Overcrowding of prisons creates dangers for ironers

By Joe Wunderlen

The Daily Iowan

More than one million in Iowa's prison system, but last year only one third of the available state prisons were occupied. This year the number of inmates in Iowa prisons is down about 10,000 from last year's peak of 17,500.

The number of inmates in Iowa's prison system has been decreasing for the past two years, but last year's peak was only temporary and the number of inmates in Iowa prisons is expected to continue to decline in the future. The Department of Corrections is working to reduce the number of inmates in its facilities by releasing some inmates early and increasing the use of community-based programs for those who are low-risk and low-level offenders.

Activists occupy ROTC office

By Andrew Stepnisky

The Daily Iowan

The ROTC office on the University of Iowa campus was occupied by a group of student activists on Friday, April 21, 1989. The group included members of the Iowa Student Movement for a Democratic Society and the Iowa Student Union. The activists occupied the office to protest the university's support of the U.S. military and to call for the end of the Vietnam War.

The group of activists, numbering around 20, entered the ROTC office around 11:30 a.m. and began to speak to the occupants inside. They demanded that the university end its support of the military and that the ROTC office be closed.

The group of activists has been protesting the ROTC office for several weeks, and this is the second time they have occupied the office. They were previously arrested for trespassing.

The police were called to the scene and attempted to劝离 the activists, but they refused to leave. The police then began to remove the activists from the office, but they continued to resist and eventually had to be forcibly removed.

The activists were arrested and charged with trespassing. They were later released on bond and are scheduled to appear in court at a later date.

The University of Iowa administration has not yet commented on the protesters' actions, but has said that it will continue to support the ROTC program and the military.

Residents oppose road closing

By BY Lisa Seipe

County residents voiced opposition to the proposed closure of Bluestone Road at Tuesday's Johnson County Board of Supervisors meeting.

A residents named Mary Lindsay said it is needless to close a road that is not being used enough.

"If we park a sign reading "No maintenance, service, water, road is open for public," it means some one choose to destroy each a property by having highway dominance in the center.

The center's programs and services are carried out by 72 trained volunteers and by the Crisis Center's five paid staffs.

UI student breaks path for study, work in Japan

By Margaret Golanski

The University of Iowa student Ron Nakai strolled off the plane this past week to begin a three-year odyssey in Japan. His ultimate goal is to study biomedical engineering at the prestigious University of Tokyo.

"It's my dream to work in the United States," Nakai said. "I plan to return to Iowa after my studies in Japan." Nakai, a 23-year-old electrical engineering student, has been offered a teaching assistantship at the University of Tokyo, where he will earn a master's degree in engineering. He plans to return to Iowa in two years to work on his doctorate.

Nakai was one of 20 Iowa students who participated in the University of Iowa's summer study program in Japan. The program is sponsored by the Japanese government and is designed to provide students with an opportunity to study and work in Japan.

The program includes a two-week cultural orientation period, followed by a six-week academic session. Students are placed in host families and are required to live with them for the duration of the program.

"The program is a great opportunity for students to experience Japanese culture and language," said Professor John O'Connor, who directs the program. "It also provides a unique opportunity for students to develop their professional skills in a different cultural setting."
Ship over members suffered minor injuries fighting the fire caused by the explosion. They were treated and released, and Prairie Grove firefighter Fred Palmer said that the fire was under control by the time they arrived.

At the White House, Bush thanked aides who also praised the response to the Iowa explosion. "It's done it many times, and this is just another mission," he said.

The consultant showed a model of the Nebraska-based facility. He said that the situation has changed significantly since the last evaluation.

Navy Secretary William Ball attended a memorial service on Friday. "The best memories include those of men who serve in the Navy," he said.

... The Iowa explosion was due to the age of the ship's safety equipment. Bush said he was committed to investing in the military's infrastructure.

The consultant released the report on Friday and said it will not be fully released until after the investigation will be closed.

Preliminary tests

The EPA said it found 7 percent of 1,060 schools tested in 31 communities had at least one year of radon levels above what the EPA considers to be dangerous. "It's a real problem, and you've got to do something about it," EPA Administrator William Reilly told a luncheon at the National Press Club.

The EPA said 7 percent of 1,060 schools tested in 31 communities had at least one year of radon levels above what the EPA considers to be dangerous. "It's a real problem, and you've got to do something about it," EPA Administrator William Reilly told a luncheon at the National Press Club.

The EPA said it has not determined how to reduce radon levels, but it may recommend more testing.

In some cases, tests in schools fail five or more of the six highest possible scores per day. In other cases, there may be occasional high scores, possibly because of accidental radon leaks.

Radon is a gas that can be detected by its radioactivity. It is produced naturally when certain rocks and minerals decay. The gas is colorless, odorless, and tasteless, but it can be a danger to health if it enters homes and buildings through cracks in foundation walls and through other openings.

Comet misses Earth narrowly, reports NASA

WASHINGTON—A comet streaking by Earth narrowly avoided a collision with the Earth last night, but astronomers say it was the closest call of its kind in decades. Observers reported that the comet missed the Earth by only a few million miles—a close call compared to the comet's vast distance from Earth. The comet, which is expected to return to Earth in the next few years, was first discovered by the amateur astronomer Eugene Shoemaker in 1983.

The comet, named Comet Shoemaker-Levy 9 (C/1994 S2), was spotted by astronomers using the Very Large Telescope in Chile, the Keck Telescope in Hawaii, and the Palomar Observatory in California. The comet, which is about 100 miles wide and 30 miles long, was first seen in 1994 and was expected to return to Earth in 2008.

Comet Shoemaker-Levy 9 is expected to pass within 100,000 miles of Earth on July 19, 2008, but it is not expected to collide with the Earth.

In the meantime, astronomers are monitoring the comet's path and are planning to use the recent close encounter to learn more about the comet's composition and its relationship to the Earth.

Blood on their hands
The spring fashion shows are on in New York again, and along with the flawlessness silk dresses and M-shaped shoulders, the designers for collections will again get lots of coverage from the fashion press. From Gianni Versace to Calvin Klein, pantsuits of sweeping angles, ankle-length mink, cropped for and shaggy rabbit are always in vogue. But this year, there's been a surprise and welcome, according to the experts: three designers, who have previously always been known for their fall/winter collections, have decided to design the spring collections in lieu of the fall/winter collections.

What's more, advertising agencies now have lists of models — including Chloé and Basuto, who are in for the shows.

But there's an encouraging sign that the fashion industry is realizing what a real part of the world already knows — that wearing fur is unnecessary, but pointless.

In this age, it is hard to believe that we still wear the fur coats of the old country. The feathered capes and ' any other animal killed for its pelts. But this year, there's been an unexpected, and welcome, change. The designers have decided to forego the furs this season, and instead, focus on the real world and reality.

To help those in need and continue to make a living, three designers have decided to do just that. This is how it is done: wear the full-length silk coats that are so beloved by the rich and famous, and instead of spending those dollars on a dream, this year, they're spending those dollars on a real world reality. It's time to make it a tourism mecca. It's time to put those dollars to good use.

Rangers rollin’ toward club win record

By Michael Titik

No matter what the final outcome of the season, the Texas Rangers are on a roll, and a win record. The team has been on a tear, winning five out of their last six games. They are currently in first place in the American League West, with a record of 9-1. The Rangers have been led by their powerful offense, which has scored 38 runs in their last five games.

Aikman ends NFL draft speculation

By Michael Titik

DALLAS, Texas — The Dallas Cowboys selected quarterback Troy Aikman from UCLA in the NFL draft on Saturday night, giving the Dallas Cowboys a strong quarterback to lead the team in the future.

The Cowboys, who have been searching for a quarterback since Roger Staubach retired in 1981, finally found their man in Aikman. The 6-foot-4, 225-pound senior quarterback from UCLA was the first pick of the NFL draft, and he will now be the face of the Dallas Cowboys for years to come.

Aikman, who played under Coach Jerry灾难 in the NFL, was the focal point of the Cowboys’ offense. He completed 65 percent of his passes and threw for 3,088 yards and 24 touchdowns last season. He also rushed for 654 yards and four touchdowns.

Aikman was a three-time All-American and won the Heisman Trophy in 1987. He also won the Maxwell Award as the nation’s top college football player in 1987.

The Cowboys were heavily favored to pick Aikman, and they did not disappoint. They have a strong defense and a talented running back in Emmitt Smith, but they needed a quarterback to lead the offense.

Aikman has been a star for UCLA for the past two or three seasons. He has been the focal point of the Bruins’ offense, and he will be a great addition to the Cowboys’ offense.

Aikman said he was excited to be a part of the Cowboys’ organization and to be able to play in the NFL. He said he was looking forward to learning from the Cowboys’ veteran players and to being a part of a winning team.

The Cowboys will now have a strong quarterback to lead them into the future. Aikman has the talent and the experience to be a great quarterback in the NFL.

The Cowboys’ selection of Aikman was a wise one, and it will surely help them compete for a Super Bowl in the upcoming season.

Trentman said, "I can't classify ourselves as a favorite because we are so young. We are playing very well, but we do not earn enough of the golfers."

Trentman has said that they have had a difficult spring, finishing second at the Big Ten Invitational at the Kapler Invitational at Ohio State last weekend.

Iowa Coach Dan Dieringer said he is happy with the way his team has been hitting the ball so far this spring, so he is hoping for some lower scores as the weather gets nice.

Iowa will be joining its four Big Ten competitors, including the Spartans, at the Big Ten Invitational at Iowa City this weekend.

"At this point of the season, we still have some work to do," Trentman said.

"We will not return to this year's dispositions which make Iowa a forerunner for the Big Ten."

Trentman also said that the Spartans have the best golfers as possible for the challenges for the team.

"No Big Ten is really looking for this year," Trentman said.

Women's Golf

For the first time all spring, the Iowa women's golf team became the team to watch after they lost the challenge to a Big Ten team.

"Our team has a lot of potential," Trentman said.

"Everyone is ready to play for the team," Trentman said.

"If we're going to make the Big Ten, we have to do it," Trentman said.

"We will not be complacent," Trentman said.

"Our team has a lot of potential," Trentman said.
