Rehnquist stays North's trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — Attorney General Dick Thornburgh and the prosecution in Oliver North's Iran-Contra case agreed Sunday on more stringent safeguards for classified material whose threatened release delayed the trial.

Chief Justice William Rehnquist on Sunday granted a Justice Department request to delay North's trial from Monday's scheduled start until Friday, when the full Supreme Court is scheduled to consider the department's objections to the planned release of classified material by North's defense.

Hours later, Thornburgh and independent counsel Lawrence Walsh announced a motion had been filed asking the judge in the case, U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell, to impose more stringent safeguards on North's use of classified material.

"The requested relief, if granted, would provide necessary assurance that the attorney general would remain in a position throughout the trial to protect against unauthorized disclosure of classified information," the Justice Department said in a statement. Thornburgh and Walsh agreed that this protection "does not interfere in any way with the independent counsel's ability to carry out his duties," said the statement.

If the proposal is approved by Gesell, the Justice Department will ask the Supreme Court to lift the stay immediately so the North trial may proceed, according to separate statements issued by the department and Walsh.

Walsh and the department filed a sealed motion with Gesell "which requests that the district court enter an additional protective order preventing the release of classified information vital to U.S. national security interests," the Justice Department said.

North's attorneys, Brendan Sullivan and Barry Simon, did not return phone calls to their business answering service seeking comment.

Rehnquist on Sunday ordered "that the trial proceedings in United States versus Oliver L. North ... be stayed" pending consideration by the full Supreme Court on Friday.

A jury in the case was selected Thursday and returns to court Monday morning.

Walsh, whose office is prosecuting North, had opposed the Justice

MedSchool receives award

By Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

Outstanding minority recruitment efforts earned the UI College of Medicine an award from the UI Committee on Affirmative Action Friday.

The College of Medicine's Educational Opportunities Program won the award for its achievements in advancing diversity within the UI community.

UI President Hunter Rawlings awarded John Eckstein, dean of the College of Medicine, with a plaque and a $1,000 check, and lauded the progress made by the Educational Opportunities Program.

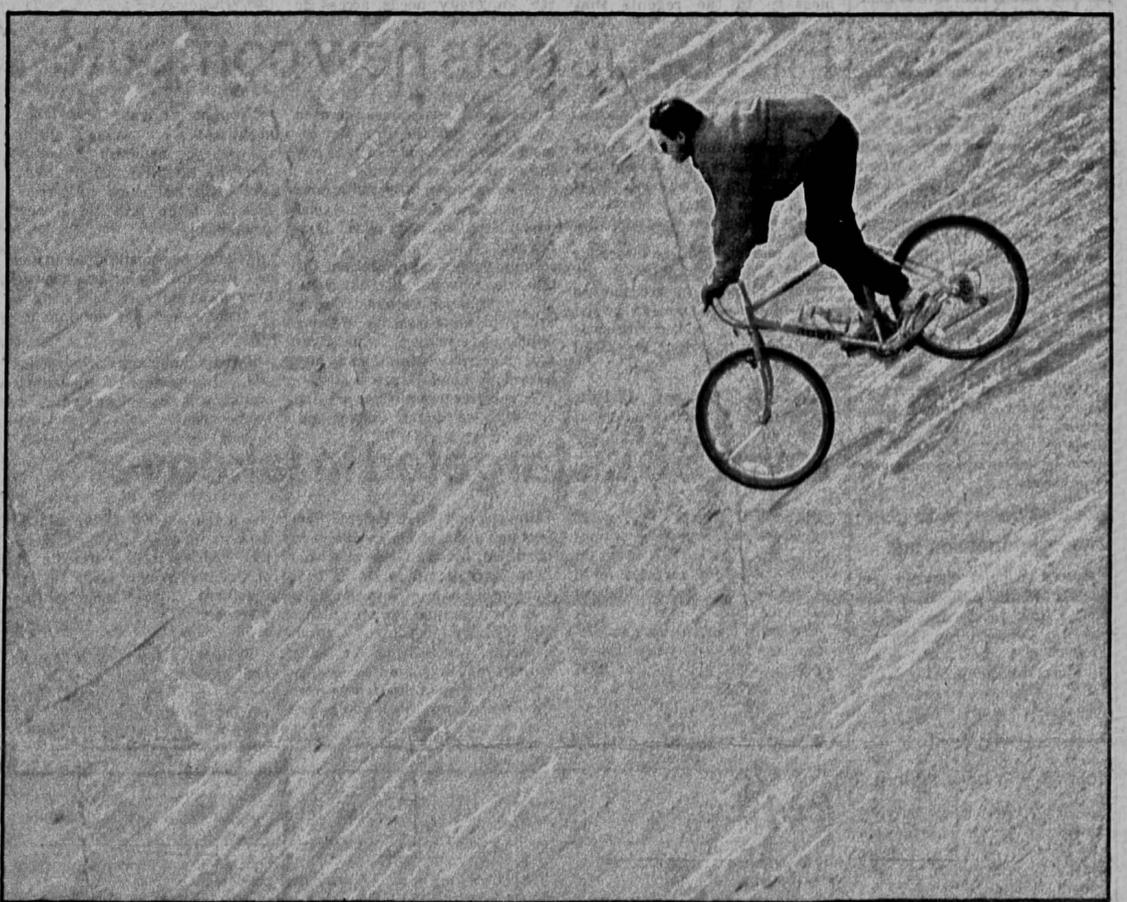

"Presidents and others can stand up and make speeches that may help a lot but the main thing is to get results," Rawlings said.

College of Medicine statistics that show a continuing increase in minority student enrollment highlight the success of the UI's efforts to increase minority recruitment, Rawlings said.

From 1907 to 1973, there were 19 black graduates from the College of Medicine. Since 1968, when the UI established a stronger position on affirmative action and instituted several new policies, 114 out of 219 minority students enrolled in the college have graduated, Rawlings said.

"It's not just a matter of bringing

Student Health offers thrifty relief for flu bug sufferers

By Brian Dick
The Daily Iowan

Winter's perennial flu bug has returned to the UI in full force, and with the virus has come the usual rush of patients at the UI Student Health Service.

Student Health Director Dr. Mary Khowassah said although she has not yet compiled total figures on the number of flu patients the clinic has treated, doctors at Student Health have been seeing a greatly increased number of patients.

"Our eight physicians who treat flu patients have been seeing about 30 to 35 people a day each," — Dr. Mary Khowassah, Student Health director

"Our eight physicians who treat flu patients have been seeing about 30 to 35 people a day each," Khowassah said. "The past two or three weeks were bad, but maybe it's slowed down this week."

But though the flu bug is taking its toll on students' health, it is not taking a toll on their wallets.

The majority of patients who visit Student Health for a diagnosis or checkup will not incur excess expenses, Khowassah said.

"The visit to Student Health is free and so is the throat culture, but the student pays the cost for any medication," she said. "Most other Big Ten universities provide health care, but they charge a substantial fee.

"Students here pay $7.61 per semester in their U-bill to provide for medical services," she said. "Healthcare costs are low at the UI, and we're proud of the fact that students don't carry the financial burden."

UI business student Edward Ortega said his bout with the flu was bad enough without having to worry about medical costs.

"I had a 102-degree fever that kept me out of class for two days," Ortega said.

He said the $60 four-year cost a student pays for Student Health is comparably low for the service that is provided.

"I wouldn't enjoy paying a doctor out of my pocket to tell me that I have the flu, and students shouldn't have to worry about paying medical insurance on top of tuition," Ortega said.

"I spent more on Advil, Pepto-Bismol and Maalox than I pay for Student Health in two semesters, so for the money Student Health is a very good deal," he said.

The influenza virus is a contagious respiratory infection that brings on symptoms of fever, chills, sore throat, headache and muscle ache that last between two and seven days.

Dr. Michael Curley, a physician at Student Health, said doctors cannot do much to treat the virus.

"It's an aggressive virus, and the 'in' theory as to how a person picks it up is not from sneezing or coughing, but from contact like chewing your nails or rubbing your eyes," Curley said.

He said this year's flu is borderline epidemic.

"Statistically, any sickness becomes an epidemic when 12 percent of the school-age children are affected by it, and we're at that level now," he said.

State degree programs face major focus shift, regents say

DES MOINES (AP) — A consultant recommends sweeping changes that would shift the focus at Iowa's three state-run universities, and the president of the Iowa Board of Regents predicts his colleagues will support most of the proposals, it was reported Sunday.

If adopted, major degree programs in business, engineering, home economics, journalism and teacher training would be shifted among schools, according to the copyright report in the Des Moines Sunday Register.

"I don't expect to see a college eliminated," said Marvin Pomerantz, president of the Board of Regents. "I expect to see program changes. I think it's possible we would see programs eliminated."

The study by the private consulting firm Peat Marwick Main and Co. looked into ways to reduce duplications of programs at the University of Iowa, Iowa State University and the University of Northern Iowa.

The Register said the major recommendations included:

—Concentrating graduate studies in business at the University of Iowa and reducing the business program at Iowa State.

—Upgrading teacher training and education programs at UNI and scaling back such programs at the other schools.

—Emphasizing engineering programs at Iowa State with an overhaul of the College of Engineering at the University of Iowa. Medical engineering, biotechnology engineering, computer-aided design and manufacturing and hydraulics laboratory programs would remain at Iowa, but other graduate programs would move to ISU.

—Focusing the home economics program at one or two schools, instead of at all three.

—Reducing the journalism program at two schools and concentrating it at the third.

Other potential areas of unnecessary duplication also were identified as programs on the humanities; biological and physical sciences; mathematics; social sciences; city, community and regional planning; communications; industrial technology; speech pathology and audiology; library science; leisure studies and parks and recreation studies; and social work.

UI students boycott grapes

By Sharon Hernandez-Dorow
The Daily Iowan

Some Iowa City residents are joining the United Farm Workers in boycotting California grapes sold in supermarkets and in trying to increase awareness of the dangerous pesticides used on them.

The Student Interfaith Network, a local group of religious ministries, will kick off its awareness effort tonight with a nine-week "Fast-for-Life" — named after UFW president Cesar Chavez's 36-day fast last summer.

SIN is endorsing a boycott of all California grapes because of the harmful effects of the pesticides on migrant farmworkers and possibly on consumers.

The Iowa City "Fast-for-Life" is open to everyone and participants can fast for as long as they like.

"We're trying to show people what's going on," said Melissa

Rubin, co-chairwoman of the SIN committee. "We want to tell people, 'Open your eyes — these grapes are bad for you.'"

SIN and UFW supporters are protesting the use of several pesticides on the grapes, including Captain, Methobromide, Phostriol, Parathion, and Dinoced.

"These pesticides cause sterility, cancer, death, and birth defects. Pregnant women who work in the fields have had babies without limbs or (who) are missing parts of their spines," Rubin said.

The grape workers are not unionized so are unable to comment on the use of these pesticides. Workers who try to form or join unions are harassed and even killed, Rubin said.

Rebecca Flores Harrington, a UFW staff member in Texas, said in some areas, 80 percent of the farmworkers are diagnosed with pesticide poisoning.

Some grapes bought in stores show a higher percentage of pesticide residue than is permissible by law, she added.

SIN is planning to send letters to local food stores informing them of the dangers of these pesticides.

Steve Moen, New Pioneer Fresh Food Market production manager, said co-op market members decided to take grapes off their shelves a year ago.

"The more we learn about what is going on, the more we support the farmworkers. These pesticides are killing people and destroying families. To quote Cesar Chavez, 'The grape companies are making a killing economically and literally,'" Moen said.

John Long, a UI Pharmacology professor, confirmed the pesticides used on the grapes are dangerous.

"The organic-phosphates, like Parathion, were developed by the

Moslems riot, demand U.S. ban 'Verses'

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — Police fired on hundreds of protesters Sunday who stormed a U.S. government office to demand the United States ban a novel they consider offensive to Moslems. At least five people died and 65 were injured, doctors said.

Police repeatedly fired rifles, semi-automatic weapons and shotguns at charging protesters who yelled "American dogs!" and hurled rocks and bricks during three hours of fierce clashes.

The rioting erupted when more than 2,000 fundamentalists tried to march to the U.S. Information Center to demand the United States ban "Satanic Verses," a novel by Salman Rushdie.

Pakistan banned the novel on grounds it offends Moslems by suggesting the prophet Mohammed was fallible and had suggested there were female gods as well as Allah. India also banned the novel.

"God is great!" protesters screamed as they smashed windows and started fires after driving off scores of police.

They tore down the American flag at the center and danced in delight as it was burned, along with effigies representing the Indian-born Rushdie and the United States. "Hang Salman Rushdie," one man yelled.

Three U.S. diplomats and 15 Pakistanis employed at the center were in the building at the time but were not hurt, U.S. diplomats said.

"There was a pitched battle going on outside," said Kent Obee, head of the center, which contains a public library and dispenses information about the United States.

Doctors at area hospitals, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said at least five people had been killed by police gunfire and 65

Dentistry memorial lectures honor Osbon

A memorial lecture program at the UI College of Dentistry has been established in honor of the late Dr. Donald B. Osbon, who was a professor and head of oral and maxillofacial surgery at the UI Dentistry College. He was a member of the faculty from 1973 to 1986.

A fund for the lecture program was established by Osbon's former colleagues and will be used to bring an international authority in oral and maxillofacial surgery to the college every other year.

Dr. Per-Ingvær Branemark, the primary developer of dental implant technology, will be the featured speaker for the first Donald B. Osbon Memorial Lecture Program on April 22. Branemark is professor and director of the Institute of Applied Biotechnology in Gothenburg, Sweden.

Dental implants are metal posts that are surgically inserted into the jawbone and then capped with artificial teeth. They are a more permanent and stable replacement for teeth than traditional dentures. Implant technology is also being applied in other fields for such things as hearing aids, facial prosthetic appliances and in orthopedic reconstructions.

Bill may require regents to give 30-day notice of tuition votes

By Sharon Hernandez-Dorow
The Daily Iowan

Of main concern to the UI students who met with Rep. Robert Dvorsky, D-Coralville, in the Union Wheelroom Friday is a new bill that would require the Iowa Board of Regents to give 30-day written notice to student governments before new fees or tuitions are voted on.

The bill, which Dvorsky introduced to the Iowa Legislature, would also require that the regents meeting be held in Iowa City, Ames or Cedar Rapids and not be held during student break.

Dvorsky said he was unsure if the bill would pass, saying the regents will claim the bill would "tie their hands."

"At least the bill will send a message to the regents that enough is enough. Tuition increases make Iowa universities less accessible for Iowa high-school students," Dvorsky said.

Greg Shoultz, former campus director of United Students for Iowa, said he is worried the regents are not considering students' lack of college money.

"Looking back at the kids who graduated from my high school, the ones who went to college and the ones who didn't are drawn pretty cleanly along economic lines," Shoultz said.

Shoultz also voiced concern about the lack of funding for the UI Main Library. Budget cutbacks have affected acquisitions of periodicals, and forced a reduction of library staff.

"To be a good research institution, the university needs access to periodicals. Cutbacks in library funds are going to affect the quality of education that is available here," Shoultz said.

Lyn Rae, United Students of Iowa campus director, said she would like the university to make new buildings energy efficient, reduce paper waste and eliminate the use of plastics.

Gordon Fischer, Collegiate Associations Council president, also questioned Dvorsky on UI fire safety and the funding of the minority program Opportunity at Iowa.

Dvorsky said he is planning to highlight the library problems and, during future legislative sessions, hopes to get more money for the university as a whole.

"The university is expanding and needs more money to stay competitive," Dvorsky said.

Fire Dept. gets new computer

The Daily Iowan

Independent Insurance Agents of Johnson County will present the Iowa City Fire Department with a $4,534 check to buy a Macintosh computer today.

The computer will be linked up with Macintosh computers at the two other Iowa City fire stations and enable information to be passed quickly and conveniently from station to station, Fire Chief Larry Donner said.

Donner said he approached the Independent Insurance Agents with the request because the need was there, but the Fire Department didn't have the money to buy the computers on its own.

"They've been real helpful to us in the past, and they saw (the computer) as a legitimate need," Donner said.

In an emergency situation, the computer network will make available information obtained during fire inspections such as where a building's doorways, stairs, gas and electric meters, and any hazardous materials are located.

"The better informed we are, the better job we can do," Donner said.

"Awareness is a key factor. If you know what's out there, it affects the way you approach the situation," he said. Firefighters could take extra equipment or precautions along to fires they knew would be big.

"It could be something as simple as a junkyard dog but you want to know if the junkyard dog's going to be there before you run into it," Donner said.

Barbara Smith and Carlton Johnson, Independent Insurance agents, will present the check to Donner today.

Iowa S&Ls targeted in takeover

DES MOINES (AP) — Federal regulators list two Iowa savings and loans among 197 insolvent thrifts nationwide targeted for a takeover by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Ten other troubled Iowa institutions were rescued by new owners last year with the help of $275 million in assistance from the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp.

Sioux Valley Savings and Loan of Cherokee and First Federal Savings and Loan of Estherville were identified by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board as thrifts that were insolvent as of Sept. 30, 1988.

In the meantime, Iowa regulators and industry officials say skittish depositors are slowly but steadily withdrawing accounts from savings and loans despite assurances from President George Bush and others that deposits remain safe.

The bank board, which regulates the nation's 3,000 S&Ls, said all deposits up to the $100,000 insurance limit are fully protected in all of the institutions, including the insolvent thrifts targeted for takeovers.

Federal regulators say that while healthy institutions have a net worth equal to at least three percent of its assets, both the Cherokee and Estherville institutions have negative net worth.

A UI associate professor filed suit Friday against the UI, the state of Iowa, the Board of Regents and a Judicial Hearing Panel because the panel allegedly denied her request that the appeal hearing of a promotion denial be held as open proceedings, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Patricia Donahue, a tenured associate professor in the UI College of Nursing, filed the suit in regard to a hearing in which the chairman of the judicial panel, appointed by the presiding officer of the Judicial Commission, allegedly asked a representative of the press and a representative of the American Association of University Professors to leave the hearing, according to court records.

The suit claims that Donahue has been and still is being "wrongfully deprived of an open meeting," according to court records.

A second count in the suit claims the panel would be able, according to procedure, to close the hearing if it dealt with "confidential materials," but that the panel allegedly has not generated procedures to determine if any material involved is confidential, according to court records.

Donahue is requesting an issue by the court directing the defendants to provide her with open hearings in her appeal procedure. She is suing for the costs of the action, attorney's fees and "any further relief deemed fair and equitable by this court," according to court records.

The hearing panel was appointed after Donahue petitioned the Judicial Commission June 18, 1987 — one month after she was denied a promotion to the rank of full professor. The hearings began last December, according to court records.

Fantasies come alive at FantaSuite Hotels

By Jay Casini
The Daily Iowan

If getting away from it all with that special someone is part of your Valentine's Day fantasy, a tree house deep in the heart of Sherwood Forest may be the perfect retreat.

Then again, snuggling up in a fully furnished igloo may be a good way to break the ice on a frigid arctic evening.

Of course, a night in Cinderella's horse-drawn carriage and a glass-slipper whirlpool may be just the thing for a fairy tale romance ... at least until midnight.

Whatever your fantasy, chances are it can be found only 45 minutes away — in Muscatine's Canterbury FantaSuite Hotel.

Maynard Calvert, general manager of the hotel, said the Muscatine location is one of six FantaSuite properties owned by Minnesota-based Royale Hospitality Group Inc.

Calvert said the Muscatine hotel, which opened in January after being acquired from Best Western, reflects a new concept in guest accommodations.

"It's the ideal escape because you can go and lose yourself completely in this environment for an evening," he said.

The Muscatine location currently operates 12 FantaSuites with a variety of themes.

A stroll down the hallways of the hotel reveals nothing out of the ordinary, but behind the door of Room 137 lies the private pyramid and custom-built sarcophagus waterbed of "Pharaoh's Tomb."

In Room 141, guests can slip under mosquito netting in their grass hut in a "Jungle Safari" adventure.

Further down the hall, a waterbed and entertainment console are tucked away in a recreation of a Gemini space capsule for the "Space Odyssey" fantasy.

Other options include the ornate oriental environment of "Geisha Garden," the sheik's tent and whirlpool oasis of "Arabian Nights," and the Mississippi paddlewheel boat of "Riverboat Gambler."

But potential Valentine's Day guests will have to wait until next year — weekend and holiday reservations for the FantaSuites are usually booked solid months in advance.

"Reservations for this Valentine's Day were booked by January 15th, right after we opened up," Calvert said. "Most weekends are booked six to eight months in advance, and Sunday and weekday reservations are becoming more and more popular."

To satisfy the curious, Calvert said, the hotel holds weekend tours of the suites.

The introduction of the FantaSuite concept has helped the hotel's business, Calvert said.

"We're up considerably" he said. "People like to experience new things, no matter what you're doing."

Lula Cassidy, the hotel's sales director, said the concept attracts a clientele looking for more than just

The Tree House is one of 12 exotic suites in Muscatine's Canterbury FantaSuite Hotel.

"We have tours available every Saturday and Sunday at 2:15," Calvert said. "It's a chance to go around the world and to the moon and back in under a half an hour."

Calvert said Royale Hospitality Group Inc. is responsible for the design of most of the FantaSuites, usually replicating themes that have been successful at other locations.

But Calvert said there is room for innovation. A "Hawkeye Suite" decorated with Hawkeye sports memorabilia and a tailgate bar is currently under construction.

Other ideas for room themes come from guests, Calvert said. Royale Hospitality sponsors an ongoing contest for theme suggestions, with gift certificates and grand opening suite invitations awarded for winning ideas.

In addition to the twelve FantaSuites currently available in Muscatine, Calvert said the hotel will soon add a cave, a dungeon, a "Pearl Under The Sea" fantasy and a car suite with a Rolls Royce.

mundane accommodations.

"FantaSuites is not only a place to spend the weekend, but actually an attraction," she said.

Calvert said Muscatine's demographics were appropriate for a FantaSuite location because it is at the 'hub' of a number of larger communities.

Although some of the FantaSuite guests are local customers seeking an afternoon "away from it all," Calvert said the hotel attracts many patrons from Iowa City and Cedar Rapids, Burlington, the Quad Cities and Western Illinois.

At some FantaSuite locations, Calvert said guests have arrived in appropriate costumes for their fantasy. Costumes haven't caught on in Muscatine yet, at least as far as the hotel's staff knows.

The FantaSuites currently cost $149 for Saturday or Sunday night stays. Rates for the rooms are less during the week, and several less expensive suites that match the hotel's Olde English decor are also available.

Education needed, AIDS forum agrees

Information changes views

By Jennifer Messenger
Special to The Daily Iowan

Education is essential to prevent further spread of AIDS and to help people who already have it, participants in a public forum Thursday at the Iowa City Public Library agreed.

The forum, "Coping with AIDS: The public response to the epidemic," was the first of this year's National Issues Forums, designed to help citizens of differing views reach judgments about current issues and "to keep democracy going," said Mildred Lavin, a Iowa City National Issues Forum steering committee member.

Participants broke into small groups for discussion and were asked to focus on questions set forth by the National Issues Forum.

Public funds provided for AIDS research increased from $44 million in 1984 to $467 million in 1988, according to a videotape prepared by the National Issues Forum shown at the beginning of the program.

"Resources should not just be for a cure or vaccine, but for direct services to individuals and for education," said Jack Stapleton, head of the UI Hospitals and Clinics' AIDS center.

AIDS carriers should not be discriminated against, but resources should be targeted to people engaging in risky behavior, participants in the forum said. A way must be found to reach those people at risk who can't read, who ignore information about AIDS, or who don't have a home and don't receive mail.

A variety of community members with different opinions participated in the forum, making it a success, said Dan Daly, a steering committee member.

The purpose of National Issues Forums is not to reach a consensus, but to give people the chance to hear a wide variety of views on a topic, he said.

"Sharing opinions is important," Daly said. "We need to hear other points of view and find out why people hold certain opinions. It's good to be exposed to how strongly people hold their views."

Before and after the forum, participants completed surveys dealing with attitudes toward AIDS. The surveys were prepared by the Kettering Foundation and will be sent to Congress to help in future decision making regarding AIDS issues.

"Usually a shift can be noted in opinion before and after the forum," Daly said. "That tells policymakers that public opinion changes with more information, and where progress could be made in policymaking."

Over 800 communities nationwide hold National Issues Forums each year to discuss the same three current issues. Other topics this year are "The public debt: Breaking the habit of deficit spending," February 23 at 7 p.m. at Iowa State Bank and Trust Company, 102 S. Clinton St., and "Health care for the elderly: Moral dilemmas, mortal choices," February 26 at 1:30 p.m. at the Senior Center, 28 S. Linn St.

Department's efforts to delay the trial and wanted to proceed immediately with opening arguments, saying that national security concerns had been amply addressed.

The Justice Department, reflecting concerns of U.S. intelligence agencies, feels that Gesell has imposed inadequate controls on North and that the fired National Security Council aide would be permitted to pour out secrets in the courtroom that are damaging to national security.

"The Department of Justice concluded, and the independent counsel concurred, that the trial could not go forward without an additional protective order, and that it is essential for the court to enter such an order," said the Justice Department.

It said that without such an order that "it will be impossible during the defense's opening statement and presentation of evidence to protect against the unnecessary and uncontrolled disclosure of classified information." The information was described in the Justice Department statement as "of vital importance to the national security and the foreign relations of the United States."

The department said that "an enormous number" of the 300 classified documents North may use at his trial "are not yet clearly covered by a protective order of the court."

The department said it believes that "the joint motion will resolve any remaining differences with respect to the handling of classified information."

Walsh issued a separate statement saying that the independent counsel filed the motion with Gesell and that the Justice Department "agreed to the motion."

Government sources familiar with the agreement say the Justice Department retreated from the drastic position it took Wednesday.

The department at that time sought a court order saying North would be permitted to introduce no classified information unless the court ruled that it was relevant and the U.S. government had no objection to its disclosure.

Under the motion filed with Gesell, the Justice Department compromised by narrowing the broad objections it had too many categories of classified material that North plans to introduce at his trial, said government sources familiar with the proposed agreement.

Gesell on Wednesday rejected the department's request for the order seeking stringent controls over classified material North plans to present and the Justice Department on Thursday began its efforts to delay the trial. The department sought to appeal, but an appeals court twice rebuffed the department's attempt to obtain a stay late last week.

them here, but assuring they have the proper opportunities to graduate," he said.

Rawlings said many of the minority students have received awards and scholarships from the UI.

Classie Hoyle, Affirmative Action Committee chairwoman, said there are 18 minority students in residency training at the UI Hospitals and Clinics.

The goal of the committee is to develop cultural, racial and ethnic diversity within the UI. Hoyle said the committee tries to make the UI community correspond to a world where there is increasing racial and ethnic diversity in local communities.

"The University of Iowa must foster an atmosphere that socially recognizes the importance of affirmative action," she said.

Recognizing and encouraging outstanding efforts within the university is an additional aim of the affirmative action program, Hoyle said.

Rawlings said he was optimistic that the state Legislature would provide funds for Opportunity at Iowa — the UI minority recruitment and retention program — even though Gov. Terry Branstad recommended zero funding for the program in his 1989-90 budget proposal.

The UI originally requested $1,500,000 for Opportunity at Iowa.

WHEN IS IT "DATE" RAPE?

Acquaintance or "date rape," has become one of the biggest issues on campuses across the country, with many victimized women reporting on the subject in college newspapers. When questioned about their actions, many men seem confused about the rules. They point to the current cinema in which they see Clint Eastwood and other macho types forcing their attentions on women with gratifying results all around.

Well, then. How do you know she really means no when she says "no?"

Simple. When she says "no," she means no. Period. Lay off. And if you can't control yourself, see the campus shrink and get some help. You ain't Dirty Harry and your life ain't no movie.

Iowa nets population gain for 1988 due to urban economic recovery

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa's economic turnaround apparently has halted the state's chronic population loss, but an Iowa State University sociologist says the makeup of the state's population is still changing.

"We're still seeing the movement away from the small towns and the rural areas," said Willis Goudy, who analyzes data from the U.S. Census Bureau. "What we think was happening during the early 1980s was the movement from the rural areas to the urban areas and out of Iowa."

"What may be happening now is that we're seeing fewer of these people leaving Iowa, although they're still moving to other areas of the state," he said.

Goudy said Iowa took in about 2,000 more people than moved out during the 1988 fiscal year, the first time the state has posted a net migration gain since the mid-1970s. It is also only the 17th time since 1910 that more people have moved into Iowa than have moved out.

Goudy, who bases his estimates on Census Bureau figures and takes birth and death rates into account, said the 1988 figure is significant because it represented the reversal of dramatic population losses that had plagued Iowa during the farm crisis.

Nearly 40,000 more people left Iowa than came in fiscal 1986, and the net loss was about 20,000 in 1987, he said.

But the influx of new residents has been limited to certain areas of the state, Goudy said. One is the area surrounding Des Moines and Ames in central Iowa, and another is the triangle formed by Cedar Rapids, Iowa City and Davenport.

Goudy also said Pottawattamie County in western Iowa is growing due to economic activity in the Omaha-Council Bluffs area. And economic development projects in Mount Pleasant and Fairfield are drawing jobs and people to Henry and Jefferson counties.

Teamates (from left) Erik Walker, Steve Scholz, Jill Rausch and John Nugent compete in the 1989 UI College Bowl in the Wheelroom of the Union Saturday afternoon. The team, "3817," won last year and went on to regional competition, but this year lost in the final round.

What is a MOMA anyway?

College Bowl is no trivial pursuit for 'Most Dangerous' team

By Kathleen Brill
The Daily Iowan

Approximately 64 UI students took an unusual type of college test Saturday that asked such questions as:

"What country took out full-page ads to combat drug smuggling?"

"What title will be given to Mrs. Thatcher when she is no longer prime minister?"

"What is MOMA?"

For over eight hours, 16 teams of UI students competed in the Union Wheelroom for the chance to represent the UI at the regional round of the College Bowl. The UI will host the regionals next Saturday, Feb. 25, in the Union.

Each team had four members, with no more than two graduate students to a team.

Players had just three seconds to answer questions that covered a myriad of academic and current-event subjects. Up to 50 questions could be asked in each round, but the teams usually couldn't finish all of the questions, said Jim Seckler, bowl moderator and UI junior.

After a slow start during the final round, the winning foursome, who called themselves "The World's Most Dangerous College Bowl Team," said they were surprised at winning the opportunity to compete at regionals.

"How did we do this? How did we come back? They were beating the hell out of us. The Museum of Modern Art question — I should have got that," said Vivek Goyal, a freshman engineering major, immediately after his team won.

The bowl winners said they hadn't planned to compete until shortly before the sign-up deadline, and they never expected to win. Two of the teammates practiced the night before by playing Trivial Pursuit, Goyal said.

"We figured we had a 50-50 chance of winning the first game," said Tim Shoppa, a junior physics major.

Two additional teammates, Jeff Lussman and Tim Morgan, are both freshmen engineering majors.

Although their academic majors focus on math and science, the team members' other interests in sports, history, geology and mythology added to their skill in answering questions, Shoppa said.

This year more freshmen competed than in years past, moderator Seckler said. "It's great — the freshman teams did really well."

The UI will host the regional competition between schools from North Dakota, South Dakota, Minnesota, Iowa and Canada on Feb. 25, he said.

*(Answers to the bowl questions listed above: The Bahamas, countess, and the Museum of Modern Art, according to the answers read during the UI College Bowl competition.)

Grapes

Nazis during WWII. The more toxic substances were to be used as nerve gas — the less toxic ones became pesticides," Long said.

Some of the symptoms of exposure to Parathion are dizziness, split vision and nausea, Long said. Continuous exposure can lead to vomiting, headaches, loss of hair and fingernails, and death, he said.

Darrell Yeane, a campus minister who will be skipping one meal this week said, "I've been supporting the boycott for years. The migrant workers are the poorest in the U.S. and are struggling for their equality. A fast seems to be the only way we can get public attention."

Eagle Discount Supermarket would remove grapes from their stores only if they received proof from the Environmental Protection Agency that the pesticides are dangerous to consumers, said an Eagle vice president in charge of produce at the Rock Island main office. He requested his name not be published.

"If it's a political thing, it's hard to say if we would (remove the grapes). We do have a duty to our customers to keep them in stock," he said.

Eagle stores do not wash their produce because washing would reduce shelf life. But Eagle is confident of the EPA and FDA's testing of food and pesticides and will follow their ruling, the Eagle vice president of produce said.

He added he was unaware of any stores in the U.S. that have removed grapes from their shelves and that it is not an issue that should concern customers.

Harrington argued there is a need for concern because the FDA tests only 1 percent of all produce and out of 1,000 pesticides the EPA has only done preliminary tests of about 100.

There are hundreds of stores and grocery chains as well as some restaurants that have refused to carry California grapes, Harrington said. Because these stores are mainly in California, New York and Texas, Harrington was pleased to hear of the effort in Iowa City.

"It's a good thing that other people are taking up Cesar Chavez's fast because he is getting too old to do it anymore," Harrington said. She added Chavez has not recovered from last year's fast.

Sherri Nelson, SIN chair, will be trying to fast for one day.

"I want to remind myself of the suffering that is going on. I want to know that I did something for (migrant workers)," she said.

A meeting tonight at Old Brick, 26 E. Market St., at 9:30 p.m. will officially start the fast and "The Wrath of Grapes," a documentary of the pesticide poisoning, will be shown. Participants will take turns fasting, one following another, for differing time periods. The fast is expected to last nine weeks, but Rubin is hoping that by drawing public support, the fast can continue longer.

"If I have to fast one day every week for nine weeks to get people's attention I will," Rubin said.

protesters shot and wounded.

They said the injured included Moslem theology students and about 20 police hit by rocks or beaten by the rampaging crowd.

Police arrested at least 25 protesters, and angry officers were seen beating and kicking some of those arrested.

Some protesters attacked the nearby American Express travel agency, smashing windows and starting a fire before police drove them off.

Enraged demonstrators also attacked three Western journalists, including two Associated Press correspondents and an Atlanta Constitution correspondent. They were not injured.

Police wearing blue helmets and armed with bamboo canes and metal shields initially tried to disperse the crowds with tear gas and batons, but the mob hurled the tear gas canisters back and repeatedly charged police.

Butto denies designs on Afghanistan

BELJING — Prime Minister Benazir Bhutto of Pakistan on Sunday denied Afghanistan's charge that her army is preparing to invade that country, saying Pakistan has enough problems of its own without "foreign adventures."

Bhutto stopped short of ruling out an eventual confederation with Afghanistan after Moscow withdraws the last of the Soviet troops, which have been backing the government of Afghan President Najib in its war with Moslem guerrillas.

Najib, who uses only one name, alleged Saturday that Pakistan was massing troops along their common border in preparation for an invasion. He accused Afghan guerrillas of having agreed to link the country in a confederation with Pakistan in return for Pakistani arms and money.

Bhutto denied Pakistan was moving troops to the border and said it would be naive for Pakistan to try to annex Afghanistan.

"We've got enough problems of national integration," she said. "We don't need foreign adventures."

Comatose woman receives abortion

MANHASSET, N.Y. — A comatose woman who received an abortion after a two-week legal battle was in guarded condition Sunday as her family explored moving her to a rehabilitation facility in New Jersey or Boston.

Nancy Klein, 32, was in guarded condition at the North Shore University Hospital Sunday, with all signs stable, a hospital spokesman said one day after Klein was given an abortion requested by her husband. She was 18 weeks pregnant.

Attorneys involved in the case said the court's decision to allow Martin Klein of Upper Brookville in Long Island to order an abortion for his wife broke legal ground.

"It was a tough case because we didn't have a law to directly point to for an answer," said Anthony D'Auria, an attorney for North Shore University Hospital.

Klein has been in a coma since she was severely brain damaged in a car accident Dec. 13. Martin Klein, her husband of nine years, began court proceedings on Jan. 26 to become her guardian so he could order an abortion doctors said could aid her recovery.

Yacht breaks 135-year speed record

SAN FRANCISCO — The yacht Thursday's Child sailed triumphantly under the Golden Gate Bridge on Sunday, breaking by eight days the New York-to-San Francisco speed record set in 1854.

The 60-foot sloop crossed the finish line at 12:32 p.m. and was met by cheers and yells from hundreds of spectators. Thursday's Child set sail Nov. 23 on a 14,500-mile voyage that took it around treacherous Cape Horn on the tip of South America.

About 80 ships were out on San Francisco Bay to greet the modern racing sloop, while other spectators gathered on the roof of Fort Point and at the south tower of the Golden Gate Bridge. A biplane flew overhead trailing a sign that read: "We love you TC."

Thursday's Child's entrance into the bay was delayed for hours by a four-knot outgoing tide and by a lack of wind.

The crew tried everything, including putting out a large sail called a spinnaker, but all its sails drooped. Finally, under a bright, cloudless sky the yacht was able to sail under the Golden Gate.

Baker discusses missile plan with West German leaders

BONN, West Germany (AP) — Secretary of State James Baker on Sunday opened critical talks with West German leaders who have balked at a NATO plan to upgrade short-range nuclear missiles in Europe.

Baker flew in from London after sessions with British leaders and immediately met with Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher, a strong advocate of reducing nuclear tensions in Europe.

Baker, on an eight-day trip to visit the 15 U.S. NATO allies, told reporters during the flight he was not worried about West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl's statement last week that the Lance missiles now deployed are adequate until 1995.

Under the proposal before the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, the current 70-mile range would be extended with new rockets that could hit targets about 320 miles away.

"I think what we need to do is to find out exactly what the German government's position is going to be," Baker told reporters.

Genscher, greeting Baker at rain-swept Bonn-Cologne airport, pledged to "work cooperatively together."

James Baker

On Baker's agenda in Bonn also were two other touchy issues — Western curbs on technology sales to the Soviet Union and the help West German firms gave to Libya in the construction of an alleged chemical weapons plant.

Baker said the British told him they would like to see the curbs lifted now that Soviet troops are leaving Afghanistan.

Wright's no martyr

Speaker of the House Jim Wright did an abrupt about-face Thursday after months of saying a proposed Congressional pay raise would not go to a vote in the House.

Up until that point, Wright had apparently believed that a 51-percent pay hike for lawmakers would go unnoticed by the taxpayers who would be asked to foot the bill.

A firm proponent of the raise, the speaker worked to ensure that it wouldn't come to a vote in the House. The body — so the plan went — was to stand in recess until after the deadline for the vote had passed. Lawmakers, without having to utter the damning "aye" for all the world to hear, would quietly pocket their ill-gotten booty, and all would be "Wright" with the world.

But the patsies back home weren't buying this time, and they pressured legislators to fight the pay raise by forcing a vote on the matter. Wright's fantasies were dealt a crushing 380-48 death blow in the House.

Wright contended Thursday that he knew a month ago that the pay raise would be put to a vote and that it was too large to be palatable. He also said his colleagues refused to listen to him.

Wright now makes himself out to be a martyr: A man who knew what was best and tried to save his comrades from committing a grave error, but whose pleas went unheeded.

Wright should take care with inferred comparisons between himself and historical martyrs, lest the public decide to reinstate burning at the stake.

Trimming some fat

"Fat trimming" is all the rage these days. It's seen at the federal and state levels in President George Bush's new "kinder, gentler" budget, that pares away at fat left from the Reagan administration, and in Governor Terry Branstad's new budget, focusing on high-tech research in an effort to slice away at the state's dependency upon a fat agricultural sector.

Now, the state Board of Regents has picked up their knife and decided to trim some fat from the three state universities.

Under a plan born from a recent audit conducted by Peat Marwick Main and Co., Iowa's three state universities would undergo what could amount to a major restructuring. According to Regents President Marvin Pomerantz, "we are going to change these universities, we are going to improve the quality."

Specifically, Pomerantz is talking about developing areas of excellence in the graduate programs in business and engineering at the UI and Iowa State University and making the University of Northern Iowa the center for education and teacher training.

At bottom, the regents' plan seems a good one. For years Iowa's state universities have tried to be all things to every person, a system that breeds two or three mediocre programs instead of one superior one. But consolidation should not turn Iowa's universities into trade schools.

The other side of trimming the fat is, of course, who loses and who gains. But the most disturbing unanswered question isn't one of winners and losers; it's one of how this streamlining of the state universities would affect undergraduate studies. In order to have top-notch specialized graduate programs, a solid undergraduate base is necessary.

If the regents' plan fails to give undergraduate education its just desserts, their new, improved graduate schools will be stocked with mediocre students who are unable to take full advantage of the fare being offered.

Expensive fish

A story in The Des Moines Register tells how last April, Dickey Kaster of Ventura, Iowa, was fishing in Clear Lake. He caught three fish using a gill net, which is illegal. As punishment, the Cerro Gordo County attorney's office seized Kaster's boat, motor, trailer and fishing gear, which are valued at about $5,000.

Under Iowa law, the illegal gill-netting is only a misdemeanor, and the maximum penalty for each charge could only be 30 days in jail or a $100 fine. The three fish were worth only about $15.

How was the seizure allowed to happen? The county attorney's office claims the action was justified under Iowa's forfeiture law, which allows authorities to seize property which was used in the commission of a crime. Kaster appealed the action, and last December Cerro Gordo County District Judge Stephen Carroll ruled in Kaster's favor. Nevertheless, the county attorney's office still has not returned Kaster's property and is appealing the ruling to the Iowa Supreme Court.

Judge Carroll's ruling on the case said the Iowa law is "unconstitutionally vague" and said it would allow "deciding these matters on an ad hoc and subjective basis." That certainly seems to be true in Kaster's case.

The penalty imposed was unfair and too severe. A more fair ruling would have been to impose a modest fine. Seizing $5,000 worth of equipment for the illegal catching of $15 worth of fish is a misuse of government authority. The Iowa seizure law needs to be rewritten to prevent such abuses of power in the future.

'Mississippi burning' raises questions about vengeance

Seemingly unrelated cultural events have a way of combining to create a sense of unease in a person. That happened for me recently. I went to see "Mississippi Burning". In the same week, the Supreme Court decided to relabel affirmative action "reverse discrimination." And Ted Bundy was finally tried, to the accompaniment of cheers and jeers from a crowd of Florida justice-seekers.

Very little of the ink spilled over "Mississippi Burning" concerns what I find to be the film's most provocative trait. The human desire to exact revenge propels the film from start to finish. Further, its plot construction and script serve to rouse that very desire for vengeance in each viewer. Its appearance is a strong sign that Americans live amidst a pervasive, culturally-conditioned lust for vengeance.

I reveled in Gene Hackman's beating and razoring of the sleaze-bucket deputy in the barbershop. It was, in fact, a just beating. Just in the proportional sense, an eye-for-an-eye sort of just. But it does not follow that, because one beating has an appearance of justice, it is just to dispense beatings. Only a fool would turn a situation such as the one we faced in the 1960s into a neat moral geometry. I remain troubled by my enthusiasm for Hackman's vigor in dispensing his version of justice.

Two lines of dialogue triggered my discomfort. Hackman, disgusted and outraged by the depths to which the local racist element has sunk and the FBI's procedurally-induced impotence in combating them, yells at his ever-procedural colleague: "These people crawled out of the sewer! Maybe the gutter is where we need to be!"

I have news for him and all others whose hearts pound, keen to spill blood on behalf of just causes: The gutter is never where we need to be. Happening to fall in is one thing, but endorsing such dips as the only means to root out entrenched social evil is vile. While the film does not blatantly make such an endorsement, it panders to low instincts.

You may counter that justice is noble, that I need not be unsettled at my earthy hankering for it. Noble it is, but dispensing it is a dangerous business which leaves those who take it into their hands lessened as humans. The hangman is always a drunkard, respectable citizens turn their eyes away from the executioner when they see him on the street — those are timeless truths.

Lowering ourselves to the level of criminals results in a cultural surliness parallel to that of the above-mentioned hangman. Everybody wants someone beaten up for the sake of justice, God almighty or a political ideology. The ends justify the means.

Kim Painter

But who would argue that a culture which condones beating and killing as punishment for crime does not suffer irreparable damage with each beating and death?

In the case of Bundy, the negative effects of eye-for-an-eye justice were immediate and clear. Those howling for his death were roused to a righteous passion which erased their reason. They committed vile acts, they said inhuman things, they made a joke out of life and death. America was diminished by the spectacle as surely as Bundy's acts tarnished our notion of life's promise.

So he's dead. I'm not crying for the guy, but can we say that the vicious or mad will now stop killing? Assuredly not. What we can say, what we saw with our own eyes, is that people of good intent were spiritually sullied. They crawled down into the gutter to get a look at Ted's last stand and ended up right where you would expect — on his level. This should tell us something of the power of evil and the importance of high-mindedness when it comes to questions of life and death.

We have just witnessed the departure of a presidential administration which promoted eye-for-an-eye justice in tandem with eye-for-an-eye economics. As a result, our society is diminished on every level. The national spirit is impoverished. Our citizens are undernourished and disaffected to an unprecedented degree. Our cultural icons are illiterate crooks who make corporate ledger sheets sprout zeroes through the manipulation of enormous debt, personal greed, and refusal to take responsibility for good and evil in themselves and the world. Our justice system turns its back on the difficult principles of affirmative action. They have encouraged white Americans to publicly regard enforced racial equality the way many have secretly done, as "reverse discrimination."

"Mississippi Burning" is a good film, an important one. See it. But don't overlook your delight in the retribution meted out. Don't rest easily with your own sense of vengeance. Question the nature of justice; ponder the social repercussions we suffer from our decisions to dispense it. Above all, consider that most of humanity's gods have said "vengeance is mine," and that they may well have done so for reasons that reach far beyond rhetorical flourish.

Vote 'yes' on the enrichment tax

After careful consideration, I'd like to urge Iowa City School District voters to cast their votes in favor of the school enrichment tax on Valentines Day, Tuesday, Feb. 14.

While the Iowa City Community School Board hasn't promised it, the passage of the enrichment tax would allow a cap to be placed on school property tax bills for the following five years. Normal growth in the property tax base along with income tax revenues make this a completely realistic proposal. Such a cap would demonstrate awareness of the few regressive aspects of the property tax, which is otherwise not a bad tax (compared to the alternatives).

Additional revenues are needed. Our schools are handicapped by an absence of receipts from tax-exempt structures which comprise half the value of Johnson County properties. In addition to the two interstates, which funnel business our way, our major industries, colleges, hospitals, parks and the Coralville Reservoir pay no property taxes. Our community is, of course, privileged to have these attractions which add immeasurably to our quality of life. Nevertheless, if (God forbid) the UI were John Deere instead, the school district would be paid millions more in property taxes.

But the individuals and businesses which provide the people who utilize these tax exempt structures with goods and services earn many millions of dollars in income. For example, the beer, food and motel rooms paid for by sports fans result in jobs and income for many people. The federal and state governments tax this income. Why shouldn't the school district do the same?

At the same time, since the income tax is somewhat progressive at lower levels, the burden of income tax won't fall on families struggling to purchase diapers for babies, students scraping to meet higher tuition costs, and the fixed-income elderly. This is the fairest tax the school board has at its disposal.

It's better to pay this tax up front instead of waiting for the school infrastructure to deteriorate until a bond issue is necessary to deal with an emergency. Then your taxes would go up much more to pay the interest on the bonds. Planning ahead wisely results in savings.

We live in a time when the politicians have misled the public into believing that we can reverse record deficits by lowering taxes. Many apparently want to believe that they can get something for nothing. The pundits say you, the voters, can not be made to understand that you have to pay for what you get, that you're too selfish and self-centered to look beyond yourselves. They are convinced that those of you who have already raised your children, don't have children, or send their kids to parochial school no longer value a good education for the children in our public schools.

But Johnson County is such a great place precisely because the people here aren't like that. This progressive, aware, engaged and informed community can not allow the minds of children to go unchallenged when there's something we can do about it. Let's make a pact to prove the pundits wrong this time. Let's vote yes for our future, yes for our children, yes for our teachers.

Let's say "no" to library fees for grade-schoolers, and "no" to bigger and bigger classes. Finally, let's say "yes" for our courageous, hard-working school board members who had the guts (yes, read their lips) to put this issue on the ballot.

It's about time someone talked sense to the voters. Thanks, Iowa City Community School Board, for the straight talk. You've got my vote.

Cletis writes an updated resumé

You've probably heard me talking about my cousin Cletis Cloverdale, who lives in Waxahachie, Texas, but never has been able to find a job for the last 12 years and so he's gonna take a crack at the Superconducting Supercollider that's supposed to create 17 million jobs in a giant tunnel under Waxahachie. Cletis came by last week, cause he heard I knew how to type and he needed to "update" his resumé.

Joe Bob Briggs

So I asked him what kind of job he was looking for.

"Hunnard a week and get off weekends."

See, once you've got yourself a clearly defined goal like that, then you're well on the way to being an employed individual. So up at the top of Cletis's resumé, I put "Career Objective: Detail-oriented self-starter with bottom-line savvy seeks entry-level trainee position in stable firm with growth potential."

Next thing, I asked Cletis what kind of education he had.

"I worked on my brother's truck."

I typed "Heavy equipment technology background."

"By the way, whatever happened to that truck after you worked on it? Never did see it again."

"We had to sell it for scrap," Cletis told me.

I typed "Creative problem solver."

Cletis reminded me he had three hours credit from 1968 when he went to the Big Rig Truck Driving School over in Shreveport, but I told him we couldn't write that down because he never did graduate. "You should never put misleading information on your resumé," I said.

Next thing, we got into Cletis's employment history. It was fine up until 1976. Cletis hailed dirt for Scrim Wilks, took inventory over at the Gulf station, and unloaded Christmas trees off railroad cars for the Elks Club. But ever since then, Cletis has just been sitting around the barber shop for most of the last 12 years. So at the end of the employment history, I wrote, "Due to the depressed economy, Mr. Cloverdale's position was eliminated."

Under "Personal," I typed "Divorced, Smoker, Skinny as a rail," but Cletis took exception to that. "I ain't divorced," he said. "I ain't SEEN her in seven years, but we never did put the papers through."

I got out the eraser and changed it to "Involved, Sort of, No dependents. Actually you wouldn't believe it."

"All right, Cletis, now we're at the point where every great resumé has to deliver the groceries. What are your specific skills for this job?"

"What job?" Cletis said.

"Running the Superconducting Supercollider."

"I'm a people person."

"GREAT! You've gotta be a people person for this. Very good."

"I'm a take-charge self-starter."

"We already said that."

"By the way, I don't smoke. I chew."

"Okay, but Cletis, what's the one skill that sort of sums up your ability to manage the world's largest atomic collider? We've gotta put that on here."

"I can type 20 words a minute with two mistakes."

"That's good, but it's not quite it."

"I can use a Dictaphone. I can't type out what's on it, but I can use it."

"Also good, but it doesn't really sum it up."

"I have management consultant experience in the field."

"Bingo!"

"I should of told you that to start with. I used to run a fork lift for Rusty Cheever."

"Was the fork lift made up of atomic particles?"

"I reckon. I didn't ask Rusty."

"You're in."

I typed in "Customer Service Hardware Systems Management Experience." The rest of you people out there might as well not even apply.

Winnie Mandela accused of beating 4 teen-age boys

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A major newspaper reported Sunday that black activist Winnie Mandela, the wife of jailed African National Congress leader Nelson Mandela, joined in beating some boys allegedly abducted by her unofficial bodyguards.

One of the boys, 14-year-old Stompie Seipei, is missing and feared dead. The report deepened the controversy surrounding Mandela, who has denied wrongdoing and implied allegations against her were fabricated to hurt her husband.

The Sunday Star, a Johannesburg newspaper that opposes apartheid, said in a front-page story that Mandela whipped four boys brought to her house in Soweto last month by young men loyal to her who call themselves the Mandela United soccer team. The paper did not identify its sources.

It was the first published report asserting Mandela participated in the alleged beating. Mandela, 54, in responding to allegations against her Friday, told CBS News, "It's not going to destroy Mandela."

"It's absurd that this particular name (Mandela) and this family can be associated with all the allegations that are being flung around," she said. Prominent Soweto activists and Methodist Church leaders have accused Mandela United members of assaulting four boys after abducting them from a church in Soweto, a black township outside Johannesburg.

The Star said one of the youths escaped and alerted community leaders meeting at a nearby Methodist church.

Dr. Abu Baker Asvat, a well-known anti-apartheid physician, eventually went to the house, saw the beaten boys, "and warned that Stompie had been so badly assaulted that he would not live," the newspaper said.

The next day, Asvat was shot and killed at his Soweto office by two young men pretending to be patients. Police are investigating the killing.

Winnie Mandela told CBS News that no Mandela United members were involved in Seipei's disappearance.

She was quoted Sunday by the black-oriented City Press newspaper as acknowledging the boys were taken to her home but denying she was present.

Arafat: Israel plans attack

ROME (AP) — Yasir Arafat says Israeli authorities secretly have contacted the Palestine Liberation Organization, according to an Italian newspaper.

However, the PLO leader said the Israeli government also was planning "new attacks on our leadership," according to an interview in the Rome-based daily Il Messaggero.

Israeli authorities "are sending us many messages secretly, through our representatives in the occupied territories (and) other channels in Europe and elsewhere," Arafat said in the interview published Saturday.

Israel officially says it will not negotiate directly with the PLO.

Asked who sent the messages, Arafat said: "I'm speaking of Israeli authorities. And in the past there were also these kinds of indirect contacts. Also during the occupation of Beirut there were negotiations through Philip Habib, the special (U.S.) envoy from Washington."

Israel sent troops into Lebanon in 1982, forcing the PLO to abandon Beirut.

Swaggart prays for donations to keep 'devil' from ruining him

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP) — Evangelist Jimmy Swaggart, who admits he sinned but accuses "pornographers" of trying to ruin him, says his once-thriving TV ministry will end this month unless he receives an influx of donations.

"If for whatever reason this week, you close the door in my face or you pass me by... Feb. 26 will be the final telecast for this ministry," Swaggart said in his television program distributed for broadcast this weekend.

"You are making a choice today, a choice between the pornographers that are working more diligently than you will ever know... or it's us. It's either the devil and darkness or it's God and light," Swaggart said.

Swaggart did not give any figures of how much money he needed. A guard who answered the phone Sunday said he could not contact Swaggart.

He has not released any hard figures on the ministry's financial problems. However, in the past year there have been layoffs at the ministries, cancellation of his weekly television show by three major cable networks, and an exodus of students from the Jimmy Swaggart Bible College.

In a tearful confession to his congregation last February, Swaggart said he had sinned, but did not reveal specifics. He later was defrocked by the Assemblies after refusing to stay away from the pulpit for at least one year.

Tamil rebels murder villagers during campaign bloodbath

COLOMBO, Sri Lanka (AP) — At least 55 people were killed in the last two days of campaigning for legislative elections, including 36 villagers massacred while they slept, officials said Sunday.

"It is the worst and bloodiest election campaign in Sri Lanka's history," said Elmo Gooneratne, a senior government official.

In the bloodiest attack, Tamil militants attacked the villagers in a remote jungle of central Sri Lanka.

Officials blamed militant Sinhalese for the other 19 slayings, including the assassination of an opposition party candidate. He was the 14th would-be legislator to die since campaigning for Wednesday's elections began five weeks ago.

More than 1,000 people have been killed since nominations for the elections began Jan. 6.

They will be the first parliamentary elections in Sri Lanka since 1977. A 1982 referendum doubled the normal six-year life of the legislature elected in 1977.

Campaigning ends at midnight Sunday. Most of the 1,400 candidates for 225 parliamentary seats spent the day addressing meetings and making last-minute appeals for votes.

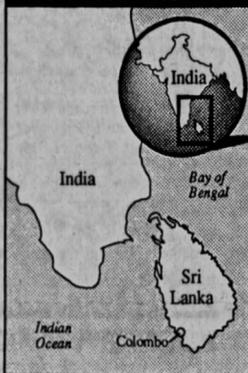

The village massacre was perpetrated by more than 50 rebels who crept into the rice-farming village of Dutuwewa and attacked with automatic rifle fire, clubs and machetes late Saturday, said a police officer contacted by telephone in nearby Horawapataka.

Military officials in Colombo said the 36 victims included 20 children.

"The rebels attacked a cluster of houses close to the jungle," according to the police officer, who said he was first to arrive at the scene.

Dutuwewa is about 60 miles north-east of Colombo, the capital. The village is in the predominantly Sinhalese North Central Province, but lies just outside Eastern Province, a main operational area for Tamil separatists.

Hundreds of army commandos and police fanned out in marshy jungles surrounding the village to search for the killers, while helicopters made aerial surveys to prevent the rebels from escaping, the policeman said on condition of anonymity.

A foreign ministry official in Colombo said the killings on the Liberation Tigers of Tamil Eelam, the most powerful Tamil guerrilla group that has waged a bloody war for independence since 1983.

The Tigers issued a statement denying responsibility.

More than 8,500 people have died in ethnic violence as minority Tamils press their attacks on the Sinhalese majority that dominates the government.

Mainly Hindu Tamils make up 18 percent of the island's 16 million people. They claim they are discriminated against in education, employment and culture by the majority Buddhist Sinhalese.

In southern Sri Lanka, attackers wearing camouflage uniforms killed Somapala Amarakeerthi of the Sri Lanka Freedom Party, his brother David, and a supporter, military officials said.

(AP) — In college basketball this season, it's not good to be the king. No sooner do you get to the throne than someone comes up and lops off your head.

Arizona became the third team in three weeks to reach the top and lose within a week when it lost 82-80 to No. 5 Oklahoma Sunday.

Stacey King scored 24 points and Oklahoma overcame a seven-point, second-half deficit.

In beating Arizona, Oklahoma won its 27th consecutive home game. Sean Elliott scored 26 points for Arizona, 18-3, which had its 10-game winning streak snapped.

UCLA 77, No. 4 Louisville 75
Pervis Ellison was called for goaltending on Pooh Richardson's 8-footer with one second left and Louisville lost for the second time in a week.

The Bruins, 16-5, scored five points in the last 1:10 to overcome a 75-72 deficit, taking advantage of two bad passes by the Cardinals, 17-5.

Wilson scored 21 points and grabbed 13 rebounds for UCLA. Payne scored 22 for Louisville and Ellison added 19.

No. 6 North Carolina 85, Virginia 67

Steve Bucknall scored 19 points as the Tar Heels avenged a 106-83 loss to the Cavaliers last month.

North Carolina, 19-5 and 6-3 in the Atlantic Coast Conference, made eight of its first 11 shots while Virginia made just two of its first 12. The Cavaliers, 13-8 and 5-4, never got the deficit below seven points after that.

Bryant Stith scored 20 points for Virginia.

No. 13 Indiana 64, Purdue 62

Jay Edwards made a game-winning 14-foot jumper with four seconds left, giving Purdue its sixth loss in seven games.

The Hoosiers, 20-5 overall and 10-1 in the Big Ten, rallied from an 11-point deficit midway through the second half and won their 14th consecutive home game over two seasons.

Purdue slipped to 10-13 and 3-7.

Edwards scored 27 points for Indiana. Kip Jones scored 11 points for Purdue.

No. 19 Nev.-Las Vegas 89, No. 17 N. Carolina St. 80

David Butler scored 21 points, including 15 in the first half, as the Runnin' Rebels took a 49-34 half-time lead.

Stacey Augmon added 20 points for Nevada-Las Vegas, 16-6, who led 26-9 midway through the first half.

Rodney Monroe scored 37 points for the Wolfpack, 15-5, who closed to 68-66 with 7:12 remaining before the Rebels went on a 12-6 spurt.

No. 3 Missouri 93, Kansas 80

Byron Irvin scored 22 points and the Tigers won for the first time under assistant coach Rich Daly, who took over when Norm Stewart was hospitalized Thursday.

Missouri, 21-4 and 7-1 in the Big Eight, won as Stewart watched from a hospital bed for the second straight game.

Kan. 16-8 and 3-6, lost its fifth straight game and remained stuck at 1,599 school victories. Mark Randall scored 18 points for the Jayhawks.

No. 5 Hawkeyes claim upset wins over mat powers

By Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

In back-to-back outings this weekend the fifth-ranked Iowa Hawkeyes defeated the top-ranked Oklahoma State Cowboys and Arizona State Sun Devils at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Arizona State and Oklahoma State were tied for the top spot on the latest Associated Press wrestling poll.

Saturday the Hawkeyes took seven of ten weights in beating the Cowboys 26-10. Iowa carried the momentum of that convincing victory into the match with Arizona State Sunday, coming away with a 20-14 win.

"I'm greedy," Iowa Coach Dan Gable said Sunday. "I wanted another performance as good as (Saturday) night's. There are some things that I saw today that made me hoot and holler, but I saw some things today that weren't consistent with the performances we need."

The weekend was full of key matches.

In the dual with the Cowboys, Mark Reiland gained an upset pin over all-American Wes White at 158 pounds. The freshman caught White on his back for the fall.

"He just had the legs in and I sat back," Reiland said. "I fell back on him, grabbed his head and bridged. I work on that move some. If a guy puts in the legs and doesn't like to ride, then it's a good move to use."

Freshman Don Finch used a last-second reversal to upend

Iowa will try to halt skid against Buckeyes

(AP) — Ohio State and Iowa will conclude a demanding stretch of Big Ten Conference basketball games when they square off at Carver-Hawkeye Arena on Monday night.

It will be the third game in five days for both nationally ranked teams. No. 8 Iowa lost to Michigan 108-107 in two overtimes last Thursday night, then had to play at Wisconsin less than 48 hours later and was beaten 65-54.

Ohio State has fared a little better. The 16th-ranked Buckeyes bounced back from Thursday night's 62-60 loss at Illinois to defeat Michigan State 81-75 on Saturday.

"If we had only played one game on the weekend, if we had just played Saturday, then playing Monday would not be a problem," Iowa coach Tom Davis said. "But to play a third game in five days, I'd just as soon not do that. I think we all understand why these things come about. They try to put together certain matches for television."

Men's Basketball

"It's fair for both teams because both are playing their third game in five days. It's very even when both teams are going through the same scheduling problem."

The ESPN cable network will televise the game nationally. Tipoff time is 8:35 p.m.

Iowa's two straight losses have dropped the Hawkeyes to 17-6 overall and into sixth place in the Big Ten at 5-5. Ohio State also is 17-6 for the season and is tied with Michigan for third in the league at 6-4.

Wisconsin frustrated Iowa with a patient offense that had the Hawkeyes out of synch all afternoon. Iowa shot 39 percent from the field and committed 24 turnovers, seven by point guard B.J. Armstrong. The 54 points were the fewest Iowa has scored under Davis. The previous low was 59 against Arizona last season.

Davis said he couldn't say for sure if fatigue from the Michigan game caused the lackluster performance, but added:

"I think it's probably a pretty good guess. That was a pretty draining experience and certainly was a factor."

Armstrong was Iowa's leading scorer with 13 points and Roy Marble scored 12. They were the only Iowa players in double figures. Ed Horton, the team's leading scorer in conference play, was limited to seven shots and scored only seven points.

"I think they played great defense," Davis said. "I don't they did anything special or unusual. They had good pressure on the ball and real good help off the ball."

'Vitale' brings the wacko to print

By Kevin Goulding
The Daily Iowan

If you're a PTHF (prime time hoops fan) you've gotta read "Vitale: Just Your Average Bald, One-Eyed Basketball Wacko Who Beat the Ziggy and Became a PTP'er."

Make no mistake about it, this book is pure Vitale — passionate, unrestrained and enthusiastic — Little Richie taking it to the rack for a slam bam jam.

From his days growing up in Garfield, N.J., ("... halfway between the meccas of the game: the Garden in New York and the Palestra, that magical, mystical

"I'm a kid in a candy store, a junkie, an out-and-out-addict when it comes to basketball. I live and breathe the game."
— Dick Vitale

bandbox" through his days as coach of the Detroit Pistons, through his broadcasting career at ESPN and ABC, Vitale has had a love affair with basketball and the accompanying hoopla that has never wavered.

"Vitale" is the story of a lifelong gym-rat who never had to leave the gym, he just had to put on a suit and direct his railings at the TV camera.

How much does Little Richie love the game?

"Okay, okay. Right away I'll admit it. I'm a kid in a candy store, a junkie, an out-and-out-addict when it comes to basketball. I live and breathe the game. Always have. Always will. Don't ask me to explain it, at least not in so many words. You know what that might mean. There would be so many — so many we'd have to give hernia warnings with each copy of the book."

Vitale wanted the book to read like one of his on-air broadcasting

Dick Vitale monologues. In order to achieve this he enlisted the services of Curry Kirkpatrick, the lead college basketball reporter for Sports Illustrated.

The choice of personal narrative is well-suited given the prominence of the story-teller. This is the closest that a written account can come to having volume. It's like some bizarre Time-Life textual/audio account of Nazi Germany or the Wild American West — for better or worse you get Vitale's voice as you read.

Sentences begin with "Hey" and end with "baby." Superlatives fly like UNLV three-pointers. If Billie Holiday was the vocal expression of jazz, then Dick Vitale, as pointed out by a Seattle sports reporter, sounds like college basketball. Such jargon as "Dow Joneser," "M&M'er" and (are you listening Bill Frieder?) "Creampuff Delight" comes right off the streets and sandlots, and similar to the way that Julius Erving was credited for bringing "street" ball to the pros, Vitale has successfully incorporated "street" slang into broadcasting.

Like a Howard Cosell on amphetamines, Dick Vitale is notoriously candid and controversial. "Vitale," though, shows that he can take it

Hawks take over Big Ten lead

By Michael Triik
The Daily Iowan

It had been a long time since the Iowa women's basketball team had its back to the wall in Carver-Hawkeye Arena, but Friday night it did.

Purdue's Anne Kvachkoff missed a three-point attempt as time expired, allowing seventh-ranked Iowa to clip the tenth-rated Boilermakers 66-64.

Sunday, Iowa bombed Illinois 82-50.

The sweep leaves Iowa in sole possession of first place in the Big Ten with a 10-1 record. Iowa is 20-3 overall. Purdue, which came into the weekend tied with Iowa for the conference lead, slips to 9-2 and 18-3. Illinois is 3-8 and 8-14.

Purdue had Iowa's 36-game, home winning streak in jeopardy at 64-59 with 3 minutes, 32 seconds left to play. But Iowa outscored the Boilermakers 7-0 the rest of the game to knock Purdue out of the Big Ten lead.

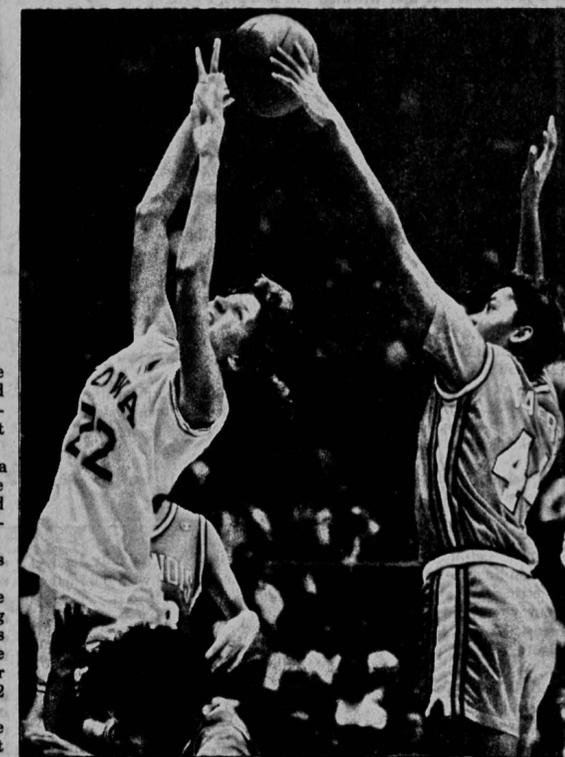

"I felt we played well enough that we should have won the game," Purdue Coach Lin Dunn said. "I thought we controlled the game the whole second half, but you have to credit Iowa. They never gave up."

Iowa opened a 27-18 lead at the 5:59 mark of the first half, but Purdue battled back to a 31-31 tie at halftime. Then the Boilermakers owned the first 16:00 of the second half before Iowa rallied for the win.

"Our kids were really relaxed," Dunn said. "We were controlling the ball game and we kind of just broke down at the end. In the first half we were playing so poorly and we were still in there at halftime."

Friday's win avenged the Hawkeyes only conference loss this season, a 67-56 loss at West Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 29.

"We were determined tonight," Stringer said. "We played passively at Purdue." Sunday, Iowa overcame a some-

Gretzky hits 40 goals for 10th season

CHICAGO (AP) — Wayne Gretzky reached the 40-goal plateau for an NHL-record 10th consecutive season and recorded his 45th career hat trick Sunday as the Los Angeles Kings overpowered the Chicago Blackhawks, 6-2.

Gretzky's 40th goal of the season, on a second-period power play, gave the Kings a 2-1 lead. His second goal capped the Kings' four-goal second period and his third came while the Kings were killing a penalty early in the final period.

The Blackhawks' defense was impregnable for the first period and a half, limiting Los Angeles to four shots in the first 20 minutes and outshooting the Kings 11-0 in the second period before Bernie Nicholls' 54th goal of the season at 9:15 tied the game 1-1.

Gretzky's short-handed goal early in the third period completed his hat trick. Dirk Graham scored a shorthanded goal for Chicago at 11:06 before the Kings' Bob Kudelski completed the scoring with his first NHL goal at 16:15.

Everett SaniPASS gave the Blackhawks a 1-0 lead 4:50 into the game, firing the rebound of Trent Yawney's long drive past goaltender Glenn Healy.

Healy kept the Blackhawks from extending their lead until Tim Watters found Nicholls breaking in alone and Nicholls beat goaltender Alain Chevrier from in front to tie the score.

After Chicago's Dave Manson was penalized for interference at 9:41, Krushelnyski intercepted a pass and fed Gretzky, who beat Chevrier from 10 feet.

Bowman wins U.S. Championships

BALTIMORE (AP) — Chris Bowman soared past Danny Doran in Sunday's free skate to win his first U.S. Figure Skating championship.

Bowman, a far superior free skater to Doran, hit six of his seven triple jumps and barely touched his hand to the ice on the seventh. When Doran had a shaky, conservative outing, the men's title was Bowman's.

as well as dish it out. His motivation for "telling it like it is" has as much to do with generating excitement as drawing out the participants from behind their bluff and bluster. How else could you handle a Bobby Knight or a Mark Aguirre? A John Thompson or Patrick Ewing? Dick Vitale backs down from no one and no issue is too touchy for him to go after.

Despite him or love him, no one has elevated the game of basketball, in terms of creating, as the British would say, "a sense of occasion" more than Dick Vitale. He often gets carried away and raves during broadcasts ("It's all over, get the linguini ready Mrs. Massimino, we're coming home") but when Dick Vitale is involved everyone knows it, the juice is turned on and it's rock and roll time.

"Vitale" shakes and bakes. Dick Vitale will be at Prairie Lights bookstore today from 11:30 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. for a book signing/autograph session.

fifth-rated Jim Gressley at 177 pounds against Arizona State Sunday.

"It was probably the biggest win of my career," Finch said. The win moved Finch over the five-hundred mark at 13-12-2 for the season.

Iowa all-American John Heffernan recorded an upset of sorts at 167 pounds against Oklahoma State. The fourth-rated senior gained a takedown with sixteen-seconds remaining for a 6-5 win over top-ranked Mike Farrell.

"I just went out and wrestled pretty much like I usually do," Heffernan said. "Basically I just got him tired. He was dead tired. I didn't wrestle down very well, which is probably my biggest area that I have to work on."

Terry and Tom Brands, at 118 pounds and 126 pounds respectively, each scored major decisions over higher-rated opponents.

Terry's 13-4 win against ninth-ranked Cory Baze put the Hawkeyes ahead 4-0 in the team scoring Saturday. Tom continued the trend with a 19-9 handling of second-rated Kendall Cross.

"It felt great," Terry said. "I just caught him off guard a couple of times and took advantage of it."

"I think I'm improving," Tom said. "This is the point of the season where you can't have any setbacks. This is where you have to start putting people away and blowing them away."

And if it isn't enough to ask freshman to wrestle the nation's top competition, the Brands brothers each moved up one weight class in the Arizona State dual — and they both won.

Following Steve Martin's win over Zeke Jones at 118 pounds, Terry Brands scored an 8-6 decision over Marco Sanchez at 126. In the match at 134 pounds, Tom Brands gained a technical fall over the Sun Devil's Rogelio Moreno, 26-10.

"For the first time in a long time, I see six teams competing for the (national) title," Arizona State Coach Bobby Douglas said. "I don't think the best dual team has anything to do with the national title, because right now I don't know if we know who the best dual team is."

Iowa, now 16-2 overall, prepares for Sunday's rematch with Iowa State Sunday at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. The Hawkeyes won 25-15, Jan. 15 at Ames.

"We won't look past Iowa State, but we aren't keying for them right now," Gable said. "We still have a lot of work to do in the wrestling room."

"I didn't sleep good (Saturday) night and I won't sleep good tonight. It means a lot to me to be successful."

Hawkeyes

Wisconsin definitely did a better job defending the interior than we did getting the ball in there."

Four players did all of Wisconsin's scoring. Trent Jackson led the Badgers with 24 points, including four 3-pointers, Danny Jones scored 15 and Tom Molaski and Tim Locum had 13 each.

The Badgers jumped to an early 15-5 lead before the Hawkeyes got untracked. Iowa then scored eight points in 50 seconds to start a 15-4 run and grabbed its only lead of the game at 20-19 with 8:02 left in the half.

Iowa, 17-6 and 5-5, never got closer than five in the second half in suffering its second straight loss. The Hawkeyes entered the game averaging 91 points and had not been held below 67.

Monday, the Hawkeyes' main task will be containing Jay Burson, something they've been unable to

Iowa gymnasts claim weekend sweep

By Erica Weiland
The Daily Iowan

Iowa women's gymnastics Coach Diane DeMarco wasn't completely pleased with her team's performance this past weekend, but she'll take it.

On their home turf Friday, the Hawkeyes scored 180.4 to beat Big Ten rival Wisconsin, 178.6, and Southeast Missouri State, 177.5. Sunday Iowa traveled to Illinois State and defeated the host Redbirds 181.15 to 154.3. The weekend sweep boosts Iowa to 8-3 on the season.

"It was great beating Wisconsin," Iowa Coach Diane DeMarco said, "but it wasn't our best performance. Although it was a victory, it wasn't a satisfying feeling. Any Big Ten conference team is a challenge.

Women's Gymnastics

Most all of the teams are neck and neck you know you'll have to fight for the victory."

Sophomore Michelle Cahal performed well for Iowa, setting a new school record on the uneven parallel bars with a first-place 9.65 score. Iowa broke its team record in that event with a score of 46.55.

While Cahal's score highlighted Friday's win, several Hawkeyes turned in key performances. Junior Robyn Zussman finished first in the vault and senior Kathie Orwig tied Wisconsin's Michele Hernan-

Iowa's Houghton earns 100th victory

By Julie Deardorff
The Daily Iowan

Iowa tennis Coach Steve Houghton suffered through the traditional dousing from the water cooler when he posted his 100th win Friday with a 7-2 victory over Iowa State. The Hawkeyes, 2-0, also gave him number 101 with a 7-2 win over St. Ambrose Saturday.

"It may be reflective of longevity and advancing age rather than success," said the 40-year old coach. "Ironically enough, it was two guys playing their first match for me that won the decisive match."

Iowa led Iowa State 4-2 after the singles matches with wins by Mike Kiewiet, Martin Aguirre, Dave Novak and Jay Maltby. They clinched the meet with a win by the doubles team of junior Paul Buckingham, a transfer from Indiana, and Kiewiet, a transfer from Western Michigan. The pair beat Glen Wilson and Jeff Bensen 6-2, 7-5.

"They were up (in the first match) and it was three-all on a set point," Kiewiet explained. "Bucky took three steps back and hit a huge overhead right down the line. That gave us a lot of momentum."

"It woke us up, too," added Buckingham.

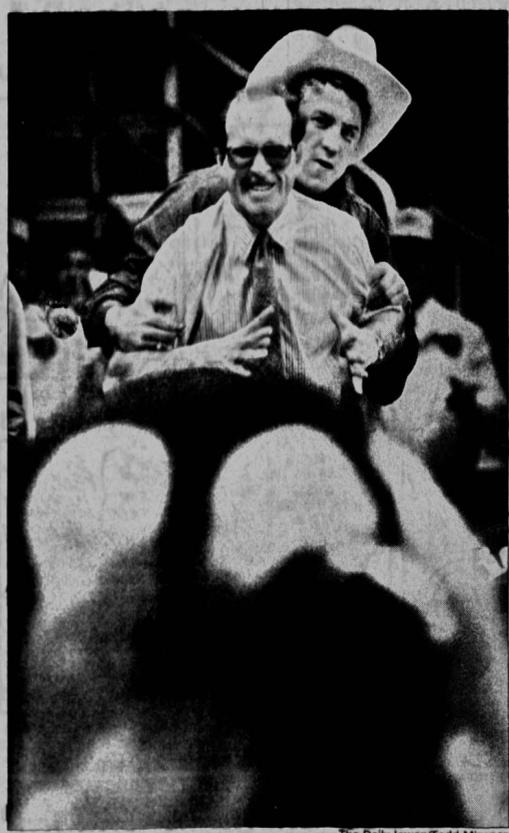

Iowa swept doubles competition as Aguirre and Claes Ramel beat Ivan Srut and Rob Spears 7-5, 3-6, 6-1, and Lars Nordmark and Dave Novak defeated Owe Pipkorn and Ismawan Chamdani 6-2, 7-5.

"(Iowa State's) Chamdani never missed his first serve," said Novak. "So we both went wide and tempted him to serve up the middle. Then he started serving bad, lost his confidence and we took control."

Houghton juggled the lineup against St. Ambrose, something he said he will do throughout most of the preseason. Kiewiet beat Ronald Martin 6-0, 7-6 at No. 3 singles, Novak defeated Rob Lombardi 6-3, 6-3 at No. 4, Maltby beat Arti Paar at No. 5 by a 6-1, 6-0 score and Lars Nordmark also won 6-0, 6-1, beating Harold Brandan at No. 6.

Iowa led 4-2 after singles and swept doubles competition for the second day in a row.

Houston Baptist edges out Iowa in dual

By Mike Polisky
The Daily Iowan

When the 10th-ranked Iowa men's gymnastics team traveled to Carbondale, Ill., last Friday to face third-ranked Houston Baptist, the meet was supposed to be a confrontation of two of the best squads in the country.

Their performances, however, were not worthy of their rankings.

Houston Baptist edged Iowa for the three-team championship, outscoring the Hawkeyes 266.8 to 264.9. The host team, Southern Illinois, finished last at 249.8.

"Houston Baptist didn't perform at their best," Iowa Coach Tom Dunn said, "and neither did we. This was possibly our worst performance of the year. In terms of hitting our routines, we were very bad — we had a lot of misses."

"Even though Houston Baptist wasn't at their best, the close score was positive in the sense that we can compete with the top teams if we perform to our capabilities."

Houston Baptist's Miguel Rubio claimed the all-around title, scoring a 55.05. Iowa's top performers, Jeff Dow and Keith Cousino, finished second and fourth respectively with scores of 53.9 and 53.0.

Dow, coming off a week layoff because of the flu, was pleased with his performance.

"I was pretty happy with the way things went," Dow said. "During warm-ups I was really fatigued and I felt weak. But there was a lot of rest time between events which made it a lot easier to catch my breath."

"We stayed close even though we performed poorly. It shows us that we can compete with the good teams."

Dow and Cousino each placed in three individual events. Cousino placed third in the pommel horse with a 9.1, and third in floor exercise with a score of 9.0. Dow placed second in floor exercise with a 9.2.

Malone claims MVP award, helps West to All-Star win

HOUSTON (AP)—Magic made it into the NBA All-Star game after all.

Not Magic Johnson, mind you, but the magic created by Utah teammates Karl Malone's scoring and John Stockton's passing.

"A lot of people wonder where Utah is," Malone said after winning Most Valuable Player honors in the West's 143-134 victory over the East Sunday. "It's in Salt Lake City."

Malone scored 18 of his 28 points in the first half and was 8-for-9 from the field in the first two periods, most coming on dunks or feathery layups.

"This is really emotional for me," Malone said of winning MVP honors. "I can't believe I'm standing here. John Stockton deserves half of this award."

Stockton, the only point guard on the West team after Johnson, the scheduled starter, was injured on Wednesday night, directed a record-breaking attack in the first half.

"As soon as I found out Earvin (Johnson) wouldn't be here, I put in some plays from the Utah offense for Stockton and Malone," said Pat Riley, who coached the West for the seventh time in eight years. "Stockton had to play a lot of minutes, but he's a great player."

Stockton wowed a record All-Star crowd at the Astrodome with a record nine assists in the first quarter and finished with 17 to go with his 11 points.

The West led by as many as 31 points en route to an 87-59 half-time lead, breaking by one the All-Star record for points in a half set by the West in 1962. The East got as close as seven in the fourth quarter before faltering.

Stockton's nine assists in the first quarter broke Johnson's 1984 mark of eight, although Stockton didn't play the last 3:18.

Dale Ellis, Saturday's 3-point shooting contest winner, was 12-for-16 from the field, mostly from outside, and scored 27 points. Alex English added 16 for the West.

Michael Jordan scored 12 of his 28 points in the fourth quarter and Isiah Thomas had 19 points and 14 assists for the East, which still leads the All-Star series 25-14. The East had won seven of the previous nine games.

Kareem Abdul-Jabbar, in his 20th and last season, appeared in his 18th All-Star Game, missing his first five shots and scoring four points, including the last basket of the game. He set the career All-Star scoring record last year.

The attendance of 44,735 broke the All-Star record of 43,146 at the Indianapolis Hoosier Dome in 1985. It was the largest NBA crowd ever away from the Pontiac Silverdome, which has the four largest ever.

The West broke away from a 12-12 tie by outscoring the East 35-19 in the last 8:14 of the first period.

The spurt started with a 13-2 run during which Malone scored six consecutive points and Ellis five.

With Stockton out, the West offense hardly slowed down. Chris Mullin, a 6-foot-7 forward, took over at point guard, but got help bringing the ball upcourt from 6-10 Tom Chambers, who scored 12 points in 5:14, helping the West balloon its margin to 57-33 with 8:44 left in the first half.

Only the outside shooting of Ellis and English, who had 10 points in the first quarter, kept the game from being a complete fastbreak, slam-dunk fest for the West.

While the West was blowing by them, the East players couldn't get in synch. Their most memorable play was a botched alley-oop bounce pass by Thomas in the first quarter.

With the East missing 10 of 14 free throws in the second period, the West expanded its lead to 76-45 before settling for a 28-point halftime bulge.

The East rallied in the third period as Thomas directed the offense and scored eight points himself.

The West saw the East narrow the margin to 109-96 late in the third period on a dunk by Moses Malone, finishing off an 11-0 run.

McGhee breaks Big Ten, Iowa hurdle mark

The Daily Iowan

For the second straight week, Pat McGhee broke the Iowa school record in 55-meter hurdles, but this time the Big Ten record fell along with it.

McGhee's time of 7.14 seconds Saturday at the Central Collegiate Indoor in South Bend, Ind., eclipsed his own 7.25 Iowa mark set last weekend against Minnesota's Ron Woodson's

Men's Track

7.18. Woodson set the mark during his junior year at Purdue in 1986.

The Hawkeyes sent only a partial squad to the two-day event and the 30 point team total placed them tied for sixth with Illinois State, Michigan State and Wisconsin.

Illinois took the team title with 120½, Purdue finished second with 98, Michigan was third with 71½, Eastern Michigan placed fourth with 57 and Loyola came in fifth with 38.

McGhee said a quick start and an ideal track helped make the record time possible.

"I had a really good start out of the blocks," he said. "I ran by myself. I couldn't see anyone beside me.

"I surprised myself there and the week before that I think I was surprised at how well I ran. I think that will be the fastest time I run this year because the track was really nice."

Iowa's mile relay team of St. Clair Blackman, James Armstrong, Paul Steele and McGhee placed second in 3 minutes, 12.40 seconds. Coach Ted Wheeler said the time was even more impressive because it is still early in the indoor season.

"We thought the meet went rather well because we didn't take a lot of people," Wheeler said. "The mile relay ran a good time to get us into a fast heat. Their fast time at this time of the year is quite an achievement to be proud of."

Wheeler also added that McGhee's accomplishment is unique because the senior hurdler holds both the 55-meter record and the Iowa record for the 400-meter hurdles.

Runners qualify for NAAs, set school record in relay

By Steve Reed
The Daily Iowan

Although there was no official team winner at the Husker Invitational in Lincoln, Neb., this weekend, the Iowa women's track team does have something to celebrate.

The Husker Invite was an unscored meet but the Hawkeyes accomplished their primary goal — qualify its 800-meter relay team for the NCAA Track and Field Championships at Indianapolis March 10-11.

Not only did the relay squad qualify for the NCAA meet, but they also set a school record along the way.

Seniors Kim Schneckloth and Rachele Roberts teamed with junior Jeanne Kruckeberg and sophomore Tami Hoskins for a time of 8 minutes, 44.42 seconds to qualify for the NCAA event.

"We had focused on qualifying in the 800 the whole week," Hoskins said. "Our second goal was to win the race. Things turned out well and we did both, plus set a school record and qualified by five seconds."

"We were pretty nervous. Usually we're talking before the race but we were quiet this time. Kim and Jeanne had their best splits of the year and qualifying gave us a great feeling."

Hoskins said the foursome's next goal is to become all-Americans. In order to do so, they would have to place in the top six at the NCAA meet.

"I think we can do it at nationals," said Kruckeberg. "We beat a lot of good teams here, and hopefully things will work out for us."

Kruckeberg, who received all-America status last year in the mile, also qualified for the NCAA's in the mile with a second-place time of 4:45.35.

"I didn't get off to a good start, so I was out of the race by the first lap," said Kruckeberg. "But I'm glad I did it (qualified for nationals), so now I have a choice between the mile and the 800-meter run."

Kruckeberg said she is leaning toward the half-mile because last year she ran the mile at nationals, and she feels she can still decrease her 800 time by six seconds.

Schneckloth placed fourth in the 3,000-meter run, while Roberts placed sixth in the mile. Hoskins finished fifth in the 1,000-meter.

The Hawkeyes also had good individual performances from Becki Borg, Laura Kriener and Beverly Powell. Borg finished ninth in the triple jump, Kriener took eighth in the shot put and Powell placed fifth in the 600-meter run.

Lendl wins Volvo tennis title

CHICAGO (AP) — Ivan Lendl playing at less than his best is still better than most.

And he proved it again Sunday, surviving a shaky start and a close finish and outlasting Brad Gilbert in a battle from the baseline to claim a 6-2, 7-6 (7-3) victory and the championship of the $350,000 Volvo Tennis-Chicago tennis tournament.

The world's top-rated player came in against Gilbert after staving off two match points in a late Saturday night semifinal victory over defending champion Tim Mayotte, and looked lethargic in the early going.

"I was trying hard, but I wasn't playing with a game plan. That's why you saw so many strains in my matches this week," Lendl said.

"I just hit the ball hard and if goes in, it goes in," he added, "and if it doesn't it doesn't."

Fortunately for Lendl, the 20th-ranked Gilbert wasn't much sharper, although he had an easier semifinal match against Horacio de la Pena.

"For a few-game stretch there (in the second set), he missed some groundstrokes where he hadn't missed any for the first set and a half," Gilbert said.

"The problem was I started making some errors, too, and I just couldn't capitalize on a chance to get back into it," he said. "As things turned out, that seventh game of the second set was huge."

Gilbert failed to capitalize on Lendl's rough start as well, losing his opening service despite delivering two of the five aces and one of five service winners he had on the day.

Lendl gave the break back in the next game, but Gilbert lost the last four points on his next service — three on unforced errors — and Lendl quickly turned the 2-1 advantage into a decisive 5-2 edge with another break in the seventh game.

He served for the set and won it with a backhand passing shot that was typical of his dominant ground strokes at that juncture of the match.

And when Lendl broke Gilbert in the opening game of the second set, he appeared on the fast track towards the $60,000 first-place prize.

But Gilbert, who came into the match having lost all 14 previous meetings against the Czech, broke back on Lendl's second serve of the set.

The David Gordon/Pick Up Company in "Words, Music, Wildlife and Weather."

Gordon's chancy dancers try to leap too far, too fast

By Bonnie Gordon
The Daily Iowan

Expectations are a big part of the enjoyment, or lack thereof, of any performance. They can transform the quality of a mediocre effort or drag excellence into the gutter.

Two sections of David Gordon's "United States" — "Pounding the Beat and Slaughter" and "Words, Music, Wildlife and Weather" — were performed Saturday night at Hancher Auditorium. They transcended the expectations of a modern dance aficionado in the same way that a documentary about the South might startle someone who thought she was about to see another "Mississippi Burning."

This is because even the most avant-garde of Soho dance studios still depend on the physical excitement dancers generate through the seemingly superhuman abilities of their bodies. All other trappings of dance may be altered or even may disappear entirely, but that — at least — usually remains.

David Gordon choreographs for dancers who hardly dance, by most standards.

To the extent that this strategy is deliberate, it is one of the chanciest on the scene today. Because his results are felicitous and often genuinely engaging, it is a remarkably successful gamble.

Several elements combine to create Gordon's danse verité style. He has eliminated the stage left "wings" — the curtains that hide dancers' entrances until they leap or twirl onto the stage — so we can see them standing in semi-darkness as they await their cues. The stage lights, usually out of sight above the arch of the proscenium, are in full view. The costumes look homegrown at best and clumsy at worst. Fully one-third of Saturday night's performance was performed to spoken recordings of real people talking street speech instead of music.

But again, all of the above is expected from the dance avant-garde. What took guts was giving a major role to an elderly woman who may have taken some ballet as a child but was clearly no professional; sending a dancer onstage (David Gordon himself) who needs to lose at least 20 pounds; and giving the rest of the company movement that would seem easy compared with really good ballroom dancing.

These seeming drawbacks are less important than they might otherwise be because other factors in the entirety of the work are intriguing.

First, the dancers clearly enjoy themselves onstage. They may be of second- or even third-rank technically, but their awareness of the whole group's movement and their part in it is a commodity dearly bought in many dance companies.

Gordon also sustains visual interest, despite the openly repetitive nature of his choreography, by maintaining both constant flow and variety onstage. At any given time three or more dances are taking place at once with seemingly very little forethought given to how they logically fit together. It is as if a group of children who know only half a dozen words were speaking to each other.

Finally, his juxtapositions and ideas are interesting. For instance, the first half explores the power relationship between the police, social establishment and street life in New York City, graphically illustrating the unfairness of the structure. One spoken episode, related in a flat voice over the loudspeaker, involves the unnecessary killing of a member of the lower classes by a cop. Five minutes later a well-dressed gentleman has a stroke and a dozen police officers appear, dancing for his worried wife.

The second half of Saturday's performance seemed to be variations on a theme of development — starting with dancers waddling bird-like onstage to a reading from a recent New York Times article about Iowa professor of psychology Edward Wasserman's research on the intelligence of pigeons. This movement graduated into a game of "musical chair," with three dancers competing to sit on a single white folding chair in an implied peak fight for leadership of the flock.

From there we went to the history of industry in the Midwest and the beginning of the desecration of the environment. Was Gordon saying that our achievements are no more than a playing out of our most animal instincts? Did he mean to suggest, through his choice of texts, that the Dust Bowl of the 1930s was created by greedy lumber kings in the years after the turn of the century?

As the viewer was left toying with these possibilities, the actual events onstage hardly seemed to matter after a while.

The biggest fault with "United States" seems to be somewhat contextual. It is an epic, financed by 27 major arts organizations across the nation, including Hancher Auditorium, and is slated to occupy two full nights at the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., later this year.

Given the importance of the effort, perhaps Gordon's approach is a little too laissez-faire. It is fine and good to leave all conclusions up to the audience and rely on deliberately pedestrian choreography, but not with all that money, expectation and weighty subject matter riding on your work.

At least, such an undertaking requires more intensity of feeling than "United States" seems to be attempting to arouse in its viewers. It is not enough to be likable, genially ironic, pleasantly ambiguous and interesting. "United States" lacks the drive, passion and sweep of the nation it portrays.

Tough talk on Top 40 schlock

By Steve Cruse
The Daily Iowan

Attention, terminal teenyboppers. It's time again for a stroll down Top 40 Lane. Keep in mind that this is criticism, not a competition — so please, no wagging.

Debbie Gibson, "Lost In Your Eyes" — MTV's most popular little snack cake plays with the piano and reads us a page from her diary. In case you haven't noticed, she's adopted a new image that has something to do with mascara and a hat; hopefully, she'll win a Grammy in the near future and thereby be thoroughly discredited.

Samantha Fox, "I Wanna Have Some Fun" — So shut up and go to Times Square.

Taylor Dayne, "Don't Rush Me" — Why? Are you doing something artistic?

White Lion, "When the Children Cry" — Sensitive metal dudes reveal their secret desire to be Tracy Chapman. This song doesn't make me feel particularly concerned about when, how or why the children cry; it's rather annoying, in fact, that a band of this ilk would even attempt anything more lyrically sophisticated than "Wait/Wait."

Tone Loc, "Wild Thing" — Rap, as we all know, isn't any good unless it's funny; there's no music per se to back up the words, so the words have to hold your attention all by themselves. As far as this song goes — and I never thought I'd say this — I'd rather listen to Sam Kinison.

0000A (Dudes) the Children... the- the Children (dudes)... Please, OH PLEASE! the CHILDREN! (dudes) Haha BALAD

• Sheriff, "When I'm With You" — This here town ain't big enough for the two of us, mister. Hell, I'll shoot the deputy too.

• Mike and the Mechanics, "The Living Years" — I've been trying, with some difficulty, to figure out exactly how this nauseating bucket of sap ever got on the radio. The only conclusions I can reach are either A) a substantial portion of the American public actually enjoys listening to a group-therapy session backed by a drum machine, or B) payola lives. Hopefully, it's the latter.

• Ann Wilson and Robin Zander, "Surrender to Me" — Never in a million years.
