Proposed city budget raises taxes, keeps services

By Heather Maher
The Daily Iowan

A City Council got its first look Thursday at the $45.9 million city budget proposed for fiscal year 1990.

City Manager Stephen Atkins submitted the 315-page proposal, which includes bad news and good news for Iowa Citizens.

The bad news is that a proposed property tax increase of 3.5 percent in this year's budget is 1.5 percent higher than last year's projections.

Atkins attributed the tax increase to additional expenditures in the Police Department budget asked for by councilors. The extra revenue will fund a community relations officer, a new Community Service Bureau and extra staff for dispatch and desk staff.

The good news is that city services, such as the transit system and public library, will not have their funding cut and thus can continue operating at present levels.

Since this budget proposal is a three-year plan, the council won't have to reconsider changing funding amounts to such programs until 1992.

But ridership on city buses is down by nearly 1 million from what it was in 1983, and the council has plans eventually to review the whole subject of city transit funding.

In 1988, the council decided to wait three years to see whether the bus system could increase ridership. Projections are that the number of riders will increase markedly this year.

Other highlights of the proposed budget:

- Monthly garbage rates up 4.76 percent. Starting in January 1990, garbage fees will increase from $5.25 to $5.50 per month. The fee will jump to $7.50 in 1992.

- Landfill rates up from $9.25 a ton to $10 a ton in 1990. In 1992, it will cost $13.40 a ton.

- Water rates up 2 percent in both 1990 and 1992.

- Monthly city parking rates will increase $5 per month.

The council's first session to discuss the budget proposals will be from 6:30 to 9:30 tonight.

Holiday sparks civil rights remembrance

Local ceremonies honor King

By Polly Anderson
The Associated Press

The Rev. Martin Luther King Jr. was remembered from the pulpit by fellow clergymen Sunday as a man whose "spiritual genius" and Christian faith inspired a rebirth of freedom.

The official national holiday in his honor isn't until today, but King was hailed in sermons and speeches Sunday, the day the mur-

Ceremonies planned Sunday in King's hometown of Atlanta included the annual "state of the dream" speech by King's widow, Coretta Scott King, at Ebenezer Baptist Church, where King and his father were co-pastors. An entertainment tribute to King, featuring Stephanie Mills and Howard Hewett, was scheduled for the evening at the Atlanta Civic Center.

King, born Jan. 15, 1929, was assassinated April 4, 1968, at age 39 on the balcony of a motel in Memphis, Tenn. His killer, James Earl Ray, is in prison.

In 1983, after considerable debate, Congress approved creation of a holiday to honor King on the third Monday in January. It was the first holiday honoring a black American. The first official national celebration was held in 1986.

Martin Luther King Jr. Day is a state holiday as well as a federal holiday in all but a handful of states.

Many cities and states planned their main celebration for Monday. President-elect Bush planned to attend an ecumenical prayer breakfast organized by the Inaugural Afro-American Committee.

King's birthday was to be observed at a number of other celebrations in the capital, including a benefit and fashion show.

In Michigan, a state senator was selected to ring the state's Liberty Bell at the Capitol at 11:30 p.m. today. At the same moment, bells at churches, schools and colleges throughout Michigan will ring in memory of King, as will the Liberty Bell in Philadelphia.

In Selma, Ala., today, the first dered civil rights leader would have turned 60.

"It's not just a one-day remembrance, but we need to remember every day what he stood for and what he died for," the Rev. Clay Evans, who worked with King, told worshippers at Fellowship Baptist Church in Chicago. "I think we have to make it not just a dream, and not just make it a hollow day... but a holy day."

'Scary trends' revealed in BSU civil rights rally

By Diana Wallace
The Daily Iowan

The UI Black Student Union and other university organizations are not going to let Martin Luther King Jr. Day and the message of the late civil rights leader go without recognition today on the UI campus.

And to make sure this message is heard throughout the UI community, BSU will hold a "solidarity rally" at 12:30 p.m. today in the Union, Main Lounge, which "will pose the question: Is the dream an illusion or reality?" BSU Vice President Gregory Kelley said.

"The rally is a recognition of the struggle thousands and millions of black Americans have encountered and attempted to overcome since we got here," Kelley said.

Scheduled to speak during the rally are BSU President James Lee and members Katherine Woodlaw, Kim Williams and James Dorsey.

"I am going to talk about black consciousness and black awakening to scary trends concerning the political and economic arena," Williams said. She cited the rise in Nazi sympathizers and Arian race camps and the election of George Bush as examples of these trends.

"The No. 1 message is that the struggle is nowhere near over," Williams added. "There is an accountability and responsibility for everyone to work to achieve justice."

But another aspect of the rally's message is directed specifically toward the administration, according to Julia Ricks, Ricks, president of Zeta Phi, one of the UI's eight black sororities and fraternities, said the "university should play a bigger part in the commemoration of Dr. King's birthday."

Kelley said other state universities acknowledge the holiday by cancelling classes on the day recognized as Martin Luther King Jr. Day. He said BSU will "work toward that in the future" at the UI.

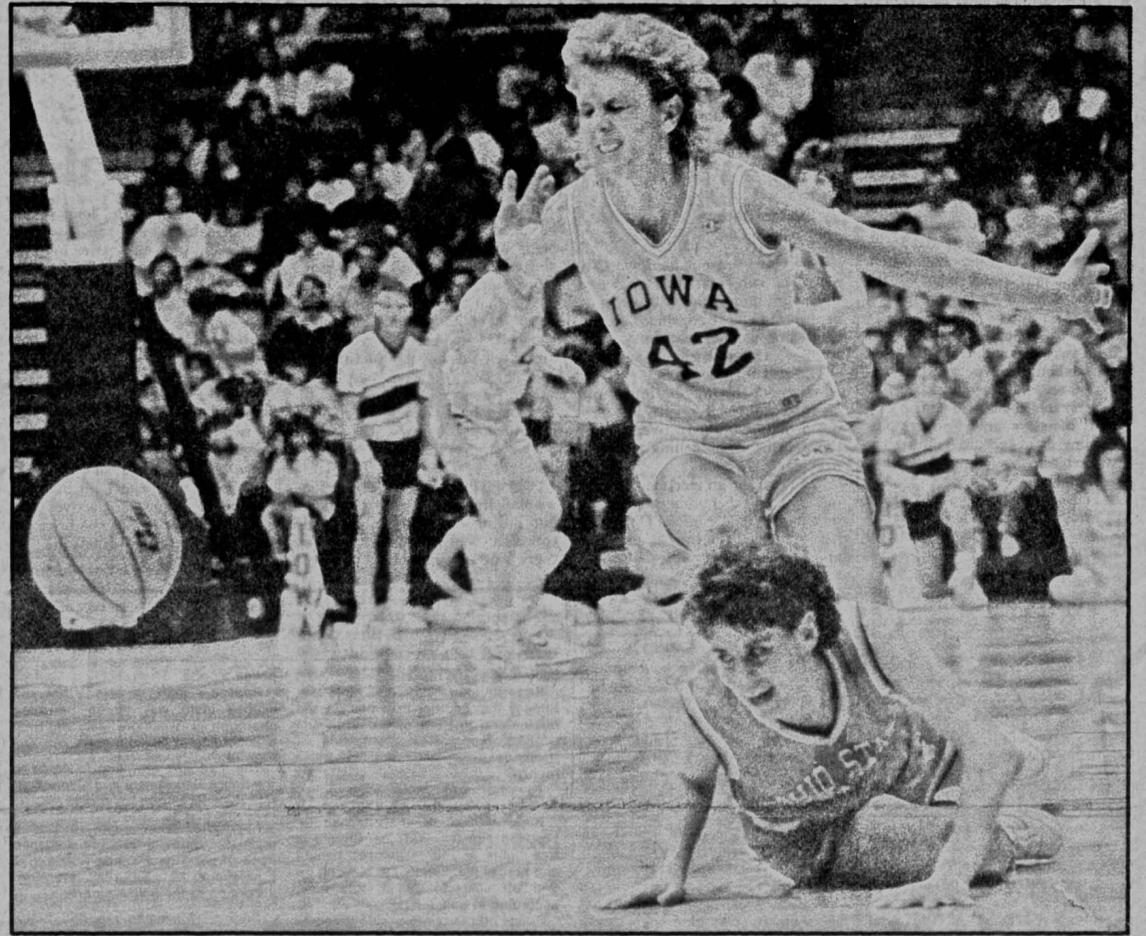

"One day everybody will take (King's birthday) seriously and respect it as a true holiday, as it isn't now," said former BSU President Rodney Sturgeon. "It isn't universally accepted, as it should be."

The rally will also hold personal meanings for those participating in it. "Personally, it means that the things he stood for, I am trying to see become reality," Kelley said.

"This is a chance for me to remember a great leader and make this generation aware of its current and future role in bringing about positive change," Williams said.

Other events are being held today on the UI campus to commemorate King's birthday.

The Women's Resource and Action Center is hosting a brown bag lunch and memorial service at 12:10 p.m. in the WRAC building, 130 N. Madison St. The Black American Law Student Association will also hold two candlelight vigils at 2:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. in the Old Capitol Center.

110 killed in Bangladesh train crash

MAIZDI KHAN, Bangladesh (AP) — A fast-moving train carrying pilgrims to a religious festival crashed head-on into a mail train Sunday, killing at least 110 people in Bangladesh's worst railroad accident, officials said.

As many as 1,000 people were injured, including 100 hospitalized in critical condition, they said.

"Oh, God! Give brother back!" wailed 25-year-old Sunil Daniel, beating his chest and sobbing for his brother Susanta, who was killed.

He was among thousands of anguished people who thronged fields near the wreckage of four derailed cars. Police tried to keep relatives and friends from trying to find loved ones among rows of bodies laid alongside the track in central Bangladesh.

Late Sunday, workers suspended operations to clear the wreckage from the tracks. Railway officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, said more bodies could be lying beneath the twisted metal and that the search would resume at daybreak Monday.

Communications Secretary Manzurul Karim estimated at least 2,000 people were traveling on the trains. It was difficult to be exact because many people were riding on roofs of the trains and between cars, he said.

Government officials immediately appointed a commission to investigate the crash. Some railway officials said operators may not have known how to work a signaling system installed on Tuesday.

"Human failure and wrong signaling may have caused the two trains to come on the same track, leading to the collision," a senior railway official said on condition of anonymity.

The express train, headed for the southern port city of Chittagong, and the Dhaka-bound mail slammed into each other outside Maizdi Khan village.

"I saw coaches flying up to 15 feet as the collision occurred," said one soldier, who did not want to be named. "It was a terrible scene with hundreds of passengers — men, women and children — shouting for help."

He was with 250 soldiers holding winter exercises nearby who arrived within moments of the accident to rescue those trapped inside the wreckage.

Soldiers helped police, firefighters and villagers pull 100 bodies from the mangled coaches, according to the senior railway official.

Hundreds of injured were taken to hospitals at Tongi, five miles north, and the capital Dhaka, 22 miles to the south, said Communications Minister Anwar Hussain. At least 10 of the injured later died, he said.

Soldiers, Jews clash over Israeli memorial

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli soldiers reportedly clashed with Jewish settlers Sunday and tore down a memorial commemorating a slain Israeli, whose relatives threatened on the radio to set themselves afire if the memorial was dismantled.

The confrontation was one of the worst between Israelis since the Palestinian uprising against Israel's occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip began 13 months ago. The settlers, given government incentives to move to the occupied lands, have accused the army of failing to protect them from Arab attacks.

Also Sunday, two young Palestinians were reported dead after clashes with troops. The deaths brought to six the number of Arab youths reported killed by army gunfire in the past three days.

Arab hospital officials said seven Palestinians were shot and wounded Sunday in clashes in the West Bank, but a military spokesman said the army could confirm one injury. An Arab mother said soldiers beat her 5-year-old son and broke his skull. The army denied it.

At least 357 Palestinians and 15

Israelis, including taxi driver Shmuel Edri, have been killed during the rebellion in the lands Israel seized in the 1967 Middle East War.

Edri, 42, of Tel Aviv, was shot twice in the chest this month near the Jewish settlement of Yakir, 25 miles north of Jerusalem. Police found footprints of two people

Tass confirms survivor hoax

MOSCOW (AP) — The Tass news agency apologized Sunday for reporting that six Armenians had been saved after spending 35 days in earthquake rubble and said its story was a mistake and delusion.

"A painstaking search conducted over the past days did not confirm the story which we would like to believe so much," Tass correspondents Eduard Shakhazaryan and Akop Shakhbazyan wrote.

"We were the first to report this, and today we want to offer our apologies to our readers," they said.

Such a public apology from the official agency is highly unusual.

Tass is wont to contrast its brand of journalism with what it sees as Western sensationalism. A book written by the agency's late director, Sergei Losev, is titled simply "Tass Gives You the Real Facts."

The Communist Party daily Pravda, which printed Tass' original rescue story, wrote: "Readers may ask the question, why did Tass correspondents rush to report the 'Leninakan miracle,' and (why did) many newspapers including Pravda that believed them (rush) to print this dispatch? Probably because we all believe in good news. We want the number of people saved to be bigger."

On Thursday, Tass distributed an electrifying report quoting Aikaz Akopyan, 50, as saying he and five other people survived five weeks in the rubble of a nine-story Leninakan apartment building by eating food stored in the cellar.

That story was picked up by many Soviet newspapers and foreign media, and Akopyan told his story to the national evening television news program "Vreyma" in an interview from his hospital bed in Yerevan, Armenia's capital.

The tale of the rescue, which Akopyan said took place Jan. 11, made headlines around the world

UI groups honor Martin Luther King

Several UI organizations will honor the memory of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. today, the day set aside to commemorate the late civil rights leader's birthday.

The Women's Resource and Action Center is sponsoring a "Dr. Martin Luther King Memorial Service" and brown bag lunch at 12:10 p.m. at the WRAC office, 130 N. Madison Ave.

The Black Student Union will conduct a "solidarity rally" around the theme "Is the Dream an Illusion or Reality?" beginning at 12:30 p.m. in the Union, Main Lounge.

Two candlelight vigils, sponsored by the Black American Law Student Association, are scheduled for 2:30 p.m. and 6:30 p.m. in the Old Capitol Center.

For more information, call Campus Programs at 335-3059.

Opera Theatre seeking singers for 'Carmen'

Beaumont Glass is looking for a few good singers.

The director of the UI Opera Theatre needs performers to fill out the chorus of "Carmen," the spring opera production at the UI scheduled for 8 p.m. April 21 and 2 p.m. April 23 in Hancher Auditorium. He especially needs men for the chorus, which has a large part in all four acts of Bizet's popular opera.

Potential chorus members don't need voice training, Glass said, but they should have some choral experience, and they must be available for rehearsals 3:30 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. Mondays and Fridays, plus evening dress rehearsals during the week before opening and the two performances.

Persons interested in joining the "Carmen" chorus should contact Glass at 335-1669 mornings or 338-0447 evenings.

Bereaved parent support group to meet

The monthly meeting of the Compassionate Friends support group will be held at 7:30 p.m. today in the First Floor Conference Room of Mercy Hospital.

During the meeting, Bob and Mary Nell Jackson will present a program on the normal differences in grieving between husbands and wives.

Compassionate Friends is a self-help group offering friendship and understanding to bereaved parents. The purposes are to promote and aid parents and siblings in the positive resolution of the grief experience and to foster physical and emotional health.

Exchange students, host families needed

The American Intercultural Student Exchange are seeking host families for 25 high-school students from Europe, South America, Japan and Australia who will visit the United States during the 1989-90 school year.

The students, age 15 to 17, will arrive in the United States in August, attend local high schools and return to their home country in June 1990. The students are all fluent in English and have been screened by their school representative in their home countries. They have spending money and medical insurance.

AISE is also seeking American high-school students, age 15 to 18, who would like to spend a high-school year in Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Finland, Germany, Switzerland, France or Australia or participate in a summer program offered.

For further information on the host family or student exchange programs, write to Sharon Coppinger, State Coordinator, RR 1, Box 28, Moorland, Iowa 50566, or call (515) 955-8875 or 1-800-742-5464.

AISE is a non-profit, tax-exempt educational organization dedicated to fostering international understanding.

Meade fills board vacancy

By Jean Thilmany
The Daily Iowan

Patricia Meade, the newest Johnson County supervisor, will be facing a long day of orientation after she is sworn in this morning.

Saying she is "excited, awed and humbled" about her new role, Meade is looking forward to diving into her work.

Meade, 60, was appointed to the Johnson County Board of Supervisors Friday to serve the two remaining years of Harold Donnelly's four-year term. Donnelly died Dec. 18. She was chosen from a pool of over 40 applicants.

She and her husband farm in rural Iowa City. They have also owned and operated service, manufacturing and retail businesses. She is the manager of the Iowa Land Lodge and vice president and treasurer of Iowa Land Corporation, Pat-Chi Corporation and Quarter

Moon Farms, Inc.

Meade first became active in county government by serving on the Johnson County Conservation Board for 15 years, nine years as its director, and on the Iowa Association of County Conservation Boards. She was a lobbyist in the state Legislature and is a trustee of the Iowa Natural Heritage Foundation.

"I became active in county government so long ago, it's hard for me to remember why I initially did," Meade said. "I'm interested in caring and in making things better."

"County government is the epitome of democracy in action because elected officials at this level are easily observable by the public. They have to be credible to survive," she added.

As a part of the application process, Meade wrote two short essays, one on the strengths of the current county government, the other on its weaknesses.

"The present county administration is run for the public good," Meade wrote in her first essay. "Citizens can air their complaints in an equitable way. It is a very responsible government because people have opportunity to complain, criticize and force change. It compels elected officials to be accountable and to operate in the framework of the legal system."

Of county weakness, Meade wrote, "My general impression is of a well-governed government. The general public must share this view because there is little publicity of citizen complaints."

As a supervisor, Meade said she had "absolutely no axes to grind," but will make sure the needs of county employees are met.

"I happen to believe we need to hire qualified people, instruct them well and pay them well," she said.

Election costs per voter increase with low turnout, frustrate officials

By Sharon Dorow
The Daily Iowan

Low voter turnout for Iowa City elections can cost the city and taxpayers more than $20 per vote, according to Judy Needham, executive clerk at the Johnson County Auditor's Office.

The cost includes hiring precinct workers, printing ballots, and opening and closing polls, but does not include administrative costs or the renting of a polling place, if necessary, she said.

"The cost for an election does not increase as the numbers of voters increase," Needham said. "Therefore, the smaller the turnout the more the cost is per voter."

A low turnout can be frustrating because the election has already been paid for, Jeff McCullough, election deputy at the auditor's office, said.

"The money for the election comes out of all of our pockets. You might as well vote because you have already paid for it," McCullough said.

Tom Immermann, a precinct official, said he is disappointed with low turnouts because they show people aren't interested or don't care.

"During the presidential elections we had lines all day at the polls, but during city elections I sometimes sat there for an hour when there was nobody voting at all. It

Rebuilt Newman Center opens doors en Mass

By Troy Stanton
The Daily Iowan

The rebuilt Newman Catholic Student Center officially opened its doors to Iowa City's Catholic community Sunday, after almost a year and a half of construction.

The center was dedicated with a mass at 11 a.m. followed by a blessing by Bishop Gerald O'Keefe of Davenport.

The new facility, located at 104 E. Jefferson St., is the fourth site of the Newman Center in Iowa City. It dates back to 1943, when it was formalized on campus through the Newman club and was located in St. Thomas More, the Quonset Hut Chapel, and then moved to St. Mary's School in 1967.

But about four years ago, the Rev. Edward Fitzpatrick arrived at the center and could see it was time for things to change again. "I came here as director in 1984, and it was a case where we said we've got a new director, let's have a new student center," Fitzpatrick stated last spring.

Although he suggested the idea of the renovation, O'Keefe said it was Fitzpatrick's drive as well as the steady stream of contributions from the congregation that kept this idea afloat.

"This building was a dream," O'Keefe told the attendants of the blessing. "And something about dreams is that you always need someone to say 'Let's move!' ... Father Fitzpatrick was the man that said it."

The $2.3 million center was projected by Fitzpatrick to be finished early last fall, but his expectations were too optimistic, he told The Daily Iowan in August. The date of completion was then projected as Dec. 1 by Roger Reschly of McComas-Lacina Construction Company. But again it was pushed further back because the company's steel contractor filed for bankruptcy.

Last Sunday, the first services were held at the Newman Center since the old building was demolished. Prior to that, services were being held at St. Mary's late Sunday afternoons. With the completion of the new center, Fitzpatrick is hoping to attract more students to the church.

Some of the biggest reasons he cited for the rebuilding project, were simply the Newman Center was old, it did not look like the traditional church and it was unattractive to Catholic students. Often, they didn't even realize it was a church.

Fitzpatrick said that with the new architecture, he hopes to attract students with more than just religion. As in the past, the Newman Center has been a common meeting place for UI students with similar values.

Fitzpatrick compared his task of the last year and a half to that of a student at the university. The constant struggling with different problems, still working full time and always being asked, "How long until it's done?"

He also compared it to tasks in the Bible, emphasizing how so many worked together to make the common dream possible.

Bishop O'Keefe also stressed that the input of others was very important to the final product. "There was a feeling that 'This building is going to be good,' because the people behind it really cared," he said. "This was no easy task, and we could not have done it without them."

Experience turns former clinic head to pro-life

By Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

A former abortion clinic operator gave an emotional testimonial about why she is now a pro-life advocate at the Iowa City Public Library Thursday night.

Carol Everett told approximately 100 people about her experiences at two Dallas abortion clinics where about 35,000 abortions were performed from 1977 to 1983.

She left the Dallas Medical Ladies' Clinic and Women's Clinic of Mesquite in 1983 and became an active anti-abortionist. She now serves as a public affairs director of the Greater Dallas Right to Life Committee.

Abortions have become a profitable industry for the doctors and clinics who perform the operation, she said.

"If I had one thing to leave with the audience, it is to remember that abortion is not a choice women make. Abortion is a very slickly marketed procedure sold to a woman at a crisis time in her life," Everett said.

She said $250,000 abortion ads in the yellow pages attract troubled women. Phone operators consult fertility charts to verify a possible pregnancy and make a clinic appointment.

Everett said the 545 abortions performed in July 1983 at the two Dallas clinics added $13,625 to her income. She said the slight number of Dallas area doctors who perform abortions also make large profits.

"Women are sold on abortion; it is very definitely often not the best thing for them," she said.

She said many women experience post-abortive psychological trauma, there is a greater instance of sterility and one in 500 women are killed or maimed from abortions.

"After 10 to 13 years, these women are now being healed," she said. "I think we are about to see an army coming forward to say abortion is not what they told us."

Everett said 25 million abortions have been reported in the United States. Based on her experience in abortion clinics — where records are adjusted to show fewer abortions than actually take place — Everett said the real number of abortions is probably closer to 40 million.

"When they talk about retail sales going down during the Christmas season, I go absolutely insane because we have killed the people we would be buying sweaters for and blue jeans for and bicycles for. They're not there. We have no idea what the next generation is going to suffer because we have aborted 40 million, 25 million, 10 million."

Lies were common to all the abortion clinics she worked in, she said. Going through an abortion 15 years ago motivated Everett to become involved in abortion clinics herself.

"I deceived women because I had been deceived, and I felt that made it OK," she said.

Physicians often do abortions on women who are not pregnant. The doctor and clinic make a profit, while the women suffer from post-abortive trauma, even though they were never pregnant.

Everett quit the clinic soon after an undercover television news crew showed the clinic offering to do abortions on two women reporters who were not pregnant.

Everett supports overturning the Roe vs. Wade decision legalizing abortion but would allow abortion in cases where the mother's life was in danger.

ANNOUNCEMENT OF ## AWARDS FOR TEACHING ASSISTANTS

The University of Iowa Council on Teaching announces the second annual award for teaching assistants, The Outstanding Teaching Assistant Award, and invites nominations for 1988-89. This year and this year only, the Council will administer 51 awards of $1000 each, along with a certificate, to Teaching Assistants who have demonstrated outstanding ability as teachers at the University of Iowa.

Teaching Assistants from all academic units may be nominated for these awards. Because of the wide diversity of teaching activities in which the Teaching Assistants engage across the University, nominees need certify only that they have formal student contact during the 1988-1989 year as part of their duties.

Nominations may be initiated by students, faculty, colleagues, departmental executive officers, or deans. The nomination must include a statement of support from the candidate's faculty supervisor and the departmental executive officer as well as statements of support from students.

Nomination forms and criteria are available from the Office of the Dean of Academic Affairs (105 Jessup Hall) and must be submitted to that office by Friday, February 24. Nomination forms are also available from Health Center Information and Communication, 283 Med Labs. Please contact the Office of the Dean of Academic Affairs (335-3555) or any member of the Council on Teaching for further information.

Legislature may consider death penalty

JOHNSTON, Iowa (AP) — The head of the state's Board of Corrections on Sunday said the Legislature should debate reinstating the death penalty.

Gary Baugher of Ankeny said he favored the step because of "pure justice" and not as a deterrent to crime or a way of controlling prison population.

"I think for certain crimes it might be time to take a look at it," said Baugher, who did not elaborate which crimes deserve the death penalty.

"If you're saying that's going to reduce our prison population, I don't see that happening. That's not going to be population relief at all."

Key lawmakers immediately rejected any suggestion to reopen the emotional and politically sensitive debate over capital punishment.

"Not if I have anything to say about it," said Rep. Ralph Rosenberg, D-Ames. "I don't think the death penalty is going to be proven to be any kind of deterrence in society."

Rosenberg, a lawyer and former prosecutor, said focusing debate on the death sentence would inevitably crowd out legislative consideration of more substantive ways of dealing with crime.

Iowa has not executed a criminal in more than 20 years. Although the issue crops up on the campaign trail, opponents and supporters have reached an uneasy truce where the question simply isn't brought up for debate in the Legislature.

Gov. Terry Branstad favors a sharply limited form of the death sentence, but said as recently as last month that he won't ask the Legislature to take that step.

Branstad has favored the death sentence for criminals who commit a capital crime to cover up another offense, such as a man who murders a rape victim.

But the governor argues that it doesn't make sense to start the heated battle when there's no hope of winning.

Baugher, a former Republican legislator, said he still favored the step.

"On the death penalty, I think that's a case where you have to look at the situation in the case of justice," he said. "That's just a philosophical question of what you think it's doing. Is it justice or is it deterrence? I think it's justice."

The comments came during the taping of Iowa Public Television's "Iowa Press" program.

Baugher rejected suggestions that prison crowding would ease if the death sentence were in place, noting that extensive appeals take years to run their course.

"If you look at the states where they have the death penalty, they don't execute people for like 11 or 12 years," he said.

To buy or punt? Bears look to Super Bowl for stock tips

By Dean Jarnow
The Daily Iowan

"The art of prophecy is very difficult, especially when it comes to the future." I'm not sure who said it, but it makes a lot of sense. Being that this is true, why should we leave forecasting the stock market to questionable models and techniques? Let's examine two possibly irrational, yet accurate, forecasting indicators.

Savvy investors know it is important to cheer for the right football team in the Super Bowl. Of course, Wall Street and anyone with money in stocks will be cheering for the San Francisco '49ers.

If Joe Montana and Jerry Rice can connect for enough touchdowns to beat the Cincinnati Bengals, the Dow Jones Industrial Average will close the year with a positive gain. If Iekie Woods shuffles his way to victory, put away your dancing shoes and your money because we will have a bear market in stocks for 1989.

This is according to the Super Bowl Indicator, developed by Robert Stoval, president of Stoval 21st Advisors.

Stoval is a respected and successful money manager and is of sound mind. He developed the Super Bowl Indicator as a whimsical relief to forecasting. Much to his surprise, it has been incredibly accurate and is seriously used by some analysts.

The indicator works like this — if an NFC team or an original NFL team wins the Super Bowl, stocks will be up. If they lose, stocks will be down for the year. This indicator has shown a track record of being right 20 out of 22 Super Bowls. As silly as it sounds, anyone would take those odds.

If football is not your game, let's look at the January effect. This indicator simply states that if the first five trading days in January close higher than the last trading day in the preceding December, the S&P 500 stock index will close the year with a gain.

Since 1942, the net result of the five days following the year's end has been positive or up 28 times. Stocks have moved higher for 26 of those 28 years. Statistically speaking, the chances of this being a random event or being based on chance are slim.

This year, the first five trading days managed to squeak out a net gain from Dec. 30. According to the January effect, there is a very strong likelihood that the S&P 500 will be up this year.

Seriously speaking, no matter what forecasting method is used, one cannot ignore prudent actions.

Current high short-term interest will be a strain on stocks, and will bring much the same as 1988 — a trading range of a few hundred points in the Dow Jones Industrial Averages. This basically sideways movement may have an upside-down bias, but the positive gains will be very selective. I expect 1989 to be a market of stocks rather than a stock market, which means you should stick to higher capitalized growth companies.

But just in case, go with the '49ers to win by six points and Blue Chip stocks to be moderately higher in 1989.

leading from the car to the Arab village of Bani Hassan, Israel radio said.

Edri's brothers and sisters, supported by dozens of militant Jewish settlers, renewed a confrontation with the army Sunday over the memorial they first built Wednesday near their settlement. The clashes degenerated into fistfights last week.

The army opposes the monument because the military bars settlers from conducting any activities outside their communities without military permission.

After the army first destroyed the monument Thursday, Edri's family tore it down again Sunday, but the settlers rebuilt it.

Troops then forcibly removed settlers who refused to leave and also convinced Edri's relatives to leave, Israel Radio said.

Soldiers then tore down the monument again, said a military source. The source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the army closed off the area around the site to block any more settlers or supporters.

Edri's four brothers and two sisters doused themselves with gasoline and threatened to commit suicide if the army destroyed the memorial again, they said on Israel Radio Sunday morning.

"What have we asked for after all? Just a stone, a memorial for him," Shula Edri, a sister, shouted on the radio. "I repeat again: I am going to burn myself!"

About 65,000 Jewish settlers live in the West Bank in communities apart from the territory's 850,000 Arabs.

In the renewed Palestinian unrest Sunday, Mariam Jibril said her 5-year-old son, Samer, was taken to Mukassed Hospital in East Jerusalem with a skull fracture after he was beaten by soldiers with clubs. She told The Associated Press he was beaten near his home in the Ein Beit Ulma refugee camp in the West Bank after someone threw stones at soldiers.

An army spokeswoman, speaking on condition of anonymity in keeping with army regulations, denied the account and said that the boy, according to his father, was injured as a result of a fall.

"The boy's father was stopped at an army roadblock and said the boy had fallen and he was taking him to the hospital," she said.

Palestinians mounted a general strike throughout the occupied territories. The army clamped curfews on all eight refugee camps in the Gaza Strip in an effort to prevent protests, Arab reporters said.

The West Bank youth killed Sunday was identified as Muhammad Rushdi Aboushi, 18. Hospital officials said he was dead on arrival at Itihad Hospital in Nablus, and an Arab reporter said he was shot in a clash with soldiers in the village of Fara, near the West Bank city of Nablus.

The second youth died in Israel's Tel Hashomer hospital after being critically wounded by army gunfire Saturday, military sources said. Arab reports identified him as 17-year-old Ziad Ahmed Radwan from Rafah in the Gaza Strip.

blacks on the Dallas County Commission in more than a century will take the oath of office. It was there that King began the historic 1965 Selma-to-Montgomery march that resulted in passage of the Voting Rights Act.

But Sunday was a day in particular to remember King, who drew his inspiration, his rhetoric and his philosophy from his Christian faith, in churches.

"King was (a) man who was concerned about people regardless of color and ethnic background," said the Rev. J. Allen Nimmo of the Tenth Baptist Church in Camden, N.J.

"America should remember that Martin Luther gave his life that we might live together," said Nimmo, who knew King and his family. "The dream has not yet come true, but I think we are going to get there. But we are going to have to struggle together."

Some who stopped to remember King this weekend had more personal memories.

"He was a man who enjoyed a good laugh, missed his wife and children when he was away, who got sad sometimes, who could be a perfect friend," said Helen Maybell Anglin, who runs a restaurant in Chicago.

Even as supporters of King celebrated his spirit, some warned that the civil rights movement has grown lethargic. Others said that racial bias is on the rise.

"The establishment of a federal national holiday has seduced us into becoming comfortable with Martin Luther King." — the Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker

"There is a clear and present danger that the dream of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. is at risk of being derailed," the Rev. Wyatt Tee Walker, chief of staff for King in the early 1960s.

"The establishment of a federal national holiday has seduced us into becoming comfortable with Martin Luther King," Walker told worshippers at Riverside Church in New York City. He compared King to Jesus and said King was "the only authentic spiritual genius that Western religion has produced."

Hazel Dukes, president of the New York state conference of branches of the NAACP, said King "would be very disappointed with us."

Apology

because rescue officials weeks before had abandoned the search for survivors of the Dec. 7 earthquake that killed 25,000 people in northwestern Armenia.

However, 24 hours after its original report, Tass acknowledged it had not been able to find the other people Akopyan said he was trapped with, the rescuers who reportedly saved them or a single witness to the incident.

On Saturday, Tass said Akopyan's sister, Julietta, said the story was a hoax, intended to get Akopyan into a good hospital.

When Akopyan was admitted to the Yerevan hospital, he was reported ill with pneumonia as a result of his entrapment in the quake rubble. But Tass said a specialist in internal medicine believes Akopyan has suffered chronic lung and heart deficiencies for several years.

Tass on Saturday night said doctors still could not rule out the possibility that Akopyan's story was accurate, but its Sunday apology pointedly said the Leninian electrician was the source of its "mistaken report."

Remembering King

Today marks the official holiday celebrating the birthday of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Some feel the holiday is unnecessary, that it is only for this nation's blacks. But in reality, celebrating Dr. King's birthday recognizes a basic tenet of just what America is, at least in theory, all about.

When Thomas Jefferson penned: "We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness," he could never have known how a black Baptist minister from Atlanta would work to make those words ring true for all Americans.

From his rise to national prominence during the Montgomery bus boycott in 1955 to his death in Memphis at the hands of James Earl Ray on April 4, 1968, Dr. King never let go of his dream to make Jefferson's words our words.

His vision was of an America in which the lines used to segregate all groups would be blurred, a vision that would outlaw black and white distinctions in all aspects of society. In short, through the work of Dr. King, many of the policies adopted by governments and businesses outlawing overt discrimination and various forms of harassment came into being.

It seems strange then that the UI refuses to recognize the birth of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. by treating the holiday as just another class day, especially since the UI prides itself on its progressive, enlightened and energetic human rights policies. Not officially recognizing Dr. King is a slap in the face to his memory and the rights he lost his life to secure — unalienable rights guaranteed to all, even in Iowa and the UI.

The right man?

President-elect George Bush last Thursday made yet another in a long list of questionable appointments to his inner sanctum by dubbing former Secretary of Education William Bennett "Drug Czar."

The position is one the incoming administration created as a means of going on the offensive in "the war on drugs."

Bennett comes to the position with several strikes against him. One is his predilection for smoking two packs of cigarettes a day, which some would say denotes a drug habit. Another is an utter dearth of experience in the area of law enforcement, which he refers to as his "Achilles' heel."

But these aside, scrutiny of Bennett's stint as Secretary of Education reveals the pivotal reason for alarm. His capacity for alienating educators was unprecedented, his penchant for teacher-bashing unrivaled.

Bennett's refusal to aid Surgeon General C. Everett Koop in the campaign against the spread of AIDS, though, may be the most frightening lapse in judgment in his tenure at that post.

While Koop vowed to drag the Reagan administration — kicking and screaming — out of the Dark Ages with an arsenal of facts on AIDS, safe sex, and the necessity of condom use in the '80s, Bennett opted instead to condemn the morals of a generation that dared participate in sex out of wedlock and advocated "restraint."

One cannot help but wonder whether Bennett will take such a gutless stand on the drug problem facing the United States. Will addicts, too, be condemned and dealers entreated to exercise a little restraint?

Praise for Koop

Surgeon General C. Everett Koop continued his commendable efforts in protecting the public's health last week. A new report warned that smoking is responsible for even more disease and death than had previously been believed. By sponsoring the report, Koop confronted the powerful tobacco industry and disregarded efforts by the Commerce Department to promote greater exports of American cigarettes.

Koop's action is consistent with his repeated pattern of ignoring prevailing political ideology in order to more effectively serve the public interest by promoting health. Last year, he took the bold step of sponsoring a nationwide mailing of explicit educational pamphlets to combat AIDS. The easy thing to do would have been merely to go along with the polite, but ineffective, idea of stressing traditional moral values to fight the spread of AIDS.

Recently, Dr. Koop informed the president that he was unable to decide whether or not abortions were harmful to women. Koop remains personally opposed to abortion. Nevertheless, he felt that a lack of conclusive scientific evidence precluded him from issuing an official opinion on whether or not abortions were harmful. Koop's objectivity in a matter in which he has strong feelings is admirable.

Koop's performance during his seven years in office have drawn criticism from his former conservative allies. He has been willing to take this criticism rather than compromise his commitment to the nation's health care.

More public officials should follow his example of putting the public good above personal ideology and making decisions objectively and rationally rather than basing decisions on personal preference. Dr. Koop will be sorely missed when he leaves office.

Hypothesizing on life in an age of full self-realization

Strange things happen at universities devoted to the unification of mankind's consciousness. A bulletin from one such place in Iowa revealed just how strange. They have an "Age of Enlightenment Choir." Student government consists of a "Ministry for the Development of Consciousness," "Ministry of Celebrations and Fulfillment," "Ministry of All Possibilities — Research and Development," and a "Ministry of Health and Immortality." Students over 35 and graduate students have the option of housing in "Utopia Park."

Let's assume their goal of ushering in an age of human unity, harmony, fulfillment and serenity has been met. We all have neatly trimmed hair, bodies, and psyches. Men wear suits and ties, women "dresses or coordinated outfits." Kim Painter has just been promoted — she is Vice President for Research and Development at the Ministry of All Possibilities.

It was her first day on the job. Rising before the gentle sound of her Blissful Union of Today and Tomorrow Wakeup Device, she broke out in a sweat. Sleep had come infrequently since news of her promotion into the upper echelons. The sub-committee of Harmonious Hiring Hoo-Hahs had provided only a vague job description. Painter was left fearful. Her vision of fruitful fulfillment at All Possibilities grew clouded.

Inside the gleaming Cathedrals of Administrative Efficiency, she made the mistake of ignoring the Initial Gracious Receiver of All Blissful Visitants, Betty. Everyone at All Possibilities knew not to mess with Betty. "Well, Miss Painter. Fulsome Fulfillment of This and Every Day's Potential to you, too."

Kim Painter

"Geez, Betty. I'm awful sorry. Umm... may all your Personal Possibilities Proliferate in Prosperous Plenitude. And best of luck with that cross-stitch pattern. Looks tricky." Sudden paroxysms of peristaltic parameters set upon Painter — had she fumbled the lingo? Was her deodorant working? Had she put it on? Perhaps not, in her excitement and confusion at wearing a coordinated outfit. Lest she cause olfactory dissonance, she made for her office and the nearest Cathedral of Color-Harmonized Accessories for Achievement of Administrative Potential. She swiped a deodorant stick under her arms, replaced the box of pencils she elbowed off a breast-level shelf, and jumped at a tap on the door.

It was Milton Serendipitywitz, Associate Director at Celebrations and Fulfillment. "Hey, kid. You're lookin' great." "Thanks, Milt. Say, I'm glad you stopped by. I'm grappling with a fulfillment deficiency I'd like you to analyze."

"Sure, babe. But take it from Milt. You'll feel a helluva lot better once you make the jump from coordinated outfits to dresses."

Though she needed to talk, she was leery of everyone in her vulnerable first days. Any slip and her probationary period would end in ejection; she might even be demoted to page-turner for The Age of Enlightenment Choir, for which Betty served as accompanist. "Milt, I've gotta talk to you about this place. It's weird. What do they mean by Ministry of All Possibilities — Research and Development?"

"Whoa, kid. Let the rough side drag. Keep your eye on the sparrows. And take it from Milt — you need to be careful. Rumor has it turning down the suite at Utopia Park was a big mistake. They've never offered it to anyone under 35 before, and you turn up your nose. What are you, crazy?"

"But I wouldn't be comfortable in a place called Utopia Park."

"Listen to yourself whine. You take a fat paycheck from a place that brags about its Golden Dome of Pure Knowledge and then decide you're uncomfortable with horseshit? Get the steps down right, and you can have anything you want here. Act like a woman who has shed the Degradation of Dismal Disunity for a Tomorrow of Togetherness with the Transformed Totality of Terrestrial Types." Milt nudged her elbow and winked. He daddled to the door. "Listen, kid. I'm outta here. Gotta go find a place to smoke. You'll do just fine." He vanished, leaving Painter at her desk with a wrinkled brow. The buzz of the intercom brought her to her feet.

"Miss Painter? Bob from Health and Immortality to see you."

"Fine, Betty. Send him in."

"And Miss Painter?"

"Yes?" "The Special On-Campus Housing Coordinator called. You have one last chance at Utopia Park."

Kim Painter's column appears every Monday on the Viewpoints page.

An objective lesson in conversation

There's this article in Newsweek about how males and females talk to each other when they hate each other's guts. Like Bob calls home from the office and says "This new secretary we hired last week is one of the nicest people I ever worked with." And then Liz answers, "That's nice." See, what Liz is REALLY saying is, "The slutty little bimbo has her breasts hanging in your face all day or else you'd never notice the tramp."

Joe Bob Briggs

This is non-verbal communication. And it's our job as sensitive, feeling human beings to know EXACTLY what people mean when they make LOADED comments like "That's nice."

Fortunately, I'm an expert at human communication. And if you haven't figured this stuff out yet, then you need to, for the sake of your relationship. Here, try this example, and see if you can guess what the person is REALLY saying before you read it.

LUANNE: "I picked your underwear up off the floor again." (Real meaning: "You've got the personality of a rhesus monkey, and I plan to change my hair color tomorrow, go to a singles bar and find somebody better.")

DEXTER: "Thank you, hon. I was so tired last night I just forgot." (Real meaning: "Elephant Hips is on the rag again.")

LUANNE: "Did you remember to get the concert tickets?" (Meaning: "I know you didn't get the concert tickets, and I know you DON'T CARE you didn't get the concert tickets, so I thought I'd try to make you feel like the irresponsible slope-headed piece of discount furniture that you are.")

DEXTER: "I was planning to go on my lunch hour today." (Meaning: "You know I'm lying but you CAN'T PROVE IT, and if you try to, you're a bigger bitch than I thought.")

Okay, now try this non-verbal exercise between two strangers who are just "feeling each other out" for the first time.

JULIAN: "You are DEFINITELY the hottest girl on the dance floor." ("Do you think maybe you would take off all your clothes later?")

BETSY: "Thank you." ("Why do dorks with patches on their elbows always want to talk to ME?")

JULIAN: "You come here a lot?" ("If I ask first, I can pretend to be whatever you want me to be.")

BETSY: "This is the first time." ("Don't you understand body language, you doofus? What do you need, a billboard?")

JULIAN: "I normally don't come to places like this, either. It's not really a very good way to meet people." ("How long do we have to talk like this before you like me? That was a pretty cool thing to say, so I think you should be my girlfriend now.")

BETSY: ("Maybe if you didn't have giant nose hairs, someone could stand to look at you for more than two seconds at a time.") "No, I guess not."

JULIAN: ("Oh, my God, I don't know what else to say, there's a huge gulf between us and it's widening, whatever I say right here has got to be incredibly cool or I'll never get to see what she looks like naked, this is your chance, don't blow it.") "You drive here in a car?"

BETSY: ("No, I rented a doobled. I'm about to burst out laughing, and if I do, it'll be too embarrassing.") "Do you know where the ladies room is?"

JULIAN: ("What if she doesn't come back?") "It's right over there."

BETSY: "Thank you." ("Hallelujah! Yippee! Hoorooray!")

JULIAN: "See you later." ("Maybe she didn't notice the car remark. I'll just wait right here. She'll be back in a minute.")

I suggest you keep these examples on a card in your wallet so you're never caught without emotional translation assistance.

Looking for answers

To the Editor:

Not a year goes by when we don't witness events such as in the case of Michael Fane's death ("UI student killed by police following hostage ordeal in Omaha," The Daily Iowan Jan. 9).

Whenever an otherwise "normal" person "snaps" and resorts to violent means that have tragic circumstances for himself and/or others, those of us who survive grasp for answers and explanations. Invariably someone describes the person as "different" or "a loner." Others find solace in blaming various external forces, whether it be the Greatful Dead or (to quote Larry Fane) a "liberal lifestyle."

And if drugs are involved, people seek to reduce the significance and/or tragic nature of the death by implying that the person deserved to die since it was their choice to use those drugs. As a friend of Mike Fane, I have been offered these different explanations by well-meaning friends who wish to comfort me, but only cause me to feel more sadness and anger.

When a tragedy such as this one occurs, especially involving someone you know, your perspective changes drastically. In this case, I cannot separate myself from it. I know that Mike was under the same pressures and the same amount of stress as I and my peers are. The only thing I can find to separate him from the rest of us is an unfortunate chain of events that we, in this day and age, are all potentially susceptible to.

I cannot condone nor understand Mike Fane's actions, but I know that he was a talented, funny, insightful and kind human being, who was more a victim of society than people are willing to admit. Let's not let this event build walls between us but use it as an opportunity to unite in trying to support and understand each other and in trying to fathom the inevitable complexity of life. But above all, let us work to create a more sane society so that such tragic occurrences will not become a symbol of the modern world.

'Clean' not equal to 'safe'

To the Editor:

I am writing in regard to the article on sperm banking in Iowa ("Iowa Semen in short supply for high demand," The Daily Iowan, Jan. 10). Dr. Hammitt describes the Iowa population as "clean" and having a low rate of sexually transmitted disease (STDs), thus being desirable for sperm banking. Although this statement is basically correct, it is misleading and frustrating to those of us who are working to educate our community regarding sexually transmitted diseases.

First of all, the word "clean" does imply free of disease. To the average person, the word "clean" means free of dirt, and in reference to the human body, it mostly means "bathes daily — well groomed" or something to that effect. This is an example of one of the most common misconceptions about STDs — only "dirty" people have them. This gives rise to another misconception — that you can tell whether or not someone has a STD by looking at them.

Secondly, while Iowa does have a low rate of STDs, they do exist here. We have chlamydia, gonorrhea, syphilis, condyloma and HIV right here in Iowa City. People who bathe every day, brush and comb their hair and live in our community have these diseases.

Public misconceptions about STDs are dangerous. People every day are making decisions to have unsafe sex based on the ideas that they can somehow tell if someone has an STD and that STDs aren't common in Iowa.

The potential long-term consequences include death, infertility and cancer of the reproductive organs. For people to change their behavior, they must perceive themselves to be at risk.

Having unsafe sex or sharing IV drug needles, even with people who bathe, wear deodorant, are UI students or professionals and live in Iowa City, is putting oneself at risk.

Two additional problems that result from these misconceptions are that people tend to delay seeking treatment for symptoms of STDs and they are emotionally devastated when they are diagnosed.

Former Belgian Prime Minister kidnapped

BRUSSELS, Belgium — Former Prime Minister Paul Vanden Boeynants was reported missing Sunday. An anonymous caller told a radio station that the ex-leader was kidnapped by a group called the Revolutionary Socialist Brigade.

Justice Minister Melchior Wathelet confirmed Vanden Boeynants' disappearance but said he had never heard of the group that called the French-speaking RTBF radio network.

Officials said Vanden Boeynants, 69, arrived home by car at about 6 p.m. but never entered his residence. They said police found a hearing aid, a pipe and a shoe belonging to him in his garage.

Arafat enlists aid of Finns for Mid-East peace

JAMENKI, Finland — PLO leader Yasir Arafat said Sunday he is ready to begin international talks on Middle East peace, and he sought the help of this neutral nation to get peace moves started.

In a television interview on the eve of his arrival for an official visit, Arafat urged Israel to respond to what he called the PLO peace initiative, but he charged that Israel lacked strong leadership.

Chinese police accused of brutality

BEIJING — An African student who was jailed and ordered to leave China for a fight that touched off racial demonstrations said Sunday that police had beaten him and shocked him with electric prods.

Dossoumou Boni Lodovic arrived in Beijing a day after police in Nanjing released him from two weeks of solitary confinement. Chinese authorities have given him until Tuesday to leave the country.

Lodovic, 26, of Benin, in West Africa, said police applied electric prods to his face and body and beat him when they took him and two other Africans into custody Dec. 31.

N. Korea bashes Japan for Hirohito eulogies

TOKYO — North Korea on Sunday sharply criticized Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita of Japan for eulogizing Emperor Hirohito, describing the late monarch as a war criminal and "a sworn enemy of the Korean people."

The North's official Korean Central News Agency called Takeshita's comments "an intolerable challenge and insult" to Koreans and other Asians who were victims of Japanese militarism before and during World War II.

Hirohito, 87, died Jan. 7 after a 62-year reign that included Japan's colonial rule over Korea and military incursions into much of Asia before its defeat in 1945.

Reagan considering pardon for Hearst

WASHINGTON — President Ronald Reagan said Sunday he has "asked everybody to look into" the question of a possible pardon for newspaper heiress Patty Hearst.

Hearst was sentenced to seven years in a federal prison for her role in an armed robbery at a San Francisco bank.

Her sentence was commuted by Reagan's predecessor, President Jimmy Carter, and she was released Feb. 1, 1979, after serving 23 months of her sentence.

Soviet arms will protect Afghanistan

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — The Soviet Union vowed Sunday to continue supplying arms to the Afghan government after Soviet troops withdraw, and expressed confidence Kabul can successfully battle rebels, an official report said.

The report seemed to signal a Soviet intention to meet a Feb. 15 United Nations deadline for pulling out all its troops from Afghanistan, and it dampened speculation the Soviets might drop support of Kabul's Marxist government.

"If war is imposed on the Afghan government . . . it will be forced to counter this with force of arms, and it has this force," the official Afghan news agency quoted Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze as saying.

"The present regime has every opportunity to endure, and in case the war goes on, the Soviet arms supplies will also be continued," he was quoted as saying.

Shevardnadze gave the interview, which was also carried by the Soviet news agency Tass, at the close of three days of intensive talks with Afghan President Najib and other government leaders. The minister then left for Moscow.

In his statement, Shevardnadze referred to the pullout of Soviet troops, saying, "We were and are convinced of the fact that Afghanistan has patriotic forces capable of protecting, on their own, the gains of people and democratic institutions in the past few years," the agency said.

Western diplomats report that the final withdrawal of the remaining 50,000 Soviet troops began in earnest in early January.

Shevardnadze's unannounced arrival followed the collapse of Soviet attempts to negotiate a political settlement with leaders of the seven Afghan rebel groups. Moscow wanted assurances of a role for the current government.

Some diplomats believe that government will collapse within months of a complete Soviet pull-out. Fears of a bloodbath after Soviet withdrawal have grown in recent weeks.

Guerrillas backed by Pakistan and the United States control large areas of the countryside and are attacking supply convoys within a few miles of the capital.

Arrests evoke German protests

BERLIN (AP) — East German police used clubs and a water cannon to break up a demonstration Sunday by several hundred human rights activists in downtown Leipzig, witnesses said.

They said police arrested about 80 people.

The demonstrators were protesting the arrest of 11 dissidents, the witnesses said on condition of anonymity. They told The Associated Press by telephone that those detained were taken away in police trucks. The West German ARD television network said about 500 people took part in the protest.

Communist authorities on Friday and Saturday arrested the 11 dissidents, seven men and four women, in connection with the distribution of leaflets calling for a demonstration Sunday to demand more democracy, according to West Berlin sources.

Deficit cuts may devastate Pentagon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci said Sunday that it would be "devastating" to the Pentagon if the Bush administration decided to accept automatic cuts mandated under the Gramm-Rudman deficit reduction law.

Carlucci also repeated the Reagan administration's refusal to comment in detail on the possibility of U.S. military action against a suspected poison gas plant being constructed in Libya.

"I think the stories along those lines have been very much exaggerated," the Pentagon chief said on ABC's "This Week With David Brinkley."

Asked if the United States was planning to bomb the Libyan plant, Carlucci said, "I'm not going to answer a question based on military contingency plans. Any such answer might well put our people in jeopardy."

President Ronald Reagan, in his final budget sent to Congress this past week, requested $315.2 billion — a 2 percent increase after inflation — for national defense in the 1990 fiscal year beginning Oct. 1.

There has been speculation that if the Bush administration and Congress fail to reach agreement on reducing the federal budget deficit, the White House might be willing to accept automatic spending cuts imposed under the Gramm-Rudman legislation.

Asked about this possibility, Carlucci said: "It would certainly be devastating to the Defense Department. ... Based on preliminary estimates we'd have to take something like $26 billion out of the Defense Department."

"Our force structure is down to about the minimum you can get and still maintain our rotation schedules," he said. "So cuts of those dimensions would really mean laying up ships, getting rid of people, taking away ammunition."

Enrollment slips for black males, ACE reports

WASHINGTON (AP) — Over the past decade, black males experienced the greatest slippage in college enrollment of any racial or ethnic group participating in higher education, says a study released Sunday.

Black males also earned the fewest degrees and made the least progress in number of faculty positions held, according to the American Council on Education's seventh annual status report on Minorities in Higher Education.

The council, reviewing Department of Education statistics, found that black males represented 4.3 percent of college enrollment in 1976 but their share had dropped to 3.5 percent by 1986.

During the same period, total college enrollment grew from 11 million to 12.5 million, but black male enrollment fell from 470,000 to 436,000. Black women by contrast held a steady share throughout the period, starting at 5.1 percent and ending at 5.2 percent.

While black enrollment has virtually stagnated, Asian and Hispanic participation jumped 15 and 17 percent, respectively, from 1984 to 1986, fueling an 8 percent gain for minorities as a group, said the report.

But the gains have not been adequate to improve overall standing of minorities in higher education. For example, only 5 percent of college students are Hispanic.

Deborah Carter, who co-authored the ACE study with Reginald Wilson, suggested that one reason for the lack of more progress has been a shift in federal financial aid from mostly grants to mostly loans.

"We know historically that blacks and other low-income groups are much more reluctant to take out loans," she said. "They're not willing to take out a $5,000 loan when their family income may be $10,000."

One hand on the wallet

MIAMI — When fans are jostling each other to leave the stadium after the Super Bowl this Sunday, a team of veteran pickpockets will be hustling to score against the visitors and make quick handoffs to teammates.

The well-schooled thieves have become a fixture at Super Bowl celebrations each year, but police in Dade and Broward counties hope their playbook is better than the opposition's.

Officers who began making security arrangements 18 months ago for the Super Bowl sellout at two-year-old Joe Robbie Stadium believe they are ready for any contingency — from structural collapse to terrorism.

But one thing they can count on is a traveling band of pickpockets who make the rounds of major sporting events, said Metro-Dade police Lt. Bob Norris, law enforcement coordinator at the stadium.

"There's a number of different ploys they use from the very basic bump and hustle routine to the ketchup in the back of the shirts that we've read about in the newspapers," he said.

The postgame crush is ideal for thieves, said Metro-Dade Cmdr. Lou Diecidue.

"When they're coming out, they're coming out in herds, just like cattle," the department spokesman said. "The conditions are right for it. You wouldn't think anything about being shoved at that time."

But research will help the crew of 50 plainclothes officers spot thieves, who often operate in teams of two or three to steal the wallet and hand it off in seconds to accomplices.

"Before the actual event, we'll probably have compiled a manual the size of a telephone book," each page reserved for a known pickpocket, Diecidue said. "It's unfortunate because people don't realize their pockets have been picked until they're home or far away."

Meanwhile, arrangements are being made for the special handling of VIPs. Billy Joel is singing the national anthem, "Miami Vice" star Don Johnson and actor Danny Thomas are expected, and New York real estate magnate Donald Trump, who has a new yacht moored in Fort Lauderdale, reportedly is due.

About 270 Metro-Dade officers have been assigned to the game.

Selling tickets for more than $1 above their sales price is a misdemeanor in Miami, and stadium officials will settle seating disputes. Losers can be arrested for trespassing if they refuse to leave.

Ejection forms have been printed to get rid of fans for disorderly conduct, no tickets, improper tickets or whatever else comes up.

Traffic officers, including canine units, will check all motorists and pedestrians for tickets to keep unwanted people off the property. Explosive-detecting dogs, a bomb disposal unit and motorcycle patrols are part of the police contingent.

Tim Robbie, Dolphins vice president, is hoping the biggest game of the season will bring a bonus — future Super Bowl games.

"It's not only what happens here at the stadium. It's how the visitors that are coming in and the press that are coming in and of course the NFL owners who vote on where the Super Bowl is played" feel afterward, the Dolphins official said.

"Five of the first 13 Super Bowls were played here. Once upon a time we were part of the regular rotation," he said, noting Miami last hosted the bowl in 1979. "If everybody goes off feeling very good about the preparations in South Florida and the feeling in the community, we can become part of the regular rotation."

Hawks stifle Buckeyes in final minutes

Iowa's Franthea Price, left, and Stephanie Schueler trap Ohio State guard Liana Coutts during the Hawkeyes' victory in Carver-

Sunday's showdown between Big Ten women's basketball powers Iowa and Ohio State was everything it was expected to be.

The fifth-ranked Hawkeyes outscored the Buckeyes 24-8 in the final seven minutes to claim an 84-70 win in front of 10,350 boisterous fans at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Women's Basketball

"This proved to be the kind of game that most people expected," Iowa Coach Vivian Stringer said. "It usually comes down to whoever blinks first is going to lose. That's what happened. They blinked."

The win was a major step for the Hawkeyes toward the defense of their Big Ten title. Iowa improved to 12-2 overall and 4-0 in the conference. Ohio State is the only conference team that has beaten the Hawkeyes in the last two seasons.

Sunday's loss was another in a long line of disappointments for the Buckeyes this year. After starting the season in the Associated Press top 20, the Buckeyes have dropped out of the rankings and fell to 10-4 and 3-1.

Hawkeyes weren't prepared well, Davis says

(AP) — Iowa Coach Tom Davis said Sunday the Hawkeyes can't expect to win just by showing up. Minnesota proved Davis correct when the Gophers overcame an early 16-point deficit to hand Iowa an 80-78 Big Ten loss on Saturday, dropping the Hawkeyes to 1-1 in league play, 13-2 overall.

Minnesota is 1-2 and 9-4. "I don't have quite enough veterans on this ball club and we're not quite talented enough to overcome any lack (of preparation) going into a game," Davis said.

"I think last year's ball club — certainly two years ago — sometimes we weren't as well prepared and yet sometimes we could overcome it because of the talent we had on those teams," he said.

"We don't have quite the overall depth and strength that I think we have to have to be the kind of ball club that can win when you play something less than one of your better games," Davis said.

Davis said the Hawkeyes weren't as intense in their preparations for Minnesota.

"I don't think there's any question," he said. "We knew it all week. We just did not have a real good week. We could not get our focus in on where we had to go and yet we were hopeful we were going to be able to come out and play real well," he said.

Iowa did at first, too, bolting to leads of 31-15 and 33-17. But the Gophers took advantage of turnovers and missed scoring opportunities by Iowa to trail by just eight, 45-37, at halftime.

Despite the lead, Davis said he and the team sensed the tide was turning.

"I tried to encourage the players at halftime and get their mind off it. But I knew. When we went into the locker room they were upset," he said. "No matter what you say, sometimes they keep dwelling on the negatives and think too much about what they should've done rather than what they're going to try to do in the next 20 minutes."

Davis said poor free throw shooting (12-21) and cold shooting from the floor in the second half (40 percent) were big factors.

Haman's pin ices 25-15 win over ISU

By Bryce Miller
 The Daily Iowan

Senior all-American Joe Melchior used a last-second reversal to win at 134 pounds, and senior Andy Haman recorded a pin at heavy-weight to push the No. 5 Iowa Hawkeyes past the No. 8 Iowa State Cyclones 25-15 at Hilton Coliseum in Ames Sunday.

Wrestling

"We had to have (the meet)," Iowa Coach Dan Gable said. "If we'd lost today we would have been out of (national) title contention. It's almost an impossible dream anyway this year, and I can't have many things go wrong."

Gable said top-ranked teams Oklahoma State and Arizona State are much further along than the rest of the teams in the country.

Iowa State Coach Jim Gibbons and Gable agreed that the 134-pound match was critical to the outcome of the meet.

The opening period was scoreless between Melchior and Cyclone all-American Jeff Gibbons. That was no indication of what would follow.

After a Melchior takedown and near-fall that gave him a 4-0 lead, the crowd erupted as Gibbons rolled through for a reversal. Melchior gained a one-point escape to take a 5-2 lead into the final period.

Third-period fireworks began after Melchior ruled to break a hold the referee ruled was potentially dangerous. Gibbons quickly scored a reversal to tighten the count to 5-4.

Gibbons had a decided edge in riding time, which would have given him a point at the end of the match for a 5-5 tie. But with 19 seconds remaining, the Iowa State wrestler was warned for stalling.

What ensued were warnings for both benches, and with one second left, Melchior got an escape to squeeze out a 6-5 win. The victory put Iowa ahead 9-0 in team scoring.

"I think the big match there was (Melchior and Gibbons)," Jim Gibbons said of his brother's duel. "Jeff put himself back in the position where he could either get back into it, tie it or possibly win it. I really didn't know what the heck that stalling call was."

The dual win raised the Hawkeyes' season mark to 9-1, while Iowa State slipped to 2-3-1.

Last year at Carver-Hawkeye Arena, Iowa's Brooks Simpson pinned defending national champion Eric Voelker at 190 pounds to preserve a win for the Hawkeyes.

Sunday, it took top-ranked Voelker 3 minutes, 14 seconds to return the favor, by pinning the Iowa junior to draw the Cyclones to 19-15 going into the final match.

Thompson walks out, hopes for changes

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — No one is prouder of Georgetown Coach John Thompson's dramatic protest against a newly adopted NCAA rule on scholarships than the players he walked out on, including his son.

With a fling of his familiar white towel, Thompson walked off the court Saturday night shortly before the Hoyas played Big East rival Boston College. He had promised he wouldn't participate in an NCAA-sanctioned event until something was done about Proposition 42, and he kept his word.

"I'm really proud he took a stand," said freshman Ronnie Thompson, the coach's son and a backup guard on the team. "It proves he's more concerned than just playing games. He's looking down the road, to my kids and his grandchildren, who may not be able to go to college because of this."

Proposition 42 would create new, stricter guidelines for freshmen to gain scholarships. It is a rule the coach labeled "discriminatory" because of the effect it would have on minorities.

After leaving to a standing ovation, Thompson was quickly ushered away from the arena in a waiting car. He left without saying a word, leaving open speculation as to whether he would be on the

Jones wins playoff for Hope Classic

PALM DESERT, Calif. (AP) — Steve Jones, given life by Paul Azinger's lapse on the 90th hole, birdied the first extra hole and scored his second consecutive victory Sunday in the Bob Hope Classic.

Jones, a three-stroke winner last week in the Tournament of Champions that opened the 1989 PGA Tour season, beat Azinger and Masters champion Sandy Lyle of Scotland in the sudden death playoff for the Hope title and became the first golfer since Gil Morgan in 1983 to win the first two tournaments of the season.

Jones, who moved into position with a brilliant 63 in Saturday's play, made up three strokes on the last three holes to tie Azinger and Lyle at 343, 17 strokes under par in this five-day, 90-hole tournament.

"I can't believe it. I won one tournament in five years and then open up boom-boom," said Jones, who played the last 18 holes at Bermuda Dunes in 3-under-par 69.

The victory, only the third of his career and second in eight days, was worth $180,000 from the total purse of $1 million and gave him $315,000 for the year — more than in any of his previous five seasons.

West German edges Tomba in World Cup

KITZBUEHEL, Austria (AP) — West Germany's Armin Bittner won Sunday's slalom World Cup ski race, while Luxembourg's Marc Girardelli vaulted into the season's overall lead with a big weekend.

Bittner upset double Olympic gold medalist Alberto Tomba of Italy with two consistent runs. His total time was 1 minute, 45.09 seconds, edging Tomba by .22 of a second. Austria's Rudi Nierlich was third in 1:46.19.

"There are two races I really wanted to win this year — Kitzbuehel and Vail," Bittner said.

is deceiving. The lead changed hands 10 times and Iowa's final 13 points came from the free-throw line.

"I don't think this was a 14-point game, but people that didn't see it are going to think so," Ohio State Coach Nancy Darsch said. "That kind of frustrates me. I think that the people that saw the game will realize how good this game really was."

"I also thought it was interesting that they shot 30 free throws to our 17. It was kind of odd how they called things but I guess that goes with the home court." Ohio State built a six-point lead, 59-53, midway through the second half. Iowa rebounded to score the next eight points and take a 61-59 lead with 8:40 to play.

Ohio State regained the lead, 62-61, on a Geneva Sanford basket and a Nikita Lowry free-throw before Iowa delivered the knockout.

Iowa's Jolette Law hit a jumper from the corner to put the Hawkeyes back on top, 63-62. A few seconds later, Ohio State's Liana Coutts was whistled for an intentional foul. Iowa's Robin Christian hit both free throws and Shanda Berry scored on Iowa's possession, boosting the Hawkeye lead to 67-62 with just more than six minutes to play.

The intentional foul prompted a deafening roar from the crowd and triggered the 23-8 Iowa run that sealed the win.

"I'm particularly pleased with the way we kept our composure," Stringer said. "There were moments when we were down that we kept calm and knew that we would win. It was just going to take time."

Darsch said the call on Coutts may have been the turning point.

"That may have been part of it," Darsch said. "We hit a cold streak in the second half and they took control. We played a good game. We had our shots — they just didn't seem to drop." The Buckeyes shot over 50 percent from the field. During the first half Ohio State shot at a 63-percent clip and had only six turnovers but still trailed, 40-39, at intermission.

Iowa's Franthea Price was a major reason Iowa was leading at halftime. Price fired in four 3-pointers in the first half to keep Iowa in the game. Every time Ohio State threatened to open up a big lead, Price nailed a 3-pointer.

"It was the most relaxed game I've seen (Price) play in a pressure situation," Stringer said. "She knew that it was important for her to come poised and prepared."

Apparently, Price took Stringer's words to heart. Price showed up two hours early Sunday to practice her shooting. She responded with a 26-point effort. "I might have shot too much because my shoulder was getting sore," Price said. "But I had a heat pack put on and that got me loose. Then I was ready to play."

Three Ohio State players scored in double figures. Lisa Cline paced the Buckeyes with 17 points.

For Iowa, Berry had 17 points and nine rebounds, Stephanie Schueler went four of five from the floor and had 10 points, including back-to-back jumpers that keyed a second half Iowa rally. Law, who had a career-high 23 points in a win at Illinois Friday, had 11 points, many coming in the last 10 minutes of the game.

Iowa's bench kicked in too. Freshman Trisha Waugh and sophomore Felicia Hall combined for 12 points and 11 rebounds while filling in for Berry, who was in early foul trouble.

Iowa will play at Drake Wednesday and will host Minnesota Sunday at 3 p.m. and responded with one of his own to pin Chris Knutsen at 1:21 to stop the comeback bid.

"He was locked up good, but I get out of position with almost every heavyweight," Haman said. "Being a small heavyweight, I'm used to throwing guys."

Though the Cyclones are struggling and the Hawkeyes have lost to No. 3 Penn State, the meet was exciting.

Temper flared in the 118-pound match between Iowa's Steve Martin and Iowa State's Sean Watt. The extra-curricular activity continued in the next match, between Hawkeye Tom Brands and Cyclone Gary McCall.

Brands showed McCall during Brands' 8-2 win, as the wrestlers went out of bounds. The two continued the action after the third period ended.

"That's just part of wrestling," Brands said. "It just gets that way sometimes."

"My wrestlers don't do that kind of stuff, but they are told not to take it," Jim Gibbons said.

Iowa's Eric Pierson made his season debut at 142 pounds with a 4-0 win over Mike Moreno. Pierson has been sidelined with a shoulder injury.

Hawkeye all-American John Hefferman also chalked up a victory. The Iowa co-captain wrestled to a 14-6 major decision at 167 pounds.

"There's always a little more riding on an Iowa State dual," Hefferman said. "I just went out and tried to do what I could for the team."

Thompson

bench Wednesday night when Georgetown plays at Providence.

He wasn't talking to the media Sunday, but his son thinks there's a good chance his father will sit out Wednesday's game if no progress is made on repealing the controversial amendment.

"I don't know, but if he chose to sit out, it wouldn't surprise me, because he's serious about this," Ronnie Thompson said.

"He may be out one day, he may be out five days, he may be out the rest of the season," Georgetown Athletic Director Francis Rienzo said. "He's using this as a platform to protest this social injustice."

The Hoyas hardly needed Thompson Saturday. Under the guidance of assistant Mike Riley, Georgetown bolted to a 24-7 lead and shot 71 percent in the first half en route to an 86-60 victory.

"We wanted to walk off with him, but he told us to stay and play hard and smart," guard Charles Smith said. "That's the best thing we could do for him."

Proposal 42, which is to go into effect in 1990, would prevent high school students who meet only part of the NCAA's entrance criteria from receiving scholarships their first year in college. It applies to athletes who fail to score 700 on the Scholastic Aptitude Test or a 15 on the American College Test, and earn a 2.0 grade-point average in a high school core curriculum of 11 subjects.

"I'm looking for a commitment for change, even if it isn't done officially," Thompson said.

"By walking out, he really got his point across," freshman center Alonzo Mourning said. "It's something he thought he should do, and we're proud he did."

"He knows we're not going to be affected by it, but it could influence our relatives, little sisters or brothers. He's looking out for young kids down the road."

Illini top Iowa; Dow wins all-around

By Mike Polisky
The Daily Iowan

Illinois was the favorite to win the NCAA Championship this year, didn't expect much trouble from the injury-ridden Iowa Hawkeyes Saturday afternoon in the North Gym of the Field House.

However, Iowa, led by Jeff Dow and Keith Cousino, kept things close before the Hawkeyes finally succumbed to Illinois, 269.40-265.70.

Men's Gymnastics

"We have so many injuries" Dow said. "Our fourth, fifth and sixth guys were really hurting, and their routines are really simple. When we get healthy we will be right up there with (Illinois)."

Cousino was also optimistic about the future.

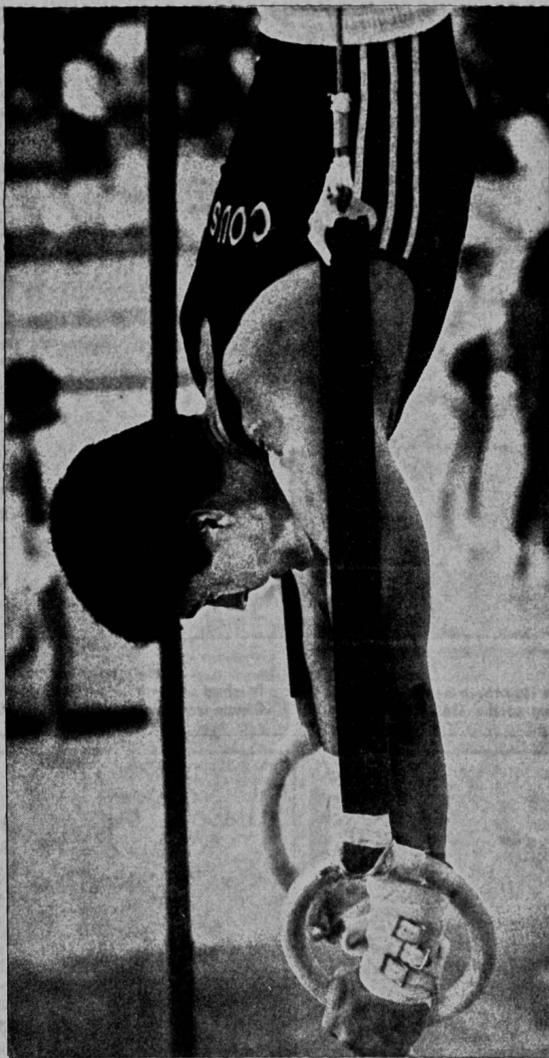

"I think we are getting better every meet," he said. "We had some good individual performances and some bad ones. I can't wait until our injuries heal, then we'll know where we stand."

Amidst all the injuries, there were some bright spots that surfaced for the Iowa squad. Keith Rooks, competing in his first meet since transferring from BYU, tied for second with teammate Erik Heikkila on vault with 9.15.

Freshman Paul Bautel, who was still looking for some consistency in his performances, showed a glimpse of improvement by finishing fourth in the pommel horse with a score of 9.05.

Coach Tom Dunn said he feels a lack of consistency is keeping his team from reaching its potential.

"If we would have shown some consistency," Dunn said, "we would have won the meet. We had too many mistakes. We need the other guys to look sharper and to get rid of their mistakes."

Iowa junior Keith Cousino steadies himself on the rings during the Hawkeyes' dual meet with Illinois Saturday afternoon in the Field House. Cousino finished third in the all-around competition.

"Dow and Cousino can't be expected to do everything for us."

Dow captured the all-around title with a six-event score of 55.25. Emilio Marrero of Illinois was second with 54.80, and Cousino followed with 54.55. Dillon Ashton of Iowa finished seventh with 49.45.

Iowa travels to Chicago Jan. 20-21 to compete in the 12-team Windy City Classic.

"Everybody is rough this early in the year," Dunn said. "Next week we will find out where we stand when we face the twelve best teams in the Midwest."

Manning faces one year of rehab

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Danny Manning, last year's No. 1 NBA draft pick, underwent reconstructive knee surgery Saturday and will be in rehabilitation for up to a year.

The surgery on Manning's right knee was performed by Stephen J. Lombardo, who said damage to the joint was limited to a torn anterior cruciate ligament.

"We're happy to learn that Dr. Lombardo found no further damage in Danny's knee," Los Angeles Clippers General Manager Elgin Baylor said. "We know the rehabilitation plays a great part in the recovery of a patient."

"With Danny's work ethic, desire and determination we're very optimistic about his return."

A tendon from Manning's right leg was removed and inserted into the knee to take the place of the damaged ligament.

Manning, a 6-10 forward, was named NCAA College Player of the Year and NCAA Tournament Most Valuable Player after leading Kansas to the national title.

He injured his knee Jan. 5 in a game against Milwaukee as he attempted an uncontested layup.

Manning, 22, will remain at Centinela Hospital Medical Center in suburban Inglewood for 3-4 days and then will begin a rehabilitative program at the Kerlan-Jobe Orthopedic Clinic for the next 9-12 months.

Manning played on the 1988 U.S. Olympic basketball team before joining the Clippers, with whom he averaged 16.6 points, 6.6 rebounds and 3.1 assists in 26 games this season.

Manning is expected to begin workouts on a stationary bicycle in 3-4 weeks.

Hawks top Illinois, set marks

By Anne Upson
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's gymnastics team knocked off Illinois 180.6-178 Saturday at the North Gym of the Field House, setting two school records in the process.

Sophomore Michelle Cahal surpassed her old mark of 9.55 on the uneven bars and replaced it with a 9.60. Teammate Lori Cole, a freshman, set a record in floor exercise with a 9.50, downing the old mark of 9.40.

Cole was the 1988 national high school champion in the floor exercise. She said she went into the meet feeling confident.

"I knew I could do well because I had prepared myself for it," Cole said. "I really like competing at the collegiate level better than high school because the team is so supportive of you."

Iowa assistant coach Jesus Vazquez said Iowa's "team unity" was a factor in the victory.

Women's Gymnastics

"I was happy with the way it turned out," Vazquez said. "We have such a team unity and atmosphere that is great. Beam was awesome. It was nice to go into an event and only have one fall. Only one fall with six competitors."

The Illini, however, had plenty of unfortunate tumbles. Two Illinois gymnasts were lost to injuries sustained at the meet. Illinois Coach Bev Mackes called the injuries "freak."

"We were leading by three points in the first half," Mackes said. "But with Debbie Shively and Tracy Kontur hurt, we did the best we could."

According to Illinois assistant coach Steve Grogg, Shively blew her knee out after an improper landing in her floor routine. Kontur suffered an injury after her beam routine.

Mackes also said there were scoring problems that hurt her team.

"The judges were very tight at the beginning. But it is always hard for the first person competing," Mackes said. "This was also our first meet of the season. But I thought we did OK. It would have been nice to have the meet at home."

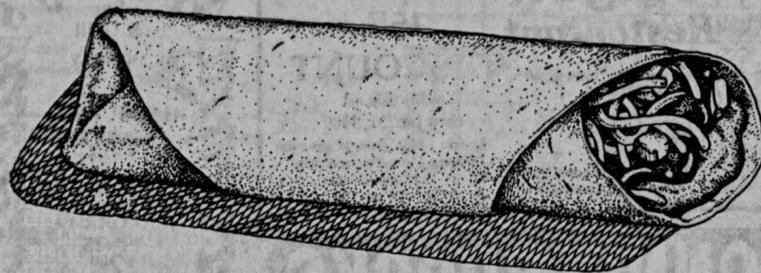

Mackes added that she's looking forward to the Big Ten meet, which will be at Illinois.

"Iowa will give them (Illinois) a run for their money," Mackes said.

The Hawkeyes' next meet is tonight against Utah and Utah State in Salt Lake City. Vazquez said he thinks the competition will be challenging.

Gill leads Illinois past Wolverines

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP)—Kendall Gill scored 26 points as No. 2 Illinois won a battle of second-half rallies Saturday, and the Fighting Illini remained unbeaten with a 96-84 victory over No. 6 Michigan in a Big Ten basketball game.

The 15-0 start by Illinois matches the one of the 1978-79 team. The school record is 16-0 in 1915, the school's only perfect season.

The victory made Illinois 3-0 in conference play, while Michigan fell to 14-2 overall and 2-1 in the Big Ten.

Kenny Battle added 18 points for Illinois, while Nick Anderson had 16.

Glen Rice led Michigan with 30 points and Loy Vaught had 22 and Rumeal Robinson 15.

Ohio St. 83, Michigan St. 81
EAST LANSING, Mich. — Jay Burson hit a 13-foot jump shot with four seconds left Saturday, giving 18th-ranked Ohio State an 83-81 Big Ten victory over Michigan State.

Burson scored 15 of his 19 points in the second half. Perry Carter led the Buckeyes, 12-3 overall and 2-1 in the conference, with 22 points.

Big Ten Basketball

Steve Smith led Michigan State, 9-4 and 1-3, with 21 points.

Indiana 92, Northwestern 76
BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — Jay Edwards scored 22 points and keyed a 14-point run in the second half that gave Indiana Coach Bob Knight his 500th college coaching victory, 92-76 over Northwestern in Big Ten action Saturday.

Only Oklahoma State's Henry Iba reached 500 victories at a younger age than Knight, 48. Knight is 500-183 in his 24th year of coaching. In 18 years at Indiana, his record is 398-133.

The Hoosiers, 13-4 and 3-0 in the Big Ten, led 43-37 at halftime but were outscored 10-3 in the first 2:28 of the second half. Northwestern, 7-7 and 0-4, took a one-point lead, but Indiana responded with a 14-0 run and Northwestern could come no closer than nine points the rest of the way.

Mirror Move

Iowa gymnast Dillon Ashton catches his breath Saturday during the Iowa-Illinois meet in the North Gym of the Field House. Ashton finished seventh in the all-around competition with a score of 49.45. Illinois won the meet 269.40-265.70.

Pitt surprises Oklahoma; Virginia upsets Tar Heels

(AP)—Pittsburgh, which already had lost to Siena and Duquesne this season, upset third-ranked Oklahoma on Sunday, 99-91, getting career performances from Brian Shorter and Rod Brookin.

"I think we've shown that we are capable of beating anybody ... or of losing to anybody," Pitt's Sean Miller said.

Shorter scored 37 points and Brookin had 24, and the Sooners got no closer than five points in the second half as their 11-game winning streak ended.

Oklahoma fell to 13-2. Mookie Blaylock had 37 for the Sooners.

Virginia 106, No. 8 North Carolina 83

Richard Morgan scored a career-high 39 points and Virginia beat visiting North Carolina in the Atlantic Coast Conference.

Morgan, a 6-foot-4 senior guard, made a school-record eight of 14 shots from 3-point range. The Cavaliers broke a five-game losing streak and improved to 8-6 overall and 1-2 in the ACC, while North Carolina slipped to 14-3 and 1-1.

The Tar Heels played the last 5:23 without Jeff Lebo, who was leading North Carolina with 26 points when he twisted his left ankle and had to leave the game with Virginia leading 87-76.

No. 9 Louisville 67, No. 19 Ga. Tech 65

Kenny Payne hit two 3-pointers in the final 77 seconds, both erasing Georgia Tech leads, and the Yellow Jackets lost for the second time in two days.

Payne's first 3-pointer gave the Cardinals a 63-62 lead; his second, with 44 seconds left, put Louisville ahead 66-64. Purvis Ellison had 20 points for the Cardinals, 12-2.

College Basketball

Brian Oliver missed a 40-footer at the buzzer for Georgia Tech, 10-4.

No. 14 Florida St. 101, No. 17 Tennessee 90

Tony Dawson scored 30 points and George McCloud added 29 as Florida State beat visiting Tennessee.

Florida State, 12-1, opened a 50-28 lead late in the first half and fought off several Tennessee spurts in the second half. The Volunteers, 11-2, closed to within 66-61 with 12:14 left in the game on Dyron Nix's 3-point shot, but were never able to get any closer.

Georgetown 86, Boston College 60

Thompson walked off the court just prior to tipoff. He declined comment.

"It was kind of motivating seeing him walk off the court," Georgetown forward Jaren Jackson said. "It was an emotional moment, and I think it gave us a little edge."

Assistant Jim Riley took over for Thompson.

The Hoyas, 12-1, scored the game's first nine points and increased their lead to 24-7 in rolling to the easy victory.

No. 1 Duke 82, Maryland 72

Danny Ferry scored 22 points, six in a 14-0 run in the second half, that carried undefeated Duke past Maryland in their Atlantic Coast Conference game. At 13-0, Duke is off to its second best start ever.

The only season in which the Blue Devils had a better start was 1985-86, when they opened with 16 straight victories.

The Terps got within 74-70 with 1:28 left, but two free throws apiece by Robert Brickey, John Smith and Quin Snyder put the game away.

Maryland has lost six in a row.

St. John's 65, No. 4 Syracuse 63

St. John's rallied from 13 points behind with 16 minutes and got key baskets from Billy Singleton and Matt Brust in the final 1 1/2 minutes for the upset of Syracuse in the Big East.

The Orangemen, 14-3, played most of the game without their leading scorer, Sherman Douglas, who suffered a pulled lower back muscle less than two minutes into the game.

No. 10 Missouri 96, Iowa St. 71

Doug Smith had 20 points, and Missouri got off to an early lead against Iowa State in breezing to a Big Eight victory. Missouri, 14-3, outscored Iowa State 15-7 to lead 37-29 with 3:36 left in the first half.

After leading 52-37 with 17:26 to play, the Tigers never led by less than 11. Byron Irvin had 19 points for the Tigers.

No. 12 Arizona 95, Oregon 71

Anthony Cook scored 23 points as the Wildcats beat Oregon in the Pacific-10 Conference. Oregon got within 62-47 after running off 10 straight points, but the Wildcats, 11-2, outscored the Ducks 16-6 to lead 78-53 with 7:48 to play.

Ritter, Barnes win at Dallas despite hotel gun incident

DALLAS (AP) — The talk of the Dallas Morning News Indoor Games wasn't Mary Decker Slaney's return to the track, Greg Foster's comeback from a broken arm or Jackie Joyner-Kersey's dominating performance.

It was how two Arkansas punks with rifles affected the performances of Randy Barnes and Louise Ritter.

Barnes, the silver medalist in the shot put at the 1988 Olympics, reacted from looking at a gun muzzle by uncorking the best indoor throw of his career.

Ritter, the Olympic gold medalist in the women's high jump, was shaken but still managed a victory.

Barnes, of College Station, Texas, threw the shot a meet-record 71 feet, 10 inches, the seventh-best all-time indoor toss.

George Woods owns the U.S. indoor record of 72-2 1/4, set in February 1974 at Inglewood, Calif. The world mark is 73-0 1/2, by Werner Guenther of Switzerland.

"I couldn't believe the throw after what happened to me this morning," Barnes said. "I thought I was going to hit the world record."

Barnes was confronted by two men in the parking lot of a Little Rock motel at 2 a.m. after a meet at Jonesboro, Ark., Friday night. One of them pointed a rifle at Barnes.

"I was getting the luggage out of the car when these two guys in a pickup truck said I had their parking spot," Barnes said. "Before I could say anything, one of them pointed an automatic rifle at me. I can tell you one thing: the size of your ego shrinks when you face a gun."

Barnes ran into the lobby and called for the police, while Ritter and Roger Jennings stayed in the car.

"The police arrested the two guys and found out the rifle was unloaded," Barnes said. "It was still unnerving. I didn't get to sleep until 3:30 and we had to catch an early flight to Dallas."

Barnes said, "You just never know how things will work out. I had all that trouble and then I hit my personal best today."

Barnes, a former star at Texas A&M, threw the shot 73-5 1/2 to win the silver medal at last summer's Olympics. The Dallas meet record was 71-3 1/4.

Ritter of Red Oak, Texas, winner of the women's high jump at Seoul with a leap of 6-8, equalling her American record, won for the first time in five tries at Dallas, clearing 6-2 1/4. She edged Jan Chesbro-Wohlschlag, who cleared the same height, on fewer misses.

"I was up all night and my legs were real tired," Ritter said. "I have never been that scared in my life. Those guys were crazy. Those guys were just looking for trouble. They were typical rednecks."

Ritter had jumped 6-6 at Jonesboro Friday night.

"I was just worn out, but at least I finally won in my hometown," Ritter said.

Slaney, making her first indoor appearance in four years, won the women's 800 meters in 2 minutes, 2.87 seconds, well off her American record of 1:58.9.

Still, she was satisfied. "This race shows me that I could have a shot at a world record for the 1,000," she said.

Joyner-Kersey, who won gold medals at Seoul in the heptathlon and the women's high jump, won the women's 55-meter high hurdles in 7.41.

Foster, the two-time world champion in the men's 110-meter hurdles, started his comeback from a broken arm that kept him out of the Olympics, by winning the men's 55-meter hurdles in 7.06.

At the Bijou

"Los Olvidados" — (1950) Luis Bunuel's classic tale of a Mexico City slum youth. The film balances social comment with great lyrical moments of nightmares and visions, while exploring the similarities and ambiguities of good and evil. In Spanish. 7 p.m.

"Pursued" — (1947) Robert Mitchum stars in Raoul Walsh's Western-cum-film-noir. One of the cinema's bleakest, most engrossing explorations of the human psyche, the film's cumulative power is the product of Walsh's preference for romantic tragedy, writer Niven Bush's fatalism, James Wong Howe's somber, shadowy photography and Mitchum's brooding, intense acting style. 8:45 p.m.

Television

Well, what would MLK's birthday be without an utterly pretentious and self-important gesture from those oh-so socially conscientious honorary black guys in U2? Don't miss the WORLD PREMIERE of the SPECIAL LIVE video of "Pride in the Name of Love" on MTV today.

"Wonderworks" — The Lion, the Witch and the Wardrobe — Lucy is the first to discover the wardrobe's secret and travel to the land of Narnia. There she meets the evil White Witch in this adaptation of C.S. Lewis' beloved children's classic (7 p.m.; IPTV 12).

"Masterpiece Theatre — A Very British Coup" — As Prime Minister Harry Perkin's term continues, scandal breaks out. Details of Perkin's past affair with a woman are investigated, and a terrified world watches as Perkin demands that the Americans abandon their strategic bases in Britain (9 p.m.; IPTV 12).

Art

"Art of the Red Earth People: The Mesquakie of Iowa" — Over 200 items make up the first-ever public display of Mesquakie art and artifacts. The exhibition includes quillwork, woven mats and sashes, beaded costumes as well as wooden pipes, utensils and tools. At the UI Museum of Art through Feb. 26.

U2

"Multiple Talents: An Exhibit of the Book Arts" is on display at the Arts Center, 129 E. Washington St., until Jan. 31. The Solo Space features "Time to Remember" by Ruth Johnson, while "Seeking to Secure — Part I" by Anne Goehnen can be seen in the Installation Space.

Radio

"The Blues Groove" with Craig Kessler, (8 — 11 p.m. on KRUI, 89.7 FM) — At this point we would usually make some silly little attention-grabbing joke about the show or the host, intended to spice up what is basically a rather dull information column. We assumed — correctly most of the time — that all KRUI employees shared our playful sense of humor. However, we've learned that Mr. Kessler takes his blues very seriously and does not appreciate such levity. So no more "Blues Groove" jokes, folks.
