Doctorates are taking longer to get, report says

By Tony Keates
The Daily Iowan

Graduate students are taking longer to finish their four-year programs because of increased demands from the government, according to a recent National Research Council study.

Dean E. John Errett said 8.9 percent of students who are working on degrees earned them in 4.5 years, a 0.75-year increase compared to a 4.25-year average in 1981-82. In 1972-73, the graduation rate was 3.9 percent.

The increased demands include 4.7 percent of students who earned doctorates in three years, a 1.7 percent increase, and 10.2 percent of students who earned doctorates in 4.5 years, a 5.9 percent increase.

The report also states that students who are working on degrees are taking longer to finish their four-year programs because of the government's increased demands for six years.

The government requires four years to complete a four-year program, and a third-year student must take three years to complete a four-year program.

The report also states that some students are taking longer to finish their four-year programs because of increased demands from the government. The government has increased the number of students who are working on degrees from 4.2 percent to 8.9 percent since 1972-73.

The government has increased its emphasis on research in the past decade, and the number of students who are working on degrees has increased accordingly.

Three Mile Island remembered

Memories of nuclear accident haunt Harrisburg 10 years later

HARRISBURG, Pa. — In the wake of another nuclear disaster, Three Mile Island, the site of the 1979 nuclear accident, remains a somber reminder of the dangers of nuclear power.

The accident, which occurred on March 28, 1979, resulted in a partial loss of coolant and a power surge that led to the release of radioactive materials into the environment.

The accident caused widespread concern and resulted in regulations aimed at preventing similar incidents in the future.

The Three Mile Island accident occurred during the early stages of a nuclear power plant's operation, and it highlighted the importance of safety and regulation in the nuclear industry.

The accident has also served as a catalyst for the development of new technologies and practices aimed at improving the safety and reliability of nuclear power plants.

Branstad defends environmental policy, plans no changes

DES MOINES—Gov. Terry Branstad defended his administration's environmental policy Monday, saying no changes are needed even as some of his top aides call for a tougher approach.

"I don't believe in just responding to every report or every comment," Branstad said in an interview at the Statehouse. "I am giving the citizens who have been appointed to these committees the opportunity to make the appropriate decisions.

Branstad said he would resist pressure to change his administration's environmental policy, which environmental groups have criticized as not doing enough to protect the state's environment.

"There are those who decide hundreds and hundreds of cases," the governor said. "I don't think it's appropriate for me to second-guess those people who are trying to do the right thing in a fair and impartial way.

Branstad said he would not reverse the decision of the state's two environmental impact review boards, which are responsible for approving large-scale projects that could have environmental impacts.

"I think it's there for a reason," he said. "It's the only way to assure that the state is protected.

"I think it's a good thing, and that's why I've continued to support it."

Branstad said his administration has focused on improving air quality, water quality and wildlife habitat, and has made progress in those areas.

"I think we're doing a pretty good job," he said. "I think we're definitely making progress.

"I think it's important to have an environmental policy," Branstad said.

Double standard

U.S. officials are accusing Iraq to begin action in making reparations in connection with the bombing of the USS Iowa. As a result, the U.S. government has ordered:* after a reassessment of the situation, the USS Iowa be returned to the Port of Galveston, Texas, where it has been anchored.

The new developments were announced by the White House on May 17, 1987, following a meeting between President Reagan and the Iraqi government, which was held earlier this week. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss ways to strengthen relations between the two countries.

The announcement was met with mixed reactions in the international community. Some leaders praised the decision, while others criticized it. The Iraqi government has denied any involvement in the incident and has called for closer cooperation between the two countries.

Hollow victory

The election of anti-establishment candidate Bob Dole to the Senate in 1986 has been hailed as a triumph for political reform in the United States. However, another vote in the same state this year has put the issue back on the political agenda.

In addition, the results of the election have caused some politicians to question the effectiveness of the political system. Some argue that the system is rigged in favor of the establishment, while others believe that it is still capable of producing genuine reforms.

caveat to the Editor:

As a responsible homeowner, I cannot say that I agree with the recent editorial (The Daily Iowan, March 16, 1987).

You are right to mention the importance of homeowner issues. However, I think that the editorial failed to address the root cause of the problem.

The lack of communication between the homeowner and the city government is a major factor in the current situation. The city government has not provided clear information about the regulations and procedures.

I would like to thank you for bringing this issue to our attention. It is important that we work together to find a solution.
Plastic bags spark controversy

"Degradeable" status is still harmful, environmentalists claim

By Paige Blaine

At Iowa City, environmental groups filed a complaint last week with the Iowa Department of Natural Resources asking it to ban "degradable" plastic bags that are currently being used by several Iowa retailers.

Environmental Advocate Nathan Shepherd and the group have two main objections to the degradable bags.

1. Iowa police states that landfills should be reserved for hazardous waste only. Shepherd said that the degradable bags are produced specifically for use at landfills, thus violating Iowa's pollution prevention Act of 1987.

2. Shepherd claims the bags are not degradable either. "We're currently looking into whether or not the bags are degradable," Shepherd said.

Teleconnect seeeth rejection of bid

DES MOINES (AP) — Officials of Teleconnect Co., a major out-of-state provider of educational communication network, have said they will appeal a decision of an administrative law judge who heard more than 80 hours of testimony last week in a $137 million bid to win the state's statewide schools' educational network.

"We feel there was no basis for the decision," Teleconnect spokesman Dave Rittman said. The council's decision was a victory for Teleconnect's two rival applicants, Teleconnect International of Chicago and Northern Telecom of Denver.

"I'm very disappointed," said Teleconnect educational network general manager Kathy Collins, who is also Teleconnect of Iowa's vice president. "I'm just amazed Teleconnect lost.

Comics

The comics collection is still more interesting in the number of copies than in their value. Which is a pity, considering that selling his comics when he is "hooked on" for such a long time can be a great temptation. So much so that some cartoonists have even staged a "cartoon auction." But when it comes to comics, it's more a question of entertainment than of value. So, as long as they're not worth anything, they can become the most valuable items of all.

Mediators appeal for cease-fire between Christians and Druse

BETHLEHEM, Lebanon (AP) — Christian army fighters exchanged artillery fire with Druse forces for the second day, a military spokesman said, as the United Nations and Arab mediators mounted a new appeal for a cease-fire.

A United Nations-brokered agreement on Monday ended four days of intense fighting that left scores of civilians dead and thousands more homeless. The conflict, which erupted over a border dispute in early January, has sparked international concern.

The UN announced that talks between the two sides will begin on Wednesday in New York City.

The fighting, which began on Sunday, has left at least 20 people dead and more than 50 injured, according to officials. The UN has deployed peacekeepers to the area to monitor the situation.

The conflict has raised concerns about the stability of the region, where a series of conflicts and tensions have plunged the area into chaos.

The UN has called for an immediate cease-fire and for all sides to comply with international law.

The fighting has also caused widespread damage to infrastructure, including roads, bridges, and buildings. The UN has called on all parties to refrain from using heavy weapons.

The situation remains tense, with both sides refusing to back down. The UN is working to bring about a peaceful resolution.

Sandinistas

call U.S. plan proof of victory

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — A Sandinista official on Wednesday denounced a U.S.-backed plan to restore friendly relations with the Central American nation, saying it was a proof of victory for the Sandinista revolution.

The Sandinistas, led by Daniel Ortega, have been in power in Nicaragua since 1979 and have been accused of human rights abuses and corruption.

The U.S. plan, announced on Tuesday, calls for the lifting of economic sanctions against Nicaragua and the easing of restrictions on travel and trade.

The Sandinistas have rejected the plan, saying it is a ploy to undermine the revolution and isolate Nicaragua from the international community.

The Sandinistas have also accused the U.S. of supporting right-wing groups inside Nicaragua, including paramilitary groups and human rights abusers.

The U.S. has denied the charges, saying the plan is based on a desire for peace and stability in the region.

The Sandinistas have also accused the U.S. of interfering in Nicaragua's internal affairs, including the elections and the media.

The U.S. has denied the charges, saying it is working to promote democracy and human rights in Nicaragua.

The situation remains tense, with both sides refusing to back down. The Sandinistas are determined to defend their revolution, while the U.S. is determined to bring about a peaceful resolution.
Iranian Revolutionary Guards seized a British yacht and four men on Monday off the coast of the Persian Gulf, a Kuwait-based diplomat and a European diplomat said.

The diplomat, who was speaking on condition of anonymity, said a Kuwait-based diplomat told him that the yacht was seized by Iran's Revolutionary Guards with four Britons and the yacht's owner, the director of a Kuwaiti company.

The diplomat said the company's owner was brought to Iran by the Revolutionary Guards and later released.

The diplomat said the yacht was seized by the Revolutionary Guards as part of a larger operation, but did not specify what other countries were involved.

The diplomat said the Revolutionary Guards did not immediately respond to questions about the seizure.

A spokesman for the British Foreign and Commonwealth Office said the government was aware of the incident and was in contact with therelevant authorities.

The spokesman said the government was providing all possible assistance to the affected individuals and their families.

The spokesman added that the government was also working closely with the relevant authorities to ensure the safety and security of all British citizens in Iran.

The government had also made clear to Iran's authorities that the seizure was unacceptable and would not be tolerated.

The government would continue to work with all relevant parties to ensure the safe and immediate release of the affected individuals and their immediate return to the UK.

Lebanese generals seek help for Bush WASHINGTON — The commanders of Lebanon’s Christian army said Wednesday they could not rule out a renewal of the war, as they asked the United States for help to end the conflict between the Christian group of Phalangists and the militant guerrilla group Hezbollah.

The fighters have been fighting since last week, with both sides claiming successes in the battle for control of the south of Lebanon.

The Phalangists, led by the leader of the group, Sheik Fehmi Karami, have launched a new offensive against Hezbollah, which they say is being backed by Iran and Syria.

Beirut, Lebanon (AP) — The latest round of fighting in south Lebanon has been called off, with both sides reportedly consolidating their positions and avoiding further clashes.

The fighting has been going on for several days, with the two sides accusing each other of attacking.

The Israeli military said it had launched air strikes against Hezbollah targets, but there were no immediate reports of casualties.

Israel and Hezbollah have been locked in a conflict since 2006, with the Israeli army carrying out frequent attacks on the group's bases in southern Lebanon.

The fighting has also raised concerns about the stability of the region, as the two sides continue to hold onto their positions.

The Phalangists have vowed to continue fighting until they achieve their goals.

Lebanese Prime Minister Najib Mikati said on Wednesday that Lebanon was facing a "difficult situation" due to the ongoing conflict.

He said the government was working to find a solution to the crisis, but added that it was "not easy to find a way out of this situation."

St. Louis ousted Spartans

Mizzou's Marcus Douglas scored 20 points, nearly double his average, as St. Louis wound up one of its two biggest upsets of the NIT tournament championship game by beating Madison State 74-64 Monday night.

The game, played at St. Louis' championship gym, St. John's best Alabama-Huntsville 76-63 in the other semi-final game last week, was the winner of the winner of St. John's and Alabama-Huntsville, in the NIT title game Monday night.

St. Louis, which came back from halftime deficits of 20 and 12 points late in the game, downed New Mexico and West Virginia for tournament, receiving that status from the University of Southern Mississippi in 1970. The second half of Douglas scored 21 points and brought back a 24-point deficit.

The second half of Douglas' impressive performance was in the second half of the game, as his 9-of-16 shooting in the final 10 minutes of the game, as his 9-of-16 shooting in the final 10 minutes of the game.

Royals inquire about Boggs

HANNEFORD, N.Y. (AP) - The Kansas City Royals have talked with the New York Yankees about the availability of Wade Boggs, the American League batting champion selected in the Rule 5 draft last week, according to General Manager John Schuerholz.

Schuerholz, in an interview with The Kansas City Star Monday, confirmed that talks had taken place but said the Royals' players involved and other details of the deal were not discussed.

The shortstop, who described Boggs' personal problems as the biggest obstacle to a deal, said the Royals would continue to improve their pitching depth.

"In a good manner to me," he said, "I don't think he can win games," Schuerholz said of Boggs. "I'm guessing I'm saying it is really small at this point ... it's small at this point."

Boggs, who had a career-high 34 points in 1981 and 26 points in 1982, was listed with 25 points as he signed for his fourth year at the University of South Carolina.
