'89 budget may end UI hiring freeze

By Andy Brownstein
The Daily Iowan

UI officials are hopeful that Gov. Terry Branstad's proposed budget for the 1989 fiscal year will end the hiring freeze placed on UI faculty and staff last June.

Next year's budget provides badly needed funds for undergraduate education and, more importantly, an increase in faculty salaries — conditions that could ease the budget constraints that first necessitated the freeze.

"The legislature has told us that their top priority is salaries and that there is no money except for top priorities," said Philip Hubbard, UI vice president for student services.

He added that "whether the future is bright or not will depend on the (Iowa) Legislature," which will convene this April to discuss the governor's proposals.

"They usually don't deviate much from the governor's budget," Hubbard said.

Mary Jo Small, UI associate vice president for finance, is just as hopeful about the new proposals but believes the budget's approval could be hindered by the Legislature's wish to form an independent budget.

Otherwise, Small said, the freeze is generally "on target in terms of generating savings," which vary according to specific departmental budget plans.

"The focus of the freeze is less on numbers than dollars," she said. "Since our emphasis is on a planned approach, we won't know until the end of the fiscal year if the plan was successful."

Peter Shane, UI faculty council president, agrees that the freeze has been effective but believes that the term "freeze" is a little misleading.

"It's a little austerity in terms of hiring decisions," Shane said. "It means that we shouldn't be (hiring) people unless we know that they're worth it or if we know that we can save in other areas."

"I doubt it'll even last until the end of the year," he said, adding that "I think next year the university will be in a vigorous hiring position."

Although the freeze has been effective in bringing expenditures down, it is also adding to the budget problems that are causing a "general erosion of educational quality" at the UI, Hubbard said.

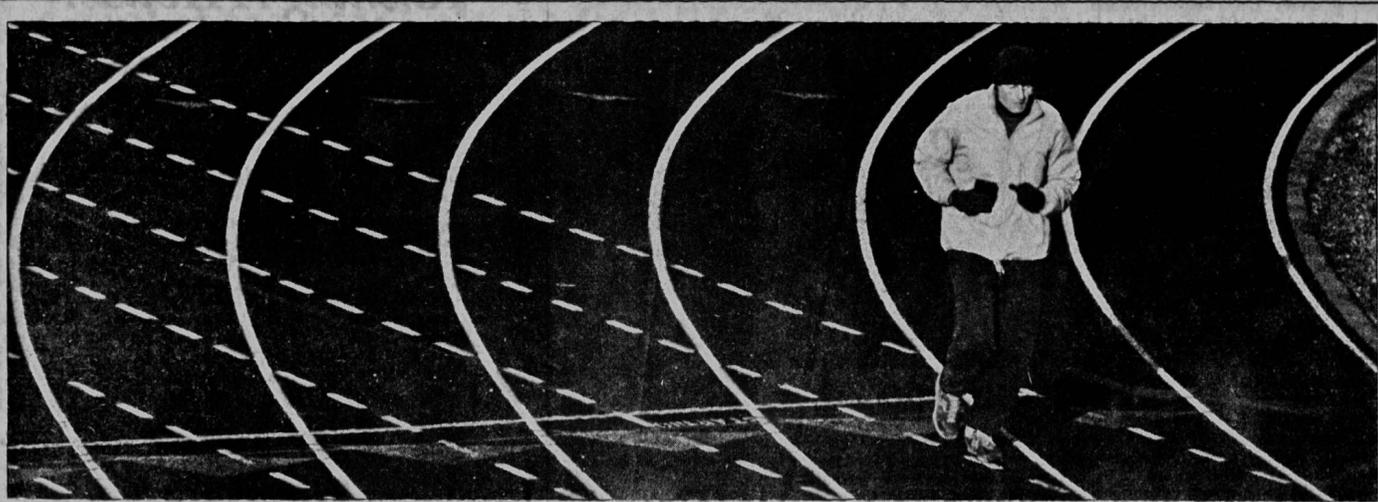

"We have a smaller amount of supplies, and there's not enough staff," he said. "It's draining us. We're going to have to work to rejuvenate things next fiscal year." Hubbard is enthusiastic about the governor's budget but said there won't be any funding for the renovation of the UI's infrastructure, which he feels has been hurt by the austerity of the past 10 years.

"There's only so much time the university can be supported by bailing wire and chewing gum," he said. "There's a limit, and we've reached that limit."

As further evidence of the UI's budget problems, he cited President Hunter Rawlings as recently saying that the faculty at the UI is

Panel looks into Miami shooting

MIAMI (AP) — Sporadic gunfire and rock-throwing broke out in black neighborhoods Wednesday after city commissioners appointed a panel to investigate the police shooting of a black man that sparked two days of racial violence.

City commissioners unanimously approved the special panel amid warnings from black leaders that there will be more disturbances if authorities do not act quickly to ease tensions.

The rioting that followed the fatal shooting of a 23-year-old, unarmed black motorcyclist by a Hispanic policeman has left one person dead, eight shot, about 20 buildings burned and numerous others looted in the black neighborhoods of Overtown and Liberty City. The motorcyclist's passenger also died.

The violence interrupted the city's preparations for a gala celebration as it plays host to Sunday's Super Bowl.

It was quiet Wednesday until late afternoon, when shots were fired at police in the Overtown section and rock-throwing was reported in Liberty City, said Miami police spokesman David Rivero. Authorities again cordoned off Overtown.

"We had a few shots fired at us, but fortunately no one was hurt," Rivero said. Scores of Miami police squad cars and a state SWAT team went to the spot in a show of force aimed at heading off more violence.

The sister of the motorcyclist's passenger made a televised appeal for an end to the violence.

"I would like to plead to the Overtown people that they stop the riots," said Claudia Lubrin, whose brother, Allen Blanchard, died in a

Board seeks pay raise for officials

By Heather Maher

Exasperated with salary cuts regularly made by county supervisors, the Johnson County Compensation Board Monday recommended a 12 percent pay raise for elected county officials.

The increase, passed by a vote of 4-to-2, is a higher recommendation than the board has made in past years. Members said it was made in anticipation of the consistent slashes in salary of county supervisors.

Board Chairwoman Penny Davidson said the somewhat unrealistic 12 percent figure was offered as the only way to cope with what the board sees as inevitable salary cuts.

Last year, the board recommended pay raises as low as 3 percent for county officials. In response, county supervisors reduced the

Unreported funds prompt KRUI audit

By Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

Unreported funds in a local bank account held by KRUI, the UI student-run radio station, have prompted the UI to closely examine the station's finances.

UI Dean of Student Services Philip Jones recently requested the UI audit KRUI expenditures after the station's governing board, Student Broadcasters Incorporated, asked that the station's accounts be reviewed.

The SBI board reported to UI officials that KRUI held an unauthorized bank account — one that it failed to report to student government bodies during the annual mandatory student fees budgeting process — in addition to its account at the UI Business Office.

The UI audit will ascertain that student fees are not included in the account's balance, the claim made by KRUI, said Vernon McKinley, SBI president.

The station told SBI that the moneys included in the account's balance were reportedly raised at station fund-raisers, McKinley said Wednesday.

"Reasons were given for those accounts. They were supposedly raised from fund-raisers, and at this time I don't have any reason to doubt that," he said.

It is the origin of the funds, not the existence of the bank account, that will determine whether actions may be taken against the station, said Student Senate President Melinda Hess.

"The question is not that they had another account. It is 'Are state monies being transferred to another account without following accepted procedures?'"

Regardless of the origins of the money, KRUI breached UI policy when it failed to report the existence of an outside bank account, said Linda Groven, Collegiate Associations Council treasurer.

"There is a stipulation that if you have another account that you notify CAC and Student Senate," Groven said.

CAC and the senate are responsible for allocating mandatory student fees to student groups to finance projects throughout the fiscal year. This year KRUI received about $35,000 from mandatory student fees allocated from the CAC and the Student Senate.

Until the results of the audit are received, station funds will be monitored by student groups, McKinley said.

"Right now KRUI is not allowed to spend any funds unless closely scrutinized by the CAC and others," he said.

He added the careful inspections of the accounts are to guarantee that everything is in order when the new station management assumes control of the station this spring.

However, the ultimate goal of the investigation is to improve operations at KRUI, McKinley said.

"This is not an investigation. This is just another example of students working for students by improving the efficiency of the student-fee use," he said.

He said the recommendation is not an indictment of the current staff but will help facilitate future structural improvements, including rewiring the new second floor location in South Quad.

'A Call to Action' urges public pro-choice support

By Kathleen Brill
The Daily Iowan

Last night Clara Olesen stood up in front of over 150 people in Shambaugh Auditorium and told a story that had remained a family secret throughout her youth.

She described a time in the 1920s when abortion wasn't a medically safe option for women facing unplanned pregnancies. Her grandmother died after trying to end her pregnancy with a coat hanger, she said. "She was crumpled at the bottom of the stairs in a pool of blood, a hanger in the hand," Olesen's aunt had told the family. Her aunt told the tale reluctantly, ashamed of the family secret, Olesen said.

Olesen told this tale at the rally, "A Call to Action," that recognized the 1973 Supreme Court decision Roe v. Wade, which concluded state laws could not prevent women from choosing to have an abortion by a licensed physician during the first trimester of pregnancy.

Recent changes in Supreme Court judges and an increase in local anti-abortion activism prompted rally organizers to increase their efforts to attract public support for the pro-choice movement, said Carol deProse, a local pro-choice activist.

The rally organizers anticipated that Operation Rescue, a national anti-abortion group, would protest this month at local clinics that offer abortion services, including the Emma Goldman Clinic and UI Hospitals and Clinics abortion clinic, located at Westlawn. Probable dates for the protest are today and Jan. 26, said Gayle Sand, a director at the Emma Goldman Clinic for Women, 227 N. Dubuque St.

"Somebody came (to the special clinic of obstetrics and gynecology in the UI Hospitals) and wanted to know, if his wife was going to have an abortion, is this where she would come," deProse said. She said she believed this person was a member of Operation Rescue.

"This year (the rally) took a different tenor, because we heard that Operation Rescue was coming to town," she said.

Anti-abortion protesters usually try to block the way of women who try to enter clinics that perform abortions, deProse said. "It's very intimidating to see people sitting in front of a door, praying and mumbling and carrying on about their own particular point of view,"

Students return to face fears

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Children returned to class to confront their fears with help from psychologists Wednesday, just one day after a gunman fascinated by toy soldiers killed five youngsters at the school he attended as a boy.

Blood was washed from the pavement overnight and bullet holes were patched at Cleveland Elementary School, where experts said it was important that pupils, mostly children of Southeast Asian refugees, deal with the trauma immediately.

"I still feel upset, but I have to bring my kid to see the teacher to let the teacher know my kid's all right," Brom Lee said in broken English. "Everybody's angry. Your kid there, you get angry too."

His daughter, 7-year-old Nary, said she was scared to return because "I saw blood." Holding tightly to her father's hand, she pointed to her leg and said, "I saw somebody get shot right here."

Police said Patrick Edward Purdy, wearing an olive-drab shirt bearing the Iranian battle cry "Death to the Great Satan (sic)," on Tuesday sprayed more than 100 shots from an assault rifle, killing five youngsters ages 6 to 9 and wounding 30 other people.

A drifter who police said was either 24 or 26, Purdy killed himself with a pistol shot to the head after the mute, methodical attack during recess.

"Why he did this we may never know," said Capt. Dennis Perry. "We can only assume that some problem came up in this guy that made him do it. Obviously, he had a military hang-up."

Carved into the stock of Purdy's rifle was the word Hezbollah, Iranian for Party of God. Hezbollah is the name of a Shiite Moslem faction in Lebanon. Also carved

2 College of Medicine researchers awarded

Two professors in the UI College of Medicine — James West of anatomy and P. Michael Conn of pharmacology — have received top awards in their respective fields.

West's renowned work in the area of fetal alcohol syndrome has earned him the Method to Extend Research in Time award from the National Institute on Alcohol Abuse and Alcoholism of the National Institutes of Health.

The MERIT award will provide stable financial support for West's fetal alcohol syndrome research for 10 years for a total of $2 million.

West and his colleagues are investigating the long-term effects of maternal alcohol consumption on offspring. They are also studying genetic differences to identify genetically determined characteristics that can influence the risk and severity of fetal alcohol effects on brain growth and structure and on behavior.

Conn's research into the hormone that regulates reproduction has earned him Mexico's most prestigious science award.

Conn, head of pharmacology at the UI, received the award from the Miguel Aleman Foundation for his work with gonadotropin releasing hormone, a substance produced in the brain that regulates reproduction. GnRH stimulates the pituitary gland, located in the base of the brain, to release the hormones that regulate ovulation in females and sperm production in males.

In his research, Conn has found that GnRH, which he calls "software for the pituitary gland computer," has many potential uses, including control over breast or prostate cancer as well as endometriosis and premature puberty, and improved fertility for both humans and animals. Conn is studying the hormone and its effect on the pituitary with the aim of discovering a way to intervene and control the gland's function.

Plan allows non-resident hunting

DES MOINES (AP) — A House committee on Wednesday approved a plan to allow 1,500 out-of-state residents to hunt deer and turkey in Iowa, a step supporters said would bring $125,000 into the state treasury and spark tourism.

It also would end the threat of retaliation from neighboring states irked because their residents can't hunt in Iowa.

The House Natural Resources Committee approved the plan without dissent, sending it to the full House for debate.

Gov. Terry Branstad had asked legislators to approve the change as part of his drive to bring more tourists to Iowa.

Under the plan, a non-resident deer-hunting license would cost $100 and a turkey-hunting license $50. It allows 1,000 non-resident deer licenses and 500 non-resident turkey licenses each year.

Committee Chairman Rep. Dennis Black, D-Newton, said Iowa's deer population is thriving, with about 80,000 expected to be shot this year.

"We could have harvested more deer this year," he said.

Black said the ban on out-of-state licenses frequently interferes with family hunting trips when children return home for a visit.

"It's part of the tradition for dad and the kids to go hunting, but the kids now live in St. Louis or Omaha," said Black.

He estimated that an extra $500,000 in spending by tourists would be generated by the measure. Branstad is more optimistic in his budget, projecting $880,000 in new spending.

Black cited a letter he had received from officials in Missouri urging Iowa to ease its ban.

Two members of the Big Kid's class of the Handicare daycare center in Iowa City spent Wednesday morning playing on the slide located on the Downtown Pedestrian Mall.

Officials seek mortgage regulations

DES MOINES (AP) — State officials on Wednesday asked legislators for new powers to regulate the mushrooming mortgage banking industry.

Those officials asked that mortgage bankers be required to give the state a 30-day notice when they are preparing to close and that consumers be notified in advance when a mortgage is being sold.

Gregg Barcus, Superintendent of Savings and Loans, said the advance notice provision is needed to warn consumers that they'll soon be making mortgage payments elsewhere.

Many are shocked, he said, to arrange for a mortgage locally and "the next thing you know you're sending your check to Texas."

Barcus said he was seeking the new regulations in part because the mortgage banking industry is rapidly growing and changing. "In three to five years, we're going to see independent brokers all over the state with connections all over the country," Barcus said.

Barcus also asked the House Commerce Committee to allow the sale of title insurance in the state, an old battle that pits lawyers against bankers.

Title insurance is sold when property changes hands and guarantees to the buyer that the property's title is free of defects.

Funding program aids renters

By Stephen Horan
Special to The Daily Iowan

Sometimes renters scrape together all the money they have in the world, and it is still not enough to pay the monthly rent.

When that happens, they need not contemplate homelessness. Local residents who are not UI students are able to receive rent funding from the Johnson County Human Services Department.

Residents who are unable to pay back the rent money they borrow can work off their debts with public service jobs such as performing janitorial duties or working in a daycare program.

"There would be exceptions to this. If the renter had a disability and could show a doctor's documentation that he or she could not work, the work requirement would not apply," said Kay Hull, Human Services assistance fund director.

The jobs are assigned by the National Workfare Program, which is contracted in Iowa City through the Hawkeye Area Community Action Program, 1300 S. Gilbert St.

County residents may use the emergency rent funding three times, provided they have completed their prior month's work assignment.

Three to six residents request rent assistance per day. They are mostly single individuals, Hull said.

Johnson County has a large number of applicants with mental disabilities, she added. The rent assistance provided to these applicants is based on Social Security history and the severity of disability.

Hull said the Human Services Department does not often give individuals repeat aid. The renters who receive aid vary from year to year.

Because each Iowa county must provide rental assistance, Hull said a renter could travel from county to county, receiving rent reimbursement at each stop. This is not a common occurrence, she added.

College students are not eligible for this type of community assistance, but high-school students are.

"A UI student who voluntarily takes himself out of the work force in order to receive schooling would not be allowed to use this program," Human Services employee Susan Campney said.

If renters do lose their housing, there are two local shelters they can turn to for lodging — the Catholic Worker House in Cedar Rapids and the Emergency Housing Project in Iowa City.

But the services these shelters provide are limited. The maximum capacity is 28 persons in the Cedar Rapids shelter and 32 in the Iowa City shelter.

Both shelters have had to turn away families on occasion because of space constraints, according to their directors.

"All available apartments usually follow a no-children policy, and parents tell us they can't find anyone who will rent an apartment to them," the director of the Catholic Worker House said.

The Emergency Housing Project had to turn away a family last winter because it lacked room.

"We never have to turn an individual away, but sometimes when a family appears with four or five children, our hands are tied," the Emergency Housing Project director said.

Shifts in moon's orbit may explain drought

VINTON, Iowa (AP) — An Iowa State University climatologist says the movements of the moon have more to do with causing last summer's drought than sunspots or the greenhouse effect.

Climatologist Elwynn Taylor said his theory on the cause of the drought focuses on slight shifts in the orbit of the moon.

"In the past 10 years it's become more accepted," said Taylor. "At least we've got a good coincidence of the moon's path and our drought cycle."

The moon moves around the Earth once every month, shifting the path of its orbit by a few degrees north and south in 18-year cycles.

The moon's gravitational force pulls the Earth's atmosphere north and south as it moves, with an effect similar to the moon's pull on the ocean tides.

The moon's orbit is as far north as it gets, putting a bulge in the atmosphere directly above the U.S. Midwest.

Taylor said the thicker atmosphere makes for more drastic differences between high- and low-pressure systems. Taylor said historical statistics show the six years when the moon's orbit is most northerly also is when the majority of Midwest droughts have occurred.

"We feel convinced these tides of the atmosphere are influencing the weather here in the Midwest," Taylor said.

Last summer's weather lends even more weight to the theory.

Legislators mull plan to curb teen drinking

Minors may face loss of license

DES MOINES (AP) — Legislators quietly are assembling a package that would take away the driver's licenses of youngsters caught illegally buying alcohol, an assault designed to curb drinking by threatening a teen's "most prized possession."

The measure is being drafted but already is drawing interest and support from interest groups and legislators, who say lifting teen-agers' driver's licenses "hits them where they live" and would be an effective deterrent.

"I like it," said House Speaker Don Avenson, D-Oelwein. "I think the governor would consider it," said Richard Vohs, a spokesman for Gov. Terry Branstad.

The measure draws support from groups representing tavern owners and grocery stores, as well as police organizations. It would likely also win the backing of anti-drunk driving organizations like Mothers Against Drunk Driving.

Those groups carry major clout at the Statehouse, and the move fits in with a law-and-order theme shaping up in the Legislature this year. Under the plan, youngsters caught illegally buying alcohol would lose their driver's license for periods of a month or more. While that's a fairly short period, backers said, state law requires purchase of a hefty insurance package before the license can be reinstated.

That would put in place a financial incentive for youngsters to avoid alcohol, backers said.

Now, youngsters caught buying alcohol face fines as low as $50, and backers don't see that as a deterrent.

By contrast, businesses that sell to youngsters face big fines and the potential for losing their liquor licenses. Depending on how the measure is written, the state also could be in line for additional federal highway funds as a reward for cracking down on drug and alcohol enforcement. Backers are considering adding possession of drugs other than alcohol.

Some legislators express doubts about the proposal. "I think it needs a lot of study," said Sen. Donald Doyle, D-Sioux City, chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, which would have jurisdiction over the measure.

"It (the ban) has nothing to do with the operation of a motor vehicle," Doyle said.

"The vehicle should be related to the crime" before lifting a license is included as punishment, he said.

Doyle said lifting of driving privileges would make an impression on youngsters.

"The most prized possession is the driver's license," Doyle said. "It's almost a necessity."

Doyle's wariness may not be enough to slow the measure in a Legislature that has routinely toughened drunken driving laws and raised the legal drinking age to 21.

"It's going to be very controversial," he said.

Remodeling costs anger legislators

DES MOINES (AP) — Some legislators are protesting a $2 million remodeling project at the state Department of Education offices, including a $2,100 sofa in the office of Director William Lepley.

"Someone here is using bad judgment," said Sen. Richard Varn, D-Solon.

Lepley, who took over as director last year, said he ordered the remodeling because the department's offices are outdated. About $96,000 has been spent so far from the general department operating budget for remodeling of Lepley's offices, the department's board room and nearby offices.

"There hasn't been anything done to the Department of Education and its facilities in 25 years," Lepley said.

The department has its offices in the Grimes State Office Building, which opened in 1968.

Questions about the expenditures by Varn at a meeting of the joint House-Senate education budget subcommittee, Lepley said that after he decided to proceed with remodeling plans he was required to order furnishings from office equipment suppliers approved by the state.

"So I don't think I've done anything that was out of the ordinary," Lepley said.

"Well, let me tell you why it was out of line," shot back Varn. He said the Legislature should have been notified before the remodeling project was undertaken.

"On that kind of project, I think at least there should be some kind of contact with the Legislature," said Sen. Larry Murphy, D-Oelwein, who is chairman of the Senate Education Committee.

Varn said he hopes legislators will decide this year whether the remodeling project should proceed.

"Folks out there just don't understand why we spend this much money on state government," said Varn, clutching a handful of invoices of items bought for the remodeling project. Included were purchases of a $200 coffee table, a $104 potted tree, $7,100 for carpeting and $6,700 to put a wall in an office.

It was the chrome-and-leather sofa that dominated debate in the subcommittee. Varn said the invoice showed the sofa was originally priced at $5,300 before the state discount was applied, dropping the cost to $2,100.

"Doesn't it shock you when someone says that little couch in your office lists for $5,300?" Varn asked Lepley.

"We purchased the equipment through the state contract," Lepley said. "I don't think anybody that I've seen come in there would describe that office as being plush."

Other members of the subcommittee expressed surprise at the cost of the furnishings but did not directly criticize Lepley, who is an appointee of Republican Gov. Terry Branstad.

"I would hate to have my wife ordering a $5,300 couch," said Rep. Ruhl Maulsby, R-Rockwell City.

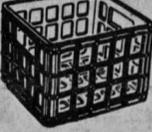

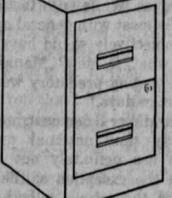

"It seems like a dreadful amount of money to me ... but I do understand that is the only way you can purchase equipment here," said Rep. Mary Neuhauser, D-Iowa City.

Just say good-bye

Tomorrow is Inauguration Day, and in Washington, D.C., along with the $25 million worth of pomp and circumstance George Bush is spending to usher in his kinder and gentler nation, the Graebel Van Lines trucks will be bumper to bumper outside 16 Pennsylvania Avenue.

Ron and Nancy are heading back to the dude ranch, and Nancy's got a big job ahead of her packing up her $25,000 designer dresses, $500,000 diamond necklaces, $209,508 set of Lenox China and $700,000 worth of furnishings she's acquired in the past eight years.

She stunned the entire nation immediately after becoming First Mommy by redecorating the White House to the tune of $1 million.

Lots of bad press followed this escapade, so we were treated to her over-promoted, heavily-publicized and quite ineffective "JUST SAY NO" drug campaign. Nancy got some great publicity out of this, with media blitzes of appearances at grade schools and drug rehab centers ad nauseum.

It's too bad her husband's administration was secretly dealing with pineapple-faced Panamanian drug-king Noriega the whole time.

But believing she had done her duty as a token advocate for a good cause, Nancy's attention wandered to her clothes-designer friends, and she "borrowed" hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of clothing and jewelry, "forgetting" to return or report them.

In a last interview, Nancy defended her wiley spending ways, pointing out to reporters her award from top American fashion designers for her "contribution to their industry."

That's great, Nancy. You'll always be remembered for your impeccable ethics and unswerving dedication to always doing what was best for you. Happy Trails.

Shocking reality

Riots in Miami this week have caused great concern across the country. Why? Because Americans fear innocent people may be hurt? Because Americans fear the riots represent a growing intolerance by the poor of their place in society? Because Americans fear further violence may erupt elsewhere in the nation, damaging race relations? No. Because many Americans fear it might have some effect on the Super Bowl.

Sure some of those other concerns may be passing through the minds of sports fans this week, but if they're honest they'll admit their primary worry is that the game could be cancelled, postponed or at least marred by violence.

The feeling is, "if those people want to have a riot, fine. But why don't they do it in February, or in the summer when it's hot. That's when poor people are supposed to have riots. Now they're going to ruin the Super Bowl."

The same feelings surfaced prior to the Seoul Olympics. Already tired of politics entering into the Olympics, people wanted the student protests in South Korea to subside, not for the good of Koreans, but so we could watch Greg Louganis win another gold.

Those are selfish feelings — human feelings. In a way, it's understandable as a first reaction. But on further reflection even the most avid football fan should be able to realize that the Miami rioting and the implications it has for our society are more important than any sporting event.

Perhaps the best thing that could happen Sunday is that the Super Bowl is cancelled, and instead of seeing a football game the massive television audience is treated to scenes of a violent uprising in the city. Maybe we need something like that to shock us out of the self-loving, self-interested, patriotic mental fog created by eight years of Reaganism.

Nah, I'd rather just see the game.

Big lies

These days it's hard to know what — or whom — to believe. Initially, West German spokespersons denied assisting Libya in the construction of a pharmaceutical/chemical weapons plant, only to be exposed later. Secretary of State-designate James Baker told conservative senators that Reagan's Central American policy will not change in the Bush Administration, while promising liberals major revisions. President-elect George Bush promised Monday — contradicting eight years of Republican stagnation — the fulfillment of Martin Luther King Jr.'s dream of social equality.

That the above assertions evoke doubt should be alarming, but questionable proclamations such as these are common and seldom trigger a reaction from the public at large.

It was Machiavelli (Nixon's favorite author) who first suggested that if rulers choose to lie to their subjects they should do so on a large scale, for the big lie will seem too huge to be questioned.

Consequently, U.S. lawmakers and government officials have felt free to make incredible promises and to tell blatant lies. The challenge for the American people is to stop accepting and start reacting.

George Bush should be applauded for his promise to embrace the civil rights cause, but should his pledge prove to be an empty one, he should be made to answer to an American people with a long and sharp memory — a people who refuse to be lied to.

Lighten up! Biff. You're in Iowa City, not Podunk

Mike Lankford

On Scott Raab's radio show "Making Waves" last Thursday night I heard a call-in from a guy named Biff. Biff had a couple of bones to pick with Karen Kubby, Iowa City and the UI. Biff was here in town visiting his cousin, who is enrolled in school.

Biff was appalled at several things about Iowa City and I greatly enjoyed his difficulty. He had several questions to ask her. He couldn't quite figure out how a socialist got elected to the city council; he wanted to know what the connection was between socialism and communism; and he just couldn't believe that the UI had installed condom machines in the residence halls.

Biff, your ignorance covers the earth like a blanket, not a hole in it. This is for you.

Biff, it's true. We've got condom machines. Iowa City is your nightmare come true. Not only do we have condom machines, but we've got lots of condom machines. A person can't throw a rock around here and not have it bounce off a condom machine.

And who knows? If supply outstrips demand, we might have to put in more. If the lines get too long in front of the things, we might have to put double sets on every wall. It may come to be that a central location in buildings won't be enough.

We might have to put condom machines on every floor. And considering our young and frisky population, we might have to set the things up in classroom buildings. Shoot, before you know it, Iowa City might be the first town in America to hang the things out on the street, just like newspaper machines. Eventually, every bar downtown (all 900 of them) will be selling condoms across the counter, right along with potato chips and Cheeze Whiz. There might even come a day when your son or daughter opens The Daily Iowan and a free sample falls out.

But it only makes sense. No surprise here. It's no secret that Iowa City has rolled in decadence before. The town has been up to its you-know-what in sin and fornication for years. You ever drive these streets at night and have any doubt what goes on behind those dark windows you see everywhere? And I'm talking about week nights. Try a Friday or Saturday night visit to Iowa City, Biff. If you put your hand on the ground, you can feel the vibration. And that's during the winter. Things don't calm down here any during the winter, but at least it stays indoors. Let a little warm weather hit Iowa City, and the very bushes and hedges come alive. Dogs bark all night long. Squirrels race up and down trees.

Biff, in Iowa City, neighbors don't even pay attention when they hear cries of desperation at certain hours of the night. Speaking of my own building — for sheer volume on weekends — it reminds me of the time the orphan's home burned down.

You've got to understand, Biff, we do things differently here in Iowa City. For Iowa City not to have condom machines conveniently located where you can just reach out your hand and touch one, runs a risk with the population. I mean, we don't plan on changing any of our habits around here. You'd understand if you ever walked the hallways of buildings, especially between classes when students are crowded together — literally pushed into each other and having to grind their way past people — and if you look into their eyes, you'll see why condom machines are a must. Go down to the pool sometime, Biff. People wear bathing suits there during the winter. Unless you think it's a good idea that there be a lot of new little Iowans, or that Iowa City be turned into a disease treatment center, you'll agree we need condom machines like a horse needs his oats.

But I don't suspect you will. I really suspect that you will go home with a stiff neck, worrying that your cousin will turn into a pervert, and that you've just visited the lower ring of hell. And I suspect you'll keep those attitudes until you die some day — probably by running into a brick wall.

No respect for 'movie journalism'

A black man who was young in 1964 emerged from the bludgeoning administered by "Mississippi Burning" and wondered aloud, "Is this movie necessary?"

It is optional, but good, to touch the sore of that summer the three civil-rights workers were murdered. But it was not necessary to touch the truth the way this movie does.

The movie is winning awards and throwing off sparks that are kindling controversies. The most emotional criticism is unjust, but there is rough justice in that criticism. The movie plays fast and loose with facts for the frank political purpose of evoking visceral responses.

Angry critics say that blacks are reduced to the role of mere victims, appearing on the screen only as sufferers, a background chorus to a melodrama of white FBI agents battling white conspirators. Such critics are complaining because the movie's makers did not choose to make a fundamentally different movie.

The movie does not set out to tell the rounded story of "Freedom Summer" in Mississippi. The movie's subject is the cracking of one conspiracy. In that episode, blacks were largely bystanders.

But midway through "Mississippi Burning," the movie becomes a 1960s clean-up-this-town Western, with a dash of familiar male bonding and a large dollop of Dirty Harry intruding in the dust. The movie was made by people, many of them liberals, who believe that conservatism is bofo at the box office.

Liberalism, at least as defined by conservatism, is systematic impotence, well-meaning woolly-headedness that tries to overwhelm problems by piling on resources, and makes matters worse. FBI agent Ward is liberalism incarnate. He sends armies of blue-suited agents wading into swamps. By trying to interrogate a black man in public, at a segregated lunch counter, Ward gets the man beaten.

Ward's buddy (after some turbulent bonding) is agent Anderson, an Oliver North with a middle-aged man's mileage registered on his face. Anderson is a get-it-done, no-nonsense-about-due-process-please sort of fellow who operates beyond the Warren Court's wildest nightmares. He gets Ward to acquiesce in the use of violence, coercion, kidnapping, semi-seduction, entrapment and a few nicks with a razor to crack the case. It is a sign of the times that a movie made for the proclaimed purpose of raising society's consciousness, panders to conservative appetites, the satisfaction of which is considered commercially necessary.

The director, Alan Parker, says: "I'm trying to reach an entire generation who knows nothing of that historical event, to cause them to react to it viscerally, emotionally, because of the racism that's around them now. And that's enough of a reason, a justification, for the fictionalizing."

All drama is, in a sense, manipulative. But there are respectful and disrespectful ways of approaching an audience and a historical record. When the subject is real people and events — and nothing as distant as Richard III — it is neither necessary nor acceptable to mess so much with the truth.

The three deaths moved history. The six-week hunt for the bodies became the hinge on which the nation's political will turned toward strong federal action. It is a story so dramatic that no embellishment should be thought necessary.

Charles Dickens was a "journalistic novelist." He wanted to inform as well as entertain, to improve the world while — by depicting it. But "movie journalism" derived from real recent events owes the record more respect than "Mississippi Burning" shows.

Don't let the opportunity pass to begin a new era in human history

Don Klotz

If all the indicators are correct the end of World War II may have marked a watershed in human history. Up to that war, if a nation wanted additional resources or additional territory it built up an army, a navy and an air force, created an excuse and went out to forcibly take whatever it wanted.

Witness Japan and Germany as examples. While such tactics could hardly meet with general approval, one objectively would have to ask: "So what is new? Mankind has been waging predatory wars since caveman days."

World War II demonstrated rather clearly that national predatory wars are definitely out of date. With the exception of the United States, the nations on both sides of that conflict came out of the war horribly devastated. To our everlasting credit, through the Marshall Plan, we extended a helping hand to allies and enemies alike to assist them in restoring their economies.

It worked marvelously. Stalin, burdened by paranoia and a habitual distrust of the West, rejected our offer. Forty years later, Mikhail Gorbachev, is striving desperately to nudge his people toward a modern economy from the depths of industrial inefficiency and waste, while his former enemies are basking in economic abundance.

Is Gorbachev sincere? Trying to be objective, I have seen little evidence to the contrary. It is my hope that he has a sufficient number of his younger and more perceptive associates to overcome some very serious resistance.

While I think we should "keep our powder dry," we should offer him all reasonable encouragement. The potential rewards are so extensive that we cannot risk missing what may be the last link in forging international cooperation toward lasting peace. Just think what we could do with those trillions of dollars now being spent on armaments to reduce poverty and repair the terrible damage done to our environment.

Too idealistic? Maybe, but I have observed that when you can put money into people's pockets they can easily forget old antagonisms which would not respond to a purely intellectual approach. Compared with the alternative, what do we have to lose?

The business men and women of world commerce are light years ahead of the diplomats and politicians in recognizing and taking advantage of the economic opportunities resulting from an integrated and interdependent international community. Let us hope the fog of old habitual ways of thinking will clear and bring us into the new order as quickly as possible.

Limited riverboat gambling offers regional financial help

DES MOINES (AP) — House Speaker Don Avenson on Wednesday said he supports proposals that would limit riverboat gambling to only one section of the state.

"I think you need to limit it to the Mississippi River," Avenson said. "I think that's the natural place. The only compromise I would be willing to make is possibly the Missouri River."

Avenson's stance is a shift for him. When lawmakers debated the issue last year, Avenson was part of an effort to allow casino-style gambling on lakes and rivers across the state. That was an effort to lure enough votes for passage.

A measure introduced this year would limit the gambling to only four boats on the Mississippi River, and Avenson said he would back that effort.

"It was originally conceived as a riverboat concept," Avenson said. "It was distorted way beyond recognition."

Avenson said scaling back the number and location of the boats would make passage tougher but added it can be justified. He said the effort has gotten a boost because some eastern Iowa legislators have switched their views and now support the gambling.

"It's a regional issue," he said. The Mississippi River area, Avenson said, has been among the hardest hit by the farm recession, and an injection of tourism would spark other development.

"I don't think there's anything wrong with the General Assembly helping one region of the state," he said.

A proposal to allow riverboat gambling popped up two years ago and initially wasn't taken seriously. The measure, however, eventually won House approval and only narrowly failed in the Senate.

Organized opposition has grown, and Avenson said passage is far from certain.

"It'll be tough," he said. Backers claim the boats would spark new tourism throughout the Mississippi Valley. Critics worry about organized crime influences.

Dubuque-area lawmakers switched this year to back the measure, Avenson said. They had opposed because of worries it would cut attendance at the Dubuque dog racing track.

With new competition from Illinois and Wisconsin, Avenson said, those lawmakers now favor gambling as a lure.

Avenson, water-oriented Iowans favor fun of Brushy Creek Lake

DES MOINES (AP) — Construction of a new lake in northwest Iowa is "a commitment we made a long time ago" being blocked by a small group of outdoor enthusiasts, House Speaker Don Avenson said Wednesday.

"They think it's their property," Avenson said. "I can tell you the huge majority of Iowans, and I mean 80 percent or 90 percent of the people of this state, want water-oriented recreation."

During his regular meeting with reporters, Avenson said he'll push the Legislature to approve construction of the lake, a step that initially was passed more than 20 years ago.

"It's a broken promise. It's a commitment we made a long time ago that we ought to be forced to fulfill," he said.

His stance puts the Oelwein Democrat in the middle of a simmering dispute about building Brushy Creek Lake just south of Fort Dodge.

The lake plan has been blocked by environmental groups who say flooding the 400 acres would destroy one of the few natural areas in Iowa for horse riding.

"That argument is just not valid," said Avenson. "A very, very small percentage, an infinitesimal percentage, of the recreation users are blocking that lake," he said.

The project was initially approved in 1968, when the Legislature paid for developing Big Creek Lake just north of Des Moines and Volga Lake near Oelwein.

While critics have used environmental arguments to block the project, Avenson rejected their criticism and said he speaks with a special expertise.

"I'm an outdoor person," he said. "I was a targeted environmentalist this year."

"I am all the things that ought to oppose this project," Avenson said people who ride horses on the land are "hurting the property" because the trails left by the animals cause erosion.

Avenson said plans by the federal government to develop a wooded recreation area along the Des Moines River from Des Moines to north of Fort Dodge show there is plenty of natural scenery in the area.

We've been in Iowa for 83 years. And we're one of Iowa's strongest savings banks. But if you're not familiar with MidAmerica, we'd like to make it worth your while to get to know us. We think you'll agree. It is! That's why we've set up the MidAmerica Money Max Cash Fund.

For "Charter Accounts" over $25,000
For new accounts of twenty five thousand dollars or more, we're offering this exciting new product. It has two features you'll really like. First we'll GUARANTEE YOUR 7.8% INTEREST THROUGH 3/31/89. Then rates adjust monthly — up or down. But for these charter accounts, the rate through 8/30/89 will NEVER BE BELOW 7.0%.* And second . . . you don't have to give up liquidity. You can add or withdraw funds anytime — even have limited check writing.

For "Charter Accounts" under $25,000
If you'd like to open a new account under twenty five thousand dollars, you have two choices.

- For accounts OVER TEN THOUSAND DOLLARS BUT UNDER TWENTY-FIVE THOUSAND, earn 7.2% (7.44% annual yield based on 7.2% compounded monthly, not to drop below 7.0% through 8/30/89.*)
- For accounts OVER FIVE THOUSAND DOLLARS BUT UNDER TEN THOUSAND, earn 6.25% (6.43% annual yield based on 6.25% compounded monthly, not to drop below 6.25% through 8/30/89.*)

If your balance falls below $5,000, your interest becomes 5.0% for that month and your account is charged a $5.00 service fee. Certain other restrictions may apply to institutional and trust accounts.)

The Best of Both Worlds
The MidAmerica Money Max Cash Fund IS the best of both worlds. You get high interest, like your C.D. and you can make withdrawals, just like your money market fund.

It's Easy to Do
You can do everything needed without leaving your office. Just call 351-8262 and ask for John or Paula. We can do all the necessary paperwork here. Then we'll send out the forms for your signature. Or, if you'd like to start earning 7.8% today, call and set up an appointment. You can come right in. It's that easy.

Do it Now
We'll offer this high 7.8% rate until Feb. 15th. But don't wait. We'll only be opening a limited number of these high interest accounts. And everyday could be costing you money. You could be earning 40% more if you call today. That's all it takes.

Add it Up
High interest, liquidity and it's easy to do. Good reasons for us to get together. So give us a call. You'll see we ARE the two best numbers in town . . . and more.

Shooting

into the rifle were the words "freedom" and "victory."

Perry said the man, in the days leading up to the blood bath, lived in a motel room where officers found a broken rifle, about 100 toy soldiers scattered about, and an olive-drab cloth on which were drawn "three snarling-type faces."

Records indicate that a Patrick Edward Purdy attended Cleveland Elementary through third grade, from 1969 to 1973, said district spokesman John Klose.

As police pieced together his past, psychologists met with the children as they returned to class today. Volunteers, some speaking Cambodian or Laotian, were expected to act as translators.

Bouquets were placed atop the school sign on the lawn, and five red roses were laid at its base. Across the street, a 9-foot paper sign read, "Racists Are Ugly —

Let's Stop Them."

Perry said the only contact his department had with Purdy before Tuesday was in 1986, when his mother called to complain that he and his half-brother had vandalized her car after she refused demands for drug money.

Purdy had a long police record, most of it in the Los Angeles area, Perry said. Charges involved prostitution, marijuana, manufacture or sale of an illegal weapon, receiving stolen property and robbery, authorities said.

Perry said he served jail time in at least the last two cases.

Purdy had parked his station wagon behind the school and set it ablaze with a Molotov cocktail Tuesday morning.

He fired 106-110 shots from a bayonet-equipped, Chinese-made AK-47 assault rifle at hundreds of youngsters enjoying a sunny recess, reloading at least once.

The semiautomatic rifle, purchased in August in Sandy, Ore., for $147 was capable of firing as quickly as Purdy could pull the trigger, police said.

"I don't understand why and I probably won't ever know why," said Purdy's grandmother, 63-year-old Julia Chumbley of Lodi. "It's like a nightmare. This sort of thing happens to others, not you. Your own grandson."

Purdy, who often worked as a welder and used the alias Eddie Purdy West, had apparently worked at a Stockton machine shop. Numeri Tech President Dave Tankersley said he hired a man he knew as Eddie West last January to "sit there and drill holes." He worked there for about a month.

"He was quiet. He always acted like he was sort of mad. You'd tell him what to do — give him a job — he never smiled," Tankersley said.

"In fact, I thought he was mad half the time."

A 6-year-old boy was in serious condition and 17 pupils and a teacher were in stable condition. The others were treated at hospitals or at the scene and were released.

The 40-year-old neighborhood, near the University of the Pacific, is home to many retired couples who raised their families there. But the culture has been changing with the influx of Southeast Asian refugees.

Southeast Asian pupils make up about 71 percent of the school's enrollment of 986.

About 100,000 Southeast Asians have immigrated to California's 300-mile long Central Valley because of its farming and fishing industries and because of a climate similar to that of their native countries.

raises by two-thirds.

This prompted many Compensation Board members to justify the 12 percent figure as catch-up salary. One member proposed a raise as high as 30 percent to send a strong message to supervisors about traditional action on salary proposals.

The raises proposed by the Compensation Board would put salaries at:

- $43,075 for Sheriff Robert Carpenter — an increase from his current salary of $38,460.
- $43,922 for County Attorney Patrick J. White — an increase of $4,706 from his current salary of $39,216.
- $33,765 for County Recorder John O'Neill, Treasurer Cletus

Redlinger and Auditor Thomas Slockett — an increase of $3,618 from their current salaries of $30,147.

- $23,053 for Supervisors Robert Burns, Charles Duffy, Patricia Meade, Dick Meyers and Betty Ockenfels — an increase of $2,470 from their current salaries of $20,583.

Attorney White and Sheriff Carpenter both said their salaries are much less than what their counterparts make in other law enforcement agencies or private practices.

The Board of Supervisors can accept or reduce the recommended pay raises as they see fit when they hammer out a budget for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Reversal of Roe v. Wade may leave choice to states

By Kathleen Brill
The Daily Iowan

The U.S. Supreme Court's plans to examine a Missouri abortion case could result in a reversal of the 1973 decision that legalized abortion.

A reversal of this decision could allow each state to determine restrictions applying to abortion or ban abortion altogether.

The Roe v. Wade decision was based on the 14th Amendment concerning the protection of liberty and privacy.

The 14th Amendment was "broad enough to encompass a woman's decision whether or not to terminate her pregnancy. The detriment that the State would impose upon the pregnant woman by denying this choice altogether is apparent," wrote Supreme Court Justice Harry Blackmun, a medical law specialist.

Iowa City physician Deborah Turner said this question is still hotly debated in the medical field.

"If you pick 100 people in the field and ask them when they say life begins, you'll get everything from 'life begins at conception' to 'life begins at birth,'" she said.

But Jackie Fordice, director of the anti-abortion group Defenders For Life, disagreed with this reasoning.

Her group believes that medical evidence supports the theory that a fetus is "a child before it's born and it's a child after it's born — the only difference is its environment," Fordice said.

Abortion

she said.

"We are trying to plan a mass protest when Operation comes to town," deProse said. "We believe Iowa City to be a very pro-choice community."

DeProse said she was concerned about the presence of a governmental anti-abortion trend "with George Bush continuing the Reagan commitment to making abortion illegal, (the) Supreme Court announced it will hear a case out of Missouri that could very possibly overturn Roe v. Wade," she said.

If the Supreme Court decides to reverse this decision, states will have the power to decide when, or if, abortion should be legal, deProse said.

Sand's professional involvement with abortions makes it difficult for her to maintain a political role in the pro-choice movement, she said. Those in the public who have silently agreed with Roe v. Wade will need to become political activists, she said.

"We've been dealing with this for 16 years, but we need help. We can't be political spokespeople," Sand said.

But Sand said she doesn't advocate abortions for those who believe abortion is morally wrong. Clients who go to the clinic seeking advice are given facts about abortion but are not told to have an abortion, she said.

Emma Goldman Clinic provides full gynecological services for women, including pregnancy testing, pre-natal referrals and birth control educational work, she said.

"To help the person come to a decision is my job, not to make the decision for them," Sand said.

Changes in medical technology and the increase of trained doctors ended the need for women to perform "coat hanger" abortions, she said. "The benefits to public health and to women's health have been tremendous since legalized abortion," Sand said.

Before doctors could legally perform abortions, women often died or became infertile from abortions conducted in unsanitary or unskilled settings, Sand said.

"It's the responsibility of people who remember those times to tell those stories," Sand said.

hospital Tuesday. "Put down your weapons — I do not want my brother to be remembered with the riots."

Black leaders warned Mayor Xavier Suarez before the commission meeting that their community would no longer accept empty promises and business as usual.

"The word is out that there will be more disturbance," said the Rev. William Washington. "Now we've got to act and act quick."

City commissioners agreed Wednesday to create an independent panel to investigate the death of Clement Lloyd, shot in the head Monday night as he and a friend sped through Overtown.

After discussions, the commissioners approved a suggestion by Miller Dawkins, the lone black on the five-member commission, who wanted a board consisting of five policemen and five Overtown residents, with the mayor as chairman.

Dawkins acknowledged the board will not satisfy the young people throwing rocks and bottles, and he appealed to them for time.

"I'd like to tell them to give us a chance to work this out and to work on all our other ills, such as poor housing, poor education, joblessness," he said. "And they have to work with us instead of creating other problems like they are doing now." Some 700 police officers in riot gear arrested an estimated 325 people overnight, most for looting. Most of those arrested for alleged looting were released on $250 bail. Charges ranged from trespassing to armed robbery, and many suspects were unable to make bond, according to jail officials.

No looting damage estimates were available.

The FBI, the State Attorney's Office and the police internal review board are also investigating the police shooting. William Lozano, 29, the Colombian-born police officer who shot the motorcyclist, was relieved of duty with pay pending the investigation.

City workers entered the riot-torn neighborhoods Wednesday to begin cleaning the streets. Most schools that closed Tuesday reopened, although administrators said they expected to send teachers and students home early.

The violence began Monday night in Overtown as crowds threw rocks and bottles, fired rifles and set fires. On Tuesday violence broke out when a white man in a luxury car fired into a crowd of blacks in Overtown, wounding one man.

By nightfall burning and looting had spread to adjacent Liberty City, site of a 1980 race riot.

about right for 24,000 students.

But the combined enrollment rates of undergraduate, graduate and professional programs at the UI totaled 29,230 during the 1988 fall semester, more than the UI faculty can adequately instruct, Hubbard said.

"There's 5,000 more students here — something has to give," he said. "You can't do it with mirrors."

The UI's fiscal concerns may be alleviated by Branstad's recent announcement that revenues for the current fiscal year are above the predicted amount. Branstad said the state might have money to spend for "special non-recurrent things," Hubbard said.

Branstad proposed building a new facility for the UI College of Business, which could open up Phillips Hall for more liberal arts-oriented activity, Hubbard said.

With the UI in such an economic bind, Hubbard often finds himself caught "between a rock and a hard place," he said.

"I don't want tuition to go up, I don't want a cheap inferior education," he said. "I want a cheap, superior education."

"And that will depend on the state," he said.

Guerrillas ambush government panel

BOGOTA, Colombia — Suspected leftist guerrillas armed with sticks of dynamite and automatic weapons ambushed a judicial commission Wednesday, killing two judges and 11 other people, the army said. Two police officers were wounded in the attack near Barrancabermeja, a port city on the Magdalena River for oil shipments, military authorities said. The panel was investigating the October 1987 disappearance of 17 merchants along with more than $235,000 in goods. The commission consisted of the judges, 35-year-old Mariela Morales and 40-year-old Pablo Beltran; two secretaries, nine judicial police officers and two drivers. The two survivors arrived in Barrancabermeja, Colombia's largest eastern city.

African President suffers stroke

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — President P.W. Botha suffered a stroke at home Wednesday but was "clear-minded" and might appoint a Cabinet member as acting president, his office said. Botha, who turned 73 on Jan. 12, was in stable condition at No. 2 Military Hospital in the Cape Town suburb of Wynberg after suffering a mild stroke, his office said. No further details were released. Botha's health generally has been excellent since he took charge of South Africa's white-run government as prime minister in 1978. Under a new constitution, he became president in 1984. Botha was hospitalized shortly after 8 a.m., according to the South African Broadcasting Corp. Botha's office said he was "quite clear-minded" and was likely to appoint one of his Cabinet ministers as acting president on Thursday.

Israeli voice concern about army violence

JERUSALEM — Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin walked out of a stormy Parliament debate Wednesday after opposition members heckled him about increased bloodshed in the occupied territories and demanded he resign. Eight small parties tried to bring down the government with a series of no-confidence motions, but legislators of the broad national unity government voted them down. The opposition reflected growing unease many Israelis feel about the army's handling of the Palestinian uprising in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip. There is frustration because the army has not been able to quell the 13-month revolt, which does not appear to be flagging.

Candidates chosen to replace premier

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — A Croatian and a Serbian were chosen Wednesday as the candidates to replace Premier Branko Mikulic, whose government resigned Dec. 30 because it could not end the economic crisis. Ante Markovic, member of Croatia's collective presidency, and Borisav Jovic, speaker of Serbia's parliament, were named by the Socialist Alliance, a Communist-led mass organization. Mikulic was the first premier to resign since the Communist Party gained control at the end of World War II. Economic problems he was unable to solve include high unemployment, an annual inflation rate of 250 percent and a $21 billion foreign debt.

NASA chooses date for next shuttle flight

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Engineers have resolved tile and engine problems of the last space shuttle flight, and Feb. 23 looks like a firm date for launching Discovery, the director of the Kennedy Space Center said Wednesday. "We feel we have a good understanding of those problems and can move ahead," Forrest McCartney told reporters. Atlantis returned from a secret military mission last month with severe damage to about 200 of 28,000 tiles that protect it from re-entry heat. And during post-flight inspection, two small cracks were found in a bearing unit in a high-pressure engine turbopump.

Clashes in Nicaragua killed at least 17

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Government troops clashed with rebels at least 20 times Jan. 9-16, and at least 17 people were killed, military sources said Wednesday. The fighting was in the southwestern provinces of Boaco, Chontales and Rio San Juan. The area has been the focus of activity by the U.S.-backed rebels, known as Contras, since the rebels and the leftist Sandinista government signed a tentative cease-fire agreement last March. At least 13 rebels and four soldiers were killed and three soldiers were wounded, the sources said, speaking on condition of anonymity.

Eastern-bloc nations discuss human rights

VIENNA, Austria — East-bloc foreign ministers at a forum on human rights Wednesday defended the Berlin Wall, Czechoslovakia's crackdown on dissent and Romania's suggestion it may not abide by the 35-nation accord. Polish and Hungarian officials promised greater freedom in their nations, but envoys of other countries in the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact stuck to positions that long have divided East and West. The human rights agreement calls for greater freedom of religion, travel and emigration for East-bloc citizens. It also mandates new arms control talks, beginning March 9, between NATO and the Warsaw Pact to reduce the number of troops and tanks in Europe. Foreign ministers of the nations involved in the accord are in Vienna for the concluding session of the conference, which began in 1986.

West Germany denies Libyan plant cover-up

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Opposition lawmakers shouted their disapproval in a raucous parliamentary session Wednesday in which the government again altered its position on when it knew about a suspected chemical weapons plant in Libya. The latest switch came as the opposition accused the government of trying to cover up alleged involvement by West German companies in the Libyan project. At least three companies are under criminal investigation — two involving the plant and one involving Libya's air force.

Wolfgang Schaeuble, Chancellor Helmut Kohl's chief of staff, delivered a long address in Parliament defending the government's actions. Schaeuble said the U.S. Embassy in Bonn informed West German officials May 18 about possible German involvement in the Libyan plant. The United States alleges the plant was intended to produce chemical weapons. Libya says it will produce pharmaceuticals. The May 18 date is five months earlier than what the government acknowledged Monday and six months earlier than the Nov. 15 date West German leaders mentioned three weeks ago.

Opposition lawmakers shouted and hooted during Schaeuble's speech, interrupting him several times. When the scandal first broke three weeks ago, West German leaders angrily denied U.S. allegations German firms were involved in the plant. They also denied having any knowledge the complex may be intended for production of chemical weapons.

Norbert Gansel, a lawmaker with the opposition Social Democrats, spoke after Schaeuble and criticized the government's handling of the growing scandal. "The question is, what you knew and what you did about it," Gansel said, as Kohl sat grimly next to the speaker's podium.

He added, "You, Herr Chancellor, are politically and personally responsible that the German and international public were deceived for a long time."

Officials have said the government did not immediately say what it knew because that would have jeopardized West German investigations.

November trade reports show deficit grew to $12.5 billion

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. trade deficit ballooned to $12.5 billion in November, the biggest imbalance in five months, the government said Wednesday in a report many private economists and even the Reagan administration viewed as a disappointing indication of how deep the country's trade problems are.

The Commerce Department said the trade gap was 22 percent larger than October's $10.3 billion deficit, reflecting a surge in imports, particularly for business capital goods, and a slight drop in exports.

"We have a serious competitiveness problem in this country," said Lawrence Chimerine, head of the WFA Group, an economic consulting firm in Bala Cynwyd, Pa.

"There's a limit to how much you can improve by cutting costs and driving the dollar lower."

At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the November performance was of concern, but "we trust this is an aberration and does not change the overall trend."

Even with the November deterioration, the trade deficit for the first 11 months of 1988 was running at an annual rate of $137.3 billion, almost 20 percent below the all-time imbalance of $170.3 billion set in 1987.

Departing Commerce Secretary C. William Verity, a top administration trade expert, said the November report was disappointing evidence that the country's trade problems are far from being solved.

Gorbachev outlines cuts for military

MOSCOW (AP) — President Mikhail Gorbachev said Wednesday that his program to cut the armed forces by 500,000 men will bring a reduction of 240,000 Soviet soldiers in the European theater and 200,000 in Asia in the next two years.

Gorbachev said the number of Soviet soldiers, sailors and airmen will be cut by 12 percent, the military budget trimmed by 14.2 percent and the production of arms and military supplies slashed by 19.5 percent.

He said 10,000 tanks will be eliminated in Europe, of which "5,000 will be physically liquidated, and the others transformed into towing vehicles for civilian needs or into training simulators."

Gorbachev accused some people in the West of disparaging the unilateral Soviet move by claiming that only obsolete armored vehicles would be destroyed.

"Here's the way it is: We will withdraw 5,000 of the most modern tanks from our military groups," the Soviet leader said.

It was his most detailed explanation yet of the implications of his Dec. 7 announcement in a United Nations speech that the Soviet Union will cut its armed forces by 500,000 men over the next two years.

Gorbachev gave the details in a meeting with former U.S. Secretary of State Henry Kissinger, former President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France, former Japanese Prime Minister Yasuhiro Nakasone and other visiting dignitaries.

"Of the 500,000 men, by which the army and fleet will be reduced in two years, 240,000 will come from the European part of the country, 200,000 in the east and 60,000 in the south," Gorbachev said.

Gorbachev also said the second phase of the withdrawal of Soviet military units from Mongolia, a Moscow ally, will begin soon, and that they will be cut by 75 percent. A Soviet air force group stationed in Mongolia will be liquidated, he said.

Governor says no more delays for Bundy

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Florida will not bargain with convicted killer Theodore Bundy to delay his scheduled execution in exchange for details of several unsolved murders in other states, Gov. Bob Martinez said Wednesday.

An attorney and adviser for Bundy, scheduled to be executed Tuesday, asked for a reprieve of up to three years so Bundy could talk to law officers. Officials from Washington state, Utah and the FBI have asked to interview Bundy but have not sought any delay. Before his capture in Florida, Bundy was on the FBI's most-wanted list as a suspect in as many as 36 sex-related murders or disappearances of young women in the Northwest.

The governor, who signed Bundy's death warrant Tuesday shortly after the Supreme Court refused to hear his appeal in the 1978 murder of a 12-year-old Lake City, Fla., girl, said Bundy was once again trying to foil justice.

"We're not going to have the system manipulated," said Martinez. "One of the things to be made clear here to law enforcement, which I think they realize more than anyone else what Ted Bundy has done, is you don't negotiate with a murderer. You don't negotiate with a killer."

He promised to make Bundy available to any law agency in the days remaining before his execution.

Bundy's civil attorney, Diana Weiner of Sarasota, Fla., told the governor's death-penalty lawyer, Andrea Smith Hillyer, that Bundy was committed to revealing all he knew about unsolved murders. Weiner didn't specify about which cases he had information.

"He has been in jail for 11 years. He certainly could have come clean in other occasions, but he has used the court. Now all of a sudden, he wants to tell the truth," said Martinez.

Bundy always has insisted that he is innocent of any murder.

Bundy, 42, also is under death sentences for fatally bludgeoning two Florida State University sorority sisters.

Bundy's Washington attorney, James Coleman, said he's not involved in any attempt to delay the execution by talking about other cases but was planning an appeal on the question of Bundy's sanity.

U.S.-PLO dialogue continues despite Arafat's taped threat

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State Department said Wednesday it has obtained a tape recording of Yasser Arafat, the Palestine Liberation Organization chairman, threatening to pump "10 bullets in the chest" of anyone trying to stifle the Palestinian uprising on the Israeli-held West Bank and in Gaza.

The department noted that Arafat has since denied the threat, and there was no indication the United States was reconsidering its decision to talk with the PLO.

But officials said the United States has made clear to Arafat that it considers the comment inconsistent with his commitment to renounce terrorism.

And U.S. sources speaking on condition of anonymity said that President Ronald Reagan told Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak in a letter of his concern over the remarks. Reagan said Egypt and the United States must make sure Arafat does not deviate from his pledge to refrain from terrorism and to recognize Israel's right to exist, said the sources.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said the department had received a tape recording of comments Arafat made last week in which he said, "Whoever thinks of stopping the Intifada before it achieves its goals, I will give him 10 bullets in the chest." Intifada is the Arabic word for the 13-month uprising by Palestinians against Israel's occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The reported threat was believed to be directed at Elias Freij, the mayor of the West Bank town of Bethlehem who is considered a moderate Palestinian.

6 Kuwaiti ships lose U.S. flag

WASHINGTON (AP) — Kuwait has decided to withdraw six oil tankers from U.S. registration, "deflagging" the vessels and ending their right to American naval protection, administration sources said Wednesday.

The sources, who asked not to be named, said the Kuwaitis also had agreed after extensive negotiation that the five remaining ships that will still fly the Stars and Stripes will have one year to comply with a law requiring they sail only with all-American crews.

"Those five ships are going to remain under the U.S. flag indefinitely and will have to be fully manned by U.S. crews, providing approximately 250 additional jobs for American seamen," said one defense source.

The sources said that in order to provide the Kuwaitis a year to come into compliance with ship-manning laws, the Defense Department requested — and the Coast Guard approved on Tuesday — a special "National Defense Waiver" good through Feb. 11, 1990.

The Kuwaitis had received such a one-year waiver last year when they first decided to reflag tankers to obtain American military protection inside the Persian Gulf. The waiver lets the Kuwaitis sail the vessels with only two Americans on board — the ship's master and the ship's radio officer.

The officials insisted Wednesday the issue of how many Kuwaiti ships would remain under the U.S. flag had turned solely on the question of compliance with the manning laws.

"We told them we had protected their ships; we weren't leaving the gulf; we'd like to see the ships stay under our flag, but we expected them to comply with the manning law," said one administration official.

Demonstrators honor death of students, police stand by PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — About 5,000 people filled Wenceslas Square again Wednesday chanting "Freedom!" "Truth!" and "Human rights!" but police did not disperse the crowd as they had for the past three days.

The demonstrators chanted the name of dissident playwright Václav Havel and others jailed for taking part in demonstrations that began Sunday in memory of Jan Palach.

The 20-year-old student burned himself alive Jan. 16, 1969, to protest the Soviet-led invasion of the previous August that ended the liberal "Prague Spring" reforms of Alexander Dubcek, then Communist Party leader.

Police used water cannons, tear gas, dogs and truncheons on crowds in the historic central square Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, drawing severe criticism from Secretary of State George Shultz and other Western leaders.

On Wednesday, riot police kept watch on the demonstrators but did not try to disperse them.

Demonstrators began assembling in the square about 5 p.m., attracting thousands of onlookers homeward bound from work.

Chants of "Gorbachev!" "Dubcek!" "Don't lie!" and "Free Havel!" rose from the crowd.

Havel was one of 14 activists detained Monday when they appeared at the square for the second day in a row to honor Palach by laying flowers at the statue of King Wenceslas, where Palach set himself afire.

Many in the crowd shouted "There's a handful of us here!" to mock official claims that the demonstrations involved only a few anti-communist provocateurs.

Some urged bystanders to join the demonstration and called out: "Come back tomorrow!"

About 2,000 people remained after an hour, clustered around the statue of the king. They left after singing the national anthem, and by 7 p.m. police had cordoned off the statue to discourage further demonstrations.

Earlier Wednesday, the official news agency CTK said the defense and security committees of Parliament heard a report from Interior Minister Frantisek Kincl "on measures aimed at preserving order in the last days, especially in the capital."

Solidarity legalization likely

WARSAW, Poland (AP) — A Communist Party leader said Wednesday the way is clear to make the Solidarity trade union legal again, and the Politburo met behind closed doors to iron out details after a bitter internal fight.

The text of the Politburo's final position paper was not released, but chief party ideologist Marian Orzechowski told state radio it was a "great turning point."

He indicated that it specifically names Solidarity and opens the way to a process for legalizing the banned union.

"It opens the road to restoration of trade union pluralism, including Solidarity, formulating at the same time a number of conditions which have to be fulfilled so the road is not too bumpy," Orzechowski said.

"We don't know the reaction of the other side yet. But I think that the most important thing has been said. The 'magic word' was used in the document. . . . The basic barrier which has been blocking all practical steps have been overcome."

He added, "Generally, it is a great turning point."

Solidarity leader Lech Walesa had insisted on a clear party statement of its willingness to recognize his union before he would enter talks with the government on Poland's future.

State Department spokesman Charles Redman said in Washington that the Polish leadership's

Wojciech Jaruzelski

"stated willingness to relegalize the Solidarity trade union under certain conditions is a step forward. . . . Relegalization would be a major achievement on the road to Poland's reform and recovery. We would welcome it."

Solidarity, the Soviet bloc's first independent union federation, was outlawed after martial law was imposed in 1981.

Prime Minister Mieczyslaw Rakowicz had asked the 230-member Central Committee for a green light to offer to restore the union's legal status for a two-year trial period on condition it help the government in its economic and political reforms.

Orzechowski said the conditions were necessary.

"They are not made-up. They stem from our experiences and from the foreseen potential effects of the developing events," he said, urging the opposition to show a "sense of responsibility."

At least one opposition figure said the chances for national agreement improved after the 17-hour debate by the party Central Committee. He said it seemed talks could begin soon on Solidarity's future.

Chaired by Gen. Wojciech Jaruzelski, who is the first secretary, the Politburo met Wednesday to consider its actions after the meeting, the state-run PAP news service said.

A news conference on the plenum by a party official was postponed until Thursday. The resolution on trade union and political freedoms will be published Friday, PAP said.

Walesa also planned a news conference Thursday and was withholding comment until then.

A draft of the original resolution on trade union freedoms obtained by Western news agencies stated that at proposed talks with the opposition, "the organizational forms of expanded national reconciliation should be determined."

"There should also be agreed conditions, means and a schedule of introducing trade union pluralism, and opening the road for creation of new trade unions, including Solidarity."

Zaire re-expels exiled Amin

KINSHASA, Zaire (AP) — Zaire on Wednesday expelled exiled Ugandan dictator Idi Amin to Saudi Arabia, a French news agency reported.

Zaire first expelled Amin last week, but he ended up back in Kinshasa after Saudi officials reportedly refused to let him board a plane to the kingdom.

Agence France-Presse quoted unidentified sources Wednesday as saying that this time a "great friend" of Zaire President Mobutu Sese Seko persuaded Saudi officials to let Amin return. The report could not immediately be confirmed.

The former Ugandan leader has lived in Saudi Arabia since his overthrow in 1979.

Amin, 61, first arrived in Zaire Jan. 3 on a false passport. He was expelled on Thursday to Dakar, Senegal. From there, he was expected to be returned to Saudi Arabia, but ended up on a flight back to Zaire.

Arab diplomats in Saudi Arabia have told The Associated Press that Amin had abused his hospitality in the kingdom and would not be allowed to return. Saudi Arabia granted him political asylum in 1980.

Amnesty International, a London-based human rights organization, estimates that between 50,000 and 300,000 Ugandans disappeared during Amin's rule.

Since his overthrow, Amin has sought support for a return to rule in Uganda.

Cross will leave 49ers after Bowl

MIAMI (AP) — Center Randy Cross, whose 13-year career spanned the San Francisco 49ers' futility in the 1970s and their championships in the '80s, will retire Sunday after his third Super Bowl.

Cross' announcement Wednesday surprised his teammates but left the oldest 49er, at age 34, elated at the circumstances surrounding a decision he made last October.

"I can think of no better way to end a career," Cross said. "This is the way you read about it, it's the way you dream about ending your career."

Cross, a three-time Pro Bowl selection, is considered the 49ers' most articulate player and has been pursuing a career in sports broadcasting for several years.

He told Coach Bill Walsh of his decision on the plane from San Francisco last Sunday, but didn't disclose his secret to his teammates before taking the podium in front of hundreds of reporters at the team's hotel.

"I always told myself I wanted to play as long as I was happy with the way I was playing," he said.

Shifted permanently from guard to center in 1987, he has provided leadership in a role that Joe Montana describes as "quarterback of the offensive line." The combined NFL experience of the 49ers' other four starting offensive linemen — tackles Steve Wallace and Harris Barton and guards Jesse Sapolu and Guy McIntyre — matches his 13 years of seniority.

Randy Cross

Walsh was unsuccessful in an attempt to get Cross to anchor the line for one last year.

"In today's football, the offensive line calls are so continuous, so vital, so important to success," Walsh said.

Graf advances to third round of $2.4 million Australian Open MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Defending champion Steffi Graf overwhelmed Canadian Rene Simpson 6-0, 6-0 in just 51 minutes Wednesday to storm into the third round of the $2.4 million Australian Open tennis championships.

The West German teen-ager, chasing her fifth straight Grand Slam title, hit a succession of forehand winners to crush a player ranked 95th in the world.

Her great rival, Gabriela Sabatini of Argentina, struggled to defeat 16-year-old Spaniard Conchita Martinez in her second-round match.

Sabatini, seeded third, won 3-6, 6-1, 6-2 after having difficulty coping with Martinez's big forehands early in the match.

Both players hit the ball with tremendous pace and used considerable top-spin, but Sabatini maintained her composure better.

"I didn't use my head very much in the first set and I was surprised how well she was playing," Sabatini said. "After that I hit the ball harder and started trying to move her."

"It's good to have a tough match, but I never thought I was going to lose it. When I concentrated and hit the ball, I didn't have any problems."

Graf dropped only 26 points in her match, and only six in the first set.

Graf could become the first player in history to win successive Grand Slams, but said she was ignoring that possibility.

"I'm not talking about that. It will be awfully difficult and is out of my mind totally," she said.

"I'll try my best. I'm in good shape, but it's a long season and anything can happen."

Graf and Sabatini led four other seeded women — No. 6 Zina Garrison of the United States, No. 8 Claudia Kohde-Kilsch of West Germany, No. 13 Raffaella Reggi of Italy and No. 16 Nicole Provis of Australia — into the third round.

U.S. Open semifinalist Garrison dropped the second set against 18-year-old Belgian Sandra Wasserman, and fought back from a 2-4 deficit in the deciding set to triumph 7-6 (7-3), 4-6, 6-4.

"I was really nervous," Garrison said. "I'm going to have to work a lot on my serve."

The see-saw contest featured 16 breaks of serve, eight by each player.

Kohde-Kilsch recovered from a slow start to beat Christine Damas of France 2-6, 6-1, 6-1; Reggi downed West German Christina Singer 6-4, 6-4 and Provis beat Canadian Jill Hetherington 6-4, 6-3.

Only two seeded men were in action during the day session Wednesday.

American Aaron Krickstein, the 10th seed, ousted West German Udo Riglewski 7-5, 2-6, 6-4, 6-1 and 16th-seeded Amos Mansdorf of Israel beat American qualifier Rick Leach 6-7 (4-7), 6-2, 6-4, 7-6 (7-4) in first-round matches.

Krickstein, plagued by injuries over the past few years, won a tournament for the first time in five years in Sydney last week and said he felt fresh.

"I'm healthy and ready to compete with the top guys in the world," he said.

Krickstein said he wasn't considering winning the tournament at this stage.

"I'm capable of knocking out one or two top guys playing at my best, but it's a big step to win a Grand Slam event," he said.

Mansdorf was hampered by tendonitis in his left knee while he wore down Leach, and wasn't happy with his form.

"I don't think I played well enough today to go a long way (in the tournament)," he said.

Graf's quickfire victory over Simpson took her into the last 32 of the women's singles.

"It was a lot of fun," she said after the rout.

King erupts during Tyson case

NEW YORK (AP) — Promoter Don King culminated a four-hour deposition Wednesday by testifying that Bill Cayton was "Satan" and then erupted into an expletive-filled tirade at Mike Tyson's manager.

Testifying in the heavyweight champion's lawsuit against Cayton and the widow of Jimmy Jacobs, Tyson's deceased co-manager, King lost control of himself at the end of the day.

"Mr. Cayton is an inveterate liar," King testified while Cayton sat across the table. "He's a tyrant, a despot, a power zealot. ... He's an egotistical maniac. Nobody likes Bill Cayton. He's never been liked by anybody. ... Everybody loved Jim. Everybody hates you. You're the most hated man in boxing. ... No sooner than Jim died, he went completely beserk. I said he's Satan in disguise. The disguise is gone. He's just Satan."

King, an advisor to Tyson who is attempting to sign the heavyweight champion to an exclusive promotional contract, fulfilled his flamboyant reputation during the deposition, conducted by Thomas Puccio, Cayton's lawyer.

After the testimony, Cayton called

King a "despicable liar," and King started screaming, mixing expletives with his charges.

"It's an act," said Cayton, who seemed a bit shaken. "He's 100 percent bluff and bluster."

King also accused Puccio of interpreting the New York State boxer-manager contract as making Tyson "slave and chattel." At one point, King even did imitations of Cayton.

King was called to testify by Cayton, who has been sued by Tyson for the second time in six months. Tyson is trying to break his contract with Cayton, which expires in February, 1992.

Tar Heels shock No. 1 Duke, 91-71

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Scott Williams sparked North Carolina's inside game, scoring 22 points to lead the 13th-ranked Tar Heels to a stunning 91-71 upset of top-ranked Duke in an Atlantic Coast Conference game Wednesday night.

Duke suffered its first loss of the season after 13 victories and fell to 3-1 in the ACC.

The Tar Heels, who dropped a 23-point decision at Virginia last Sunday, clogged the inside and shut down Duke's offense. With Danny Ferry nursing a sore back, the Blue Devils didn't fare much better from the perimeter, either.

North Carolina, 15-3 and 2-1 in the ACC, pounded the boards on both ends to take charge. Of their 14 baskets in the second half, only one was a jumper from beyond 10 feet.

King Rice, who took over the point guard position for the injured J. J. Moore, scored 14 points. J.R. Reid, starting for the first time this season, had 13 points for the Tar Heels. Kevin Madden had 10 points.

Brickey, who went out briefly with a shoulder injury, led Duke with 20 points. Henderson added 16 and Ferry, playing in obvious pain throughout the game, had 14.

Washington agrees to new contract

NEW YORK (AP) — Claudell Washington is saying goodbye to the New York Yankees and hello to the California Angels. Alvin Davis, meanwhile, is getting the multimillion-dollar contract he wanted from the Seattle Mariners.

Washington, frustrated by the New York Yankees' failure to offer a three-year deal, agreed Tuesday to a three-year contract with California for $2.625 million.

"Believe me, I didn't want to go," Washington said. "The Yankees more or less forced me out of town. If I had my choice, I would have remained a Yankee."

Washington batted .308 last season, third-best on the Yankees behind Don Mattingly and Dave Winfield. He had 11 homers, 64 runs batted in and 15 stolen bases.

pressure on the Hawkeyes' next two games.

"I think so, but every away game has a certain amount of pressure," Marble said. "A lot of good teams are going to lose on the road to teams they don't expect to, so it's very important to concentrate on each and every game."

Marble is on the verge of becoming the career scoring leader at Iowa. He goes into Thursday night's game at Ohio State with 1,735 points — 33 short of Greg Stokes' Iowa record.

If Marble scores his season average of 19.6 points, he will pass Stokes in Saturday's game at Purdue.

The Buckeyes, 12-4 and 2-2, are coming off a loss of their own but it wasn't exactly unexpected. Michigan, with a little help from a home-court advantage, blew Ohio State away 99-73 Monday night.

Still, Davis knows the game was at Michigan, and he knows all too well his team will be at Ohio State.

"They have a good blend of four starters back, new people plus a couple veterans off the bench, so I think you can see why they're in the top twenty in the country," Davis said.

Jay Burson is pacing the Buckeyes, scoring nearly 24 points per game. The rest of Ohio State's attack is well balanced, with center Perry Carter scoring 13.3, forward Jerry Francis, 12.4, and Tony White, 9.1.

Carter leads the team on the boards with 7.8 rebounds per game, and Grady Mateen, a 6-foot-11 senior center, has shown flashes of brilliance this year off the bench.

Davis would like to see some flashes from his team on defense.

"I don't think there's any question that (defense) is still a major area of concern, on the perimeter as well as inside," he said.

Davis added that Iowa's defensive weaknesses may cause him to play more zone, especially when Ed Horton is involved.

"When it involves Eddie Horton getting in foul trouble, that's one of my big concerns," he said. "I just can't afford to get him in any kind of foul trouble. But a lot depends on the opponent. I've really been pleased with the progress we've made on defense, yet there's still a lot of room for improvement."

Offensively, Marble leads Iowa in scoring at 19.6 per game, B.J. Armstrong is averaging 18.5, Horton, 17.5, and Ray Thompson, 12.2.

Track

so much a question as to who will score the most points as trying to get the most out of each event.

"There's potential to score in just about every area."

Sprinters' coach Jim Grant said that though it usually takes a while for runners to adjust to college-level competition, the first-year sprinters should be able to adjust easily.

"Usually it takes a while to mature," Grant said, "but I think these guys will come in right away and exhibit some of the maturity. They have started to do so in practice, and I think this will hold true in the meets as well."

Grant said sprinters Karen Layne, Bev Powell, Karen Chevalleau and Amy McReil will make strong contributions.

But the upperclassmen will make up the core of the team. Iowa returns 18 letterwinners, led by Jeanne Kruckeberg, who finished sixth in the mile at the NCAA indoor championships last year. Hassard also expects the 2-mile relay team of Kruckeberg, Kim Schneckloth, Rachelle Roberts and Tami Hoskins to contribute.

"There's four (upperclassmen) on the two-mile relay, so they form a very strong two-mile relay," Hassard said. "They're a national-caliber two-mile relay. They have a chance to qualify (for nationals) this year. They're all capable runners."

Though the Hawkeyes finished ninth at last year's Big Ten indoor meet and seventh outdoors, almost all their point-scorers return. Kruckeberg, Hoskins, Roberts and Schneckloth each scored points in

Melchione

"Everyone in the country recruited me except Iowa, so when I got the chance to come here it was like a dream come true."

"I've been very impressed with Joe Melchione, something that I probably never thought I was going to be," Gable said. "I didn't really hear many good things about him from an academic, from a lot of ways of his life."

"He's never given me a problem here — on the mat or off."

This season Melchione is currently ranked second in the nation at 134 pounds by The Amateur Wrestling News. Along the way, he has compiled a 18-3 record, including a last-second, 6-5 win over fellow all-American Jeff Gibbons of Iowa State Sunday in Ames.

Melchione also leads the team in falls with eight.

"I didn't wrestle that well,"

Melchione said of his match with Gibbons. "I think he was wrestling for the tie. I would never wrestle for a tie."

The co-captains for the Hawkeyes have distinctly different personalities. This becomes evident during Iowa practices. Melchione is easily heard, many times directing aspects of practice, while John Heffernan, another all-American senior who wrestles at 167 pounds, is quite reserved.

a challenge that encourages an all-out effort every day."

So, from defensive schemes to water rights, from blitz plans to concern for the homeless, Williams juggles his priorities. So far, he has done it successfully, if not always serenely. He got a tough indoctrination as a rookie councilman.

"I've had some cheap shots taken at me," he said. "Sometimes they can be brutal. It's an introduction to the sport, like we do to rookies in football. I've gone through the gauntlet in life. I look forward to the challenge."

Williams will stand for re-election with the rest of the nine-member a lot stronger, and working well together."

Lombardi expects freshman Laura Kriener and junior Janelle Marconi to lead the team in the throwing events. Indoor season is difficult for some throwers, because the javelin and discus cannot be thrown indoors.

"I've got a couple of kids who just have to grin and bear it," Lombardi said, "because they just don't throw it indoors."

"Indoor track is a developmental season for outdoor," Hassard said, "but we still like to see athletes do well at all events. There's definitely a relationship between success

'Syringe' offers shot of absurd

By Barbara Thompson
Special to The Daily Iowan

"Immortality made seductive and absurdly comical," is how George Singer describes his play, "Syringe," performed tonight in Theatre A of the UI Theatre Building at 8 p.m.

Singer, a member of the UI Playwrights Workshop, wrote the play. It is directed by Harriet Power, currently in her second year of the M.F.A. directing program.

The playwright said the play is sometimes loosely and sometimes not-so-loosely based on the life story of Claus von Bulow — Singer calls his character Moss von Buran. Singer claims that he wrote "Syringe" as an expression of amazement at how society makes a supposed murderer famous, falling into sort of a demented love with him. "Were Claus von Bulow found innocent," said Singer, "we probably wouldn't have been nearly so obsessed with him. Society as a whole seems to gravitate towards morally corrupt characters."

Director Power said it's a new and bizarre play, causing her to try different angles of performing scenes — she was still making changes two weeks before opening night. She said "Syringe" was difficult to direct because it's never been performed. But she adds that it was very fulfilling, since she knows it's her own work — work no one has seen before.

"Syringe" was also a challenge to the actors. It's meant to be a comedy, but more so in the play's events and performance than in specific lines of dialogue. Of course all the performers think the play's funny, but there is some apprehension among them over how the audience will react.

Speaking of her character, Elaine — the psychotic daughter of von Buran's wife — Margie Dube said, "I kind of wish I knew her — but I wouldn't want to spend a lot of time with her." Jacque Hinshaw simply says her character, Ruby — Moss von Buran's rude mistress — is "a dimwit with a purpose."

But both actresses agree "Syringe" reminds them of the "cheesiest National Enquirer tabloid."

Additional performances of "Syringe" are Friday and Saturday at 8 p.m. and Sunday at 3 p.m. Tickets are $2.

Hurt's melancholia burdens 'Tourist'

By Locke Peterseim
The Daily Iowan

Just what is William Hurt's problem? Why does he continue to mope up potentially decent films with his overloaded cerebral navel-watching? It could have something to do with the growing size of his skull. With each passing film, Hurt's forehead seems to widen — if this growth continues unchecked, he'll soon look like a Metalunan from "This Island Earth."

Hurt's skull dimensions aside, "The Accidental Tourist" feels like an uncomfortable dinner party you can't wait to leave. In a typecasting coup, Hurt is Macon Leary, a stiff, anti-social man still lost in grief a year after his son was brutally murdered. There's no doubt Hurt plays the role to perfection, and he can't be faulted for presenting Macon as a cold fish — that's the way the character is written in Anne Tyler's novel. But Macon's emotional isolation should have been the subject of the film, rather than setting the tone.

Hurt is allowed by director Lawrence Kasdan to run — or should we say shuffle robotically — through "The Accidental Tourist." After a while, his pained "I've-got-something-stuck-in-my-teeth" expression becomes a caricature of Hurt's usual subdued range, and the film slows to a stop, frozen by his flat performance. Hurt makes Macon so completely unapproachable that despite the powerful emotions the characters experience, the film never engages the viewer. What we're left with in "The Accidental Tourist" is "The Unbearable Heaviness of Bill" — it's more than just Hurt bogging down his character, it's Hurt bogging down an entire film.

Ironically, the only point at which the audience became even remotely involved in the film was during a sight gag with a cute dog. But while they cawed and cooed over the canine antics, the audience was oblivious to the fact that Macon had just broken his leg. Hurt's performance may be brilliant, but he still loses the stage to a trained animal.

"The Accidental Tourist" takes the sounds of silence and amplifies them to a deafening noise. The audience's only recourse from the numbing roar of the DRAMA is to slip into a protective coma until the end credits roll and the "all clear" signal is given. After all, Hurt's performance may be a stunning display of emotionless stoicism, but so is the Great Wall of China — and you wouldn't want to sit and stare at it for two hours.

Councilman Williams takes a day off

MIAMI (AP) — The weekly meeting of the Cincinnati city council was to convene with at least one prominent member missing. Freshman councilman Reggie Williams figures he has a good excuse, though: the Super Bowl.

The legislator is a linebacker and the Bengals' bid for the NFL championship is his top priority this week. So the business of city government had to get along without Councilman Williams for the time being.

"We're in budget hearings now," he said when asked what he would miss today. "It's a time when we are allocating funds to meet the needs of the citizens we serve. There are so many needs not being addressed. Creative alternatives need to be addressed."

At the moment, however, Williams must address Joe Montana, Jerry Rice, Roger Craig and the rest of the San Francisco offense. He is concerned that his football obligations suggest a lack of interest in his civic responsibilities.

"I get some flack whenever I have to miss a meeting," Williams said. "They are concerned by my absence and my sincerity. I'm not apologizing. I wish I could be at two places at the same time."

There was a time that he just about managed that difficult trick.

The council was considering a gun ordinance issue the same week the Bengals were preparing for an important conference game. Williams, thinking the success of the team might carry some clout, petitioned for a change in the meeting time so he could practice. The request was denied or, as the linebacker termed it, "shot down." The Bengals solved the problem for him.

"(Coach) Sam Wyche changed the practice time so I could go and vote on the issue," Williams said. "The team has helped Reggie Williams be a better councilman."

The linebacker is proud of his attendance record. Today's meeting will be only the fourth he's missed of 30 since he was appointed last June 22 to fill the remaining term of councilman Arn Bortz.

It was a casual conversation with Bortz at a meeting of the Cincinnati Visitors and Convention Bureau that led Williams into politics.

"He was serving his fifth straight term," Williams said. "We were coming off a disappointing 4-11

Hawks slip past Drake in final minutes, 71-65

By Mike Trikk
 The Daily Iowan

DES MOINES — They almost did it again.

The Drake Bulldogs came into Wednesday night's women's basketball matchup against fifth-ranked Iowa with a 19-3 edge in the series. Iowa had won the last two meetings and was a heavy favorite this time around, but the Drake mystique almost bit the Hawkeyes again.

Robin Christian hit two free throws with 37 seconds left to seal Iowa's 71-65 win in a raucous Drake Fieldhouse.

"It's like somebody has our number," Iowa Coach Vivian Stringer said. "Even though we have won the last two games (against Drake)

I haven't felt comfortable about them. I don't know what it is."

The score was tied 61-61 with 4 minutes and 46 seconds to play when Iowa went on a 10-1 run to ensure the win. Six of Iowa's final 10 points were free throws.

Drake's Jan Jensen hit a 3-pointer with :02 left to close the scoring. Jensen's basket was the Bulldogs' only field goal in the final four minutes.

"We gutted it out the last couple of minutes," Stringer said. "They are gutsy players and somehow they will find the way. You can look into their eyes and know they won't fold."

Drake led 37-33 at halftime, shooting 56 percent from the field before intermission. Drake hit five 3-pointers on the night.

"Drake had outstanding perimeter people," Stringer said. "They did what they had to do. They came prepared and they were relaxed."

Drake was in position for the upset with 2:07 remaining. The Bulldogs called a timeout, trailing 65-62. Following the timeout, the Bulldogs committed two straight turnovers, allowing the Hawkeyes to pull away.

"We were in position to win the Four Hawkeyes scored in double figures Wednesday night. Franthea Price and Shanda Berry paced the Hawkeyes with 15 apiece, helping Iowa up its record to 14-2. Drake's Jensen led all scorers with 25.

Hawkeyes head into last leg of road show

By Brent Woods
 The Daily Iowan

The grind is winding down, but Coach Tom Davis and the seventh-ranked Iowa Hawkeyes have two more very important acts to perform on their road show.

Both shows could stand some good reviews.

Iowa, 13-2 overall and 1-1 in the Big Ten, will face 16th-ranked Ohio State tonight at St. John Arena in Columbus, Ohio, at 7:05.

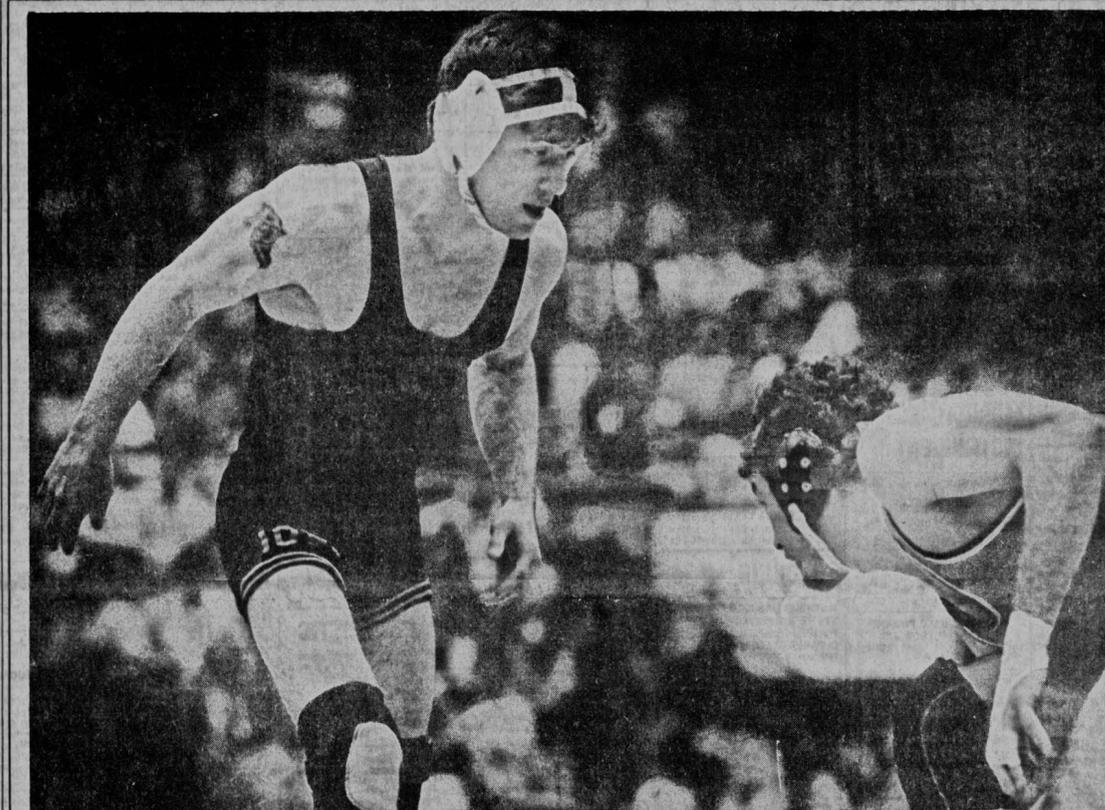

Men's Basketball

The Hawkeyes will then play the final game of a five-contest road swing against Purdue at 12:05 p.m. Saturday at Mackey Arena in West Lafayette, Ind.

"It's tough to play big games on the road, but everyone else in the conference is going to have to play the same number of road games," Center Les Jepsen said. "We're playing back-to-back road games now, but we'll have the advantage in February."

With Illinois, Indiana and Michigan combining for a 9-1 conference mark thus far, senior Roy Marble said Iowa's unexpected loss to Minnesota may put a bit more

Iowa means 'new era' for Melchiore

By Bryce Miller
 The Daily Iowan

Things have changed for Joe Melchiore.

As a freshman and sophomore, the Iowa wrestling co-captain wore the red uniforms of the Oklahoma Sooners. Following problems on and off the mat, the senior decided to transfer to Iowa.

"I had real bad grades at Oklahoma," Melchiore said. "I didn't go to class and I went out all the time. I got married before I came here and got my priorities in line and now I'm doing really well."

Along with the switch of campuses came some academic juggling. Melchiore changed from a communications major to general studies since coming to Iowa and his grade point has ballooned from ineligibility to a 3.0.

"Joe came here at the right time," Iowa Coach Dan Gable said. "He came during the new era. If he'd have come in maybe a couple of years before, when we had some of the shenanigans going on, he might have fell the wrong way."

In addition to the classroom, things have been falling the right way on the mat for the native of Blenheim, N.J.

Last season Melchiore was the national runner-up at 134 pounds, the loss coming to Oklahoma State's John Smith, 9-2. Smith went on to become a world champion with an Olympic gold medal at Seoul, but that is no consolation for Melchiore.

"If I would've wrestled him the way I was capable of wrestling him, I could be satisfied, but I didn't," Melchiore said.

That kind of determination is evidenced in his high school credentials. Melchiore captured three state titles at Highland High School in New Jersey, while earning a 125-3 record. Along with those marks, Melchiore set state records with 91 pins and 99 consecutive victories.

Still, Dan Gable never recruited Joe Melchiore.

"Since I was four, it was pounded into my head... Gable, Gable, Gable," Melchiore said. See Melchiore, Page 11

Hassard's young team also touts maturity

By Matthew Zlatnik
 The Daily Iowan

It's a young team, but that doesn't bother women's track Coach Jerry Hassard.

The Hawkeyes begin their indoor season Saturday at the Missouri Invitational in Columbia, Mo., and Hassard expects his 14 freshmen to blend in well with nine seniors, six juniors and five sophomores.

"We're taking a wait-and-see attitude on the freshmen this year," Hassard said. "It's a young and improving program, and I think you'll see it get stronger in the next few years."

Though six of the 12 sprinters are freshmen, Hassard said he expects the sprint events to hold up their end of the scoring.

"We'd like to see points come from everyone," Hassard said. "It's not
