UI physicist Van Allen still opposes manned space flights

By Deborah Globe

Manned space flights are a waste of time and money, according to University of Iowa physicist Dr. James Van Allen.

Van Allen, who won a Nobel Prize in 1980 for his work in understanding space radiation, told the Iowa State University faculty in November that he opposes manned space flight.

Van Allen, who died in 1996, was a professor at the university from 1949 until 1992.

In 1958, Van Allen discovered a region around Earth where space radiation is intense enough to be dangerous to humans.

He warned that manned space flights could cause radiation sickness.

Van Allen’s research on space radiation has been crucial to the development of spacecraft design and the development of space radiation shielding.

His work has helped to protect astronauts and space travelers from the dangers of space radiation.

Van Allen’s research has also been used to develop new technologies for detecting and measuring space radiation.

His work has been widely cited and has been influential in the development of space exploration and the design of spacecraft.

Van Allen’s research has been recognized with many awards and honors, including the Nobel Prize in Physics.

Van Allen’s work continues to be important in the development of space exploration and the design of spacecraft.

His research has helped to ensure the safety of astronauts and space travelers, and has contributed to the advancement of space science and technology.

Nagle refuses debate rematch with Redfern

By John Bartelsman

A proposed Iowa City debate between candidates for the 3rd District Congress seat failed to materialize.

The debates, sponsored by the UI Alumni and Student Association, would pit U.S. Rep. Dave Nagle against Rep. Don Redfern. The candidates, who have previously debated at the state level, were scheduled for Monday afternoon, but Thursday the commission would not participate in the debate.

Barry Pietz, Nagle's press secretary, said a lack of cooperation from the Redfern campaign prior to the candidate's 3rd District retreat which begins Wednesday, will prevent a rematch.

"For a debate to happen you should have some level of cooperation, and they're not cooperating," Pietz said.

Nagle feels the people, especially of Johnson County, are being taken all opportunities to criticize Redfern's part. Nagle's handlers don't want this debate. The Nagle campaign said it was Nagle - and not Redfern - who held up the last debate. The Nagle campaign said they're not Redfern- who held up the last debate. The Nagle campaign said the last debate will not take part in the debate because Johnson County is not free to hear the candidates, and there was a lot of demand for a debate, and voters of Johnson County, we've heard from Johnson County, we're not going to it.

Nagle said that this debate will not take part in the debate because Johnson County is not free to hear the candidates, and there was a lot of demand for a debate, and voters of Johnson County, we've heard from Johnson County, we're not going to it.

"The settlement still stands, Don Redfern will not be able to join me at any debate in Iowa City," he said. "We'll probably get it too much out of an angry crowd so we were out of here with it.

Platt said another reason Nagle will not take part in the debate is the recent close of this year's congressional season.

"Butter has had months to campaign in the district, it's just not reasonable of Mr. Nagle to go on the campaign trail at this time. We need four hours as much time as we have because of the congressional season," he said.

Louie Buchanan said Mr. Smith said some form of debate will take place whatever or not Mr. Nagle participates.

"As a branch of student government, we're not going to let them off the hook. They won't do it. If they win, the debate campaign said they're not Redfern- who held up the last debate. We're not going to do it.

"I would certainly like Mr. Nagle to be there and I really do expect someone from his campaign will be somewhere because Johnson County is the second largest county in the state, and we want to make sure there will be an opportunity to hear the candidates.

Radio show polls UI on U.S. foreign policy

By Halil Marmarou

Reporters from Iowa City's new Latin American radio program "El Mundo Latino" are currently conducting a random opinion poll of the Iowa City community. The poll is focused on foreign policy issues, and the results will be announced on a Sunday morning radio show that begins at 9 a.m. on KRUI.

"We're trying to teach a broad cross-section of the student population in Central America," said Prasenjeet Kharkwal, the show's anchor. "I poll people all the time, but the program can only get the feedback with many foreign policy issues involved. The poll is a chance for us to let other students to know their viewpoint. I've been here for five years and there's never been a poll like this before that has great importance." The show's anchor also said that the poll started the beginning of this week and will run through Friday. The report will be on a Sunday morning radio show.

Protesters face arrest for D.C. demonstration

WASHINGTON, (AP) — Four protesters and an Iowa man were arrested Thursday when they looked a crowd outside the U.S. Capitol for a demonstration in favor of Wyoming. The four protesters were arrested near the Capitol steps when they had been handing out leaflets, entered a crosswalk on busy Capitol Hill, and passed cars from the carpool.

Bush receives labor endorsement at rally interrupted by protesters

By The Associated Press

George Bush, who published a letter calling for workers to take a "hard look" at the country's "morose" economic outlook, was interrupted by protesters May 14 at a rally in Los Angeles.

Racism still prevalent in Iowa City

Conference foes to get another shot at Hawks

By Bryce Miller

The Daily Iowan

Last Friday's field hockey team overturned the Michigan Wolverines, 3-1, and on Oct. 6, they won their third game in a row, 2-1 in East Lansing, Mich.

Asked why he didn't win the Olympics, the interpreter didn't even bother to translate the question. "He did not mean in our championships," he said.

It's the first time the Iowa women's field hockey team has ever won in Michigan. The Wolverines have always been considered the team to beat in the Big Ten Conference.

It was the first time the team has ever won after the first two contests, and it was the first time in 16 years that the team has ever won in Michigan.

Iowa will host the Wolverines again on Saturday, Oct. 6, at 7 p.m. in the University of Iowa Recreation Building.

Runners will host Big Ten Championships

No. 9 Iowa, 3 other ranked teams will compete for conference title

By Eric Wallent

The Daily Iowan

The ninth-ranked Iowa cross-country teams will run this weekend in the Big Ten Championships at Crosswinds Park in Bloomington, Ind.

This year's meet is at 10 a.m. on the Hawkeye's home course, with the men's race starting at 11:10 a.m.

"This is a very competitive meet," said Iowa head coach Tracy Winn.

Iowa will be the top ten finisher from last year's meet returning, with two more runners finishing in the top fifteen.

"It's a good opportunity to see where our team is," Winn said.

The meet begins at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 6, at Crosswinds Park.

Stewart's team braces for matches on road

By Anne Lounan

The Daily Iowan

With the second half of the volleyball season starting next month, Iowa's women's volleyball team will face a tough road ahead. Iowa will play the top teams in the Big Ten and other nationally-ranked teams from the Midwest at the University of Nebraska Omaha, 19-3, 15-2, 15-3, 15-11 on Saturday.

Iowa will face the Nebraska Cornhuskers on Saturday, Oct. 6, at 6 p.m. in Lincoln, Neb.

In the last meeting of the Hawkeyes against the Cornhuskers, the team lost 3-0. This year, the team is looking to get their first win against Nebraska.

The important thing to note is that the Hawkeyes are looking to improve their record and prove that they can compete with the top teams in the Big Ten.

"I think our team is really starting to come together," said Iowa head coach Terry Haskins.

Hawks ready for opener against Gophers Saturday

By Steve Reed
Iowa City Press-Citizen

Despairing of any legal resolution in its long-standing court battle with local officials, the University of Iowa announced Thursday that it won't participate in the 140th Iowa-Iowa State game on Saturday.

The school's decision came after Iowa Athletic Director Chuck Long, who had met earlier with state attorneys, said there was no chance of finding a legal resolution to the state's lawsuit that seeks to bar the university from playing football on its own stadium.

"We have no alternative but to cancel this game," Long said in a statement.

The Hawkeyes, who opened practice for the season last week, will begin the 140th Iowa game on Saturday at 10 a.m. at Kinnick Stadium.

Wendy Richman goes on the screen to tell us what we might not want to see. In a wonderful blend of the serious and the personal, she guides us as we Freud ourselves into seeing the film on her terms. If the film actually does hurt us, it is not in the sense of making us cry. It is in the sense of making us understand the reality of the events depicted in the film. And this is not something we should be afraid of. We should be afraid of not understanding the events.

The film's theme is so terrifyingly powerful that it threatens to overwhelm us. It is a film that makes us confront the reality of the events depicted. It is a film that makes us question our own beliefs and values. It is a film that makes us think about the impact of violence on society.

The film's message is that killing babies, targeting not the art-house crowd, but the noble, honest folk fighting to hold the line on the edge of the world, must be knocked down with distanced superiority on the harsh streets of life from time and time.

The film's strength is its ability to convey the reality of the events depicted. It is a film that makes us understand the impact of violence on society. It is a film that makes us think about the consequences of our actions. It is a film that makes us confront the reality of the events depicted.

The film's power is its ability to make us understand the reality of the events depicted. It is a film that makes us confront the reality of the events.
