Pro-coup fliers banned in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Troops and police went on alert Sunday after authorities blocked bus convoys carrying thousands of civilians into Manila to distribute leaflets calling for a coup, officials said.

The leaflets distributed Saturday called for the military overthrow of President Corazon Aquino's government, said the officials, who spoke on condition of anonymity.

"The armed forces of the Philippines is now taking over the government," the Manila newspaper Malaya quoted one of the leaflets as saying. "We will replace unpatriotic government officials who are only interested in building political parties."

Police in the Manila suburb of Las Pinas said they detained about 20 people who were spreading the leaflets, all but five were released. More than 1,000 other people were blocked by police when they arrived in Las Pinas in a convoy of buses and jeeps from the nearby province of Cavite.

In Manila's Sampaloc district, Col. Leonardo Orig of the Philippine Constabulary said police intercepted 12 buses and four jeeps carrying about 600 people, some of whom were handing out pro-coup leaflets. The group came from the northern provinces of Tarlac, Pangasinana and La Union.

Similar movements were reported in other areas, including the capital's financial district of Makati, where police rounded up more than 100 people. All were released after a few hours of questioning.

"Everything is normal now and we may lift the alert tonight or tomorrow," said Orig, who said the demonstrators had been paid.

Officials who asked not to be identified said they were told by investigators that right-wing extremists were using the convoys as a way of "testing the waters" for mounting a possible coup attempt.

Authorities have foiled a half-dozen coup attempts against Aquino, who came to power after a civilian-military uprising in February 1986 that ousted President Ferdinand Marcos.

In another development, forensic experts were trying to determine if skeletons exhumed in central Luzon were those of two women allegedly slain in a military cover-up of the 1983 killing of Aquino's husband.

The remains, exhumed Saturday, were being tested in Manila to

Denied visa prompts threats of U.N. move

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — The U.N. Arab League ambassador said Sunday he has enough votes to move a General Assembly session to Geneva so PLO chief Yasir Arafat can address the world body on the Palestinian issue.

Jordan and Egypt agreed to spearhead the effort to reconvene the world body in the Swiss city, Jordan's official news agency reported.

They urged the unprecedented protest after the United States denied Arafat a visa Saturday to address the body in New York.

In Kuwait, a senior Palestine Liberation Organization official said the U.S. decision was "an open call for extremism." Egyptian Foreign Minister Esmat Abdel-Meguid and his Jordanian counterpart, Taher Masri, said they had scrapped plans to visit New York in protest.

Reaction to the U.S. decision came quickly. Israeli leaders praised it, but Algeria, Egypt, France, Libya, Norway and Sweden were among nations that protested the decision. Italy summoned a U.S. Embassy official to explain the decision.

Clovis Maksoud, the Arab League's U.N. ambassador, said Arab nations felt "deep anger and outrage" over the U.S. decision and will ask the General Assembly to condemn it.

Arafat wanted to enter the United States to address the U.N. body in New York on Thursday, when debate is scheduled on the Palestinian problem. A nearly 1-year-old Palestinian uprising in Israeli-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip has left at least 316 Palestinians and 11 Israelis dead.

But the State Department rejected his visa Saturday and said the leader of the PLO "knows of, condones and lends support to" terrorist attacks.

"The issue of terrorism is a red herring used by the State Department, because the State Department knows very well that resistance to Israeli occupation does not under any stretch of the imagination fall under the rubric of terrorism," Maksoud said.

Approval to move the U.N. body to Geneva would require a simple majority of the 159 members. The members have regularly approved Palestinian-backed resolutions by an overwhelming majority.

"I really don't see any problem (of passage) if the resolution is proposed in a reasonable manner," Maksoud said.

"Tomorrow (Monday) the recommendation will be made at a meeting of the Arab group" of U.N. member states, Maksoud said. "Also we will ask the General Assembly to condemn this decision. This is the thrust of our thinking."

"I think that also the people in the non-aligned countries and the European countries realize what a dangerous precedent" the U.S. action is, he said. The non-aligned group has 101 voting members in the General Assembly.

A source close to the Arab League, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the Arab diplomats will consider a legal challenge to the U.S. decision when they meet Monday.

U.N. spokesman Francois Giuliani said the U.N. legal counsel was studying the State Department's decision and would advise Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar today. Until then, he said, the United Nations would have no comment on the developments.

Moving the General Assembly out of New York as a protest would be unprecedented.

Earlier this year, Arab and developing nations considered moving the current session to Geneva when a U.S. attempt to close the PLO's U.N. observer mission was working its way through U.S. courts.

In March, the General Assembly voted 148-2 to condemn the U.S. attempt to evict the PLO mission by attempting to enforce an anti-terrorism law. Only Israel joined the United States in voting against the resolution.

In June, a U.S. District judge ruled the anti-terrorism law does not supercede the U.N. Headquarters Agreement and struck down the Justice Department's lawsuit, making the issue moot.

Maksoud said the Arab group probably would call for postponement of debate on Palestine in the regular session, scheduled to end by mid-December, and reconvene in December or January in Geneva.

The Palestine National Council, a PLO parliament-in-exile, proclaimed an independent Palestinian state Nov. 15. The move implicitly recognized Israel by endorsing Security Council Resolution 242, which guarantees all Mideast states the right to exist in peace.

The PLO has non-voting observer status at the United Nations and is a member of the Arab League.

In Kuwait, Salah Khalaf, also known by his codename of Abu Iyad, told the Associated Press that the U.S. action Saturday was "tantamount to an open call for extremism."

Khalaf, who is second to Arafat in the PLO's Fatah faction, also said the Palestine National Council might be reconvened to revoke recent moderate declarations.

UI student: Access criteria put handicapped in inferior role

By Roberta Branca
Special to The Daily Iowan

The quality of education for many students with disabilities is impaired by a lack of accessibility to some UI facilities.

Institutions receiving federal aid are required by Section 504 of the federal law to provide program accessibility. According to this law, the UI is required to make each program offered by the university accessible to disabled students, not each individual facility.

This means that UI officials may relocate classes that are scheduled in inaccessible classrooms. But even in accessible classrooms, disabled students must sometimes enter lecture halls at basement entries or ring for an attendant to open accessible doors.

"That's very inconvenient," said Larry Quigley, a UI graduate student in physical education skills who is disabled. "It puts the handicapped student in an inferior role."

The state Board of Regents has determined four criteria that all existing buildings must meet to comply with federal law, said Al Stroh, administrative assistant for the UI Office of Facilities Planning.

All buildings constructed before section 504 was enacted in 1977 must have one accessible entrance, one accessible public restroom for each sex, one accessible water fountain and access to all or selected levels of the building.

But for Quigley and other disabled students, these standards for accessibility are inadequate. In many instances, it's difficult for a disabled student to move around the campus freely.

"An accessible building is one in which a disabled student could enter the main area where everybody else enters," Quigley said.

In many buildings built before 1977, handicapped students must enter through back or side entrances and many times must travel down long corridors to reach an elevator or lift system.

Donna Chandler, coordinator of the UI Office of Services for Persons with Disabilities, agrees with Quigley. Chandler said it is ironic that the UI exceeds minimum codes for requirements like heating and lighting.

"Legally, we could keep the buildings at 50 degrees. Legally, we could turn off half the lights. But we wouldn't expect people to put up with that," Chandler said.

In 1973, the university appropriated more than $2 million to upgrade accessibility. This funding added lifts and automatic doors in many previously inaccessible buildings.

These funds have since been depleted, and no more funds are available to bring older buildings up to code, Stroh said.

"We have completed our program (to meet regents' criteria) and provide program accessibility," he said.

The access laws require buildings constructed after 1977 to be more accessible. Some guidelines are included in the law, but institutions are still not required to

'Towing' the line of parking fines

By Erich Nus
Special to The Daily Iowan

If it hasn't happened to you, it's happened to someone you know. Returning from the game, classes or shopping, you suddenly stop — your car is gone.

You've been towed. "I was so pissed," said UI junior Virgil Hare. "They had no right to do it. There was a miscommunication between me and my landlord. He said I could park there. I had to get off work, call a friend to take me way out to Holiday Towing, come up with $55 — it's the worst."

UI sophomore Geoff Line said he is already a veteran of seven tows. "I used to work at Glaser Audio, on the corner of Iowa and Linn, and I had to use the meters," Line said. "You can't just drop your customer to check on your meter every hour and a half. So, yeah, I got towed a lot. They used to know me personally."

A friend assured UI freshman Dominic Zappia there was "lots of extra parking" at his fraternity. Zappia realized his car was gone four days after it had been towed, so he paid over $100 to retrieve it.

"I had to borrow the money to pay it off," Zappia said. "I'm going to take my car home. It's just not worth it."

Dianna Donohue, customer service manager for the Johnson County Treasury Division that handles towing fines and payments, said she expects hostile reactions from people who have been towed.

"It's understandable," Donohue said. "People are going to be irate. We just try to be cooperative and sit them down and explain to them what happened. Most of the time they are confused and just want to know what is going on."

"Of course, if they get belligerent or abusive, the police department is right next door," she said.

Holiday Wrecker and Crane Service owner Jerry Wissink, who holds the Iowa City towing contract, said he also expects a certain amount of displeasure.

"I understand," Wissink said. "I had my car towed once too. But people know why they're here. It is

DEA admits to phony drug seizures, false news reports

HOUSTON (AP) — The U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration admits it has directed local law enforcement agencies nationwide to stage phony drug seizures and generate false news reports about them to help DEA agents gain the confidence of drug lords.

DEA spokesman Maurice Hill in Washington, D.C., said the technique is employed in high-traffic areas across the country, including Florida and Texas, the Houston Chronicle reported Sunday.

"It's a procedure that is used, but I can't begin to tell you with what frequency," Hill told the newspaper. "It's not a new technique, I can tell you that."

Staging bogus seizures and feeding the information to reporters apparently came into practice several years ago to resolve a problem for undercover drug agents posing as cocaine importers for Colombian drug lords, according to the Chronicle.

Often the DEA operatives, posing as middlemen, deliver the drugs to local dealers according to instructions from Colombian exporters. They then keep the shipment under surveillance in the hope of intercepting it before it hits the streets, officials said.

But the DEA sometimes ensures that drugs never reach the street another way, the newspaper reported: by having local authorities seize the drugs before they are delivered to the local dealers. In some cases, even the officers making the seizures don't realize that busts were planned in advance by their superiors.

Newspaper clippings on the fake seizures help convince the traffickers that the seizures are for real, according to the Chronicle, which determined that at least two highly publicized seizures in the Houston area had been staged.

"The Colombians, the only way they'll believe you is to show them the stuff (drugs), the money or the newspaper clips," Hill said.

Harris County Sheriff Johnny Klevenhagen, whose office cooperated in at least two staged seizures, said local police agencies use the tactic only at the request of the DEA. He praised the bogus seizures as "very productive in taking illicit drugs off the street."

He added that withholding information is a common police procedure, and that it does not constitute lying for officers to withhold the true origin of drugs when discussing a staged seizure.

While many law enforcement agencies defend the ruses on grounds that they preserve investigations and protect agents, journalists say the scams raise ethical questions about government deception of the news media and the public.

"If the DEA is willing to lie to the media and public about this issue, what else might they be willing to lie about?" asked Chronicle Managing Editor Tony Pederson.

"There seems to have been no accountability in the entire process," Pederson added.

The newspaper described two phony seizures in the Houston area.

Correction

In a story headlined "Bottled water floods health-minded market," (DI, Nov. 18), it was incorrectly reported that 4,000 deaths are linked to contaminated drinking water in the United States each year. Actually, 4,000 cases of illness are linked to contaminated drinking water every year.

The DI regrets the error.

Board discusses remodeling

By Jean Thilmany
The Daily Iowan

The Johnson County Courthouse clerks office is ripe for remodeling, according to the courthouse remodeling committee.

But the Johnson County Board of Supervisors aren't sure if they can foot their portion of the bill, the supervisors said at last Tuesday's meeting.

The courthouse remodeling committee was appointed approximately three years ago to discuss much-needed courthouse remodeling projects and has, since then, worked to remodel two courtrooms.

"The (remodeling committee) is now talking specifically about the clerk of court's office as the next phase in the project," said Rick Clymer, administrator for the 6th Judicial District, who serves on the remodeling committee.

The remodeling committee is made of 6th Judicial District court officials.

Remodeling plans include removing the walls separating small claims, civil, criminal and administrative offices and dividing office space by using partitions.

"The public won't be stumbling over everything trying to get to the back of the office," Clymer said.

The plans also include installing new lighting, dropping the ceiling and painting the walls," he added.

The state will provide the carpeting and office furnishings at an estimated $40,000 cost. The county will pay approximately $100,000, including $65,000 for mechanical work to the ventilation system.

Supervisor Dick Myers said ventilation costs could be too high.

"I'm having a difficult time figuring out why we need so much duct work," Myers said.

Clymer said the new vents would bring fresh air to the office workers, but added he wasn't sure if the total cost was necessary.

"This is just a preliminary estimate," Clymer said.

Myers said the supervisors would have trouble financing their share of the project.

"I think we'll have a difficult time coming up with the money this year," Myers said. "The major question is how much the mechanical contract will cost."

If the state's money is not used this year, the appropriation could be lost, Judge August Honsell said.

"We are hoping we can get the clerk's office plans finalized before our budgeting time period runs out," he said.

After Neumann Monson Architects of Iowa City make specific cost estimates, the supervisors will decide whether or not to act on the project, Supervisor Donald Sehr said.

"If (the remodeling project) doesn't fly it's not going to cost us anything," Sehr said.

In other business, the supervisors voted to pay the extra rent that will allow the County Human Services Department, 911 N. Governor St., to expand.

The department now employs 53 people. The county pays the rent, but is reimbursed by the state for roughly 50 percent of the fee, Carol Thompson, Department of Human Service head, said.

The new addition will consist of one hallway containing 12 offices, a restroom and a smoking room, Thompson said.

The board also voted to sell a disputed piece of property to Benjamin and Allyn Elkin for $1,001 on the condition they demolish the house standing on the property.

The tax-delinquent land originally belonged to Max Yocum, but was offered for public sale after he refused to pay more than $5,000 in back taxes.

Duane Anderson, of Iowa City, bid $2,000 for the 75-by-200-foot lot located about one-half mile south of Highway 1.

During a Nov. 3 meeting, Anderson told supervisors he was a friend of Yocum's and planned to purchase the lot and sell it back to Yocum.

Myers said his main objective was to have the house torn down. The house has no window or heating system; it has holes in the floor and walls.

The Elkins will have until Nov. 1, 1989, to tear down the structure.

SPI board creates investigative subcommittee

The Daily Iowan

The Student Publications Incorporated board, the body that oversees The Daily Iowan, formed a subcommittee to address the topics of sexism, management skills, operating procedures and orientation in the DI newsroom during a meeting Nov. 21.

SPI board members Bill Casey, Clare Fairfield, Frances Hoffman, Susan Johnson and Nancy Mortensen will serve on the subcommittee, which will meet regularly and present a report at each of the board's meetings.

The board also appointed University Editor John Bartenhagen as acting editor of the newsroom for the remainder of the fall semester, ending December 20.

Chris Lamb resigned as editor of the DI Nov. 16 following controversy over a "Top Ten" list titled "Rate-A-Babe."

Two male staff members compiled the list, which ranked one male and nine female staff members according to personality, clothing and hair styles. The list had been placed in the "dead file" of the DI's computer system but was retrieved and placed in an active file, where staff members had access to it.

Editorial Page Editor John Golden resigned at a staff meeting Nov. 14.

Lamb, who had been editor of the DI since June, cited personal reasons for leaving the position.

During the eight-hour meeting, 17 people addressed the board, including 13 DI newsroom employees, one non-newsroom DI employee and two people who aren't employed by the paper, according to Casey, the newspaper's publisher. The board met for seven hours in executive session.

The board also voted to begin a search for an editor for the spring 1989 semester during the meeting.

Advertising for the position begins today and the application deadline is noon, Dec. 9, Casey said. The board will name the editor for the spring semester at the very latest by Dec. 20, the last day of final's week, Casey said.

"It's an unfortunate thing that happened, but in the long run it will be a positive thing for The Daily Iowan," Casey said, referring to the "Rate-A-Babe" controversy and the resignation of two newsroom editors.

The SPI board consists of 11 members, three from the UI faculty, two from the UI staff and six UI students.

The UI Faculty Senate selects the faculty members, who serve three-year terms. Staff members, who serve two-year terms, and student members, who serve one- or two-year terms, are elected to the board.

Board gives principals new voice in decisions

By Sara Langenberg
The Daily Iowan

The first meeting of Iowa City School Board members with principals and associate principals in the Iowa City school district went well, said Board President Connie Champion.

The goal of last Monday's meeting was to get the district's building administrators — the principals and associate principals — more involved with decisions made in the district, Champion said.

Usually, the needs of building administrators are relayed to the board by central district administrators in the decision-making process, she said.

The meeting was intended to be a brainstorming session or a roundtable discussion rather than a decision-making meeting, Champion said.

About half of the district's building administrators attended last Monday's meeting. Board member Fran Malloy said the meeting was beneficial for the district because it was conducted in a positive atmosphere.

"(The meeting) was pro-active, rather than waiting till something goes wrong," she said.

Malloy said most of the meeting was devoted to financial issues, like future state funding for the district.

But the administrators also discussed long-term goals for the district and the possibility of an area demographic study with some members of the board, Champion said.

Champion said budget-cutting decisions and problem solving would be facilitated by the creation of a long-term goal, or "mission statement," for the district.

The "mission statement" would be a priority set by the board for district groups and committees to work around, such as "lowering the student-to-teacher ratio," Champion said.

This meeting, and one in the future with the other half of the district's building administrators, will help determine what this mission will be, Champion said.

At its regular meeting Nov. 22, the board approved a proposal requiring all coaches and assistant coaches in the district to be certified in Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation by next year.

Malloy said the CPR requirement was a safety precaution because the district's athletes are under additional physical stress.

There are about 85 coaches in the district at this time, said Shaun McCarthy, the district's health specialist and trainer.

"Anything we can do to make conditions safer for athletes is positive," he said.

The board's next meeting will be a workshop session Dec. 6, to discuss budget-cutting measures, Champion said.

Christmas fund gives Iowa's needy a reason to be merry

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa merchants are enjoying a strong surge at the beginning of the Christmas sales season, but thousands of Iowans aren't enjoying a season of plenty this year, and a fund has been set up to help them.

"We still have a lot of unemployed people, and we are getting a lot of new arrivals," said Sheila Church, who works with low-income families for the Southeast Iowa Community Action Organization in Henry County. "People are moving to Iowa because they are hearing that we have jobs. But we don't have enough jobs."

Or the jobs aren't paying enough. Howard and Paula Cramer and their two small children moved back to Iowa this fall. Howard has found work washing dishes and doing janitorial work for a cafeteria in Cedar Rapids, but he is paid only $3.75 an hour. The family lives at a shelter and Paula Cramer has applied for welfare.

"The only thing I can say we really have right now is two kids," said Paula, who is pregnant and expecting a third child in February.

For most of Iowa, the economy is apparently on the upswing, and retailers are smiling.

"All the signs are good" for strong Christmas sales, said Drake University economist Robert Kemp. "I think retailers should get ready. It's going to be a really good year."

"Employment is better than it has been at any time in the last 14 to 15 years, and that means people will have more money to spend."

State economist Harvey Siegelman said Iowans have millions of dollars more to spend this year than last. An estimated 50,000 more Iowans have jobs as of October compared to last year, and assuming each job earns a conservative $13,000 a year, that's an additional $650 million in annual payroll, he said.

Of that, he said, an estimated $500 million would be available for spending on consumer items. That alone would boost the state's retail spending by about 3 percent annually, and some experts say consumer spending may increase by 10 percent or more this year, thanks to pent-up demand.

Despite the improving economy, many are being left behind, said Debbie McEndarfer, an anti-poverty worker for the North Iowa Community Action Organization in Butler County.

"I don't see any big improvement for many people," she said. "There may be a lot of $3.35-an-hour jobs opening up in restaurants. But they aren't enough to live on, and they don't provide health insurance."

Ed and Debbie Hinkle of rural Winfield aren't enjoying the economic surge either. Ed, a construction worker when jobs are available, averages about $1,200 a month in gross pay, said his wife. That has to support five children ranging in age from 11 months to 11 years.

"At Christmas time, we don't get very much for the kids. Even then we sometimes get behind on the bills," she said.

"It's very hard on the children. Some of their friends get computers and expensive toys, and we just have to tell the kids we can't afford that. But they still feel bad."

To help Iowans in need at Christmas time, The Des Moines Register and the Iowa Children's and Family Services have set up a fund similar to one established four years ago to help starving people in Ethiopia. In the earlier "Iowa Cares" effort, some 60,000 Iowans contributed $750,000 for Ethiopia.

The Iowa Cares at Christmas fund will provide aid to people in need as identified by social workers in regional social service offices. Gifts may be sent to Iowa Cares at Christmas in care of the Iowa, Children's and Family Services, Box 7151, Des Moines, 50309.

Device curbs drunken drivers

DES MOINES (AP) — The latest gadget in the war against drunken drivers is a breath detector attached to the ignition that won't let an intoxicated person start the car, but critics say the machine is far from foolproof.

The device measures blood alcohol content and locks the ignition if the proposed driver has been drinking. New legislation allows the device to be installed, at the driver's cost, in cases where the driver might otherwise lose his license because of drunken driving convictions.

So far, about a dozen orders for interlock devices have been filled by Ignition Interlock Systems of Iowa, an Urbandale company whose president Garard Stanton said the firm is the only one in Iowa selling interlock devices that meet standards set by the new law.

He said one of his first customers was a 25-year-old truck driver who had two drunken driving convictions and faced revocation of his license for a year. Without a license, he would be out of a job. The trucker's attorney obtained the necessary order from a judge and the driver's two trucks were brought to the Urbandale firm for installation of the device.

For the next year, no one can start either vehicle without breathing into the device first. Each time an attempt is made, a record is made of the time and alcohol present.

The devices cost the driver $650 each, which covers installation and rental of the two units for a year.

District Judge Van Wifvat, who signed the order, said, "This puts a burden on the guy. Every time he uses that thing to start his vehicle, it will be a constant reminder of his situation." But Al Chrystal, director of driver services for the Iowa Department of Transportation, said the device allows the driver to escape responsibility for what he has done.

"Frankly, I hope they are the greatest thing since sliced bread. But it doesn't address the problem. It's a way for people with drinking problems to get back on the road. I think that sometimes, somewhere, all drivers have to be responsible for themselves."

Other critics say there is nothing to prevent a sober person from taking the test for a drunken friend, then handing over the keys.

Stanton said that's possible. Still, he said, "You have to rely on the fact that a sober person would not make a conscious decision to aid a drunken driver in getting out on the road."

Dubinsky Bros. sell theater chain

DES MOINES (AP) — The president of the largest chain of theaters in Iowa says his company was ripe for plucking by a larger firm, which has already boosted ticket prices but plans to retain local managers.

The Dubinsky Bros. Theaters were sold this month to Excellence Theaters Corp. of Chicago for an undisclosed price. The deal transfers 127 Dubinsky movie screens, including 84 in Iowa, to a far-flung company operating movie theaters from Wisconsin to Washington state.

"Circuits our size are being bought up and have been bought up pretty regularly the past few years," said Dubinsky President Sarge Dubinsky. "In our business, this sort of transaction is not extraordinary."

But if selling the Lincoln, Neb., company was inevitable, it wasn't emotional. "There's 70 years of history behind it," he said. "They made a very fair offer, and it seemed the right thing to do, and the timing was correct."

Excellence Theaters has plans to incorporate a little more razzle-dazzle at the Dubinsky screens but at a price.

"We are very show-biz oriented, we have tuxedos and other formal apparel," said vice president Larry Hanson. "There will be a degree of vitality and a degree of elegance."

Ticket prices at the 32 Des Moines area Dubinsky theaters went up 50 cents last weekend, and Excellence plans 25- to 50-cent increases throughout the chain "to ensure quality we're talking about," Hanson said. "Expenses do go up."

Otherwise, he said, a radical overhaul is unlikely. He said the new owner plans to keep Dubinsky's managers. The chain currently employs about 600 people.

Dubinsky's fathers and uncles got their start in show business 74 years ago when they produced and starred in a tent show that traveled the Midwest.

They bought their first movie theater in Kansas City, Mo., in the 1940s and founded the firm in 1948. Sarge Dubinsky was seven at the time; he took over the business in the mid-1960s. He said he is proud of his family's accomplishment. Seven decades, he said, "is a pretty good run in this day and age."

In addition to the Des Moines screens, Dubinsky has 10 screens in Sioux City, four in Marshalltown, nine in Council Bluffs, 15 in Cedar Rapids and 14 in Dubuque. The takeover will be completed Dec. 1.

Officials call parking problem a matter of convenience

By Erich Nus
Special to The Daily Iowan

Ultimately, parking is the vehicle owner's responsibility, but many Iowa City residents blame insufficient spaces for their parking woes. "Where are you supposed to park?" said UI junior Virgil Hare. "All the meters downtown are 30 minutes. The cops watch you go to class and then pounce like hawks as soon as your time is up."

But according to Iowa City Parking Superintendent Joe Fowler, the problem isn't with insufficient parking but with inconvenient parking. "There's adequate space," Fowler said. "It's just not where people want it. We have an excess of parking places in the Capitol and Burlington street ramps, but people feel it is too far to walk, especially students. They want to park right in front of their classes."

Fowler said even during peak hours between noon and 3 p.m. on weekdays, 150 of the Capitol Street ramp's spots and 250 to 300 of the Burlington Street ramp's spots remain empty. Those kinds of numbers lead Iowa City Transit Manager John Lundell to scoff at the idea of a parking shortage. "I just don't buy it when people say they can't find a place to park," Lundell said. "I've never had a problem. The first two floors (of the ramps) may be full, but there are always places at the top."

"There's adequate space. It's just not where people want it." — Iowa City Parking Superintendent Joe Fowler

Sgt. Ron Fort of the Iowa City Police Department said Iowa City's parking problem is inherent in university towns. "We're a small town with a big university, and it is hard to serve both," Fort said. "The university just doesn't have sufficient parking for its students or for its special events, like on game days. Hancher is really the only place that adequately provides for itself."

Lundell said the new parking lot on Hawkins Drive near the Ronald McDonald House and the new ramp across from UI Hospitals and Clinics are expected to alleviate some of the city's parking strain but will do little to ease the downtown situation.

Poachers rake in big bucks in market for illegal trophies

HOPKINTON, Iowa (AP) — An estimated one-third of the deer killed by hunters this fall will be taken by poachers, according to a state estimate, and officials say they're frustrated in efforts to combat illegal hunting.

"I get so mad," said Theresa Reiter of rural Hopkinton. "I'm not anti-hunter, I'm anti-waste."

During the year Theresa and her husband, Dave, who farm south of Hopkinton, found five places where poachers killed from five to seven bucks and took only the heads or racks. Department of Natural Resources officials say trophy-size racks sell for hundreds or even thousands of dollars on the illegal market.

DeWaine Jackson of Boone, a deer biologist with the Iowa Department of Natural Resources, said hunters will probably legally kill about 80,000 deer in Iowa this fall. Poachers, he said, will probably kill another 40,000.

The last extensive study on deer poaching in Iowa was done in 1974-75 when it was estimated that the number of deer poached in those years could be from 40 percent to 80 percent of the number taken legally. Jackson said, "A lot of states figure poaching at 50 percent of the legal harvest, maybe more."

He added, however, that the amount of poaching in Iowa may have declined since the mid-1970s since almost everyone who wants a license can obtain one. Also, it's legal to have more than one deer each fall if the hunter has more than one license.

In the mid-70s, the number of licenses was limited and drawings were held to determine who would receive shotgun licenses. The shotgun season doesn't open until Dec. 3. The archery season is open, but the poached deer were taken by guns. Scott Kinsett, of Independence, the game warden assigned to the Hopkinton area, said, "We do have a problem in that area, but there are other problem areas, also."

"It's gotten worse in the last five years," said Reiter, who said she has been cursed and sworn at by men she asks to leave their farm. She said men she suspects of being poachers are also abusive to her if they meet her on a street in Hopkinton, calling her names in front of her children.

"How do I explain that (language) to my little children," she said. DNR officials say poaching usually picks up the week or two before deer season. Kinsett said extra DNR officers are assigned to help enforce hunting laws, but that it's an uphill battle. "It's our worst season," he said.

winning play was made at an Amoco service station in Washburn, which is where Frost said he bought his ticket. Frost said he was about to jump in the shower when he heard the numbers being announced on television. "I never did get that shower," he said.

Frost is getting married in July and said the estimated $2.7 million will pay for his honeymoon, a few luxuries and help his father with the family's farm.

There wasn't any magic to his picking technique, he said, explaining he let the computer select his numbers at random. The winning numbers were 8, 12, 21, 23, 30 and 32.

Truck driver scores in Iowa Lotto

DES MOINES (AP) — A 24-year-old truck driver from LaPorte City missed his shower Saturday night, but he took the Iowa Lotto to the cleaners anyway.

Mike Frost said Saturday night he's the lucky player holding the sole winning ticket, following the semi-weekly drawing Saturday. His ticket has yet to be confirmed, but Iowa Lottery officials said the provide accessibility to all parts of the facility. "The demands of the disabled students are not unreasonable. Building accessible buildings does not restrict the able-bodied in any way, and it's cheaper in the long run," said Danny Burns, a disabled student and president of Restrict Us Not, a UI group for disabled students.

One case in point is the Boyd Law Building, which was built after the new regulations became effective. When the building was constructed, the UI office of Facilities Planning designated the main entrance facing Melrose Street as the accessible entrance.

However, the entrance most often used by students is at the north end, facing Grande Avenue, which is located next to a skywalk. This entrance is not accessible. Disabled students must cross the skywalk and go around to the front of the building, said UI pre-law student Alex Phillips, who is disabled.

Phillips points out that while the law does not require there be more than one accessible entrance to the law building, there is no reason why every entrance made available to able-bodied people could not have been made handicapped accessible.

The law library also has problems with accessibility, Phillips said. A glass door to the side of the main entrance, which is big enough for a wheelchair to pass through, makes the library accessible. However, this door is kept locked for security reasons, so that people using a wheelchair must wait for an attendant to let them in.

Dick Gibson, director of the UI Office of Planning and Administrative Services, said the law building could have been designed differently. "Obviously you can do anything you want to, if you want to spend the money. It depends on what your objectives are and what your priorities are," Gibson said.

The objectives of the facilities planning office are to meet all state codes, which include fire, safety and health as well as accessibility, Gibson and Stroh said. Other obstacles listed by Gibson include inadequate funding and the unusual topography of Iowa City.

Gibson also pointed out that accessibility, as defined by law, is in some cases ambiguous, and the attitude of the general public toward accessibility for disabled persons is reflected in the lack of precise detail.

"Is our objective first and foremost to build a totally accessible building? I haven't heard the answer from society on that yet."

This is the first in a two-part series on accessibility at the UI for disabled students.

Philippines

determine if they are those of two sisters who knew the man initially thought to have killed former opposition leader Benigno Aquino, according to officials of the National Bureau of Investigation.

Aquino was shot to death on Aug. 21, 1983, at the Manila International Airport as soldiers escorted him out of a plane when he arrived home from three years of self-imposed exile in the United States.

Marcos and the military claimed Aquino was slain by Rolando Galman, an alleged communist agent killed by soldiers immediately after Aquino was shot.

But a civilian board investigating the slaying concluded Aquino was killed by one of his military escorts and Galman was a scapegoat. Investigators described Galman as an underworld figure with links to military officials.

The bodies, suspected to be those of two hostesses at a bar frequented by Galman, were exhumed from a field just outside Capas, 60 miles north of Manila. The grave was identified by five militiamen who claimed military officers ordered them to bury the women in December 1983.

The Philippine Daily Inquirer and the Philippine Daily Globe reported Sunday that the orders came from officers linked to Eduardo Cojuangco, Mrs. Aquino's first cousin and a close associate of Marcos.

Cojuangco fled the country in 1986 and lives in California. Aquino has banned him from returning.

The sisters, Anna and Catherine Oliva, disappeared in September 1983.

Gen. Fabian Ver, then the military chief of staff, and 25 others were acquitted of killing Benigno Aquino in December 1985.

is proposing to permit New Atmospheric Emissions from the University of Iowa Oakdale Power Plant near Oakdale, Iowa in Johnson County.

This document serves as notice that the Iowa Department of Natural Resources (DNR) is proposing to issue conditional approval to:

The University of Iowa
Architectural/Engineering Services
400 North Hall
Iowa City, IA 52242

For the following project:
Two (2) solid waste incinerators with Afterburners and Heat Recovery Boilers at the Oakdale Campus Physical Plant.

Based upon agency review of materials submitted by the above permit applicant for the described project, the DNR finds that:

- The proposed project has the potential to emit quantities of air pollutants, including Dioxins and Furans, and therefore it is appropriate that construction of these facilities be governed by permit.
- Emissions from the proposed project will NOT cause or contribute to violations of National Ambient Air Quality Standards.
- Emissions of Dioxins and Furans will NOT pose a significant threat to public health.

Statement of Fact

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (USEPA) has listed Dioxins/Furans as known carcinogens presently having a unit risk factor of thirty-three per million for persons exposed to one picogram per cubic meter for a period of seventy (70) years. Although there is a draft document by the Office of Health and Environmental Assessment, USEPA, which suggests the possibility of a decrease in this number, the DNR used the more conservative USEPA unit risk factor of 33 per million as the basis of determining acceptable maximum annual ground level concentrations. At the proposed allowable emission rate, mathematical dispersion modeling (using USEPA approved models) shows a predicted maximum annual average concentration of 0.0304 picograms per cubic meter. The unit risk factor of 33 times 0.0304 equals 1 additional chance per million of developing cancer if an individual were located at the point of maximum concentration for a period of seventy years.

Available Information

A copy of the draft permit reviewed and the accompanying fact sheet is available for public inspection at the:

Business Office, Oakdale Hall, Oakdale Campus
Oakdale, Iowa 52319
319/335-4037

And at the:

Iowa Department of Natural Resources, Field Office No. 8
1004 W. Madison, Washington, IA 52553
319/653-2135

A complete record of the permit review is available for public inspection at the:

Iowa Department of Natural Resources, Air Quality Section
5th Floor, H.A. Wallace Building, 900 E. Grand Avenue,
Des Moines, IA 50319

Opportunity for Public Comment

A Public Hearing will be held at:

6:30 P.M., Wednesday, December 14, 1988
Auditorium, Oakdale Hall, Oakdale Campus
Oakdale, Iowa 52319

Anyone may comment at the public hearing or submit written comments on the Draft Permit from today's date through December 14, 1988. After the December 14, 1988 close of the public comment period, the DNR will make a final decision on the permit application. Response to all significant comments will be finalized prior to the final decision. Both the response and the final permit will be made available to the members of the public upon request.

Request for information or for a copy of the Draft Permit should be sent to:

Assassination theories

A recent article in Time tells of President John F. Kennedy's own morbid foreboding of his own death. On the morning of Nov. 22, 1963, Kennedy is said to have remarked with dread, "If anyone wants to shoot a president, it's not a very difficult job. All one has to do is get on a high building and a telescopic rifle, and there is nothing anybody can do."

Twenty-five years after the assassination, a New York Times poll has found that only 13 percent of Americans agree with the Warren Commission's conclusion that President Kennedy was killed by Lee Harvey Oswald, acting alone. Sixty-one percent of those polled think there has been an official cover-up.

Multiple conflicting theories have been advanced regarding the Kennedy assassination. At one time or another, it has been claimed that the Mafia killed the president, that the Cuban government masterminded the assassination, that Oswald had one or more accomplices, that the autopsied body was not that of John F. Kennedy, that the body lying in Oswald's grave was not his, and that Oswald's intended target was then-Texas Gov. John Connally, not the president.

The American people seem to have a psychological resistance to believing that a nobody, using a rifle and telescopic sight he purchased through the mail for $21.45, was able to snuff out the life of their young and popular president. Somehow, people would not feel so cheated if it hadn't been all so tragically and shockingly simple, that the horrible death of the president would be easier to bear if it hadn't been caused by one crackpot loser. Perhaps this is the reason why theories claiming conspiracy and foreign government involvement find such receptive audiences.

On the day of his own death, John F. Kennedy knew the mortal danger that one lone madman could be to him. Now, however, the American people refuse to believe the very thing that Kennedy so accurately and tragically predicted. If the American people want some of their questions regarding the assassination answered, they should first read the Warren Commission Report with an unbiased view, before eagerly lapping up tales of conspiracy, body-switching and evil foreign government plots.

Where's the U.S. now?

Late last month, Hurricane Joan devastated Nicaragua. Although the nation was already suffering — largely due to the U.S.-organized Contra war and accompanying economic sanctions — the storm did millions of dollars worth of damage and left thousands homeless.

Throughout the world, people have responded generously. Private organizations are sending relief shipments and donations. Many governments are also involved: Canada has pledged $1.68 million; Panama has sent six and one-half tons of supplies; Norway has given $640,000 in foodstuffs; Cuba, one-half million pounds of food; Sweden, $2 million in roofing materials and tools; the European Parliament, $1 million; and Guatemala, hundreds of thousands of units of anti-tetanus vaccine.

And what has the United States, the richest nation in the world, given to help alleviate the suffering? Not a penny. Interestingly, when Nicaragua was devastated by an earthquake during the rule of the tyrannical, but U.S.-backed, Anastasio Somoza, U.S. aid poured in. So, why not now?

The answer is that the new Nicaragua has in Washington's eyes committed a great crime: It has ceased to behave like a U.S. puppet and has charted a course tailored to the needs of the majority of Nicaraguans, not to the needs of U.S. multinational corporations. Despite Washington's claims to be acting on behalf of the Nicaraguan people, the purpose of the Contra war has been to punish Nicaragua. And that is also why in its present hour of need, our government has no sympathy for that nation. After all, Hurricane Joan has helped accomplish the same thing that the Contra war was supposed to do — cripple the "upstart."

In short, the Reagan Administration is taking advantage of this natural disaster to further its own warped, criminal agenda in Central America. In case you were wondering what exactly Vice President Bush means by a "kinder, more gentle America," now you know.

Phony war

Publicity, especially good publicity, is what every government agency wants, and the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration knows how to get it.

Engaged in a war on drugs — a war that is being lost — the DEA needed a public relations coup to bolster its image with the American public. How could the DEA appear as if it was winning?

The answer, phony drug busts. On Sunday, the Houston Chronicle reported that the DEA has been directing phony drug seizures across the nation, especially in high drug traffic areas along the southern boarder, to generate favorable publicity in their on-going battle with drug-runners.

According to DEA spokesperson Maurice Hill, "It's not a new technique, I can tell you that," which begs the question of how long the DEA has been lying about their efforts.

While lying is certainly nothing new in the halls of government, lying about drug busts is — as far as we know. What if there really have not been any drug busts at all? Just the same one repeated over and over. No wonder we're losing.

Putting Bonzo to bed with class

Something has happened to our president. Ronald Reagan has become a mere backdrop, a neutral piece of scenery against which our new Field and Stream president-designate cavorts with his fishing pole. Impossible as it is to believe, like all good soldiers, Ronnie's fading away.

Before he goes, I offer the following salute to the Gipper. I was going to hold off until January, but by then he may be enjoying the same level of public exposure as Dan Quayle.

In an election that bared many ugly truths, the most demoralizing was this: we aren't all that picky about who occupies the Oval Office. Reflect, if you will, upon its current occupant. Everybody in this business says Ronald Reagan is a sacred cow. While I agree that he exhibits certain bovine characteristics, I am amazed at the reverence he inspires.

A segment on the evening news showed him addressing a stadium full of university students in Ohio who seemed to think he was Jon Bon Jovi, not the 76-year-old man who's been showing signs of mental deterioration in public for eight years. Kids were shrieking, waving banners; heaven knows whether or not anyone was trampled to death.

Kim Painter

I found myself asking, "Where's Tipper Gore while all this is going on?" Yet every voter I know, from virulent conservative to flagrant liberal, has his own personal list of Ronnie's howlers.

There was the time he confused his only black Cabinet member (Samuel Pierce, secretary of housing and urban development) with some black mayor (he didn't seem to know which mayor he thought Samuel Pierce was), saying, "How are you, Mr. Mayor? I'm glad to meet you. How are things in your city?" And that was back in 1981.

And who doesn't recall those amazing three-months-gestated fetuses which were born and "lived to, the record shows, to grow up and be normal human beings?"

One of his historical weak spots is World War II. His trip to Germany enraged people for two reasons, one a sin of omission, the other a sin of commission. He opted not to visit a concentration camp while there. He based his decision on the elegantly expressed conclusion "that since the German people — and very few alive that remember even the war, and certainly none of them who were adults and participating in any way — and they have a feeling, and a guilt feeling that's been imposed upon them, and I just think it's unnecessary."

His corollary sin was to opt for the laying of a wreath at the Bitburg cemetery where Nazi SS troopers are buried: "They were victims, just as surely as the victims in the concentration camps."

Then came the cancerous nose pimple. What? What do you mean you've forgotten the cancerous nose pimple? It was back in August of '85. "I violated all the rules," Reagan said. "I picked at it and 'squeezed' it and so forth, and messed myself up a little bit... and then my little friend that I had played with began to come back."

He claimed that South Africa had eliminated segregation (!). He called Samuel Doe, the Liberian head of state, "Chairman Moe" during 1982 Rose Garden festivities. When asked to comment on what, in 1983, was a hot situation in Cyprus, he said, "Oh, I wish the Secretary of State were here!"

Ronald Reagan. Man for all seasons. Statesman. Actor. Athlete. The thinking man's president. A once-in-a-lifetime president. And he's disappearing before our very eyes. George Bush is horning in early on the presidency, and I think he should be stopped. The fishing pictures. Meeting with Maggie Thatcher (not even allowing Maggie's great friend Dan Quayle to join in). Naming his Cabinet. He's in the room every night now. Can't he wait his turn?

It's been a great eight years for Republicans in the executive branch. With Reagan on the way out and Bush and Quayle on the ascent, I think we should ask ourselves, why? Many observers think the Republican lock on the presidency was spearheaded by stand-up comics and cartoonists as a form of employment insurance. Those of you who noticed this, those who instructed your children to scrap plans for a business degree and go buy a drafting table, will be in a state of elation for the next four years. Seen in this perspective, the Democrats' relegation to the world of "real" politics is almost flattering. It leaves the Republicans to enjoy the sun and fun on the editorial pages, and the Democrats to govern the country.

Letters

Ignore the context

To the Editor:
Though your title warns us that "Ignoring context invites distortion" (DI, Nov. 14), that seems to be what (Chris Lamb's) long column attempts to do. After announcing that the paper you edit "has been misperceived and unfairly labeled," you ignore the context that would enable readers to decide if the "private joke of two male staffers" is sexist as charged, and, therefore, a violation of university policy against language that demeans women. Then, in three evasive paragraphs about "something resembling sexism," you attempt to divert our attention from the main issue, and the relevant context, by trying to convince us that you are an equal opportunity employer, as well as an editor who welcomes diversity but feels compelled to protect the "integrity... vitality and validity of the English language" from those who would "arbitrarily neuter" it.

Where are the contextual details that would support your claim that an innocent joke was distorted when removed from its original context? Without that context, I can only guess that it was more of the good-old-boy misogynist fun I've heard from five generations of male kinfolks down south on the farm. Or does it sound like the wry pleasantries that nourish the ravenous, or weary, libidos of university men who see women as lesser human beings? More specifically, do your two "well-respected and well-liked" staffers have the power to make life unpleasant for the person(s) who complained about the sexist attitudes and behaviors that have invaded the newsroom?

Though "intended to be a joke," if it demeans women's bodies or their minds, it's sexist — even before its overheard or read and condemned by angry feminists. Any word or action that "turns out to be something resembling sexism" is sexism.

When you say that "others... took what they saw out of context," you seem to be telling us that two university students were passing notes to each other, like a couple of school boys for whom pretty little girls have recently become objects for the gratification of their emerging sex drives. In junior high they'd be sent to the principal's office for appropriate punishment. So I would recommend that your fun-loving staffers be sent to the university office that is responsible for investigating and reprimanding faculty, staff or students who have been charged with sexist behavior, including the telling of sexist jokes.

Lighten up!

To the Editor:

We have never seen a newspaper lose so many comic strips so regularly in our lives. We think you should look through the piles and piles of mail concerning the Rate-a-Babe list and the Burge Hall article and see if the missing strips are there.

We are not saying that sexism in the workplace or anywhere else is a trivial or humorous matter, but we think that the Rate-a-Babe list has been given far more attention than it deserves.

It was funny when Burge was named "number one party dorm" by Playboy magazine a few years ago, but suddenly when someone not famous writes a humorous article about the place in which he lives, people suddenly lose their senses of humor and become defensive.

We say, go through those piles of mail, throw those senseless letters away and find Bloom County so that those of us with a sense of humor and proportion can have our daily laugh without fear of a rebuttal on the editorial page.

Get real!

To the Editor:

Students at the UI are stupid! Again we have allowed the (state Board of) Regents to raise our tuition in the name of higher education. Are we that blind? How long will the regents use their standard defense line, "Iowa's tuition is the lowest in the Big Ten." My guess would be until Iowa is at the top!

Students from Iowa aren't really complaining. Since I've been here, tuition has risen over $400! But what about out-of-state students. Every time our tuition rises, they end up paying more.

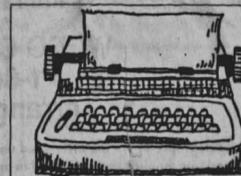

If most Americans are against higher taxes, why should they want higher tuitions?

The regents claim that the tuition raises help bring in quality professors and raise existing salaries. One should ask, are we getting our money's worth?

Let's get real! We are being like sheep being led by the Wise Shepherds of Higher Education. How do we know that these so-called Wise Shepherds aren't actually the Cunning Wolves of Higher Tuition?

Who is out of touch here: the regents or the students?

Leftist rebels massacre 20 in Guatemala

GUATEMALA CITY — Leftist rebels killed a civilian liaison to the military, then massacred 20 friends and relatives who went to search for him, the government said Sunday.

It said army patrols had found the bodies buried in common mountain graves in the region west of Guatemala City.

The victims included at least 12 relatives of Carlos Humberto Guerra Callejas, a civilian assigned to the military in the village of El Aguacate, the government said. El Aguacate is about 40 miles from Guatemala City in Chimaltenango province.

Guerra Callejas disappeared Wednesday, and his friends and relatives organized a search Friday. The government described the search party as a group of poor farmers with an evangelical pastor, Antonio Olivares.

A few of them said they managed to escape while the other 20 fell into the hands of guerrillas belonging to the Revolutionary Organization of the People in Arms, according to the government statement.

Sununu retains Tufts University post, salary

MEDFORD, Mass. — John Sununu remains on the faculty of Tufts University six years after he last taught there, an arrangement that has allowed his children to receive tuition waivers and aid from the school.

The New Hampshire governor, who is President-elect George Bush's choice as White House chief of staff, has had two children enrolled at Tufts since he left the university and also has children attending the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Cambridge, Mass., and Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif.

The children attending Tufts are granted full tuition waivers and those at other colleges receive tuition subsidies from Tufts as part of faculty benefits Sununu has received during his six years on leave from the school, according to Tufts officials. Tuition at Tufts in the 1987-88 school year was $11,750.

Afghan guerrillas, Soviets discuss POWs

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan — Afghanistan guerrillas met with Soviet officials Sunday to discuss an exchange of prisoners of war, said a guerrilla source, Afghan radio and the Soviet news agency Tass.

No further details were available on the talks in Islamabad. A similar meeting was held earlier this year in Bonn, West Germany.

Representatives of other rebel groups that belong to a loose and often fractured guerrilla alliance denied talks were held Sunday. The Soviet ambassador in Islamabad, Vladimir Vakunin, refused to comment on the reports.

Iran suspends exchange of Iraqi prisoners

NICOSIA, Cyprus — Iran announced Sunday it was suspending an exchange of sick and disabled prisoners from the Persian Gulf War because Iraq sent back too few Iranian POWs, Tehran radio said.

The radio, monitored in Nicosia, said Iran's Foreign Ministry sent a letter to the International Red Cross, sponsor of the exchange, demanding the immediate release of an additional 67 Iranians.

"By continuing this behavior, Iraq in effect will keep imprisoned many sick and wounded Iranian prisoners, and their release will not be guaranteed," the Iranian radio quoted the letter as saying.

The radio also quoted the head of Iran's committee for war prisoners, Ayatollah Mohajerani, as saying "the continuation of the prisoner exchange depends on Iraq's release of 67 Iranian POWs."

There was no immediate reaction from the Red Cross or Iraqi officials to the Iranian announcement.

Dominican ex-president sentenced to prison

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic — Former President Salvador Jorge Blanco and two businessmen were found guilty of corruption Sunday and sentenced to 20 years in prison.

In a televised interview from Atlanta, where he has been living, the former president called his conviction "monstrous" and pledged to return to the Dominican Republic on Wednesday to file an appeal. He was tried in absentia.

Judge Juan Maria Severino also ordered the president and businessmen Leonel Almonte and Juan Tomas Pena Valentin to pay a total fine of $17.3 million, including $5 million they overcharged the military and police for supplies.

Six of the other eight alleged co-conspirators in the case were found innocent and the other two were to be tried separately for the same charges.

The judge's ruling against Jorge Blanco, president from 1982 to 1986, marks the first time a former Dominican head of state was convicted of corruption.

Jorge Blanco, 60, has been living in Atlanta for the past 18 months. Under Dominican law, the former president could not present a defense or witnesses without appearing before the court.

Sheriff's deputy finds cocaine in pickup

SALTON CITY, Calif. — A sheriff's deputy found 1,500 pounds of cocaine stashed under carpet scraps in the bed of a pickup truck he stopped for speeding, authorities said.

The driver allegedly offered sheriff's Deputy Al Reyes a $50,000 bribe to "just let him go," said Lt. Mike Schneewind, an Imperial County sheriff's department spokesman. The vehicle was stopped Saturday along a highway about 150 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

The alleged offer prompted a search of the truck, which netted more than 20 bags of cocaine, the spokesman said. About $2,500 in $100 bills was found in the truck's cab, he said.

The cocaine was worth an estimated $80 million.

The driver, 60-year-old Armando Martinez Cortez, whose address was unavailable, was turned over to federal authorities in San Diego, sheriff's deputy Joe Alcazar said Sunday. No charges were immediately filed.

Suspect's companion to testify at trial

NEW YORK — The longtime companion of Joel Steinberg said she won't be intimidated when she testifies against Steinberg this week in his murder trial for the death of their illegally adopted daughter, a relative said.

"I don't think when I look at him I'll say that I did it. But I'm not going to. I'm going to tell the truth," said Judy Liebman, who quoted her sister, Hedda Nussbaum, in an interview published in Sunday's editions of New York Newsday.

Steinberg, 47, is charged with second-degree murder and first-degree manslaughter in the Nov. 5, 1987, death of Lisa Steinberg.

Nussbaum has told psychiatrists that Steinberg beat Lisa into unconsciousness on the afternoon of Nov. 1, 1987, and then went out to dinner with a friend, sources close to the case have said. She died four days later.

Nussbaum was also arrested and charged with murder in the child's death, but last month prosecutors cleared her of all criminal responsibility.

Panel targets nuclear labs in expanded drug investigation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional panel has expanded its investigation of security and personnel problems to include the Los Alamos nuclear weapons laboratory after a senior computer operator there was arrested on marijuana charges, a House aide said Sunday.

As part of the investigation, Rep. John Dingell, D-Mich., has asked for the cooperation of Energy Secretary John S. Herrington, whose department owns the laboratories at Los Alamos, N.M., and Livermore, Calif. Both are being scrutinized.

The department also has been plagued by problems that have shut down production at two major nuclear weapons materials laboratories, the Savannah River Plant in Aiken, S.C., and the Feed Materials Production Center in Fernald, Ohio. Production has stopped on two key weapons materials, tritium and plutonium.

Dingell, chairman of the Energy and Commerce subcommittee on oversight and investigations, has asked why the management at Lawrence Livermore abruptly halted an undercover investigation that turned up the names of 127 employees suspected of using or dealing drugs.

The investigation was expanded to Los Alamos following the arrest on Oct. 12 of a senior computer operator allegedly carrying 207 pounds of marijuana in his truck, according to a Dingell aide, Jeffrey Hodges.

The New York Times, which reported the expanded investigation in its Sunday editions, identified the computer operator as David Blossom, 36, and quoted an Energy Department spokesman as saying that Blossom held a high-level security clearance.

Energy Department spokesmen could not be reached by telephone in Washington, or at regional offices in San Francisco, Calif., or Albuquerque, N.M.

Authorities also are investigating the failure of Livermore managers to investigate the disappearance of a chemist, Ronald K. Stump. Hodges said there were suspicions that Stump had been embezzling from Lawrence Livermore.

"He had extremely high level clearance and the lab appeared not to be doing anything," said Hodges.

"Both labs deal in extremely sensitive classified information as well as nuclear materials and very sophisticated computers," said Hodges. "It is disturbing if there is any kind of drug problem."

"We received what we feel was very solid information."

Lease partnerships offer big returns

In the same way that modern medicine, advancing technology and sophisticated consumer products have changed our lives and thinking, new investment alternatives have changed the way we invest our money.

Not too long ago, an individual wanting to save or invest money had choices of stocks, bonds, insurance contracts, bank savings and certificates of deposit or some crude facsimile or combination of the above. Today there are many attractive and innovative alternatives available to investors.

One such alternative that has become popular in recent years as a comparison to other fixed income investments and bonds is equipment-leasing partnerships. In the past, these partnerships were primarily a haven for tax write-offs, but today they are designed for cash flow with expectations of 12 to 15 percent increases in income, rivaling high yield bonds.

Many of these leasing funds can satisfy a very conservative investor in terms of risk. As a concept, leasing programs are easy. The lesser (ranging in size from local leasing companies to large international banks and financial institutions) buys title to equipment from the manufacturer that is then leased to an end-user. The lessee (equipment user) pays monthly leasing charges directly to the lessor (title holder).

Dean Jarnow

Leasing has become the fastest growing source of investment in capital or tangible assets for the following reasons:

- Lessees (the users) gain advantages such as capital preservation, earnings undiluted by large capital expenditures and lease payment deductions during the terms of the lease.

- The lessor (title-holder) also benefits from lease-payment income, equipment depreciation deductions and resale value of equipment.

Lessees understand the benefit is not in owning the equipment but in the use of the equipment. Essentially, when investors put money in a leasing partnership, they become the lessor and receive all the associated benefits.

Before placing money in a leasing fund here are some considerations:

- Lease terms — some partnerships lease equipment for as little as two to three years and some others lease for as long as seven or more.

- Long-term leases rely less on being able to re-lease the equipment, which can be an uncertainty.

- High-tech vs. low-tech — some partnerships lease low-tech equipment because of greater chance of getting more money back in resale value. High-tech funds know this and may get higher lease rates for re-investment and higher cash flow.

- Leveraged vs. unleveraged — buying equipment and borrowing money is another way to increase a partnership's portfolio and cash flow. Interest deductions provide more tax shelter, but leverage is riskier because of the debt burden.

Always review the prospectus to make sure a sponsor has raised money from partnerships and made initial payouts. Look for evidence that the sponsor can keep equipment on lease for extended time periods and keep cash flowing.

Even though a quality equipment leasing fund can be an excellent alternative for an investor seeking income and safety, not all leasing programs are created equal and one should consult with a qualified and knowledgeable adviser before investing.

OPEC calls for output limit to increase barrel prices

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — A new OPEC accord to limit production appeared to be unraveling Sunday after Saudi Arabia pressed for a $15-a-barrel benchmark price, $3 less than the cartel's official level, officials said.

"Iran is not going to accept this type of idea," said F. Barkeshli, a senior Iranian delegate to the winter conference of the 13-nation Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

The proposal, he said, "can totally sabotage the agreement."

He said Algeria, Nigeria and Libya also opposed changing the $18 benchmark. Barkeshli said he met for two hours Sunday with OPEC President Rilwanu Lukman of Nigeria but said afterward: "I am very pessimistic."

Iran's oil minister, Gholamreza Aghazadeh, announced in Tehran earlier Sunday that he would accept the deal to cut the cartel's output and drive up prices.

But Barkeshli said Aghazadeh agreed to a preliminary draft that would retain OPEC's $18 benchmark.

The announcement last week that the ministers tentatively reached a new output pact sent prices higher. Brent North Sea crude rose $1.65 a barrel to close Friday at $14.42.

Prices have been running $4 or more below the target due to a world oil glut.

Each $1 rise in the price of crude oil theoretically means an increase of 2.5 cents a gallon in retail gasoline prices, although oil companies do not always pass along the full increase.

The agreement, which would set member quotas would cut OPEC production from the current estimated 22.5 million barrels a day to 18.5 million barrels a day in the first half of next year, Barkeshli told reporters that Saudi Arabia made two proposals Sunday morning.

The Iranian delegate said one would set a target price at $15 a barrel and the other would set a price band ranging from $15 to $18. This, he said, "is a major divergence from OPEC resolutions so far."

"We're not going to concede to any new elements whatsoever," he said.

Barkeshli said the plan worked out with Aghazadeh "did not have anything like $15" and that the Iranian Cabinet approved the original deal with the $18 reference price.

The OPEC ministers had been scheduled to resume formal discussions Sunday, but they were postponed until Monday.

Fishing in the ocean of free agency

Dipping into the ocean of free agency on a new note in 1988.

It used to be that most owners had a relatively small number of free agents to bid for. But now, with the salary well over $400,000, there seems to be an abundance of players searching for a new home via free agency.

Late fall and early winter are the hottest period of free agency because owners want to get their winter meetings with a lot of holes they have to fill who is expendable.

Thanks to an arbitrator's decision on the owners' side, the next month should be a bidding war. This means players will change teams unless their current club is willing to inflate their salaries.

Starting pitching is the most sought after commodity, and there are a lot of starters available to start the rotation.

The Padres, who have been the pretenders to contenders' status, are actively pursuing free agents.

The Red Sox have come out of San Diego's offering with a better offer to sign the pitcher's Mike Moore at half price. Moore, who has sold his services to Seattle, posted a decent record this past season.

Another big fish in the tank is Pittsburgh's Dave LaFleur, who went 4-2 with the Pirates, Phillies and Yankees in the hunt for LaFleur.

Philadelphia has already signed Tom Herr, and the bet would be to sign a catcher like Lance Parrish's shoes. Catcher and Tim Lardner are the likely candidates for the Phillies.

The Angels offered Nolan Ryan a contract, but he wasn't interested. The front office hoped to sign him before Thanksgiving, but he's still on the block.

Cincinnati brass have not yet signed Rick Mahler a general manager and he'll likely be signed and delivered in early December.

The Reds are also interested in slugger Mike Schmidt. The future hall-of-famer is injured and expensive. The Cincinnati is underrated man Willie Upshaw.

Of the relief pitchers, Tom Niedenfuer and Jeff Brantley are at the top of the list. The Cubs, Rangers and Yankees have thrown substantial bids for Niedenfuer.

Speaking of the Rangers, they were hot for Dodger infielder Sax, as were Los Angeles and Pittsburgh. Sax moved in favor of a multi-year contract with the New York Yankees.

Who had the best hot-at-bat ratio in 1988? Willie Canseco, Ron Kittle, and Barry Larkin. Strawber said Kittle you made the choice and the White Sox are hoping they're making a choice. Kittle grabbed $500,000 a year offer over deals from the Indians and Orioles.

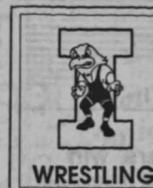

As for the rest of the agents, it's a fat city if you ask Bergman, Mike Flanagan, Fletcher, Andy Hawkins, Jones and/or Bob Walk.

But don't let your general manager sign any of the following "weight-team" candidates: Vande Berg, Frank DiGirolamo, Greg Gross, Larry Dorn, Charlie Lea and Jeff Ter.

Fishing in the ocean of free agency

Dipping into the waters of free agency has taken on a new meaning in 1988.

It used to be that major league owners had a relatively small pool of free agents to bid for in the off season. But now, with the average salary well over $400,000 a year, there seems to be an ocean of players searching for fat contracts via free agency.

Late fall and early winter is the hottest period of free agent signing because owners want to go to the winter meetings with a better idea of the holes they have to fill and who is expendable.

Thanks to an arbitrator's ruling of collusion on the owners' part, the next month should bring heavy bidding wars. This means plenty of players will change uniforms unless their current clubs concede to inflating their salaries.

Starting pitching is the key to a pennant, and there are plenty of starters available to shore up a pitching rotation.

The Padres, who have risen from pretenders to contenders under the guidance of Manager Jack McKeon, are actively pursuing Boston's Bruce Hurst.

The Red Sox have continued to match San Diego's offers, but they would be better off signing Seattle's Mike Moore at half the price. Moore, who has sold his house in Seattle, posted a deceiving 9-15 record this past season.

Another big fish in the ocean is Pittsburgh's Dave LaPoint, who went 4-2 with the Bucs after coming over late in the season. The Pirates, Phillies and Yankees are all in the hunt for LaPoint.

Philadelphia has already signed infielder Tom Herr, and their best bet would be to sign a catcher to fill Lance Parrish's shoes. Ozzie Virgil and Tim Lincecum are the two most likely candidates for the position.

The Angels offered fireballer Nolan Ryan a contract, but Ryan wasn't interested. The Houston front office hoped to resign him before Thanksgiving, but Ryan is still on the block.

Cincinnati brass have made Atlanta's Rick Mahler a generous offer, and he'll likely be signed, sealed and delivered in early December.

The Reds are also interested in slugger Mike Schmidt. However, the future hall-of-famer is aging, injured and expensive. The man for Cincinnati is underrated first baseman Willie Upshaw.

Of the relief pitchers available, Tom Niedenfuer and Jesse Orosco are at the top of the list. Watch for the Cubs, Rangers and Royals to throw substantial bids in their direction.

Speaking of the Rangers, they were hot for Dodger infielder Steve Sax, as were Los Angeles and Pittsburgh. Sax moved last week in favor of a multi-year deal with baseball's free agency black hole — the New York Yankees.

Who had the best home run to at-bat ratio in 1988? Was it Jose Canseco, Ron Kittle, Mike Marshall or Harry Strawberry? If you said Kittle you made the right choice and the White Sox are hoping they're making the right choice. Kittle grabbed their $500,000 a year offer over similar deals from the Indians and the Orioles.

As for the rest of the top free agents, it's fat city if you sign Dave Bergman, Mike Flanagan, Scott Fletcher, Andy Hawkins, Odell Jones and/or Bob Walk.

But don't let your general manager sign any of the following "all-dead weight-team" candidates: Ed Vande Berg, Frank DiPino, Phil Garner, Greg Gross, Larry Herndon, Charlie Lea and Jerry Royster.

Hawks claim opener with late surge

By Brent Woods
The Daily Iowan

For about 30 minutes Saturday night, the Iowa Hawkeyes were hog-tied — McNeese State Cowboys' style.

But senior guard B.J. Armstrong scored 11 points in the game's final seven minutes to blow open a close contest, giving Iowa the season-opening 77-56 win in front of 15,500 at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Men's Basketball

The final margin, as Coach Tom Davis admitted, was deceiving.

"You've got to discount that last six, seven minutes of the game," Davis said. "It looks like we won easily, but as everybody here knows, that was not an easy win. We made some big plays and made it look easier than it was."

Iowa will try to notch its second win of the season Tuesday at Drake at 7:30 p.m.

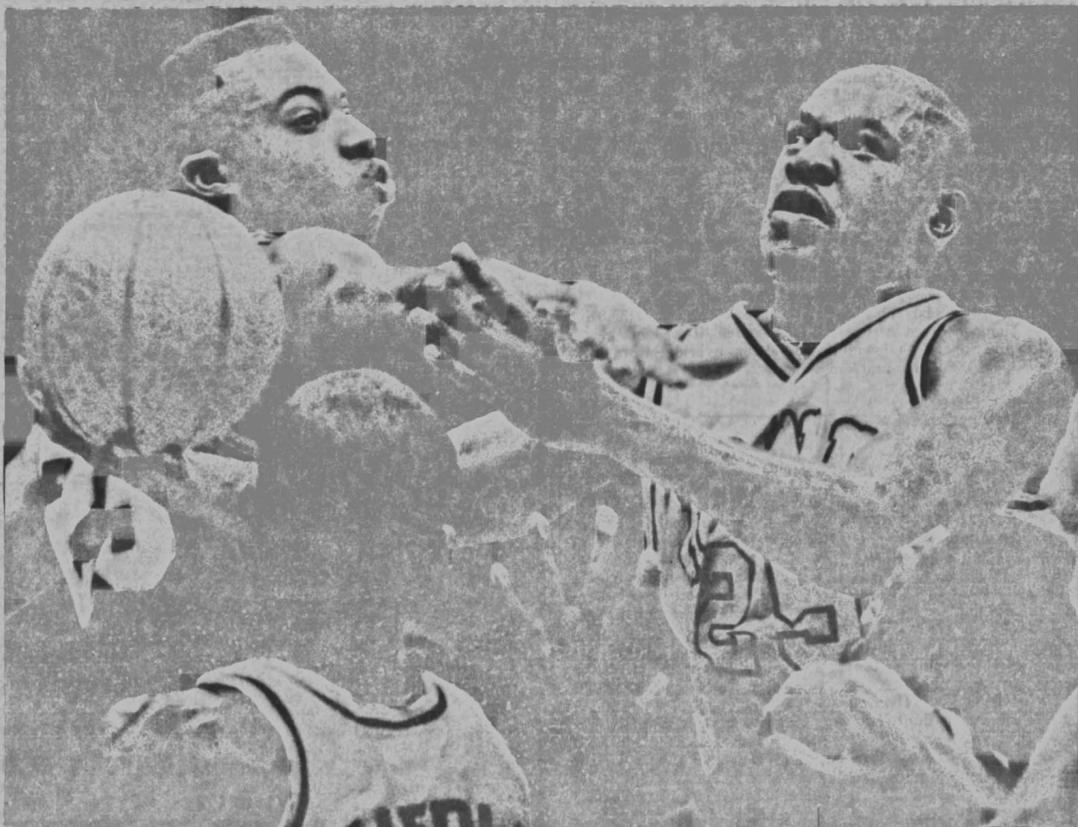

McNeese State offered up a dose of deliberate tempo, especially in the first half, a tactic the Hawkeyes may see often this season. And it worked.

"I think that (slow tempo) disrupts you," Davis said. "That tempo can be very effective. It's a very effective way to coach."

"You can't blow them out right away some nights. You have to grind it out."

Hawkeyes take third at Wahine Classic

By Michael Trikl
The Daily Iowan

Iowa walked into the Wahine Classic in Honolulu wounded and walked out with a third-place finish Sunday.

The Hawkeyes took four injured players to the season-opening tournament and defeated Washington 53-51 Sunday to secure third. Iowa fell to defending national champion Louisiana Tech in a semifinal game.

Shanda Berry hit a baseline jumper with 13 seconds left in the contest against Washington,

Women's Basketball

boosting Iowa past the Huskies. Iowa trailed 25-21 at halftime but battled back to take a 47-46 advantage with 4:20 left to play. Washington tied the game, 51-51, with :43 remaining before Berry sank the winning shot.

"Washington and Tennessee are the most sound defensive teams I've seen in a while," Stringer said.

"Washington used a man-to-man defense that really caused problems. We were lucky to get out of it."

Berry, who entered the tourney questionable because of a back injury, was Iowa's leading scorer in all three games. Berry scored 23 points in an opening win against Wyoming and had 20 in the second-round loss to Louisiana Tech.

Iowa almost pulled off a come-from-behind win against the Lady Techsters. After trailing by eight at halftime, the Hawkeyes pulled the score to 57-56 with about a minute left.

Tech's Venus Lacy answered with :39 remaining, and the Lady Techsters added three free throws for a 62-58 win.

"We didn't play with the same offensive patience that we showed against Wyoming," Stringer said. "We tried to run as fast as we could and lost some of our control."

"We did play very aggressive defensively. With more patience on offense, I think we'll have some good things to look forward to."

In the tournament opener, Iowa used a balanced scoring attack and a pressure defense to beat Wyoming 83-40.

Four Hawkeyes scored in double figures and Iowa held the Cowgirls to just 17 points in the second half. Iowa shot 51 percent from the field while Wyoming hit only 28 percent.

"I was pleased with our patience," Stringer said. "We really lit it up in the second half and used a much quicker offense. But we still played patient and in control."

Iowa will take a 2-1 record to the Dial Soap Classic Friday and Saturday at the University of Kansas.

Bengals roll over Buffalo's defense

(AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals' offense faced a tough test Sunday against the Buffalo Bills' defense, which was ranked first in the AFC.

The Bengals' offense not only passed, it made the honor roll.

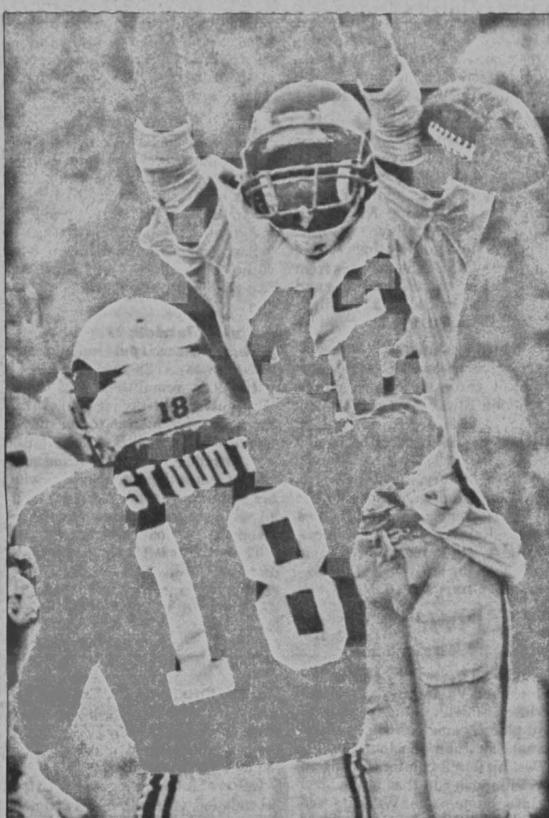

"We know we have the best offense in the NFL. We think we can run on anybody," quarterback Boomer Esiason said after Cincinnati stayed in first place in the AFC Central with a 35-21 victory over the Bills.

National Football League

Esiason completed 17 of 25 passes for 238 yards and the Bengals ran for another 232 yards. Ikey Woods ran for 129 in 26 carries and scored three times and James Brooks ran for 93 yards and scored twice on a defense that had allowed 101 yards rushing per game.

The Bengals netted 455 yards against a defense that had been giving up just 270, best in the AFC and second-best in the NFL.

"It is far and away the best offense we have seen," said Buffalo Coach Marv Levy, whose team clinched the AFC East title last week and still has an 11-2 record, a game better than Cincinnati at 10-3. Eagles 31, Cardinals 21

Philadelphia's Eric Everett tips the pass of Phoenix quarterback Cliff Stoudt Sunday in Philadelphia's Veterans Stadium. The pass was intercepted by the Eagles' Roynell Young. Associated Press

Philadelphia held on to at least a tie for the NFC East lead as Ron Johnson caught two touchdown passes and set up a third in a victory over Phoenix.

The Eagles, who have won seven of their last nine, boosted their record to 8-5 and dropped the Cardinals out of a three-way tie for the division lead at 7-6.

Randall Cunningham rallied the Eagles from a 14-7 halftime deficit to a 24-14 lead after three periods. He got an assist from backup Matt Cavanaugh, who came in for one play and threw nine yards to Johnson for a touchdown.

Top teams compete in season-opening tournament action

(AP) — The semifinals of the Maui Classic were no day at the beach for third-ranked Michigan and No. 4 Oklahoma.

Terry Mills hit two long jumpers in the final 1:25 Saturday to lead the Wolverines over Memphis State 79-75, and junior college transfer William Davis scored 19 points to help the Sooners edge No. 8 Nevada-Las Vegas 83-81.

An overflow crowd of 4,000 packed the Lahaina Civic Center to watch the shootout between Oklahoma and Las Vegas.

"That was two basketball programs which have a lot of respect for each other playing their hearts out," Oklahoma Coach Billy Tubbs said. "To say it was a physical game would be an understatement."

Mills was benched for 10 minutes in the second half for shooting too quickly. When he returned, however, Mills made two big baskets, including a jumper that gave Michigan a 77-74 lead with 52 seconds left.

"We set the screens for him and we knew their big guy wouldn't come out (to guard him)," Michigan coach Bill Frieder said.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 1 Duke 93, Citadel 52; No. 2 Georgetown 95, Hawaii Pacific 55; No. 7 Iowa 77, McNeese State 56; No. 9 Illinois 85, Illinois-Chicago 59; Southern Illinois 102, No. 11 Villanova 81; No. 15 Florida 83, Alaska-Anchorage 72; No. 16 Ohio State 72, DePaul 70, and No. 18 North Carolina State 110, Columbia 54.

Tomczak injures shoulder in Bears' win

CHICAGO (AP) — Quarterback Mike Tomczak of the Chicago Bears suffered a separated left shoulder near the end of the first half of Sunday's game against the Green Bay Packers. Tomczak was making his fourth straight start in place of Jim McMahon, who is on the injured reserve list with a sprained knee. Tomczak, who suffered the injury when he was sacked by Tim Harris, will be out indefinitely. He was replaced by Jim Harbaugh.

Zurbriggen takes World Cup opener

SCHLADMING, Austria (AP) — Pirmin Zurbriggen of Switzerland won a battle of gold medalists Sunday as he captured the first World Cup ski race for men this season, a super giant slalom. Zurbriggen, this year's Olympic downhill gold medalist, covered the 6,628-foot course in 1 minute, 31.65 seconds. Trailing Zurbriggen, defending World Cup overall champion, was France's Franck Piccard, Olympic Super-G champion at Calgary. Piccard's time was 1:31.77 on an overcast, cold day in the Austrian Alps.

Third in 1:32.15 was Leonard Stock, the 1980 Olympic downhill winner, while fourth was Alberto Tomba of Italy, who took a pair of gold medals in Calgary this year.

It was Zurbriggen's 32nd World Cup victory, second best on the all-time list behind Sweden's Ingemar Stenmark, who has 85.

"The first race of the season is always something special because you don't know what kind of condition you're in," Zurbriggen said. "But I'm happy, and it gives me a lot of confidence."

Tomba, the flamboyant "La Bomba," was fourth in 1:32.31, despite being the first racer down the course. It was his best result in the Super-G, a downhill-giant slalom hybrid. Saturday's track dropped 1,782 feet and had 44 gates.

worked, but not long enough.

"We thought we had the tempo down as best we could," Welch said. "But Iowa is so strong underneath and they do such a good job of pushing the ball up the court."

The Hawkeyes never trailed in the contest, opening up a 30-19 lead with 2:13 remaining in the half on an Armstrong layup.

But the Cowboys' Mark Thompson got a fast-break dunk and drew a foul with one second remaining in the half, converting the 3-point play to pull the margin to 32-24 at the half.

After the Cowboys stayed close in the first 10 minutes of the second half, pulling to 49-48 on a Thompson free throw, Iowa began to open it up.

"In the first 30 minutes, we did better than I anticipated," Welch said. "But in the second half, late, there were just too many numbers from the Iowa bench and they just kept coming at us."

"In the final 10 minutes or so, Iowa did what a championship team does."

The Hawkeyes shot 50 percent from the field in the contest, while hitting only 66 percent from the line. The Iowa defense, however, held the Cowboys to 45-percent shooting from the floor.

"We worked real hard on defense," Davis said. "I thought we played as good a defense as we've played in the three years that I've been here."

"We had some breakdowns, but for 40 minutes of basketball, that was a pretty good defensive effort. If we can keep that going, we could be a pretty good defensive ballclub before the year is over."

Ed Horton paced the Iowa offensive attack with 20 points on nine-of-12 shooting. Horton also grabbed eight rebounds.

"We just have to keep working hard," Horton said. "McNeese State has a good ballclub. The freshmen had a few butterflies here and there, but I can't exaggerate how hard they've worked in practice and how good they want to be."

"That motivates me, Roy (Marble) and B.J." Armstrong tallied 18 points, while Matt Bullard collected 10 rebounds and four assists with his eight points.

Marble had nine points, and freshman Ray Thompson came off the bench to score 10.

Anthony Pullard led the Cowboys with 16 points and Thompson and Michael Cutright chipped in 12 each.

Davis said the game proved that Iowa's young players will have to contribute if the Hawkeyes are to have a great season.

"Our three seniors will not be able to carry the ballclub," he said. "It takes seven, eight and nine guys to win a major college basketball game."

record, while the Packers fell to 2-11 with their sixth straight defeat.

Tomczak suffered a separation of his left, non-throwing shoulder with a minute left in the first half, and was replaced by Jim Harbaugh. Dent suffered a broken bone in his left ankle early in the second half.

Jets 38, Dolphins 34
New York, which had struggled offensively while losing their last three games, got an NFL-record 39 first downs and a team-record 597 yards against Miami, which lost its fourth straight despite five touchdown passes from Dan Marino.

Ken O'Brien came off the bench to throw for two touchdowns, including the winning score to Wesley Walker with 5:41 left.

Steelers 16, Chiefs 10
Gary Anderson ended three long scoring drives with field goals and Merrill Hoge scored on a 10-yard run as Pittsburgh beat Kansas City, only the second victory in the last 12 games for the Steelers.

The Chiefs, 3-9-1, managed only a field goal by Nick Lowery on two fourth-quarter drives inside the 11th-ranked Villanova coasted past Davidson 63-47 Sunday in the third-place game of the second annual San Juan Shootout.

West hit four 3-pointers during an 18-6 Villanova run that broke open a close game. The Wildcats led 18-13 before the rally and sprinted to a 36-21 halftime lead.

Villanova, 2-1 and the tournament favorite, was upset Saturday night by Southern Illinois 102-81.

No. 15 Florida 83, Alaska-Anchorage 72
Dwayne Davis scored 21 points to lead Florida to a victory in the in the consolation bracket of the Great Alaska Shootout.

Florida, which lost to California on Friday, wore down the smaller Seawolves in the second half and sank 18 free throws.

No. 9 Illinois 85, Illinois-Chicago 59
Ken Battle scored 18 points, leading five Illini players in double figures in their season opener.

Illinois was never threatened after jumping to a 10-3 lead on a 3-point basket by Battle. The Illini held Illinois-Chicago scoreless for a six-minute period in the first half, stretching a 21-10 lead to 38-10.

Nine Hawks place in Northern Open

By Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

With an important East Coast trip approaching this week, the Iowa Hawkeyes had a timely tuneup at the Northern Open in Madison, Wis., Saturday.

"We had a total of nine place winners in this tournament," Coach Dan Gable said. "I think that's probably the best of any team there. From a balance point of view, things are starting to come around."

Gable's squad will travel to Bethlehem, Pa., Wednesday for a showdown with Lehigh and finish the weekend with duals at Penn State and Edinboro. Following that trip, the Hawkeyes open Big Ten competition at Ohio State Dec. 4.

Junior Steve Martin captured Iowa's only individual title, at 118 pounds. Martin topped Jack Griffin of Northwestern 13-5 for the crown.

"Martin probably had his best tournament at Iowa this weekend," assistant coach Mark Johnson said.

Terry Brands, who gained the No. 1 position at 118 by beating Martin in a wrestle-off at Newton earlier this season, came in third at the weight. Brands' twin brother, Tom, took a second-place finish at 126 pounds.

Some controversy arose during the 167-pound semifinals. In the third period of Iowa all-American John Heffernan's match with Mike Farrell of Oklahoma State, Farrell led 3-1. Heffernan caught the Cowboy all-American and put him on his back.

No points were awarded to Heffernan, who lost the match and finished the tournament with a 7-4 win over Hawkeye redshirt Bart Chelavsig for third place.

"John should of at least been given a takedown to go to overtime," Johnson said. "The ref didn't think he had control, but watching films later it was pretty obvious." Gable agreed.

"We definitely had a takedown in the end," Gable said. "That would have put it into overtime. That doesn't mean that he would have won, but it was a very close match."

Other Hawkeyes placing at Madison were Joe Melchiorre, fourth at 134, Rick Novak, fifth at 150, Brooks Simpson, third at 190 and Andy Haman, fifth at heavyweight.

Gable seemed pleased with his team's efforts, but said he had hoped for more individual triumphs.

"We did fairly good, really," Gable said. "We did good from a balance standpoint, we just didn't do good from an individual, first-place type of thing."

"...a commanding technique and a sweet tone."

First-game jitters hamper Hawkeyes against Cowboys

By Mike Polisky
The Daily Iowan

Two question marks for the Hawkeyes going into this season, youth and inexperience, surfaced during Iowa's 77-56 win over McNeese State Saturday night at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

"All the young guys, other than the three seniors (B.J. Armstrong, Ed Horton and Roy Marble) were nervous and rattled," Iowa Coach Tom Davis said. "You wouldn't be human if you're not pumped up and nervous. After they play three or four games, they should be all right."

Iowa played tenacious defense, but looked rough on offense. The Hawkeyes shot just 65.5 percent from the free-throw line — a statistic which Davis said was greatly influenced by inexperience and nervousness.

"Nerves really show at the free-throw line," Davis said. "The bright lights were on for real. They were nervous."

Freshmen Ray Thompson and Troy Skinner both played well in their initial college outings. Thompson had 10 points, three rebounds and two steals, and Skinner added a clutch 3-point shot and ran the offense while Armstrong rested.

But both of Davis' young Hawkeyes could not escape the feelings of fear prior to taking the floor for warmups.

"I had the jitterbugs out there," Thompson said. "But once I got hold of the ball, things went smooth. I settled down. I just went out there trying to help out any way possible.

Men's Basketball

"We knew this one was going on the charts, so we wanted to go out and play tough defense and do what we could."

Skinner also overcame his pre-game jitters.

"I was a little nervous," Skinner said. "But once you get involved, it's the same as any game."

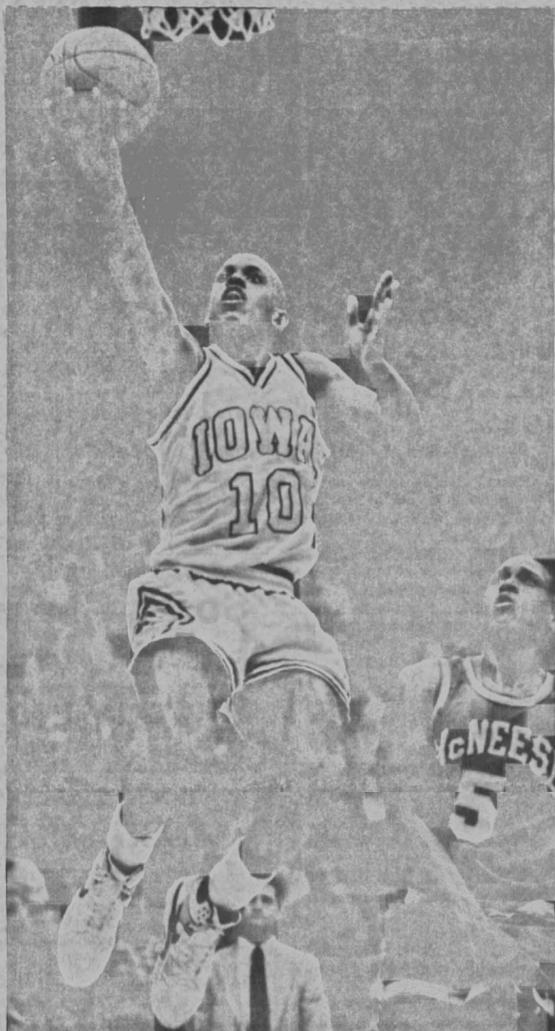

Horton and junior Matt Bullard praised the play of the freshmen.

"They had a few butterflies, I'm sure," Horton said, "but they worked extremely hard on the court and they overcame it."

"The freshmen are really showing that they are working out everyday, and if they keep showing that, we will be OK."

Bullard, a transfer student from Colorado, also said he felt uncomfortable in his first regular-season game as a Hawkeye.

"I was kind of nervous," Bullard said. "But things went fine on the court. I was really impressed with the freshmen. Playing in front of 15,500 fans had to make them nervous, but they played real well."

Iowa senior guard B.J. Armstrong drives past McNeese State's Michael Cutright en route to a first-half layup Saturday night in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. Armstrong scored 18 points in Iowa's win.

Iowa ends 'what if' season with split in conference play

By Anne Upson
The Daily Iowan

Almost.

Almost, Iowa volleyball Coach Sandy Stewart says, best describes the season, which ended with a split in conference play this past weekend.

Iowa, finishing at 24-9, almost had the most wins of any Stewart-coached Iowa team. The Hawkeyes almost landed an NCAA bid, sharing second place in the Big Ten with Minnesota and Northwestern. And Iowa almost defeated unbeaten Illinois in the last match of the season this past weekend at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Besides the five-game loss to the Illini, the Hawkeyes took a five-game win from Purdue to complete the season at home.

Stewart said the weekend's performance was a capsule of the season.

Volleyball

"It was a good indication of the season," Stewart said. "We played brilliant and phenomenal, but we also had lapses of intensity. It was a mirror of the season."

In Saturday's match against the Illini, Iowa gave up the first two games but came back to take the next two.

"We played great at times," Stewart said. "In the third game we showed real confidence, but then in the fourth game, when we were really leading, it seemed that the team said 'wow, we are beating Illinois,' and then we lost the intensity. In the fifth game we took a beating."

Iowa setter Janet Moylan said she thought the match against the Illini was a letdown.

"Truthfully, it was kind of disappointing," Moylan said. "The two games sort of showed that Illinois wasn't shining. It was like they gave us the opportunity to beat them and we didn't take it. We really fought hard. But in the fifth game, they outplayed us."

Despite falling short of 1986's 25-9 record, the Hawkeyes did set 25 school records, 11 single-match records and 14 season records. Individual marks were set by co-captain Kari Hamel in kills and total attacks, Barb Willis in hitting percentage, block solos and block assists, and Moylan in assists and digs.

Stewart said the high number of records was an indication of brighter times in the season.

"At moments we were great," Stewart said. "We need more moments of excellence. Next year, we would like to be in the top 20 and top 10."

Southern California flanker Gary Wellman breaks up an interception attempt by Notre Dame's Pat Terrell in the last minute of the first half of Notre Dame's 27-10 win Saturday in Los Angeles.

Three teams stay in chase for national championship

(AP) — The battle for No. 1 in college football is down to three teams.

Heading into bowl season, the only schools with a shot at the national championship are top-ranked Notre Dame, No. 3 Miami and No. 4 West Virginia.

Notre Dame, which beat second-ranked Southern California 27-10 Saturday, meets West Virginia in the Jan. 2 Fiesta Bowl. If the Fighting Irish win the showdown of unbeaten teams, they will certainly capture their eighth national title.

However, if West Virginia wins and Miami beats Brigham Young next week and Nebraska in the Orange Bowl, there is bound to be an argument over No. 1.

The Mountaineers would have the better record, 12-0 compared with Miami's 11-1, and a victory over Notre Dame, the only team to beat the Hurricanes. But Miami could point to its victories over four conference champions and No. 5 Florida State.

The latest conference champion to fall to Miami was Arkansas. The Hurricanes edged the Southwest Conference champs 18-16 Saturday, ending the Razorbacks' bid for a perfect season.

In other games involving ranked teams, Florida State pounded Florida 52-17, No. 14 Houston downed Rice 45-14, No. 16 Louisiana State routed Tulane 44-14, and No. 20 Georgia beat Georgia Tech 24-3.

No. 1 Notre Dame 27, No. 2 Southern Cal 10

The Fighting Irish overcame the last-minute suspensions of tailback Tony Brooks and flanker Ricky Watters to beat error-plagued Southern California.

Tailback Mark Green, forced to play the entire game because of Brooks' absence, scored twice on short runs for the Irish. Quarterback Tony Rice ran 65 yards for a touchdown and Stan Smagala returned an interception 64 yards for the other Notre Dame scores.

"I've never had a year that's been as gratifying as this one," Notre Dame Coach Lou Holtz said. "I'm thrilled for the players. I've never had a team that was 11-0."

Holtz suspended Brooks and Watters after they were 40 minutes late for a team dinner Friday night. The school issued a press release saying the players were penalized "as a result of repeated irresponsible tardiness for team meetings and functions."

Southern Cal Coach Larry Smith said it was "the most bitter loss of my coaching career because we didn't give ourselves a chance to win." The Trojans, 10-1, play Michigan in the Rose Bowl.

College Football

No. 3 Miami 18, No. 8 Arkansas 16

Carlos Huerta kicked a 20-yard field goal with 5:38 left, and Miami held Arkansas to minus-14 yards in the fourth quarter.

Huerta's third field goal capped a 10-play, 74-yard drive. Arkansas' Steve Atwater dropped a potential interception in the end zone one play before the kick.

"It was a little high, but I should have had it," Atwater said. "There are no excuses. We had chances to win the game. We just didn't capitalize."

Arkansas, which lost to Miami 51-7 last year, entered the game as a 17-point underdog despite a 10-0 record. The Razorbacks had a chance to win even though Miami outgained them 438-186 in total yards.

"Hopefully this game will show college football that Arkansas is for real," said Barry Foster, who had an 80-yard touchdown run for the Razorbacks. "Hopefully it will give us some respect among the top teams in college football."

Arkansas plays UCLA in the Cotton Bowl. Miami, 9-1, meets Nebraska in the Orange Bowl.

No. 5 Florida State 52, Florida 17

Chip Ferguson's three first-quarter touchdown passes sparked Florida State, which won its last 10 games after an opening loss to Miami.

Ferguson's passes to Lawrence Dawsey, Tom O'Malley and Sammie Smith gave the Seminoles a 21-7 lead. Coach Bobby Bowden removed his starters in the third period after the Seminoles moved ahead 45-10.

Florida State gained 132 yards and 11 first downs in the first period against Florida's defense, which was ranked second nationally going into the game.

It was Florida State's largest margin of victory over Florida, which will meet Illinois in the All American Bowl. Florida State plays Auburn in the Sugar Bowl.

Houston 45, Rice 14

Houston's Andre Ware threw five touchdown passes and Jason Phillips and James Dixon became the first teammates in NCAA history to finish 1-2 in the nation in receiving.

Rice, 0-11, extended the nation's longest losing streak to 18. Houston, 9-2, plays Washington State in the Aloha Bowl.

Ware completed touchdown passes of 1 and 64 yards to Phillips, who caught 11 passes for 207 yards. Phillips finished the season with 108 catches, second on the all-time list to Tulsa's Howard Twilley, who caught 134 passes in 1965.

Dixon had 15 catches for 108 yards, giving him 102 receptions this season. Phillips and Dixon became the fourth and fifth receivers in NCAA history to catch 100 or more passes in a season.

No. 16 LSU 44, Tulane 14

Greg Jackson returned an interception 71 yards for a touchdown and Tommy Hodson threw for 222 yards and two scores to lead Louisiana State.

Hodson completed 15 of 21 passes, including scoring tosses of 15 yards to Eddie Fuller and 30 yards to Tony Moss. David Brownlyke kicked added four field goals for LSU.

The Tigers, 8-3, play Syracuse in the Hall of Fame Bowl. Tulane finished at 5-6.

Tulane closed to 17-14 midway through the third quarter on a pair of touchdown runs by quarterback Terrence Jones. But Brownlyke's second field goal, a 1-yard scoring plunge by Jay Egloff and Jackson's interception return ended Tulane's upset bid.

No. 20 Georgia 24, Georgia Tech 3

Wayne Johnson passed for 167 yards and one touchdown and Wycliffe Lovelace returned an interception 33 yards for a score as Georgia gave Vince Dooley his 200th coaching victory.

"It's not just a victory for me," said Dooley, who is completing his 25th season at Georgia. "This also belongs to all the players and assistant coaches who have been with me over the years."

Dooley is only the 10th coach in Division I-A history to reach the 200-victory plateau. His record is 200-77-10.

The Bulldogs, 8-3, play Michigan State in the Gator Bowl. Georgia Tech finished 3-8.

Mississippi 33, Mississippi State 6

Mississippi's Mark Young threw three touchdown passes to give him 31 for his career, tying the school record held by Archie Manning and Kent Austin. Mississippi finished with a 5-6 record, while Mississippi State fell to 1-10.

Floyd tops golf greats in Skins

LA QUINTA, Calif. (AP) — Curtis Strange missed a 7-foot birdie putt and let Ray Floyd escape with a $165,000 prize on one hole Sunday in golf's Skins Game.

Floyd dropped a 10-footer on the 16th hole moments before Strange failed on the attempt to tie him and force a carry-over.

The 46-year-old Floyd also won $35,000 on the first hole of a sudden death playoff and pushed his earnings to a leading $290,000 in his first appearance in the Skins, a two-day, 18-hole, event.

Jack Nicklaus, who gave no evidence of the back problems that have troubled him all year, also made a 10-foot birdie putt for $50,000 on the 11th hole, the second of day. That pushed his two-day total to $125,000.

Lee Trevino dropped an across-the-green, 39-foot putt on the 17th hole — where he made an ace in last year's Skins Game — and won $35,000.

Curtis Strange, the Player of the Year and first man to go past $1 million in single-season PGA Tour earnings, was shut out.

He had a chance when he dropped a 40-foot birdie putt on the 18th hole at PGA West. Moments later Trevino tied him with a 12-footer and the event went to an extra hole for the final $35,000.

"When it's going bad, well, it goes bad," said Strange, who scored his only birdie of the event on that 18th hole.

"I really had the feeling Raymond or Lee would make it," said Strange, at 33 the junior of the quartet and a heavy favorite. "Nobody likes to be shut out," he said. "I just didn't play well enough."

The short putt he missed on the 16th, which gave the biggest prize of the event to Floyd, was an equal disappointment, Strange said.

"I pulled it," he said. "I really hate to miss a putt like that. I don't care whether it's to win or to tie and keep it going. You just hate to miss a putt like that."

But he was quick to give the credit to Floyd.

"I think that's the best I've ever seen Raymond play," Strange said. "I was very proud of the way I played," Floyd said. "From tee to green, that's the best I've played in several years."

Winnipeg takes Cup with win over B.C.

OTTAWA (AP) — Trevor Kennerd's fourth field goal of the game, a 30-yarder in the final quarter, carried the Winnipeg Blue Bombers to the Grey Cup title Sunday with a 22-21 victory over the favored British Columbia Lions.

An interception in the final minute by former Oregon star Mike Gray, a defensive lineman, helped seal the victory as the Bombers, champions of the Eastern Division, became the first .500 team to win the Canadian Football League playoff championship.

Winnipeg was moved to the East alignment in 1987 when the Montreal Alouettes folded on the eve of the opening of the regular season. The Bombers had a 9-9 record in regular-season play this year to finish second in the eastern standings. Winnipeg defeated the Hamilton Tiger-Cats in the semifinal and upset the Toronto Argonauts in the eastern final.

Kennerd's winning field goal at 12:05 of the final quarter snapped a 19-19 deadlock in the defensive tussle. The margin was narrowed to one point with 49 seconds left when Bomber punter Bob Cameron ran out of his own end zone, conceding a safety.

Cameron played a strong role in the triumph with his spectacular kicking into the wind for two singles.

Winnipeg's lone touchdown came on a 35-yard pass to James Murphy from Sean Salisbury in the second quarter.

B.C.'s touchdowns came on wide receiver David Williams' 26-yard catch and Tony Cherry's 14-yard run. Kicker Lui Passaglia completed the B.C. scoring, but hit on only one of three field goal attempts.

Murphy, the Deland, Fla., native who played at Utah State, was named the game's most valuable player after catching five passes for 165 yards, all in the first half.

Gray, who was born in Baltimore, was selected the top lineman.

Jackson, King, 700 others witness Tyson's baptism

CLEVELAND (AP) — Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson was baptized Sunday in a ceremony attended by the Rev. Jesse Jackson, boxing promoter Don King, and a crowd of about 700 people at a Baptist church on Cleveland's east side.

Tyson, wearing a white robe, stepped into a pool of water and immersed himself, then embraced the Rev. Henry Payden, pastor of Holy Trinity Baptist Church.

"Mike, now your job is to take the message of Christ to the people," said Payden, who presided along with Jackson at a four-hour service that ended with the baptisms of Tyson and 24 other people.

Tyson did not speak during the service and did not make any comment to the press before or afterward.

The champion had appeared at the church Wednesday to give away 500 free holiday turkeys.

Last month, Tyson attended services at the church and prayed with Payden, who gave him a Bible. "Mike, you have a way of knocking men down. But Jesus has a way of picking people up," Payden told the champion at the time.

Payden said then that he had been called by King and Cleveland City Council President George Forbes, who told the pastor, "Mike needs your help."

The boxer has been beset by personal problems since he knocked out Michael Spinks for the undisputed heavyweight championship in June.

He suffered a broken hand in a street brawl with heavyweight Mitch Green, suffered a concussion when he rammed his car into a tree, then became involved in divorce proceedings with actress Robin Givens, whom he had married in February. His career also is caught in a tug-of-war between his manager, Bill Cayton, and King.

Tyson, who on Sunday appeared to have gained considerable weight since the Spinks fight, has been living in the Cleveland area since he recently became associated with King. The promoter has a training camp about 40 miles east of the city.

Johnson maintains innocence

MILAN, Italy (AP) — Disqualified Canadian sprinter Ben Johnson, bursting into tears in front of television cameras, said he never knowingly took forbidden substances and that he is dreaming of a comeback at the 1992 Olympic Games in Barcelona, Spain.

The world 100-meter champion, banned for two years for use of steroids in the Seoul Olympics, said he was possibly the victim of a conspiracy but did not elaborate.

He claimed that his impressive muscular growth and his world records resulted from "13 years of dedication to track, from several hours a day of weight-lifting and exercise."

Johnson, stripped of a gold medal and world record of 9.79 seconds after failing drug tests at Seoul, gave a rare interview to the Italian television network RAI, which telecast it nationwide Sunday night. It was broadcast earlier this month at the Jamaican-born sprinter's home at Toronto.

Johnson appeared deeply moved during the conversation, and burst into tears when talking of the difficult times after Seoul.

The interviewer, Gianni Minoli, said that filming was suspended for about five minutes as Johnson was unable to control his sobs.

The sprinter, who still holds a world record of 9.83 seconds set in the 1987 World Track Championships at Rome, explained he was given a cocktail of herbs and roots prior to the Olympic final.

"I am innocent. I never knowingly took any forbidden substance," he said.

Who killed Edwin Droad? You decide

By Kevin Goulding
The Daily Iowan

"The Mystery of Edwin Droad," Broadway's Tony Award-winning "solve-it-yourself" musical, comes to Hancher Auditorium at 8 p.m. this Wednesday.

Charles Dickens died before he could complete this hilarious whodunit, but, rather than simply complete the story, composer-lyricist-librettist Rupert Holmes wrote several different endings, allowing the audience to decide which of the suspicious colorful characters did the deed.

"The great thing about it is not only the excitement that comes from the audience knowing that they have some say in the outcome, but the fact the actors themselves will not know until five minutes beforehand if they are going to do a big number at the end of the play or not," Holmes commented. "The audience is intrigued — the cast is terrified."

The high-spirited show is arranged as a Victorian music hall — including the audience as a (hopefully) vocal and boisterous peanut gallery. In addition to voting on the identities of the murderer and the disguised detective and which lovers shall be united at the end, the audience will also interact with the cast before the show as the actors mingle, "campaigning," according to actress Michelle Rios (Helena).

"Each character's main goal is to become the murderer, so before the show we mix with the audience and act mysterious and suspicious," she said. "It's fun to be a murderer."

Audience members have been known to campaign for their favorite candidate. During the show's premiere run in New York, a committee formed that circulated fliers and organized cheering sections for one suspect. Rios emphasized that the greater the audience participation, the more fun the show. "It really is an audience participation show — the more vocal the audience, the more fun it is — it becomes more like a music hall. I like it when the audience is enthusiastic and follows the story — and when they hiss and boo the sinister characters."

The rag-tag music hall company, comprised of vintage Dickens heroes and villains with names such as Reverend Crisparkle, Princess Puffer, Rosa Bud and gravedigger Durdes, aims to "amuse at any cost," according to Holmes.

'Tis the season for mistletoe and Hollywood

By The Associated Press

'Tis the season to be jolly, and the movie studios are responding with a host of comedies. In "High Spirits," Peter O'Toole attempts to pass off his rundown hotel as a haunted castle, and ghosts, including Daryl Hannah, actually appear.

Dan Aykroyd in "My Stepmother Is an Alien" is a widowed scientist who falls in love with spacieling Kim Basinger. Cybil Shepherd discovers in "Chances Are" that her daughter's boyfriend, Robert Downey Jr., is the reincarnation of her late husband.

Also in the comedy grabbag is another version of the Dickens classic, "A Christmas Carol." In Warner Bros. "Scrooged," Bill Murray plays a crass TV executive who tries to exploit the Christmas spirit but gets caught up in his own scheme.

There's also "The Naked Gun: From the Files of Police Squad!" with Leslie Nielsen and Ricardo Montalban as opponents in a reworking of the memorable but brief 1982 TV series "Police Squad."

Michael Caine and Steve Martin team as com men on the French Riviera in "Dirty Rotten Scoundrels."

Ivan Reitman ("Ghostbusters") would have us believe in "Twins" that Arnold Schwarzenegger and Danny DeVito actually are.

Parents will be pleased to learn that two new animated features will appear during the holidays. "Oliver and Company," a new twist on "Oliver Twist," with such voices as Bette Midler and Billy Joel, bears the Disney imprint. It's about a bunch of rather hip dogs and a cute little kitten who tangle with a loan shark and learn what friendship is all about.

Steven Spielberg and George Lucas acted as executive producers on the dinosaur epic, "The Land Before Time," produced by Disney defector Don Bluth.

The holidays are also a time for drama since the studios bring forth their Academy Award hopefuls before the Dec. 31 deadline for qualification. Here are some of the most promising:

"Rain Man," with Dustin Hoffman and Tom Cruise as brothers on a trip across the United States.

"Beaches," with Bette Midler and Barbara Hershey as long-time friends striving to survive marriages and careers.

"Mississippi Burning," with Gene Hackman and Willem Dafoe as FBI agents investigating the murder of three civil rights workers in the 1964 South. Based on an actual case.

"Talk Radio," Oliver Stone's ("Platoon") version of the Eric Bogosian play about an abrasive radio talk show host, Bogosian stars.

"Torch Song Trilogy," with Harvey Fierstein, Anne Bancroft and Matthew Broderick in Fierstein's play about gay life in New York.

"Working Girl," with Harrison Ford, Sigourney Weaver and Melanie Griffith in a drama-comedy about corporate life and love.

The other holiday movies include: "Cocoon II: The Return," with most of the cast returning; and "Tequila Sunrise" with Mel Gibson as a drug dealer who wants out of the business and Kurt Russell as a narcotics cop who's his friend.

'The Madcracker' parodies holiday classic

By Kevin Goulding
The Daily Iowan

A Sugar Plum Fairy in drag? A Prince in leather chastity belt, spiked dog collar, chains and nothing else? Gasp, pant, swoon.

Is nothing sacred? Last season Hancher Auditorium entertained the world premiere of the Joffrey Ballet's version of "The Nutcracker." This season the Mid-America Dance Company will present "The Madcracker," an irreverent parody of the holiday classic, at 8 p.m. this Tuesday.

"It's a no-holds-barred thorough shredding — but in a kind way," laughed Artistic Director Ross Winter, the piece's creator.

In this updated version, Clara is a yuppie divorcée — "a wealthy, divorced bitch," according to Winter — who has invited her friends to a wild holiday party in her condo. Weary of her current beau, Dross L. Meyer, Clara turns her attentions to his macho but dim-witted nephew, known simply as the Madcracker.

The dull fellow never catches on to Clara's invitations to remain after the party, but she meets him again in a dream in which they travel together to The Land of Entertainments, described as "a sort of latter-day theme park, just this side of the Twilight Zone."

There they observe "The Rushin' Dance," "The Dance of the Oxymorons," "The Dance of the Houseplants," "The Dance of the Sated Entertainers and Entertainees" and various other divertissements. They even meet the hairy-chested Sugar Plum Fairy, the artistic director of the Land of Entertainments whose drag costume includes pink tennis shoes, before the bedraggled Clara awakes, alone.

The Sugar Plum Fairy will be danced by Winter. "I couldn't see anyone with the maturity and dramatic capabilities," he said. "A mere callow ballerina wouldn't suffice."

The St. Louis Post-Dispatch described "The Madcracker" as "part dance, part burlesque, part low humor but almost all fun and

"I've long been fascinated with 'The Nutcracker,'" commented

Winter. When it was originally performed in Russia in the late 1800s, it was a flop. It's only in the last few decades that it's gained in popularity — and why it has confounds me. What originally didn't work still doesn't — there's not much dancing in the first act and the second act, although full of wonderful dancing, has nothing to do with Act I — it's a puzzlement."

This is the fourth year that the Mid-America Dance Company has performed the piece. The idea came to Winter when he saw a brand new version of "The Nutcracker" performed by the Royal Ballet at Covent Garden. "It was a lavish production, exquisite to look at, beautifully danced — and deadly boring."

The Australian-born ("in the bush, not the outback") Winter jumped a passenger cargo in 1959 bound for Europe. It wasn't until 1980, 21 years after he left, that he returned to Australia. After 12 years in Europe, Winter moved to the United States, where he founded the Mid-America Dance Company. "I intended to come back in a year or two, but I severely underestimated how long it takes to see the world," said Winter.

Fishbone (with East and West) brings its high-energy rock and soul to the Polo Club, 313 S. Dubuque St., Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Fishbone to rocket Iowa City

By Kevin Goulding
The Daily Iowan

With influences ranging from Annette Funicello to Curtis Mayfield, the rock and soul sextet Fishbone comes to the Polo Club, 313 S. Dubuque St., Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

The group's second album "Truth and Soul," featuring the hit radio single and MTV video "Freddie's Dead," has rocketed this youthful group into prominence.

Displaying a wide range of emotions (anger, playfulness), musical styles (rock, reggae, Latin) and social concerns (drugs, divorce, racism), "Fishbone" defies labeling. "We try to break barriers in music," said guitarist Kendall Jones. "We try to get people to accept more than being spoon-fed Whitney Houston."

Their current "Truth and Soul" tour will take the group to Europe and Japan after their U.S. swing finishes. The group recently completed a series of festival and large club dates in Europe, which met with acclaim. The U.K.'s music publication Melody Maker said this about "Fishbone's" rendition of Curtis Mayfield's 1972 "Superfly" hit single "Freddie's Dead" — "Rock and roll as it should be before it was watered down in stadiums and lost its anger, scope, vitality and furious buzzing rhythm."

From the upbeat dance tune "Bonin' in the Boneyard" to the reggae-influenced "Ma & Pa" to the chilling and provocative "Slow Bus Movin'" (Howard Beach Party), a song concerning the Brooklyn racial incident and the times that fostered it, the group displays mercurial imagination.

"We wanted to capture the feeling of Fishbone live," said Jones. "Our energy is so intense now — this LP brought everything together."

Although the group has been together for 10 years, they are all only 21 years old. First formed as a junior high school garage band, the members of "Fishbone" met on the bus that took them from their neighborhood into the suburbs as part of Los Angeles' school integration program. At home, they were raised on jazz, R & B and funk; in the valley they were exposed to surf music, punk and reggae, helping to fuse their current musical style. By 1982 they were performing professionally.

Program distributed gifts, for

By Sara Langenberg
The Daily Iowan

Area businesses and organizations are responding to the needs of indigent families in Iowa City this holiday season with special programs to distribute gifts to them.

Joan Vandenberg, director of Willow Creek Neighborhood Center, also known as the Community Center, said families in Iowa City experience psychological stresses and holiday season in addition to financial hardships.

"In our commercialized children's expectations, the stress is high," Vandenberg said. "It is frustrating to parents who are not able to give a lot of these programs relieve that stress."

Vandenberg said the family atmosphere surrounding the holiday season and the on family get-togethers, the stress needy families experience.

"It's difficult if you're a 'Brady Bunch,' because of the stress of family get-togethers, sometimes hard to meet the needs of the children," Vandenberg said.

Michelle Coleman, a coordinator at Willow Creek, said about 200 families have come to the center for Christmas this year.

So far, three local businesses, Eagle Discount Store and First National Bank, and three service organizations, Crisis Center, the Iowa Men's Health Consultation and Domestic Violence Intervention program have contacted Interested individuals can choose a child they want to help and return the gift to the stores. The gift is delivered by the store's employees.
