace proposals had not derailed the negotiations.

The proposals were unexpectedly unveiled Tuesday night in Pretoria by Foreign Minister P. W. Botha. They called for a cease-fire by Aug. 10 in the 13-year-old Angolan war and made independence for South-West Africa conditional on the withdrawal of Cuban troops from Angola by next June 1.

Norwegian tanker attacked by Iranians

MANAMA, Bahrain — Iranian gunboats fired machine guns at a Norwegian supertanker Thursday, shipping executives said, in the first reported shooting incident in the Persian Gulf since Iran agreed to negotiate a truce with Iraq.

But Iran quickly denied involvement in the ship raid, instead saying it was probably the work of those who are opposed to peace in the region. No injuries were reported.

Iran said another 1,000 civilians were injured in Iraqi chemical bomb raids, raising the number to 2,700 in two days, and it urged the United Nations Security Council to condemn such attacks.

The official Iraqi News Agency, meanwhile, said without elaborating that Iraqi warplanes raided two Iranian oil pumping facilities.

At the United Nations on Thursday, Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar and Security Council members tried to break a deadlock over a cease-fire resolution Iran and Iraq have accepted. The talks have bogged down over Iraq's demand for direct talks with Iran before the cease-fire is set.

Also Thursday, a leader of the rebels fighting Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's rule was publicly hanged in Iran and another surrendered to government forces, the official Islamic Republic News Agency said.

Justice Department officials laud Meese

WASHINGTON — A stream of Justice Department officials lauded Attorney General Edwin Meese and showered him with plaques and gifts Thursday in a farewell ceremony that for two hours ignored the investigation that had plagued the nation's chief legal officer.

None of the 21 speakers commented directly on independent counsel James McKay's investigation of Meese's personal financial dealings or on claims by two former Justice Department officials that a deep malaise had overcome the agency as a result of Meese's legal troubles.

The farewell ceremonies, open to department employees, ran on so long that Meese said he was keeping his remarks short because the activities were "intruding on lunch hour."

Besides a variety of plaques and other souvenirs, Meese received a tomahawk with a peace pipe, an inoperative hand grenade, and a cap supposedly designed for a czar.

Meese, who is resigning this month after 3½ years in which he has faced a barrage of criticism for his conduct, said he was "really overwhelmed" by the outpouring of praise.

Stocks surrender previous trading's gains

NEW YORK — The stock market turned downward Thursday, surrendering the modest gains it posted earlier in the week.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up more than 5 points in early trading, closed with a 7.47 loss at 2,126.60. In the week's first three sessions the average had risen 5.44 points.

Volume on the Big Board came to 157.24 million shares.

Frustrated freshmen find registration a challenge

By Heidi Mathews
The Daily Iowan

Registration frustration has already set in for the class of 1992. Over 3,600 entering UI freshman have already registered via the nine orientation sessions that have been offered by the university this summer, and hundreds more are expected to register in late August — but this doesn't mean that students are getting the classes they want.

According to Emil Rinderspacher, UI assistant director of admissions and orientation, students may not get their first, second or even third choice when it comes to class selection, but academic advisors are making sure that no one leaves an orientation session with fewer than 12 credit hours.

"We realize that there are a lot of things that hinge on full-time enrollment such as financial aid," Rinderspacher said. "So we do our best to fill students' schedules. You have to realize that freshmen register last by nature of the institution."

The academic advisors and student coordinators who help students pick their classes and eventually register have been kept busy during the past couple months, Rinderspacher said.

Part of the reason for the scheduling log jam is greater participation in the orientation programs this summer. About 150 more students than were expected took part in orientation and admissions officers are predicting a substantial turnout for late August registration.

"Our incoming freshman class is impressive," Michael Barron, director of admissions, said Wednesday. "Test scores are higher, and students are coming in with a stronger college-prep curriculum under their belts."

But over one-third of incoming UI freshman are entering their first semester of college without any idea of what area of study they plan to enter, Rinderspacher said.

"This is why the General Education Requirements (GER's) fill up so quickly," Rinderspacher said. "Also, freshmen are only allowed to enroll in classes offered by the College of Liberal Arts or the College of Engineering."

Rinderspacher partially attributed the low number of open class spaces to a lack of funding and said it was hard to find qualified professors in order to open more sections of GER classes.

"We don't want to sacrifice the quality of our professors for a larger quantity of class sections," Rinderspacher said.

Barron feels that this year, as in past years, students will adjust to their schedules after the add/drop period is over this coming fall.

Election

She said new 1990 state standards for school districts, especially all-day kindergarten and elementary counseling programs, are other areas of concern to the board.

"We have to work with this new system the state is mandating," Cannon said. "But we also want to keep our schools doing what this community wants."

Alan Leff — a partner at the Iowa City law firm Leff, Leff, Leff, Hauptert, and Traw — said his 25 years of law experience and three children who graduated from Iowa City schools qualify him to serve on the board.

Leff said financial priorities and employee relations are areas where the board could improve its performance.

"I think they have to strive very hard to give full disclosure in a way that is easier to understand by others," Leff said.

Leff said he was ineligible to run for the school board in previous years because his wife, Janet, teaches at Iowa City West High — but a rule change made last year allows school district employee family members to sit on the board.

Biaggi

victim, but the committee put off action until he could defend himself.

House Ethics Committee spokesman John Davison said Thursday he could not comment on the new conviction or its possible effect on the committee's schedule, although he noted that the committee was to meet Tuesday on pending business.

U.S. Attorney Rudolph Giuliani, whose office prosecuted the case, called on Congress to expel Biaggi. "I would suggest maybe it's time they acted," he said. "This congressman has been convicted of numerous federal felonies."

Biaggi was convicted of extorting $50,000 in cash and stock once worth more than $3 million from Westech in exchange for his political clout. He also was convicted of filing false financial disclosure statements and income tax returns to cover up his illegal profits.

After the younger Biaggi was cleared of the racketeering counts, he walked across the courtroom and hugged and kissed his father.

A seventh defendant, Ronald Betso, 40, of Brooklyn, a former city police officer, was acquitted on all counts.

U.S. District Judge Constance Baker Motley scheduled sentencing for Nov. 18. All six of the convicted defendants remained free on bail.

Prosecutors also sought forfeiture of ill-gotten gains by the defendants convicted of racketeering. After huddling with defense lawyers, they agreed that Biaggi and Ehrlich would have to pay $350,000 each; Simon $25,000 and Mariotta, who was convicted of numerous tax evasion and bribery charges, $11.7 million. Neglia did not have to forfeit any money.

Originally, the jury found Richard Biaggi guilty of racketeering and conspiracy.

The trial, which began March 11, generated nearly 20,000 pages of transcript.

Insight gained

"Predictably surprising" best describes the results of the Navy's investigation concerning the downing of an Iranian jetliner last month. You may say this description is an obvious contradiction in terms.

So, too, is the term "military intelligence."

The report cites stress, inexperience and general human error exhibited by crew and captain as factors causing the Airbus to be mistakenly destroyed. The results of the Navy's inquiry into exactly why the Iranian jetliner was destroyed can only be interpreted as "predictable." Predictable in the sense that the U.S. military relies so heavily upon highly advanced weaponry that counterproductivity is the natural consequent of the armed forces' inability to correctly use this technology. Extending the benefit of the doubt, the report was "surprising" because it illuminated the falsity of the administration's initial statements on the matter.

The highly touted Aegis defense system that the Navy and its bumbling defense contractors continually defend and praise, is virtually worthless when placed in the hands of our so-called "competent" armed forces. The Aegis radar system has failed three of four operational tests that have sought to determine its relative worth to the Navy. The relative worth is now obvious.

In 1983, off the coast of Beirut, the sophisticated radar system failed to spot a plane the size of a jetfighter quickly approaching a Navy destroyer. Later, in a confrontation against Libyan armed forces, the Aegis reported the successful sinking of a small fighter boat that had engaged the ship. The hostile boat turned out to be a friendly cloud. The downed Iranian jetliner, with its 290 passengers, represents the most recent and tragic victim of the sophisticated Aegis system and the men who misuse it.

Ironic, indeed, are the expedience of and the extent to which the Pentagon, President Reagan and the general public, so hastily blamed the downing of the Airbus on the Iranians. In reality, initial reports stating that the plane was descending, had strayed from its designated air corridor and was emitting military radar signals, all proved to be false. (Conrived is probably a more accurate assessment).

Many substantial inferences can be made from the results of the Navy's inquiry into this war action. Firstly, the equipment which is extremely expensive, allegedly a necessity, and the most modern available, simply does not work in but 25 percent of the simulated combat conditions it has been subjected to. Even less reliable is the equipment in actual combat conditions.

It is also painfully obvious that the men who operate the Aegis, make crucial decisions based on the inconsistent information it gives, and who are ultimately responsible for acts such as this inexcusable blunder, are either too inexperienced, stressed-out or incompetent to make the proper decisions when they are required.

A great loss

Tuesday the world of letters suffered the great loss of Raymond Carver, who at 50 years of age succumbed to lung cancer at his home in Port Angeles, Wash.

The author of 10 books of poetry and prose, a former UI Writers' Workshop instructor and two-time nominee for the National Book Award, Carver was a self-described "paid-in-full member of the working poor," a chronicler of struggling men and women on a bleak American landscape. His prose style — dense, edgy and spare — evoked the emotional lives of his characters and spawned a generation of imitators.

Despite his enormous stature as a writer, Carver's life was as difficult as it was brief. Born the son of a sawmill worker and a waitress in rural Washington state, Carver was married straight out of high school and supported his young family at various times by working as a janitor, farm worker and delivery boy. He graduated from Humboldt State College in northern California in 1963 and studied for a year at the Iowa Writers' Workshop, though he left before finishing his degree.

It wasn't until his story, "Will You Please Be Quiet Please?", was anthologized in The Best Short Stories of 1967 that Carver received the recognition that allowed him to pursue writing full-time. And with that recognition came the stresses that led to alcoholism, divorce, failing health and, paradoxically, his greatest achievements as a writer.

The last year of Carver's life encapsulated the success and hardship of his career. His volume of new and collected stories, Where I'm Calling From, met with widespread critical praise, and he was inducted into the American Academy of Arts and Letters. In June he married Tess Gallagher, the poet with whom he'd been living since 1977.

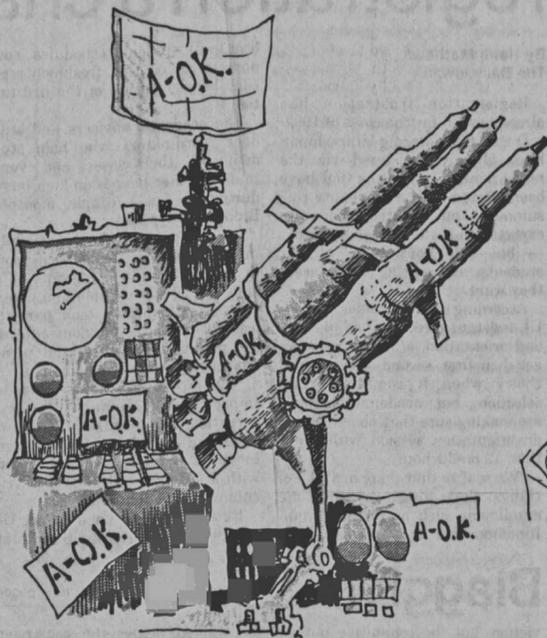

He was also battling illness. Shortly after completing the story "Errand" — ironically, about the death of Anton Chekov from tuberculosis — Carver was diagnosed with lung cancer. He kept his condition from the public eye, working assiduously to complete a collection of poems. That volume, A New Path To the Waterfall, will be published posthumously.

When a writer dies young the world is poorer for it. We are left to wonder about the volume of work that his untimely death has denied us, and our loss is irretrievable.

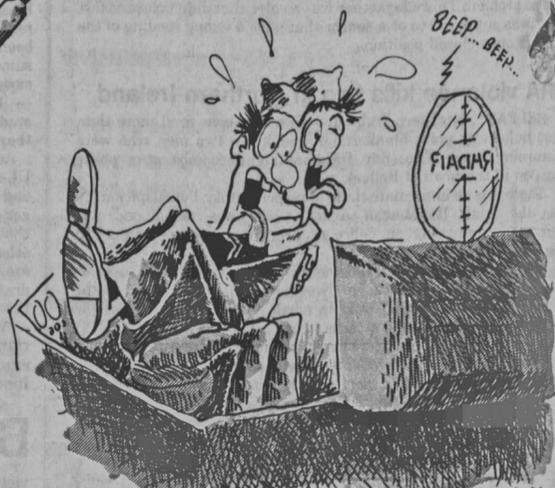

In this, Ray Carver is no exception. He changed the way writers write, and showed readers things they could not have seen in any other way. He improved the world, and without him it will be a little bit worse.

What a sense of humor, Ronnie

The heat must be doing something to people.

First of all, President Ronald Reagan referred to Michael Dukakis as "an invalid" but then said he was only kidding, that "I was trying to be funny, and it didn't work." Invalid, har, har, har. Nothing cracks me up like an invalid. Yeah, and I get a good bellylaugh out of cripples, too. I chuckle just thinking about cripples — poor pathetic cripples — poor pathetic, maimed, crumpled-up cripples, reduced to scuttling crab-like from place to place for the rest of their lives while racked by chronic pain. Of course, this goes a long way toward explaining my feelings about Reagan himself who has a bum knee, wears a hearing aid and seems to be experiencing progressive memory loss. Giggle giggle, tee hee. It also explains his rejection of most of the recommendations of his own commission on AIDS and instead maintaining his administration's inadequate AIDS measures. Hey, invalids gotta come from somewhere, and you can't really depend on traffic accidents or household mishaps to provide Ronnie with sufficient material for bon mots.

Michael Humes

Even the weather prognosticators are not immune from the current climatic savagery. They keep saying something about temperatures in the low 90s. As any clear thinking person knows, there ARE no low 90s; they are, by their very nature, high. I mean, when you hear one of the poor devils say "... and temperatures will be in the low 90s" on the radio, nobody thinks, "Whoa, low 90s, glad its not gonna be real hot. Yeah, great weather for breaking up concrete. Better take along a sweater today just in case." Perhaps the current peculiar vogue for doing the weather their outside or from someone's yard has exposed them to too much sun and left them goofy. It's bad enough that they're all pathological liars, but now they've gone soft in the head as well. Tragic, just tragic.

And the horror has spread beyond weather dudes and our mummified chief executive. The wildly misnamed Democratic Party commissioned a poll that asked people if they would rather have Michael Dukakis or George Bush as a guide in the woods. Being crazy with the heat, those polled picked Dukakis. Weird. I mean, picture being lost in the woods: "Jesus Christ! I'm lost in the fucking woods! Shit! I'm going to die! I'll starve to death! I'll be eaten by raccoons! I'll die of thirst! I'll fall into a ravine in the dark and break every bone in my butt! If only the governor of an Eastern industrial, heavily urbanized state was here, he'd know what to do!" If I was lost in the woods, I'd prefer to have Bush along. He's bigger so if I had to eat his flesh to stay alive, he'd last longer than Dukakis would. These same addled people said they'd prefer Dukakis to Bush to be the first person to arrive at the scene of a traffic accident if they were trapped in the car. I'd prefer a paramedic or a fireman myself.

And while we're on the subject of our dangerously inbred vice president, he seems to be walking around with a baked brain, too. In the midst of a heat-induced delirium, he attempted to establish that he's just like everybody else by revealing that he likes fried pork rinds. That's "fried pork rinds, ladies and gentlemen, "FRIED ... PORK ... RINDS." Pig cartilage immersed in hot fat until it's saturated, and Boy George thinks that's a major yum. Probably washes it down with a hearty pint of non-dairy creamer, too. He may eat it served on golden platters by docile Negroes, but other than that, hey, George is one of us, especially if we have an eating disorder.

And, yes, the heat even got to me, and I did something really weird. That's the good news. Watch this space the first Friday of the fall semester, and you'll find out what it was. That will be the bad news.

Michael Humes' column appears every Friday on the Viewpoints page.

Jackson legacy brings hope to future

The Democratic convention is over and Jesse Jackson has packed his bags. Perhaps, if Michael Dukakis wins the presidency, Jesse will take a premier place in the administration — something far more effective than the vice presidency. Perhaps.

But those of us who had their dreams re-awakened by Jackson's voice of compassion and humanity are still feeling a little let down. The Rainbow Coalition is still out there, but its voice, or so it seems, was too quiet.

If statistics are to be believed, Jesse Jackson speaks more for the average American than any other candidate. There are more working mothers, farmers, day laborers and teachers fighting for a decent wage than there are comfortable, upper-class American citizens. This is not to say that Michael Dukakis does not reach out to the average American citizen, but Jesse Jackson's compassion, his ideas for America and the world, are more sweeping, more encompassing, and, I think, more humane.

Jesse Jackson voiced answers to pressing global questions. The questions are those that many Americans don't like to think about. Many times, the answers to these questions frighten us. Jackson's idea of an arms build-up freeze scares those of us who believe that having a basement full of supplies protects us from having the roof blown from over our heads. We are afraid of new ideas. We are afraid of those issues that bring us together not only as a nation of widely diverse people, but as a world of people who need to save each other in order to save ourselves.

It is easy to get discouraged over Jesse's defeat. He is black. He lost. He had new ideas. He lost. He took his message to the average American. The average American was afraid of his new ideas, of his blackness and of his compassion.

Yet, as discouraged as one may be, I think there is cause for hope. Jesse Jackson came very close to winning the Democratic presidential nomination. He showed millions of Americans that his blackness did not determine the quality of his mind — or anyone else's mind, for that matter. He is erudite, quick thinking, innovative, and intense. I like to think that Jackson laid the groundwork for many non-traditional and minority presidents in the future.

Maybe we will be lucky enough to have Jesse Jackson himself in the future. Or, maybe, sometime in the future, there will be another voice out there, reaching out to people of all races, all economic levels, reaching for a more global commitment to humanity. And maybe, because Jesse was there first, we will stop to listen, and also to act.

This article was written by T. Gullickson for The Daily Iowan.

Letters

Police state

To the Editor:

I am writing in response to the punishment of seven University of Iowa students for their participation in a legal on-campus protest. I recently transferred to Iowa from a relatively calm Midwestern university where I never even dreamed of the repression of First Amendment rights as I am beginning to see here.

Recently, the FBI arrested protesters in Washington, D.C., for hanging posters that read, "Meese Is A Pig." This type of action reminds me of a fourth-grade bully who beats up anyone who calls him a name. This action has been taken to court on the grounds of First Amendment violations. Is the UI administration going to begin mimicking the oppressive policies of the Reagan administration just because someone expresses his or her viewpoint?

I do indeed agree with Patrick McNamara's comment that it is no longer a question of whether you side with the CIA, but whether students' First Amendment rights are being abridged by the UI. Certainly they are when students are being punished for protesting recruitment for an agency known for deceit, murder and espionage. Is it too much to ask that our government give us the freedoms guaranteed by our constitution?

I think that we need to re-evaluate our priorities! We need to take a stand and exercise our First Amendment rights. Don't take these freedoms for granted, because they may never be available again if we let them be taken wrongly by those in authority.

Doing our part

To the Editor:

This article regards the article on efforts by animal protectionists and environmentalists to eliminate the use of plastic rings for six-pack containers, (The Daily Iowan, July 27). This legislation, (Bill HR5117) addresses the hazards of plastics pollution. It is proposed primarily because of the threat these devices pose to sea birds and marine animals, who become trapped in them or mistake them for food. It has the support of many biologists and its sponsor is Gerry Studds, D-Mass., chairperson of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries subcommittee on fisheries and wildlife conservation.

Even though this legislation would most greatly benefit marine animals, as they are most likely to be affected, the problems of entrapment and suffocation from these devices exist throughout our environment. We can do our part to alleviate the six-pack container problem in two ways. Firstly, we can write our congressional representatives and encourage them to support this legislation. And secondly, we can simply take a scissors and clip our containers before properly discarding them.

Bush makes stabs at Dukakis

By The Associated Press

Vice President George Bush and his GOP allies painted Democrat Michael Dukakis as weak on military and foreign policy Thursday while Dukakis campaigned in the South, seeking votes where President Ronald Reagan won in 1980 and 1984 and where Jesse Jackson did well in this year's Democratic primaries.

Proinent Democrats and Dukakis' supporters, meantime, suggested that his political motivations were behind the rumor that Dukakis had been treated for mental problems — a rumor both Dukakis and the doctor denied.

And the Bush campaign received its strongest "No, thank you" yet from a man frequently mentioned as a prospective running mate, California Gov. George Deukmejian.

Bush, in Corpus Christi, Texas, told a group of Hispanic veterans that Dukakis' positions were "a rejection of America's role as a world leader and a repudiation of the Truman doctrine and the vision of John Kennedy."

Dukakis' opposition to new nuclear weapons such as the MX missile were part of a policy for "unilateral disarmament," Bush told the GI Forum.

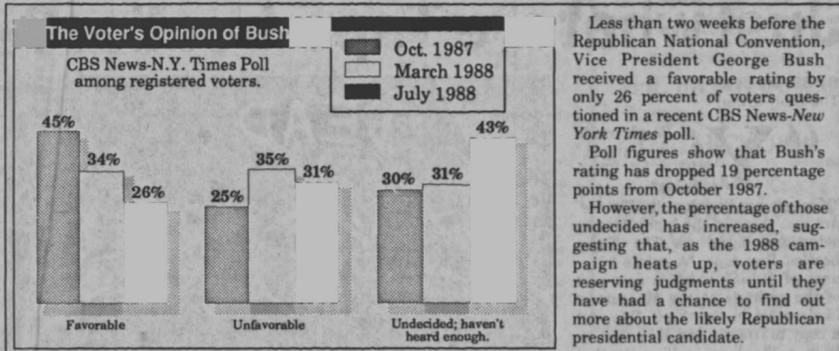

President Ronald Reagan lent Bush a helping hand earlier this week by vetoing a defense bill passed by the Democrat-controlled Congress. Although the bill provided an agreed-upon $299.5 billion for the Pentagon, Reagan said it was too restrictive, especially on his "Star Wars" missile defense program.

Republicans in the Senate on Thursday were pushing for more money for arms to the Contras, at least in part to embarrass Dukakis. The Massachusetts governor's running mate, Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Texas, disagrees with Dukakis on that issue and usually supports Contra aid.

Between swipes at Dukakis, Bush is looking for a running mate, but it looked as if it won't be Deukmejian, who, as governor of California, might help Bush in the state with the most electoral votes.

"I am honored and very grateful for your consideration, but I must tell you that I cannot be considered for the office of vice president," Deukmejian said in a letter to Bush, released by Deukmejian's press secretary in Sacramento.

Less than two weeks before the Republican National Convention, Vice President George Bush received a favorable rating by only 26 percent of voters questioned in a recent CBS News-New York Times poll.

Poll figures show that Bush's rating has dropped 19 percentage points from October 1987.

However, the percentage of those undecided has increased, suggesting that, as the 1988 campaign heats up, voters are reserving judgments until they have had a chance to find out more about the likely Republican presidential candidate.

Just what are Tape-beatles?

By Bill Stuelke
The Daily Iowan

"You People are in Great Danger," "Play by Their Rules" and "Microphone Burning in Flames" are just three of the many bizarre selections found on The Tape-beatles' first tape, "A subtle buoyancy of pulse," which is now part of the archives at the Museum of Modern Art in New York. "We sent a copy to (them), and they sent us back a thank-you telling us that they really appreciate our assisting them in documenting the art of our time," said Tape-beatle Lloyd Dunn.

The Tape-beatles is a local group of artists which use sounds as their medium. "Anyone that's brilliant is a really hard person to get along with, and I think that goes for me," said Tape-beatle and art student John Heck. "Unless their brilliant at being nice," said Dunn who has an MFA in photography and video and has studied music with Kenneth Gaburo. Paul Neff, the remaining living Tape-beatle, is a member of the "Iowa Beef Experience" and works in the Union Bookstore.

The Tape-beatles uses home stereo equipment to record its pieces. It makes and uses sounds in many different ways. "We try to generate sounds with whatever will generate sounds. I have a MacIntosh that we sometimes use to make sounds with, and if all else fails we just hook up a microphone and go out and record something that makes a sound like a coffee percolator or a microphone burning in flames," said Dunn.

JOHN: "Some of us can't play instruments."

LLOYD: "Yeah, I don't know which end of a guitar to blow into."

JOHN: "It's documentary in a lot of ways. We segment things, take them out of their original context and replace them."

LLOYD: "Whenever we do these rearrangements we try to make a point with it."

PAUL: "We'd like to move away from audio art into something more suggestive of music — towards the realm of concrete music."

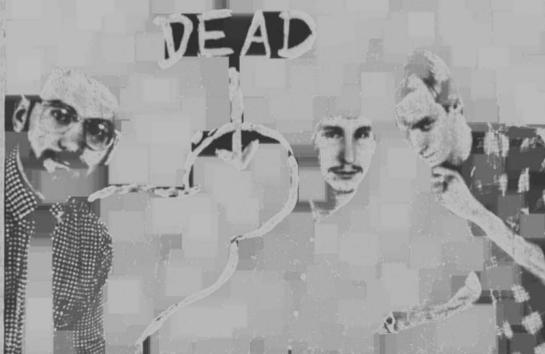

BILL: "Why does the Tape-beatles do all this?"

LLOYD: "To draw attention to ourselves."

The Tape-beatles began in the fall of '86 and consisted of Dunn, Heck, Ralph Johnson and Chuck Hollaster. Hollaster moved away, Neff joined later and it's rumored that Johnson is dead. "What the Beatles were to rock 'n' roll, we are to tape. And of course that's an absurd proposition. We want people to sense the absurdity of it," said Dunn.

The group is working with a concept called "situationism" in its tape.

LLOYD: "Situationism" is something that looks at the power of images. It says there are basically two kinds of power in the world:

the power of capital and the power of images. Corporate capital has taken great pains to not only control material in the world but also to control the way that material is perceived. For example, McDonald's advertisements don't tell you anything about hamburgers, they tell you about feeling good. And they're hoping that by associating feeling good with the name McDonald's, you'll buy their hamburgers, and it works.

"Corporate capital's ultimate mission is to dominate human awareness with the point being — by dominating awareness, you can also dominate material, and dominating material is power. The Tape-beatles are interested in trying to prick a pin in that idea. We're trying to point to the notion that our awareness is being dominated. The issue after a point becomes not whether to follow the Campus Review or to follow New Wave. (It) becomes whether to follow at all, or to be completely autonomous."

JOHN: "We're struggling to understand how the images are circulated and how people are manipulated, and we don't understand it completely. At the same time we're trying to analyze it, take it apart and figure out how it works so we won't be powerless. Our function is to help the people around us and anybody that we can reach sort of learn along with us."

LLOYD: "We're empowering ourselves with aesthetic effects. We're making the claim that these aesthetic effects that we're using in our art have the power over attitudes. We're saying that if we usurp this power, then anyone can usurp it and therefore become an autonomous being (having) an awareness not dominated by material or corporate concern. Our system of living creates so many little concerns for us that we're so busy dealing with all (of them) like paying the rent and paying utilities and making sure we don't run out of bathroom tissue and making sure that we get the movies that we rented from the video store back on time, that we don't really think about life itself. 'Give me convenience or give me death!'"

The group relies heavily on its brand of plagiarism or Plagiarism. Whereas the Biden brand of plagiarism has to be covert to be successful, Plagiarism has to be overt — it calls attention to itself.

LLOYD: "We're not just using it as an artistic effect, we're doing it as a political move. What informs Plagiarism makes it different from mere appropriation. Situationism suggests that our lives have become (corporate) property. Plagiarism says that we're just taking back what really belonged to us all along anyway. It also questions the entire nature of originality. Is originality even interesting anymore? After a point people thrash around just trying to be original and they stop creating valid, interesting work."

PAUL: "The avante-garde has collapsed."

The Tape-beatles has even been plagiarized. Recently they received several bootleg tapes of "A subtle buoyancy of pulse," from Madison.

LLOYD: "We're real happy about it! The last thing we want is to become what we criticize."

JOHN: "What the Tape-beatles want the most is to hear back from people, to get feedback and to set up lines of communications."

The Tape-beatles' work can often be heard on KRUI's "Curious Music" with Russ Curry (Tuesdays 11 p.m. to 2 a.m.). The future may hold as much of an emphasis on performance as work in the studio.

JOHN: "The last year we've been thinking about performing live and actually integrating visuals with our sound pieces."

LLOYD: "We were invited to come to Madison by a band there called 'Semantics Could Vanish.' I said, 'Well, we don't play, we're a studio band,' and they said, 'Well, that's all right, come and play tapes!'"

BILL: "C'mon guys, what really happened to Ralph Johnson?"

PAUL: "Ralph died in a fiery auto accident on Highway 6 outside Iowa City and was found upon examination of the wreckage to be strangled by a Joseph Bueys T-shirt."

A sneak peak at 1989's big, hot summer flicks

By Locke Peterseim
The Daily Iowan

Even as we wave sayonara to the summer of '88, the ever-vigilant Daily Iowan Arts and Entertainment staff looks ahead to next year's coming attractions. Hot out of the Hollywood pre-production publicity mill comes word on the soon-to-be-big summer hits of '89!

"Elvis in Time" — Flying back from the 1973 Hawaiian show, Elvis (Michael J. Fox) private jet is sucked into an alien time warp, and the King is whisked forward to 1988, where he helps the career of a struggling young punk rocker (Pee-Wee Herman). Kenny Loggins provides the soundtrack music.

"Mayberry" — Brian DePalma's big screen adaptation of the classic television series. When Sheriff Andy Taylor (Chevy Chase) comes to town, he assembles a crack team of law enforcement officials, including his right-hand man Barney Fife (Bobcat Goldthwait), strong-arm Otis (Meat Loaf) and sharpshooter Goober (Kevin Costner). Early word from the set promises a stunning and bloody climactic shootout between the Mayberry P.D. and moonshiner Ernest T. Bass (a role for which Robert DeNiro reportedly lost 75 pounds).

"Big: The Orson Welles Story" — Emilio Estevez writes, produces, directs, choreographs, composes the soundtrack (with Kenny Loggins), creates the special make-up effects and plays all the roles in this cinematic biography following the boy wonder from Mercury Theatre to Paul Mason.

"Top Dancin'" — "Hot" is the word here! Tom Cruise and Patrick

Swayze are bartenders on a Navy aircraft carrier in the Persian Gulf. They occupy their time pouring drinks and giving dance lessons during the day, but when the carrier's entire crew is stricken with botulism, it's up to them to lead an airstrike against a Middle Eastern country. Kelly McGillis and Jennifer Grey co-star as female television reporters covering the action. Title song by Kenny Loggins.

"Those Silly Kennedy Boys!" — Sex! Drugs! Cars! Non-stop fun and adventure with Jack (Michael Anthony Hall), Bobby (Robert Downey, Jr.) and Teddy (John Cusack) as they rock and roll their way through national and world politics! Featuring Madonna as Marilyn, Ally Sheedy as Jackie and a soundtrack packed with all the classic rock hits of the '50s and '60s as well as new songs from U2!

"Buster" — George Lucas and Steven Spielberg team up once again to bring you a heart-warming, action-packed tale full of wonderfully fantastic fantasy and wonder! Eddie Murphy plays Buster, a naive aborigine prince from the Australian Outback who's life is turned hilariously topsy-turvy when he befriends a family of cute alien robots. Buster and his new pals take off for New York, where he becomes a street-savvy traffic cop and they get a title shot at the heavy-weight world champion (Sylvester Stallone). Rumors leaked from the tight-security sets say the alien robots will be completely animated cartoons with the voices of television's Cosby family. With an estimated budget near $247 million, this promises to be the best film ever!

Austin attempts comeback bid

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Tracy Austin, with her stereo blaring, arrived worry-free at the site of the Virginia Slims of San Diego women's tennis tournament and then did something she hadn't done in more than four years.

The former U.S. Open champion played a professional match. Austin, 25, paired with Robin White in a loss to the No. 1-seeded doubles team of Betsy Nagelsen and Dinky Van Rensberg, 7-6, 6-1, before a sellout crowd approaching 2,000 fans Wednesday.

Despite the score, though, the quality of play pleased Austin, who had been sidelined by recurring back and neck injuries since February 1984. The ailments first caused her to stop regular play on the women's tour during June of the previous year.

NCAA committee considers limiting field

INDIANAPOLIS, Kan. (AP) — Maintaining a 64-team bracket of not more than 30 automatic qualifiers and not less than 34 at-large teams through the 1998 championship has been recommended by the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Committee.

The NCAA Executive Committee placed a moratorium on the size of the tournament field through the 1990 championship in August 1984. The basketball committee, which met Sunday and Monday in Dallas, recommended extending the moratorium with added stipulations.

Big Eight delays moving tourney

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Big Eight has postponed until at least September a decision on moving its popular postseason basketball tournament from Kansas City.

Assistant commissioner Bill Hancock said the eight athletic directors discussed the controversy Wednesday in a conference call but opted to study the matter further.

"They decided to conduct a further study of plans to re-seat Kemper Arena if the tournament stays in Kansas City," Hancock said.

The tournament has become a huge success in the 17,000-seat Kemper Arena, site of this spring's NCAA Final Four. However, other Big Eight schools say their supporters deserve access to tickets that are now committed to Kansas City residents who year after year renew their order.

Drivers warm up for Marlboro 500

BROOKLYN, Mich. (AP) — Rick Mears and Al Unser led the way Thursday in the opening practice session for the Marlboro 500 Indy-car race Sunday at Michigan International Speedway.

Mears, the Indianapolis 500 winner, was quickest on the 2-mile, high-banked oval with a fast lap of 218.612 mph, with Unser, his Penske Racing teammate, next at 216.028.

The third Chevrolet-powered Penske PC17, driven by Danny Sullivan, was sixth at 212.534.

In between the Penske team cars were Mario Andretti at 215.892, two-time CART-PPG Indy-car series champion Bobby Rahal at 215.692, and current series point leader Al Unser Jr. at 214.816.

"Our car is very well balanced," Mears said. "The changes we made (early in the session) didn't make too much difference, but we just leaned on a little bit at the end."

Mears, who set the official track and all-time Indy-car qualifying record of 223.401 in July of 1986, said a hot sun beating on the track and temperatures in the mid-90s kept the speeds down, although his fast lap Thursday was considerably faster than the 215.530 that Michael Andretti won the pole with a year ago.

Angels in Anaheim. They hadn't swept an AL East club since the opening weekend of the 1987 season, when they took three games in Cleveland.

The Orioles' last sweep in Baltimore was a four-game series against the White Sox, July 24-27, 1986.

Schmidt, 4-3, who had not gone longer than four innings in 32 relief outings this season, was lifted for Doug Sisk after Joe Carter opened the seventh with a long flyout. He did not walk a batter, and did not allow an Indian past first base.

Two of Cleveland's three hits off Schmidt were infield singles by Ron Washington. Washington was 3-for-3 in the game.

Twins 2, Blue Jays 1

TORONTO — Allan Anderson pitched a four-hitter and Kirby Puckett hit his 15th home run Thursday as the Minnesota Twins beat the Toronto Blue Jays 2-1.

Minnesota was 29-52 on the road in 1987, winning the World Series with four victories in the Metrodome. The two Twins are 30-25 on the road this year.

Anderson, 9-7, did not walk or strike out a batter in winning for the fourth time in five decisions. He got 17 ground ball outs, including two double plays.

Mike Flanagan, 10-8, gave up six hits in 8 1/2 innings, striking out four and walking five.

Minnesota went ahead in the second when Gene Larkin singled.

Redskins fans?

When the local Fox affiliate showed a scrimmage between Redskins rookies and free agents and their New England Patriots counterparts, the Saturday telecast crushed the competition on ABC, CBS and NBC.

The next day, the station broadcast the scrimmage. And again, it drew more viewers than any of the live network sports events.

Duffy Dyer, the station's program director, wasn't sure the experiment would work in other NFL cities.

"I don't think there are many markets where this can be pulled off," he said.

According to Sports Inc. magazine, the USOC is negotiating a deal with Jefferson-Pilot Teleproductions to package two multi-sport events next year.

The USOC would allow the events to use official Olympic symbols. In exchange, the committee would get needed publicity and revenue for amateur athletics in a non-Olympic year.

John Krinsky, the USOC's marketing executive, said he expects the deal to be approved by the governing bodies of track and field, gymnastics, boxing, swimming, cycling, volleyball and figure skating.

ABC, NBC and CBS have expressed interest in the events.

"If they deliver gold medalists in track, boxing and gymnastics, then you'd have to be interested," Jon Miller, vice president of programming at NBC, said.

Leonard

"I'm not doing it for the money," Leonard said. There will be plenty of that.

Trainer said Leonard will make his big paycheck. He made $12 million when he beat Thomas Hearns for the undisputed welterweight title in 1981 and just under $12 million for his victory over Hagler.

Lalonde, 28, a native of Kitchener, Ontario, who now lives at North Haven, Conn., will live up to his nickname of Golden Boy — at least at the bank.

There's no question he will break the record purse of $1.75 million for a light-heavyweight title fight set by Michael Spinks when he outpointed Dwight Muhammad Qawi for the undisputed 175-pound title in 1983.

The fight will be shown on pay-per-view and closed-circuit television.

The contracts were signed just minutes before the news conference at which Trainer said both fighters will be working on percentages. He would not reveal them.

Asked what his percentage would be, Leonard replied, "May I be very open and blunt — none of your damned business."

Asked the same question, Lalonde said, "It's more than enough for me. I can't count that high."

His biggest previous purse reportedly was between $300,000 and $400,000 for his fifth-round knockout of Leslie Stewart last May 29 at Trinidad in the first defense of the light-heavyweight title he won on a second-round knockout of Eddie Davis Nov. 27, 1987 at Trinidad.

49ers owner DeBartolo warns holdouts of possible lawsuit

As the first full week of the NFL's exhibition season approaches, talk is starting to get tough between holdouts and their teams.

Eddie DeBartolo Jr., owner of the San Francisco 49ers, said Thursday that he is considering a lawsuit against starting cornerbacks Tim McKyer and Don Griffin, who said Wednesday they were "retiring" to avoid the $1,000-a-day fines that would be leveled against them for holding out.

Meanwhile, Charles Tucker, agent for All-Pro linebacker Carl Banks, said Banks is willing to sit out the season if the New York Giants don't meet his demands for $1 million a year. But he said Banks would rather be traded if the Giants don't meet his asking price.

And Dan Bakst, the agent for Miami receiver Mark Duper, said he wants the Dolphins to release his client unless they meet his demands for a four-year, $3.1 million deal.

"We've asked them to let him go somewhere else," Bakst said. "They said they have too much money invested in him and they can't do that."

"We're not going to take it anymore," DeBartolo said of McKyer and Griffin, who are staging a joint holdout.

The two are covered by a contract the team agreed to re-negotiate after they became starters in their rookie season, 1986. Both have been offered more than $225,000 per season in a three-year deal.

"We will either get this issue resolved or we will take legal action. We are prepared to sue them and end their careers," DeBartolo said. "If we are not going to get them, then we are prepared to play hardball. We will tie them up in court until they are 40 years old. I am very serious. We just have to take a stand."

The Banks squabble revolves around the salary of the Giants' other All-Pro linebacker, Lawrence Taylor, who will make $1 million this year. The Giants are believed to want to keep Banks below the 1986 NFL Most Valuable Player.

"He is financially prepared to sit out the season," Tucker said.

In Miami, Bakst said Dolphins' owner Joe Robbie offered $2.55 million to Duper, just slightly more than the initial offer three months ago. "Mr. Robbie will not go off of where he is," Bakst said. "There is no negotiation."

MUSICAL QUARTERBACKS

Marc Wilson, who had five up-and-down seasons with the Los Angeles Raiders, was named Thursday as the starting quarterback for the Green Bay Packers' exhibition opener against the Giants Saturday night.

Wilson's successor with the Raiders will be Steve Beuerlein, the former Notre Dame who spent the 1987 NFL season on injured reserve. He will start in the Raiders' exhibition opener Saturday night at San Francisco.

Packers Coach Lindy Infante, who has six quarterbacks in camp, said Wilson will be succeeded by Randy Wright and Blair Kiel. Don Majkowski is out with a sore shoulder and Robbie Bosco and rookie Bud Keyes will sit out.

"The guy that starts this game is not necessarily our starter," Infante said. "The guy that comes in third is not necessarily the third guy and the guys that don't play are not necessarily not in the hunt to make the team."

Mike Shanahan, now coach of the Raiders, said Beuerlein will be split Saturday's game with Vince Evans, with 40-year-old Jim Plunkett starting next week against Dallas.

"We're doing it in alphabetical order," Shanahan said with a laugh.

San Diego Coach Al Saunders, meanwhile, announced that Mark Malone, obtained in a trade with Pittsburgh, will be the quarterback for the Chargers when they open their exhibition season Saturday night against Dallas.

Saunders said Mark Vlasic will play the third quarter and Babe Laufenberg will play the fourth quarter.

COMINGS AND GOINGS

Wide receiver Daryl Turner, who was sent back from Cleveland to Seattle after failing his physical with the Browns, was released Thursday by the Seahawks because of his congenital back problem. Turner, 26, caught 101 passes for 1,872 yards and 36 touchdowns in four seasons at Seattle. He led the NFL and set a club record with 13 TD catches in 1985.

Al Gross, a five-year NFL veteran who started 38 games at safety for the Cleveland Browns over the last four years, asked for and received his release Thursday. Gross said he was frustrated because he wasn't receiving much work in camp. "I'm 27 and I feel I'm in my prime," he said. "If the Browns don't want 100 percent of Al Gross' services, the best thing is for me to go somewhere where a team needs me. I don't think I should be short-changed in my career."

The Atlanta Falcons waived place-kicker Tim Foley and released rookie punter Ken Miller. Foley, a former Georgia Southern star, came to the Falcons June 8 as part of a trade with the San Francisco 49ers for a conditional 10th-round draft pick. That leaves Greg Davis and Pat Broussard competing for the job vacated when Mick Luckhurst retired.

The Falcons also announced that offensive tackle Greg Kukel, claimed off waivers from the Los Angeles Raiders Tuesday, left camp.

The Cincinnati Bengals released rookie punter Scott Cepicky of Wisconsin who doubled as a placekicker.

GOING

The Cincinnati Bengals say that fullback Bill Johnson, who stormed out of training camp the first day, is sidelined for the season even if he chooses to return. Johnson, who left because he thought he should have been given a higher priority among running backs, was placed on the "left camp reserved" list which makes him ineligible for the rest of this season but gives the Bengals his rights for next year.

Assistant General Manager Mike Brown said he hasn't heard from Johnson and added: "As far as I'm concerned, he's done for the year."

SITTING OUT

New Orleans Saints Coach Jim Mora said his team's leading rusher, Rueben Mayes, will sit out Sunday's preseason opener against the Minnesota Vikings. Mayes underwent off-season knee surgery and has been held out of some of the roughest work during preseason camp.

Further evidence of alcohol use discovered in diver's car accident

BRANDON, Fla. (AP) — Sheriff's deputies found eight empty beer containers in the car of Olympic diver Bruce Kimball, who reportedly told investigators he began drinking about nine hours before he lost control of the automobile and ran through a group of teen-agers.

Two people were killed and six were injured in the accident that, according to a scenario pieced together by the Tampa Tribune, capped a day that began with practice at the Brandon Tennis & Swim Center.

Kimball, charged with two counts of vehicular homicide, told investigators he had four beers before the accident Monday. The Tribune reported Thursday that the 1984 Olympic silver medalist and two companions started drinking in a bar around 2 p.m. and continued off and on until just before the 10:56 p.m. accident.

In between the trio's stop for a pitcher of beer at Happy Days bar and the crash that killed Kevin Gossic and Robbie Bedell, Kimball and divers Chuck Wade, 23, and Colleen "Cokey" Smith, 23, reportedly played pool at the bar, drank beer at two homes and purchased single beers at a convenience store a mile from the accident scene.

Investigators found seven beer cans and a bottle inside Kimball's Mazda RX-7, all empty. An unopened can of beer lay in the passenger seat, still cold, the newspaper said.

Sheriff's deputies estimate Kimball was traveling 70 to 90 mph down Culbreath Road, an unlighted dead-end road. Wade lives in the southernmost home on the street, and Kimball said he was planning to drop him off when he missed the turn at the driveway, clipped a parked car and plowed through a group of 30-40 teen-agers gathered at a meeting place called "The Spot."

While Kimball said he was driving 40 to 45 mph, investigators noted the car traveled 388 feet even with the brakes locked and the bent right front axle gouging the pavement along the way. Later, the former Michigan star asked how many people were killed. Told that two were dead, Kimball fell to his knees in tears, the Tribune reported.

After leaving Happy Days, investigators said Kimball and friends drove to the mobile home his father, Michigan diving coach Dick Kimball, is renting for the summer. The elder Kimball, a three-time Olympic coach, has run a summer diving camp in Brandon for more than 20 years.

Eugene D. Van Der Wall, a sheriff's traffic homicide investigator, said the diver acknowledged he and his companions drank more beer there, then went to the home of other friends. The investigator said Kimball and Wall denied drinking any more until around 10 p.m. when the three stopped at a convenience store on the way home.

Kimball, one of the nation's top performers in platform diving, is still eligible to compete in the Olympic Trials in Indianapolis Aug. 17-21. A spokesman at the Brandon Swim & Tennis Center said the diver has been secluded at the family trailer and would have nothing to say.

"He's really bad off," said Joe Greenwell, assistant diving coach at the center where Kimball's father operates his summer camp. "He's not taking it very well. He's going to need a lot of help."

"Right now, his father is the only person he can talk to. His father said he's been hyperventilating, blacking out," Greenwell added. "Bruce can hardly control his own behavior. He can hardly take care of himself. He might not even dive again."

Kimball was given a blood-alcohol test after the accident, but authorities were still awaiting results.

Three players tied for lead in Bradley tourney

HIGH POINT, N.C. (AP) — Amy Benz, Kim Bauer and Janet Anderson each recorded seven birdies Thursday and tied for the early lead in the first round of the $400,000 Pat Bradley International golf tournament.

Under the Stableford scoring system, each golfer recorded 19 points. The system awards five points for an eagle, three for a birdie and zero for a par, and subtracts one point for a bogey and three for a double bogey or worse.

While Bauer and Anderson were steady on both the front and back nine of the par-72, 6,260-yard Willow Creek Golf Club course, Benz took the early lead with a hot putter.

Fighting through some occasional rain that slowed the greens, Benz sank five 15-foot putts on the front side. She also hit a 4-iron to within four feet of No. 9 for another birdie.

Both of her bogeys came after bunker shots on the back nine, including No. 18.

Unlike Benz, who is 23rd on the LPGA money list this season, the injury-riddled Bauer and Anderson have struggled. But they said the new scoring system enabled them to be more aggressive.

Bauer had three birdies on the front side and four on the back, while Anderson reversed that with four birdies on the front and three on the back side.

All three of the leaders recorded birdies on the par-5, 510-yard No. 13 hole.

Hall of Famer Kathy Whitworth had five birdies and no bogeys for 15 points.

Several of the more established players in the 144-golfer field were late starters, including Pat Bradley, for whom the tournament is named, leading money winner Sherri Turner and Nancy Lopez.

The 72 players who make the first-round cut will start Friday's second round with zero points.

"It was weird not thinking score out there," said Benz, who split the first-day first- and second-place prize money of $6,000 with Bauer and Anderson. "It was weird thinking points. People are playing more aggressively."

"I think the format has brought back my aggressiveness," said Bauer.

Simpson fires 68 at Colonial

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Tim Simpson shot a consistent round of 4-under-par 68 Thursday to claim the lead midway through the opening round of the $270,000 St. Jude Classic.

Simpson, who finished in a tie for second place on the par-72, 7,282-yard Colonial Country Club course in 1985, had matching nines of 34 during his bogey-free round.

The former University of Georgia golfer, who started on the back nine, had birdie fours on both the 16th and 18th holes to make the turn at 2-under.

Simpson sank a 30-foot putt for birdie on No. 2 to go 3-under, then birdied the par-4 sixth hole after playing a 7-iron to within inches of the hole.

Defending St. Jude and current U.S. Open champion Curtis Strange is among a logjam of six players who finished their morning round at 3-under 69.

Only a bogey 5 on the par-4, 447-yard 14th hole kept Strange from sharing the lead with Simpson.

Also sitting one shot off Simpson's lead are Mike Sullivan, Robert Wrenn, Fulton Allem, Tommy Armour and Lennie Clements.

David Orgin caused a stir among the early leaders when he finished the front nine with a 5-under 31.

Series sent to China

NBC's World Series coverage will be beamed from Baltimore to Beijing this year.

The network announced Wednesday that the Series will be shown in China for the first time. The play-by-play and commentary by Vin Scully and Joe Garagiola will be dubbed into Mandarin Chinese.

The games will be shown on a delayed basis in Beijing, Shanghai, Guangzhou and Fujian. NBC estimates that from 60 million to 80 million of the 1.1 billion people in China will watch the telecasts.

Baseball has been popular in the Far East for many years, particularly in Japan and Taiwan. It will be a demonstration sport in the Summer Olympics at Seoul, South Korea, and a medal sport in the 1992 Games at Barcelona, Spain.

The World Series is now shown in about 45 countries as well as American military bases throughout the world.

"Baseball is becoming an international sport," Bryan Burns, head of broadcasting for the major leagues, said. "We're getting more and more inquiries from other countries. I think you'll see us expanding our international operations in the next few years."

"Monday Night Baseball" will become "Thursday Night Baseball" next season.

ABC is switching days in an attempt to cut losses during the last year of its six-year, $575 million baseball contract.

"It makes sense from an overall network standpoint," Bob Iger, vice president of programming for ABC Sports, said.

"Mondays will be stronger for the network for entertainment ratings and financially, while we think there will be minimal erosion for baseball ratings against NBC's Thursday night lineup."

Because baseball is such a money loser on ABC, the network did only eight regular-season telecasts this season even though it was entitled to 20.

ABC may drop baseball altogether after 1989 unless it gets a better financial deal. NBC's baseball contract also expires after next season, but the network is expected to continue its Saturday afternoon telecasts.

Schiraldi, Cubs limp past New York, 4-

NEW YORK (AP) — Calvin Schiraldi won his third straight start but was forced from the game with a leg cramp in the seventh inning Thursday and the Chicago Cubs beat the New York Mets 4-3.

Damon Berryhill drove in two runs with a double. Schiraldi had an RBI single and Shawon Dunston tripled in the final run. Schiraldi suffered the cramp running the bases on Dunston's triple.

Schiraldi, 7-8, gave up five hits, striking out six and walking one in six innings. Frank DiPino got two outs for his fourth save.

Sid Fernandez, 6-9, gave up five hits in 6 2/3 innings, striking out 11 and walking two. He has struck out 10 or more in his last three games.

Cardinals 9, Phillies 2
ST. LOUIS — Jose Oquendo drove in a career-high four runs and Jose DeLeon allowed four hits in six innings.

DeLeon, 8-8, struck out five and walked one. He also singled in the second and fourth for two of the Cardinals' 12 hits.

Leonard will return to fight Lalonde

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former Sugar Ray Leonard, saying, "I never retire again," signed a contract Thursday for his third comeback fight in 54 months.

"This fight is kind of a continuation of my lifestyle," Leonard said at a news conference for his comeback title bout against Donnie Lalonde of Canada during the last week of October or first two weeks of November.

A site is not set, but Las Vegas, Nev., seems to be in the lead. There also have been expressions of interest from Japan, Chicago's Madison Square Garden in New York and Atlantic City, according to Mike Trainer, Leonard's attorney.

"I told you guys some time ago I was going to try to retire," Leonard, who announced retirement from professional boxing for the third time after becoming a triple champion by beating "Marvelous" Marvin Hagler for the WBC middleweight title April 6, 1987.

"I tried. It didn't work." At stake will be the WBC heavyweight championship held by Lalonde and the vacant WBC super middleweight title held by super middleweight title holder 168-pound limit, which is 14 pounds under the current heavyweight limit.

A victory would mean Leonard have won at least a piece of titles, something no fighter ever accomplished.

out in the first, an RBI single, the third and a two-run single. The Cardinals' five-run seventh inning was capped by a home run by Shane Rawley, 5-13, gave up two hits and four runs in four innings losing his seventh straight start, a career high.

Mike Schmidt hit the 1,000th extra-base hit of his career.
