Candidates make final plea to public

The jury goes out for Bush, Dakakis

By Bob Drury

The Associated Press

George Bush went on the run this week, ending in the polls as he plotted a "steady hand" to build on the successes of the Reagan years, according to a new poll showing a major increase in his support among the White House. Bush's surges of support might be ending as both parties' candidates come into clearer focus, a study of potential voters shows.

Bush's support may be on its way to hitting a peak, according to the latest poll. In the last two weeks, the president's support has moved from 32 percent to 37 percent. The poll, conducted by the Associated Press-NORC, a division of the University of Chicago, was released on Wednesday.

Bush leads Dukakis by 52 percent to 45 percent, according to the poll. The same poll, released two weeks ago, showed Bush leading Dukakis by 51 percent to 46 percent.

"It's a great opportunity for the president to build on his lead and he'll probably do it," said Phil Gramm, a conservative economist and former Treasury secretary. "But it's a high bar to build on."
Metro

Metro/Iowa

Referendum will decide role of Iowa's leaders

By Matt Deavin

If Gov. Terry Branstad is ever

The people already have the power to keep both parties under the present current Constitution. The 1974 consistent with the provisions of the constitutions of other states cor-will not change the role of the treaties. The amendment would eighty percent parliament of the constitutions will not change the role states that allow both parties to

The study should be continued to

to use their money to buy

Student to debate

Iowa seniors

A public debate sponsored by the

Section 304, E. Burlington

Saturday, November 21, 1987

eighty percent parliament of the

to use their money to buy

Student to debate

Iowa seniors

A public debate sponsored by the

Section 304, E. Burlington

Saturday, November 21, 1987

Students at debate

South African sanctions

A public debate sponsored by the

Section 304, E. Burlington

Saturday, November 21, 1987

Students at debate

South African sanctions

A public debate sponsored by the

Section 304, E. Burlington

Saturday, November 21, 1987

Students at debate

South African sanctions

A public debate sponsored by the

Section 304, E. Burlington

Saturday, November 21, 1987

Students at debate

South African sanctions
In the fall, the University of Iowa expanded its parking system by converting a student parking lot into a student parking facility. The lot, which is four blocks away from the library, was previously not in use due to the hospital and has now been converted into a student parking lot.

Paul Mitnitzky, director of planning and financial services, said, "Every parking spot means a lot to the students." He added that the new parking lot will provide easier access to the library for students who previously had to park further away.

Dave Ricketts, director of parking and transportation services, said, "It's the only parking lot on campus that we can show you at any time during the day that would be almost completely empty." Ricketts said the 224-space lot, which is one of the cheapest metered parking lots on campus, will be used primarily by students who currently park in the Old Music Building parking area.

The new parking lot will be used by students who currently park in the Old Music Building parking area. This lot will provide easier access to the library for students who previously had to park further away.

The new parking lot will be used by students who currently park in the Old Music Building parking area. This lot will provide easier access to the library for students who previously had to park further away.