Pre-election violence kills 25 in Sri Lanka

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) - At least 25 people, including three women and a child, were killed in a new wave of violence ahead of the nation's presidential election next week, an official said.

The Sri Lankan government said 17 people were killed in the latest violence, which erupted in the northwestern province of Puttalam and the eastern province of Welimada.

The violence comes after the government and the Tamil Tigers signed a ceasefire agreement last month that ended a decade-long war.

More than 100,000 people, mostly Tamil civilians, fled their homes during the conflict.

The government has accused the Tigers of carrying out the attacks.

The Tigers, who have been fighting for an independent Tamil homeland, have denied any involvement.

The election is set for January 8, with President Chandrika Kumaratunga of the Sri Lanka Freedom Party seeking a third term.

In Sri Lanka, a general strike was called by the opposition parties to protest the government's handling of the crisis.

Sri Lanka's economy has been hit by the violence, which has displaced hundreds of thousands of people and disrupted trade and tourism.

The United Nations has called for an immediate ceasefire and the withdrawal of all military forces from the conflict zones.

The Tigers have been fighting for an independent Tamil homeland since the 1970s.

All kinds fill Santa's shoes locally, spreading cheer to kids of all ages

By Debby Ochoa

The Daily Iowan

Holiday Cheer came early to a number of UI students when they received scholarships from the UI Self-Help Scholarship Fund.

The Student Services Office of the UI received a donation of $4,700, which was awarded to 15 of the most deserving students from the UI community.

The awards were given to students who have demonstrated financial need and had a minimum 2.0 grade point average.

The scholarships are a great idea, especially the Dehydration Fund, said Assistant Director of the UI Self-Help Scholarship Fund.

This fund was set up after the Dehydration Fund, which was established in 1990, was discontinued.

Applications for spring semester awards will be accepted until February 1st of the next school year.

Applications are available at the Office of Financial Aid and the Office of Special Support Services.

The UI is seeking to strengthen its financial aid for students by proposing a new school-financing proposal.

The proposal, which was introduced by UI President Peter Schupf, aims to eliminate the use of "phantom student" names in the university's financial aid system.

"It is important because we want to encourage students who wouldn't necessarily qualify for the Self-Help Scholarship," he said.

The new proposal would allow students who are not currently enrolled to receive financial aid for the duration of their academic program.

The proposal would also eliminate the use of "phantom student" names, which are currently used to identify students who are not currently enrolled.

The proposal is expected to be presented to the UI Board of Regents in February.
Volunteers must remember

A judge in Dallas recently tossed a new class of victim—those that deserve what they get.

District Judge John Hampton sentenced a double-murderer to 30 years in prison instead of the maximum life sentence, perhaps because his victims were heterosexual. Hampton said he rejected the prosecution’s request for life imprisonment because they were sexually “overexposed.”

“I don’t much care for cases breasting the streets picking up by the busload, but I’m a nice boy,” he said. “I get a bad rep.”

His decision has provoked justifiable outrage from gay rights leaders and the Texas Human Rights Foundation, but a reasoning in deciding the sentence probably fell within the domain of what the law permits.

Voters must remember being considered by the Iowa Legislature that would make it a crime to give advice to heterosexuals in a manner that might make them reexamine their sexual orientations.

Unisex insurance

Unisex insurance—sometimes referred to as “gender neutral”—would make it illegal for insurance companies to offer differential rates based upon sex. The bill is sponsored by Rep. Paul Stoltz, Iowa’s Democratic-turned-independent House member.

If passed, the bill could mean that women would have to pay for sex discrimination for admission on the basis of sex. Women would equally pay for a risk to the insurance company.

Teen-age girls are generally safer drivers than teen-age boys. However, it is unfair to women who would consequently pay higher premiums. Those of us who leave are forever grimacing with our faces crumpled in the hand by our heart’s desire again, I thought I knew what life is really about, somehow. That's not the way it is. Whatever I thought I knew had read each of my entrance. I attended Young Lady You Have a Mouth Elementary School. In spite of years away from it, I still think of all the things I do tend to build to a stronger, more secure white minority government.

Seems like that, we should embark on the one foot in our pants. It makes anybody mad, they’ll say, and I don’t think I’m going to go any further.

Iowa man charged with sexual abuse

DES MOINES (AP) — A former high school employee charged with sexually abusing students for years at an Iowa Catholic school has been arrested, raising concerns about the school's handling of similar cases.

The Des Moines Register reported that the man, identified as an assistant principal, was arrested Saturday morning. The man had previously worked at the school, which is located in the Des Moines Diocese. The man is accused of molesting students from 1983 to 2016.

The arrest comes after a whistleblower brought the allegations to light last year. The whistleblower was a former student who said the man had touched him inappropriately.

The school conducted an investigation, but the man was not suspended or fired. Instead, he was given a letter of reprimand and a warning.

The Register reported that the school's response to the allegations has been criticized as inadequate.

The man is scheduled to make an initial court appearance next week.

Shutdowns of volunteer efforts hurt Salvation Army fund raising

The Johnson County Salvation Army has launched an emergency response fund to help those in need due to the coronavirus pandemic. The fund is open to all who qualify and can be applied for online.

The Salvation Army has been providing services to those in need for over 100 years. The organization has a rich history of helping those in crisis, and their mission is to provide relief for people facing financial hardship.

The Johnson County Salvation Army is currently facing a significant increase in demand for its services. With many people losing their jobs due to the pandemic, the Salvation Army is seeing a surge in the number of people seeking help.

The organization is urging people to donate what they can, as every little bit helps. The Salvation Army is also encouraging people to volunteer, as they are currently short-staffed.

Male students enhance women's studies

By Joy Cavin

An increasing number of male students are taking an interest in women's studies classes, but many are still interested in the courses because they are interested in a specific topic, not necessarily in the field itself.

"They are taking classes because they are interested in the topics, not necessarily because they are interested in the field," said Groch, a former student of the UI Women's Studies Program.

"It's not about the gender of the student, it's about the interest in the topic," said John Groch, a graduate student in the UI Women's Studies Program.

"That's why I was interested in taking the class," said Groch. "I wanted to learn more about women and their experiences."}

Women's Studies

"I have learned so much from my studies in women's studies," said Groch. "It has taught me to think critically and to question my assumptions.

"I have also learned to be more open-minded and to appreciate different perspectives," said Groch. "It has helped me to understand the complexity of human experience and to see the world in a more nuanced way.

"I would definitely recommend women's studies to anyone who is interested in learning more about the world around them," said Groch. "It has changed my life and I am grateful for it."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President-elect George Bush entered the White House as the first of a string of political appointments to be made by his transition team.

JANUARY 25, 1989

Bush announced that he has nominated Edwin Meese III, the lawyer who has handled the Watergate break-in case for a second time, to serve as his chief of staff.

Meese, who is a conservative Republican, has been a legal advisor to Bush for years and has helped guide him through several legal and political controversies.

The appointment of Meese is a symbolic gesture of support for Bush's new administration.

Bush also named several other important figures to his team, including.

- Secretary of State Colin Powell, a retired Army general and Vietnam veteran, who will lead the State Department.

- Secretary of Defense Donald Rumsfeld, a former senator and Vietnam War veteran, who will head the Pentagon.

- Secretary of the Treasury Michael W. Brown, who will oversee the nation's financial affairs.

- Attorney General Richard Thornburgh, a former governor of Pennsylvania, who will lead the Justice Department.

The appointments signal Bush's intention to focus on national security and economic issues.

Bush's team is expected to focus on issues such as trade, energy, and national security, as well as on foreign policy matters.
Air traveler with weapons arrested

CHICAGO — A pilot was arrested Sunday at O'Hare International Airport after a search of his aircraft revealed seven handguns, an Uzi submachine gun, a night vision scope, several hundred rounds of.45-caliber bullets, and parts for more, police said.

The pilot was Joseph J. Bonelli, 37, of Chicago, police said. He was arrested Sunday afternoon and was being held at the City Jail while authorities acted on the investigation.

"We think this guy is a part-time gunman," said John F. Peta, police public information officer.

A plane carrying Bonelli and seven other passengers taxied to the airport's west terminal, where the 37-year-old pilot was arrested.

WASHINGTON — President Reagan's chief diplomat said Monday that the new American Energy Secretary John Herrington, sworn in today, will be worth enough money in the president's budget to safely operate nuclear arms.

"The president has said consistently that nuclear weapons are very expensive, that we cannot afford them, and that we cannot continue to support them," Energy Secretary Herrington, of New Mexico, said in a telephone conversation with the Washington Post. "And I agree with him." Herrington is the latest of several Energy Secretaries to bring a large budget to the Energy Department.

Herrington said that the president's proposed budget for the Energy Department must be "adequate to support the nuclear plants that we have," and that he would not be willing to support any budget that would not support those plants.

As reported in the Post, Herrington said that the Energy Department might have to "go to the Congress" to get adequate funding for nuclear plants.

BOSTON (AP) — When a group of ordinary Boston merchants who liked to sing formed the Handel & Haydn Society 130 years ago, they could not have imagined that they would be portrayed as a midsized, chamber-size symphony.

The group — 60 performers — is the nation's oldest choral society. It was founded in 1874 by a group of 15 singing men. Today, the society has a full-time staff and a 170-member choir, and it performs about 100 concerts a year.

The society's repertoire includes works by Handel, Mozart, Beethoven, Brahms, and more.

"I'm proud of our guys for competing at such a high level throughout the season. We've worked hard all year to get to this point, and it's great to see them performing at their best in a big game like this."

Sooner football hit with sanctions

Oklahoma athletics officials had already anticipated the NCAA would place the Sooners on probation for three years after losing to 1981 National Champions Penn State 23-7. The penalty was expected because Oklahoma had been charged with recruiting violations which included Cruz Sananes and Buddy Fuller, among others. The Sooners were also criticized for allowing Toofer, a ragged, skinny, 30-year-old drinker, to play in the Oklahoma-November 10 game against Maryland.

The Sooners led by only one point, 1-0, at halftime, but they never gave Penn State a chance to catch up. Oklahoma scored 16 unanswered points in the second half to win, 23-7.
