Investigations follow soccer crowd disaster

SHEFFIELD, England (AP) — Criticism increased Monday into the police handling of the soccer stadium disaster that killed 94 fans, and the government launched its own inquiry and said it may ban standing-room-only sections.

Officials and fans accused the South Yorkshire police of letting thousands of late arrivals into Hillsborough stadium — and then responding too slowly when the surging crowd was crushed against a steel anti-riot fence in one of the standing-room-only terraces.

Home Secretary Douglas Hurd, speaking to a hushed House of Commons, said the inquiry headed by Lord Justice Taylor would begin work today and "make recommendations about the needs of crowd control and safety at sports grounds."

"We have to set our sights high and find a better way for British football (soccer)," Hurd said. "We owe a duty to these passionate supporters of football to examine urgently and thoroughly the causes and background and to do all in our power to prevent such a thing happening again."

Hurd told the Commons the decision of a senior police officer to open the gate because he "considered that there was a possible danger to the lives of the spectators at the front" would be a central question for investigators. See Stadium, Page 6A

U.S.S.R. plans institution of progressive tax

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union introduced a new, progressive income tax that will abolish payments by the poor and increase rates threefold for wealthier citizens.

Finance Minister Boris Gostev said the tax structure reflects growing differences in income.

In an interview published Monday in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda, Gostev said the new tax structure becomes effective in January and is the first change in 46 years.

On Sunday, Pravda published the tax structure in the form of a draft law. The draft must be approved by the government before it becomes law.

Soviets currently pay a flat 10 percent of their income in taxes if they make less than the equivalent of $320 a month. The rate increases a few percentage points for higher incomes.

Under the draft, people making more than $2,400 a month will pay

Ethics panel levels charges against Wright

Report follows 10-month inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House ethics committee, with Democrats and Republicans united, formally charged Speaker Jim Wright Monday with 69 violations of the chamber's rules, including what the panel's chairman called "a scheme to evade" limits on outside earnings.

After a 10-month, $1.5 million investigation, the committee of six Democrats and six Republicans voted unanimously to issue a report finding "reason to believe" the Texas Democrat had run afoul of House rules requiring reporting of gifts, barring acceptance of gifts from persons with a direct interest in legislation and limiting outside earned income.

"I know in my heart I have not violated any of the rules of that institution," Wright said in a speech to a labor meeting shortly after the ethics report was released.

He said he had asked "very urgently, very earnestly" for a quick meeting with the committee "to confront them, to confront the allegations head-on, face to face."

At a news conference, committee chairman Rep. Julian Dixon, D-Calif., emphasized that Wright is presumed innocent until the charges are proven. Dixon underscored that proving them requires a much heavier weight of evidence than the step taken Monday, which is the panel's equivalent of an indictment.

The move set in motion a series of steps in which Wright can defend himself and the panel can try to prove with "clear and convincing" evidence that the violations occurred. That is likely to ultimately throw the matter before the full House, where Wright's position as the nation's highest elected Democrat could be on the line.

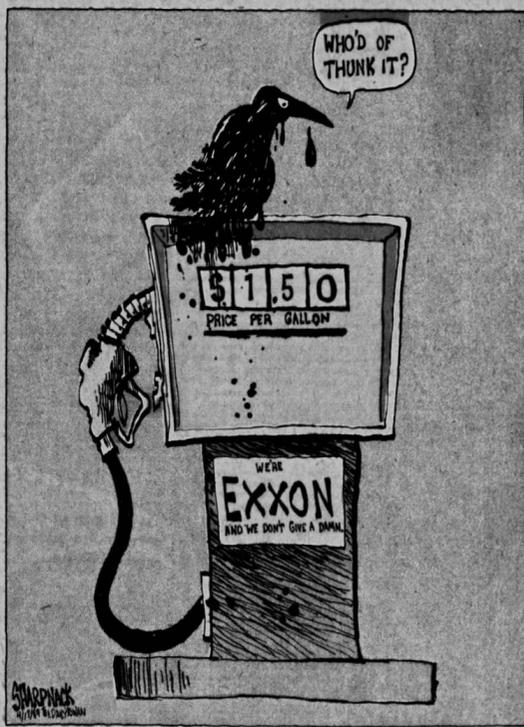

Possible punishments range from a reprimand to expulsion from the House, although lawmakers in both parties seemed to think the final decision would come down to whether Wright should be reprimanded or simply chastised for poor judgment and let off without formal punishment.

Wright immediately began his defense in earnest, operating what one supporter, Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, called "a war room" out of the speaker's office. "At some point we've got to start figuring out who's on our side and who's on the other side," Wilson said.

Wilson predicted Wright would win on the floor, "losing a few cowardly Democrats and picking up some brave Republicans."

The most serious allegation against Wright — that Fort Worth developer George Mallick, from whom he accepted $145,000 in gifts

Bush vows to support Polish political reform

HAMTRAMCK, Mich. (AP) — Saying the West must respond to "yearnings for democracy" in Eastern Europe, President George Bush on Monday announced an array of economic incentives for Poland aimed at encouraging the Warsaw government to continue its new-found momentum toward political reform.

He lauded the Communist government's reinstatement of the trade union movement Solidarity, after eight years of banishment, and authorities' agreement to hold Poland's first free parliamentary elections since before World War II.

Traveling to this Polish-American city on the same day Poland's highest court legalized Solidarity, Bush told a flag-waving crowd:

Barrage of complaints leads to new treatment

By Sara Langenberg
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City Water Treatment Plant is expecting the implementation of a new chemical treatment to improve the taste and color of Iowa City's water.

Superintendent Ed Brinton said the addition of chlorine dioxide will improve the taste, color and smell of Iowa City water within a few weeks of its implementation.

The treatment plant is still getting the system set up for the addition of the new chemical, but Brinton said he expects the chlorine-dioxide treatment to begin in about 10 days.

"We still have about three or four weeks of water-main flushing to do, so even though we'll be adding the chlorine dioxide in about 10 days, some parts of town may notice (a difference in the water) right away while others may never notice it at all," Brinton said.

Brinton said the city has contracted to test the chlorine dioxide for two months, but may extend the contract if there are good results.

The addition of the new chemical would cost the city about $100,000 per year, but if it is successful, the city would be able to reduce that figure by the cost of other chemicals previously used for the same purpose, Brinton said.

"We spent a lot of money last year on chemicals trying to change the water, and it didn't help at all. I wasn't pleased with the results. We weren't satisfied and neither were

McGovern challenges liberals to imaginative action

By Deborah Giuba
The Daily Iowan

U.S. Senator George McGovern told about 200 people Monday that the world is moving toward an unprecedented era of change that requires bold and imaginative solutions from American liberals.

McGovern said there exists a willingness of the U.S.S.R. to make foreign arms agreements and a necessity for the United States to decrease foreign military support.

"We're in a period now of unprecedented change and unprecedented opportunity," he said.

McGovern said the new Soviet leadership has made strides on the international front in just the past three or four years that have not been reciprocated by the United States. A proposal in 1985 for a verifiable ban on nuclear armaments testing was a missed opportunity by the United States, he said.

He said American public opinion polls indicate that a nation's international power is based on its economic health.

"That's a very important change in the view of the American people," he said.

McGovern was a Democratic presidential candidate in 1984 and the party's nominee in 1972, when he won the popular vote in Massachusetts and Washington, D.C.

"I look back on that experience not with any regrets, except the results, but with great pride," he said. He added that only about 50 other Americans have come in second to the winning president.

Having served 18 years in the U.S. Senate and founding the Americans for Common Cause — a lobbyist group representing the interests of the poor, minorities and other marginal groups — McGovern is an advocate for a strong two-party system.

"I feel it is that creative tension between the two that explains much of the genius of the American political system, and I believe it works when liberals behave like liberals and when conservatives act like conservatives," he said.

McGovern said conservatives should be faithful to the Constitution and not evade the law. Conservatives are also cautious of government expenditures and deficits, he said.

Conservatism's values are in question following a Reagan administration that seemed to contradict this principle, as it tripled the national debt and behaved unconstitutionally in the Oliver North affair, McGovern said.

Conservatives have traditionally opposed liberal initiatives that are responsible for nearly all social programs including savings and loans safeguards, civil rights, Medicare, Social Security and student loans, he said.

"It's interesting to point out that people like President (George) Bush and former president (Ronald) Reagan are apt to quote liberals favorably, but not while they are alive," McGovern said.

Franklin Roosevelt, Dwight Eisenhower and John Kennedy are often quoted by conservatives who claim credit for what has been accomplished in the liberal spirit, he said.

"I can't recall any presidential election when the whole liberal tradition came under attack as it did in the campaign of George Bush," he said.

The center of the road philosophy followed by Bush is contrary to the U.S. political traditions, and a clear alternative must be presented to the voters in 1992, he said.

CAC rallies to defense of Rawlings

By Diana Wallace
The Daily Iowan

The UI Collegiate Associations Council approved a resolution Monday night to support UI President Hunter Rawlings' call for the NCAA and Big Ten to address the issue of freshman eligibility.

Jerry Miller, CAC administrative assistant and sponsor of the resolution, said he was "really impressed (Rawlings) is taking such a bold move."

Miller added that the councilors "had an obligation to support Rawlings on this because, when he first came to campus, the CAC urged him to address the concerns of the academic progress of student athletes. And he's just acting on those concerns."

Rawlings said two weeks ago he would impose a ban on freshman athletic eligibility at the UI within three years, even if the NCAA and Big Ten didn't support his proposal. Rawlings then softened his stance during last week's state Board of Regents meeting, saying he would not take unilateral action without consultation with "appropriate constituencies."

"There's a lot more to this issue than people really know," said Syd Smith, CAC councilor and newly elected Liberal Arts Student Association president. "Rawlings' main position isn't to cut freshman eligibility... His main position is increasing academic excellence."

Miller said that bold, unpre-

Anti-porn bill gets revisions

Leaders say decision may be overturned

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa Senate narrowly voted Monday to curb a House anti-pornography bill, but leaders said the action could be overturned later in the week.

On a 23-22 vote, the Senate approved an amendment that would leave only one section in the House bill — a ban on rental of hard-core pornographic materials.

Most members of the House and Senate agreed to ban such rentals after the Iowa Supreme Court ruled last year that Iowa's ban on the sale of hard-core pornography did not apply to rental of such materials.

Lawmakers faced the task of updating the law this year in the face of the growing rental movie industry. But the House added several provisions to its bill, including expanding the definition of hard-core pornography to outlaw materials now legal for sale in Iowa.

The House went too far in its zeal to crack down on pornography, some senators argued in opening floor debate of the issue Monday.

"When you start prohibiting what people can possess in the privacy of their own home, how's that substantially different than prohibiting what people can think? How's that substantially different than prohibiting what people can say?" asked Sen. Tom Mann, Des Moines.

Mann was chief sponsor of the amendment that would keep Iowa's current anti-pornography law intact and merely add a ban on the rental of materials that cannot be sold in the state.

"It's not like we don't have a workable obscenity law — we do," Mann said.

"Let's leave well enough alone," added Sen. Julia Gentleman, R-Des Moines.

But opponents of Mann's amendment charged that the Senate was shirking its responsibility to protect Iowans from the effects of pornography.

"We're afraid to talk about it on the floor of the Senate, but we're willing to let it be sold across the state," said Sen. Ray Taylor, R-Steamboat Rock.

APO wages war on city trash

From beer bottles to shoes - you name it, they picked it up

By Noelle Nystrom
The Daily Iowan

Spring is the season when everyone works to get in shape for a summer of fun in the sun. Unfortunately, Iowa City residents need to shape up more than just their bodies.

Last weekend, about 100 volunteers from community and university organizations rounded up their trash bags and braved rainy weather to join in the fourth annual Alpha Phi Omega Iowa City Spring Cleanup.

"I'll never litter again," said APO member Kelli Willard.

Willard said she cleaned up the area along the Iowa River and the Union. Among the many treasures she found were alcohol cans and bottles, shoes, one pair of men's underwear and a dead squirrel.

"We left the squirrel because it's biodegradable," she said.

Vickie Sovereign, APO vice president in charge of service and co-chair of the cleanup project, said the rain probably kept some community members away.

"Before the project actually began, we sent groups out to look for the filthiest areas where we'd pick up the most trash," — Scott Sovereign, director of APO Public Relations

"I think many people were initially turned off by the rain, but it turned out to be a really great day," Sovereign said. "We still had a good turnout and got a lot of work done."

About 40 to 50 friends of APO members, volunteers from organizations such as the Sigma Nu and Delta Sigma Pi fraternities, the Sigma Kappa sorority and the Arnold Air Supply came to help pick up garbage. Two drivers from the Iowa City Sanitation Department offered to drive garbage trucks.

Volunteers were divided into about seven groups and then sent to different cleanup targets. Workers spent about three hours picking up trash on Riverside Drive, Highway 6, Iowa City Park, the Iowa River, the Pentacrest, Clinton Street and Iowa Avenue.

"Before the project actually began, we sent groups out to look for the filthiest areas where we'd pick up the most trash," said Scott Sovereign, director of APO Public Relations.

Vickie Sovereign said the areas along Riverside Drive and Highway 6 needed the most attention.

"We cleaned all of Riverside," she said. "There are some places that the city just can't get to, and those are the ones we worked on."

The appearance of a city is important because it says the community cares about it and thinks it's worthy of being clean, said Betsy Schilling, co-chair of the cleanup project.

Schilling said APO starts planning the project in late January. She learned the importance of communicating with university and community groups to get them to volunteer.

"I also learned what difficulties you can run into," she said.

Alpha Phi Omega Omicron is a national co-ed service fraternity that functioned on the UI campus for about 50 years until 1979. Four years ago APO was re-chartered, and the new organization began the annual Iowa City cleanup project.

"You don't realize how much garbage is around until you actually go around looking for it," Willard said. "Your mind just seems to tune it out when you're walking to class."

City council considers erecting 'Peace pole' on pedestrian mall

By Paige Bierma
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City Peace Committee requested the Iowa City Council's permission Monday night to erect a peace pole in the new Blackhawk Mini Park section of the Downtown Pedestrian Mall.

"The peace pole idea was born in Japan 30 years ago as part of a movement for world peace through prayer," said LaVonn Horton, a member of the Peace Committee, which is made up of members of about 20 different area churches.

The 7-foot-7-inch pole would have the words, "May Peace Prevail on Earth," in different languages on each of its four 4-inch sides. English, Russian, and two other languages yet to be determined will be used.

Most councilors reacted favorably to the peace pole idea, but some expressed concern over the proposed location.

The 7-foot-7-inch pole would have the words, "May Peace Prevail on Earth," in different languages on each of its four 4-inch sides. English, Russian, and two other languages yet to be determined will be used.

"I kind of like the plaza the way it is," Councilor Darrel Courtney said. He suggested that other area parks be considered for the location.

Courtney also expressed concern that if the council allowed the Peace Committee to erect the monument in the mall, other organizations would want to do the same. The council would then have to decide where to draw the line, he said.

But other councilors said they thought the plaza, which is a high-traffic area, was a perfect place for the peace pole.

Councilors decided to direct Iowa City's Design Review Committee and the Parks and Recreation Commission to work with the Peace Committee in finding a suitable location for the pole.

In other business, the council granted general approval to the Parks and Recreation Commission's plans for the construction of a new park/sports complex near the new wastewater treatment plant currently being constructed south of Iowa City.

The new facility will have 10 to 12 soccer fields which will enable Iowa City's youth soccer activities to be centralized in this location and will also have a four-field softball complex designed primarily for adult use, Parks and Recreation Commission member Craig Willis told the council.

The new facility should take pressure off of Scott Boulevard, Willow Creek, Weatherby Park, and other locations, according to objectives stated in a report to the council.

3 awarded grants for medical study

Three researchers at the UI College of Medicine have recently been awarded grants for research in hypertension, the destruction of nerve fibers and the development of lung tumors.

Dr. Kevin Dellsperger, fellow in internal medicine, has won a five-year, $325,000 grant from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) to study the effects of hypertension on blood flow in small arteries and veins. Further knowledge about microcirculation may enable researchers to better understand how hypertension affects blood supply and heart functions.

Dr. Stanley Perlman, associate professor of pediatrics, has received a $270,000 Research Career Development Award from the NIH. The five-year grant will allow Perlman to study the destruction of myelin, a fat-like substance that surrounds nerve fibers in both animals and humans. By studying myelin destruction in animals that have certain viruses, Perlman can gain insight about factors that contribute to myelin destruction in related human diseases such as multiple sclerosis.

Dr. Jeffrey Kern, assistant professor of internal medicine, has been awarded an $18,000 grant from the American Lung Association to study the role of a growth receptor in lung tissue.

Iowa Democrats push new casino bill

DES MOINES (AP) — The effort to legalize floating casinos took another turn Monday when a Senate committee approved a new gambling bill that would amend another bill that has not yet become law.

The unusual procedure is the brainchild of Democratic legislative leaders who are trying to get a reluctant Legislature to legalize low-stakes casinos on boats plying the Mississippi River and other waterways.

On a 10-5 vote Monday, the Senate Judiciary Committee approved a bill that toughens the law enforcement provisions in the original casino legalization bill. That bill is now in the House, where supporters hope to use the new Senate bill to wring out an additional three votes needed for passage.

The original casino bill was narrowly defeated by the House last week and now awaits a reconsideration vote after the Senate acts on the companion bill.

That has put gambling opponents in the unusual situation of opposing a bill that would toughen casino enforcement. If the enforcement bill dies, the original casino bill also could die because House leaders do not want to amend that proposal to include the enforcement provisions.

Amending the bill would send it back to the Senate, where it was defeated once this year before leaders exerted pressure to secure a one-vote margin of victory. Casino supporters do not think they could pull that off again, so they are pushing the companion bill.

"If you oppose riverboat gambling, I think you should oppose this bill," Sen. Michael Gronstal, D-Council Bluffs, told Judiciary Committee members.

The companion bill would raise the minimum gambling age from 18 to 21 and prohibit convicted felons from operating casinos.

Among other provisions, the bill would require that casinos close by 2 a.m. and increase the share of gambling profits allocated to the state fund for gamblers' assistance programs.

The maneuvering put some conservative members of the Judiciary Committee in the unusual position of voting against such provisions as raising the betting age.

Sen. Ray Taylor, R-Steamboat Rock, said he was upset at the tactics used by casino supporters.

"The bill is over there (in the House). Why don't they amend it and send it back?" Taylor asked.

Senate Majority Leader Bill Hutchins, D-Audubon, said he hopes to get the companion bill approved by the Senate today. Casino supporters say that would break the logjam in the House, allowing passage of the original casino bill.

Gov. Terry Branstad has indicated he would sign the bill if it is approved by the Legislature, even though most members of the governor's own Republican Party oppose the floating casinos.

Only four Republicans voted for the bill in the House last week, while 44 Democrats supported the bill.

Casino supporters succeeded Monday in defeating proposed amendments to the companion bill. The committee turned down a Gronstal amendment that would have allowed casinos only on boats that can hold 500 or more passengers — a move that would preclude casinos on the Missouri River and most other bodies of water other than the Mississippi River.

The committee originally approved an amendment to set the gambling age at 18 instead of 21, but the amendment later was withdrawn when casino supporters convinced key committee members to reverse their votes.

Those amendments are expected to be offered again on the Senate floor.

Branstad declares drought disaster areas, vows assistance

DES MOINES (AP) — Gov. Terry Branstad today asked federal officials for help in hauling and piping water to parched areas of southern Iowa, and announced $6.4 million in new water projects for the region.

In taking that action, Branstad formally declared six counties disaster areas because of dry weather that has withered portions of the state even before spring planting begins.

Branstad said he asked the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers to begin hauling water and laying emergency water lines in Adams, Decatur, Jefferson, Ringgold, Taylor and Union counties.

Those are the counties he declared disaster areas, a step that could make them eligible for still more state and federal assistance.

Those are the hardest hit," Branstad said. "That situation is continuing to be critical. They are continuing to be plagued by conditions of severe drought, low ground water and stream flows."

Iowa, on the average, has received half the normal amount of rain this year. The dry weather, combined with low soil moisture, is threatening hayfields and pastureland that farmers use to graze cattle. Some farmers already have cut back their herds and more are considering that action.

Additional water projects already are under way in 10 rural counties, the governor said.

To deal with an immediate water shortage in parts of southern Iowa, Branstad sought help from the Corps of Engineers. The problem is most severe in many small, rural towns where residents depend on individual wells, many of which have dried up after two years of drought.

The governor noted that in Grand River, residents get water from 107 individual wells but "75 percent are inoperable because of no water or low water levels."

Branstad said he has met with weather experts about this year's dry spring and they haven't offered any good news.

"Iowa State University Extension Climatologist Elwynn Taylor reports that the soil moisture is only half of normal at this point, and weather conditions do not favor normal spring rains in the near future," he said.

age is crucial because there's not enough for human consumption as well as livestock. In some counties, firefighting capabilities have been crippled, he said.

Ellen Gordon, head of Disaster Services of Iowa, said communities that get emergency water will be urged to put use restrictions in place but "we won't be mandating them."

She urged "common sense" restrictions such as halting the watering of lawns and washing cars.

Branstad said state officials are still mulling a request to open fragile acres for livestock grazing. That decision would have to be made by U.S. Agriculture Department officials.

'Marital rape' bill goes back to Senate after House victory

DES MOINES (AP) — Without debate, the House on Monday approved a "marital rape" measure allowing police to file sex abuse charges when a spouse is assaulted.

"Whether or not it happens within the family or without the family, we're going to hold these people responsible," said Rep. Ralph Rosenberg, D-Ames, floor manager of the measure. "Rape is wrong whether you are married to the person or not."

The House approved the measure on an 89-5 vote, returning it to the Senate. Senators have already approved a similar bill and must now consider minor House changes.

Under the measure, it is possible to file third-degree sex abuse charges when a spouse is raped.

Under current law, assault and other charges can be filed when there are injuries beyond the rape itself. In cases where there are no injuries other than the rape, however, there is a specific exemption in state law which prohibits filing of charges against a spouse.

In past years, the issue drew heated fire from critics who argued that lawmakers were inserting themselves into private marital questions best left to the couple to decide.

There was none of that debate on Monday, though five conservative Republicans voted against the measure.

"It is a significant bill," said Rosenberg.

Rosenberg said that it is only the latest step in a series of measures lawmakers have approved cracking down on marital violence.

Dreams

Here are in a world apart. But remember, you once had dreams the same as she. And one day she'll have dreams the same as yours. These dreams become the seeds of all her achievement. They have a way of growing... just like she will, just like you did.

And for 83 years, those dreams have been the seeds of our growth too. Homes, cars, college, your business and more. We've been there and helped a lot of folks see those things come true.

So the next time you're dreaming YOUR American dream... come see us. We'll help you catch your part.

Together we can!

Registration workers enjoy aiding students

By Robin Shepherd
Special to The Daily Iowan

Even when courses grow scarce and tensions mount, the women behind the computers at the UI registration center are glad to be there.

According to Jane Omann, coordinator of registration and enrollment, the women in the registration center will be entering about 30,000 schedules into the UI computers during the next few weeks of early registration for the summer and fall sessions.

Registration worker Sue Collins has worked in the center for 13 years.

"I really like being around the students, and it's fun to watch the students progress through the years," she said. "You also couldn't work with a nicer bunch of people."

But the seasonal rushes associated with registration for fall, spring and summer sessions can limit contact with students.

"The worst part about the job is when you have to hurry," she said. "I hate that because you can't give the students the time you'd like to."

Collins started working in the office when her daughter started first grade.

"The hours are great," Collins said. "I know my schedule months ahead of time, and I don't have to work holidays."

Margie Kohout has worked at the registration center for 2 1/2 years. Kohout, who has two college-age children, said she enjoys the opportunity for contact with college students.

"You find out that your own children are normal," Kohout said. "They are either better or worse off than some of the students who come through registration.

"You work here because you enjoy people and students," she said. "You'd go crazy if you didn't. When it gets so busy that you can't breathe, finding sections that fit into the jigsaw puzzle can become pretty difficult."

Compared to many of the other women at the center, Nancy Kienzle's five month tenure makes her a registration rookie.

"I haven't worked here for very long, so maybe my views on students will change," Kienzle said. "I find that the students who come through are cooperative on the whole, but some students don't prepare as well as they should, and that makes it difficult."

The early stages of registration usually run smoothly, but when courses begin to shut down, lines get longer and red tape mounts, students' tempers can flare.

"Some students do get belligerent, but it's usually their own fault because they didn't read the instructions," said Jeanette Delozier. "It gets more frustrating when they get older and the same problems persist."

But even the most hectic days provide a positive challenge, said registration worker Bea Schwab.

"I dislike my job when we are really busy, and students get rude because something is not working out right," Schwab said. "But (the hectic days) are kind of fun in a way because you're so glad when they're over."

Schwab said she especially enjoys seeing people she knows come through registration, such as relatives.

Environmental issues carry weight in residential development proposal

By Paige Bierma
The Daily Iowan

Environmental issues may be given a little more weight by the city when determining which areas of Iowa City residential developers should be encouraged to build on.

A new policy will go into effect in late May if a proposed update to the city's 1973 Comprehensive Plan is approved by the Iowa City Council at that time.

The Comprehensive Plan is a general statement of policies which summarizes how Iowa City officials believe the city's land should be developed and guides the city's actions.

The plan is prepared by the Planning and Zoning Commission and approved by the Iowa City Council. The update for the 1973 Comprehensive Plan was released last week.

The plan's development sequence — which lists in order of preference those undeveloped residential areas that Iowa City officials would like to see developed first — is determined by such criteria as the existence of sewer and water lines in the area, street access and public facilities such as schools.

The following Iowa City areas would be given top priority:

• 32 acres on the south side along U.S. Highway 1.

• 32 acres on the east side along Scott Boulevard between Muscatine Avenue and Court Street.

• 71 acres on the northeast side south of Rochester Avenue.

• 36 acres on the east side near Mormon Trek Boulevard.

• 74 acres behind Mayflower Residence Hall, North Dubuque Street.

The added emphasis on environmental issues did not, however, produce a significant change in the above proposed sequence, said Karin Franklin, senior planner of the Iowa City Department of Planning and Program Development.

But the change does reflect the city's increased concern with environmental problems, Franklin added.

Kyron Cook, planning and zoning commissioner, said that while the city needs to concern itself with the prospect of developers destroying wooded areas or causing erosion and other environmental hazards, it needs to develop in those areas where the infrastructure already exists.

"We're willing to preserve as much of the environment as possible. But at the same time, we have to realize the need to have a cost-effective city," Cook said.

Iowa City Councilor Susan Horowitz said that although the change in the Comprehensive Plan was a positive step, it was not enough to protect Iowa City's environmental safety and aesthetic appearance.

Three public hearings on the Comprehensive Plan update will be held for members of the community who wish to discuss the proposals at 7:30 p.m. in the following Iowa City schools:

• April 24 at Horn School, 600 Koser Ave.

• April 25 at Shimek School, 14 Grissel Place.

• April 26 at Southeast Junior High, 2501 Bradford Drive.

our customers," Brinton said. "The treatment plant has received 'hundreds — not thousands, not just a few — but hundreds' of complaints about the color and taste of Iowa City water since February, he said.

"We did attempt to log them all at first," he said. "But after a while there were just too many."

Brinton said the water's taste is a result of the combination of the chlorine, which the treatment plant adds, and particles in the river water.

"When chlorine combines with materials in the river water — like ammonia in the river — it adds odor and flavor to the water. It's not harmful, it's just a nuisance," he said.

Chlorine dioxide is much stronger than chlorine, Brinton said, but it doesn't produce the tastes, odors and other by-products which result from the combination of materials in river water and chlorine.

"Chlorine dioxide fights color, iron, manganese and other organic materials without producing the tastes and odors created by other products," he said.

Chlorine dioxide treatment has a good track record, he said.

Fairfield, Iowa, and Montezuma, Iowa, also use chlorine dioxide to treat their water.

Marvin Ferneau, assistant superintendent of the Montezuma water treatment plant, said they started using chlorine dioxide in 1982, mainly to treat trihalomethanes in their water. Montezuma is about 60 miles west of Iowa City. Ferneau said the treatment took a long time to test because the chemicals in the water vary depending on the weather. Eventually, he said, Montezuma began using the chlorine dioxide only in the summer.

"Within a few weeks you're going to notice a difference," Ferneau said.

Brinton said the quality of Iowa City's water began deteriorating in February. It went from water with "a little bit of color" to water with "severe color and turbidity," he said.

Turbidity is the existence of visible particles or sediment in the water, he said.

"You can have color without particles," Brinton explained. "You can have sugar in water and not see it, or you can have tea in water and not see it. But we had color and particles which were (the result of the combination of) chemicals we were adding and materials from the river."

Brinton said when the plant added a lot of chlorine to the water in February, "it made things taste and smell even worse."

Brinton didn't think the chemicals discoloring the water were harmful.

"All the samples, tests and opinions we got told us that the water was bacterially safe. We got good results," he said.

dented academic agendas are "in line with the traditional role our university has played as the first university with its own educational television station and the first university west of the Mississippi River to open its classes to women."

CAC Executive Associate Chris Anderson called the resolution a "note of encouragement to Rawlings that doesn't pin us down to a particular stance," and said the simplicity of the legislation was important.

"I want to see it pass without any ifs, ands or buts," he said. "I'm glad we don't have any 'if and only ifs.' It would weaken (the resolution), brings it down to nothing."

The legislation states that the CAC "supports President Rawlings' leadership in urging the NCAA to address concerns regarding freshman athletic eligibility."

Miller said the ineligibility of freshman athletes would not only enhance their academic adjustments, but would also aid in the growth of student athletes both academically and socially.

"The freshman year will be a year in which (student athletes) have extra time for studies, but also can assimilate themselves with the rest of the campus," Miller said.

He added, "We want to reassert that we're a university with a football team, not the other way around."

Survivors said about 4,000 fans were pushing at turnstiles to get inside.

Hillsborough gatekeeper Jack Stone told the Sheffield Star he refused police orders to open the outer gate and was forced to hand over his keys to a police inspector.

"I handed the keys to him and told him it was his responsibility and not mine," Stone was quoted as saying.

Liverpool fan Stephen Mitton, who was caught in the crush outside the gate, told BBC-TV:

"The steward put his hand on the gate and said, 'Don't open it.' The police said, 'Open the gate. There's going to be a crush.' Then two police officers opened the gate."

The crush was so great, Mitton said, that fans fell on the floor and people climbed over them. "All the police were doing was standing up saying 'Get back, get back.' There was already people dead then. I climbed on them to get over the fence."

The Sheffield Star said a police superintendent made the decision to open the 16-foot-wide gate because he feared a wall was seconds away from collapsing on hundreds of fans.

"Startled officers — some of them hemmed in — thought the wall was beginning to buckle under the enormous pressure of screaming fans. The crowd was packed so tightly around a police horse that it was lifted six inches off the ground," the paper said.

South Yorkshire police, who have handed over a separate investigation of the policing of the match to the neighboring West Midlands police force, refused to comment on the Sheffield Star report.

Police on Monday released the names of the 94 victims.

a new European destiny. Eastern Europe is awakening to yearnings for democracy, independence and prosperity."

"Democratic forces in Poland have asked for the moral, political and economic support of the West," he told the crowd. "We can and must answer this call for freedom."

Among the incentives Bush announced:

• Asking Congress to lower tariffs on selected Polish imports under the Generalized System of Preferences. Such preferential tariffs are generally used to aid less-developed nations.

• Seeking congressional approval of U.S. guaranteed loans to stimulate private investment in Poland. Such incentives, which would be done through the Overseas Private Investment Corp., would provide a kind of political risk insurance to U.S. investors.

• A new U.S. willingness to work with its allies and other western financial leaders toward a program assisting Poland in attacking its $38 billion debt.

Bush said, however, that the terms and timing of any rescheduling of the Polish debt will depend on several factors, including Warsaw's progress in working with the International Monetary Fund to introduce "sound economic policies."

Taken together, the moves could amount to more than $1 billion in economic advantages to the Communist government and would, if fully implemented, largely reverse the economic sanctions imposed against the Warsaw government in 1981 and 1982 after it imposed martial law crackdown.

over a 10-year period, had a direct interest in legislation — also had the narrowest margin of support on the ethics committee.

According to records of internal committee votes released along with the report of the panel's special outside counsel, Chicago attorney Richard Phelan, Democrats Chester Atkins of Massachusetts and Bernard Dwyer of New Jersey joined the six committee Republicans for an 8 to 4 margin on that issue.

The panel agreed with its counsel, Phelan, that Mallick's major interests in real estate and oil and gas ventures and in re-development of Fort Worth's historic stockyards district gave him a direct interest in legislation on taxation and on certain appropriations bills. His financing arrangements with savings and loan institutions also gave him an interest in legislation involving the S&L industry, the committee found.

But Wright's lawyer, William Oldaker, called that "doublespeak" and said "it's one of the most outrageous readings of legislative history" he has seen. Overall, the report contains "a lot of noise, a lot of clamoring, but very little substance," he said.

Other matters before the committee were more clear cut. The panel voted unanimously that there was reason to believe Wright failed to report as gifts the use of a car and Fort Worth condominium he and his wife, Betty, received from Mallick. Committee members voted 10-2 that Betty Wright's $18,000-a-year salary from a Mallick-Wright company should also be characterized as a gift, saying she did little or nothing to earn the money.

The panel also voted 10-2 that certain bulk sales of Wright's book, "Reflections of a Public Man," appeared to have been used to evade House ceilings on outside earned income.

The committee voted unanimously to issue its statement of alleged violation formally charging the speaker with breaking the rules.

50 percent of their earnings to the treasury.

Gostev said only 3.4 percent of Soviet workers make more than the equivalent of $800 a month, and that most Soviets won't be affected by the new tax structure.

The new structure calls for abolishing tax payments by people who make less than $130 a month — just above the amount government officials consider the minimum necessary to get by in Soviet society. It also provides for reduced taxes for earners of less than $160 monthly, with officials determining later how big the reduction should be.

Most industrial workers make $347 a month.

The structure sets a tax rate of 12.2 percent for incomes of $1,120 a month increasing progressively to the 50 percent ceiling.

Most taxes are withheld at the workplace, and workers do not need to file annual tax returns.

The finance minister said cooperatives, individuals who have struck out on their own to produce goods and services and other reforms fostered by President Mikhail Gorbachev "have raised the level of material security of Soviet citizens and at the same time raised the differentiation of the population's income."

They need a new tax structure to reflect those changes, he said.

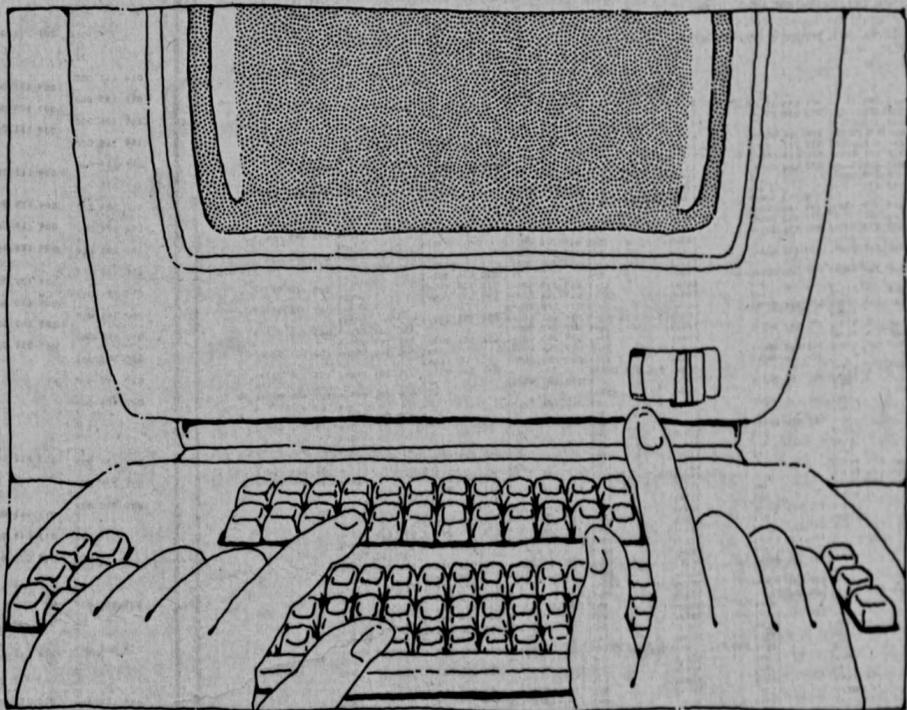

Wage earners with four or more dependents are eligible for a tax cut of 30 percent of the new rates, according to the published report.

Soviet taxpayers who earn money from several different sources now must pay separately on each of the sources.

STUDENT FOOTBALL TICKET SALES TO BEGIN APRIL 17, 1989

Students may order their 1989 Football Season Tickets beginning April 17 at the Athletic Ticket Office in Carver-Hawkeye Arena. The cost of the tickets will be $42.00 per student and $96.00 per student guest ticket. Student season tickets are available on a limited basis and we may not be able to accommodate all student orders that are taken. If such is the case, you will receive a refund for your order at the time of fall pickup. Priority buying is from April 17 through May 12 and this is the only time that guest tickets may be ordered. The Athletic Ticket Office hours are 9 a.m. - 4 p.m., Monday through Friday. Students may pick up their tickets beginning Wednesday, September 6. Please read the Student Ticket Policy before placing your order.

STUDENT FOOTBALL POLICY - 1989

1. A student may purchase one season ticket at the student price of $42.00. A guest ticket may be ordered at the public price of $96.00. A limited number of guest tickets will be available; therefore, all students ordering these may not receive them. Guest tickets are only valid when entering the stadium with another student and are not replaceable if lost or stolen. The guest ticket will not be available after May 12, the deadline for student priority. Office hours are 9:00 a.m. to 4:00 p.m. Monday through Friday.
2. Students will receive priority based on the number of consecutive years they have applied for or purchased football tickets. The University of Iowa. There will be no loss in priority for off-campus programs or a bona fide illness. An individual who misses two or more consecutive seasons for reasons other than the above will lose all priority.
3. In order for a student to receive their priority for football he/she must order sometime during the period of April 17 to May 12, 1989. These orders will be filled according to priority established. Any order placed after May 12 will be filled as if the order was a zero priority. Students ordering after the priority period will also accrue a year of buying credit toward their priority for purchase of tickets in following years.
4. Individuals may order season tickets for a group no larger than eight. If all group members cannot be present when the order is placed, the members who are not present must provide either their personal check with current address thereon or cash and their ID number to the person placing the order. One student may not write a personal check in payment for another student's tickets.
5. The lowest priority within a group will determine the location of the entire block of tickets for that group. That is, all students within a group will carry the lowest priority of any member in that group. If certain priorities are denied student or guest tickets, anyone with higher priority requesting seating with this group will also be denied tickets.
6. Student season tickets will continue on sale on a non-priority basis after May 12 and will remain on sale through Friday, September 1. Tickets may be sold after September 1 if available. Please contact the Athletic Ticket Office for further information.
7. Each student must pick up their own ticket in the fall. The student must present their own student ID with current registration (Fall 1989) sticker and picture ID at the time of pickup. Student pickup will begin Wednesday, September 6.
8. Students may cancel their football season ticket order and receive a full refund up until the Friday before the first home game. After that date, refunds will be issued only for the portion of games remaining to be played. No cancellations or refund requests will be honored after the student ticket has been picked up and signed for. All requests for refunds must be made in writing to the Athletic Ticket Office. Please provide your full name, ID number and an address for the mailing of the refund check. ALL REFUNDS ARE NOT AUTOMATICALLY PROCESSED AND MAILED.
9. A student ticket, to be valid, must be accompanied by a University of Iowa ID with current registration (Fall 1989) sticker and a picture ID. A student ticket may be used by the original purchaser or by any other University of Iowa student, but the original purchaser will be held liable for any violations of the student ticket policy. The penalty for a violation of the University policy involving the ID and ticket will be the loss of the use of the ticket for two games. If a non-student is found using a student's ticket, that student forfeits all future student ticket privileges.
10. Disciplinary action will be taken as a result of disorderly conduct on the part of a student ticket holder. Discretionary measures will be left up to the investigation of the Dean of Students. This may result in the loss of the student's ticket for the remaining season or possibly the remaining enrollment period of said student at the University of Iowa.
11. Everyone, regardless of age, is required to have a valid ticket for admittance to all University of Iowa football games. This includes infants in arms.
12. DUPLICATE TICKETS CANNOT BE ISSUED FOR LOST OR STOLEN STUDENT TICKETS.

Discovery of 2 more bodies delays charges against cult

MATAMOROS, Mexico (AP) — The discovery of two bodies near a ranch where 13 mutilated corpses were found last week delayed the filing of Mexican charges Monday against members of a human-sacrificing cult, officials said.

The cult also is suspected of killing the newly discovered victims.

Two bodies of suspected drug traffickers missing since May were unearthed Sunday on a collective farm two miles south of the Rancho Santa Elena, where 13 corpses were found last week.

The two victims, Moises Castillo, 52, of Houston, and H. de la Fuente, 39, who lived on a small communal farm west of Matamoros, did not appear tortured or mutilated like the others, officials said.

Castillo's father, Hidalgo Castillo, 76, of Brownsville, said he found $70, a pair of eyeglasses and a passport in his son's pocket when he helped police dig up the bodies.

Formal Mexican federal charges were to have been filed Monday against four men in custody here, but the new deaths complicated the case, said Jose Piedra Silva Arroyo, Mexico's chief federal narcotics investigator for northeastern Tamaulipas state.

Silva said authorities were considering adding the latest victims' deaths to the murder, kidnapping, drug and weapons charges already pending against the four suspects.

"It's a big case, not simple, and there are a lot of details to attend to before we take them before the court," Silva said.

Although relatives disputed the description, officials said the two newly found victims were drug traffickers somehow involved with the cult allegedly led by Adolfo de Jesus Constanzo, 26, and Sara Maria Aldrete, 24.

Constanzo, a Cuban-American who lived for a time in Miami, and Aldrete, a Texas college student who authorities said lived a double life as the "witch" of the ritualistic cult, were at large Monday.

The elder Castillo said he first suspected his son might be buried at the communal farm after children told him they saw something suspicious there.

"They said, 'Look over there. There's a hand sticking out of the ground,'" Castillo said.

Helicopter prison escape fails

MIAMI (AP) — A helicopter swooped into a prison's high-security exercise yard Monday, and a convicted drug kingpin jumped aboard, but the chopper caught a fence and crashed in the yard, injuring the would-be escapee and his pilot.

Benjamin "Barry" Kramer, 36, a former powerboat champion serving life without parole as the leader of a marijuana-trafficking ring, broke his right leg in the accident. The pilot suffered two broken legs and facial injuries.

"Kramer apparently was ready, and as soon as the helicopter was there, he jumped right into it," said John Clark, warden at the federal Metropolitan Correctional Center.

Clark said three armed guards watched but did not react, because they did not want to shoot into the prison yard, where a half-dozen men were exercising. He also said they feared there might be a hostage in the helicopter.

Most of MCC is medium-security, but Kramer and about 50 other prisoners were being held in a special high-security area because they were considered escape risks.

The two-seater Bell helicopter, a type once used for military reconnaissance but now used mainly for aerial photography or crop-spraying, flew into the prison just after 10 a.m., Clark said.

It dropped low enough for Kramer to jump onto one landing skid, and was beginning to rise when its tail rotor caught in barbed wire atop the metal fence around the exercise area.

Clark said at least one other prisoner may have tried to jump on the helicopter, possibly destabilizing the small craft.

The accident sent pieces of the rotor and the fence hurtling hundreds of yards.

"It's lucky more people weren't hurt," Clark said.

Prison guards immediately pulled Kramer and the pilot from the wreckage and administered first aid before they were taken to a hospital.

Clark said the pilot carried identification in the name of Charles Clayton Sterns, 34, but added that authorities were unsure if it was his or was a phony document intended for Kramer.

The Bell 47D-1 helicopter, built in 1952, was reported sold in January to C. Stevens of Gold Beach, Ore., according to the Federal Aviation Administration.

Stevens, a sea-urchin diver, worked with Sin Loy, a commercial diving operation in Gold Beach, according to a man who answered the phone there. Stevens left town about a month ago, said the man, who refused to give his name.

An aviation official who spoke under condition of anonymity said the helicopter was spotted last month on a truck near Tamiami Airport, a few miles from the prison. The truck carried an Oregon registration, the source said.

After the crash, all 1,000 inmates were locked down, and officials began interviewing prisoners who were in the yard at the time, Clark said.

Poll: Reversal will not curtail abortions

NEW YORK (AP) — Though a sizable minority of adults oppose abortions, Americans overwhelmingly believe that banning them would do little to curtail them, a Media General-Associated Press survey has found.

With the U.S. Supreme Court poised to reconsider the issue next week, the national poll found support for legal abortion ranging from 50 percent to 65 percent of the 1,108 adults polled, depending on the question posed.

Fifty-three percent, for example, were in favor of the court's 1973 ruling legalizing abortion in the first three months of pregnancy. And if the court reversed itself and let each state make its own abortion law, 57 percent would want abortion legal in their state.

Moreover, large majorities said outlawing abortion would fail to prevent it from occurring — an argument used by those who argue many women would have unsafe illegal abortions if the operation were banned.

The poll asked: "If abortion were illegal in your state, do you think that would stop most women there who want abortions from having them, or would most of them go to another state where it was legal?" Eighty-seven percent said the women would go to another state.

The survey next asked if making abortions illegal nationwide would stop most women from having them, or if those women would have illegal abortions or go to a country where abortion is legal. Seventy-three percent said most women would find a way to have abortions.

The survey nonetheless found its closest split on the question of a constitutional amendment to make abortions illegal except in cases of rape, incest or to save the life of the mother: Fifty percent were opposed and 44 percent in favor, a division within the poll's margin of error.

No amendment with those provisions is before Congress.

Compromising attack

Two masked men attacked a fraternity's promotional stand in the Union Friday, protesting what they believed was a sexist display. In the process they embarrassed themselves and compromised the validity their beliefs might otherwise have had.

The display promoted Tau Kappa Epsilon's "Fight Night", a charity fundraiser featuring a night of boxing at the Polo Club. In connection with the fights, several women took part in a Miss Knockout Contest, and the Union display included posters picturing the women.

Apparently upset about the posters, the men threw feminist leaflets and paint at the display stand before fleeing the scene. A New Wave spokesperson called the attack "a courageous action against sex-exploitation." Yeah, right.

This wasn't a courageous act. It was a cowardly attack. The fraternity members present were right when they said the protesters should have instead stopped and rationally discussed their concerns.

The comment from New Wave is yet another example of that group's double standard. They deplore acts of violence against women, but at the same time, a group spokesperson applauds the violent response at the Union.

"Violence and hatred are the attributes of a sick society," said Martin Luther King. The civil rights leader was referring to the treatment of blacks in this country, but his comment can be applied more broadly.

Violence against women reflects a certain sickness in a society that often treats females as merchandise to be purchased and consumed. In protesting that situation, the two attackers in the Union were justified. But when they chose to express their views through an act that was immature and violent in itself, they did more to bolster the foundations of a sick society than they did to tear them down.

The myths of El Salvadoran elections

In the last weeks of March, the Bush administration and the Democratic Congressional leadership celebrated their success in formulating a bipartisan foreign policy toward Central America. In a press release on March 24, Secretary of State James Baker stated that "a bipartisan foreign policy is based on honest and honorable discussion and debate." But any realistic examination of the recent public "discussion and debate" concerning the region reveals the absurdity of Baker's statement.

On March 19 — Palm Sunday — the people of El Salvador dutifully lined up to participate in their fifth U.S.-sanctioned election since civil war broke out in 1980. And, once again, the U.S. press and politicians praised the progress of their "democratic project," while studiously ignoring essential facts that would taint its image.

U.S. Ambassador Walker immediately declared the elections a "civic fiesta." The New York Times then chimed in, reporting; "the day was a festival of civic pride, celebrated with bright banners and lines of people who walked as many as two hours to cast ballots." And the "liberal" editors of the Washington Post, duly noting the large turnout, praised the Salvadoran people's "dedication to the voting process."

The public relations point men for the major U.S. political parties — Sen. McConnell (R-Ky.) and Rep. Coelho (D-Calif.) — were quoted or interviewed widely during the brief U.S. media blitz: "It was a free, fair, honestly conducted election" with a "larger turnout than we have in America," stated Sen. McConnell; and "liberal" Democrat Tony Coelho said the election was "free and fair" and thought that "the people are prepared to accept" the results.

But the "people" Coelho is referring to here are not the people of El Salvador, but the people of the United States, for whom El Salvador's recent elections have been conducted. Yet, while the U.S. politicians and press have been able to delude the American people, the Salvadoran people are well aware of the blatant injustices of these elections.

In the massive quantity of reports generated by the U.S. media as it turned its fickle lense briefly toward El Salvador once again last month, two essential facts that would account for the high turnout and results of the elections were amazingly ignored: 1) the Salvadorans are required, by law, to vote and 2) the use of clear ballot boxes.

Only a few allusions to these two inconvenient facts were to be found in the mainstream U.S. media. Deep in a New York Times article on March 20, a peasant was quoted as saying; "I'm afraid, but I'm voting because I'm there will be trouble if I don't"; and, in the next paragraph, the peasant was described stuffing his "paper ballot through a wooded slot into a clear plastic garbage bag, which allows anyone standing nearby to see the vote."

But our "free" press never went on to report any reasons WHY a peasant would be afraid to NOT vote (before the election a Salvadoran army official declared the failure to vote equivalent to "an act of treason!") Nor did our press report the implications of the use of clear ballot boxes in a country where the security forces — which have been responsible for the murder of tens of thousands of civilians — are, by law, "entrusted with the surveillance of the process of voting."

So, as in 1982, 1984, 1986 and 1988, the people of El Salvador were required to cast their ballots into clear boxes surrounded by observing soldiers, while U.S. reporters and politicians praised the long lines of eager voters as a "civic fiesta." Through a combination of ignorance, cynicism, and bureaucratic indifference, the U.S. media and politicians have once again sanctioned an election based on terror.

As one might expect with elections run as described above, the majority of ballots cast went to the fascist Arena party, which is closely linked to the security forces and death squads. Arena now controls the Executive, Legislative and Judicial branches of El Salvador's U.S.-funded government. The U.S. politicians and media would like to condemn the sham electoral process — now. But they would require an admission of guilt and complicity in the previously U.S.-staged elections. And, more importantly, such "honesty" would disrupt the U.S. politicians carefully constructed "bipartisan foreign policy."

In 1964, the U.S. Senate voted 98 to 2 to sharply escalate the U.S. war in Vietnam. Today — 25 years and 2,500,000 lives later — that "bipartisan foreign policy" decision is clearly known to have been based upon lies and deceit; not "honest and honorable discussion."

Truth is usually the first victim of consensus. And, it seems, no amount of suffering or bloodshed is sufficient to dampen the hubris of our leaders, unwilling or unable to confront the reality of their creations. Is it only when the suffering and bloodshed afflicts young, white Americans that our "leaders" stop lying and start leading?

Gordon Blake Wood, a graduate student in political science and a member of the Central American Solidarity Committee, wrote this guest opinion for the Viewpoints page.

Bungled drug wars

Recent revelations about the nation's war on drugs paint an alarming picture of hypocrisy, inconsistency and chaos.

The Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee on Narcotics last week released a report resulting from a two-year investigation. The subcommittee cited instances in which the Reagan administration had violated its own anti-drug stance in pursuit of its foreign policy goals. One example was intervention by Reagan administration officials to obtain a lenient sentence for a Honduran general who had participated in a plot to assassinate the Honduran president. Cocaine sales are believed to have financed the assassination attempt. Another instance is the State Department's payment between January and August 1986 of more than $800,000 to four companies that were involved in distributing humanitarian aid to the Contras. The report states that the companies were "owned and operated by narcotics traffickers."

Another serious problem in the effort against drugs lies in bureaucratic infighting among federal offices. In an incident reported in Newsweek, a drug smuggler and his cargo evaded capture because the U.S. Customs Service and the Drug Enforcement Agency were arguing over which of them would be allowed to move in, make the arrest and seizure, and claim credit for the operation. Bungled operations and turf wars become inevitable when 58 federal offices have jurisdiction over drugs.

A war cannot be won when the commanders make deals with the enemy and the soldiers fight each other instead of the other side. If the federal government wants to take effective action in its war on drugs, it must take a consistent moral stance against drug trafficking and reduce the counterproductive squabbling taking place in its numerous anti-drug organizations.

Wright reason

Embattled House Speaker Jim Wright made an emotional vow last week to defend his honor against charges of financial improprieties, but a unanimous statement documenting 69 conduct violations released yesterday by the House ethics committee pounds another nail into Wright's political coffin.

With key congressional allies gathered around him for support, Wright said he will fight to preserve his good name and reputation — "which is the legacy I intend to leave my children and my grandchildren." But that legacy — tainted by numerous gifts and revenues that apparently ignored both the spirit and letter of House conduct rules — is a grossly unappealing inheritance.

Wright's public defiance escalated the conflict and drew the battle lines on the floor of the House. Now, with the ethics committee levying formal charges against Wright, a decision that will amount to a vote of confidence on the Speaker becomes almost inevitable.

Wright may be determined to clear his 'good name,' but a united GOP front and a growing number of Democratic defectors seem more intent on dimming the glare of an intense national spotlight on government ethics than salvaging the career of their Speaker. As the time for a decision on Wright nears, the opportunity to remove an ugly, malignant growth from the Congress is becoming a politically and ethically prudent alternative.

Punishing freshmen

To the Editor:

If the UI withholds freshmen from competition, what sports does that apply to? Does that mean a person can't participate in cheerleading or any such activity that takes up as much time? Or how about intramurals? It feels like the whole university is being punished. Should we ban those who participate in the sailing club, P.E. classes, field hockey, track, or water polo. What kind of opportunities are we giving to freshmen?

Isn't America the land of opportunity, the right to participate, the ability to do something you have worked hard for all your life? Is this the university we want to be? Why don't we leave the choice up to the students who make up the majority here at the UI? I swear, if we ban freshmen, who would even go to the athletics events?

I think the students and fans should propose a unilateral ban on attending athletic events and see what the university says to that. Don't we bring in the revenue that university needs? How many freshmen would come here even if they were not in athletics? Not many.

We are going to be known as the university that doesn't allow a student or athlete to fulfill his dream, his future, his goal, or the expectation of doing something and feeling good about it. I thought that was what this university wanted to accomplish.

Let the freshmen participate! Don't punish those who are qualified and have the chance to make it. Give them the right balance of academics and athletics and see what they can do.

To the Editor:

We admire the stand taken by UI President Hunter Rawlings on the athletic situation at the UI.

The UI has an excellent reputation as an institution of higher education. It supports excellence in all its endeavors — including athletics. However, 'academics' must come first; that's why the people in Iowa founded this institution and support it today.

President Rawlings, a highly-regarded athlete in his younger days and a highly-regarded scholar now, knows the problems and understands the questions involved. He has chosen to face the issues and NOT to look the other way. Instead, in speaking out in behalf of high academic standards, he has shown a clear understanding of what a university is all about and he has demonstrated leadership in attempting to restore credibility to college athletics.

As professors at the UI and members of the American Association of University Professors (which has as one of its primary aims, the advancement of higher education in the United States), we are gratified by the support given President Rawlings by the Iowa Board of Regents, and by its president, Marvin Pomerantz.

We strongly support President Rawlings.

Athletes academics already in-line

To the Editor:

I currently finished reading the report received by President Rawlings from a three-member committee that reviewed the education of UI student-athletes. I must ask myself if Rawlings read the report thoroughly and if he is familiar with the action the office of Athletic Student Services perform.

I work as an assistant to Athletic Student Services for the UI wrestling team and also was a student-athlete at the UI.

Most of the recommendations the committee brought forth are actions which already are being done in the office of Athletic Student Services or by the College of Liberal Arts. Two of the coincidental recommendations are requiring athletes to register for 14 credit hours with two GERs and academic changes in coursework.

Athletic Student Services already request student-athletes to enroll in 14 credit hours with two GERs. Academic changes started in 1982, when the four physical education skill requirements became only pass-fail for the minimum requirement. Ronnie Harmon took the required amount of physical education classes.

Another academic change took place in 1985. After the change, the Bachelor of General Studies degree applicant must pass all GERs before receiving a degree. Prior to 1985, a BGS major would only be required to take freshman rhetoric. This BGS degree was developed during the 1960s to give the students more freedom in picking their education, Harmon fell under the pre-1985 guidelines.

This evidence should refute the claim that the UI is exploiting athletes for gain. These figures also tell us that making freshmen ineligible to play or practice will not increase their likelihood of receiving a degree, but will surely decrease their athletic abilities, which they have worked hard to attain.

In conclusion, I would like to say I believe in the recommendations presented by the committee. With most of these recommendations taking place, the university should put them in writing and keep striving for excellence in academics and athletics. Another thought would be to try implementing similar actions on the whole university campus where academic advising has been criticized recently.

14 missing after protesters, troops clash

MOSCOW — Local television in Soviet Georgia reported 14 people are missing after last week's deadly clash between troops and pro-independence demonstrators, an official at the Georgian news agency said Monday.

Zurab Lomidze, deputy director of Gruzinform, also said a midnight-5 a.m. curfew is being lifted this morning, and soldiers and tanks that have occupied the Georgian capital for 11 days will begin leaving.

Residents of Tbilisi have said 100 people disappeared after the bloody clash April 9 and that many of them were killed in addition to the 19 in the official death toll. Radio Moscow said 20 were killed.

Rolad Beridze of the Georgian Foreign Ministry denied reports of a higher death toll, but he acknowledged that one of the 19 victims had been shot. He said soldiers fired on a car violating the first night's curfew on April 9, killing one man and wounding two companions.

In London, visiting Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said authorities overreacted to the Georgian protest.

Last-minute deluge of tax returns mailed

Monday's midnight deadline for filing federal income tax returns brought the usual deluge of last-minute mailings as people held onto their money as long as possible, or procrastinated until time ran out.

The Postal Service took a tip from the fast-food industry in Columbus, Ohio, where traffic was directed through the front parking lot of the city's main post office so people could drive through and hand their completed returns to postal workers stationed outside.

People making the mad dash to beat the mailing deadline were offered entertainment or moral support to improve their mood in some cities.

In Los Angeles, rock station KLSX-FM offered coffee and donuts at the downtown Terminal Annex, the city's main mail processing center, which posted buckets at curbside until midnight.

"We want to add some merriment and not make the people feel bad that they're procrastinators," said KLSX disc jockey Peter Tilden.

Italians report achieving fusion

ROME — Experts and news reports said Monday that Italian scientists had created nuclear fusion at room temperature in a small container.

Scientists at the National Agency for Alternative Energy in Frascati, outside Rome, measured neutrons being emitted from their experiment, said a scientist familiar with the work.

"They saw a lot of neutrons; that means fusion," said Francesco Celani of the National Institute of Nuclear Physics, who worked with the Frascati group.

The scientists were trying to copy an experiment by Martin Fleischmann of the University of Southampton, England, and Stanley Pons of the University of Utah, who announced last month they had achieved nuclear fusion in a glass beaker at room temperature.

If they are correct, the result could be a relatively inexpensive energy source that is virtually inexhaustible. No scientists have managed to duplicate the energy burst reported in the experiment, however, and many experts believe the two scientists made a mistake.

Quoted . . .

"We did attempt to log them all at first," he said. "But after a while there were just too many."

Search for Salcido proves 'hard, dirty work'

GLEN ELLEN, Calif. (AP) — The search for a winery worker suspected of seven murders was joined Monday by the FBI, but authorities acknowledged they are going to have a tough time finding the man, an illegal Mexican immigrant.

"We will finally locate him and get him, but it's hard work to do that," FBI spokesman Chuck Lattig said about fugitive Ramon Salcido.

Salcido, 28, who comes from the Mexican state of Sinaloa, is described by some acquaintances as friendly and well-mannered, and by others as a paranoid cocaine user prone to violent outbursts.

The brutal slayings in Sonoma County began Friday with the deaths of his wife, Angela; his mother-in-law; two of his wife's sisters, and one of his co-workers. Two of his daughters, Teresa, 1, and Sofia, 4, were found dead at a garbage dump Saturday.

A third daughter, 3-year-old Carmina, was reported in stable condition Monday at Petaluma Valley Hospital with a slashed throat.

Although photos and descriptions of the 5-foot-9-inch, 180-pound Salcido have been circulated to California airports and border guards, Sonoma County Sheriff Richard Michaelson theorized that the former Grand Cru winery worker hasn't strayed far from the murder scenes in the lush wine-producing county north of San Francisco.

"My best guess is that he's laying low. We're assuming he's in our county or in Marin County," the sheriff said.

Exxon claims spill has little price impact

WASHINGTON (AP) — An Exxon Corp. vice president told Congress Monday the recent Alaskan tanker accident had minimal impact on gasoline prices, which in recent weeks showed the single largest jump in the history of the American market.

J.T. McMillan, senior vice president of Exxon, said the Valdez, Alaska, oil spill temporarily affected the price of crude oil to the West Coast, but added: "Its effect on overall U.S. petroleum prices was minimal in relation to other factors," he said.

McMillan said the price of gasoline has been increasing for several months because the cost of crude oil has been rising.

He said the onset of the summer driving season also traditionally causes price hikes. Increased regulations, higher cost imports and added excise taxes were other contributors to higher prices, he said.

McMillan testified before the Senate Energy subcommittee on energy regulation and conservation, which is trying to find out if there has been price gouging by the oil companies following Exxon's 10 million-gallon oil spill into Prince William Sound on March 24.

"You have an amazing burden of proof to convince the American people that the oil companies didn't exploit the Valdez accident," Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, chairman of the subcommittee, told McMillan.

Metzenbaum also criticized Exxon's plan to deduct the costs of cleaning up the spill from the taxes they pay the federal government.

"For every dollar they (Exxon) spend, the taxpayer will pick up 34 cents," said Metzenbaum. "Why shouldn't Exxon foot the bill?"

McMillan said the deduction was a legitimate business loss allowed by the government.

The game isn't worth a chirp

If endless visits to English castles and cathedrals aren't enough to put you to sleep, you should try attending a cricket match.

No boredom scale is high enough to measure the British national game, but visitors from the other side of the Atlantic seem fascinated by it. As someone who has grown up with the sport, I can tell you there's nothing to get excited about.

It's time-consuming, tedious and generally a total waste of energy.

It all started, like so many other things in England, several centuries ago. The higher echelons in our society were looking for a game that reflected their personalities. It needed to be serious, refined and so complicated that outsiders would be unable to understand it.

The British Empire was built on the high-minded aloofness and sense of superiority that characterizes the game. For years, populations all over the world had to suffer invading cohorts of stiff-upper-lipped Englishmen looking for fields to play on.

It's no coincidence that they chose India, with its lush green meadows and hot sunshine, as a perfect place to put up some stumps (those are the three wooden sticks behind the batsman. He's the guy who hits the ball).

In essence, the object of the game is for eleven men to go in and score as many runs as they can until they're out. Then the eleven men who have been trying to get them out, oddly enough, go in and do the same until they are out.

Of course that is just the basic principle of the game and not nearly complicated enough to impress foreigners. That special something which made Britain great needs to be hidden away in a whole list of rules and sub-rules.

Governing these laws is a ritual requiring a total adherence to common decency and sportsmanship. Winning at all costs is frowned upon. When the great umpire in the sky gets to meet you, he won't want to know whether you won or lost, but how you played the game.

Accordingly, you must always clap your opponent as he enters the field of play with a bat. "Good shot, Sir" or "Hard cheese, old chap" are expressions which are often heard on the playing field.

If you hit the ball and score a run by running between the two sets of "wickets" (a collection of three stumps. Refer above.) you should bow graciously, but never look excited.

Any type of emotional display is frowned upon. Even supporters, who are dressed formally in blazers and their old school ties, will only clap politely at a good piece of play. They are obsessed with statistics and sit quietly with score cards, calculating bowling and batting averages.

The wicket is also the small strip of grass in the centre of the field where the limited action takes place. Six balls are delivered to the batsman who is out if his stumps are knocked over, if he uses his leg to defend the wicket, or if he is caught by a fielder.

These fielders might stand around for anything up to a day doing precisely nothing. Occasionally, the ball might come their way and they'll throw it back lethargically, if they can muster the energy.

The only thing which stops them having an identity crisis is the names they have been given. If you're a "silly mid-on," "deep square-leg," or "second slip," at least you sound important.

A hard, leather ball and a willow bat are the main tools of the game. Renowned batsman like Ian Botham, or the legendary W.G. Grace made their name hitting as hard and far as they could.

If the ball leaves the field of play

Mekonnen grabs win at Marathon

Kristiansen finally beats rival Benoit

BOSTON (AP)—Ethiopia's Abebe Mekonnen made up for missing the Olympics and Ingrid Kristiansen made up for missing history by beating rival Joan Benoit Samuelson on Monday in the Boston Marathon.

Mekonnen broke away from Juma Ikaangaa with about 1 1/2 miles left in the 26-mile, 385-yard test from the town green in Hopkinton to the Back Bay in Boston, winning in 2 hours, 9 minutes, 6 seconds.

The 25-year-old Ethiopian missed the 1988 Olympic marathon because his country joined North Korea's boycott of the Seoul Games. And though he said he was happy he won Monday, he added: "I don't consider it my Olympic race."

This was the first time since 1963 that the poor African country of Ethiopia had sent a delegation to the Boston Marathon. That year, 1960 Olympic gold medalist Abebe Bikila, who also won in 1964 and Mamo Wolde, who went on to win the 1968 Olympics, competed but didn't fare well.

Mekonnen made up for those failures.

He also completed a sweep by Ethiopian runners in the weekend's major marathon races: Belaine Densimo, the world's fastest marathoner, won the Rotterdam Marathon Sunday, and Keleke Metaferia led a 1-2 finish in the International Amateur Athletic Federation World Cup Marathon at Milan, Italy.

This year's second- and third-place finishers were the same as last year's — Ikaangaa in 2:09:56 and John Treacy of Ireland in 2:10:24.

Kenya's Ibrahim Hussein, last year's Boston champion and the first African to win the race, wound up fourth in 2:12:41, followed by John Campbell, 40, of New Zealand, in 2:14:19. Campbell's time smashed the Boston course record for Masters of 2:17:53, set last year by Ryszard Marczak of Poland.

"I'm going to take an indefinite rest and let Mother Nature do the healing," the injury-riddled Samuelson said after struggling in ninth in 2:37:51. "It could be one year or five years."

Samuelson, 31, the 1984 Olympic marathon champion, admitted that while she was "duly humbled out there," her racing career was not over.

"I think a lot of people were expecting me to say I was going to retire, but I won't be," she said, with tears in her eyes. "This is not the end of Joan Samuelson's career."

Abebe Mekonnen of Ethiopia crosses the finish line Monday to win the 93rd-annual Boston Marathon. Mekonnen's time of 2 hours, 9 minutes and 6 seconds is the seventh-fastest in the race's history.

Hawkeyes expect a battle

By Erica Weiland
The Daily Iowan

Iowa softball Coach Gayle Blevins said she expects some fierce competition when her squad battles Northwestern today in a double-header in Evanston, Ill.

Softball

The Hawkeyes currently own the No. 1 position both in the Big Ten and in the midwest region. Iowa is also coming off a successful series at Ohio State, where they dropped only one out of four games to the Buckeyes.

Northwestern, ironically, lost three out of four games to Minnesota last weekend.

According to Blevins, those losses may be a big motivational factor for today's game.

"In conference play, timing is critical," Blevins said. "I think teams play harder when they have just had a not-so-desireable series. Our timing is not so good. They'll want to try to redeem themselves."

But Blevins said that her team probably feels more confident this year since they split with the Wildcats last year.

Before the 1988 season, Iowa had taken one game from Northwestern in 1987 but had not split with them since before 1980.

"It had been a long time since Iowa had beaten Northwestern," Blevins said. "Now they have more belief in their abilities against Northwestern. Their confidence level needs to be good."

"We played them at home and lost both games," senior Lynda Schlueter said. "And then we played them there and swept. After that we really started to play well. They've always had a good team, and we can't take them lightly."

"I know if we play the way we know how, we'll do okay. It's a matter of playing the way we know we can."

A big factor on the Wildcats' side is their hitting, which Blevins said her team needs to pay special attention to.

Canadiens, Penguins hang on for wins

(AP)—The Montreal Canadiens, led by the spectacular goaltending of Patrick Roy and an opportunistic offense, beat the Boston Bruins 3-2 Monday night in the first game of the Adams Division final.

In Monday's other action, Rob Brown took Kevin Stevens' pass from behind the net and scored from the slot with 6:34 remaining as the Pittsburgh Penguins rallied to beat the Philadelphia Flyers 4-3 in the opener of the Patrick Division finals.

Tonight Chicago plays at St. Louis while Los Angeles travels to Calgary.

The Canadiens, who lost a playoff series to Boston for the first time in 45 years last spring, managed just 15 shots at Andy Moog. But Russ Courtnall, Mike Keane and Claude Lemieux were able to beat the goalie.

Roy, who did not lose at home all season, was sensational. He made his best save in the second period by kicking out Bobby Carpenter's wrist shot from the slot. In the third period, he foiled two shots by Ray Bourque with splendid saves to keep Montreal in control.

After Boston got within a goal when Bob Sweeney scored with 4:03 left, Roy remained sharp. He stopped Garry Galley's 40-footer with 12 seconds to go and also made a save on Bourque just before the final buzzer.

Pittsburgh, outshot at one point 20-6 and trailing 3-1, got goals from Dan Quinn and John Cullen just 33 seconds apart in the second period in their win over Philadelphia. They then rode Tom Barraso's clutch goaltending to score their fifth consecutive playoff victory and their ninth win in their last 10 games, counting the regular season.

The Penguins, absent from the NHL playoffs for six straight years, swept their first-round series from the New York Rangers to advance to the second round for the first time in 10 years.

Brown's goal, his third of the playoffs, came after Flyers goaltender Ron Hextall made four spectacular saves earlier in the period.

Iowa senior Pat McGhee meets with Iowa track Coach Ted Wheeler before practice Tuesday afternoon. McGhee has qualified for the NCAA Championships in both the 110-high hurdles and 400-meter hurdles.

Iowa's McGhee sets sights on senior finale at NCAAAs

By Neil Lewis
The Daily Iowan

Pat McGhee says his parents have had a very positive influence on his life, but he's glad he didn't heed one particular piece of advice from his father.

"My dad always told me during my high school years to stop running and get a job," McGhee said, "like at the local grocery store."

"I never thought track would lead me to this."

Very few could have guessed that the Iowa senior's track career would lead to this. After going largely unnoticed by recruiters out of high school, he has become one of the top college hurdlers and an unique talent in a sport filled with specialists.

McGhee went as far as the finals of the 400-meter intermediate hurdles at the Olympic Trials last summer and placed second in the event at the NCAA Championships.

This season he recorded the nation's fastest collegiate time in the indoor 55-meter hurdles, breaking a Big Ten record in the process. A strained leg muscle kept him from going on to the Big Ten and NCAA indoor meets.

At the NCAA Championships in Provo, Utah, McGhee will have the chance to do something no college athlete has ever done: win a national title in the 110 and 400 hurdles.

"I think I can be a contender in both of those events and win a national championship," he said. "For a fact, I know that's never been done. I think it will be really tough, because for the intermediates and highs there are different stride patterns."

The 6-foot-3, 180-pound hurdler says he and Iowa Coach Ted Wheeler had set the high standards at the beginning of this season. He says he wouldn't mind being a marked man going into the May 31-June 3 championships.

"If I went into the NCAA meet with both the No. 1 times in both events, everybody would be saying 'that's the man to beat.'"

McGhee qualified for the 110 hurdles earlier this spring with one of the fastest times in the country, 13.75 seconds, but his 400 hurdle qualifying mark is far off his personal best of 48.82 early in the season.

By the end of May he may also be slated for a third event at the championships. Iowa's 400- and 1,600-meter relays have been just off the qualifying marks and don't expect to peak until early May. McGhee's ability to sprint, hurdle and even run medium-distance events makes him a unique athlete.

"It is beyond your imagination what he is capable of doing," Wheeler says. "His versatility makes him a potential 'Athlete of the Meet' every time he takes the track."

Galarraga blast ends Chicago streak at seven

MONTREAL (AP)—Chicago's seven-game winning streak ended as Andres Galarraga hit a two-run homer in the sixth inning to lift Montreal past the Cubs.

The winning streak was the Cubs' longest since June 1983.

Kevin Gross, 2-1, pitched 6 1/2 innings and allowed nine hits for the victory. Tim Burke got the last three outs for his second save.

Tom Foley singled with one out in the sixth off Greg Maddux, 0-2, and Galarraga hit a 416-foot homer over the left-field fence to give the Expos a 2-0 lead.

Mitch Webster had an RBI single for the Cubs in the seventh.

Mets 5, Phillies 2
NEW YORK—Darryl Strawberry, Kevin McReynolds and Keith Hernandez hit consecutive home runs in the third inning shaking the New York Mets out of their offensive slump and leading them over the Philadelphia Phillies.

The Mets began the game with the worst record in the National League at 3-7 and had scored just 35 runs, fewest in the league. Their poor start prompted Manager Davey Johnson to criticize them Sunday for their "lackluster" performance.

With the Mets leading 2-0, Strawberry homered over the left-center field fence with one out in the third. It was his fourth home run of the season and fourth in 11 at-bats. McReynolds hit Don Carman's next pitch for his first home run and Hernandez followed two pitches later with his first homer.

Cardinals 4, Pirates 2
ST. LOUIS—Ozzie Smith's run-scoring double sparked a three-run eighth inning, leading St. Louis past injury-plagued Pittsburgh.

The Cardinals hit four doubles off reliever Brian Fisher, 0-1, to break a 1-1 tie in the eighth.

Scott Terry, 1-1, held the Pirates to six hits over eight innings, striking out four and walking none.

Ken Dayley yielded an RBI double to Barry Bonds with one out in the ninth and Todd Worrell came on to earn his second save.

Fry names captains

(AP) — Six senior Hawkeyes have been named captains for the 1989 football season, Iowa Coach Hayden Fry said Monday. They are offensive players Bill Anderson, Richard Bass and Tom Poholsky, and defenders Jeff Koepfel, Brad Quast and Anthony Wright. Anderson, a 6-foot-3, 268-pound center from Columbia Heights, Minn., will anchor the offensive line. Koepfel, a 6-2, 270-pound defensive tackle from Urbandale is coming off a second team all-Big Ten campaign in 1988. He collected 89 tackles, including five quarterback sacks last year.

Trial date set for ISU athlete

NEVADA, Iowa (AP) — A June 13 trial was scheduled for an Iowa State University football player accused of holding up a fast food restaurant, Story County officials said Monday. The trial date was set after a lawyer for Levin White submitted written pleas of innocent on behalf of the junior transfer student. Both White, 21, of Alta Loma, Calif., and basketball player Sam Mack, 18, of Phoenix, Ill., were wounded by police and later charged with first-degree robbery, second-degree kidnapping and terrorism in a March 30 holdup of a Burger King restaurant in Ames. Mack is still awaiting a formal arraignment and trial date, according to the clerk's office at Story County District Court. Both the robbery and kidnapping charges are punishable by sentences of up to 25 years, and conviction for terrorism carries a five-year sentence.

Kareem to get TV send-off

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — All-time NBA scoring leader Kareem Abdul-Jabbar will get a nationally televised send-off this weekend in what is expected to be the final regular-season game of his 20-year professional career. CBS announced it will broadcast the two-time defending NBA champion Los Angeles Lakers' season finale Sunday against the Seattle SuperSonics, team spokesman Josh Rosenfeld said Monday. Jabbar, 42, has said he will retire after completing his second decade as a professional.

without touching the ground, six runs are awarded. Otherwise, fielders must try to run the batsman out as he tries to score a run. The bowler can either use fast or spin bowling in his effort to keep the run rate down. Success in this part of the game is often praised as much as batting skill. Unfortunately, stalemates between bowlers and batsmen are all too frequent, which means no runs are scored for hours on end. Players will stand about throughout trying to look interested while supporters doze.

This ritualistic confrontation goes on for days. It takes a long time to get twenty-two batsman out and with long breaks for tea, players will often be wearing their all-white playing kit for six hours at a time.

Even then the game might not be over. Test matches against international sides like the West Indies or Australia last for five days. What makes it all the sadder is that these games usually end in a draw. The usual thing that happens when a long game is approaching its conclusion is that it starts to rain. "Rain stops play" is one of the most used expressions in the history of the game.

It's then that curious tourists have to leave the playing fields of England to discover the country's eccentricities elsewhere.

McGhee

business was not an option for McGhee, quitting track was not an option after arthroscopic surgery sidelined him in the fall of 1986. Doctors removed part of his femur near his knee and he spent most of that fall wearing a cast and walking with crutches.

"Actually, when I went in there they told me I would be out the next day," he said. "As it turned out, I stayed in there a week and they found worse damage."

"I always had a positive attitude through the whole incident. I never thought of not running again. It was over a year before I could start running again."

When he finally began competing again, in the spring of 1988, he had moved to an even higher level because of weight training and running.

"I think one thing that made me really strong upper body was walking around on crutches," he said, "because when I first got on my crutches, I couldn't walk down the hallway."

McGhee says he plans to follow his track career as far as it will take him, hopefully to the 1992 Olympics in Barcelona, Spain. When training lets up he said he hopes to utilize his degree in education to teach and coach track.

"I know I've got at least until the next Olympics," he said. "I made it to the finals of the Olympic Trials which I wasn't even supposed to make."

for the first time since August 1987. Yankees 7, Blue Jays 2 TORONTO (AP)—Andy Hawkins pitched a five-hitter for his first American League victory and Roberto Kelly drove in four runs, three with a ninth-inning triple. Hawkins, who signed a three-year, $3.6 million contract with the Yankees last December after six years with the San Diego Padres, started the game with a 15.00 ERA after yielding 20 hits and 15 runs in nine innings in his two previous appearances.

New York broke a 2-2 tie with an unearned run in the seventh inning. With two out, Alvaro Espinoza worked Toronto starter Mike Flanagan for a walk. Kelly singled and, after Duane Ward relieved, the runners advanced on Ernie Whitt's passed ball.

Angels 3, White Sox 0 CHICAGO — Devon White doubled home a run in the first inning and started a two-run ninth with another double as California won its third straight game and second consecutive shutout behind the six-hit pitching of Kirk McCaskill and Bryan Harvey.

Two Iowa women's track athletes established meet and school records at the Lady Bulldog Invitational at Drake Stadium in Des Moines Saturday.

Jeanne Kruckeberg recorded an NCAA qualifying time of 4 minutes, 19.71 seconds in her first 1,500-meter run of the outdoor season. Becki Borg went 40-feet-7½ in the triple jump, topping the old standard by nearly nine inches and her own school record by ½ inch.

"The weather was perfect," Kruckeberg said. "There was no wind. I was shooting for four-seventeen, but that was a pretty good time."

Officials opt to continue play despite tragic soccer incident

LONDON (AP) — English soccer officials said Monday the game must go on despite the nation's worst sports tragedy.

Trying to get the nation's pastime back on its feet after the Hillsborough Stadium tragedy, executives of the Football Association ordered that Saturday's F.A. Cup semifinal between Liverpool and Nottingham Forest be replayed and that the May 20 Cup final at Wembley go on as scheduled.

Football Association chief executive Graham Kelly said the match suspended Saturday would be replayed at Manchester United's Old Trafford Stadium on May 7, pending a meeting of the Liverpool board of directors on Tuesday.

"We should go on," Kelly said. "We should ask the players — I know it will be difficult for them — but we have to ask them to carry on with the competition, to go on, and do what they can to recognize that people gave their lives for football."

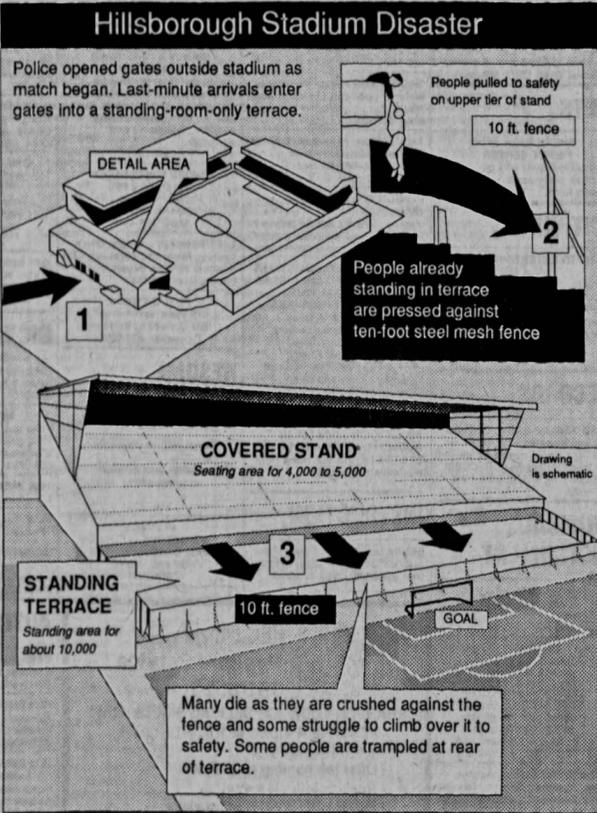

Kelly said the Cup final against Everton would be a "fitting memorial" to those who died.

In the meantime, several key Football League matches were postponed out of respect for the Hillsborough victims.

They included this Sunday's title showdown between second-place Liverpool and league-leading Arsenal, as well as Liverpool's home game against last-place West Ham Wednesday.

Also Monday, national Coach Bobby Robson selected three Liverpool players and five from Nottingham Forest for the English team that will face Albania in a World Cup qualifying match April 26, acknowledging that the game "pales in significance compared to the blow" of the tragedy.

Robson said he did not have an opportunity to talk with the Liverpool or Nottingham Forest players before announcing the squad, and said he would let each player decide whether he will be emotionally prepared.

"We have 10 days to go. Time is a great healer, but I don't know if that's enough time," Robson said.

Robson compared English players and fans to airline passengers who flew shortly after 270 people died as a Pan Am jet was blown up over Lockerbie, Scotland, last December.

Former Rose roommate pleads innocent to federal charges

CINCINNATI (AP) — Thomas Gioiosa, who once lived with Cincinnati Reds manager Pete Rose and his family, pleaded innocent Monday to federal charges of tax evasion and conspiracy to distribute cocaine.

Gioiosa declined comment about any aspect of his relationship with Rose. The commissioner's office announced last month it is investigating Rose for "serious allegations," reportedly concerning his betting activities. There has been no suggestion that Rose is in any way connected with narcotics.

If Rose is found to have bet on baseball games, he could be suspended for a year. Betting on Reds' games could bring a lifetime ban.

Rose has said he is not worried about how he will emerge from baseball's inquiry. "When you're not doing anything, why worry?" he said.

U.S. Magistrate Robert Steinberg on Monday allowed Gioiosa to remain free on bond, but said the 31-year-old New Bedford, Mass., man would have to continue working at a 40-hour-a-week job in order to meet the bond terms. The magistrate said Gioiosa will be scheduled for trial before U.S. District Judge Carl Rubin of Cincinnati. An aide to Rubin said

"When you're not doing nothing, why worry" — Pete Rose on baseball's gambling investigation the trial would probably begin in about 60 days.

Gioiosa said he has been working since January as fitness director at Gold's Gym in New Bedford, but has not been at the job recently because of publicity he has received since his April 6 indictment.

Gioiosa's lawyer, Mark Bennett, told reporters he has not been contacted by baseball investigators about Gioiosa. Any exchanges with baseball officials would have to wait until the criminal charges are resolved, Bennett said.

Asked about reports that Rose and Gioiosa once had a father-son relationship, Bennett replied, "I have met Tom Gioiosa's father. I have not met Pete Rose."

If convicted, Gioiosa could face maximum penalties of 38 years in prison and $2 million in fines.

The five-count federal indictment accuses Gioiosa of income tax evasion for the years 1985-86, and charges that he conspired with others to arrange cocaine deliveries from Florida to Cincinnati between January 1985 and January 1987.

The indictment also alleges that Gioiosa falsely claimed $47,646 in gambling winnings from the winning ticket on a Jan. 16, 1987, horse race at Turfway Park in Florence, Ky., and falsely listed it as income on his federal tax return for 1987.

The indictment says that Gioiosa claimed the entire amount as income and offset a portion of that with gambling losses which would otherwise be non-deductible.

Gioiosa also is accused of conspiring with others to prevent the Internal Revenue Service from determining whom to assess income tax against for the winning ticket. The indictment said Gioiosa conspired with others to conceal the true identity of the winning ticket holder, who wasn't identified.

Joint agreement will allow Soviets to enter U.S. professional ring

NEW YORK (AP) — Soviet boxers will fight professionally in the United States, possibly beginning late this year.

It will happen under an agreement between Momentum Enterprises, Inc., of New York; the Soviet Boxing Federation and Sovintersport, which is the entity responsible for the commercialization of Soviet sports.

A Soviet player is in the National Hockey League, there has been talk about Soviets playing the National Basketball Association, and an increasing number of Soviet tennis players have been appearing on both the men's and women's tours. There also are professional cyclists in the USSR. The Soviet Union is a leading amateur boxing power.

"There is a confidentiality clause in the contract, but I can say it is for 10 years, worldwide, exclusive and a joint venture," Lou Falcigno, president of Momentum, said Monday at a news conference, also attended by Victor Galae, director-general of Sovintersport and officials of the Soviet Boxing Federation.

A first group of six Soviet boxers will come here by October, although two could arrive in June, according to Falcigno. They will train in the New York area under American trainers, although the group will be accompanied by a Soviet trainer.

"We hope to get a fight in this year or very early next year," Falcigno said, "but we might wait and have all six fight on the same card."

As for the selection process, Falcigno said, "The Soviets will offer fighters. We will probably concentrate on higher weights — 150 pounds and up."

One Soviet boxer he expressed interest in is Alexander Miroshnichenko, a super heavyweight who was outpointed by American Riddick Bowe in the Olympics at Seoul.

Falcigno said the boxers will be signed to individual two-year contracts, but will be paid by Soviet authorities.

Dallas' Schramm expected to resign

IRVING, Texas (AP) — Tex Schramm was expected to resign as president and general manager of the Dallas Cowboys to head the NFL's new development league after his club's sale is approved Tuesday.

NFL owners, at a special meeting in New York, were expected to endorse the $146 million purchase of the Cowboys by Jerry Jones from Bum White last February.

Because the sale involved the purchase of Texas Stadium and the Cowboys' vast complex at Valley Ranch, the NFL withheld approval until all financial aspects of the deal could be studied.

"I'm smiling about it," Jones said. "Everything is fine."

Schramm, who is expected to leave the Cowboys after 29 years of building it into one of the NFL's most successful franchises, said approval of the sale should be quick.

Schramm has been left out of all of Jones' decision-making since the Arkansas millionaire took over, firing Tom Landry and hiring Jimmy Johnson as coach.

When Jones gave Johnson a new 10-year contract, he did so without even consulting Schramm.

Stung by the rebuffs, Schramm would only say: "Jones has said he would be in charge of everything from jocks to socks. He has."

Schramm said his style wasn't playing second banana.

"It's just not my style to sit around and take orders," Schramm said. "It's difficult for me because I've been running an organization for 29 years."

Stringer lands top student-athletes

The Daily Iowan

Iowa women's basketball Coach Vivian Stringer got some good news in the mail Monday. Stringer's office received the signed letters of intent from Illinois' Miss Basketball LaTonia Foster and Detroit superstar Laurie Aaron. Foster, a USA Today and Parade all-American, averaged 23 points and 12 rebounds as she led Chicago Marshall to the Illinois State Championship this past season. Foster is ranked No. 1 academically in her class as well.

Aaron, a Street and Smith all-America choice, averaged 28.8 points and had 14.2 assists a game as she led Murray-Wright High School to the Detroit Public League Championship. Aaron is a 5-foot-5 guard and Foster is a 6-1 forward.

"These players are the beginning of what we expect to be a very fine recruiting class," Stringer said. "They are both good student-athletes and they will fall right into place as part of the Iowa program."

Oldies but not quite goodies, say anti-nostalgia crusaders

CHICAGO (AP) — Does "The Big Chill" leave you cold? Tired of hearing "oldies" older than you on TV commercials? Three exasperated young upstarts say, "Right on!"

The reminder that the calendar says 1989 comes from the National Association for the Advancement of Time — three guys in their 20s who say "We want to end the '60s in your lifetime."

"Let's make nostalgia a thing of the past!" say these fellows who've had enough of the baby-boom — that huge post-World War II generation whose sheer bulk spurred creation of the retail market for teen-agers, divided the nation over Vietnam and now is taking up space discovering adulthood — marriage, careers and babies destined to grow up hearing stories about Woodstock.

Anti-nostalgia crusader Eugene Dillenburg dismisses baby-boomers as "50 million teen-agers who never grew up."

But they won't go away. "There's so many of them. If they want to live in their past, that's fine — but they're forcing ME to live in their past," gripes Dillenburg, 29, of Chicago. He founded NAFTAT with friends Bruce Elliott of Los Angeles and John Keeney of New York City.

Here's a sampling from Dillenburg's long list of complaints: Movies — "The Big Chill."

Theater — the revival of "Hair." Television — "The Wonder Years." Print Media — Bob Greene's nationally syndicated Chicago Tribune column.

Books — volumes on the riotous 1968 Democratic National Convention in Chicago, "as insignificant an event as ever happened in this country."

"We want to end the '60s in your lifetime."

NAFTAT is part of a natural anti-boomer backlash, according to Northwestern University sociologist Bernard Beck, who says any cultural statement that lasts too long "seems to generate resentment."

By failing to step aside "the way it's supposed to," the baby-boom generation has "thrown out of kilter the ordinary succession of generations," Beck said.

"There always has been disdain toward this generation because there's so many of us in it," observed Greene, singled out by Dillenburg as a sort of arch-boomer. Greene defends nostalgia, saying readers of all ages respond to his columns about the past.

But when Dillenburg and Elliott got together in 1987 and discovered their mutual exasperation with "oldies" radio, they decided it was time to get the Monkees off their backs.

Preserve what is worth remembering from the '60s — the Beatles, Bob Dylan and the civil rights movement, for example — and scrap the rest, Dillenburg suggests.

NAFTAT cranks out leaflets calling on sympathizers to "fight for the present and annoy a lot of self-important ex-hippies in the process."

Today's young people may not go in for demonstrations, but they care about apartheid and other issues, he said.

NAFTAT's feelings about the baby-boomers are not altogether different from the reaction of the post-war generation got from their "silent majority" elders 20 years ago, Beck said.

Many parents waited through the Depression and World War II to have children, and their offspring "grew up being told by everyone around them — and believing — that they were the most important thing in the world," he said.

"They are endlessly fascinated with their own lives," he said, and their vast numbers make every setback "central cultural business."

The message baby-boomers send to others, Dillenburg said, is: "You missed the '60s — your life is meaningless. Your life is irrelevant because it came after mine."

Van Gogh's stolen 'Loom' returned by thieves

OTTTERLO, Netherlands (AP) — Thieves have returned one of three Vincent van Gogh paintings they stole from a museum in hopes of obtaining a $2.5 million ransom, police said today.

No ransom was paid for "The Loom," which was taken from the Kroeller-Mueller National Museum in December and recovered unharmed April 6 from the trunk of a car parked near the home of the museum's director, police spokesman Theo Reus said.

The return of the painting and dealings with the thieves had been kept secret, but police decided to publicize the events today because a newspaper learned of the negotiations, Reus said.

The thieves returned "The Loom" to prove they possessed the other two stolen art works, "Wilted Sunflowers" and an early version of "The Potato Eaters."

He said no ransom has been paid, and the whereabouts of the remaining two paintings is unknown. The total value of the three works has been estimated at $100 million to $125 million.

On Dec. 12 the thieves smashed a museum window and stole the paintings.

The three works were not insured by the state because of the high premiums that would be required. Police and art experts have said it would be nearly impossible to sell the paintings because they are so well known.

Ads invade entertainment world

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — This article is brought to you by Saab.

Well, maybe not, but corporate meddling in popular culture is reaching new levels. Promotional hooks are moving from movies, television and sports to rock concerts, stage plays, ice shows and even novels.

"Power City," a new Hollywood book by former entertainment industry publicist Beth Ann Herman, is sprinkled with mentions of both Maseratis and the Rodeo Drive boutique Giorgio. But it wasn't lifelike detail, it was marketing.

When "Power City" was published, a Beverly Hills Maserati dealer threw a $15,000 party for it, and Giorgio gave it a window display.

By being featured in the glitzy "Power City," Maserati can enhance its reputation as a stylish, coveted plaything in one of its top markets. As one character says in the book: "It was by far his biggest toy. His Maserati Biturbo I made life bearable in L.A."

"The uniqueness of the promotion was very attractive to me," Michael Savod, Maserati's vice president of sales and marketing, told Adweek magazine. Said Stan Friedman, who organized the tie-in: "I think it did as much if not more for Maserati than for the book."

Herman certainly isn't the first author to hype brand names in a novel and glamorize products of the rich for hungry readers. Judith Krantz, Harold Robbins and Jacqueline Susann all laced their best sellers with enough names of cars, furniture, champagnes, designers, jewelry and such to fill all of Rodeo Drive.

But while entertainment-oriented promotional gimmicks can't replace traditional advertising, they can make products stand out in a crowded marketplace.

"Sponsorship of sports has gotten so cluttered that you now move into the next arena that's available — entertainment," said Jack MacDonough, vice president of brand management for Anheuser-Busch, producers of the TV's "Michelob Presents Sunday Night."

The beer company insists "The night belongs to Michelob." On television and in pop music concerts, it tries to prove the point.

To make Pepsi the choice of a new generation, the soft-drink giant has spent millions marrying the soda to pop music superstars Gloria Estefan, Lionel Richie and Michael Jackson, whose recent "Bad" tour was sponsored by Pepsi. Now, it has joined MCA Home Video in an "E.T. The Extra-Terrestrial" rebate deal with promotional displays for a $5 payback in more than 60,000 stores. There's a slick TV commercial, and a potential Pepsi cost of $55 million.

"We really are looking for that warm association between Pepsi and the world's best family entertainment movie right now," said Pepsi spokesman Tod MacKenzie. "Ideally, 'E.T.' and Pepsi will become synonymous."

In one of the stranger product promotions, the California Raisins, balancing on skates, have signed on with an Ice Capades tour. The hope is that the people who enjoy death spirals and toe loops also hunger for dried fruit.

"In the ice show, the Raisins sing and dance and become entertainers," said Jack Morrow, whose Applause Inc. works with various companies to produce California Raisin memorabilia, including pencils, Halloween costumes, lunch boxes, pajamas and kitchenwares. "The Raisins are cool, and they're hip."

But corporate sponsorship does have its risks: Mick Jagger, playing in Reebok-sponsored concerts in Australia, danced on stage in sneakers made by Nike.
