ACT objects to state comparisons

According to figures released today, the average composite ACT score for a senior in Iowa was 22.1, marking the 21st year straight that Iowa students have scored above the nation's average. The national average composite score was 21.5.

"We don't release composite scores for a reason," said ACT spokesman J. Steven Swift. "Our goal is to provide a high-quality test for students that is not affected by the education system's teaching methods."

On the Scholastic Aptitude Test, the average ACT score for the nation was 23.8, while the average SAT score was 1100. The average ACT score for the nation was 21.5.

"We're not measuring educational outcomes," said Swift. "We're measuring what students are capable of doing."
AIDS seminar relates dangers to Iowa healthcare workers

By Keith Klein

Healthcare workers are concerned about patients running fever while awaiting autopsy, according to those who have had the HIV virus.

A seminar, "AIDS in Practice: The New Health Risks of Healthcare Workers," was designed for nurses and doctors who work at the University of Iowa Hospital and Clinics.

A panel of doctors studied a case of a patient who worked at a Long Island hospital who tested positive for the HIV virus while undergoing treatment for cancer. Five weeks after the patient died, the nurse who cared for the patient was diagnosed with AIDS.

One worker who contracted the virus was an orderly who was given gloves and eye protection to wear during the hospitalization of the needle-sickled patient. One worker who worked in the intensive care unit was not given any protection to wear during the hospitalization of the needle-sickled patient. One worker who worked in the intensive care unit was not given any protection to wear during the hospitalization of the needle-sickled patient.

Healthcare workers aren't always given the equipment needed to protect them.

Music, art added to ice cream

John Stearns (The Daily Iowan)

Each night, a select group of artists, performers, and musicians come together to compose and perform, and artists are invited to contribute to the event. John's favorite song of the evening was "Starry Eyed" by the Yeah Yeah Yeahs, performed by a group of four on stage. The performance was beautiful, and the songs were a mix of different genres. It was a great night of music and art.
Bush bloopers

Perhaps it's the long days on the campaign trail, perhaps it's having spent too much time around President Ronald Reagan. Perhaps it's just his natural banter which harks back too far. Whatever the reason, George Bush has just plain stumped. Whatever the reason, it's time for the president to get a handle on himself.

First of all the dates that he lives in—Sept. 7, 1988. Mr. President, this is America, not September. Forty-seven years ago this very day we were hit and hit hard at Pearl Harbor. And we went to war. In a Bush administration that sound would not be forgotten. However, the date would be.

George has made the pledge of allegiance into this year's fall campaign theme. Bush and his band of followers are going to sing along to the chorus of 'God Bless America.' They're going to sing the pledge of allegiance, which means "I pledge allegiance..." and the third verse, which means a deterioration in service. Ultimately, it could mean a property can make appropriate requests to our landlords to take action. The radon can be installed. Test kits would betray its presence. In the long-term, however, exposure can be dangerous. The radon danger is very unique when compared to other dangerous situations. Unlike smoking or alcohol abuse, radon exposure cannot be blamed on individual behavior. It is a natural and invisible phenomenon.

There are other ways, too. Mr. President, it's time for the president to get a handle on himself. It's time for the president to show some seriousness about the problem.

When people are living in fear of their homes, it's time for the president to do more than just talk. It's time for the president to show some seriousness about the problem.

BROADENING YOUR VOCABULARY

President Bush is often lauded by his friends and supporters for his knowledge of English. But in the past few years, his vocabulary has been called into question. The president's use of common and seemingly inappropriate words has led some to question his ability to communicate effectively.

President Bush's vocabulary is often criticized for its use of common and seemingly inappropriate words. His frequent use of phrases such as "real-world solutions" and "a better America" have been the subject of much debate.

UI protection agency receives criticism from area landlord

By Stephen Horan

The Daily Iowan

It's awhile since I've had a good laugh, and the people in the halls of this place have been doing a good job lately," said Donald S. Nagle, president of the UI Protection Association. "But the program has definitely changed." Nagle said that the program has become more efficient since its inception in 1970.

"The only problem is that some landlords are still discriminating against students," Nagle said. "We're taking steps to address this issue and will continue to monitor the program's effectiveness." Nagle added that the program is currently under review to ensure that it meets the needs of both landlords and students.

John could only smile, as he sat in the corner of the small room that had once served as his office. He was about to open a book, but he couldn't seem to concentrate. His mind was too preoccupied with the problem at hand.

"I'm not sure what to do," John said to himself. "But I know I need to find a solution. The school is counting on me, and I can't let them down." He looked up from his book and decided to take a walk. Maybe a change of scenery would help clear his mind.

Pope returns from African visit urging peace

By— Pope John Paul II returned home Monday from a 10-day visit to southern Africa, where he reportedly told South Africans to mend their ways and mend them fast.

John Paul’s 64-day foreign trip, which took him to five nations, was marred by a traffic accident in which the Pope, a deeply hurt blaster in Leeds, and a papal call for aid to the victims of Mozambique’s civil war.

In a state-of-the-art departure speech at Mozambique in Manzhou, the Pope declared the “unholy power of the negro in Africa” to be a “blemish” on the continent. He added that the “white minority” should not be allowed to advance at the expense of others.

But in a clear sign of the Pope’s determination to make peace in South Africa, he reminded the nation that “a just peace is possible if we are prepared to make the necessary sacrifices.”

The Pope’s return home was marked by an abortion. A farmer near Lusaka who had recently been arrested for drug offenses was released on bail.

The satellite’s successful launch was timed at 13:12 GMT and observed over the Mediterranea in a flash of orange light and a trail of smoke. The launch, which had not been publicly announced in Israel, drew applause from some observers.

“All in all, a very clean work!” said Yousef Katan, head of Israel’s space agency. The Horizon satellite will remain in orbit for about six months before it burns and detonates, Ya’ar and in Israel and in Norway.

The agreement is expected to increase textile and apparel exports to the United States, providing a boost to the Canadian textile and apparel industry. It is expected to have a significant impact on the Canadian textile and apparel industry.

The agreement was included in the government’s omnibus trade bill, which is expected to be debated in the Senate in late April.

The agreement has been signed by the governments of Canada and the United States and is awaiting ratification by the Senate. The Senate is expected to vote on the agreement in late April.

100,000 children lack shelter nightly in U.S.

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study by the Center for America's Children' which doesn't include those who are forced to live with their parents, the report says, indicates that 10% of American's children are homeless. The 100,000 in this number includes only children under 18 who are out of their parents' home. The report estimates that 700,000 children are homeless on any given night.

"The study is a call to action," said the center's executive director, Dr. Linda Zeeman. "It's a call for the federal government to step up and provide the necessary resources to address the needs of homeless children.

The report found that homeless children are at risk of falling behind in school, experiencing poor health outcomes, and facing other challenges that can impact their future success.

"We urge policymakers to take action to ensure that every child has a safe and stable home," Zeeman said.

The report calls for increased funding for programs that support homeless children and families, as well as improvements in data collection to better understand the scope of the problem.

"This report is a stark reminder of the importance of investing in our children and families," said Zeeman. "We urge leaders at all levels of government to take action to address this crisis.

The report was released as part of National Homeless Children's Awareness Month, which takes place in June.

U.S. track coach threatens to kick Lewis off 400 team

SEQUEL, South Korea (AP)—If Carl Lewis doesn’t get his gold medal at these Olympics, he may have only himself to blame.

U.S. sprint relay Coach Rose Barger believes he got behind the 400 relay team.

“If he continues to distract the team, I will have to take him off,” said Barger, when Lewis has dipped since 1979, when he was a star school student in Westfield, N.J., living with his mother, Rose Barger, in Newark.

The next biggest bond to turn the team, his go to, is no on team, Barger said. "He's the end of the team. The only thing he can do is hang around.”

That would obviously and Lewis’ quest to defend the four gold medals he won at the Los Angeles Games in 1984. The 100- and 200-metre sprinter, Gold, silver, bronze, in addition to the relay.

Barger said Lewis put him into that position with a poor attitude during practice.

“He doesn’t give 110 percent throughout,” Barger said. "It doesn’t affect me, because I’ve had him before, and he knows the contact, but the other guys don’t like it.”

One who was upset was Coach Ran Hunsaker.

He and Lewis got into a shouting match Sunday.

Old sports loyalties die hard

This argument to get comes from an essay by Joseph Levy. He was a student at Carver-Hawkeye Arena last year and has been a regular at Iowa college sports since he was eight years old. Levy notes that some of his friends here have moved on to other colleges, but he remains an Iowa Hawkeye fan at heart.

Levy also discusses his views on loyalty and how it has evolved over time. He notes that he and his friends have had to make difficult decisions about where to go to college, and that this has sometimes caused tension with their families and friends. However, he emphasizes that his loyalty to the Hawkeyes is something that he holds dear to his heart.

Levy's essay is a reflection on the importance of sports loyalties and how they can shape our lives. It is a reminder that even in a world where we have so many choices, it is important to hold on to the things that bring us joy and fulfillment.
