North trial opens; delays come to close

Jurors admit disinterest in news

WASHINGTON (AP) - A jury will be sworn in today in the trial of Oliver North, with the prosecution preparing a line-up of witnesses to testify he tried to cover up the Iran-Contra affair.

Lawyers for the fired presidential aide plan to rebut the prosecution's case by showing North had White House authorization for his activities. North, the key figure in the Iran-Contra affair, was indicted 11 months ago with former National Security Advisor John Poindexter and businessmen Richard Secord and Albert Hakim.

The latter three will be tried separately. Two central charges against North, accusing him of conspiracy and theft in diverting Iranian arms sale profits to the Nicaraguan guerrillas, were thrown out last month on national security grounds.

The jury of nine women and three men was selected Feb. 9. But the trial was delayed when the Justice Department protested that North might divulge classified material in the courtroom. After receiving assurances from independent counsel Lawrence Walsh, the department on Wednesday dropped efforts to delay the trial.

The jurors have one thing in common: They had almost no exposure to North's nationally televised congressional testimony in 1987 in which he admitted, under limited immunity from prosecution, many details touching on the crimes with which he is charged.

The jurors include an electronics technician, a cashier and clerical worker who says "I don't like the news" and an unemployed former office manager who says she recalled that North was "selling something to Iran."

He also is accused of lying to the attorney general that the National Security Council was involved in diverting money from the arms sales to the Contras, and with falsifying documents showing his involvement with the Contras.

Witnesses against North include many of his former colleagues at the NSC as well as former military men who helped him keep the Contras supplied with weapons.

A "major thaw" in relations between the United States and the Soviet Union has helped bring record enrollment in Russian studies at the UI - enrollments that are outpacing national growth trends, said Ray Parrott, chairman of the UI Russian Department.

Enrollments in the department's anguage, literature and culture classes have more than doubled in six years, which now operate at or near capacity levels, said Parrott. Russian courses in the UI departments of history, economics and political science are also reporting record enrollments, with some classes filled with 75 to 100 students, professors say.

"It is chic to study Russian," said

"Gorbachev has caught the imagination of the world through the fantastic developments in the Soviet Union since he took power," said economics professor Gerald Nordquist said more than 40 students registered for his Soviet Economy class this spring, even though it was not listed in the Spring Schedule of Courses.

Last fall, the Russian Department reported 388 students enrolled in its courses - an increase from the 1977 low of 77 students and the 1982 level of 170, Parrott said.

An estimated 600 students are taking Russian-related classes in the four departments, he said. "This is one of the largest Russo-

America."

There are now a record 54 Russian majors and 16 master's students in the Russian Department. A doctoral program is not offered.

Every department offering Russian classes has expanded its course offerings or faculty in the past year. # CAC awards funds, passes rights bill

By Diana Wallace The Daily Iowan

In the wake of a human rights violation complaint against the Collegiate Associations Council filed Thursday by the American Indian Law Students' Association, the CAC has awarded additional funding to AILSA, and has passed a bill to "coordinate its efforts in increasing cultural diversity" at

The CAC voted during its meeting Monday night to allocate $350 to AILSA, in addition to the $500 allocated upon AILSA's initial request, to fund a conference AILSA will hold Saturday on Mesquakie Indians. AILSA had also asked the UI Student Senate for additional funds. The senate allocated $700.

Scott Morrison, AILSA president, was unavailable to confirm whether AILSA would re-vote their complaint in light of of the additional funding.

CAC also passed a bill during Monday's meeting that will serve as "some type of strategic effort to coordinate the many different programs the CAC is involved with in the area of cultural diversity," said Benita Dilley, vice president of CAC and sponsor of the bill.

Dilley said that in the most conservative estimate, CAC has allocated over $20,000 through Collegiate Associations and various students organizations to programs aimed at cultural diversity and minority recuitment and retention

Soviets host Mideast peace talks

CAIRO, Egypt (AP) — The Soviet Union on Monday invited Egypt's president to Moscow and scheduled meetings in the Egyptian capital with Israel and the PLO in quest of a Middle East peace conference.

But Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Arens told reporters after 90 minutes of talks with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak that they made no progress on the key obstacle blocking a peace conference — Israel's refusal to sit with the Palestine Liberation Organization.

Cairo was the focus of new peace efforts with the arrival Sunday night of Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, who is on a five-nation

He gave Mubarak a letter from Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, extending an "official" and friendly invitation" for the Egyptian leader to visit

The message included "some important presenta-tion regarding a Middle East settlement," Shevardnadze said in Russian through an Arabic interpreter. He did not elaborate.

After chastising Israel earlier for adopting a "stubborn position," Shevardnadze was scheduled to meet with Arens in Cairo on Wednesday. There was a strong possibility he would meet with PLO Chairman Yasir Arafat separately on the same day.

Israeli officials, speaking on condition of anonymity, stressed the Soviet and Israeli positions were not so far apart that they could not be bridged on the subject of an international peace conference.

United States Rep. Dave Nagle (D-Iowa, 3rd District), has won appointment to a formal leadership position in the U.S. House. Nagle has been named an At-Large Majority Whip for the 101st Congress. The appointment was made by House Democrats and lasts through Dec. 31, 1990.

Appointment to formal leadership positions are unusual for junior members of Congress. Nagle is beginning only his second term.

At-large whips serve on various task forces formed by House leaders to manage major legislation on the House floor, write alternative amendments and help create legislative initiatives and policies.

Whips also serve as liaisons between House members and House leaders, helping to determine House priorities and Democratic policy positions.

Nagle said he was "delighted" to win the appointment.

"It means the Third District Iowans will now be in the room and impact legislation directly at the most critical moments," he said.

Open-to-all art classes held weekly for children

After School Art Classes offered by the UI Arts and Craft Center are continuing this spring with a new format. Each week, children learn about and look at work of wellknown artists and create drawings of their own during the last half of class. They learn from artists' work seen in class.

The classes meet in the Lindquist Center, Room N103. They started Feb. 9 and continue through April 6. No preregistration is necessary. Classes may be attended as often as is wished. The cost is $2 per class. For more information and to reserve a place in the class call the Arts and Craft Center, 335-3399. Class size is limited to 25.

1989 Riverfest activities take on an added 'Twist'

By Noelle Nystrom The Daily Iowan

There may be snow in Iowa City today, but spring break is just around the corner and time is ticking away for those making Riverfest

Riverfest committees have been planning and creating for this year's Riverfest since last fall. Details, large and small, are entering the final stages of preparation before the event begins in April.

Riverfest is an annual nine-day spring festival that takes place along the banks of the Iowa River.

"It's a weeklong festival celebrating spring," said Rick Mann, public relations executive. "It has great spring break atmosphere. The students have just gotten back from break and the weather is usually perfect in mid-April."

Riverfest is a non-profit organization, funded through the UI Student Senate, the Collegiate Associations Council and Riverfest merchandise sales. It is one of the largest student organizations on campus.

The structural backbone of Riverfest is made up of 13 different types of committees ranging from marketing and public relations to RiverRun and recreation, each headed by a student executive.

The executives are responsible for meeting with their committees and carrying out their respective duties, Mann said.

"At first it takes a while to figure out exactly what your job entails," Mann said. "Thirteen people are just thrown together. You have to get to know the names of the other executives, get to know them personally, and eventually be able to work with them.'

Recreation Executive Anne Westerlund said cooperation is the key to planning a successful Riverfest.

"It's a matter of each committee pulling together," Westerlund said.
"You begin to realize that your (committee's) events won't take place if everyone doesn't work together. You simply can't do it yourself." Mann said the positive attitudes of the committees, the record number of business donations and the promising overall response from various campus organizations will make this Riverfest the biggest one yet. Traditionally, main attractions include Battle of the Bands, RiverRun, Mainstage, Taste of Iowa City, and the Iowa City Criterium bike race. Westerlund said her committee has planned more events involving the community along with the students.

"We've gone to people outside of the university to help with events," she said. "We also have more activities involving the 'special populations,' such as handicapped individuals.

The 1989 Riverfest calendar has a variety of events scheduled for both young and old including a scavenger hunt, a trivia contest, a dog show, a canoe race, an art fair, juggling, square dancing, skateboarding and a

Perhaps the biggest new event added to the calendar is the game "Twister," which will be played on Union field. Daum Residence Hall is arranging the game and hopes to attract over 5,000 students and community members to break the present world record.

Riverfest runs from April 13 through April 23 with activities planned

"Riverfest has everything a college student could ask for," Mann said. "Guys, girls, beer and live music."

Band Battle offers winner record contract

By Noelle Nystrom The Daily Iowan

Many activities during the annual Riverfest celebration are focused around music, and this year will prove no exception.

There will be four major musical events held during Riverfest 1989, said Music Executive Jon Anne Berard.

Battle of the Bands kicks off the first day of Riverfest on Thursday, April 13, and Mainstage, Soundstage and Jazz on the Patio round out the week of celebration.

Berard said each music event possesses its own musical style and attracts a variety of people.

Soundstage spotlights local and regional talent and has traditionally featured folk, bluegrass, acoustic and blues-oriented "Jazz on the Patio will attract the community more than other non-traditional music that students tend to get into," Berard Battle of the Bands is a three-night, eight-act musical competition held each year and open to all musical genre. "The exciting thing about this year is that the winner of Battle of the Bands gets a record deal," Berard said. "The band gets to cut a full-length record album that will be reviewed by magazines and newspapers and sent to radio stations across the United States."

The recording package will include 1,000 copies of the album, which will be recorded and mastered at Catamount Studios in Cedar Falls and distributed by Southeast Iowa Records, Release date is estimated to be in late August or early September, 1989.

County supervisors don't supervise, Senate says, but do they commission?

DES MOINES (AP) - Saying county supervisors don't actually supervise, the Iowa Senate has voted to abolish the local officials - in name only.

On a 26-21 vote Monday, the Senate approved a bill to change the official title of Iowa's 99 county boards of supervisors. Under the measure, which now goes to the House, county governing bodies would be known as commissions and their elected members as commissioners.

The name change comes 150 years after the commission form of government was adopted for counties

"The only thing that didn't change was the name," said Sen. Maggie Tinsman, R-Davenport, a former Scott County supervisor. "The only reason it wasn't changed 150 years ago is because the supervisors had just bought new stationery."

The bill is favored by most county supervisors who are tired of having to explain their title when they attend national or regional conventions, said Sen. John Jensen, R-Plainfield, the bill's floor mana-

"We're one of about three or four states in the Union that call them supervisors. The rest call them commissioners," Jensen said.

"You can't make changes in apartments," she said. "They are so plain with their all-white walls. You can do a lot more to make houses more of your own personality." Heidman and her three roommates have made

"I've always wanted a pink and blue bed-om," Heidman said. Her roommates also added personal touches by wallpapering and painting their bedrooms.

In the living room, they painted the walls neutral browns and earth tones to match their furniture and had their hardwood floors repolished and waxed.

"The hardwood floors were definitely a big drawing point for us," Heidman said. "It's the kind of big old house I've always wanted to live in, especially since I was able to use all of the colors and wallpaper I find attractive.'

The extent of work that may be done on older houses is usually determined by the landlord.

We encourage improvements in our properties within reason," said Richard Vosika, manager of Keystone Property Management Co., 521 Kirkwood Ave., which rents many houses in the Iowa City area.

Vosika said his tenants must clear work to be done on the properties through his office first, but after that they are on their own.

"We reimburse our tenants for any improvements which are extremely necessary, like painting and intensive cleaning," he said.

The reimbursements were especially appealing to Heidman and her roommates.

The fact that we were paid by the landlords for being able to do our own work on this place was a big incentive for us," she said. Heidman and her roommates were reimbursed almost $200 for their painting and cleaning.

"It's great," she said. "This place really feels more like a home because we had the opportunity to do so much to it. Now we don't want to leave it when we graduate."

Students, faculty want longer class intervals

The UI hasn't always owned as many buildings and occupied as much land as it presently does, and UI students and teachers alike say they need more time to move from class to class on today's more expansive

According to the oldest surviving UI course schedule, dated 1900-01, classes ran on a slightly different time schedule, but students had the same 10 minutes to travel from one building to another.

In 1900 the UI maintained only eight buildings, and given the close proximity of the buildings, 10 minutes might have been an adequate

"When I was a freshman and sophomore, I usually had to run from one side of campus to the other just to be reasonably late to class," said UI junior John Blossfeld. "It was rough when attendance was counted, especially in Spanish classes, but now, fortunately, all of my classes are Another student said that teachers fail to understand the difficulty many students face in their attempt to be on time to classes.

"I think 10 minutes is more than enough time to get around campus," said film production student Rich Sims. "Unfortunately, sometimes I have to talk to my teachers after class in order to discuss projects, in which case I need more than just 10 minutes.

"I always have at least one teacher who can't accept the fact that I have other obligations elsewhere," he said. A change in the 10-minute interval might meet with some criticism,

"Lengthening the interval would mean students would have to begin classes earlier and stay later, and I'm not sure if they would appreciate the gesture," Associate Registrar Catherine Pietrzyk said. Teachers can often sympathize with the plight of the students because they sometimes find themselves in the same situation.

Both students and teachers agree - more time would be appreciated as long as it didn't come at their expense.

WHEN IS IT "DATE" RAPE?

Acquaintance or "date rape," has become one of the biggest issues on campuses across the country, with many victimized women reporting on the subject in college newspapers. When questioned about their actions, many men seem confused about the rules. They point to the current cinema in which they see Clint Eastwood and other macho types forcing their attentions on women with gratifying results all around. Well, then. How do you know she really means no when she says "no?"

Simple. When she says "no," she means no. Period. Lay off. And if you can't control yourself, see the campus shrink and get some help. You ain't Dirty Harry and your life ain't no movie.

Embarrassed by Duke

The Republican Party is embarrassed by David Duke, a newly elected Louisiana legislator and former Grand Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan who associates himself with the Grand Old Party. Even Ronald Reagan spoke out against Duke, endorsing his opponent.

"David Duke is not a Republican. He's a pretender, a charlatan and a political opportunist," says party chairman Lee Atwater. Atwater claims true Republicans do not subscribe to racism and bigotry, and are offended by Duke's

The Republican Party is right to disassociate itself from the former Klansman, but having done so it should now further examine its approach to the black community in America. For the Republican Party, it was enough to do away with segregation and laws that overtly discriminated against blacks, but the GOP ignores present reality by denying further emancipation.

The bulk of the black community remains enslaved by the chains of economic inequality - the byproducts of slavery, segregation and racism. In the last eight years, no effort was made to extinguish the racially-based economic imbalance in this country. Instead, the Reagan administration's Justice Department spent its time fighting to roll back past gains in civil rights.

And now Ronald Reagan denounces David Duke? At least Duke was honest about the racist effects of his past actions. Can Reagan and the rest of the Republican Party say the same? In this "kinder, gentler nation" of the 1990s, it is time for the Republican Party to realize that de facto segregation and oppression continue to brutalize black society each day, and that will be the case with or without the presence of David Duke.

Day-care shortage

An article in The Des Moines Sunday Register tells how the problem of finding decent quality, affordable day care is especially severe in Iowa's rural areas and small towns. In Polk County (which includes Des Moines), there is one licensed child-care center or home that provides child care for about every 400 people. In contrast, there are no such facilities in Van Buren County, with a population of about 8,600.

While day-care shortages are markedly acute in rural areas shortages of affordable, good quality day care are not confined to sparsely populated regions. A no-win situation is present: Low-cost day care does not exist because the providers of such care would not be able to earn enough money to make it worth their while. Day care of acceptable quality is necessarily of fairly high cost, which makes it difficult to afford for the people who need it. Many working women are in the job market out of economic necessity - families that need two incomes or single parents are in the uncomfortable position of not having a lot of money left over for child care.

No easy solutions to the problem exist. One possible partial remedy may come from employers who subsidize day care as an employee benefit. Also, more equitable compensation for workers with small children would be helpful. State or federal government assistance may be necessary to make day care affordable to those who need it most.

As more and more women enter the work force, the problem of not enough day care is only likely to get worse. Our society needs to recognize that its makeup is changing and that accommodations must be made.

At the same time that Americans exercise their right to read Salman Rushdie's The Satanic Verses, national bookstore chains are being intimidated into removing the title from their shelves. As Viking Penguin, the book's publisher, put it, "This is censorship by terrorism."

That the book is available here should be cause to celebrate our right to free speech. But the threats against innocent Americans enjoying that right have been allowed to escalate without one significant response from the White House.

When publishing offices close because of successive days of bomb threats, America is being manipulated. When bookstores remove a title, America is allowing Iran to decide who and what it will read. When an administration reacts to a threat with cowardice, the United States is shamed.

Who is responsible for the protection of American citizens? What will happen if a bombing does take place, and innocent Americans are killed in the process of exercising their inalienable rights? Will the president speak up then?

If so, it will be too late. The time for a tough stance is now, before any further damage occurs. The United States guarantees its citizens the liberty to read whatever they choose. Last week that guarantee was a lie.

When George Bush took the oath of office, he swore to "uphold and defend the Constitution of the United States." Today he is failing at that job.

West German authorities have made statements that it may not be ready to replace the Lance. Furthermore, public opinion in West Germany, as well as in other parts of Europe, has shown an increasing concern about the possible development of new, deployable nuclear weapons at the same time as intermediate-range missiles are being dismantled under the American-Soviet missile accord signed between former-President Ronald Reagan and Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

On Feb. 15, The Daily Iowan ran an editorial entitled "Germany's mess," which argued that for 44 years "American nuclear weapons have kept the peace in Europe." And that German nationalism, on both the right and left, coupled with the tradition of NATO involvement has paralyzed Helmut Kohl's government, rendering it unable to deal effectively with NATO.

The following guest opinions provide a European

Holy War for freedom in Europe Presenting naive opinions as undeniable statements of fact Jules van People in Germany realize . . . that their country is the battleground of a Lieshout > turns doubtful premises into petrified dogmas. Let me drop the tablets on the rocks.

There has been peace in Europe for 44 years. It is quite debatable, and utterly undecidable, whether this peace has been kept thanks to or in spite of nuclear weapons. Bargaining from strength - long the American position — lies at the roots of a successful arms control strategy. In a different context, a Dutch prime minister once explained to the people that they were not getting any less, they were just getting a little less more. The same principle holds good here. In effect, whatever else building up nuclear power in order to obtain a position of strength from which to reduce that same power has led to — with the possible exception of the Cruise missles — it has always ended in an increase of arms. Modernizing Lance means only more reliable missiles (which could mean either "more missiles which are reliable" or "missiles which are more reliable"). The point is, however, that the striking force is enhanced. Whether this is done by more or by better weapons is irrelevant.

Postponing discussions means opting out of the decision-making loop, which undermines NATO efficiency. In fact, postponing is an integral element of the decision-making process and sti-mulates the realization of the proclaimed wish to reduce arms. It was indeed the public outcry against, and the ensuing delay in, the deployment of use missiles in the late '70 hich determined negotiation strategies on both sides and insured the consequent dismantling of corresponding Warsaw Pact and NATO

Nevertheless, I would answer the final question posed in the editorial with a conditional "yes." NATO has outlived its viability, though not as the military defender of Europe — it never was

In short, Americans must disentangle the reptiles crawling around in their minds before embarking upon an honest-to-God crusade in Europe.

Schumacher the next general election may see the Social Democrats in office again - a challenge for the Bush West Germany has almost 65 million inhabitants and is economically the strongest country in Europe; it will be a main pillar of a united Europe. Heidelberg and Munich, beer and bratwurst, are NOT an adequate description of "the German way of life." One must include the biggest arsenal of nuclear, biological, and chemi-cal weapons worldwide, plus sol-diers from Canada, the United States, France, the United Kingdom, and Belgium in addition to the more than 500,000 West German soldiers. For a country which is approximately the size of Wyoming, this is too much.

administration.

Many people feel as though they are living in a huge army base. Additionally, military planes crowd the West German sky, and from time to time crash, (as happened in Remscheid and Ramstein) killing people.

Consider also the neutron bomb:

Following a U.S. Senate investigation, and comments by former-NATO chief General Bernard Rogers, it was disclosed that the United States secretly had shipped equipment to West Ger-many which allowed the American forces to transform atomic weapons into neutron bombs. It was done secretly because the Pentagon knew it was politically impossible to do it openly: No one wants to live on a battlefield, even in peacetime.

In Iowa there are no low-flying military aircraft and no missile silos in the neighborhood. What an illusion! Strategic Air Com-mand (SAC) in Omaha, Neb., and the Minuteman silos in Kansas are only a few hours away and will be a priority target in a future war. In comparison to Germany, the United States is a paradise from the size standpoint. These constant reminders of the atomic threat increasingly have shaped the minds of West Germans. They are — and this is healthy — reluctant to accept more or just new "more reliable" weapons. Their daily experience has sharpened their criticism of the doctrine of deterrence. They have understood that world peace is not based on more arms but on disarmament and the abolishment of war. Germans have learned their historic lesson, together with hundreds of thousands in Denmark, Sweden, Austria, the Netherlands, the United Kingdom, France, and Italy.

U.S. policy insisting on new weapons in Germany will lose more credibility in the long run than it will gain in its strategic planning. To wait until the Berlin Wall comes down means to wait forever. Even if the Wall, which I had the opportunity again in December of watching from East and West, were to be broken down one day, we still have to accept the irreversible historical fact that Europe has two German states. Ex-President Ronald Reagan and General Secretary Mikhail Gorbachev have fortunately finally understood that the scheme of deterrence is a oneway road. No one ever will win a nuclear arms race but we all lose. Nuclear deterrence must, and hopefully will be, history.

There remains the issue of sensitive politics. Until the U.S. government finally stops treating Germany as a junior partner and West German politicians stop accepting the big brother role of the United States, until Americans try, just try, to understand the serious concerns of Germans, we cannot reach an agreement. And one day Germans will answer the question: "Should West Germany consider the United States an ally?" with "No." THIS would be a real challenge to any United States administration.

Frank Schumacher, a graduate student in history at the UI, is from Düsseldorf, West Germany. He submitted this guest opinion for the Viewpoints page.

Internationally known economics professor Ravi Batra is the author of "Surviving the Great Depression of 1990" and "The Great Depression of 1990" — both best sellers that made it to No. 1 on the New York Times book list. Batra will be hosted by the University Lecture Committee onight at 7:30 at the Union Burroom, where he will lecture on his book, "Surviving the Great Depression of 1990.

In this controversial work, which has been reviewed and analyzed by magazines worldwide, Batra made several successful predictions about what direction the economy is heading. He explains why he thinks Americans are headed for an unprecedented economic collapse by 1991, and details a strategy for avoiding personal economic

The Daily Iowan interviewed Batra from Dallas, where he is a Methodist University.

Can you give some reasons why you believe we are headed for a depression of such proportions?

There have been four or five depressions in the United States, and each time there was an extreme concentration of wealth. This led to a decade of economic euphoria, and then a depression. In the '80s, we've had a big jump in wealth concentration. This is partly due to the government cutting taxes on the wealthy and raising those of the poor. The stock market speculation, merger mania and other types of speculative activities in the economy are also factors. After this decade, we are sure to see another depression.

What are some of the successful predictions you have made?

Most of the predictions I made were between 1978 and 1981. I predicted that oil prices would collapse and that inflation would sharply fall to around 4 percent per seven years. Have you ever made any unsuccess-would start and go on for six to ful predictions?

Well, I haven't made wrong predictions, but I have changed one or two. In 1979 I used to think that oil prices would keep rising, but after I studied historical data I changed that prediction. Another prediction I made was that the U.S. stock market would break records after 1989, but this is not going to come true for the U.S. market. It will for Japan.

Of the preventive measures you list in your books, which ones have you personally followed?

I have followed all of them. For instance, I rent my home. I sold my professor of economics at Southern year. I also predicted that the stock house in 1981 in fear that oil prices were going to collapse, affecting Texas tremendously while the rest of the country would enjoy great prosperity. I still rent my home because oil prices are going to fall sharply again in 1990.

Are you in a position where you might have to make other changes on your stance that predicts a depression in 1990?

The main thing that I am worried about is the stock market rise in Japan. That is going like crazy. The Japanese stock market has been rising like crazy ever since (President George) Bush was elected and that I think is the biggest danger in the world economy now. I think the depression will be on time. It will not start as a depression. 1990 will be a year of recession. It will keep deepening until it will change to a depression.

What do you think the United States should do to reduce the

They should impose a wealth tax.

The multi-millionaires have got so much wealth - (as much as) $5 trillion. Even a 3 percent wealth tax per year would collect $150 billion, and that would be enough to wipe out the deficit.

How much control over the money supply should the federal government have?

In normal cicumstances, they should never let the money supply get out of hand. But now there is debt everywhere. If they do not print more money there is likely to be a depression anyway. But if they do print a lot of money, that would result in higher inflation which in turn would bring about a depression. They have put themselves in such a tight corner that there is no way out of the coming

What would the impact of a depression have on the global economy, especially the Third World?

It will start off from Japan. The Japanese stock market will crash by the end of this year and Japan the world.

Legislators await federal action for guidance on minimum wage

DES MOINES (AP) - House and Senate bargainers couldn't find common ground Monday as they began seeking a compromise on a state minimum wage.

Negotiators from each chamber labeled the other's version "totally unacceptable" in dealing with small businesses, and the two sides agreed they cannot meet again until they determine where Congress is heading on the issue. "That may give us fairly decent guidelines," said Senate Minority Leader Calvin Hultman, R-Red

But House members said they are beginning to lose patience and have gone as far as they will go to compromise.

'We've waited I don't know how many years for that to be increased," said Rep. Gary Sherzan, D-Des Moines, chairman of the House Labor Committee.

The exchanges signaled a tough set of negotiations before the minimum wage issue is resolved and a measure sent to Gov. Terry Bran-

"I'm in no hurry," said Sherzan. "I don't know why we should go any further," said Rep. John Connors, D-Des Moines.

There are proposals in Congress to increase the federal minimum wage, and the bargainers agreed to determine details of the congressional proposals before continuing talks on a state wage.

"We probably should at least know what they are proposing in Washington," said Sen. John Peterson, D-Albia, chairman of the Senate

Labor Committee.

The House and Senate have approved measures establishing a state minimum wage that would rise to $4.65 an hour. The bill provides a lower "training wage" for newly hired workers.

They differ over whether small businesses should be covered by the new wage levels.

Though there was no progress made on Monday, both sides said there is room for compromise.

Senators want to exempt businesses with gross retail sales of less than $362,000 from the minimum wage provisions. House members don't want any exemptions.

"We're willing to talk about the numbers," said Sherzan.

Peterson said minor adjustments could be made.

FBI report 'won't derail' Tower nomination

WASHINGTON (AP) - President George Bush on Monday concluded after reading a final FBI report on embattled Defense Secretarydesignate John Tower that there was nothing in the files to derail

Tower's nomination, the White House said.

Press Secretary Marlin Fitzwater said that Bush went over the 140-page report on Tower, a former U.S. senator from Texas, during an Oval Office meeting with White House counsel C. Boyden Gray.

Gray went to Capitol Hill late Monday to present the report to Sens.

Sam Nunn, D-Ga., and John Warner, R-Va., the ranking members of the Armed Services Committee.

"The report shows no reason why Sen. Tower should not be confirmed, in our judgment," Fitzwater told reporters as the dinner hour approached.

"The resident urges that Sen. Tower be confirmed as soon as possible, Fitzwater said.

"We'll let the senators read the report and make their own judgment," the press secretary said.

Earlier, Armed Services Committee staff members met with Berne Indahl, a State Department security officer sent to Geneva in 1986 to investigate allegations of security breaches in the U.S. delegation to missile talks with the Soviet Union while Tower was a member of the contingent, said congressional sources who requested anonymity.

On Sunday, Indahl had spoken to investigators of a House subcommittee about a separate inquiry that had turned up allegations against Tower. At that meeting, the sources said, Indahl corroborated a report that Tower, while in Geneva, had used his secretaries as mistresses.

The sources would not go into detail on what Indahl told the House subcommittee.

The FBI presented its latest report on allegations into Tower's personal and business affairs to Gray early Monday afternoon. Bush was briefed on the new report, said White House sources, who requested

The subcommittee may vote this week on the embattled nomination, but Nunn and Warner said they will not schedule a vote "until all the evidence is in."

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, promised a speedy vote on the nomination once it leaves the subcommittee. Mitchell, interviewed over the weekend, said that he has not read the FBI reports but that the allegations surrounding Tower's private life are "an appropriate subject of inquiry" because of the importance of the

Not so, said Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole, R-Kan., who told reporters Sunday he has read the earlier FBI reports, seen nothing that would disqualify Tower and suggested moving ahead on the nomina-

"I think we should stop checking every rumor. Unless there's some criminal activity, let's get on with the vote," Dole said.

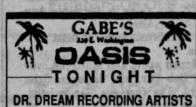

While eleven of Bush's choices for Cabinet posts have sailed through the confirmation process, Tower's selection ran into a maelstrom fueled by rounds of allegations about the former senator's personal and Charges surfaced that Tower drinks excessively and is a womanizer.

Plane crash kills 10 in California

CORONA, Calif. - Wreckage of a plane carrying 10 people on a family outing to Disneyland was found near a mountaintop Monday, and there were no survivors, authorities said.

The twin-engine plane on a chartered flight, crashed Sunday less than 200 feet from the top of a 2,270-foot ridge in the Santa Ana Mountains, 45 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

Searchers wading through chest-high brush found at least nine bodies, said Sheriff's Lt. John Gillis.

"The bodies and baggage were ripped apart and scattered over the peak," said KNX-AM reporter Bob Tur, who discovered the wreckage during a helicopter flight. The fuselage was twisted, broken into pieces and partly buried, he said.

The plane left Las Vegas on Sunday morning for Orange County John Wayne Airport, said Civil Air Patrol Lt. Col. Ed Crankshaw. There was no indication of an emergency when controllers talked to the pilot shortly after noon as the plane was cruising about four miles east of Corona, said Tommy Aina, Federal Aviation Administration duty officer.

EEC countries withdraw Iran ambassadors

European Common Market governments decided Monday to withdraw their top diplomats from Iran to protest Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's renewed order for Moslems to kill novelist Salman Rushdie. Britain went further by pulling out its entire Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe said the death threats against Rushdie and the publishers of "The Satanic Verses" for allegedly blaspheming Islam were "unwarranted interference" in Britain's internal affairs.

He left open the possibility of expelling Iran's lone diplomat in London, where Rushdie lives.

The 12 European Economic Community governments, in a sharp blow to Iran's hopes of improving relations with Western nations, decided to recall their diplomats for consultations and suspend high-level visits to and from Iran.

They said they also will restrict the movement of Iranian diplomats in their countries.

IRA bombs British barracks, injures one

LONDON - The IRA bombed a British army barracks in western England early Monday, but most of the men had been evacuated before the blasts and only one soldier was injured.

A half-hour before the three explosions, a sentry spotted two intruders and fired warning shots, then woke the sleeping soldiers and told them to get out.

Police set up roadblocks in the area of the Ternhill barracks following the pre-dawn blasts and said two suspects observed by the sentry were thought to be at large in a stolen car. They said they were searching for a car taken by a masked man from a nearby home at about the time of the bombing near Shrewsbury, 150 miles north of London.

The explosions shook nearby houses, started fires, blew out the wall of one accommodation block and destroyed the roof of another at the home of the 2nd Battalion of the Parachute Regiment, said Col. Peter Hicks, an army spokesman.

Cabinet upset widens Najib's military scope

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) Prime Minister Mohammed Hassan Sharq resigned Monday, broadening the power of President

In Pakistan, meanwhile, Afghan scholars and Moslem guerrillas who have vowed to topple Najib's government took on the task of nominating an interim Afghan government when their top leaders could not agree on the issue.

Sharq, 63, had remained in Najib's 28-man Cabinet after a weekend shake-up in which the president replaced seven of 10 non-Communist Party ministers with members of his People's Democra-

Sharq was not a member of the party, but had been selected as prime minister by Najib last May to portray his government as enjoying broader support.

A source who spoke on condition of anonymity said Sharq met with Najib and agreed the president should head the Cabinet during the state of emergency that Najib declared Saturday.

Also over the weekend, Najib created a new military council that appeared to take over as the most powerful body in his government. The 20-member Supreme Military Council for the Defense of the Homeland met Monday to discuss the government's battle against the guerrillas.

It consists of the most powerful Cabinet members, the Communist Party Politburo and Central Committee, and military leaders.

Foreign Minister Abdul Wakil said Sunday the council will coordinate economic and military activities. He said it will not replace the Cabinet, but did not elaborate.

The state of emergency suspends or limits freedom of expression, privacy and public assembly. Najib said it was needed because of intervention from outside."

The last Soviet troops pulled out of Afghanistan on Wednesday, ending the Red Army's nine-year intervention and leaving Najib's forces alone in their fight against the U.S.-supported guerrillas.

The guerrillas and some Western diplomats believe the government in Kabul will fall without the help of Soviet troops.

But the seven guerrilla groups based in Pakistan became bogged down over the weekend in their attempts to form an interim government for their takeover. Leaders have been divided along fundamentalist and moderate lines over power sharing.

Sources in Pakistan who spoke on condition of anonymity said the leaders Monday dropped their nomination of hard-liner Ahmad Shah for prime minister and appointed a commission of 70 field commanders, Moslem clergymen and scholars to nominate a head of government and cabinet.

Machinists gain union support

BAL HARBOUR, Fla. (AP) -The AFL-CIO on Monday pledged full support to 9,000 machinists threatening to strike at Eastern Airlines.

The 1.9 million-member labor federation also called on President George Bush to appoint an emergency board to intervene in the stalled talks, a move that would delay any job action past March 3, when a 30-day coolingoff period expires.

The machinists have threatened to disrupt air travel and shipping by boycotting other airlines and transportation industries.

A resolution in which the AFL-CIO pledged to "mobilize its resources" in support of the machinists was among the first orders of business as the federation's Executive Council opened its annual meeting in Eastern's The labor leaders expressed confidence that other unions would honor picket lines and said labor also would target Eastern's sister carrier, Continental Airlines, as well as other airlines and companies which have service arrangements with money-losing Eastern and its parent, Texas Air Corp.

"If Eastern attempts to keep flying (during a strike) we'll attempt to discourage working people from scabbing, strikebreaking and we'll point out to the public the consequences and the risk and the serious problems entailed by the operation of an airline with people who are less qualified than the current employees," AFL-CIO President Lane Kirkland said. Kirkland acknowledged that several past airline strikes have failed because other unions particularly those representing pilots - have failed to honor

"I would simply express the hope that out of this crisis would arise a higher degree of trade union solidarity in this industry than has existed in the past," Kirkland said.

Arena Football suspends operations

DETROIT (AP) - Arena Football will suspend operations in 1989 while attempting to restructure and resume play in 1990, the general manager of the league champion Detroit Drive said

"The limited partnership has lost confidence in the present management structure," Gary Vitto said in a statement released by the Drive. "We will use the time to restructure the league to everyone's benefit and move forward with the 1990 season.

The Drive was 11-3 in 1988, its first season as a member of the six-team league, and defeated the Chicago Bruisers 24-13 to win the championship.

"We believe in arena football and we were successful on the field, having won the 1988 championship, and we led the league in attention, e," Vitto said. "It's a great spectator sport, and the fans of Detroit were tremendous in supporting us.

"Under the current structure, though, we didn't feel comfortable about moving ahead this year," he said.

A spokesman for ESPN, which televised league games the past two seasons, said he was surprised by the decision to suspend

"It's news to me," Chris LaPlaca said. "As of last week, we thought they were going forward with six teams this season."

Hawkeyes saw the return of junior transfer Matt Bullard. The West Des Moines, Iowa, native was another in the ranks of the weakkneed. Since coming back to the court against Illinois, Bullard has went to a lighter knee brace.

"It feels all the way healed," Bullard said. "I am wearing the brace in case someone were to hit me. I don't think that I have the strength, quickness or the jumping back, yet." Coach Davis said in his weekly press conference Monday that this is the healthiest his team has been since December.

"The good news is that we don't have anything to report in terms of injuries," Davis said. "We're probably in the best health that we've been in for a long time." Another junior transfer, Michael Ingram, was milling around the arena in gym attire, but didn't work out with the team. Ingram blew a knee late in a first-round game against Brown University in the Amana-Hawkeye Tournament

"You see Michael (Ingram) now walking without his brace," Davis said. "As soon as we can get (Ingram and Rodell Davis) out re, we'll try to get them out in practice." Iowa Notes

The date for the Iowa-Michigan game at Ann Arbor, Mich., has been finalized. The game will be March 4 at noon (CST) and will be carried by the Big Ten Network.

· One Hawkeye who isn't expected to return soon is Brig Tubbs. Davis said Iowa trainer John Streif reported that Tubbs isn't ready to run on the leg he hurt earlier this season.

• In addition to being Iowa's alltime, leading scorer, senior Roy Marble became the school's leader in career steals this week.

Marble needs 80 points to become the only Hawkeye ever to score 2,000 points in a career.

one of the sthere because of what some individual or some stop or some group did." Instead of more rules and a larger enforcement staff, the schools and their athletic personnel hold the solution, he said. "We're not going to achieve integrity in intercollegi-ate athletics by doubling or tripling the size of our enforcement staff. "We're at full strength now. We've been concentrating on staying on top of things and cleaning up the backlog of cases that have been there. "We're caught up now. The last rash that you saw in December and right around bowl time really repreented cases that have been in the works for the last two-three years, some even four years.

"The conventions in '84 and '85 that zeroed in on the integrity issues and separated major and secondary infractions and established stiffer penalties got everybody's attention. The fact that the infractions committee has been very tough and hard-nosed in its approach to major violators, I think the message is out there that there lators, I think the message is out there that there aren't any sacred cows, that if you do wilfully violate the rules, eventually you're going to get caught. And if you get caught, if you're a coach, it's probably going to cost you your job, and as an institution, it's going to be very embarrassing.

"Nobody wants that. It's not worth it, and I think we're seeing that."

Since he succeeded Walter Byers almost two years ago, Schultz has spent about half of each month on the road talking to coaches, athletic directors and college presidents and says he senses "a renewed commitment to integrity" in college programs.

"That's a solution," he said. "The solution is not more rules, not more enforcement staff. We have to have good rules, we have to have a vigorous enforcement staff, but if we're really going to come close to solving the problem, it's going to take a commitment from the individual institutions — from the governing boards and presidents and chancellors to the athletic directors the coaches.

"If they will make a commitment to guarantee integrity in their programs and to have checks and balances that will allow them to stay on top of things so that things don't spin out of control, then we've got a chance of coming close."

Smash musical 'Me and My Girl' brings cockney wit to Hancher

By Steve T. Donoghue The Daily Iowan

ames Young, star of the smash musical "Me and My Girl," doesn't take his role as happygo-lucky Bill Snibson lightly.

"It's definitely the most challenging role I've ever done," he said. "Physically, it's an incredibly demanding role — you're onstage 90 percent of the time, and 90 percent of that 90 percent you're falling down."

But he's quick to add that it's not all

"You're not just up there singing and dancing - that's the wonderful thing about it; it's not just a good comedy role, it's a good acting role. And that's how I'm approaching it, as an actor."

"Me and My Girl," London's 50-year-old musical that has become a present-day international smash, will come to Hancher Auditorium at 8 tonight through Thursday.

Originally produced on the London stage in 1937, "Me and My Girl" debuted on Broadway in 1986 and today is running in Japan, Mexico, Australia, Poland and other countries around the world. The show has won numerous awards, including three Tonys, five Drama Desk Awards and the Laurence Olivier Award for Best Musical of the Year.'

The show, with music by Noel Gay, and book and lyrics by L. Arthur Rose and Douglas Furber, revolves around cockney Bill Snibson from the Lambeth section of London and the discovery that he is the heir to Hareford Hall, a wealthy English country estate. Bill has numerous comic misadventures trying to fit into upperclass society while remaining true to his Lambeth sweetheart, Sally Smith.

"Especially in a college town," said Young, "students are more attuned to this type of humor. It's a fun evening, especially when you're hitting the books. It's nice to just have fun for an

The original production, which ran for more than 1,600 performances, was a triumph for its star, Lupino Lane, the leading cockney actor of his day and the uncle of actress Ida Lupino. The King and Queen were so fond of the show that they attended it three times, and Mussolini reportedly

To bring the original script up to date for contemporary audiences, it has been rewritten by its director, Drama Desk Award-winner Mike Ockrent, and by Stephen Fry, a colleague of Monty Python veteran John Cleese. The show's broad physical humor and vaudeville jokes will have a familiar ring to Monty Python fans.

Of course, audiences differ always, and even a sure-fire house-pleaser like "Me and My Girl" can occasionally misfire. Young takes such little failures with a grain of salt.

"There you are, all of a sudden, with egg on your face, saying, That worked last night' and asking yourself what went wrong. And you tell yourself, 'It certainly can't be me.' "

Ockrent, who also directed the touring version of the show, is currently one of the hottest musical directors, winning acclaim recently for the revised London version of Stephen Sondheim's "Follies." Tony Awardwinning choreographer Gillian Gregory also recreates his Broadway work for the touring company.

Young stood by for Jim Dale in the Broadway production. He has also been seen on Broadway in "A Chorus Line" and "The Tap Dance Kid" and off-Broadway in "The Exercise" and "No Tapping Please" at the Samuel Beckett Theatre.

Smith, debuted on Broadway in "Me and My Girl." In Los Angeles she has starred in "Cats" and "Evita," and she danced in the films "The Cotton Club" and "Pennies from Heaven." Television fans will remember her for her appearances as a family friend on two episodes of "The Brady Bunch" that are favorites of the show's fans.

Composer Noel Gay was a famous name in his heyday. In 1937 the readers of a British national newspaper voted him most famous man of the year, along with Walt Disney and politician Anthony Eden. Over the course of his career, Gay wrote the scores for 26 musical shows.

This revival of "Me and My Girl," Gay's biggest hit, came about through the efforts of his son, London theatri-cal agent Richard Armitage. Armitage planned the revival in the early 1980s when he sensed a renewed interest in his father's work.

An immediate stumbling block occurred, however, when Armitage looked for a script of the show. He soon discovered that no libretto existed, and that the scores for two of the songs had disappeared.

A search of the now-closed Lord Chamberlain's Censorship Office turned up a pre-opening version of the script, and a script from a 1950 amateur version was also located. Through a parallel reading of the two, plus the memories of those who had seen the original production, the libretto was restored. The two songs were also located: One was misfiled in the archive catalogue of the EMI recording company and the other turned up in Armitage's attic, on a record made from a radio broadcast by the original cast.

The care taken in restoring the show has proved well worth it. Frank Rich in the New York Times has called "Me and My Girl" "an evening of sheer happiness!"

Quite naturally, Young agrees: "It's an evening of wonderful entertain-

Historian and performer Frederick Hammond, a musicologist on the faculty at UCLA, will present two illustrated lectures on the UI campus tonight and Wednesday.

A slide lecture tonight at 8 in the UI Art

Building, Room E109, will focus on "Roman Festivals in 17th century Rome." At the harpsichord, Hammond will discuss the keyboard music of 17th century com-

Hammond's visit represents part of the UI's participation in an interdisciplinary project, "Music as a Cultural Institution in the Middle Ages and the Renaissance," which has been undertaken by a network of nine colleges and universities in the Midwest.

returns to mound

(AP)—After pitching for dollars in the offseason, Orel Hershiser is anxious to start pitching for shut-

Hershiser, who agreed to a threeyear, $7.9 million contract with the Los Angeles Dodgers last week, arrived at the team's spring training camp in Vero Beach, Fla. on

"I enjoyed getting out there again," Hershiser said after participating in a team workout. "I'm glad to be back to baseball."

Hershiser, 23-8 last season, par-layed his 1988 Cy Young Award into a contract that will give him the highest annual salary in baseball history.

"I don't feel like there was any greed involved," he said. "You just do the best you can. You're only worth as much as the club will pay

• Camp Notes

In Fort Lauderdale, 38-year-old pitcher Ron Guidry is prepared to battle for a spot on the New York Yankees' staff.

"I want to make sure I'm not leaving any stones uncovered. I want to convince myself I can do it or can't do it," said Guidry, who missed most of last season with a shoulder problem.

Guidry ranks fourth on the Yankees' all-time victory list with 170 and second on the strikeout list with 1,778. He has signed a oneyear, $500,000 contract, with half the salary contingent on his making the team.

I don't think anybody, including Ron, knows if Guidry can pitch,' Yankees manager Dallas Green

• First baseman George Brett arrived at Kansas City's training camp two days before he was required to report. Brett hit balls off a batting tee and ran on Sunday, while pitchers limbered up their arms with some longdistance throwing.

The Royals are beginning their second spring training at the Boardwalk and Baseball complex in Haines City after 19 years in Fort Myers.

"It feels more comfortable, this being our second year down here," Royals manager John Wathan said. "Last year we were a little unfamiliar where to go and where

• In St. Petersburg, the St. Louis Cardinals have hired a tutor to teach Vince Coleman and rookie Alex Cole how to bunt and get bigger leads off third base. The Cardinals want them to get the most out of their speed on the basepaths.

• Boston manager Joe Morgan says young pitchers will have a hard time making his team.

We'll carry 10 pitchers and we have 21 here," he said following a two-hour workout in Winter Haven. "And we have about a dozen who already have pitched well in the big leagues."

Wealthier Iowa, Ohio State Hershiser set for critical Big Ten battle

By Michael Trilk The Daily Iowan

As usual, tonight's matchup between seventh-ranked Iowa and Ohio State is heavy with Big Ten title implications. And as usual, a sellout crowd is expected at the Buckeyes' St. John Arena in Columbus, Ohio.

Iowa leads the Big Ten with an 11-1 record, 21-3 overall. Ohio State is second at 11-2 and 18-5. "It's a very big game," Ohio State Coach Nancy Darsch said. "It is a game we have to win to put ourselves in first place in the Big

"Obviously this is a great rivalry," Iowa Coach Vivian Stringer said.

Women's Basketball

"We have never won at Ohio State, and I don't know that that means a whole heck of a lot except that it is a fact and this is a must for us." Iowa is not the only team that has had bad luck at St. John Arena. No Big Ten team has ever beaten the Buckeyes on their home floor.

"I think we are happy at home," Darsch said. "We feel good here and we are excited to be playing

The Hawkeyes downed the Buckeyes 84-70 in Iowa City earlier this season but Darsch said her team isn't thinking in terms of paybacks.

"We haven't talked about it in terms of payback," Darsch said. We know what happened in lowa City, it was over a month ago and we can't change that."

Last season, Iowa went into St. John Arena with the nation's No. 1 ranking and lost by four points. This time around, Stringer feels a win could be the first step toward the Hawkeyes reaching their peak. Iowa has had its troubles on the road this season.

"I'm not comfortable," Stringer said. "We can't have 23 turnovers and beat this team, 15 may be too

Hawks move up;

Sooners stay No. 1

(AP) - Iowa moved up one spot to No. 14 in The Associated Press college basketball poll Monday.

Oklahoma became the first No. 1 team in five weeks to hold the top

The Sooners did need some extra time, however, as they were taken to overtime before beating Kansas 94-89 last week. That and a victory over Colorado, also on the road, many. And we have to outrebound them by about 10.

"I need to have this team relax. In order to play in the postseason we have to perform well away from home. I'm hoping we can get three or four players hitting on the same cylinder tonight."

Stringer may be asking for too much. Two Iowa players suffered injuries last Friday at Minnesota. Shanda Berry, the Hawkeyes' leading scorer and rebounder, hurt an ankle as did starting guard Stephanie Schueler. Stringer didn't sound enthusiastic about either player's situation, but she did say Berry should play tonight.

"Stephanie is listed as probable," Stringer said. "But I think you will have to wait and see. I would rather not comment on our injury She should play.'

Should Schueler not be available for tonight's game Stringer said she would go with 6-foot-2 junior forward Katie Abrahamson in the starting lineup. That move would force Franthea Price from a for-

"It would make us much bigger but we wouldn't be as quick," Stringer said. "I don't think we'll run as much or play pressure defense as much.

Long-lost Hawkeyes turn up at practice

By Bryce Miller The Daily Iowan

It seemed like a plotline from a bad soap.

Monday afternoon at Carver-Hawkeye Arena, some of the Iowa basketball team's main characters that had disappeared over the course of the season were back. Just when you thought they were out of the show, the writers found a way to get them back in the script. Curtis Cuthpert and Rodell Davis were decked in the black and gold practice jerseys. Cuthpert, a freshman redshirt, worked out with the scout team during practice Mon-day. Davis, also a redshirt freshman, was dressed, but didn't play.

"(Curtis) is just working out," Iowa Coach Tom Davis said. "He's just trying to get in shape. No, he won't be back with the team this Cuthpert hasn't participated with the team this season because of what he termed "personal reasons." A statement released at the beginning of the year wouldn't elaborate further on the situation.

Rodell Davis underwent preseasor knee surgery last fall. He said the procedure was for a torn ligament and another badly stretched liga-

"I'm just working inside, in th training room," Rodell Davis said. 'I'm not doing anything in practice. I'm going to sit this year out because it wouldn't be worth getting it injured again."
"Hopefully, we can get (Rodell) out here pretty soon," Tom Davis said.

"I don't think (the training staff) has even let him run yet. He's not walking on the thing without a

Schultz: Despite problems, violations are decreasing

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) - The executive director of the NCAA said Monday that rules violators will never be totally eliminated but serious violations are down substantially "and they've been going down at a steady rate in the last 2-3 years."

Dick Schultz told the NCAA's annual College

Making tracks

Football Preview that major violations have been decreasing despite recent probations to the football programs at Houston, Oklahoma, Oklahoma State and Texas A&M.

"I know there are a lot of people who are very cynical because things keep cropping up, and they say, 'Well, how can you say this?', " Schultz said. "But I'll specifically say that what you see, and what you saw happen and the penalties that were there really don't describe what's going on in intercollegiate athletics today.

"Whether you want to believe it or not, the number of violations are down substantially."

He said the recent probations were penalties for violations that occurred as long as four years ago.

Schultz categorized the major challenges facing intercollegiate athletics and the NCAA as "external challenges and internal challenges.

"The external challenges are not simple, but they're simply stated — it's the perceptions that we find in intercollegiate athletics today and the perceptions following the NCAA as an organization that have to be dealt with - the integrity issues in intercollegiate athletics and how people view it.

"We're never going to legislate integrity. We've tried that for years and we've ended up with a very complicated set of rules.

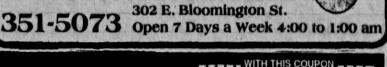

"We've simplified those with the new (NCAA) manual, but there are still a lot of rules there. Every
