Bush needs loophole to increase revenue
Political analysts doubt 'no new taxes' line

For many political analysts and even a few high-ranking governofficials, this may not be the end of Bush's tax troubles.

For many political analysts and even a few high-ranking government officials, this may not be the end of Bush's tax troubles. Many said Bush was not naive in ensuring that the word "tax" never appeared in the text of the proposed budget. Analysis

"What he's trying to do is to say, 'Look, I'm not going to raise taxes.' That's going to be tough to pull off, especially when you look at the deficit, the economy, and the need for infrastructure," said one analyst.

Huntley forges wordsmiths in UI class

By Brian Bird
The Daily Iowan

There are many wordsmiths in Iowa, and the University of Iowa is known for its program of creative writing and literature. However, in one UI class, a group of students is being trained as wordsmiths to become leaders and thinkers of the future.

The style of language in which Huntley is teaching is known as "macro" language. It is a way of composing that creates a "living" language, one that is not static but rather evolves over time. Huntley believes that language is a powerful tool for communication and that it is important to be able to use it effectively.

"It's important to be able to use language effectively," Huntley said. "Students who are able to communicate their ideas clearly and effectively will be able to succeed in their future endeavors."

New beginning

Last week, President George Bush did something that the American people thought of as an unexpected, yet because of Hawke's record on the subject, the event seemed surprisingly unexpected. He held a press conference.

Before the White House press corps, Bush candidly spoke of his personal feelings on the subject. He said, "I believe that every life is precious, and I believe that abortion is murder."

The White House press conference was held in the East Room, and was broadcast live on both Major TV and CNN.

The White House press corps were surprised by Bush's direct and personal statements, and many of them were moved to tears.

From the dead, I'm no lifer. When I got to the state in 1988, I was in a deep state of depression. But then I started working in the prison and seeing the people, and I realized that I was in a much better place. So I decided to leave the prison and go to college. I started working in a law firm and I eventually became a lawyer.

Cuban Missile Crisis of 1962

Iowa says Cuban troops were ready to go to war with the United States, hoping to exchange for President John F. Kennedy's agreement not to invade Cuba and to pull out of the missile crisis and that he would mediate the dispute. The incident, known as the Cuban missile crisis, was a significant event in the Cold War.

Former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara said the figures on the conference were confirmed by the former Soviet Politburo. McNamara added: "I have no reason to believe that any of the figures that I gave were inaccurate in any way." The conference was held in Moscow in October 1962.

McNamara told reporters that the missiles were removed from Cuba because of the threat of war. "We were determined to deliver a nuclear strike from Cuba," McNamara said. "We had the capability, we had the missiles, we had the command and control." McNamara also said that the missiles were removed because of the threat of war with the United States.

The revelations came during a press conference in New York City. McNamara was asked about the Conference of the Defense Ministers of the Non-Aligned Nations, which was held in Cuba in 1962. McNamara said that the conference was held to discuss the missile crisis and that he had been asked to attend. McNamara added: "I have no reason to believe that any of the figures that I gave were inaccurate in any way." The conference was held in Moscow in October 1962.

Iowa rolls to Classic win; Wojdat sets pool record

By Erica Waterland
The Daily Iowan

Despite long workouts and a leadoff meet in the past few weeks, the Iowa men’s swimming team won the Illinois Classic in Chicago, Ill., weekend.

"It’s just a really, really good feeling right now," said senior Erica Wojdat.

"We were really pleased with the results, so we’re just looking for more," said Iowa Coach Helen Schiejkeller.

Some highlights of the meet included a swim-to-three dual with Wisconsin, a 200-yard freestyle, and Artur Wojdat’s record time of the 100-yard freestyle.

Artur Wojdat, who was the seventh medalist at the Olympics, was swimming in his first meet with the Hawkeyes.

Wojdat set a new meet record and just two points away
from breaking Iowa’s
record and just two points away
from breaking Iowa’s record.

"It’s really exciting to see him out there," Kennedy said,
"but we still need to see him
this weekend.

Earlier in the meet, Iowa Coach Brad Keough said, "I was really pleased with my performance, but I need to keep working on my stroke.

"I just need to work on my streamlining and my brushing," he added.

The Daily Iowan

Though Iowa won its meet at the Minnesota Track Team Classic last weekend, Coach Jerry Hassard said he was satisfied with his team's performance.

"This was one of our best meets of the year," Hassard said. "The women's track team finished first in the 6,000-meter and won.

"On Friday's win with quality. We didn't compete in extra events."

Jerry Hassard said he was pleased in Minneapolis this past weekend,

"Northern Iowa's 130.

Talking teetors on the brink of bizarre

By Steve T. Densmore

The daily tuned

C. chris, the 39-year-old Japanese-born pianist who has been a frequent performer in the United States, is known for his world-acclaimed skill. His tuna and chicken connoisseurship in particular has gained him a loyal following among jazz enthusiasts. He has been a frequent performer in the United States, particularly in major cities such as Los Angeles and New York.

His latest album, "Talking Teetors on the Brink of Bizarre," has received mixed reviews from critics. Some have praised his unique approach to playing the piano, while others have criticized the lack of melody in his compositions.

One critic, Tom Ford, wrote in the Daily Iowan that Dunmore's latest album, "Talking Teetors on the Brink of Bizarre," is a "rare and fascinating listen that defies easy categorization."

"Dunmore's latest release features a mix of jazz, classical, and experimental elements, creating a unique listening experience," Ford wrote. "His playing is both physical and intellectual, and he seems to be having a lot of fun in the process."

Another critic, Janice Black, wrote in the Arts & Entertainment section of the Globe that Dunmore is "a true original who defies easy classification. His latest album is a tour de force that is sure to please fans of all genres."

"But Dunmore's latest album is not without its flaws," Black continued. "The lack of melody in some of the pieces is a drawback, but overall, this is a compelling listen that is sure to be remembered."
