Argentina: army quells civilian base attackers

21 killed, scores wounded

\textbf{Buenos Aires, Argentina (AP)—} Argentina's army tonight announced that its forces have subdued an uprising by a group of men who attacked a military base on the outskirts of Buenos Aires.

The army said that it had killed 21 people and wounded scores of others.

The attack took place at about 7:00 p.m. local time, when a group of men broke into the base and began shooting at soldiers and civilians inside.

The army said that it had surrounded the base and begun firing at the attackers.

The attackers used天真 weapons, including hand guns, and managed to get into the base before being killed.

The army said that it had been responding to a call from local officials who had reported a disturbance at the base.

The attack is the latest in a series of incidents in which the army has been called upon to act.

A previous incident took place last week in which several people were killed in a confrontation between the army and a group of peasants demanding water and food.

The army has been under pressure to act in response to these incidents, as the government is seeking to maintain order.

The army said that it would issue a full report on the incident in the coming days.
YAF complaints to UI Senate after protest groups clash

By Daniva Wallace

Although New Year's CSA-Off will be over by the time this is published, President Lawrence, Linda-Jo O'Callahan and Sen. Emily Moeller announced three days ago that dissent is not far away. The protest groups will be submitting its own resolutions to the UI Senate after the YAF-Chicago protest groups that will be held on Thursday night's Student Senate floor.

In the resolution, Student Senate will be requesting that the Senate consider stipulating the UI administration's decision to draft all resolutions through the UI administration. The resolution also states that YAF-Chicago Dec. 10's claim clearly stated that they will not be present at the appropriate time to discuss the resolution. Student Senate seems to be behind the same line of thinking.

Several students and local residents have been outspoken in their opposition to theUI administration's decision to draft all resolutions.

Legislature debates taxes, tuition

By Sharon Hernandez-Dowre

A bill worked to make tuition tax deductions in the state for the first time. The measure was approved by the House on Wednesday, January 25, 1990.

The legislative bill, HB 170, provides for a deduction of $1,500 for each dependent student attending an Iowa state university. The deduction would be for a maximum of four dependents per student.

The bill was introduced by Rep. John Kelleher, D-Lawrence, and passed by a vote of 67-1. The measure was approved by the Senate on Tuesday, January 24, 1990.

The Senate approved the bill by a vote of 42-0. The bill, which was sponsored by Sen. George B. Lakin, R-Iowa City, was signed into law by Gov. Robert Ray.

The measure will provide a tax break for students and their families. The bill also provides a tax credit for taxpayers who pay tuition on behalf of their children.

The tax credit will be $750 per dependent student and will be available to taxpayers who pay tuition on behalf of their children. The credit will be phased in over four years, beginning with a $100 credit in the first year.

The legislation is modeled after similar legislation in other states, including California and Florida, and is expected to benefit a large number of Iowa families.

Other provisions of the bill include:

- A $1,500 deduction for each dependent student attending an Iowa state university.
- A $750 tax credit for taxpayers who pay tuition on behalf of their children.
- A cap on the deduction and tax credit of $2,000 per dependent student.
- A phase-in of the tax credit over four years, beginning with a $100 credit in the first year.
- A limit of four dependents per student.

The bill was signed into law by Gov. Robert Ray on Wednesday, January 25, 1990.

"It's a surprise to learn of Iowa's preparation for its harsh winters," said a Senate transportation planning division official. "It's just not that many years since it was a surprise to learn that Iowa had no sensible plans for its harsh winters." The official, who did not want to be identified, said the study shows that Iowa is doing a lot to prepare for its harsh winters, but there are still a few areas where improvement is needed.

"Iowa has a lot of snow and road salt to deal with," said the official. "But it's not like we're the only ones with these problems. A lot of places are struggling with how to deal with the salt and the snow." The official said the study shows that Iowa is doing a lot to prepare for its harsh winters, but there are still a few areas where improvement is needed.

Crime boss freed on bail after shooting

NEW YORK (AP) — John Gotti, the reputed boss of the nation's most powerful crime family, was released on bail Monday after 76 years in prison, less than 24 hours after an army of police arrived at his home.

Gotti, 74, who is ailing and requires oxygen, was arrested for allegedly having an affair with a femaleMessmer and others involved in organizing the shooting of his cousin's boss.

Robert Mazzaglarre raised a general interest in the recent Gotti case and the need for the economy to come back on track and be able to understand the shooting of the union leader, who was a longtime broker in the insurance industry.

It was the specific goal and intention of the court to keep John Gotti, who has a long history of convictions, in prison for the remainder of his life and to ensure that he would face justice.

Gotti was convicted of racketeering, conspiracy to commit murder, and possession of a firearm by a convicted felon. He was sentenced to life in prison in 1990.

He will be required to report to prison in 2022 after serving a minimum of 15 years.

Police and other law enforcement officials said Gotti's arrest was a major success for the FBI and the Department of Justice.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal Reserve Board Chairman Alan Greenspan told Congress Tuesday that unless growth remains strong enough to outpace inflationary pressures, the Federal Reserve Board will need to raise interest rates.

The Fed's concern for the economy's health was evident in a statement released Tuesday morning.

The Fed said it would take a 'prudent course of action' by increasing interest rates to prevent inflationary pressures from building up.

Approval for the rate hike came after a meeting with Federal Reserve governors and the central bank's rate-setting committee.

一 Threat of martial law hastens Western flight from Afghanistan

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — The U.S. Embassy and Tuesday-left Afghanistan. Most of them, along with other Westerners, flew out ahead of the Soviet withdrawal deadline. The mission had 85 staff members.

Members of the Interior Ministry, a force of about 2,000 kilometers away, arrived in Kabul yesterday.

American and other Western embassies were warned Americans to prepare for danger.

President Najib announced plans to leave Afghanistan. Most of them, along with other Westerners, flew out ahead of the Soviet withdrawal deadline. The mission had 85 staff members.

The pullout began May 15, 1988, and had been going on for two years. It included 115,000 troops in the country when the withdrawal agreement was signed April 11.

The Soviet withdrawal agreement was signed in Geneva, Switzerland, in 1988, and the Soviet withdrawal was scheduled to be completed by May 15, 1989.

Only the Soviet airliner Aeroflot and the Afghan government airliner, still operate from Kabul. Aeroflot usually leaves on Monday, heading north 115,000 miles away.

Meanwhile, the use of factory capacity and a tight labor market continued to increase at the rate of 3 percent in March, the Federal Reserve Board has confirmed.

The unemployment rate, at 3 percent in December, has hit its lowest point since 1969.

The upturns were occurring moderately at the beginning of the year, and the expected tightening of supply constraints and labor market conditions are not as strong as is commonly believed.

However, the Fed said it must continue to raise interest rates to keep inflation in check.

Reagan leaves stronger, prouder nation for Bush administration

In January of 1981, Ronald Reagan entered the White House, promising a strongman approach that would "drain the swamp of Washington" and bring "honesty to government." The American people were fed up with the "gridlock" and the "corruption" of government, and they voted for change. Reagan promised to bring "a new morality" to government, and he delivered. He cut taxes, reduced the federal deficit, and strengthened the American military. Reagan's legacy is a stronger, prouder nation for Bush and future generations.

Reagan was known for his ability to attract attention and rally people behind his vision. He was a master at crafting messages that resonated with the American people. His speeches were filled with powerful language and imagery that helped him to connect with the American people and their dreams.

Ronald Reagan will be remembered as a leader who brought change to the nation. His legacy will continue to inspire future generations of leaders.

In the third set, Sukova served for the match at 5-4 when Navratilova hit a weak shot and then double-faulted.

"It was quite a swift recovery," Sukova said, "and I was surprised by her return at 4-3 in the third set."

Sukova, who knows well that it's going to be hard for anyone to beat her, said, "I just love being in a quarterfinal before a packed champion out of the Grand Slam tournament again Tuesday night.

Open, Tina Navratilova's Sports had a chance to win the championship, but Sukova had a good chance to win."

The Nielsen Co. said 6.7 million viewers, or 18% of the TV-owning public, watched the top-rated show, which featured Edberg and McEnroe. The show was also the third most-watched show in cable history.

Obrecht stars in ‘3-ring circus’

Music

Once and for all, Obrecht, who wants to hear no talk of retiring, addresses the rumors that this is his last year at the UI and that tonight’s recital is his last. “I plan to perform many more recitals. Let’s not talk about ‘last recitals’ anymore.”

Obrecht argues the National and Canadian press to give the impression that this is going to be his last year in the UI. “Some of his critics, even Obrecht himself, have added the additional pressure of drawing a line under his career once and for all. ‘No plans for retirement’ is the UI’s Maria Lou.”

He is hopeful to be able to incorporate younger artists into the current recital. He is ‘plan B’ and plans to perform for the first time with pianist Ursula Fuchs’ bass and percussion (1986) and Giovanni Bottesini’s “Elegy and Tarantella” has taught in the UI since 1950. The time he has been at the UI is hard to reconcile with the impression that this is his last year. “I plan to teach. If you don’t plan to teach, you’re likely to be in trouble.”

Obrecht also expresses a great desire for peace for his “Three Deadly Diseases: Beethoven, Schubert, Brahms” (1952) - Jacque Icet and his delinquency with women’s perspectives. (1950) - Jacque Icet and his delinquency with women’s perspectives.

Cliff will still be at the UI. James Klatis, director of the university’s Art Department, says, “This is his last year. He’s never had a chance to tell anyone about it.”

Obrecht’s cutsiey kitten twist on ‘Oliver!’ is classic in character.

Moller, Church Music and Theatre "Hill Street Blues" Marque doing the music are so close this evening that Oliver and Company, after all, is on the New York City bandstand. Beside, the new musical Oliver is now running in a good way. It’s the perfect time to get back into the swing of things. It’s a new work, with life and color, not only the newest, most interesting aspect of the show. Oliver and Company is the show to take in and enjoy, to ask about.

"The dancers just performed exquisitely — they're real troopers, and they know how to pull out all the stops when they have to." — Bill Wagner

Barbara Zide-Booth, chairman of the dance department at Adelphi University and a former director of the Jeffrey Ballet, Gerald Ora, a former member of the National Dance Theatre and now director of the new State University of New York, and the University of Maryland's Dance Department. These groups, who were all outstanding, to say the least.

When she saw Wagner's "Aurora," Zide-Booth and I were brought tears to my eyes. That kind of bold, visible choreography is rare by today, who said, "This kind of work will continue."

"For another participant to prove it like that and Bill well, it's wonderful, although the dancers were exhausted."
