Library funds increase for 1990-91

By Hilery Livengood
The Daily Iowan

Shortened hours and an incomplete library automation system should soon be things of the past at libraries across the UI campus, thanks to additional funds approved Saturday by the state Board of Regents.

The board unanimously approved UI operating budgets for fiscal years 1990 and 1991 that include funds for library automation, computing and opening new buildings — areas that the board had allotted little funding in initial budget recommendations.

At a special session in Iowa City, the regents approved a $164.9 million general university operating budget for the UI for the fiscal year 1990, a 10.8 percent increase from the 1989 budget. The UI had requested $182 million for the year.

Also approved was the fiscal year 1991 general university budget of $178.4 million, an 8.2 percent increase from the approved 1990 budget. The UI had requested $205.3 million.

"The real problem at the universities is the lack of funds," said

Board President Marvin Pomerantz. "They've just been holding things together by working in a survival mode."

"(The board) must aggressively seek out funds that will allow these institutions to meet their goals and achieve their aspirations," he said.

The regents met during the special session to approve the capital and operating budgets for the three regents universities.

The board was scheduled to approve the budgets during its October meeting in Dubuque, but postponed its vote after university officials urged the board to reconsider their requests.

"The special session helped us out," said Susan Phillips, UI vice president for finance and university services. "I was really concerned that we would not have a chance to respond to the board's recommendations and that our concerns would not be addressed."

"But this was definitely a worthwhile process as the regents responded with additional funds in all of the areas we identified in October as critical for university operations," she said.

Physicists demand UI recognition

By Kathleen Brill
The Daily Iowan

The UI may lose nearly $20 million in research grants because of a perceived lack of interest in science.

Several UI faculty members responsible for obtaining a $10.5 million NASA grant may move to another university within the next few years, says UI physicist Louis Frank.

Frank is part of a research group that is designing a camera that will be on board the Polar spacecraft, scheduled to launch in 1993.

Frank said the UI has not demonstrated enough interest in the group's activities to make this campus the best environment for their projects.

Dwight Nicholson, chairman of the UI Physics and Astronomy Department, laughed when he heard that Frank said the scientists may leave the UI, and then declined to comment on how the loss of these scientists would affect the department.

UI President Hunter Rawlings said he was unaware that the scientists were considering a move. He said the department's research is an important part of the UI. "We've had a great tradition of first-rate research in this area," Rawlings said.

The scientists are working on a camera that will photograph the northern lights and other components of Earth's atmosphere, including the ozone layer.

"If you add up all the research contracts in the College of Liberal Arts and you compare it with the contracts I have — I have a good fraction of it all," Frank said.

The UI won the grant over other universities who were competing nationally.

"It would be much easier to compete if you're at an institution that backs you," Frank said.

Other universities, including the University of Michigan, UCLA and an institution in Germany, also participate in and follow the project, Frank said.

"There's a lot of pressure on us to move this group to another university," he said.

Other universities have offered positions to Frank's research group. These universities are more interested in science and offer an improved research climate, Frank said.

"I don't worry about recognition, but just a better environment. I'd like to see somebody take some interest," Frank said.

This August the same group received an $8 million grant to design research equipment for a Japanese spacecraft. The grant was not publicized by the UI administration.

"That makes the engineers and all the people that work trying to establish this small center of excellence over here sort of distressed," Frank said.

"I think perhaps that the uni-

Harkin calls farm policy 'crazy'

By Matt Devine
The Daily Iowan

Vice President George Bush's agriculture policy should scare the dickens out of Iowa farmers, U.S. Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, said Friday.

Harkin was in Iowa City Friday campaigning for 3rd District Rep. Dave Nagle, who is running for re-election against Republican Don Redfern.

Harkin linked Bush with Reagan Administration farm policy that he said is misdirected. The 1985 Farm Bill mandated programs that control supply by taking land out of production. But Harkin said Republicans mismanaged the program by telling farmers to cut back acreage tilled to regulate supply, then rewarded them for overproduction.

"That's crazy," he said. "You've got one foot on the throttle, one foot on the brake. And so farmers pour on the fertilizer and they raise as much as they can, because the more you raise the more money you get. It's absolutely nuts."

A Dukakis farm program would advocate the present supply management system, backed by conservation practices and finding new uses for agricultural products, Harkin said.

Critics of the program say Dukakis has not stipulated how it would work, besides saying it would be different than legislation co-authored by Harkin and Missouri Rep. Richard Gephardt that would set mandatory production controls.

The Harkin-Gephardt bill would allow farmers to vote to impose production limits on themselves to tighten supply and drive up market prices. Opponents said the measure would limit free enter-

Campaigns surge forward in final days

By The Associated Press

Vice President George Bush and Gov. Michael Dukakis both laid claim Sunday to precious, last-minute momentum in their campaign marathon, the vice president confidently saying the tide was "moving in our direction" and his combative rival insisting he was "rocking and rolling" to an upset victory.

The national polls said it would take a Massachusetts Miracle for Dukakis to win on Tuesday. "There ain't no stopping us now unless we stop ourselves," said the vice president.

The political equivalent of a nuclear exchange occurred on television, where the Republicans and Democrats spent millions of dollars in advertising for the waning hours of the campaign. The two candidates bought time for 30-minute commercials on all three major networks for election eve on Monday.

Both candidates battled the clock and physical exhaustion in a final drive to snare undecided voters and nail down the presidency.

Gallup said Bush was ahead by 12 percentage points. CBS and ABC made it 10. An NBC News-Wall Street Journal poll and another by Harris reported a five-point edge for the vice president and said there was still plenty of room for last minute changes.

An Associated Press tabulation showed Bush leading for 356 elec-

ROCK ISLAND, Ill. — In a final round of heartland appearances before Election Day, Michael Dukakis stopped at the RIMCO Exhibition Center here Saturday to address a crowd dominated by farm-implement workers and UAW members.

Dukakis took off his jacket and rolled up his sleeves before addressing a cheering crowd of about 6,000 supporters.

"I like your spirit," he said. "It tells me one thing. We're going to win on Tuesday."

During a speech designed to procure votes from jobless union workers, Dukakis blasted Republican candidate George Bush for his failure to aid families in the Quad Cities area, which has been plagued by financial woes because of layoffs at major farm implement factories.

"Mr. Bush said he was on the side of working families," he said. "Who is he kidding? Where was he when they closed J.I. Case and Farmall?"

Dukakis said the vice president was in Washington at the time, working to create a tax-break policy to benefit the rich.

"He wants to make the rich in this country even richer," he said.

Dukakis received a huge round of applause for his proposal that 60 days notice be given before layoffs and for "a minimum wage that's a minimum wage and not a property wage."

Unusual criteria for scholarships may aid students

By Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

When comedian David Letterman donated scholarship money to his alma mater, he specifically stated grades would not be part of the selection process.

An incredible grade point average or catalog of past accomplishments, activities and philanthropic pursuits are not considered of utmost importance for some scholarships.

Scholarship guidelines often specify unique qualities based on the whim of the donor.

See related story..... Page 3A

The David Letterman Telecommunications Scholarship at Ball State University in Muncie, Ind., considers artistic accomplishment and creativity key qualifications, while others reward students for being right- or left-handed, not smoking or living in a certain area of the country.

John Gatling, the inventor of the Gatling Gun, established a fund for students with the surname Gatling or Gatlin at North Carolina State University — Raleigh.

Personal habits may also be criteria for scholarship selection. At Amherst College in Amherst, Mass., there is a loan fund to benefit those who don't drink, gamble or smoke.

Of course, non-traditional scholarships make up only a small percentage of the millions offered each year. A majority of scholarships provide students with financial assistance based on need, grades or major area of study. Others use nationality, religion and civic involvement as selection criteria.

The UI Office of Student Financial Aid provides a number of scholarships based on need and grade-point average.

The office also makes students aware of special scholarships. For instance, Muscatine High School graduates may receive a small award for attending the UI.

UI awards include scholarships for athletes, Iowa farm students, World War I veterans' descendants and theatre, dance, art or music majors.

Pete Sidwell, UI Assistant Director of Student Financial Aid, said students were given about 75 academic scholarships for the 1988-1989 academic year.

"We work here on need-based scholarships," he said. "Most of the non-need financial aid is awarded through the departments."

Funding for the different departments' scholarships often comes from community organizations, businesses and professional societies, he said.

Current scholarship information is available through the UI department.

CBS vice president will gift to journalism school

A bequest of $50,000 has been made to the UI Foundation from the estate of retired CBS-TV Vice President Theodore F. Koop to the UI School of Journalism and Mass Communications.

Koop, a 1928 graduate of the UI School of Journalism, died July 7. His bequest allows for flexible funding, and the gift will be used wherever the need is greatest.

"This gift from Ted typifies his attitude toward the school," said Kenneth Starck, professor and former journalism school director. "He was very appreciative of the education he received here and was generous with his praise of the school and the university."

Koop was born in Monticello, Iowa, in 1907. After receiving a bachelor's degree from the UI, he joined The Associated Press in Des Moines as a reporter. He eventually was transferred to the Washington, D.C., bureau where he served as an editor.

Later, Koop joined the National Geographic Society before serving in the U.S. Navy during World War II. In 1948 he was appointed director of news and public affairs with the Columbia Broadcasting System in Washington, D.C. He was promoted to vice president of CBS News Washington in 1961 and retired from that position in 1975. He also was a leading volunteer in the Washington, D.C., area for the UI Alumni Association and the UI Foundation.

"Ted was a pioneer in broadcast journalism," Starck said. "He's credited with hiring Walter Cronkite and conceived the program, 'Face the Nation.'"

City Council efforts attract aluminum can plant, jobs

By Heather Maher
The Daily Iowan

More than 100 area jobs will be created by a $10 million aluminum can company that plans to build a new plant in Iowa City soon.

The project is a joint venture between the Ohio-based Central States Can Company and California-based Siligan Container Corporation, which will combine resources to form the new can company.

The 100,000-square-foot plant will be located in the Iowa City Industrial Plant southeast of Iowa City on Highway 6 and will cost approximately $3 million to build. Nearly $7 million worth of equipment will produce aluminum cans and lids with an added feature never used before in the aluminum can manufacturing industry.

The cans and lids will be coated with a revolutionary water-based plating, called electrophoretic coating, which makes the aluminum more resistant to corrosion, said David Blietzard, spokesman for Central States Can Company.

The project got a welcome boost from the Iowa City Council Tuesday, when councilors approved two resolutions that will help with construction costs.

The resolutions authorize Iowa City to apply for an Iowa Community Economic Betterment Account forgivable loan in the amount of $300,000. They also permit the city to apply to the Iowa Department of Transportation Rail Assistance Program to help fund an $85,000 rail spur to the plant.

Although the companies have already signed a letter of intent with Iowa City, several factors remain to be addressed before the plans can be secured.

The board of directors at both companies must approve the move, a lease agreement must be negotiated, state and local financing must be finalized and environmental standards for sewage discharge must be approved.

But Iowa City manager Stephen

Atkins said he didn't expect too many problems with the details of the project.

Local efforts—including the measures taken at the Oct. 31 council meeting—such as a low-interest loan, competitive lease price and lower electric rates from Iowa-Illinois Gas and Electric Company, have already been approved to help make the plant's construction a certainty.

Blietzard said Iowa City was chosen for the plant site after an extensive search of potential locations. The close proximity to the food packer's market was a major reason in the decision to come to Iowa City, he said.

Iowa City Mayor John McDonald expressed excitement about the announcement, saying the plant and new jobs will be a "tremendous benefit" to the area.

Wertz named Iowa Professor of Year

By Cindy Hadish
Special to The Daily Iowan

Christopher A. Wertz has been named Iowa Professor of the Year by the Council for Advancement and Support of Education.

Wertz, a UI associate professor of Russian, was also named a bronze medalist in the nationwide 1988 CASE Professor of the Year program from a field of nearly 500 entries.

Wertz said the CASE award was especially important to him partly because students took part in the nomination process by writing letters on his behalf.

"I was very pleased and surprised to receive it," Wertz said. "It's important because of the student involvement and because teaching is a profession that doesn't often get the recognition it should."

The CASE award was based on Wertz's ability as a teacher, service to the UI and his profession, achievements in teaching and scholarship and the achievement of former students.

Ray Parrot, chair of the UI Russian Department, said Wertz has earned the respect of both students and colleagues during his career at the UI.

Parrot said Wertz's success as a teacher comes from his ability to communicate effectively with students.

"He is able to take difficult material and present it in a clear and interesting fashion," Parrot said. "Not everyone can do that."

Wertz was nominated for the CASE award by the UI Council on Teaching in recognition of Wertz's selection for one of only two UI Excellence in Teaching Awards for 1987-88.

Wertz, 47, began teaching at the UI in 1977 after two years at the University of Wyoming. In 1980, he was promoted to associate professor and served as acting chair of the UI Department of Russian in 1985-86.

Wertz has also taught at Middlebury College in Middlebury, Conn., Washington University in St. Louis, and the Defense Language Institute.

A native of Lakewood, Ohio, Wertz received a bachelor's degree from Columbia College in 1963 and a doctorate from the University of Michigan in 1971.

Sistrunk fails to appear in court

By The Associated Press

DES MOINES — An arrest warrant was issued Friday, Nov. 4, after former University of Iowa football player Dwight Sistrunk failed to appear in court to face drug charges, but Sistrunk's attorney said Sistrunk was on his way to Des Moines for the court proceedings.

"He's coming into town," said attorney Alfredo Parrish, who is defending Sistrunk against a charge of possession of cocaine with intent to distribute.

Sistrunk, 23, was originally scheduled to appear at a U.S. district court preliminary hearing Thursday in Des Moines. When he failed to appear, Judge William Stuart ordered an arrest warrant issued if Sistrunk did not show up by 10 a.m. on Nov. 4.

Parrish declined to say why Sistrunk had failed to appear in court. Sistrunk was free on $25,000 bond and allowed to return to his hometown of Dayton, Ohio. Parrish had earlier said he has had difficulty contacting Sistrunk.

Sistrunk's trial was originally scheduled to begin Monday. A court spokeswoman said no new trial date had been set Friday.

Sistrunk was arrested after drug agents acting on a tip searched his apartment July 14 and found 5 ounces of a white powder in a shaving kit in the refrigerator. The powder later was determined to be cocaine, authorities said.

On Dukakis, populism and the Supreme Court

U.S. Sen. Tom Harkin's term won't expire until 1990, but the 48-year-old Democrat has been no stranger to the campaign trail this year. He has stumped for 3rd District Rep. Dave Nagle and the Michael Dukakis-Lloyd Bentsen presidential ticket.

Harkin is a dyed-in-the-wool populist and argues that "too few people have too much money and too much power." He is a vocal critic of American military intervention in Central America and is ranked highly by liberal interest groups. He serves on the Senate Appropriations, Agriculture, and Labor committees.

He was interviewed for The Daily Iowan by political reporter Matt Devine.

DI: Michael Dukakis has only recently embraced Us-vs.-Them populist themes that you are known for.

HARKIN: I know. And ever since he did, he took off in the polls.

DI: But he's a late-comer to the ideology, don't you think? Does that point to a lack of focus in his campaign?

HARKIN: It's not that he doesn't feel that way. It's just that — maybe it's because of where he's from in Massachusetts, I don't know. But he's not been able to really express it. And I think a couple weeks ago he started expressing it in terms that people can latch on to. And that's the populist message — that the government should be on our side, that we need people fighting for the little guy, the little woman, the average American. And showing what those policies are. And he's been using that populist message.

DI: Populism seems to be something that strikes at the heart of what Democrats are all about. And Dukakis missed it.

HARKIN: Well — I don't think that he missed it, I think that he just had a different way of approaching it. And again, to be able to get votes from people, you'd better be able to talk their language. And you've got to say things in ways and in terms that people can latch on to. That's why I think it didn't get through his advisers, maybe his people that are around him, until finally I think he decided — I really think that Dukakis struck out on his own on this populism. I think he finally said to his people, "I'm gonna say it the way I feel like saying it."

And once he did that and threw away the script, then he started going up (in the polls).

DI: Dukakis wants to expand the government to develop policies like trade, child care, health insurance, antitrust enforcement, etc. Some have called him a "frugal New Dealer." But how can you expand government without increasing spending?

HARKIN: It's not expanding government. It's redirecting government. See, that's the populist message I've been preaching for a long time. That's why I've never classed myself as a — quote — liberal. The liberal approach in the past has been if you've got a problem, you get the government in there to help do something about it. The populist approach is, if you've got a problem, what causes the problem? Let's fix that. So the populist approach is, don't expand government, redirect it. . . . In so many of these areas — in crime, in welfare — by redirection of the government toward the basic problem, rather than trying to patch up something later on, you save money and you have a smoother-running system.

DI: Congress has shown some pattern as far as viewing a presidential election as a mandate on a candidate's programs. How will Congress respond to the new candidate's foreign policy or social programs if it feels he was elected on the basis of his views on the Pledge of Allegiance?

HARKIN: The House and the Senate will be controlled by the Democrats. So, if Bush were elected, he isn't going to be able to ram through a lot of stuff. Dukakis? I think if Dukakis were elected we could see some really great pieces of legislation early next year, because we'd work together, get some of these things through, start changing some of these things around.

DI: On foreign policy, other than peripheral issues like drugs and trade, nothing, again, has really been hit.

HARKIN: Yeah, there hasn't been much of a discussion on foreign policy.

DI: What foreign policy choices are facing the next president?

HARKIN: The next president is going to have to confront, perhaps the most serious — I think as serious as the Soviet Union — is Third World debt. It is incredible. It is mounting. People can't meet their payments. They're using all the internal money that they're able to raise now just to pay the interest payments, which means they can't import things, they can't raise their standard of living. People are getting poorer, hunger's on the increase in Latin America. And it is ripe for revolution. Now Bush's response is, "Hey, we're going to move in there with troops." That's Bush's military response. That'll just fan the flames of revolution throughout Latin America, turn all of Latin America against us. Again, Dukakis understands, as (Sen.) Bill Bradley (D-N.J.) understands, that that debt has got to be renegotiated with Latin America. Otherwise we are going to have a conflagration from Mexico on south. And it would just be devastating. That is a big, big issue. And again, no one's talking about it.

DI: On the Supreme Court we have two aging liberal justices in Thurgood Marshall and William Brennan. How much of a role does the next president have in tipping the balance?

HARKIN: A lot. Marshall and Brennan probably could not last another six years, and they're going to retire — probably retire. And they could be replaced by Robert Bork. I mean, Bush said — still says — that he would like to have Robert Bork on the Supreme Court. He has said that, publicly. So those are the kind of people you're going to get on the Supreme Court if Bush is president. This could be disastrous for the Supreme Court for the next generation of Americans. I think a lot of young people who are perhaps contemplating voting for Bush don't understand that — that you're going to get Supreme Court justices that are going to do just the opposite of what they say. A conservative Supreme Court is supposed to respect individual rights and liberties. But the Robert Borks — and the (Associate Justice Antonin) Scalia and others that have been put on, they want to get into your personal life, they want to get into what you say and what you write. They want to intrude more into your personal lives than any of the Supreme Courts for the last 50 years. And that scares me.

DI: How stiff would Senate opposition be to Supreme

Tom Harkin

The House and the Senate will be controlled by the Democrats. So, if Bush were elected, he isn't going to be able to ram through a lot of stuff. Dukakis? I think if Dukakis were elected we could see some really great pieces of legislation early next year.

Court nominations under a Bush Administration?

HARKIN: Well, I think very stiff. There might be some tremendous battles, because we want a balance in the Supreme Court — we don't want it too far left, we don't want it too far right. We want it moderate. So if (Bush) were elected and he sent down people like Bork, I mean, he'd be in for a real battle.

prise and penalize consumers with higher food prices.

George Bush and Republican congressional candidates have attempted to tie their Democratic rivals to the bill, which received almost no support on congressional agriculture committees. Dukakis has never endorsed the proposal.

Harkin drew fire from Republicans last week when he stepped away from the bill he co-authored and set his sights on finding "new options" before Congress reconsiders its farm package in 1990.

Another piece of Harkin's proposed farm legislation seeks to redirect agriculture funds toward research to find new uses for commodities. The bill has won support from both sides of the political fence, but Dukakis has ranked it as one of his top agricultural priorities.

Harkin said 95 cents of every dollar allocated for research goes into studies to increase production, while only a nickel is spent to locate new markets for commodities.

"So we're spending practically half a billion dollars a year on how to produce more," he said. "Yet we're paying farmers to take land out of production. Nonsense. Dukakis wants to reverse that."

Harkin said the next president won't be forced to raise taxes, despite some economists' forecasts that say a tax hike is unavoidable.

The Iowa senator said Dukakis's plan to collect unpaid taxes is workable, and that Bush warnings of IRS harassment of the middle class are unfounded because most American families pay their taxes.

"Bush has missed the point," he said. "I want the IRS, by gosh, to examine very closely the books of some of the rich and super-rich to see if they're paying their fair share. But the average American, what've they got to hide?"

Some economists say deficit reduction is a continuing trend, requiring only modest, sensible action by the next chief executive. The budget deficit peaked at $221.17 billion in 1986, but tapered off to $155 billion for the fiscal year ending September 30.

The deficit is getting worse, not better, Harkin said. And the positive numbers are illusory, created by the addition of social security trust fund surpluses in deficit calculations.

"You can't spend Social Security trust fund money on military, welfare, farm payments or anything like that," Harkin said. "You take that out and the deficit really hovers around $195 billion."

Harkin said U.S. businesses are also straining the economy by running up mammoth debts from leveraged buyouts, which are takeovers financed by borrowing. A recession could theoretically bankrupt businesses that are borrowed to the hilt, leading federal officials to ask Congress to revise tax laws that would complicate leveraged buyouts.

Since very little tannin and extract is available through carbonic maceration, the method is usually

"The Romance"
Each year about mid-November, France's Beaujolais region releases a red wine made from Gamay grapes that only weeks before were on the vine banking in the sun. Through a fermentation method called "Carbonic Maceration", a delightfully fruity, "quaffing" wine is made and ready for consumption in an unusually short production time of two months.

In France, the release of this wine is cause for much celebration. People gather in their favorite restaurants and bars and anxiously await the stroke of midnight on the determined day in November when law declares that the new vintage may be tasted. This tradition has caught on in the U.S. with stories of New York restaurateurs hiring the Concorde so that they might be the first to serve Beaujolais Nouveau. Due to an agreement with the French government, hiring the Concorde is no longer necessary as we are able to take early delivery of this wine and in turn supply our customers in sufficient time that they might open their first bottles of Nouveau at the same moment they are being opened in France.

mental offices and bulletin boards. The UI libraries also carry reference books listing awards and application procedures.

Locating scholarships among off-campus sources takes some effort, but computerized search companies may provide students with guidance about scholarship programs throughout the country.

Still, students should realize what the company will do for them and consider its reputation before making a financial commitment, Sidwell said.

"I've had students bring in results on what they've got from some scholarship programs, and I've yet to see anyone benefit from them," he said.

He pointed out a letter that students in the UI College of Engineering received last week from College Scholarship Finders, a California scholarship search company.

The letter requested students to send $57 to the company in exchange for placement on a computerized scholarship-finding network.

"I would encourage them to research that but not to the point when they are going to invest a large sum of money, which $57 dollars is, to not get anything out of it," he said.

He said about 80 percent of the students he has dealt with have not been satisfied with computerized college scholarship searches.

A spokesperson for College Scholarship Finders, San Diego, Calif., said typical awards range from $800 to $1,500 and are from private sector sources.

"Anyone who has money to offer, we try and get as sources," said Michael Raller, a supervising counselor for College Scholarship Finders.

He said students receive a scholarship listing designed to individual majors and interests.

The application process is the student's responsibility, but if the student does not receive at least a $57 award within 90 days, the company will return the processing fee.

Raller said students could get a lot of the same information from books but the computer provides a faster, more efficient search.

Regents

tified three crucial areas they felt were inadequately funded in initial budget recommendations. They asked the regents to reconsider funding levels for library automation, computing and opening new buildings.

In its initial recommendation, the board included no funds for library automation, although the UI had requested $1 million for the two fiscal years. The regents Saturday approved $650,000 for those years.

Much of the funds already invested by the UI in the OASIS automated library system would have been lost if the board had not approved the funds for the program, said David Vernon, UI acting vice president for academic affairs, at the October meeting.

"It will be more expensive for the libraries to maintain dual systems than simply maintain a single system," he said. "It will be very difficult for the libraries to function efficiently without funding."

The approved budget included funding that doubled the initial regent recommendation for computing at the UI.

The board approved $3 million for the computing budget for the two years. Initially it had recommended only $1.5 million for that time period, considerably less than the UI's request of $5 million.

These funds will finance improved computer hardware, software and other equipment for UI students, faculty and staff, Phillips said.

The board also approved the full amount requested for the opening of the UI Human Biology Research Facility, increasing its recommendation of $336,000 to $982,000, the amount requested by the UI for 1990.

The UI also received the requested $79,000 for the opening-new-buildings fund for 1991.

The next step in the budgeting process is for Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad and the state Legislature to approve the budget requests.

"If we can successfully take the budgets through the next steps of the approval process, these funds will carry us a long way in addressing the many needs on campus," Phillips said.

"How much funding the state can give the universities depends on state revenues and we don't know what the level of state funding will be," she said. "I'm hopeful that things will be better than they have been in the last few years."

Informing the government of the necessity for these funding levels will be a priority for regents when they attend the government budget hearing on Dec. 14 in Des Moines, Pomerantz said.

"We have an obligation to these universities to convince the government that these are not frivolous requests. We do hear you and understand your needs," he said to university administrators.

Dukakis

The Massachusetts governor's speech accused the Bush campaign of counting its electoral votes prematurely.

"Mr. Bush is coasting. We're fighting back. He's slipping and we're surging," Dukakis said. "He thinks he's inherited the White House. I think you've got to earn the right to be the president of the United States."

During the rally, Dukakis repeated a promise he made while campaigning before last year's Iowa Caucus — to bring the first regional economic development conference of his presidency to Davenport.

Before Dukakis appeared, U.S. Sen. Tom Harkin, D-Iowa, launched into a speech aimed at tying Republican candidate George Bush with former president Richard Nixon. Calling Nixon the father of the modern Republican party, Harkin said both men had substantially changed their stances on issues prior to election time.

"Just now he's a guy who wants to eat pork rinds and listen to country western music?" he said. "Just as there was no new Richard Nixon in 1968, there is no new George Bush in 1988."

Dukakis also made an impassioned plea for the votes of the area's large Hispanic population, making repeated references to the Hispanic veterans immortalized on Hero Street in nearby Silvis. Eighty-seven Hispanic men and women from the neighborhood saw combat during World War II and the Korean and Vietnam wars. Eight were killed.

National and local Hispanic leaders joined Dukakis for the rally. New Mexico Gov. Toney Anaya, Denver Mayor Federico Peña, U.S. Rep. Matthew Martinez, D-Calif. and actor Essai Morales, who portrayed singer Ritchie Valens' brother in "La Bamba," appeared with Dukakis.

Illinois Sen. Paul Simon and a host of state officials from Iowa and Illinois also appeared with Dukakis.

versity would change its attitude toward science, and I've waited many years," he said. "Meanwhile other places offer more interest in what we're doing, and as years go on it becomes more and more desirable to us or favorable to us to go to someplace (that) has some interest in what we do."

"The (NASA) contract's with the group, not with the U of I. If the group leaves, the university loses the contract," Frank said. "It's a very good possibility that it will happen."

Frank declined to say which universities have made offers to the research group.

Frank said that only one member of the UI administration, Duane Spriestersbach, vice president for educational development and research, has been consistently supportive of his efforts. Spriestersbach wrote him a congratulatory letter for the grant from Japan.

toral votes, although he could not yet count securely on the 270 needed for victory. The tabulation showed Dukakis leading for 101 electoral votes, while 78 were in tossup states including Pennsylvania, Illinois and Missouri.

"There ain't no stopping us now unless we stop ourselves," the vice president said at a breakfast rally in Colorado Springs, Colo.

"We can't turn the White House over to the people who claim to be on our side but who left the country on its back," Bush said.

Countered Dukakis, also beginning his day in Colorado: "He's slipping and sliding, we're rocking and rolling." He sought to raise fears over the possibility that Bush — if elected — might put vice-presidential running mate Dan Quayle in charge of the White House crisis management team.

"Gives you the chills, doesn't it?" Dukakis asked. "Think about it — the Cuban missile crisis, with Dan Quayle in charge."

Democrats voiced confidence they would retain or perhaps widen their majorities in the House and Senate in Tuesday's balloting, and they got little dissent from Republicans on that score.

One of the tightest Senate races was in Florida, where a late-hour poll showed a virtual dead heat between Democratic Rep. Buddy MacKay and Republican Rep. Connie Mack for the seat being vacated by Democratic Sen. Lawton Chiles.

Democrats also hoped for modest gains among the 12 statehouse races on the ballot.

It was the costliest campaign in American history, and just one piece of it, a series of California ballot initiatives, had a price tag of more than $100 million.

Both men drew large crowds in the campaign's final days, and drew strength from them. And in the final two days, the presidential candidates thought no more about flying across the country than most voters thought about walking across the street.

Bush aide Alix Glen described the vice president's rapidly changing itinerary as a "Magical Mystery Tour." Dukakis embarked on two days of non-stop campaigning that would carry him from the West Coast to the Midwest, back to California and then back home to Massachusetts by election morning.

NBC News and the Wall Street Journal said its nationwide survey completed Saturday night showed the vice president with a lead of 48 percent to 43 percent.

Afghan rebels fire 3 rockets into Kabul

MOSCOW — Rebels fired three rockets into Kabul on Sunday, the official Soviet news agency Tass reported. It did not say if there were any casualties. The Soviet Union announced Friday it was stopping the withdrawal of more than 100,000 Soviet troops from Afghanistan because of increased attacks on government positions by Moslem rebels. The Soviet troops, which entered Afghanistan in 1979 to support the Marxist government, are scheduled to withdraw by Feb. 15 under a U.N.-mediated agreement signed in Geneva. Soviet officials said they are still committed to meeting that deadline. In keeping with the agreement, about half the 100,000 Red Army troops that were deployed in Afghanistan have been pulled out.

Israeli troops kill 1 during West Bank raid

JERUSALEM — Israeli troops fired on stone-throwing youths during a raid of a West Bank village Sunday, killing an 18-year-old Palestinian, and 12 more people were reported wounded in clashes across the occupied territories. An Israeli newspaper reported that Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir's Likud bloc has a plan to end the Palestinian revolt by breaking up the refugee camps that have been at the center of violence. PLO leader Yasir Arafat's second-in-command was quoted as saying the group plans to intensify the uprising because results of last week's Israeli election indicate "extremist religious parties" will be running the country. Israeli warplanes raided Palestinian guerrilla strongholds in south Lebanon and destroyed a base, the military command said.

Solidarity threatens protests over shipyard

WARSAW, Poland — Solidarity leaders on Sunday threatened broad protests, including strikes, if the government does not reverse its decision to close the Lenin Shipyard in Gdansk. The statement was the strongest yet by the banned trade union movement on the planned closing of the yard, where Solidarity began. Solidarity, which in August helped end Poland's worst wave of strikes in seven years, now appears to be on a collision course with the communist government. The government announced Oct. 31 that it will close the yard in December because the business is losing money.

Central America inhospitable to Americans

WASHINGTON — Central America is becoming one of the most inhospitable and risky areas for U.S. diplomats and military personnel. Nagging concerns over personal security, widespread anti-American sentiment and the career risk of having to defend highly controversial U.S. policies plague U.S. officials assigned in the region, particularly in Panama, El Salvador and Nicaragua. As an example of the potential risk to career advancement, Sen. Christopher Dodd, D-Conn., an outspoken critic of administration policy in the region, recently blocked the promotion of two foreign service officers stationed there.

Campaign workers kill gunman at store

HAINES CITY, Fla. — Campaign workers on their way to a political function with a candidate for sheriff shot and killed a gunman in a convenience store parking lot, authorities said Sunday. Three shots were fired at a man reportedly waving a gun at another man, said Polk County sheriff's spokeswoman Lynne Breidenbach. Mauro DelGado, 31, was pronounced dead at the scene. Seven or eight campaign workers were riding in a motor home that stopped at the A & D Store Saturday afternoon on the way to a political function for candidate Tom Wheeler, Breidenbach said. The altercation was developing as they drove up. Jim Blake and Joe Miano fired three shots at DelGado. Blake, a former deputy, was armed with a 9mm automatic pistol, and Miano carried a derringer, Breidenbach said. She was unsure whether all three shots struck DelGado.

Oat bran, trendy products top '88 sales lists

NEW YORK (AP) — If you feasted on oat bran, fed Fido with gourmet chow, pulled on a pair of pre-shredded jeans or leafed through a comic book this year, you were one of the Americans who made those some of the hottest products of 1988, according to Adweek magazine. The hottest products largely were "conspicuously unnecessary," the advertising and marketing trade magazine stated in this week's issue, and ran the gamut from the ephemeral novelty to technological nuisance. Trends in trendy stuff included rapidly growing demand for oats in all forms, especially oat bran, among cholesterol-conscious Americans; Upjohn Co.'s Rogaine hair-growth treatment, which recently got federal government approval for prescription sales; a new genre of comic books aimed at adult audiences, so-called "graphic novels"; and slashed jeans, pre-damaged by the maker for that rough-and-tumble look, for $50 a pair. The magazine said other hot stuff for 1988 included:

- Up-scale pet paraphernalia, including designer dog and cat clothing, gourmet pet food and perfumed groomings;
- Trendy foods like cheese-flavored popcorn and fancy peppers;
- Black market saguaro cacti, illegally dug up and replanted as lawn decorations in the Southwest;
- Increased use of Retin A skin wrinkle treatment by younger consumers;
- Disposable extended-wear contact lenses;
- Belt pouches, used by skiers, cyclists and, increasingly, city pedestrians;
- Technological devices such as home Fax machines, electronic still cameras that can play back snapshots on the television screen and "voice mail" corporate telephone answering systems that direct calls and record messages. Adweek also said the year featured a number of retro-trends sparked by nostalgia-fueled baby boomers. Those included Mr. Potato Head toys, Harley-Davidson motorcycles and accessories, charm bracelets, yo-yos, pink flamingos, convertible cars, seamed stockings and quarter belts and a resurgence in train travel.

Scientist studies yellow snow

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — A scientist is studying the effects of last summer's fire in Yellowstone National Park by analyzing urine-soaked snow to determine whether animals are getting enough to eat.

Biologist Glenn DelGiudice perfected the testing, which experts think has great promise for aiding wildlife studies around the world.

"Glenn's technique is generating a great deal of excitement among researchers," said L. David Mech, a U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service scientist who is an internationally known wolf expert. "It can be applied anywhere animals live in snow for part of the year."

Mech and Ulysses Seal, a biochemist widely recognized for his research on endangered wildlife, initiated the technique of using snow urine samples in wildlife research. But several years ago, they turned over perfection of the technique to DelGiudice, then a graduate student at the University of Minnesota.

For the past two years, DelGiudice has studied Yellowstone's elk and bison under an agreement between the Veterans Administration, for whom he works, and the National Park Service, which manages the 2.2 million acre park in Wyoming.

DelGiudice's work will allow scientists to compare the health of the bison and elk before and after the summer fires, which affected 500,000 to 880,000 acres in Yellowstone. There are no findings yet from the study.

About 20,000 elk and 2,600 bison spend the winter in Yellowstone. The Park Service estimates that four bison and 250 elk died in the fires, which simply forced most big mammals into different parts of the park to find forage.

DelGiudice was among about 25 scientists who recently met at Yellowstone to prepare a plan for studying the effects of the fires. He stressed that, while the fires charred extensive timber and brush, the burned-over areas form a mosaic pattern, rather than a contiguous tract.

U.S. greets Soviet Nobel Prize winner

NEW YORK (AP) — Andrei Sakharov arrived here Sunday to tears from well wishers on his first visit outside the Soviet Union after years of agitation over Soviet human rights policies.

The father of the Soviet dissident movement told the crowd awaiting him when he walked out of Customs at Kennedy International Airport that he was glad to be in the United States.

"I respect this country. This is a great country," he said before being taken to a waiting limousine to a connecting flight at LaGuardia Airport.

Sakharov was to continue on to Boston Sunday night to visit his stepson Alexei Semyonov, his wife Liza Alekseyeva, and their 4-year-old daughter Alexandra, whom he never has seen. He also is expected to receive medical treatment in the United States.

His two-week trip comes less than two years after he was freed from internal exile stemming from his opposition to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan.

Sakharov, who won the 1975 Nobel Peace Prize for his human rights activities, told reporters at Moscow's Sheremetyevo airport earlier that he was pleased to be going to Washington for a meeting of the International Foundation for the Survival and Development of Humanity.

Sakharov, 67, kissed his wife, Yelena Bonner, in a diplomatic lounge where they had waited, smiling and holding hands, and then headed for the New York-bound plane. Reporters who went to the airport were not allowed in the lounge but could watch from a distance.

On a brief walk from a white Volga sedan to the lounge, he told reporters there still are political prisoners in the Soviet Union, including an unknown number in mental institutions.

Sakharov left using the blue passport of a member of an official delegation, not a red passport of an average Soviet citizen. He was traveling with Yevgeny Velikhov, vice president of the Soviet Academy of Sciences. Both men are members of the board of the foundation.

Business

Even the 'little guy' can get a slice of business takeover pie

By Dean Jarnow
Special to The Daily Iowan

Doing it the American way — using debt — seems to be the order of business these days. In fact this trend of the binging on debt in American business seems to be the biggest business of all.

Every week there appears to be a new tender offer, a hostile takeover, a merger here and an acquisition there. The link with most of this buying and selling of business is the LBO, the leveraged buyout.

Simply put, the leveraged buyout is the practice of borrowing heavily to help managers or others take over a company by buying up its stock. The debt is collateralized by nothing more than the cash flows and assets of the proposed acquired company. The borrowed money needs to come from somewhere and many times it comes in the form of an investment banker issuing bonds, usually junk bonds.

There has been increased concern about this debt-crazed can-you-top-this buyout game. Proponents will say it makes fat conglomerates leaner and more efficient. Critics say it is nothing more than a dangerous game of high finance.

Many times the acquired company will have to be at least partially liquidated to pay down some of the debt. If a recession occurs in the next couple of years (as many speculate), earnings and cash flows will slow and may not be enough to service the debt from the buyout. This will result in defaults on these junk bonds and potentially compound the effects of a recession.

However, there are enormous amounts of money to be made on both sides of the corporate buyout game. The small investor is bound to ask: Can the little guy get a piece of the takeover action? For an investor with a stomach for fast rides and high risks, avenues are available. Hidden value is the key to leveraged buyouts, but playing the takeover game is often more luck than skill.

Here are some guidelines to keep in mind when playing your hand at this fast-paced game. Is the stock trading below book value? Does the company have a lot of cash and other assets that could easily be converted to cash? Is the company's debt less than 50 percent of capital? Is the stock selling at eight times its cash flow or less? Has the company's cash flow been improving from year to year? Do insiders control less than 10 percent of the company's outstanding stock? Do institutions own 10 percent or more of the company's shares? Has there been management dissen-sion or turnover laterally? Have there been recent takeovers in the company's industry? Six or more yes answers would mean a company is a buyout candidate.

Even if a qualified company never becomes a target, these same financial characteristics may make it an excellent long-term investment. Caution: The small investor should stay away from trying to imitate the pros by buying a stock after a bid has been made. Too many deals either fall through the cracks or drag on only to leave the small investor holding the bag at a high price.

14 die in failed Maldives coup

MALE, Maldives (AP) — Indian commandos rescued 20 hostages and recovered bodies of four others aboard a crippled getaway ship Sunday after gunmen who tried to overthrow the Maldives government surrendered, Indian officials said.

Officials reported three hostages were missing.

Armed Sri Lankan mercenaries ended a two-day high seas standoff early Sunday after the Indian frigate Godavari fired on the cargo vessel 60 miles from the Sri Lankan coast, Indian officials said.

They said the alleged mastermind of Thursday's bloody coup attempt, an aide to former Maldivian President Ibrahim Nasir, was among the 46 people who surrendered. Nasir has denied involvement in the coup.

The Indian marine commandos recovered the bodies of four hostages from the Maldivian-registered ship, Indian government spokesman Ramamohan Rao said in New Delhi. Rao said he did not know how the hostages died.

Interviews with survivors indicated three other hostages were missing, he said.

Seven of the surviving hostages, including Transport Minister Ahmed Mujithaba, had bullet wounds and were flown to the south Indian port city of Trivandrum for treatment, Rao said.

A Maldivian spokesman, Maj. Zahir, said he had not been informed of any hostage deaths. Zahir uses only one name.

Rao said the Indian navy was returning the alleged mastermind — Maldivian businessman Abdullah Luthufi — and the captured mercenaries to the 2,000-island nation. President Maumoon Abdul Gayoom said they would be put on trial.

Luthufi was a former aide to Nasir, whose followers also tried to overthrow Gayoom in 1980 and 1983.

Asked what punishment they would receive if convicted, Gayoom told a news conference: "I can't tell you at this time, but we do have capital punishment."

Working women help families retain buying power

WASHINGTON — More women working outside the home have allowed most American families to keep the buying power they had 10 years ago, according to a study released Saturday.

Forty percent of families, however, have not kept pace with the increasing cost of living over the past decade, said the study by the Economic Policy Institute.

The head of the think tank said the report shows average American families have been under greater economic pressure during the past decade than at any time since World War II.

Drug trafficker returns to U.S. for prison term

BARCELONA, Spain (AP) — An American convicted of cocaine smuggling in a case that attracted the attention of the U.S. attorney general left prison Sunday under a deal that allows him to serve his sentence in the United States.

Conan Owen, 24, a photographer and a former summer intern in Vice President George Bush's office, left Carcel Modelo in handcuffs and under police escort. He had been held there since his arrest March 13, 1987 at Barcelona's El Prat airport.

As he walked through the prison patio to a waiting police van, Owen raised his hands defiantly to show he was handcuffed.

Owen was taken to the Barcelona police headquarters, according to the officer in charge, who demanded anonymity. It was believed Owen would spend the night there and be turned over to U.S. marshals Monday in time to catch a flight to New York.

Owen was convicted in April of drug trafficking and sentenced to six years and a day.

At his March 26 trial, Owen testified he was tricked into carrying a suitcase from Santiago, Chile, to Barcelona in which customs police found four pounds of cocaine. He said the people who had given him a freelance photo assignment sent him to Barcelona after a few days work in Santiago.

Jorge Barahona, who gave Owen the assignment, later told U.S. officials he and others placed the cocaine in the suitcase without Owen's knowledge. Barahona provided that information to U.S. officials in return for a suspended sentence and a promise that he would not be turned over to Spanish authorities.

The Barcelona court refused to admit Barahona's deposition as evidence in Owen's trial because plea-bargaining is illegal in Spain.

Owen's transfer to the United States is allowed under an international treaty that Spain and the United States signed in 1983. To become eligible for return, Owen had to drop his appeal of the trafficking conviction.

The prosecutor also dropped an appeal calling for an additional conviction on contraband charges that the three-judge Barcelona court threw out.

Owen's attorney and the photographer's family in Annandale, Va., have refused to discuss the case with reporters.

The Spanish news media have questioned the degree of U.S. interference in the country's legal system. Citing Owen's ties to former Attorney General Edwin Meese and Vice President George Bush, some newspapers claimed the photographer was an American spy.

Freedman attacked by Review

HANOVER, N.H. (AP) — A letter from the Dartmouth College trustees deploring a student newspaper's comparison of the school's president with Adolf Hitler will be sent to all students and faculty members, a spokesman said Sunday.

Chairman George Munroe wrote the letter Saturday to President James O. Freedman saying the board of trustees is "shocked and outraged" at the characterization by The Dartmouth Review, an off-campus weekly not affiliated with the college.

Munroe called it "particularly offensive in light of your own Jewish heritage." Without stopping "free and even offensive speech" at the school, he said, the board has a right to speak out against "ignorance and moral blindness."

College spokesman Alex Huppe said Sunday the student would be sent to every student and faculty member on Monday.

The letter was in reaction to an

James Freedman

Oct. 19 column in the Review headlined "Ein Reich, Ein Volk, Ein Freedmann," a play on a Nazi slogan, "One Empire, One People, One Leader" but substituting and misspelling Freedman's name.

Written by James Garrett, the column describes how "Der Freedmann" and his associates rid the campus of conservatives. The column refers to the "Final Solution of the Conservative Problem" and to survivors of the Dartmouth "holocaust." Garrett described Dartmouth friends and colleagues who were "deported in cattle cars in the night."

Congressman Dave Nagle works hard and gets results!

Few Members of Congress have won the kind of success Dave Nagle has had in his first term in Congress. His record is one of leadership and accomplishment.

- ECONOMIC RECOVERY: Dave Nagle has worked hard to make the federal government a full partner in the effort to bring economic recovery to the Third District. In just his first year in Congress, federal grants earmarked for Iowa's Third District jumped 16 percent!
- DEFICIT REDUCTION: Dave Nagle knows the most important thing we can do to promote economic recovery is reduce the federal deficit. When Congress voted — by only one vote — to cut the deficit by more than $70 billion, Dave Nagle's vote provided the winning margin.
- DROUGHT RELIEF: Dave Nagle was the only Iowan named to serve on the bipartisan Congressional Drought Relief Task Force. It drafted emergency drought relief legislation which helped avert large scale farm disaster in the wake of the Drought of 1988. In addition to helping write the over all bill, Congressman Dave Nagle played a key role in winning drought aid for rural merchants also hit by the drought.

KEY VOTES

- FOR: Trade Reform Bill to improve America's competitiveness.
- AGAINST: Military aid to the Contras.
- FOR: Cutting Pentagon spending to reasonable levels.
- AGAINST: Expanding the arms race to the heavens with "Star Wars" weaponry.
- FOR: Reauthorization of Older Americans Act programs such as congregate meals, meals on wheels, etc.
- AGAINST: Cuts in guaranteed student loan program.
- FOR: Extending Medicare covered hospital days to 365 per year, up from previous 60 days per year.
- AGAINST: Elimination of college work-study program, national direct student loans and supplemental education opportunity grants.

- A SAFER WORLD: Dave Nagle authored and won passage for arms control legislation which experts on both sides of the political aisle agree will help reduce the risk of nuclear confrontation. Unfortunately, President Reagan vetoed it.
- LISTENING TO US: "The best advice I get comes from Third District Iowans," Congressman Dave Nagle says. He means it. During his first year in Washington, he spent nearly every weekend right here in the Third District, listening to us. So far, he has conducted more than 100 "Listening Forums" on agriculture, economic recovery and development, health care, education, senior citizens and other issues throughout the 16 counties in the Third District.

Congressman Dave Nagle was born in Grinnell and grew up in Tama and Toledo. He and his wife, Diane, and son Ben, live in Cedar Falls.

Package deal

One issue in the 1988 election that is receiving scant attention in Iowa is the proposal to allow the governor and lieutenant governor to run as a team, rather than separately. The probable reason for this is because the proposal, unlike many others in this political year, makes sense.

The lieutenant governor's position, under the present system, has become little more than a launching point for future campaigns for the governor's office. Witness the campaign of former Lieutenant Governor Robert Anderson two years ago, and the campaign currently being conducted by the present holder of the office, Joanne Zimmerman.

The problem is the lieutenant governor currently has very few responsibilities provided by law, and because the governor and lieutenant governor may find themselves running against each other down the road, the governor does not generally delegate responsibility to the position. Because of this, the lieutenant governor is a basically ineffective state official.

It's time the position became useful to the state of Iowa. If the governor and lieutenant governor were allowed to run as a team, the governor would feel less awkward about assigning duties to the lieutenant governor.

Thus, even if by law the position does not have very much responsibility, the lieutenant governor could be given duties by the governor currently being handled by the governor's office, which in turn would allow for better streamlining of the state government.

Having the governor and lieutenant governor run as a team makes sense, both from the standpoint of economy and efficiency. Iowa voters would do well to endorse this sensible proposal.

New and improved

An improved and updated version of the space shuttle will soon be launched. However, the letters on the wings will read CCCP instead of USA. By obtaining unclassified information from a variety of sources, the Soviet Union has built a shuttle based on the American design.

The Soviet orbiter and the American orbiter are virtually identical in their configurations and dimensions. The Soviet orbiter, however, is different in that it possesses jet engines for increased maneuverability in landing, but has no booster rockets for liftoff. Liftoff power is provided by the liquid-fueled Energia rocket, which is a further improvement on the American design. It was the solid-fuel boosters that caused the Challenger disaster.

The Soviets should have asked for the U.S.'s assistance, rather than helping themselves surreptitiously to our shuttle plans. Such a request, had it been made, should have been met with an attitude of collegiality and cooperation. The Soviets were probably correct, though, in not expecting American help. Ultimately, both sides are at fault for this plunder of American technology. The Soviets should have been straightforward enough to ask for assistance, and the Americans should have been cooperative in giving it to them.

U.S. and Soviet leaders should realize that both nations will benefit from cooperation, not competition, in space. Not only would there be mutual technological and scientific rewards, but such cooperation could result in improved superpower relations. Space programs are one of a nation's projects most avidly followed by the public — a joint space effort could do much to promote friendship between the American and Soviet peoples.

It is time for both superpowers to put aside the Cold War space race of the 1960s.

Bush has critical experience...

Tom Cope

The presidential election of 1988 has come down to three important issues: character, competence and vision for the future. There is little argument that both candidates, George Bush and Michael Dukakis, have strong character and are competent.

Vice President Bush is probably the most experienced candidate ever for the presidency, serving in Congress, as United Nations ambassador, as special envoy to China, as CIA director and eight years as vice president. Mike Dukakis has served 10 distinguished years as governor of Massachusetts, and has been a leader in making that state one of the fastest growing in the nation.

Where the two candidates differ, however, is in their vision for America. Throughout the campaign, George Bush has outlined his priorities for the next four years. One of his biggest priorities will be continuing the economic growth that started in 1982, while reducing the federal deficit. In the last eight years, the Reagan administration has ignited a record-breaking explosion of economic growth which has created 17 million new jobs with an average yearly salary of well over $20,000.

George Bush realizes that we do not need to raise taxes to balance the budget. He realizes that federal government revenue has been increasing 8.6 percent a year. He has proposed a "flexible freeze" that will freeze the growth of federal spending at 4.1 percent.

If revenue increases at a rate of only 6.7 percent over the next six years, the budget would be balanced by 1994. Thus, George Bush will be able to implement a capital gains tax cut without burdening the deficit while sparking the economy to even greater growth.

George Bush has spoken out on other issues also. On spending for higher education, he has proposed a tax-free savings bond for parents to save toward their children's education. He also supports full funding of college work-study, guaranteed student loans and grants for low-income students.

He also has proposed a four-point plan for childcare. (1) Creation of a new refundable children's tax credit of up to $1,000 per child under the age of four; (2) refundable dependent care tax credit to nearly two million families wish to adopt children, yet only 60,000 children were adopted. The vice president would change the tax code to encourage adoption, especially of those children with special needs. He would also end discrimination of adopted children in the Social Security system and also would urge family-planning clinics to further advertise adoption services.

George Bush will also be a leader in foreign policy. Just last week in a speech at Notre Dame University, Bush stated he will seek an early meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. One of the goals of this administration will be banning all chemical and biological weapons.

I feel Americans have a choice between two excellent candidates for president. With George Bush, you get a wealth of experience. With Mike Dukakis, you get many new approaches to running the government. There is only one person, however, to lead this country into the 1990s. You, the voters, must ask yourself: "Who will make me and my country better off in 1992?"

George Bush is that man.

Tom Cope is the campus chair for Students for Bush/Quayle.

While Dukakis has clear vision

Rob Hogg

Michael Dukakis should be the next president because he understands that a nation's strength and the peoples well-being depend on a strong economy. He knows that America's current course won't be good enough for this country in the 1990s.

America's economic growth since the Reagan-Bush recession of 1982 has been like an athlete on steroids: a little short-term success, but long-term sterility. Reagan and Bush have caused deep and fundamental change to the economy:

Big debt. America was the world's largest creditor nation in 1982 with a surplus of $200 billion. Today, America is the world's largest debtor nation: $500 billion in red ink.

Low investment. The national savings rate is about one-third of what it was during the years following World War II. Low savings mean low investment. The Japanese invest nearly twice as much of their national income as do Americans.

Too little income research. Non-military research is 55 percent higher in Japan than the United States.

These deep problems — big debt, low investment, too little research — have limited economic growth this decade. The growth rate was 4.8 percent per year in the 1960s, and 2.8 percent in the 1970s, but only 2.2 percent in the 1980s.

Dukakis offers America a better direction. He will create a partnership with local governments, businesses, workers and private organizations to build a sound American economy and offer hope to the millions of Americans who Reagan and Bush have left behind. Hope for the 37 million Americans who have no health insurance.

Hope for the 20 million Americans (including five million children) who don't have enough to eat.

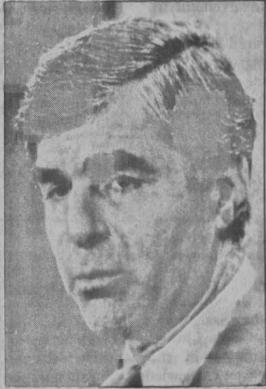

Hope for 735,000 homeless Americans who have no place to sleep tonight. Hope for 650,000 American farm families driven from their land. Hope for college students victimized by cuts in federal aid to education under Reagan and Bush. Hope for drug addicts, illiterate adults, high school dropouts, and kids living in inner-city war zones.

The Reagan-Bush record is the rich getting richer. The trickle-down theory didn't work. While average income for the richest 5 percent is up 37.3 percent to $129,762 since 1977, annual income for the poorest 10 percent of American families has fallen from $3,673 to only $3,286.

America is a better nation than that. Instead of more tax cuts for the rich, Dukakis will invest in housing, health care, education, child nutrition, and economic opportunity for all Americans.

The Dukakis partnership with labor, business, and local government will pool resources to invest in innovative economic programs. Dukakis will squeeze the most out of every precious nickel.

American economic strength is also vital for this nation's role in the world. America could do more to help the hungry and homeless people in Africa, Asia and Latin America if we weren't in debt and if the world's financial center was New York, not Tokyo.

international law by mining Nicaragua's harbors, broke American law in the Iran-Contra scandal, and stood by while governments in El Salvador, Honduras and Guatemala violated human rights. America is now isolated in world opinion.

In South Africa, Reagan and Bush have ignored the pleas of leaders like Bishop Desmond Tutu for more economic sanctions. The Reagan-Bush policy of constructive engagement has done nothing to strengthen apartheid.

Dukakis sees the world where human rights violation is a human rights violation, whether committed by right-wing dictators or Communists. He also respects other peoples and their ideas. He actively endorses the Arias Peace Plan in Central America. He supports blacks in South Africa. He wants to work with Europeans to build a better NATO alliance.

Dukakis will lead America in a new direction. Bush wants to continue policies to take the nation back to the heavens, support dictators, and ignore world opinion. Dukakis will work with the people of the world for peace, human rights and economic growth.

And at home, Bush wants to keep feeding money to the rich in the faint hope that charity will somehow trickle down to the poor. Dukakis believes in working with workers, businesses, local governments, and private organizations to create jobs and services for the people who need them most. Working together, the best America is yet to come.

Rob Hogg is a UI senior majoring in history. He's also an active member of the University Democrats and Students for Dukakis.

Lacking coverage of Bush-Noriega

To the Editor:

I frankly am at a loss to know why the American press seems to be ignoring allegations of a Bush-Noriega connection. According to a British documentary Noriega told his aides he has "Bush by the balls."

However, if you weren't watching the right 30 seconds of news, you'd never know it in this country. Had the American press shown such a lack of curiosity during Watergate, Richard Nixon could still be president.

Bush claims to have been unaware of Noriega's drug dealing, but if that is true then Bush's staff at the CIA and his staff as vice president should be fired for gross incompetence.

Current Biography states that the Nixon administration was so upset at persistent reports that Noriega was heavily involved in drug trafficking that in 1972 it considered a proposal to assassinate him.

If this can be found on the library shelves in Burlington, Iowa, certainly top secret files Bush would have seen as Director of the CIA and then later as vice president would have mentioned reports of Noriega's drug dealing, as well as the fact those reports were so serious that the Nixon administration considered killing him!

Why is this documentary available for the British to see but any comprehensive reporting of what it contains is apparently banned in America? Why isn't the press challenging Bush's statement that he was unaware of Noriega's drug dealing until earlier this year?

Does Bush demand a higher standard of evidence than the most avid card-carrying member of the ACLU? Would Bush pardon Noriega? Does Noriega fit Bush's proposed death penalty for drug kingpins?

The bottom line is this, if Noriega is telling the truth about his involvement with Bush by the balls, we may see a repeat of 1974 and have a President Quayle having to decide whether to pardon George Bush.

A good man who was kicked hard by his country

Today, I write to those who whine about the quality of the 1988 presidential candidates. Polls now say that voter turnout may be the lowest in history. Undecided voters constitute an immense army in our midst. The truth is, we can ill afford to sit home Tuesday. Voting has rarely been so important in principle as it is now that neither candidate inspires much emotion or devotion. This unusual development allows us to ponder what beliefs, not what personality traits, we really hold dear as a country. Voters are left with a unique opportunity to make a real statement at the polls.

That he must take care of everything. Having an official swipe taken at his work ethic cut him to the quick. If you've never seen an old-fashioned father break down and cry because someone has shamed him, I don't advise you to go looking for the opportunity. It will break your heart.

The physician, with his education and commitment, made the case. His moral outrage made it a great case. Shocked at what they were trying to do to his patient, he stated that forcing this man to work meant sending him off to die. The big man sat still, looking at his hands. He hung his head. Tears fell from his face onto the knees of his suit pants. He might have been reliving all the times he'd worn this suit as a husband, father, brother, son. His daughter left the room. She couldn't take any more. Later, when she called to tell me about it, she sobbed over the phone.

How sad, you may sneer. What a sob story. But this isn't "Highway to Heaven," folks. These are real people, the best America has to offer. In thirty years I have met few people who possess the bravery and decency of this man and his wife. Everything I know about respecting people's dignity, regardless of where life has left them, I learned by living among such people.

You may spend Election Day grousing about passionless technocrats until you're blue in the face. You may stand around and pat your fat wallet and say, "But I've got," "I've got," "I've got," until sunrise on November 9th. But if you're still making up your mind, do me a favor. Forget about the Gipper. Remember instead a good man who was humiliated by his government for no honest reason at all. Remember that when decent families with dreams and a solid work ethic are down, the Reagan administration kicks them.

There are real differences between Dukakis and Bush. If those don't impress you, then wake up and think of the differences between Democrats and Republicans. Republicans think we can make America greater by allowing the already great to do anything they deem appropriate to increase their greatness. Democrats know that America is only as great as the dreams of its least citizens. Those citizens no longer have dreams. Their imagination doesn't reach any farther than the next meal or their next departure from a rat-infested room to cop some rocks on a city street.

In my hometown, parents taught kids the importance of dreams and hard work. In return for their efforts, for the values they imparted to their children, they were treated shamefully by people who held power over their future. You'd better believe I know who I'm voting for. You people at the Civic Center tomorrow evening, step outta my way. I'm voting for the future of my country. I'm voting Dukakis.

Thanks to the doctor's appearance at no cost to the family, the man did not lose his payments. But this story isn't about happy endings, it's about a governmental attitude embodied in Republican ideology. During the hearing, this man endured the kind of degradation that no decent man deserves. It was assumed by representatives of his government that he was trying to get something for nothing.

Most of the people in my town are what you could call old-fashioned. At the center of any old-fashioned man's concept of life is his notion Campus Ministries about the occult. They spoke of many alleged satanic rituals. They also spoke of Hitler, telekinesis and Dungeons and Dragons. These were all named as subversive and misleading.

I went to this "informational" meeting primarily to hear their views about Dungeons and Dragons. Maranatha said, and I agree, that the adventure game is cleverly researched and designed; however, when Maranatha said that Dungeons and Dragons promotes evil and devil worship, I disagreed.

I have played this game for six years and I have never participated in, nor have I known other players who have participated in any form of satanic ritual.

Maranatha said Dungeons and Dragons advocates homosexuality. This game does not say anything about sex, other than letting the morality of the players control their actions.

Dungeons and Dragons is nothing more than a game. Dungeons and Dragons is what the player makes of it.

Concerned about Bush's concerns

To the Editor:
As a parent and nursing student, I am very concerned with the rhetoric of the Bush/Quayle ticket in regard to "family values."

My idea of family involves children. How can someone be for children and family but consistently vote against immunizations, child care and vote for cutting school lunch programs, yet vote in favor of every weapon ever thought of?

When they speak of family, maybe they mean only wealthy families like themselves and the middle and lower incomes don't count, like it's been the last eight years.

Family values to me are stockpiling love and compassion not missiles and warheads.

That's why my family supports Mike Dukakis for president.

New Wavers resemble fundamentalists

To the Editor:
How are New Wave and Christian fundamentalists alike? They are both vocal minorities that are trying to impose their morals on the majority.

This summer, the Christian fundamentalists decided that no one should be able to see "The Last Temptation of Christ" because it offended their morals. They wrongly assumed that everyone has (or should have) the same morals as they do and should not be able to see the movie.

New Wave has brought up the shop-worn issue of CIA/NSA-Off Campus again because it offends their morals. New Wave is making the same mistake as the Christian fundamentalists by assuming that everyone has the same morals as they do about the two agencies.

The truth is that the majority of UI students don't really care whether or not the CIA interviews on campus. There are some students who want to interview with the CIA but New Wave wants to restrict their rights as students because they don't agree with them.

If a student does not agree then they should not interview with them, instead of trying to stop those who do. If no one goes to the interviews then the CIA won't come here. I am not in favor of the CIA, but I don't like the idea of New Wave deciding what groups I can interview with and the Christian fundamentalists telling me which movies I can see.

Driven by a sense of duty

To the Editor:
Iowa City is blessed with dozens of civic leaders who give of themselves quietly and without fanfare for the city they love. Driven by a deep sense of duty, they are always ready to build a better life for our hometown.

In Cedar Falls, this is exactly the kind of role Don Redfern has played. As a trustee for the Cedar Falls Library and an award-winning Big Brother (in the Big Brother/Big Sister Program) he has shaped the policies of one of the Midwest's most progressive senior housing developments. Again, in the area of economic development, Don Redfern's talents come shining through.

Clearly we want a congressman dedicated to using his or her talents to improve the well-being of others. The way to do that is to elect Don Redfern because that giving spirit is at the heart of everything he does.

Thank you for tying one on

To the Editor:
October 17-22 was Purdue University's first time in conducting a National Collegiate Alcohol Awareness Week on campus. The largest event conducted was "Tie One On" day. Over 60,000 red ribbons were handed to football fans as they entered the stadium for the Iowa-Purdue game. Following a short pre-game ceremony, fans were asked to "Tie one on" — tie a red ribbon demonstrating their support for responsible drinking.

Boilermaker and Hawkeye fans alike were seen with red ribbons on. Iowa's coaching staff wore red ribbons.

"Tie One On" day was an unprecedented event at Ross-Ade stadium. Thank you Coach Fry and members of the Hawkeye coaching staff and football team for contributing to the success of this event and demonstrating your support for responsible drinking. Thank you Hawkeye fans for "tying one on."

Recycle please

To the Editor:
Here comes my annual (at least) request, plea, hope, DEMAND that, if possible, you (people) will recycle those leaves! Don't you realize, you little rascals (at 83 I can use such language), that they are not a nuisance, but rather a source of plant fertilizer, a moisture-retaining mulch, a mulch to keep down weeds and evidence to anyone who observes that you have respect for your environment?

Recycling leaves means that we are at least partially in harmony with our environment. While I have observed considerable progress, thanks to those of you who have accepted the challenge, we still have a long way to go.

What is really important, I think, is that the recycling of leaves represents an attitude, a dedication, a recognition that we MUST learn to live in harmony with our environment. Do we have to wait until the roof falls in on our heads before we take action.

Face to face with a legend

Nearly every sports fan has a hero — someone they admire. Recently, I had the rare opportunity to meet one of mine.

Pete Rose, without a doubt one of the best players in the history of baseball, was the guest of the Galesburg High School boosters at their 12th annual Baseball Card and Memorabilia Show in Galesburg, Ill., this past Sunday.

It was Rose's hustle and win-at-all-cost style of play that I emulated during my little league years. I've always admired Rose because he is a winner and a team player — he has two MVP trophies and three World Series rings to back this.

Sunday's show may have been the event of the year for collectors in the Midwest as 100 dealers were on hand to display their wares and meet the legendary Rose.

He was introduced to the crowd shortly before 11 a.m. while an autograph line had started forming an hour earlier. Rose seemed somewhat congenial, but more like a machine as the fans were herded by him like cattle after a quick signature and a "Hi, how ya doin'."

I would be delighted if I were being paid $10,000 to make a five-hour appearance. Furthermore, each autograph cost the fans a whopping eight bucks.

And, at 2,500 autographs on the day, it doesn't take a math major to discover that somebody is making some dough.

Rose briefly touched on everything from his suspension this past April for shoving umpire Dave Pallone to his son Pete Jr., who just finished his first year of pro ball in the instructional league.

I waited a couple of hours for the line to dissipate, then I went over to meet Rose.

When he first walked in the building and I was next to the autograph table, I was in awe thinking "I'm actually standing next to the greatest player in the history of baseball," but when I was standing in front of him he seemed tired and distant.

I congratulated him on a brilliant career. While he was signing a card I handed him, I got the feeling I could have handed him a blank check and he would have signed that, too.

I took the opportunity to ask him how long he wanted to continue managing the Reds and he didn't hesitate before answering, "Until we win."

Under his guidance, Cincinnati has finished in second place the past four years, so I had to know what he feels they need to reach the top.

During the remainder of Rose's stay, he briefly elaborated on Cincinnati's needs: a starting pitcher that can give you 200 innings of good pitching for an entire year, and a power hitter to bat fifth behind Eric Davis.

It's no secret that free agent Mike Schmidt has been given more than a passing glance by the Cincinnati front office.

"Mike Schmidt can give any team 25 or more home runs in a year," Rose said Sunday. "We have to make a deal that helps him and helps the team."

That was my first encounter with Pete Rose. As a reporter I'm sure I'll see him again, but in a different surrounding. But on this occasion I can't help but feel jipped.

It's become the American way to make an easy buck in the easiest manner, but the true fans are the ones being ripped off by these "exclusive athletes."

Someone with the status of Rose ought to at least act like he's enjoying himself when he's being paid an outrageous fortune to meet the people who enjoy his accomplishments and provide his paycheck.

Hawks dispose of struggling Wildcats

By Brent Woods
 The Daily Iowan
 The Iowa football team had a nasty job to do Saturday. And in a bitterly cold, wet and windy Kinnick Stadium, the Hawkeyes took care of routine business by defeating Northwestern for the 15th straight time.

Football

Iowa punished the Wildcats 35-10 and kept the bowl scouts duly impressed, setting up Saturday's game against Ohio State as the main obstacle between the Hawkeyes and a warm place for the holidays.

"It's good to get that one out of the way," Iowa Coach Hayden Fry said.

Iowa improved to 5-3-2 overall and 3-1-2 in the conference, while Northwestern slipped to 1-7-1 and 1-4-1.

And the Hawkeyes got it done without incurring too many more injuries, with only defensive tackle Jim Johnson hurt seriously enough to be called questionable for next Saturday's game.

Tony Stewart, who picked up 55 yards on the Hawkeyes' game-opening drive, limped off the field later in the first quarter. However, Fry said Stewart will be ready to become the first Iowa sophomore to rush for 1,000 yards when the Hawkeyes face Ohio State.

"(Stewart) is such a great competitor, a lot of times players like Stewart won't tell you how bad they're really hurt, because they want to play," Fry said. "He got pretty stiff, and we just finally had to hold him out of the game, call him back."

"He'll get those yards against Ohio State," Fry said.

The Daily Iowan/Todd Mizener
 Iowa running back Tony Stewart follows the block of Richard Bass as he attempts to get past Northwestern's David Eaton Saturday in Kinnick Stadium. Stewart's 98 yards led the Hawkeyes and left the sophomore 17 yards shy of a 1,000-yard season.

Several bowls looking seriously at Hawkeyes

By Brent Woods
 The Daily Iowan

With Saturday's win over Northwestern, the Iowa Hawkeyes gained some control over their postseason plans.

Representatives from the Peach, All-American, Liberty and Freedom Bowls watched the Hawkeyes rout the Wildcats Saturday at Kinnick Stadium, and bowl officials made contact with Coach Hayden Fry Friday.

Two obstacles remain, the Ohio State Buckeyes Saturday and the final regular-season contest at Minnesota Nov. 19.

Peach Bowl representative D.J. Mackovets said Iowa has all the ingredients of an attractive bowl team.

"A lot of bowls get too hung up on won-loss records. There are teams that have a real good won-loss record but they don't travel as well as Iowa," Mackovets said. "Often, there are more important selling tools."

Mackovets said Iowa is high on the Peach Bowl's list for many reasons, including the fact that about 23,000 Iowa fans invaded Atlanta when the Hawkeyes played in the 1982 contest.

"Iowa was great when they came down in 1982," he said. "They're still talking about the Iowa people in Atlanta. Atlanta had a great time with the Iowa fans. There are a lot of Big Ten fans in Atlanta, and we're concerned about putting a good matchup on the field."

Mackovets said the Peach Bowl, which will be played Dec. 31, was scouting 11 games Saturday, and added that this year the bowl picture is still scrambled with a lot of teams on the bubble.

North Carolina State, Clemson, South Carolina, Florida State, and Georgia are other teams the Peach Bowl is considering as a possible foe for a Big Ten team.

But Iowa looks like a frontrunner, Mackovets said. And the bowl would rather not wait until the official Nov. 19 invitation date to set the lineup.

"A win next week would really give Iowa a real leg up on it," Mackovets said. "We'd like to have our game put together prior to the 19th."

The All-American Bowl, which will be played Dec. 29 in Birmingham, Ala., also considers the Hawkeyes a top choice.

Representative Coy Collinsworth said the bowl is also interested in Big Ten teams Indiana, Illinois and Michigan State, in order to fill out a Big Ten-Southeastern Conference or Atlantic Coast Conference matchup.

"We're very much interested in Iowa," Collinsworth said. "We've been watching them all year. We like to have a Big Ten team. It would be nice to have everything in order prior to that (Nov. 19)."

Fry is still thinking about the next task at hand — beating the Buckeyes.

"If we win next week, I think we'll have a good opportunity to go to a bowl game," Fry said, "but I don't think we'll have an opportunity to just pick one."

"I don't have any preference at all. I just want to go. Period."

Fry said no bowl officials have told him specifically whether or not Iowa has to win both its remaining games to be invited.

"No one has told us whether we have to win two games, or just one," Fry said. "I'm open for a deal," he joked.

Beglin's team blanks Spartans on the road

By Bryce Miller
 The Daily Iowan

Iowa field hockey Coach Beth Beglin isn't sure what sport her team played this weekend.

"It had been raining all night," she said in reference to Iowa's trip to East Lansing, Mich., for the final regular-season contest, with Michigan State. "It looked more like a football game than a field hockey game. Everyone was mud from head to toe."

The Hawkeyes, who finished 15-5 overall and 6-2 in the Big Ten, notched a 4-0 shutout in a weekend marked by pouring rain and blustery conditions.

Field Hockey

"It was so sloppy that I was concerned with the possibility for injuries," Beglin said. "I was very pleased with the way we played, considering the weather."

Despite the rain, Iowa pounded out 36 shots, compared with 10 for the Spartans. Of the four attempts that did find the mark, three belonged to Big Ten scoring leader Erica Richards.

Richards, who has 27 markers to her credit this year, found her way into the record book over the weekend. The junior established a single-season scoring mark with 13 Big Ten goals, bettering the record of 12 she shared with former Hawkeye Liz Tchou last season.

For Richards, the numbers have special meaning.

"I'm really happy that I could put together the kind of stats Liz had here," Richards said. "She is such an outstanding player. I don't think about records too much, except trying to better the standards I set from year to year."

"It's like basketball," Beglin said, "you get the ball to the player who's hot and the team understands that she is. I can't say enough about the way Erica is playing. She has just been outstanding."

Despite Beglin's references to football and basketball, Iowa managed to put together a fine field hockey finale to prepare them for the NCAA post-season tournament.

Senior Michelle Murgatroyd canned a penalty stroke in the second half for the Hawkeyes' other goal, but Beglin seemed extremely

Peay tries to keep spirits up

Although Saturday's game put another spot on Northwestern's well-tarnished season record, the competitive spirit of the team seemed still intact.

Northwestern Coach Francis Peay, in the third season of his first head-coaching job, said he was pleased with his team's performance despite the loss.

"We are proud of the teams' defensive effort," Peay said. "I think they did a good job in some tough circumstances and tough situations."

"I think our program has made improvement even without any wins. I'm pleased with the effort of the football team, but not the actual productivity. To execute you have to put points on the board. We are improving."

Peay, who landed the head-coaching job after Dennis Green resigned in the spring of 1986, has had an unenviable mission in trying to improve the Wildcat football program. In his first season Peay finished 4-7, Northwestern's most successful season in 13 years.

The newcomer to head coaching is now trying to mold a team with more than half his players being underclassmen. But as proven by this season, they show potential.

One inexperienced underclassman who is making the transition to college football is sophomore wide receiver Richard Buchanan. Buchanan, fifth in the Big Ten in receiving and punt returns, totaled 59 yards receiving in Saturday's game. He also caught a 13-yard pass with 1:38 remaining in the fourth quarter to bring the Wildcats' final score into double digits.

Another sophomore wide receiver, Pat New, is ranked sixth in the Big Ten in kickoff returns. He also aided the Wildcats by recovering teammate Bryon Sanders' fumble in the fourth quarter, saving Sanders' 53-yard run.

After being upset 3-1 by Ohio State Friday night, and then going down 2-0 to Indiana Saturday, it was gut-check time for the Iowa women's volleyball team.

The Hawkeyes managed to swing the momentum and come all the way back to win 3-2 and keep hopes of an NCAA tournament bid alive.

Stewart said Iowa gave up the first two games, but the team gelled and fought hard to take the match.

"We decided that this was a turning point in our season," Stewart said, "and if we wanted to do something for the rest of the season, we had to do something right now."

"We just couldn't get into control. It was like we were trying too hard. We talked about it, that this was it."

Indiana Coach Tom Shoji said Iowa worked hard for the win.

"They played well, and they played tough, and they never gave up and they deserved to win the match," Shoji said. "We came off of a great win last night and we were in control of the match, 2-0, and then we decided to give Iowa the match."

Against Indiana, the Hawkeyes set records for the third time this season.

Iowa had a Big Ten-record 114 kills in a single match. Indiana had 316 total kill attempts, surpassing the old record by 26.

Defensively, Iowa sophomore Jenny Rees set the Big Ten dig record with 38. Teammate Kari Hamel sparked the offense and was four kills shy of tying the Big Ten individual record for kills. Hamel did manage to set a new Big Ten kill-attempt record with 89.

Horton, Marble star in scrimmage

STORM LAKE, Iowa (AP) — Ed Horton scored 30 points while Roy Marble added 28 to lead their Black team to a 113-93 victory over the White squad in an Iowa basketball intrasquad game at Buena Vista College Sunday.

B.J. Armstrong added 18 points for the winning team. Armstrong, Horton and Marble are all seniors.

The White team was led by freshman James Moses' 30 points. Another freshman, Acie Earl, added 23 points, while red-shirt freshman Brian Garner had 12.

Alysheba wins Breeders' Cup Classic

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Alysheba became history's richest racehorse when he beat Seeking the Gold by a half-length and nightfall by a few minutes Saturday at Churchill Downs.

Also shining brightly on a damp, dismal day was the filly Personal Ensign, who won a race it looked like she had no chance of winning.

It was a big day for trainer D. Wayne Lukas, too, but Lukas does well in any weather when it comes to the Breeders' Cup.

Alysheba took the lead about 70 yards from home and won the $3 million Breeders' Cup Classic. The first money of $1,350,000 gave him a career bankroll of $6,679,242 and pushed him past John Henry, who retired with $6,591,860.

Personal Ensign, seemingly beaten at the head of the stretch, ran down Winning Colors, the 1988 Kentucky Derby winner, for a nose victory in the $1 million Distaff over 1 1/4 miles. She will now go to breeding after a career of 13 races as the first major American thoroughbred to retire unbeaten since Colin 80 years ago.

Lukas started a total of 12 horses in the seven Breeders' Cup races, and won with three of them. His mounts also posted three seconds, a third, a fifth and sixth and earned $2,193,000. Lukas has now won nine Breeders' Cup races and, in the five-year history of the series, his horses have earned $6,847,000.

Lukas' winners were Gulch in the $1 million Sprint over six furlongs, Open Mind in the $1 million Juvenile Fillies and Is It True in the $1 million Juvenile, both at 1-16 miles.

Is It True upset odds-on favorite Easy Goer, who is trained by Shug McGaughey, who also trains Personal Ensign.

The other two winners were Miesque in the $1 million Mile on the turf and longshot Great Communicator in the $2 million Turf.

State.

Stewart gained 98 yards on the day and needs only 17 to reach the 1,000-yard mark.

After taking the ball at their own 20-yard line on the game's first series, the Hawkeyes ran 12 consecutive running plays into the wind to drive 80 yards for the score. Richard Bass got the touchdown on an 11-yard run.

"We wanted to open up the game running the football, and run as much time off the clock as we could while we were going into the wind," Fry said.

Iowa rolled to a 21-0 half time lead, allowing the Wildcats only three first-half first downs.

Northwestern's Ira Adler got the a 31-yard field goal on the Wildcats' first possession of the second half.

Iowa added two more touchdowns before the Wildcats scored with one minute, 38 seconds left in the game against Iowa reserves.

"Iowa's defense, especially the defensive line, has to be credited with shutting down our offense," Northwestern Coach Francis Peay said. "I'm proud of our team's effort, but not happy with its productivity."

The Hawkeyes held Northwestern to 10 first downs and 210 yards of total offense.

Linebacker Brad Quast led Iowa with eight tackles, seven unassisted, and fellow linebacker Jim Reilly totaled seven.

Defensive end Joe Mott recorded one tackle-for-loss, and is now only one short of Andre Tippett's school record of 20. Noseguard Dave Haight was in on five stops and had an interception and a pass deflection.

"The ball landed in my arms and I took off running," Haight said of the interception. "I really didn't know what to do. I didn't want to fumble the ball, so I tried to protect it."

Wide receiver Jon Filloon worked his way back into the offense, grabbing four passes for 65 yards.

Hawks struggle at

By Julie Deardorff
The Daily Iowan

Two injured Iowa tennis players provided the weekend highlights at the Wisconsin Invitational.

Mike Kiewiet and Paul Buckingham combined to capture the No. 2 doubles title by beating Wisconsin's Dave Mirsberger and Jim Schneider in three sets, 7-6, 6-7, 6-5.

"It was like two different days," Iowa Coach Steve Houghton said. "The first day we lost seven of nine matches, and the second day we won seven of nine. Unfortunately, the second day, the guys we were playing weren't nearly as good."

Kiewiet, who normally plays one of the top singles positions, was only able to play doubles in the flighted tournament. Buckingham, on the other hand, who usually plays doubles, also played singles because of the injury situation.

Without Kiewiet, Bryan Stokstad and Jay Maltby, Iowa was forced to forfeit at No. 7 singles.

"There's no doubt our regular lineup could have done better, but the guys that did play turned in sub-par performances," Houghton said. "We just didn't put together good tennis long enough or consistently enough to win. If we play like this during the season it will not bode very well."

Senior Martin Aguirre posted Iowa's highest finish in singles play in the No. 2 position as he reached the finals with a 7-5, 6-4 victory over Keith Butterfield of Purdue. Aguirre then lost in the finals to Ken Fever of Nebraska, 4-6, 7-6, 6-4.

"I think it's the best tennis I've played in a long time," Aguirre said. "I'm taking more chances now. Before I was much more conservative, I would just serve and stay back. In the first match I had trouble holding my serve, but I

"We're really starting to click," Filloon said. "I'm starting to learn a little more, and I feel more comfortable and I think Chuck (Hartlieb) feels more comfortable with me."

Hartlieb, who completed an efficient 18 of 26 passes for 224 yards and no interceptions, said the week off from practice helped his leg injury.

"I'm a lot better than I was last week at this time," Hartlieb said. "The offensive line did a great job run blocking and pass blocking, and I didn't take any good shots today."

"I feel real good going into Ohio State."

finally did at the end." Dave Novak and Lars Nordmark finished third in No. 3 and No. 4 singles respectively. Tim Reynolds, in his first match of the year for Iowa, captured third at No. 6 singles with a 6-4, 7-6 win over Tom Lynch of Purdue.

The No. 1 doubles team of Claes Ramel and Aguirre finished third by beating John Windgardner and Butterfield of Purdue 5-7, 6-4, 6-3.

Also finishing third at No. 3 doubles were Novak and Nordmark, who beat Wagner and Andy Berlinksi of Purdue 6-4, 7-6.

The Hawkeyes' next competition is the ITCA meet at Indiana from Nov. 18 to 21.

Iowa gets relay experience, falls to Badgers in dual meet

By Steve Reed
The Daily Iowan

It was a long weekend in the water for the Iowa women's swimming team.

The Hawkeyes participated in the Northwestern Relays in Evanston, Ill., Sunday. The meet was not scored but it provided coaches with an opportunity to get a better look at their swimmers.

"It's a meet that gives us a chance to see our kids in competition and see what some can do in events they wouldn't normally be in," Iowa Coach Peter Kennedy said.

"It was a good swim for us. We were slowed by illnesses, but we're a young, improving team and I was pleased with the results we saw."

Wisconsin Coach Carl Johansson was happy to break Iowa's string. "It was the first time since 1982 that we've beaten them, and it's been a good road trip for us since we beat Iowa State on Friday," he said.

the season and snapped their streak of six consecutive dual meet victories over the Badgers.

However, it was closer than the 80-60 final score would indicate.

"They took us in some spots we thought we'd get, but we also got some good performances out of our kids," Kennedy said.

"It was a good swim for us. We were slowed by illnesses, but we're a young, improving team and I was pleased with the results we saw."

Wisconsin Coach Carl Johansson was happy to break Iowa's string.

"It was the first time since 1982 that we've beaten them, and it's been a good road trip for us since we beat Iowa State on Friday," he said.

"Iowa always gives us good competition and they're going to be real good in the future. Pete's (Kennedy) got a great coaching staff and some very talented swimmers."

Johansson cited Anderson as one of the standouts on the Hawkeye squad. She anchored the winning 400-yard medley relay team, won the 50-yard freestyle and placed second in the 100 freestyle.

Louise Keogh and Beth Janis also had outstanding days. Both swimmers were on the 400 medley relay team, and Keogh won the 100- and 200-yard breaststroke races while Janis captured first in the 100- and 200-yard butterfly events.

Freshman Katy Kettoff paced all divers by winning on both the one-meter and three-meter boards. Kettoff, Terri Millmier and Kim Yager posted NCAA qualifying scores on the one-meter, while Kettoff, Millmier and Vicki Ramsey qualified on the three-meter.

"I was happy with my diving and that was due to consistency," said Kettoff. "I think the team is building confidence and the future looks good since we're a young team."

Chicago tops Tampa Bay; Ditka watches from hospital

CHICAGO (AP) — While Mike Ditka sat in a hospital room and watched on television, his Chicago Bears made him feel pretty good.

Ditka, who suffered a mild heart attack Wednesday, watched with his wife and a doctor at Lake Forest Hospital on Sunday and he had to like what he saw as the Bears, 8-2, beat Tampa Bay 28-10.

"I think it would have been harder on him not to watch the game," said his wife Diana. "That would be more stress. . . . It was a good thing for him. It was a good test."

The game also was a good test for Mike Tomczak, who once again replaced an injured Jim McMahon at quarterback. Tomczak completed 18 of 26 passes for 269 yards and improved his record to 12-2 as a replacement starter for McMahon, including 5-0 against the Bucs.

Bengals 42, Steelers 7
CINCINNATI, Ohio — Eddie Brown set a club record with 216 yards receiving, including an 86-yard scoring play on the hosts' second play from scrimmage.

Boomer Esiason threw three touchdown passes, his first in three games. He was 15-for-23 for 318 yards as Cincinnati rolled up more than 500 yards of offense.

The Bengals scored on their first three possessions and had little trouble with the Steelers, who at 2-8 have their worst record since 1969, when they went 1-13 in Chuck Noll's first year as head coach.

Eagles 30, Rams 24
PHILADELPHIA — The Eagles' defense victimized Jim Everett for four interceptions — the Rams quarterback had yielded just five, fewest in the NFL.

Randall Cunningham threw three touchdown passes, two to rookie tight end Keith Jackson, who entered the game as the league's leading receiver with 51 catches.

ning with 104 yards, giving him more than 100 yards in three consecutive games. The last Patriot to do that was Don Calhoun in 1976.

The AFC East rivals, both fighting to stay in playoff contention, are 5-5 after the Patriots' sixth consecutive victory over Miami.

Giants 29, Cowboys 21
EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J. — The Giants won their fourth consecutive game against the dregs of the NFL and stayed in control of the NFC East. After mediocre outings in two wins over Detroit and one against Atlanta, New York surged to 26 points in the first half against Dallas, 2-8. The Cowboys have lost six straight, the first time they have dropped that many in one season since their first year.

Vikings 44, Lions 17
MINNEAPOLIS — Anthony Carter caught eight passes for 188 yards and Wade Wilson passed for a career-high 391 yards and two touchdowns.

Wilson, who has beaten out long-time starter Tommy Kramer for the quarterback job, completed 28 of 35 passes — including his first 14 for 205 yards in the second half.

Minnesota, 6-4, outgained Detroit 553-89 yards.

Falcons 20, Packers 0
ATLANTA — The Falcons snapped an eight-game slide at home and recorded their first shutout in six years. The Packers fell to 2-8 with their second consecutive shutout — they were blanked 28-0 by Buffalo last week.

Bills 13, Seahawks 3
SEATTLE — Robb Riddick scored a touchdown on a 1-yard run, and Scott Norwood kicked field goals of 27 and 23 yards Sunday as the Buffalo Bills beat the Seattle Seahawks 13-3 for their fifth straight victory.

The Bills, who lead the AFC East, improved their NFL-best record to 9-1, while the Seahawks, who started the day in sole possession of first place in the AFC West, had their record evened at 5-5.

Redskins 27, Saints 24
WASHINGTON — Chip Lohmiller kicked a 23-yard field goal with 47 seconds left Sunday to cap a fourth-quarter rally that gave the Washington Redskins a 27-24 victory over the New Orleans Saints, 7-3.

Broncos 17, Chiefs 11
DENVER — John Elway threw a 6-yard touchdown pass to Vance Johnson and Sammy Winder added another score on a short-yardage run as the Denver Broncos overcame penalties to defeat the turnover-prone Kansas City Chiefs 17-11 Sunday.

The Broncos, snapping a two-game losing streak, climbed into a first-place tie in the AFC West with Seattle at 5-5. The Chiefs dropped to 1-8-1.

Colts 38, Jets 14
INDIANAPOLIS — Rookie quarterback Chris Chandler passed 44 yards to Clarence Verdin and ran 29 yards for another touchdown during a third-quarter burst that carried the Indianapolis Colts to a 38-14 NFL victory Sunday over the penalty-plagued New York Jets.

Cardinals 24, 49ers 23
TEMPE, Ariz. — Neil Lomax hit Roy Green with a 9-yard touchdown pass with three seconds remaining, helping the St. Louis Cardinals to a dramatic 24-23 comeback victory over the San Francisco 49ers, 6-4, Sunday.

Leonard, Lalonde will match speed and power tonight

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Sugar Ray Leonard returns to the ring for only the third time in nearly seven years tonight, moving up in weight once more to take on Canada's Donny Lalonde for two different titles.

Leonard is a 3 1/2-1 favorite to beat Lalonde in the scheduled 12-round fight that has a contract limit of 168 pounds but will be for both Lalonde's World Boxing Council light heavyweight title and the WBC's newly created super middleweight crown.

The fighters stand to make the biggest paydays of their careers, with Leonard expected to earn up to $15 million and Lalonde some $5 million in a fight that has attracted Tyson." Lalonde, on the other hand, has demonstrated ability as a hard puncher, but many boxing observers believe he is a one-armed fighter whose ring talent is not only limited, but questionable.

"Ray is headed to the boxing hall of fame and Donny is not," admits Lalonde's manager, Dave Wolf. "Donny is a fighter who became a world champion through punching power and tenacity, but he'll never go down in history as one of the great ones."

Lalonde has 26 knockouts in winning 31 of 33 pro fights, but critics say he has no effective left jab or left hook and that no one can beat Leonard with just a right.

"My personal belief is that I'm the hardest punching light heavyweight in the world and I am fighting a welterweight, an old welterweight." — Donny Lalonde curiosity but lacks the excitement of Leonard's April 1987 comeback against Marvelous Marvin Hagler. "People ask how much longer I can fight," Leonard said. "I don't know. This may be in fact my farewell performance, I don't know."

Leonard, who has lost only once in 35 fights, expects to weigh the heaviest of his 11-year professional career at some 163 pounds, while Lalonde plans to come in near the 168-pound limit.

The fight in the 15,388-seat outdoor arena at Caesars Palace is expected to start about 10 p.m. It is being sold nationally on pay-per-view cable at $29.95 and in selected closed circuit locations.

On the surface, the fight offers an intriguing matchup of speed against power, with Lalonde packing the punch of a light heavyweight and Leonard famous for his ability to slip and move inside the ring.

But the 32-year-old Leonard isn't the same fighter who dazzled crowds and dominated opponents as a welterweight before retiring for the first time in 1982. He showed flashes of his old brilliance in scoring an upset split decision over Hagler, but another 19 months of inactivity and another five pounds may slow him further.

"People say I've lost a step here and there," Leonard said. "But those are the same people who said Michael Spinks would beat Mike Lalonde, who first separated his left shoulder while playing hockey at age 17, has had two operations on it, the last in 1982 to have a metal pin inserted to hold it together.

"My personal belief is that I'm the hardest punching light heavyweight in the world and I am fighting a welterweight," Lalonde said during Saturday's final press conference.

"He's right," Leonard shot back sarcastically. "I'm slow and I'm old."

The 28-year-old Lalonde was a self-managed fighter much of his career until hooking up with Wolf in 1985 and beginning a drive to become ranked as a light heavyweight.

Although some question the quality of the opponents Wolf picked for him, Lalonde performed well when he got a title shot in November 1987 against Eddie Davis, knocking him out in the second round, and again in his first title defense May 29, stopping Leslie Stewart in the fifth round.

Lalonde says he has studied video tapes of Leonard's fight against Hagler and believes he will be able to get his right hand across in the fight. "I feel Hagler hit him with many right hands and I don't see him doing anything different," he said. "I plan on hitting him hard with my right hand."

Frost fires 22-under for Tucson victory

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) — South African David Frost, unchallenged by ailing Mark Wiebe, compiled a 5-under-par 67 and coasted to a five-stroke victory on Sunday in the Tucson Open Golf tournament.

Frost acquired his second title of the season and of a four-year PGA Tour career with a 266 total, 22 shots under par on the TPC course at StarPass.

The victory was worth $108,000 from the purse of $600,000 and lifted Frost into sixth place on the money-winning list with $621,900 going into next week's season-ending Nabisco Championship.

The Nabisco tournament, which offers $3 million in prize money, is open only to the top 30 players from the season money-winning list. There were no changes in the makeup of that top 30 in this, the last tournament to qualify for golf's richest event.

Frost, who entered the final round in a tie for the lead with Wiebe, birdied the first three holes and wasn't really threatened again.

Wiebe wasn't a factor. He had severe stomach troubles overnight and sought medical attention when he arrived at the golf course.

"There was a lot of doubt I'd be able to play," Wiebe said. "I don't know what it was. The doctor said it could be the flu, or it could be food poisoning."

He was able to make his starting time, but was very pale and obviously in distress when he teed off.

Wiebe could do no better than a 73 — 12 strokes higher than his third-round 61 — and drifted back into a tie for fourth at 272.

"It was just one of those days you don't want to happen when you're tied for the lead going into the last round," Wiebe said.

On The Line

Two weeks remain in the Big Ten season, two weeks remain in the On The Line contest and staff expert Mike "Magic" Trilk has a two-game lead.

Trilk was helped by his competitors, who picked upsets that never materialized in a week with few surprises. Atop the heap with a 77-23 mark, Trilk is trailed by Sports Editor Brent Woods at 75-25. Neil Lewis and Matthew Zlatnik, both assistant sports editors, continue to vie for the cellar, deadlocked at 71-29.

Nothing short of a miracle could save Lewis and Zlatnik at this point. However, they have taken solace in knowing that their .71 winning percentage is even with last year's best staff record.

The entire staff and nearly every reader missed on the Illinois upset of Indiana. Even guest pundit Joe "the toe" Levy, Daily Iowan managing editor, dropped this one but still managed an impressive 9-1 showing.

We're not really sure what "the toe" stands for, but we think it has something to do with Levy's ability to peel bananas with his feet.

Nearly 20 readers stuck with the oddsmakers and turned in a 9-1 ballot. At least half of those 20 hung their tiebreaker hopes on Johns Hopkins, a great medical school but no match for conference powerhouse Franklin and Marshall. F&M won 33-14.

It pays to research the tiebreaker. It may look like a joke, but it usually decides each week's winner.

Chris Hanson came nearest to perfection of any reader, scratching out a 9-1 ballot and picking Franklin and Marshall, 31-14. When Hanson heard news of his accomplishment, he described it as a hollow victory considering there was no prize for this week's winner.

"No way," Hanson said, obviously unaware of this week's prize situation. "Oh boy, that's a real thrill. We need a keg. Oh man, that hurts."

After Hanson calmed himself, the true OTL spirit overcame him as he decided he and his pals would sponsor their own keg party in honor of the victory.

As long as we're on the subject of kegs, there isn't one for this week, either. Out of respect for those college football fans who don't enjoy swilling beer, and we believe there are a few, we have come up with a non-alcoholic prize.

OK. Respect has nothing to do with it, we just ran out of bars and kegs.

Hawkeye Heaven, 14 S. Dubuque St., the store with more Iowa stuff crammed into one room than you ever thought possible, will be handing over a gift certificate to this week's champ.

If you haven't won yet, you only have two weeks left to flaunt your prognosticating knowledge.

If you've never played before, the ballot below will appear in the Scoreboard section Tuesday through Thursday. Clip it, circle the teams you think will win, circle your pick for the tiebreaker, fill in the score and legibly scribble your name and phone number.

Drop your ballots in the OTL box in the DI Business Office before noon Thursday, and please, only three ballots per person.

Staff and reader's picks will appear in Friday's paper and the results column will follow in Monday's paper.

The Daily Iowan/Scott Norris

Surrounded
Iowa linebacker Jim Reilly, right, and defensive end Joe Mott sandwich Northwestern's Byron Sanders Saturday in Kinnick Stadium during Iowa's 35-10 victory. Sanders rushed for 130 yards in the game, his third straight with over 100 yards. He also caught two passes.

Illinois slips past Hoosiers with last-minute touchdown

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Jeff George fired a 5-yard touchdown pass to Mike Bellamy with 26 seconds left in the game Saturday to lead Illinois to a 21-20 victory over 20th-ranked Indiana in a matchup of Big Ten teams.

The victory improved the Illini record to 5-3-1, including a 4-1-1 mark in the Big Ten. Indiana fell to 6-2-1 and 4-2.

George had cut the Hoosiers' lead to five points late in the fourth quarter with a 21-yard scoring pass to Shawn Wax, after a freak fumble recovery and touchdown by Indiana had dimmed Illinois' chances.

Indiana's Erick Coleman took an Illinois pass away from Keith Jones and raced 47 yards for a touchdown to give the Hoosiers a 20-9 lead in the fourth quarter with about four minutes left in the game.

Michigan 22, Minnesota 7

ANN ARBOR, Mich. — Mike Gillette kicked five field goals and Tony Boles rushed for 184 yards on 32 carries to lead No. 14 Michigan to a 22-7 victory past Big Ten rival Minnesota on Saturday and claim the Little Brown Jug trophy.

Michigan, leaders of the Big Ten, improved to 6-2-1 overall and 5-0-1 in the conference. A Michigan win over Illinois next week would put the Wolverines in the Rose Bowl.

Big Ten Football

The Gophers fell to 2-5-2 and 0-4-2.

The victory was costly for Michigan, however. Starting quarterback Michael Taylor broke his collarbone on Michigan's first play from scrimmage and is out for the season.

Michigan State 48, Purdue 3

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. — Blake Ezor rushed for 150 yards and two touchdowns and Kurt Larson had two interceptions, returning one for a touchdown and setting up another score with the other, as Michigan State beat Purdue 48-3 in a Big Ten Conference football game on Saturday.

Ezor had 121 yards in the first half and sat out most of the final two periods as the Spartans played their reserves. Ezor, who raised his season rushing total to 1,032, scored on runs of 6 yards and 1 yard as the Spartans opened a 31-3 halftime advantage.

Michigan State accumulated 460 yards rushing and 542 yards total offense en route to its fourth consecutive victory, giving it a 4-4-1 record and moving to 4-1-1 in defense of its conference title.

Purdue is 4-5 overall, 3-3 in the conference.

John Langeloh kicked a 50-yard field goal as the opening half ended and had a 30-yarder on the Spartans' first possession of the second half.

Ohio State 34, Wisconsin 12

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Greg Frey ran for one touchdown and passed for two others in a span of 6:05 of the second quarter as Ohio State defeated Wisconsin 34-12 in a Big Ten Conference game Saturday.

The victory put an end to a two-game losing streak for Ohio State, 4-5 overall and 2-4 in the Big Ten, and kept alive the Buckeyes' hopes of averting their first losing season since 1966.

The loss was the 11th straight for Wisconsin, 0-9 and 0-6, which had beaten Ohio State in five of the last seven meetings.

Wisconsin, last among all NCAA Division I-A schools in scoring, led 6-3 after one quarter on Leon Hunt's 1-yard touchdown run on the Badgers' first possession of the game.

But Ohio State scored on a 21-yard pass from Frey to Marc Hicks on the second play of the second quarter for a 10-3 lead.

The Buckeyes' Vince Clark then blocked a punt by Brad Brekke on Wisconsin's ensuing possession to give Ohio State the ball at the Wisconsin 16.

"Spock World" explored

By Charlie Zimmerman
Special To The Daily Iowan

Tecklers, get out your charge cards and prepare to beam aboard. While less-enthusiastic and frugal student readers may want to wait for the paperback release of "Spock's World" (Pocket Books, $16.95), avid fans of "Star Trek" and the dozen or so books released each year will want to grab a copy of Dianne Duane's latest "Star Trek" novel. The cost, as you may have guessed, is due to the fact that this "Star Trek" novel, unlike any previous, was released in hardcover.

The hardcover release is no doubt due to the increasing popularity of the entire "Star Trek" concept. Yes, concept. Trek can no longer be called just a TV series or movie series; after over 20 years, it's a concept — an idea that man can rise above the problems confronting the 20th century and meet the challenges awaiting the race in space. Sure, it's a romantic concept, filled with unlikely aliens and starships, but it's an idea that many people have embraced since the TV series debuted in the 1960s.

It must be working, since "Spock's World" has spent several weeks on one of the top five books on The New York Times bestseller list. It's an interesting book. It's not your standard action-packed shoot-'em-up science-fiction adventure. Instead, it's a thoughtful look at the history of "Star Trek's" most enigmatic world: the planet Vulcan, home of Mr. Spock, the logical half-human science officer of the U.S.S. Enterprise.

At the onset, we find the ever-popular Spock being called back to Vulcan. The purpose of the visit: to speak at a forum concerned with a possible vote of the planet's entire population to pull out of the United Federation of Planets. Since the Federation is the main governing body in this arm of the galaxy, this vote causes some anxiety in Starfleet, where Spock serves. After all, we can't have all our logical computer wizards running off to their own planet, can we? So, of course, the heroic Captain James T. Kirk and Ship's Surgeon Leonard McCoy are shipped off to escort Mr. Spock back home and also to speak at the forum.

Now because inquiring minds want to know, the time frame of the book is set somewhere between the first and second "Star Trek" movies, so Kirk is still the captain of the yet-to-be-blown-up Enterprise and Spock is yet to be killed at the hands of the evil Khan. McCoy is still... McCoy.

However, the forum and the Enterprise characters serve mainly as a framing device for the real plot of the book. Alternating with chapters set in the "present" are glimpses of Vulcan's past, in which Duane reveals secrets and fills in background facts that, for the first time, make Vulcan and its people seem a little more plausible to the average reader (that is, if you can accept alien invasions, large sentient beings living beneath the deserts and a whole planet of telepaths developed through selective breeding as plausible.)

"Spock's World" may not be the most planet-shaking book of 1988, but if this clever writing and decent plot is good enough for The New York Times, it's certainly good enough to distract you from your studies for a while.

London Brass adds a twist to tradition

By Neil Lewis
The Daily Iowan

The bright and varied colors of the London Brass filled Hancher Auditorium Friday night with the old and the new, proving the small brass ensemble can continue to entertain if they evolve while preserving tradition.

The barely filled floor section in Hancher and the empty balcony gave witness to the fact that there just isn't much vital interest in small brass ensembles in this area.

The lack of student attendance indicated that to many 18- to 21-year-olds, a brass ensemble means 40 Hawkeye Marching Band members standing in the walking mall fountain on a Saturday night, blaring their heart-warming rendition of "In Heaven There Is No Beer."

The opening selection, Louis Couperin's "Battle Suite: 'Le Triumphant,'" firmly grounded the Brass in 17th-century tradition. This is what people expect to hear from a brass repertory.

But for most, save those who prefer to listen Perry Como's Christmas album until the grooves wear through, hearing what we expect to hear soon becomes completely boring.

The key is in the repertoire.

With the precise yet feeling interpretation of Baroque music, the London Brass could never be faulted for their musicianship. But most college students would risk missing a good Baroque ensemble to stand in line for U2's new film, "Rattle and Hum."

The difference is instrumentation and musical selection: from piccolo trumpet to tuba, from Bach to Ravel. The Brass makes use of flugelhorn and bass trombone, giving even more tone color possibilities.

Anne McAneney, the sole female member of the group of 10, stood apart from the group. Her flugelhorn lines, not the fact that she was the only one onstage clad in a skirt, brought her to the forefront during at least three selections.

Ravel's "Beauty and the Beast," a 10-minute piece of program music, was the obvious crowd-pleaser. Intentional or not, it just so happened McAneney drew the part of Beauty with the tuba countering as the brooding beast.

At times, the 10 instruments could achieve the blend of a pipe organ, playing as one instrument instead of 10. Or, as in their interpretation of selections from Bach's "Violin Concerto in A Minor," the trumpets could trade the violin line while all four trombones faked the cello line.

Though the ensemble's idea of stage presence is white tux jackets with black pants and blue shirts, the character of their music more than made up for any lack of communication with the audience.

JCL injects pizzazz into big band jazz

By Kevin Goulding
The Daily Iowan

Johnson County Landmark, the top jazz big band in the UI School of Music, will perform a free concert at 8 tonight in Clapp Recital Hall.

The band will be joined by the UI student jazz ensemble Straight Out.

JCL, under the direction of Paul Scea, will perform two original compositions by members of the band: Craig Macmillan's "Umaniano" and Tim O'Dell's "Malto Bop," as well as O'Dell's arrangement of Wayne Shorter's "Yes and No." Duke Ellington's "The Moch" and Scea's composition, "Bukowski," round out the program.

"We like to perform a lot of student compositions," said Scea, who is in his second year as the group's director. "We try to be as creative as possible within the big band idiom, while at the same time trying to further it."

JCL has won top awards at jazz competitions in both the U.S. and Europe, including the Silver Tulip award from Holland's Tulip Time Festival, an international music ensemble competition. The group is one of a handful of college bands that has performed by invitation at the prestigious Montreux Festival in Switzerland.

"Malto," a cross between Miles Davis and James Brown, according to Scea, and "Umaniano" are typical of the variety and freedom of composition in JCL.

"Umaniano" is different, nothing you'd expect a college band to be playing," said Scea. "It's unusual for college bands to be (so diverse). We'll also be playing an old, old (1928) Ellington tune, as authentically as possible."

Scea's own composition is dedicated to the poet Charles Bukowski.

"It incorporates electronic-altered acoustic instruments," Scea said. "It's a somewhat unusual form — hopefully we'll pull it off."

JCL is in its second year as a UI jazz band. The group, which has 18 members, gives up to 15 performances a year, with one performance on the UI campus and several at Gabe's Oasis, 330 Washington St.; the Santeiro Restaurant and Pub, 405 S. Gilbert St.; and other area clubs.

Trombonist Cleve Maloon, a second-year graduate student, is a trombone performance, appreciating the opportunity for "self-expression." Maloon, who has from St. Thomas in the Virgin Islands, had an original composition ("Blue Bossa") performed by the JCL last year and will have performed in the spring.

"The JCL is very innovative, away from the traditional big band sounds you're used to hearing," said Scea. "It's a great way to express yourself either improvisationally with your own composition."

"JCL is a great creative outlet for the students," said Scea. "It's a rare organization, because it gives the students a chance to write the works they will perform. This gives them a lot of control. It also gives them a chance to be experimental to try the things they want to try."

UI students air 'Dysfunctions'

By Roberta Branca
Special to The Daily Iowan

As any truck driver or insomniac knows, radio can be a kind of therapy. Some UI students have decided to make this relationship a little more explicit.

"Tales of Dysfunction" is a new radio show created by an advanced audio production class taught by Dan Coffey, a visiting assistant professor of communication studies.

Coffey is nationally known as a member of Ducks Breath Mystery Theatre and as the character Dr. Science.

The show parodies the newest craze in human interfacing, the self-help group. "Tales of Dysfunction" is touted as a "story about real people with real problems." Each week, the members of a fictitious self-help group relate childhood incidents that they feel are the root of all their problems as adults.

According to class member Brad Ross, the show is not meant to question the necessity of legitimate support groups but to poke fun at the human tendency to blame personal failings on outside incidents.

According to Dennis Reese, programming director of WSUI, "Tales of Dysfunctions" is "very creative." Reese said he plans to broadcast the show on a weekly basis as part of Ducks Breath Playhouse. Reese said it is Coffey's involvement with the show that appeals to his station and said he would not run other student projects unless they were produced in conjunction with a production class.

Jim Havercamp, manager of the student-run KRUI and a member of Coffey's class, said he believes the show will have a broad appeal for UI students.

"College students have always been on the edges, making fun of everyone else," Havercamp said.

Strong acting highlights 'A Man for all Seasons'

The Iowa City Community Theatre is a big drafty barn-like building on the Johnson County 4-H Fairgrounds. The stage inside is a simple affair of platforms with a minimum of props. The people that were on that stage Friday night all live and work and pay taxes in Iowa City.

And yet, during Friday night's Community Theatre production of "A Man For All Seasons," the setting was transformed; the political and religious intrigues of the 16th century — as well as the nuances of a complex play — were brought to three-dimensional life.

This is the beauty of community theater: No other form of drama seems so accessible, and so no other form of drama works quite so well when it works well at all.

"A Man For All Seasons" works well. Father Tom Buechele in the lead of Sir Thomas More not only proved fluent and confident in this long role but also managed to provide the sheer personal presence that the part requires. His More never really forgets to have a sense of humor, and that element makes the play in many ways deeper and more difficult to resolve. Unfortunately, there was a negative counterpart to this tone; Father Buechele seldom conveyed the passion that must be visible underneath the faith and hope.

Often such subtleties come only after the main memory work of the play is down like clockwork.

Robert Bolt's play is filled with strong supporting characters, and likewise Friday night's show was filled with strong performances all around. Scott Humeston invested his The Common Man with a texture of humanity beneath his cynicism and banter, and Chris Ragner portrayed the rise — and moral fall — of Master Rich with a near-perfect balance of vulnerability and venality. Loren Tegatz produced perhaps the night's most consistently energetic effort with his portrayal of the Duke of Norfolk.

Susan Short as Lady Alice More was vigorously superb, with a bell-clear voice and the cast's clearest ear for timing. Jacque Hinshaw as More's daughter Meg was equally fine, providing skillful amounts of the passion lacking from much of the cast.

Perhaps the biggest — and most pleasant — surprise of the night was Timothy Troy's Thomas Cromwell, the scheming ear of the king. In a role that could so easily degenerate into simple one-dimensional villainy, Troy's silken version found new depths, and as a result Cromwell tended to steal the scenes in which he appeared.

Iowa City Community Theatres' "A Man For All Seasons" plays on the weekends throughout November. It is highly recommended.
