By Sara Langenberg
The Daily Iowan

Five eastern Iowa residents — including two Iowa City businessmen — were arrested Wednesday after a federal grand jury returned a 20-count indictment against them for possession and distribution of cocaine.

Harold Wayne Ambrose, 41, of Iowa City and Larry Gene Regennitter, 40, of rural West Branch, were arrested shortly after 7:30 p.m. in Iowa City.

Ambrose and Regennitter hold financial interests in two Iowa City establishments — The College Street Club, 121 E. College St., and The Tycoon IC, a juice bar at 223 E. Washington St. Ambrose also has financial interests in a Cedar Rapids establishment — The Tycoon — at 427 Second Ave. SE.

If convicted, Ambrose and Regennitter will be forced to forfeit any financial interests they have in the businesses, which were allegedly used to facilitate the commission of their offenses.

Also arrested under similar charges were:

- Ronald Leland Kelley, 42, president and broker of Equity Associates Realtors in Cedar Rapids.
- Rodney Ray Jiruska, 44, vice president of Jiruska Enterprises Inc. in Cedar Rapids.

• Thomas Dean Vogt, 42, vice president of West Side Unlimited in Cedar Rapids.

The five men made initial court appearances in Cedar Rapids at 11 a.m. Thursday. All pleaded not guilty except Ambrose, who did not enter a plea because he did not have a lawyer present. Ambrose will have another court appearance Monday.

The Linn County Jail released the five men after they each posted $10,000 bond.

The trial is set for Tuesday, June 20, at 9:30 a.m. Until then, the men will have to submit to regular urine tests, will not be able to travel outside Iowa, will not be allowed to have contact with any witnesses in the case and will have to turn in their passports.

There are four counts against Ambrose: two counts of knowingly and intentionally distributing and aiding and abetting the

Pomerantz hospitalized for angina

The Daily Iowan

The president of the Iowa Board of Regents is in stable condition at the University Hospitals and Clinics after undergoing tests to determine the cause of angina attacks he has been suffering.

Marvin Pomerantz, who is also a key Republican fund-raiser, had several incidents of angina, a shortage of blood to the heart, prior to being taken to Mercy Hospital in Des Moines Wednesday night.

Francois Abboud, professor and head of internal medicine at the UI Hospitals and Clinics, said that Pomerantz, who was transferred to Iowa City early Thursday, did not have a heart attack.

Specialists will be conducting numerous tests, including cardiac catheterization, to determine if Pomerantz has coronary artery disease. Results were expected within a day.

The regents will next meet in Atlantic, Iowa, on May 24 and in Iowa City on May 25 to discuss the organizational audit of the UI.

Pomerantz assumed the presidency of the board in April 1987. He is chairman and chief executive officer of Gaylord Container Corp. and president of Mid-America Group. He received a bachelor of science degree from the UI in 1952.

Inquiry into explosion on USS Iowa begins

Original theories dispelled by Navy officials

WASHINGTON (AP) — The bodies of 47 sailors killed in the gun explosion on the Iowa arrived in the United States on Thursday as the Navy tried to figure out what caused the battleship's turret to blow up.

None of the guns in the No. 2 turret had been fired before the explosion killed the seamen, Navy officials said. They discarded a theory that the blast had been sparked by red-hot debris left in the gun's breach by earlier rounds.

The Navy organized a board of inquiry and placed a moratorium on firing 16-inch guns, found only on the Iowa and its three sister battleships, the New Jersey, the Wisconsin and the Missouri.

The Iowa was headed back to its home port at Norfolk, Va., while the bodies of the dead were flown to the military mortuary at Dover Air Force Base in Delaware and families of the battleship's 1,600 crewmen waited to learn whether their relatives were among the dead.

At the White House, chief of staff John Sununu announced that President George Bush will attend a memorial service Monday for the victims in Norfolk. He said the president had heard of the service and told his staff "if it could be fitted in, he wanted to be there... wants to be a part."

The blast occurred Wednesday morning northeast of Puerto Rico as the Iowa took part in firing exercises that were part of naval training.

A spokesman for the Atlantic Fleet and the ship's former captain both said the explosion in the No. 2 turret could have been triggered by red-hot debris from earlier firings in the three-gun turret.

But Cmdr. Mark Baker, chief of the Navy's Pentagon press office, said later that none of the turret's three guns had been fired.

Only four rounds of 22 scheduled to be fired as part of a training exercise had been fired, he said, and all had been from the No. 1 turret, forward of the one that exploded.

No eyewitnesses survived Wednesday's explosion behind one of the 16-inch guns on the Iowa, one of the largest warships ever.

Pentagon officials declined to speculate publicly about the exact cause of the disaster, the worst to strike a Navy ship since 1977, but two officers — Capt. Paul Hanley, a fleet spokesman, and Capt. Larry Seaquist, the ship's former captain — said a possible explanation was that red-hot debris from a previous round ignited new charges.

But Seaquist stressed, "We simply do not know what caused that powder to go."

Baker said no guns in the No. 2 turret had been fired, and the order had just been given to the No. 2 turret crew to load and prepare the center gun when the explosion occurred.

"We have no eyewitnesses to what actually transpired," Defense Secretary Dick Cheney told reporters as he headed back to Washington from a NATO

Fire-safety issue smolders on

By Brian Dick
The Daily Iowan

The UI fire-safety status report, which found 40 campus structures to have fire-code inadequacies, is an issue that smolders on without a readily available solution.

After five fires in a 16-month period at the UI's International Center, students are wondering what has been done about fire safety at the UI and how much remains to be done to rectify these deficiencies in the future.

Five UI departments evaluate fire safety reports: the Health Protection Office, the Physical Plant, Architectural and Engineering Services, Residence Services and Facilities Planning and Utilization. The assessment team plans and estimates costs for solutions, develops allocation methods and ultimately initiates steps for correction.

Based on the State Fire Marshal's initial 1979 inspection, the UI's joint team estimated in 1981 that the UI would need to spend $6.1 million to correct its deficiencies. Over the next several years, the North trial jurors sequestered, ordered to decide the facts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The jury in Oliver North's Iran-Contra trial was dispatched Thursday to decide the guilt or innocence of the former White House aide with the judge's admonition that no one, including the president, had "the legal authority to order anyone to violate the law."

North has said he had authority from superiors including, he believed, President Ronald Reagan, for many of his actions in behalf of the Nicaraguan rebels at a time when official U.S. aid was banned.

Because of the lateness of the hour, jurors were sent to the nearby hotel where they will be sequestered and ordered to begin deliberations on Friday.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard Gesell told them "your job is to decide the facts" in the first trial stemming from the mid-1980s affair in which profits from arms sales to Iran were diverted to aid the Nicaraguan rebels.

The judge was specific in his instruction about North's contention that

Anonymous literature angers UI law students, administrators

By Hilery Livengood
The Daily Iowan

Racist literature and obscene notes left anonymously in the mailboxes of four black students at the UI College of Law on Tuesday have prompted shock and outrage from both law students and administrators.

This is the latest, and worst, incident of offensive literature being left in law students' mailboxes, said Greg Abbott, a second-year student. During his course of study at the college, four or five "completely tasteless and offensive" leaflets have been anonymously distributed, he said.

"This is not an isolated incident, although it's by far the worst," Abbott said. "I think this is the topper. The Law School's had a long problem with anonymous letters being dropped in mailboxes, but never sexist or racist before."

The four students received a publi-

Overcrowding of prisons creates dangers for Iowa

By Jean Thilmany
The Daily Iowan

There is room for 2,918 inmates in Iowa's prison system, but last week, Iowa prisons were home to 3,195 inmates.

The 167-person difference in the two numbers is not without severe repercussions, said Paul Grossheim, director of Iowa Department of Corrections.

Iowa prisons are severely overcrowded, and unless something is done soon, dangerous criminals may be released into the community before they are ready, or may be held in facilities with a lower security rating than needed — making the possibility of escape easier, Grossheim added.

The DOC has asked the state for 386 new beds, and Gov. Terry Branstad's recent budget proposal recommended to the state Legislature that those beds be added to the prison system. The addition would cost approximately $9.1 million.

But Sen. Richard Varn, D-Solon, has proposed an alternate plan to the Legislature.

He proposes to spend about the same number of dollars, but to include funding for more correctional officers, better substance-abuse, sex-offender and prisoner-education programs as well as funding for 174 more beds.

The Legislature is expected to rule which plan to accept sometime this week.

Varn said his plan will help end the revolving-door problem in prisons — a theory which says that because of the scarcity of beds, prisoners will be released to the community before they are able to function in outside society and will probably offend again.

"To end the revolving-door problem, we need increased substance-abuse programs and comprehensive programs for educational opportunities in prisons," Varn said. "We already

Activists occupy ROTC office

By Andy Brownstein
The Daily Iowan

Members of the radical leftist group New Wave took over an Army ROTC office on campus Wednesday afternoon, reportedly to raise awareness of military atrocities in the troubled region of El Salvador.

Approximately 15 members of the UI organization entered the empty office of Sgt. Maj. Michael Jackson, a military science adviser, and used his telephone to make two calls to the U.S. Embassy in San Salvador.

The calls were charged to a credit card that belonged to neither New Wave nor ROTC, and both calls received no response from U.S. ambassadors, said New Wave member Bruce Nestor.

"We placed the phone call specifically to protest the bombing upon a mobile hospital in San Il Doroso (on Wednesday) and general repression at the El Salvador University," he said. "We also came to protest the 70,000 people that have been killed in the Salvadoran death squads."

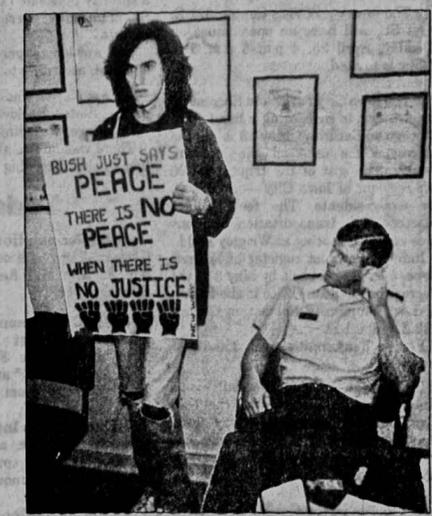

The group remained in the office for about 20 minutes and left peacefully after Jackson returned to his office.

Jackson seemed mostly unphased by the day's unusual activities.

"These kids that demonstrate all around campus and all that crap came into my office and used my phone," Jackson said.

He commented that Thursday's action seemed hypocritical in light of the group's allegedly peace-

Crisis Center Week begins

Support organization hosts fund raiser to keep services intact

By Belinda Bloor
The Daily Iowan

To celebrate its 19th anniversary and raise much-needed funds, the Iowa City Crisis Intervention Center is launching Crisis Center Week this Sunday.

The Crisis Center, 321 E. First St., is a volunteer agency that provides free, confidential and immediate services through 24-hour telephone counseling and 12-hour walk-in counseling on a daily basis. The center is a resource for those who are experiencing an emotional or material crisis. It provides short-term intervention. The center refers clients needing long-term counseling to area agencies.

The center is supported by United Way, Johnson County, Iowa City, Coralville, UI Student Senate, area churches and businesses, and individual donations.

But regular funding is limited—it isn't enough to meet all the center's needs, said a volunteer at the center.

"We're looking at new sources of

The center's programs and services are carried out by 125 trained volunteers and by the Crisis Center's five paid staffers.

funding so that we can keep abreast of our services," said Program Director Mary Martinez.

Next week's events mark the first such large-scale fund raising the center has undertaken, Martinez said.

"Everybody's getting involved. It's a big effort. We've never put on so many things at one time," she said.

In connection with New Pioneer Fresh Food Market, the center is kicking off the week with a benefit breakfast Sunday at St. Wenceslaus Church, 630 E. Davenport St.

The center is expecting a good turnout at a benefit concert Thursday night at the Polo Club, 313 S. Dubuque St., because of the diverse attractions scheduled for the six-hour concert, Martinez said.

"I think we're going to sell out," Martinez predicted.

As another way to gain funds, the center sent out random mailings to professionals and the community at large to invite new "Friends of the Crisis Center" to help support the center, said Executive Director January Harrison.

"In a sense it's an outreach to let them know we're here and that we have services to offer them," she said.

Harrison has a monetary goal in mind for next week's fund raising.

"I would like $10,000. I think that's possible with the mailing and the fund raising," Harrison said.

The other aspect of the center is a food bank and an emergency assistance program. The food pantry—instituted about 10 years ago—and assistance program provide emergency and supplemental food, temporary shelter, emergency transportation and various advocacy services.

The center's programs and services are carried out by 125 trained volunteers and by the Crisis Center's five paid staff members.

The volunteers range in age from 18 to 80, with diverse backgrounds to appeal to the various ages and types of people who come to the center for help. About one-half of the volunteers are UI students, Martinez said.

Presently, the number of volunteers is sufficient for the program. But in the summer, they're "more stretched for volunteers," she said. This is mainly because of the large number of students who help at the center in the spring and fall, but leave in the summer.

"We really actively do a lot of recruiting," she said.

The center provides extensive training for its volunteers two to three times each year, Martinez said.

Residents oppose road closing

By Lisa Swegle
The Daily Iowan

County residents voiced objections to the proposed vacation of Shomberg Road at Tuesday's Johnson County Board of Supervisors meeting.

Adjacent landowner Mary Lindsey said it is needless to close a road that is not costing the county.

Lindsey asked if the county could install a sign reading "No maintenance, enter at your own risk."

"It seems such a shame to destroy such a pretty place by having bulldozers come in and fences go up," she said.

Burns said installing signs does not remove the county from liability if someone gets hurt.

County Engineer Glen Meisner said he feels strongly that the road should be closed.

"If they want to fence it off and pasture it, then it shouldn't be a county road," Meisner said. "Because then you're denying access to the public."

Supervisor Dick Myers suggested the adjacent landowners make the road into a nature habitat.

Meisner said the county needs to reduce the number of county roads.

"Believe it or not, we do have a number of roads people are glad to get closed because they're a nuisance to them," Burns said.

Adjacent landowner Lynn Miller wrote a letter of objection to the supervisors regarding the proposed Shomberg Road closing.

"I have rebuilt my fence along the south side and do not want to tear any back out," Miller wrote.

Miller submitted a claim for $5,000 and another $4,000 claim for the proposed road vacation of Thomas McKinley Road.

House approves marital-rape bill

DES MOINES (AP) — A bill outlawing non-violent rape of a spouse was quietly given final legislative approval Thursday.

The bill, which has died in the face of opposition in past years, was sent to the governor on a 48-0 Senate vote.

The House had earlier voted 91-5 for the measure, which removes the state law provision that only permits charging a spouse with rape if the act involved use of a weapon or threat of serious physical harm.

Gambling bill passes through House, 51-47

Debate: Is Iowa going to hell in a handbasket?

DES MOINES (AP) — The Iowa House on Thursday narrowly gave final legislative approval to legalized riverboat gambling, rejecting claims it is inviting organized crime to the nation's heartland.

Without a vote to spare, House members approved the floating casinos, 51-47, sending the measure to Gov. Terry Branstad, who has said he will approve.

"I don't think Iowa is going to go to hell in a handbasket if this passes," said Rep. Dennis Black, D-Newton. "I think Iowans are too sophisticated."

Rep. Phil Tyrrell, R-North English, said gambling will not be confined long to rivers and lakes.

"Like a sickness and a disease, it spreads across the state of Iowa," said Tyrrell. "We'll see all of the problems that follow, the drugs and the prostitution, as if Iowa didn't have enough problems."

Critics complained bitterly about intense lobbying pressure to reverse last week's rejection of the same bill.

A handful of lawmakers who opposed the measure last week, when it fell three votes short, voted for it Thursday. All said they'd been pressured by constituents.

Rep. Greg Spenner, R-Mount Pleasant, voted against the measure last week and said his phone hasn't stopped ringing.

"The people in my district are in apparent disagreement with my earlier stance," said Spenner. "That's what the people back home are telling me, and that's why I'll be voting for it."

Backers said eastern Iowa badly needs the multi-million dollar developments proposed for the Mississippi River.

Besides, backers said, the state already has pari-mutuel betting, bingo and a lottery, so gambling is nothing new.

"It's hypocritical for us to deny another part of the state their form of gambling," said Rep. Mark Haverland, D-Polk City, a Methodist minister. "I do not think gambling is a sin. I think gambling is dumb and self-destructive. But I don't think gambling is the only thing that's legal, dumb and self-destructive."

"Keeping people from doing something that is dumb and self-destructive is almost always unsuccessful and people always end up mad at you."

"We continue to delude ourselves into thinking that somehow we will find a magic button that will solve our financial problems," said Rep. Tom Miller, R-Cherokee.

Backers painted a picture of 19th century riverboats plowing the river and big theme amusement parks providing wholesome family entertainment.

One of those developers, San Diego businessman Franklin Fried, issued a statement immediately after the vote saying, "Iowa has laid the foundation for bringing a unique first-class national tourist attraction to the Midwest" and vowed to move ahead with plans for the $10 million Iowa Queen riverboat.

Critics said the best comparison for the legalized gambling is Las Vegas.

"Riverboat gambling wears a mask, and when you remove the mask you are faced with casino gambling," said Miller.

Other critics said it doesn't make sense to base the state's economic recovery on gambling, because that's a short-term view.

"The issue today is what is our vision for this state?" asked Rep. Teresa Garman, R-Boone.

House members said lobbying has been intense, particularly on some eastern Iowa lawmakers who initially opposed the bill.

"We will never know the kind of pressure that went on," said Rep. Dorothy Carpenter, R-West Des Moines. "We might think of these as little family riverboats, but what we're talking about are gambling casinos."

In addition to Spenner, Reps. Minnette Doderer, D-Iowa City; Mark Shearer, D-Columbus Junction; and Black switched votes and backed the measure.

Rep. John Connors, D-Des Moines, also opposed the measure last week, but only so he could seek reconsideration. Rep. Linda Beatty, D-Indianola, backed the bill last week but voted against it Thursday.

Under the gambling measure, the state's Racing Commission would issue gambling licenses for boats on rivers and streams, with the commission setting the location and number.

The bill legalizes small-stakes gambling, with a $5 limit per bet and a $200-nightly loss limit. The first boatload of gamblers could sail in 1991.

A companion bill debated by the House bans youngsters under 21 and gives police tougher enforcement power. The gambling measure has been pushed by eastern Iowa business and tourist groups and fought by a coalition of liberal church groups and conservatives who oppose gambling on moral grounds.

The measure won approval in the Senate without a vote to spare. Critics said legislative leaders apparently care more about the gambling measure than other major issues like revamping school finances.

Rep. Jack Holveck, D-Des Moines, said legislative leaders have "staked their political manhood on getting this legislation."

But backers complained about "regional selfishness" and said it isn't fair for lawmakers from central and western Iowa to deny eastern portions of the state a chance to improve. They said the gambling measure requires approval by local voters before a license can be issued.

"Nobody's twisted my arms," said Connors. "I felt I did not have the right to withhold my vote on something that would help people in other parts of the state."

"Surely, we know we can't gamble ourselves into prosperity," said Rep. William Harbor, R-Henderson.

Other critics attacked what they saw as intense lobbying pressure.

"You have corrupted a process... that citizens have a right to respect," said Rep. Lee Plasier, R-Sioux Center.

Since the measure was proposed two years ago, developers have proposed major riverboat developments and there's been intense publicity.

Miller dismissed the plans, giving them "about the same credibility as an athlete's degree from the University of Iowa."

"Sociologically, I believe that we are doing extensive damage to our society by the succession of gambling laws that have been passed since 1983," said Miller.

Rep. Ruhl Maulsby, R-Rockwell City, pointed to "the strength of conviction of those who oppose it and the breaks in the voices of those who support it."

"Many business folks have talked to me about my limited career here," said Rep. Don Hermann, R-Bettendorf. "If serving in the Legislature becomes such an important part of my life, maybe I haven't had a meaningful life."

Plastics scientists lobby for funds

DES MOINES (AP) — Concerns about possible harmful effects of degradable plastics are valid but can only be overcome by increased research on the materials, Iowa State University scientists said Thursday as they lobbied the Legislature for funds.

"We're still enthusiastic about degradable plastics," said Lawrence Johnson, who heads the Center for Crops Utilization Research at ISU.

Degradable plastics have become a political issue during the legislative session, with Republican Gov. Terry Branstad pushing the use of corn starch to make garbage bags and other goods made of plastic that would break down into tiny particles rather than remaining intact upon disposal.

A number of Democrats are wary of Branstad's push, which includes a plan to ban non-degradable plastics in Iowa in the 1990s. They say degradable plastic goods leave plastic residue in the environment. They also say the push for degradable plastics is coming at the expense of recycling. At present, most degradable plastic products cannot be recycled.

Johnson acknowledged the merit of those concerns as he appeared at legislative meeting with three other ISU scientists involved in degradable plastics research.

"We believe no one knows how and what degradable plastics really degrade to," he said. He said he is not an opponent or proponent of the use of degradable plastics.

"We want to understand the system that we're talking about. The research just has not been done to establish either position," Johnson said.

Legislative pay increase remains on state funding bill

DES MOINES (AP) — A bid to block an 8.5 percent pay raise for state legislators in 1991 is drawing little support at the Capitol.

On Wednesday, the Iowa Senate voted 35-13 against an effort to strike the pay raise from a bill allocating funds for state employees in the coming year.

"I think legislators, frankly, are worth it," said Sen. Robert Carr, D-Dubuque.

The legislative pay raise would move rank-and-file lawmakers' base salary to $18,100, from $16,600 currently.

Legislative leaders said Gov. Terry Branstad has agreed to sign the pay raise and a 25 percent increase in legislators' expense reimbursement into law.

The 8.5 percent raise was patterned after the collective bargaining agreement reached earlier between the state and its unionized employees. That contract calls for a 3.5 percent raise in the fiscal year beginning July 1, followed by a 5 percent raise the next year.

The legislators' raise could not take effect until 1991, because state law requires that legislative pay raises be delayed until after an intervening general election. A $2,000 annual raise for legislators, approved prior to the 1988 election, took effect this year.

The bill also would raise the per-day expense reimbursement for legislators and appointed state board and commission members to $50, from $40 currently. That increase for legislators would take

"I think you ought to be ashamed of yourselves, belittling people for this meager 2.5 percent raise." — Sen. Richard Varn, D-Solon

Julia Gentleman, R-Des Moines. "We are not full-time state employees. We are part-time legislators," Gentleman argued before the Senate.

Supporters of the legislative pay raise said it would amount to less than 3 percent per year, because it would be the only raise legislators could accept from 1990 through 1992. They argued that although the Legislature is only in session about four months per year, members are frequently called on by constituents year-around.

Pay raise opponents were scolded by Sen. Richard Varn, D-Solon: "I think you ought to be ashamed of yourselves, belittling people for this meager 2.5 percent raise."

"I don't think this is out of line," added Sen. Richard Drake, R-Muscatine. Democrat Joe Coleman of Clare, a 33-year Senate veteran, argued that the money is well spent.

"I think this salary should be $25,000 to $30,000 a year," Coleman said as he told senators of his early days in the Senate, when members received $1,000 for a two-year period, with no expense reimbursements.

"At that time it was called the old retired gentlemen's club. If you didn't have resources, you didn't serve," Coleman said. "We didn't serve the people too well."

Connecticut ranks first for per capita incomes

WASHINGTON (AP) — Iowa ranks 31st among the 50 states in per capita personal income, the federal Commerce Department reported Thursday.

Iowa's per capita income in 1988 was $14,764, a 3.4 percent increase from the previous year, the Commerce Department report said.

Iowa's average per capita income was $1,680 below the national average of $16,444. Of Iowa and the six surrounding states, only South Dakota's per capita income was lower, at $12,475.

In the Plains region, which includes Iowa, Kansas, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota and South Dakota, per capita income averaged $15,495, which was fifth of the Commerce Department's eight regions. Per capita income was up 4.8 percent in the Plains region in 1988.

Per capita income in the Rocky Mountain states last year averaged $14,282, 13 percent below the national average. In the Southeast region, income averaged $14,331.

The highest-income region in 1988 was New England, with per capita personal income of $20,013, up 7.8 percent from the previous year. The Middle Atlantic region ranked second, at $18,904, up 7 percent from 1987.

Both regions enjoyed rapid growth in service and construction industry payrolls last year, the department said.

Here's how other regions fared last year: Far West, $18,235, up 5.8 percent from 1987; Great Lakes, $16,161, up 6.3 percent; Southwest, $14,365, up 5.2 percent.

By state, Connecticut ranked first

Residents' earnings listed for Midwest

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is a listing of per capita incomes for 1988 for Iowa, the six surrounding states, and the national figures, followed by each state's ranking by income level and the percentage change from 1987.

- Illinois, $17,611, 11th, up 7.3 percent.
- Iowa, $14,764, 31st, up 3.4 percent.
- Minnesota, $16,787, 15th, up 5.5 percent.
- Missouri, $15,492, 22nd, up 5.8 percent.
- Nebraska, $15,184, 26th, up 6.2 percent.
- South Dakota, $12,475, 45th, down 0.6 percent.
- Wisconsin, $15,444, 24th, up 4.9 percent.
- National Average, $16,444, up 6.2 percent.

in per capita income in 1988, at $22,761. It was followed by New Jersey, $21,882; Massachusetts, $20,701; Alaska, $19,514; and Maryland, $19,314.

The District of Columbia would have ranked third if it had been ranked along with the states, with per capita income of $21,667 last year.

South Dakota and North Dakota were the only states in which per capita income fell last year, dropping 0.6 percent in the former and 1.9 percent in the latter to $12,720.

Kin of 5 Iowans aboard USS Iowa wait for news

DES MOINES (AP) — At least five Iowans were assigned to the USS Iowa, where an explosion Wednesday killed at least 47 people.

Gene McKann of Stanley said his son, Greg, 25, is assigned to the personnel department on the battleship. But he said he was unable to reach officials to find out if his son was aboard and if he was injured.

Richard and Rose Johnson of Mason City said their son, Scott, is aboard the Iowa and that they, too, were waiting to learn if he was injured. They said they could not get through on special toll-free telephone lines the Navy had set up for relatives of crew members.

Wayne McGhee of Ottumwa said his 22-year-old son, Mark, is a third-year machinist mate on the ship.

McGhee said his son is due out of the Navy in October and plans to return to Ottumwa. He said family members have been unable to get through on the special telephone hot-line for information.

Jeff Rabey, 23, of Sioux City also was aboard the Iowa on Wednesday. His father, Bill, said Rabey was in his first week of a three-week practice mission aboard the battleship.

"He's in communications so he probably wasn't anywhere near the accident," Bill Rabey said. "But I'll just have to wait and try not to think about it."

Another Iowan on board the battleship, Mike Parker, 20, of Casey, serves as a unit diary clerk, according to his sister, Jennifer. She said her brother has been in the Marines for three years.

Lt. Cmdr. Steve Burnett, a spokesman for the Atlantic Fleet, based in Norfolk, Va., said a turret packed with gunpowder exploded while the ship was taking part in a gunnery exercise about 330 miles northeast of Puerto Rico.

It was one of the worst peacetime military disasters in recent U.S. history.

Burnett said the number of crewmen injured had not been determined.

The Iowa rendezvoused at mid-afternoon with the nearby aircraft carrier USS Coral Sea, which carries three doctors and has full medical facilities, said another spokesman, Lt. Cmdr. Chris Baumann. Helicopters from the Coral Sea brought medical equipment to the Iowa and transferred some of the injured to the carrier.

The Iowa will proceed on Thursday to Roosevelt Roads, a Navy base in Puerto Rico, Atlantic Fleet Cmdr. Robert Franzmann said.

Navy officials were notifying family members personally of the deaths, Baumann said.

Train derails near Fairfield

FAIRFIELD, Iowa (AP) — The second derailment in as many days in southeast Iowa disrupted Amtrak and freight traffic along the Burlington Northern line Thursday.

Burlington Northern officials said 27 cars of an 86-car eastbound freight jumped the tracks about five miles west of Fairfield at about 12:40 a.m., ripping up east and westbound tracks. There were no injuries but the four-man crew was taken to a hospital for routine blood tests to determine if any was impaired by drugs or alcohol.

Officials said none of the derailed cars, located in the middle of the train, carried hazardous substances. Spilled were empty auto racks and cars loaded with cereal and lumber products. Burlington Northern officials said they hoped to repair the tracks and resume normal traffic by 6 a.m. Friday.

Amtrak's daily San Francisco Zephyr makes one eastbound and one westbound trip a day on the Burlington Northern line, which spans Iowa's southern counties. Railroad officials said the passenger trains and other traffic would be routed through Kansas City until the tracks are repaired.

Meanwhile, cleanup crews were working in Ottumwa to clear up a mess caused when 11 cars and one engine of a Soo Line train jumped the tracks early Wednesday. There were no injuries in the accident.

UI student breaks path for study, work in Japan

By Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

When UI engineering student Ross Wakai steps off the plane this summer in Japan, he will be a man with a mission. Wakai is forging a path for future UI biomedical engineering students who will travel to Japan as part of a new full-scholarship program sponsored by the UI, Tokyo Denki University and a group of U.S. and Japanese corporations.

The UI student will observe classes at Tokyo Denki University, learning more about Japanese culture and language while participating in industrial research projects.

Being the first to make the three-month trip affords Wakai the opportunity to make recommendations about ways to improve the program.

"The only job, I'm supposed to go there and see what they need," Wakai said.

Wakai is a native of Honolulu, who learned to speak Japanese from high-school language classes and immigrant Japanese grandparents. The youngest of four children, Wakai has visited Japan with his family and has a cousin presently teaching English there.

"As a tourist, I don't think I got to see half of what I'll see this time," he said.

Transferring to the UI from Grinnell College with a bachelor's of arts degree in chemistry, Wakai has earned a near-perfect grade point average in UI courses and plans to graduate next year with a bachelor's of science degree in biomedical engineering.

UI professor Kwan Rim founded the study-abroad program and has identified five incoming freshmen to make the next trip in 1992. The eligible participants are undergraduate students who study biomedical engineering and demonstrate third-year Japanese proficiency.

Rim said the study-abroad opportunity program may advance interest in the Iowa Critical Language Program — a request by Gov. Terry Branstad that UI high schools expand the foreign language curriculum to include Russian, Japanese and Chinese.

Rim said Wakai is especially suited to make the initial trip because he is proficient in the language and is an outstanding student.

"Our expectations are that he will be able to carry out the research in another language," Rim said. The project will involve studying biomedical signal processing at Kyododenshi Co.

For Wakai, the excitement involved with learning about biomedical research is not more important than experiencing the culture of modern Japan.

Wakai said Japanese businessmen often make important decisions away from the office in drinking and singing bars.

"That's something I'd like to see, because if I ever have to go back to Japan as a businessman or as a researcher, that's the kind of environment I'm likely to experience," he said.

Several Japanese exchange students who returned to Tokyo after attending Grinnell promised to show Wakai around Tokyo, and he is anxious to learn about young people's social life.

Iowa Senate offers subsidy to airlines

DES MOINES (AP) — Trying to fill a void in airline service within Iowa, the state Senate has agreed to provide a $240,000 state subsidy to any carrier willing to set up a service linking Iowa's major cities.

The plan, patterned after a South Dakota program, was included in a $205 million bill setting the coming year's budget for transportation and public safety programs.

The bill won 46-0 approval Thursday with no members resisting the airline subsidy provision.

Under the provision, a state Air Link Transportation Commission would be created to hand out the annual state subsidy. The commission would conduct a study of air transportation needs.

The commission would have 15 members, with the House, Senate and governor each appointing five.

The University of Iowa FALL SEMESTER 1989 COURSE CHANGES

Registration is now in progress. Students will register through the Registration Center, Room 17, Calvin Hall. New courses and closed courses are posted in this space. The closed list is in numerical order and indicates the department, course, and section numbers followed by a code (CD) indicating why the course is closed.

Code 1: the course or section is full
Code 2: the course or section has been cancelled
Code 3: the course or section is not available until the first day of classes
Code 4: the course or section is pending (undetermined)

These lists should be reviewed and adjustments made prior to entering the Registration Center. Registration information is printed in the Schedule of Courses.

Ship

meeting in Brussels.

The Iowa sailed to Roosevelt Roads Navy Base in Puerto Rico to unload the bodies, which were then flown to Delaware. Navy investigators boarded the ship as it left for Norfolk, where it is expected to arrive Sunday or Monday.

Navy Secretary William Ball attended a memorial service at the Delaware base, home of the armed services' largest mortuary. The flag-draped coffins were carried off a plane by Navy honor guards.

Around the United States, Navy officers and chaplains broke the bad news to the dead men's next of kin.

The job began just before midnight Wednesday, when officials in Norfolk received the list of the dead.

"I've done it many times, and I'll never get used to it," said Cmdr. Doug Palmer, acting chaplain for the Norfolk Navy Base. Five men had families in the Norfolk area.

The commander of the U.S. 2nd Fleet, Adm. Jerome Johnson, who was on board the Iowa, told reporters in Puerto Rico, "The fire and explosion were instantaneous."

Cheney indicated the casualties were all in the swiveling gun house at the top of the turret, rather than the mechanical compartments and ammunition magazines below it.

Eleven men escaped from powder magazines deep within the ship at the base of the turret. A dozen crew members suffered minor injuries fighting the fire caused by the explosion. They were treated and returned to duty, said Pentagon spokesman Fred Hoffman.

At the White House, Bush brushed aside suggestions that the explosion was due to the age of the Iowa, a World War II leviathan brought out of mothballs during the military buildup of the Reagan administration.

Asked about the ship's safety, Bush said he wanted to insure that procedures were checked "to be sure that safety is at the highest point . . . but I wouldn't jump to the conclusion that because that kind of powder was put into these turrets in that way that makes a useful platform obsolete."

Adm. Richard Milligan, a former commander of the New Jersey, began the board of inquiry's investigation. Hoffman said he could not predict when the investigation would be completed.

Sequist told reporters, "It seems from the reports that those powders exploded." He referred to the six 110-pound sacks of powder rammed into each gun after it is loaded with a 1,900-pound shell.

Sequist said a pressurized air system that clears debris from the breech at a gun's rear must be operated manually. Each gun has a one-inch diameter tube carrying air under 3,000 pounds of pressure to blow debris from the 62-foot barrel.

The only officer killed was Lt. j.g. Phillip Edward Buch from Las Cruces, N.M.

Prisoners

have these programs, but they are not well-administered because people move around so much in the prison system.

"It is like starting school in a different school district every day," Varn said.

But Grossheim said his institutions need beds first so the prisoners can have a place to stay while they recover.

What it comes down to is debate between two ways of solving the prison overcrowding — adding more beds or creating stronger programs.

A recent Des Moines Register editorial said: "The governor's plan consists largely of brick and mortar. The Democrats would allocate money to drug-and-alcohol treatment programs, parole officers, community-based corrections. The lawmaker's alternative addresses some of the reasons the prisons are crowded in the first place."

But Grossheim countered by stating, "We already have one of the best community correction programs in the nation. Eighty-seven percent of all felons are committed to community correction programs — we have 17,000 people in the CC programs and just over 3,000 in prison. Our programs are filled. How many more serious offenders can be placed in the programs without causing problems as far as public safety?"

The DOC's plan to add 386 new beds calls for a combination of community, residential, minimum-security and medium-security beds in six locations, including:

- Eighty new beds in the medium-security Clarinda facility.
- Sixty-six new beds in the Rockwell City medium-security facility.
- Ten new beds at the Sioux City Halfway House
- Sixty-five beds in the Ft. Madison Farm.
- Thirty beds in the Cedar Rapids Halfway House. A new 75-bed facility is also planned at that site.

The UI's own Oakdale facility houses the Iowa Medical and Classification Center. That facility is one of the state institutions suffering from overcrowding, and Oakdale warden Rusty Rogerson said that the situation has become extreme.

The Oakdale medium-security institution is the only entry point to the Iowa prison system. It is at Oakdale that new prisoners undergo reception, orientation and medical screening and their past criminal records are reviewed to determine whether they should be placed in a maximum, medium or minimum security prison, or a correctional facility.

Rogerson said new prisoners may be rushed through orientation or receive an improper security classification if the overcrowding continues.

"Our overcrowding definitely affects other Iowa prisons," Rogerson said. "When they are full, I get full and there is nowhere to transfer, but I keep having to take admissions."

The institution is designed to house 300 inmates. There are now 321 inmates waiting to be placed and one month ago the institution was a temporary home to 363 people, Rogerson said.

"We've put longer-term bunk beds in our dorm and bunk beds in our reception area," Rogerson said. "Also, we have to keep the population swiftly moving to other facilities that have the room."

Rogerson said he supports the governor's proposal, although the beds are only a short-term solution.

"No one should ever think getting more beds is a solution, but it is a temporary and necessary stopgap," Rogerson said.

He said he doubted Varn's plan to reduce overcrowding at Oakdale by sentencing third-offense drunken drivers directly to an OWI treatment facility would ever work.

"We're getting drunk drivers through the door faster than we can handle them," Rogerson said. "If we let them go, where would they be until beds freed up in a correctional facility? Someone has to screen people."

Varn also noted three of the six facilities recommended for improvement were classified as medium-security institutions. He said a consultant analyzed the overcrowding problem in order to find solutions.

The consultant determined that under present DOC rules, there is no more need for medium-security beds, Varn said.

"The consultant showed a shortage of maximum, minimum and community corrections beds, but even with the overcrowding there is no more need for medium-security beds," Varn said.

Currently, 61 percent of the prisoners are classified as medium-security inmates, 4.5 percent as maximum-security inmates and 34.5 percent as minimum-security inmates.

Grossheim said the DOC, when drafting the proposal, determined that medium-security inmates are incarcerated the most.

He said maximum facilities are the most expensive to run and when they become crowded it is sometimes necessary for the DOC to move the best-behaved maximum-security inmates to a medium-security facility.

of the National Association for the Advancement of White People along with other racist literature, said Ajili Hodari, an Iowa Student Bar Association representative, in an open letter to the Law School community.

Abbott further clarified the content of the literature, which included statements from David Duke, a former Grand Wizard of the Ku Klux Klan who was recently elected to the Louisiana state House, and other personal insults, he said.

Although anonymous, the parties that perpetrated the offensive acts are likely members of the Law School community, said N. William Hines, dean of the Law College, in an April 19 letter. He also said he would punish the instigators if they are identified.

"Let me state unequivocally that such conduct is unprofessional and has no place in an academic community that prides itself in its hospitality to people from all racial, ethnic and cultural backgrounds," Hines said in the letter. "I am investigating this harassment and will recommend disciplinary action if I discover that the person or persons behind it are members of our academic community."

Hodari also spoke out against the action, saying "While we absolutely stand behind the rights of free speech embodied by the First Amendment, we do not believe that targeting a select group of minority students with racist literature should be condoned by silence."

"It's important not to overreact," Abbott agreed. "If we have the Law School grind to a halt every time this happens, we hold ourselves hostage to the racist attitudes of one or two people. But I also don't think anyone's overreacting."

Regennitter is charged with three counts: one count of knowingly and intentionally distributing and aiding and abetting the distribution of cocaine to a person under the age of 21; one count of possession and aiding and abetting the possession with the intent to distribute cocaine; and one count of conspiring to possess cocaine with the intent to distribute, to distribute cocaine, and to distribute cocaine to a person under 21 years of age.

Regennitter faces one to 90 years imprisonment and up to $3.5 million in fines if convicted.

Vogt faces two to 160 years imprisonment and a fine up to $8 million.

Kelley faces two to 130 years imprisonment and up to $4.5 million in fines.

Jiruska faces up to 75 years imprisonment and up to $3.25 million in fines if convicted.

According to a statement from Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Murphy, the activities charged in the indictment were alleged to have taken place between 1982 and 1988.

Jiruska, Kelley and Vogt were arrested between 5:30 p.m. and 6 p.m. in Cedar Rapids.

The investigation which led to the indictments was conducted by the North Central Area Narcotics Task Force consisting of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, the Iowa Division of Narcotics Enforcement, the Cedar Rapids Police Department and the Linn County Sheriff's Department.

Fire

state Legislature approved funding requests totalling $2.75 million to supplement the UT's building fund needs.

The UI requested only $2 million from the Legislature to begin the correction process on the grounds that spending $6.1 million over a two-year period would be impossible. As a result, the Legislature permitted the regents to sell bonds for the UI totaling $2 million through fiscal year 1983.

The Legislature approved two other funding requests; one for $250,000 in 1984 and another for the same amount in 1985, both of which amounts were met through bond sales. The appropriations came to a halt in 1985 when the Legislature directed the UI to utilize $250,000 of its general operating funds for correction purposes.

Between 1985 and 1987 the Legislature approved $8.5 million for renovation of the Chemistry-Botany Building in lieu of a request for fire-safety funds. In 1987 the UI requested $500,000, of which the Legislature approved $250,000, but Gov. Terry Branstad vetoed this recommendation. Last year the UI requested, the Legislature approved and Branstad finally vetoed a package — "based on its costliness."

In the meantime, the UI's International Center — fourth on the priority list of fire alarm deficient buildings — hit a hot-streak, with arsonists having set five fires since October, 1987. The largest and most severe fire — causing more than $250,000 in damages — occurred in April, 1988.

At that time, smoke — not fire alarms — alerted students on the building's second floor to the fire's outbreak.

Branstad said Wednesday afternoon, in response to CAC inquiries regarding inadequate fire protection at the UI, "Smoke detectors and fire alarms make sense."

In contrast to his past dichotomous statements endorsing bonding and rejecting appropriations for fire safety money, the governor took a stand, saying "I believe that we ought to have money for major maintenance and fire safety. I don't think we ought to bond for that. I really don't think we ought to go out and borrow money for those kinds of things."

Branstad finally endorsed fire-safety allocations when he said "I did in the budget proposal recommend money for fire safety and other major maintenance."

The amount of money Branstad will distribute to the three regents' universities should be about $1.2 million, said Iowa Representative Mary Neuhauser, D-Iowa City. The Legislature has allocated the funds in its Supplemental Appropriations Bill for 1989 to further assist all three schools immediately so they wouldn't have to delay implementing corrections because of budget shortfalls.

"We won't have to wait another year for money, but there's never enough," Neuhauser said. "I hope we can keep at it and keep at it until all our buildings are up to code."

Neuhauser, hopeful to gain gubernatorial support for the funding, speculated on the proposal's possibility.

"I think we've got a pretty good chance to get to the fire-safety problem this year," she said. "Finally, I think the governor's on board and ready to act with us."

Throwing money at a problem might not cure it, and William Fuhrmeister, the UI's director of security is investigating another approach.

Fuhrmeister, in conjunction with the UI's Risk Management department, is preparing an emergency preparedness plan for 187 of the UI's buildings that outlines individual steps to take in the event of a fire. Because of the scope of the project, completion is still two years down the road.

Awareness, Fuhrmeister maintains, is the first line of defense.

"There's a need for both (alarms and education), but I think people need to be educated about what they should contact and what they should do in certain situations," he said.

The UI's plans for the future, however, place a premium on money to fund correction measures. The UI's May 1988 fire safety status report estimates the cost of repairing all present deficiencies and the Medical Laboratory deficiencies at $4.7 million and $1.5 million respectively. Completion of work on the Chemistry-Botany Building will cost an additional $5.4 million.

To meet this need, the UI has included $12 million in its capital plan for the years 1991 through 1998. Funds permitting, the UI will continue to correct operational and maintenance problems and upgrade its fire-safety deficiencies.

Health Protection Office Director William Twaler, co-creator of the system that prioritizes fire-safety deficiencies in UI buildings, said the inconsistency of response to his department's directives is detrimental to meeting fire-safety code regulations.

Concern provides the basis on which any money and effort should be expended, Twaler said.

"We send out notices to the groups that say 'No oil rags on the floor,' and 'Let us know what you're doing and when you've done it,'" Twaler said. "We get fairly decent response."

North

he acted under orders from top White House officials and, he assumed, with Reagan's approval.

"Neither the president nor any of the defendant's superiors had the legal authority to order anyone to violate the law," Gesell said.

"Our country is governed by the rule of law. You have heard testimony indicating that other government officials may in some respects have concealed facts known to them, and some ranking above or below the defendant may have engaged in conduct similar to that charged against the defendant on trial."

But, he said, the conduct of others was no justification for North's conduct and "you are not to judge defendant's guilt or innocence based solely on the actions of others."

The judge's charge was delayed for a half-day by a problem involving jurors who may have given misleading answers in pre-trial questioning. When he convened court in the afternoon, Gesell said he had denied a North motion for a mistrial, filed on grounds that "the jury had been infected by publicity about some of its members."

The five alternates were dismissed after Gesell gave the instructions, and they were driven home individually by U.S. marshals.

Gesell said North's defense that he was authorized to cover up his secret Contra role may be considered, but under closely defined circumstances.

"Authorization requires clear, direct instruction to act at a given time in a given way," he said. "It must be specific, not simply a general admonition or vague expression of preference. It must be sufficiently precise."

The most attentive person in the courtroom as Gesell read his long instructions appeared to be North, whose eyes seldom left the judge. Occasionally, the 47-year-old defendant would make a note on a legal pad, writing with his left hand.

North's wife and mother had been in the courtroom for much of the morning's long wait, but they did not return in the afternoon until the instructions had been read.

Six of the charges involve withholding information from Congress when it sought to find out about North's and the National Security Council's role in supplying aid to the Contras at a time when it was forbidden.

Conviction on each of those counts carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison. Each of the 12 counts has a $250,000 penalty, for a maximum of $3 million.

ful intentions.

"They advocate non-violence, and they had a picture of George Bush with his arms cut off and blood dripping down the poster," Jackson said. "That doesn't look like non-violence to me."

Nestor replied that he felt the group's activities were justified in light of what they see as a noble cause, and added that the campus ROTC is really the guilty party for indirectly sanctioning the military actions in El Salvador.

Jackson declined to comment on his own opinions about U.S. aid to the Central American nation.

Several student senators have suggested that New Wave, which receives over $3,000 a year in student fee money, should be punished for their actions. Senators of the conservative Students First party suggested that the liberal ASAP-controlled senate is soft on New Wave's often extremist stance and looks the other way when the group is charged with stepping over the law.

Upon learning that the group is funded by the university, Jackson said, "That's a bunch of crap. They don't need my tax dollars to do stuff like that."

Nestor thinks the group didn't go far enough. "I'd rather have taken a crowd of a thousand people and closed the thing down," he said.

Kevin Taylor, director of Campus Programs and Student Activities, said he was gone most of the day and "wouldn't comment until he saw all the evidence."

Asked if he would press charges against New Wave, Jackson said, "No, but if I could find their moms and dads, I'd tell them to make them take a shower and bathe once in a while."

EPA urges radon testing in schools nationwide

WASHINGTON (AP) — Preliminary tests suggest unhealthy levels of radon in schools across the country, the Environmental Protection Agency said Thursday. It is urging every school to test for the odorless, cancer-causing gas as a result.

"Based on measurements taken in 3,000 schoolrooms in 16 states, it appears that elevated levels of radon gas can be found in schools throughout the United States," EPA Administrator William Reilly told a luncheon at the National Press Club.

The EPA said 54 percent of 130 public schools tested in 41 communities had at least one room in which radon levels were found to exceed 4 picocuries per liter of air, indicating a need for additional tests and, possibly, corrective action.

In 101 rooms tested at schools in five states, levels of at least 20 picocuries per liter were found, comparable to what would be found in uranium mines.

EPA spokeswoman Martha Casey said a list of the schools tested was not immediately available, but affected state authorities and school officials have been told of the test results.

Radon is the result of natural radioactive decay in the ground. Reilly called it "one of the major environmental health threats facing Americans" and urged that school officials nationwide test their schoolrooms for the gas.

He said it is "important that school administrators nationwide understand both the seriousness of the risk and the relative simplicity of testing and fixing the problem."

There is no federal law requiring tests for the radioactive gas, although the EPA is required by law to conduct sample tests nationwide in homes and schools to determine potential health threats. The preliminary findings from the 16 states came from two-day tests in rooms normally occupied by students, teachers and school staff, Casey said.

Hussein optimistic about Israeli proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) — King Hussein of Jordan said Thursday an Israeli proposal for Palestinian elections in the West Bank and Gaza Strip could advance peace in the Middle East if it is part of a broader negotiating effort.

Standing with Secretary of State James Baker after two hours of talks at the State Department, Hussein appeared to be more positive about the election proposal than he had been previously, but he stopped short of a full endorsement.

"It is not an end in itself," he told reporters.

But, he said, "the idea of election might be worth looking at within the context of the whole process that hopefully will come together to get us from where we are now to a final settlement. Otherwise, the idea is out of context."

Israeli Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir made the proposal during a visit here two weeks ago, suggesting that Palestinians in the occupied territories choose "interlocutors" to represent them in talks with Israel on limited self-government. The territories have been wracked by violence for almost a year and a half.

The Bush administration has said elections would be appropriate as long as they lead to negotiations to determine the final status of the territories.

Hussein's visit caps two weeks of intensive negotiations that have included visits by Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak as well as Shamir.

Hussein said he is more optimistic as a result of his current visit than he has been in "many, many years."

Comet misses Earth narrowly, reports NASA

WASHINGTON (AP) — An asteroid big enough to wipe out cities whizzed past the Earth last month before astronomers even knew it was there, showing how hard it is to forecast a natural disaster from space, a NASA scientist said Thursday.

The mountain-sized asteroid flashed by the Earth at a speed of 46,000 miles an hour and was not even detected until days after it had become only a receding point of light, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration announced.

Astronomers reported that the object missed the Earth by only a half-million miles — about twice the distance between the Earth and moon. In cosmic terms, this is considered "a close call."

Had it hit the Earth, said Bevan French, a scientist in NASA's solar system exploration division, the asteroid would have created a crater the size of the District of Columbia and spread destruction for 100 miles in all directions. Other effects would be felt thousands of miles away, he said.

"The object would be packing the equivalent of 40 billion tons of TNT," said French. "That would be equal to about 40,000 hydrogen bombs all going off at the same time."

Henry Holt, a retired U.S. Geological Survey scientist now working on a NASA-funded project to detect and track asteroids that cross the Earth's orbit, found the asteroid in photographs taken almost a week after it had flown past.

French said the fact that the asteroid, called 1989FC, was not seen earlier comes as no surprise.

"These detections are made because you can photograph a trail of light as it moves against a background of fixed stars," said French. "That means the asteroid is moving across your path and not on a collision course."

"An asteroid that was heading right for you would look just like another small fixed star and might be very difficult to detect until it was too late to do anything about it," he said.

There have been several federally funded studies to determine how to protect the Earth from being bombed by outer space rocks, but little else has been done, said French.

"Your best bet would be to identify these several hundred or thousand Earth-crossers (asteroids) and calculate their orbit," he said. "Then you would know when you are in danger."

Once the approaching object was sighted, said French, "then you could launch a large nuclear device to explode near the asteroid and nudge it out of the way."

But for now, said the NASA scientist, "we don't really have the kind of detection capability or launch capability to do that at the moment."

French said Holt found the object in photos taken on March 31 by an 18-inch telescope at the Mount Palomar Observatory in California. The photos were processed several days later and the asteroid was discovered by comparing views taken an hour apart.

By the time the object was photographed, French said, it had already made its closest approach to Earth and was streaking outward, away from the sun. Scientists plotted the trajectory backward and determined that the asteroid passed within a half-million miles of Earth on March 23.

"On the cosmic scale of things, that was a close call," Holt said in the NASA announcement of the event.

Experts now are tracking the asteroid.

Wright upbraids committee for dragging feet on claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Speaker Jim Wright accused the ethics committee of dragging its feet on the allegations against him Thursday, while the Republican leader who brought the charges in the first place suggested Democrats will try to nudge Wright aside before his case can reach the full House.

"I would be very surprised if the senior members of the Democratic leadership don't try to talk the speaker into stepping down before going through the agony of a public defense," Wright said.

Wright said he still believes that Rep. Thomas Foley of Washington, now the majority leader, will be speaker before the end of June.

Meanwhile, published reports indicated that a Texas oil deal which brought a huge profit to Wright last year involved businessmen with an interest in a $3 billion Air Force jet trainer program now being studied by Congress.

On Capitol Hill, Wright said "we've met all the requirements" to move to the next phase of the case, in which the Texas Democrat wants to confront his accusers personally and try to knock down the 69 formal allegations issued by the ethics committee on Monday.

The speaker particularly blamed special outside counsel Richard Phelan for what he termed the delay. "I'm puzzled as to why he is dragging his feet," Wright told a reporter. "We're very anxious to have the matter resolved as soon as possible."

"It's a little bit distracting that I write letters to the chairman and ranking minority member of the committee and get a reply from Mr. Phelan, and it's always some foot dragging," Wright said. "I'm anxious to let them ask me questions. I am certain the charges can be answered emphatically and absolutely."

A Wright supporter, Rep. Charles Wilson, D-Texas, accused Phelan of leaving the speaker to be battered in the news media.

"A la John Tower, the prosecutor figures as long as he can delay it's worse for the accused. People have a sense of guilt," Wilson said after a meeting with Wright and aides to plan political strategy.

Since Monday's committee announcement — the equivalent of an indictment on charges of violating House rules — there has been a series of negotiations between Phelan and Wright's lawyer, William Oldaker, and a flurry of letters between the speaker's office and the committee.

Under the panel's rules, the filing of charges must be followed by a formal admission or denial of each charge by Wright, then by a period in which the ethics committee reviews the evidence and decides what charges, if any, to make the subject of a disciplinary hearing.

Gingrich said he doubted the case against Wright ever would come to the House floor. He said the ethics committee could choose a course that would stop short of floor action, and "if the speaker wants to negotiate with the ethics committee, we would want to see what the ethics committee recommends in that context" — all this assuming that Wright did step down as speaker.

He said of Wright as speaker, "I don't see how the guy survives."

U.S. requests Salcido's extradition

MEXICO CITY (AP) — Authorities on Thursday were trying to determine the nationality of Ramon Salcido, a winery worker who admitted to killing seven people, including his wife and two of his daughters.

Salcido, who had been sought since the slayings last week in California, was arrested in Mexico early Wednesday near his hometown of Los Mochis, in the western state of Sinaloa.

The United States has requested his extradition, but sources at both the U.S. Embassy and the Mexican attorney general's office have indicated they cannot proceed further until it can be determined if Salcido is a Mexican or U.S. citizen.

Mexican authorities have assured the United States they will act as quickly as possible.

Salcido, a 28-year-old forklift operator at a Sonoma County winery north of San Francisco, admitted to the slayings Wednesday night in a TV interview and said he made his way back to Mexico to see his parents for the last time. He refused to discuss his motives.

Federal officials said Salcido told agents he killed his American-born wife, Angela Richards; a winery co-worker, Tracy Toovey; and five other people in a jealous rage when he came to believe Toovey and his wife were romantically involved.

The only survivor of the rampage, his 2-year-old daughter Carmina, is recovering from a slashed throat.

The U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service said Wednesday that Salcido had not filed naturalization papers and was still a Mexican citizen, but Mexican authorities said Salcido claimed to be a U.S. citizen.

Under a 1973 agreement, a U.S. court must formally request extradition through the Justice and State departments, which then forward the request to the Mexican Department of Foreign Affairs. It is a cumbersome procedure that can take many months.

In the case of foreigners, if the Mexican government is convinced that a crime has been committed, the suspect is deported to the requesting country as an undesirable alien.

The fact that Mexico has no death penalty and California does could be a stumbling block, said Peter Keane, a professor of criminal procedure at Hastings School of Law in San Francisco. But Mexico could deliver Salcido quickly if they got assurances he would not be executed if convicted.

A U.S. Embassy source, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the embassy has "no record" that Salcido became a U.S. citizen, although "he is a resident of the United States, and married an American citizen."

Spokesman Hector Aguilar said Salcido "has been living in the United States for nine years, and according to his statement (when interrogated), he said he acquired American citizenship and was married to an American."

Police open fire, killing 1, as mourners riot in Jordan

MAZAR, Jordan (AP) — Mourners rioted Thursday at the funeral of a boy killed during protests of government price increases, and one man died when police opened fire, residents said. Another report said a policeman also was slain.

Rioters pelted police with stones and burned several buildings, including the house of a Mazar official accused by residents of killing the boy, witnesses said.

Violent demonstrations were reported Thursday in several other villages in southern Jordan. The latest killing raised the death toll to at least eight in three days of unrest.

Despite the widespread protests against Prime Minister Zaid Ridai's austerity measures, there was no evidence of opposition to King Hussein himself in the southern Jordan region that is considered a bedrock of his strength.

Several residents of this village 55 miles south of Amman said members of Jordan's Bedouin Desert Police shot and killed Yacoub Katawneh, 23, during the chaotic funeral of his cousin, 13-year-old Ibrahim Katawneh.

"We had two burials. It was an awful scene. People shouted and threw stones at police. Armed desert police shot live ammunition at people," said one resident, who would not give his name.

Officials in the nearby city of Kerak confirmed the two deaths.

The officials, and several witnesses in the town, said a local sub-governor allegedly killed the younger Katawneh and injured six other people when he fired at a crowd of demonstrators who approached his house Wednesday.

One knowledgeable official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said one policeman died and another was injured in the Mazar rioting on Thursday. Police did not confirm the report.

Hinckley able to interview expert lawyer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Presidential assailant John Hinckley Jr. won court permission to start negotiations to hire assassination expert Mark Lane as his lawyer Thursday. It was Hinckley's first public testimony.

"It is my belief that I have the right to choose who will be my attorney," Hinckley told U.S. District Judge June Green at a hearing on his request to dismiss his longstanding defense team and begin discussions with Lane.

Green gave Hinckley permission to interview Lane and any other prospective attorneys despite reservations expressed by officials of a mental hospital where he has been held since he was acquitted in 1962 by reason of insanity after shooting President Ronald Reagan and three others in 1981.

A psychiatrist at St. Elizabeth's Hospital testified that Hinckley still suffers from a serious mental illness and has been moved from a dormitory-style room to a maximum-security ward because he couldn't handle privileges he had previously enjoyed.

Hinckley didn't identify Lane until the end of his testimony when a hospital lawyer asked: "Are you aware that in fact he has written a number of books about political assassinations?"

"I know of one book he has written," Hinckley told hospital attorney Janet Maher.

"What book is that?" the judge interjected.

"Do you want me to just give this person's name because we are going to lead into that?" Hinckley asked.

When the judge indicated she wanted an answer, Hinckley said: "He has written a book called 'Rush to Judgment.' His name is Mark Lane."

Lane's 1968 book, "Rush to Judgment: A Citizen's Dissent," questioned the findings of the Warren Commission that Lee Harvey Oswald acted alone when he killed President John F. Kennedy in 1963.

He has also written numerous articles, including a 1980 book about the 1978 Jonestown massacre in Guyana.

Maher, who argued that letting Hinckley interview prospective lawyers "presents a unique opportunity for exploitation," reminded Hinckley that Lane had written a number of books about people he had represented in criminal cases.

Blood on their hands

The spring fashion shows are on in New York again, and along with the floor-length silk dresses and drop-dead suits, the designer fur collections will again get lots of coverage from the fashion press. From Givenchy to Calvin Klein, coats of sweeping sable, ankle-length mink, cropped fox and sheared rabbit are always a big part of the shows.

But this year, there's been a surprising, and welcome, development. Three designers, who have previously always shown fur coats in their fall/winter collections, have announced they will no longer design fur garments.

What's more, modeling agencies now have lists of models — including Christy Brinkley — who won't wear fur in the shows.

This is an encouraging sign that the fashion industry is realizing what a large part of the world already knows — that wearing fur is unconscionable.

In this age, it is hard to believe that we still wear the fur coats of animals. There are enough man-made, attractive and warm alternatives to make wearing the skins of raccoons, seals, fox, beavers and any other animal killed for its coat not only unnecessary, but pointless.

The fur industry's defense that animals are raised for the sole purpose of becoming a coat is no justification for crushing a fox under a hydraulic press so some rich old lady in New Jersey can wear it out to dinner three times a year.

Man has no right to exploit animals for vanity, which is just what people who wear fur are doing. Wearing fur is vain, it's crude and it's disgusting. And anyone who can put the skin of another creature over their shoulders has blood on their hands.

What will they tour?

Democratic legislators this week endorsed Gov. Terry Branstad's plan to increase Iowa's tourism budget in an effort to bring more money into the state. But one question remains: what are they going to tour?

In the 1980s, Iowa's government, apparently due to a contagious and debilitating brain disease, has fixated on the goal of making Iowa the tourism capital of the galaxy. Branstad's most recent spending plan calls for national advertising and a total annual budget of $6 million.

But what Branstad and the legislators have failed to realize is that this is Iowa — the land of tall corn, fat pigs, skyscraping silos, and real smelly farm lots.

Iowa is not a place people escape to, it's a place people escape from. State legislators apparently dream of the day when a man in Nebraska will turn to his wife and say, "Honey, we've both been working hard and I know you've been a little down in the dumps lately. But I'll tell you what, let's me, you and the kids pack up and take a vacation — to IOWA!

State officials like to brag about all the tourism dollars spent in Iowa each year, but they forget to mention that the people spending those dollars are Iowans. You don't have to advertise to get them to come to the state. They're already here. As for people outside Iowa, what does Branstad and crew plan to use to attract them — "Rhubard Days" in Mechanicsville?

Iowa is a nice state. It's peaceful, and in its own way it really is beautiful. But it does not possess the natural or man-made attractions necessary to make it a tourism mecca. It's time Iowa's leaders face that reality and dump their senseless pipe dream.

Kohl's nuclear dilemma

West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl has a serious problem on his hands — and that means President George Bush does, too.

The problem is the aging Lance missile, the mainstay of NATO's short-range nuclear deterrent. Bush and Defense Secretary Dick Cheney want to upgrade. Kohl wants to upgrade. Just about everyone involved wants to upgrade, except the German people themselves, and if Kohl gives the go ahead, his government will almost certainly collapse.

In advance of the May NATO Nuclear Planning Group meeting, Britain and the United States have agreed not to push Kohl further than his creaky coalition can withstand.

That may buy Kohl a little time, it might even buy him reelection in 1990, but the writing is on the wall, and NATO and George Bush should stop to read it. The future of Germany is nuclear free.

To George Bush it may look like the tail is wagging the dog, but any NATO plan that does not address the eventuality of a nuclear-free Germany will throw the alliance even further into the chaos of their different fates.

Now is the time for George Bush to steal Gorbachev's thunder and introduce a new arms control initiative that couples a reduction in short-range missiles with a balancing reduction of conventional forces.

Let's hope that's what he's got up his sleeve, because Congress is not likely to continue financing the development of a missile that may never be deployed. Right now, Kohl's decision not to decide may be wasting 150 million dollars a year in defense appropriations.

More significantly, sooner or later the Kohl government will fall, and no matter what George Bush does then, the fate of American missiles in Germany will be decided for him.

Some helpful job-search hints

In three weeks, the end of another school year will arrive. And for many seniors, who haven't figured out a way to prolong their undergraduate college careers, that means one thing — graduate school. But of course, there are those strange exceptions among the student body who don't want to continue in the fun-filled fantasy land known as college, who actually want to go out in the real world and (chuckle, chuckle) find a job.

To help out those brave and extremely naive few thinking of trying to find a job right out of college, The Daily Iowan contacted the UI Job Placement Office (Motto: "So what's so bad about fast food anyway?") to get some tips on how to get a job. We synthesized those tips into a handy and helpful Job Finding Tip Sheet, which is printed for your convenience in this column.

Pick a Job You Like — There's no question that you should try for a job that you want to do, rather than just one that makes money. Of course, if you go into a field like political science, journalism, art and art history, philosophy, psychology, English, social work, history, geography, economics, religion or any other humanities program, you may have to wait a while before you find a job involving your degree. Like say, two or three years.

Many times, however, students often overlook majors which could guarantee them jobs after graduation because they stereotype them as unexciting or difficult. We interviewed some recent graduates of the UI in an attempt to disprove the myths:

David "Bob" Delilo, B.S. Accounting, 1987 — "Many people think of accounting as a boring field. They are wrong. It is not, I, myself, am an accountant. It is fun. We audit all kinds of businesses. Wal-Mart's, K-Mart's, you name it. We also have office parties and go out to eat a lot. Boy, is it exciting."

Mary Gaffney, B.S. Nursing, 1987 — "I think nursing is often stereotyped as a stressful, difficult profession to go into. In fact, it is a rewarding, fulfilling and OH MY GOD GET ME THE HELL OUT OF THIS JOB! I CAN'T TAKE IT ANYMORE! THE LONG HOURS, THE LOW PAY, THE DOCTORS ALWAYS HITTING ON ME! I'M GOING CRAZY!!! HELP ME, PLEASE!!!"

Beth Dietz, B.S. Engineering, 1987 — "Well if you look at it from the perspective of the mechanics of sediment transport in the relation to a pythagorean triangle divided by the parameters of a sloping plane going nine times the speed of light minus the estimated curvature of a pre-stressed concrete structure, then yes, I guess it is exciting."

But even if you decide to go into a more liberal-arts oriented profession, it doesn't mean you can't get a good job, as this recent Iowa graduate proves:

David McCallum, B.A. Journalism, 1986 — "You know, a lot of people thought I was crazy when I decided to call my self 'Scratch' and form a heavy metal band called 'Mutilated Babies', but we're in the process of releasing our second album 'Kill All Women Now', and we're scheduled to go on tour with Megadeth next year and... what? You thought I was still in journalism? No way, man. I gave that up after I got my 1,500th rejection letter from a paper in Nome, Alaska. Rock and roll is where it's at!"

Build Your Résumé — One of the keys to finding a job is to have a good résumé. Fortunately, there are a lot of things that one can do to build up a résumé that are both simple and won't take up a lot of time. Such as:

JOINING STUDENT GOVERNMENT — No other program on campus offers you the résumé-building opportunities that student government does. Not only do you have the main student government bodies such as Student Senate, the Collegiate Association Council, and Associated Residence Halls, but each different governmental organization offers literally thousands of irrelevant committees on which they are always looking to put interested students.

The best committees to join are the so-called "search committees." The UI forms search committees whenever anyone in the administration higher up than a secretary leaves. The search committees then interview candidates for the position and make recommendations to the state Board of Regents, who generally totally ignore their recommendations. But just imagine this on a résumé: "Member, UI Under-Vice President In Charge of Payment of Bills To Water Company Search Committee." Pretty impressive, huh?

BECOMING A ROADIE WITH A ROCK BAND — Most employers, when they search through the thousands of résumés they receive every year, look for something that stands out, something besides "Member, Political Science Club," or "Internship, Dow Chemical Company." So just think of how they'll react if you put on your résumé: "Roadie, Guns n' Roses 1989 World Tour." "Wait a minute," they'll think, "Guns n' Roses, the band that sings 'Sweet Child O'Mine' and 'Welcome To the Jungle'? I love their music! This guy is hired!"

Of course, some employers may not know who Guns n' Roses or many of the newer top-40 artists are, so if you can, try to hook on to established artists. Established artists include the Rolling Stones, Bob Seger or Phil Collins. They do not include Debbie Gibson. So even if you like "Only In My Dreams," don't bother.

LIE OUTLANDISHLY — Let's face it, most people exaggerate a little bit on their résumé. If you're a liberal arts student, you may just have to exaggerate a little more than most. If you get desperate for more to put on your résumé, simply start making things up. After all, who's going to check to see if the UI really has a "Student Financial Security Board" or a "Religions of Eastern Asia Club." Never give up — Remember, no matter how many rejection letters you get, no matter how many interviews you have to go through, no matter how many cities you have to visit, don't give up on your dreams, even if they happen to involve finding something to do with a philosophy degree. Just keep thinking about how much worse you would be without that degree.

Especially while you're arguing with the customer about whether or not he ordered anchovies on his pizza.

UI law student James Cahoy's column appears every Friday on the Viewpoints page.

Vandalism for a bad cause

To the Editor:

I'm glad Tom O'Malley and his TKE brothers don't see that a bunch of men using a bunch of women to make money and thus win the honor of parading themselves in front of a larger bunch of mostly drunken, hormone-pumped men in a bar watching two other men beat each others' brains out is not sexist.

Anyway, using a little violence for a good cause is alright. But, it's not alright to use violence (or is vandalism a more appropriate term to use here?) for a bad cause, like spoiling some good clean fun being had by a bunch of non-sexist fraternity boys.

And, I'm sure those women weren't forced to pose for those tasteful portraits. I'll bet their mothers warned them about posing for "certain kinds" of men. You know, the ones that use pictures of women to make money, those slimy types you see on dimly lit, trash-filled streets in big cities. I'm sure they also told their daughters that if it was for a good cause a little degradation was a small price to pay.

I wonder how many women on campus paid money (voted) for their favorite knock-out? Lesbians are excused from answering this query.

I wonder how many fraternity brothers would have rather paid money to vote for some hunky boxer-type to hand out the prizes instead?

I wish somebody would confront this kind of stuff in a more polite way. Maybe the university or somebody should adopt a bunch of rules about the violence that goes on here. But, they should make sure that they define the difference between violence and "just having some fun." We wouldn't want to create confusion.

A few musings back... I take back the innuendo. There are no gays in fraternities, just lots of male bonding. Those issues aren't related either, lest some of you gentle readers are trying to put two and two together by looking beyond good clean fun to the big picture. You know, the one that includes cause and effect and a connection between... you know... things like sexism and violence, sugar and spice and puppy dog tales.

Negative image mars future efforts

To the Editor:

A spokesman for New Wave called last Friday's attack on the TKE fundraising booth a "courageous action against sex-ploitation." Oh really? When did juvenile terrorism become raised to the status of "courageous action?"

Perhaps liberals support this kind of behavior, but principled radicals do not. The TKE fraternity members were praised for not retaliating; nevertheless, New Wave should take care about the kinds of activity they support lest a similar attack happen to one of their information tables. Stupid behavior begets stupid behavior, and TKE will do the honorable thing in policing its members so that no future retaliation occurs. I would support them if they catch the perpetrators of the attack and bring charges against them.

What remains is how feminists will respond to this action committed in their name. Hopefully they will realize that such cowardly behavior reflects badly on their politics and that they will denounce it and help expose those responsible if they can. Otherwise, I fear the negative image created by this incident will mar future efforts to propagate their politics.

'Force' not required to victimize women

To the Editor:

So TKE President Tom O'Malley doesn't think the Fight Night display was sexist because "none of the girls in the pictures were forced to be involved." Women do not have to be "forced" into being victims of sexism.

The women in the Fight Night display were put there by men so men could look at their bodies. In a sense, the women were forced to be there — by a society that has come to expect no more of women than faces and bodies. Three cheers for the carriers of the red paint and the leaflets, for sometimes people have to be shocked into realizing how much sexism women face every single day.

100 arrested in army, police raids

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Soldiers and police arrested more than 100 people in raids on a leftist union federation, a refugee and displaced persons organization, and a women's association, group leaders said Thursday.

Francisco Martinez, a director of the National Union of Salvadoran Workers, said the raids formed part of "an escalation of repression by the armed forces and Arena."

Arena is the acronym of the rightist Republican Nationalist Alliance, which defeated the incumbent Christian Democratic Party in the March 19 presidential election.

Treasury Police and 1st Army Brigade soldiers forced their way into the downtown San Salvador headquarters of the Christian Committee for Displaced People, or CRIPDES, shortly after midnight, said Tomasa Ruiz, a member of the group's directorate.

Ruiz told The Associated Press soldiers and police arrested about 75 people, including about 30 children and three U.S. citizens working with the committee.

Riot cops encircle Hitler's house

BRAUNAU, Austria — Riot troops ringed the house where Adolf Hitler was born and police said they arrested eight people Thursday for marking the 100th anniversary of the dictator's birth with Nazi slogans and stiff-armed salutes.

Hundreds of police swarmed this city of 17,000 people to prevent a repeat of the 1979 clashes between neo-Nazis and leftists that marked Hitler's 90th birthday. No serious incidents were reported.

Across the border in West Germany, foreigners closed their stores and kept children out of schools because of fears of neo-Nazi violence. Several members of anti-Nazi vigilante groups were arrested for carrying weapons.

Security was heaviest here, at the two-story yellow house where Hitler was born on April 20, 1889. The house, a former inn now used as a daycare center for handicapped children, was sealed off with metal barriers manned by dozens of police and special riot squads with dogs.

Landslides, flooding in Soviet Georgia

MOSCOW — Landslides and flooding struck the mountainous area of Adzharia in Soviet Georgia this week, killing five people and leaving another 47 missing and feared dead, state TV said Thursday.

About 13,000 people are threatened by flooding rivers, snowmelt and mudslides aggravated by earth tremors, the news program "Vremya" said. Already, 800 families have been evacuated, it said, and 3,000 others are due to leave in the near future.

The news show said 52 people were caught in a landslide on Mount Salgan Wednesday which buried four houses and a bus. It said five bodies have been recovered and rescuers are searching for the missing 47.

Shoreham power plant wins license

ROCKVILLE, Md. — The Nuclear Regulatory Commission awarded a full-power operating license to the controversial Shoreham nuclear power plant Thursday in a gesture that may ultimately prove symbolic.

The commission voted 4-0 to grant the license, capping years of hearings that produced reams of testimony and cost millions of dollars.

The Long Island Lighting Co., which owns the 809-megawatt reactor, has agreed not to bring the plant up to full power pending a vote by shareholders to scrap the $5.5 billion plant.

The vote, which must occur on or before June 15, will make or break a deal under which LILCO would sell Shoreham to New York state for $1 in exchange for a decade of annual rate increases. The state would then oversee the decommissioning and dismantling of the plant that was once touted as the solution to Long Island's energy shortages.

Shoreham becomes the first U.S. nuclear plant to be licensed on the basis of a utility-formulated emergency plan, rather than one created by the state and local governments.

Bush mulls gun 'suitability' for his anti-crime proposal

WASHINGTON (AP)—President George Bush said Thursday he is still trying to establish which guns have "suitability for sporting purposes" as he puts together an anti-crime proposal.

As Bush weighed what to include in his package, a group of Republican lawmakers urged him to concentrate more on criminals than gun control.

Bush met with the group seeking ideas on what should result from his administration's review of uses of assault weapons, which have proliferated among street criminals and drug dealers.

The lawmakers urged him to look beyond new regulation of weapons and focus instead on construction of prisons and incarceration of criminals to deal with "a national crime emergency," said Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, who was joined in the meeting with Bush by Sens. James McClure, R-Idaho; Arlen Specter, R-Pa. and Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Fla.

Bush told reporters that he was talking to "a wide array of people on this."

He said he had reached no decision yet on what to do about assault weapons, but added.

"I guarantee Bill Bennett will be totally on board," he added in reference to his drug policy coordinator who is reported to have urged stricter controls on semi-automatic weapons.

Bush spoke highly of an opinion he had sought from the head of the conservative Heritage Foundation as to how to balance the public's concerns about violent crime with the rights of law-abiding gun owners. But Bush did not say specifically what he liked about it.

"He called Ed Feulner up and asked him for his thoughts," said Heritage spokesman Herb Berkowitz.

The spokesman said only that the memorandum in response "tried to walk a careful, fine line between our constitutional and civil libertarian views" and the need to address the crime issue.

Hu's death sparks protests in China

BEIJING (AP)—About 1,500 students braved a daylong downpour and marched for democracy in China's capital Thursday, while authorities threatened "harsh measures" to crush four days of dissent.

About 1,000 students marched in the central Chinese city of Nanjing, and students in Tianjin, a port city east of Beijing, plastered posters on walls. Other marches were also reported in Shanghai, Wuhan and Hefei, but details were sketchy.

Nationally televised news led with a stern warning that the protests, the biggest since the pro-democracy demonstrations of 1986-87, would no longer be tolerated.

"These activities have gone beyond the limits of the law and the taking of harsh measures to end the disturbances has become necessary," the announcer said, quoting from an editorial by the official Xinhua News Agency.

"These protesters do not really care about the future or happiness of China, all they want to do is overthrow the Communist Party and the government," the editorial said.

The protests were prompted by the Saturday death of Hu Yaobang, an outspoken reformer who was ousted as Communist Party chief in 1987. Hu was accused of encouraging liberal ideas and failing to crack down on the 1986-87 student demonstrators.

U.N. rebukes Israeli forces for excessive use of gunfire

JERUSALEM (AP)—U.N. relief officials Thursday demanded that Israel stop using gunfire to quell Palestinian protests, and Moslem clerics urged Palestinians to defy Israeli restrictions on worship at Jerusalem's Al Aqsa Mosque.

In the Gaza Strip, at least 16 Palestinians were reported wounded in stone-throwing clashes with troops.

The U.N. Relief and Works Agency, which aids Palestinian refugees, said 13 Palestinians, six of them younger than 15, were shot to death by Israeli troops in the past week.

"We deplore this loss of life and call for a halt to the use of lethal firepower against civilians, young and old," the agency said in a statement issued in Vienna and distributed in Jerusalem.

An army spokeswoman defended the troops, saying "they do everything in their power to avoid deaths." She said every Palestinian death is being investigated by a senior officer.

Under army policy, troops may fire live ammunition only when their lives are in danger. Plastic bullets, which can be fatal when fired from a range of less than 70 yards, may be used to break up violent protests or stop fleeing inciters.

At least 439 Palestinians have been killed since the December 1987 start of the uprising, most by army gunfire, according to a count by The Associated Press. Eighteen Israelis have also died.

The U.N. agency on Thursday put the Palestinian death toll at 442, and said nearly 25,000 have been wounded by army gunfire.

It also protested the prolonged closure of the West Bank's 1,200

The Daily Iowan/Laura Speer

schools, including 90 run by the U.N. agency.

The military government has kept schools closed for most of the uprising, saying they are flash-points of anti-Israeli violence. The latest military order extended school closures until May 19.

"If they (schools) cannot reopen before the end of next month and are not allowed to remain open through the summer months, a whole school year will be lost," the U.N. agency said.

A military government official said no date has been set for reopening schools, calling the situation too tense for such a move. Palestinians have alleged the school closures are a form of punishment.

In Jerusalem, Al Aqsa preacher Sheikh Mohammed Al Jamal called on Moslems in the occupied territories to attend Friday noon prayers at the mosque.

Pro-choice letters swamp Thornburgh

WASHINGTON (AP)—Abortion rights activists dumped some 200,000 letters at the Justice Department on Thursday urging Attorney General Dick Thornburgh to drop his attempt to have the Supreme Court's landmark 1973 decision legalizing abortion overturned.

"This has for the last 15 years been a legal struggle," ACLU executive director Ira Glasser said at a news conference outside the department where he was surrounded by the mailbags. "It has now become a political struggle."

The campaign to persuade the court not to reverse the 1973 Roe v. Wade decision concerns a Missouri case known as Webster v. Reproductive Health Services. The Justice Department, which requested and received permission to file a brief in the case, has asked the court not only to uphold a restrictive Missouri abortion law but also to upend the 1973 decision.

The letters to Thornburgh are among the many public expressions on both sides of the issue. The National Right to Life Committee plans to run four-page inserts in newspapers around the country starting next Tuesday. More than 300,000 pro-choice demonstrators marched on Washington on April 9. And Americans in record numbers have been writing and telephoning the Supreme Court, which hears arguments in the Webster case on April 26.

"The attorney general believes that everyone has a right to petition the government," he said.

Apple® Makes Your Spring Sizzle

Even if you're up to your eyebrows in work, you needn't carry the world on your shoulders.

Not with a Macintosh® on your desk!

Think of a project that weighs heavily on your mind right now—say, a simple research paper. With Macintosh you can bring instant order to the jumble of notes, scribbles, quotes, and excerpts that'll go into your paper. You can quickly outline, change the order of topics, and jot down related ideas at will.

With Macintosh you can proofread your paper, illustrate your ideas, graph that equation, in less time than you might spend reviewing for a Monday morning quiz. Starting Sunday.

And here's the clincher: We have just made owning a Macintosh more affordable. Now you can save on the purchase of an Apple Macintosh Plus or selected models of Macintosh SE, with our new lower prices.

Come and see the new Apple Product Line on Thursday April 27, in the Lucas-Dodge room at the Iowa Memorial Union, at 9:00, 10:30, 12:00, 1:30 and 3:00. An Apple representative will be there to answer all of your questions.

Choosing right from wrong

They come out of college football with impeccable credentials, proudly labeled "can't miss" players. They are All-This and All-That, equipped with all the tools they need to succeed. They are probed and picked at by the scouts, twisted and turned every which way, like so many laboratory specimens. Then the glowing reports are delivered to the clubs. Great hands. Great speed. Great prospect. But that's all they are — prospects. And sometimes, great expectations turn into sour reality. It happened more than once in the '80s and it will happen again Sunday when the NFL conducts its annual draft. The trick for each of the 28 clubs is to make sure it doesn't happen to them. The spectre of washout picks hangs over the clubs like a bad dream. You feel sorry for the other guy when a pick goes south, but at the same time, you're grateful that it didn't happen to you. Personnel people still talk about the great quarterback draft of 1983, when the clubs found a bumper crop of signal callers waiting for them. The first one to go, the No. 1 pick in that draft, was John Elway of Stanford. No miss there. Five non-quarterback picks later, it was Kansas City's turn. The Chiefs used the seventh choice in the draft to select passer Todd Blackledge of Penn State. To say that selection didn't quite work out would be, well, putting it mildly. By picking Blackledge, KC left behind Jim Kelly, scooped up by Buffalo, Ken O'Brien, taken by the New York Jets, Tony Eason, chosen by New England and — perhaps most significantly — Dan Marino, who went to Miami. Elway, Eason and Marino have taken their teams to the Super Bowl. Kelly had the Bills in the AFC championship game last season. O'Brien remains the Jets' starter. After five disappointing years in Kansas City, Blackledge was dispatched to Pittsburgh, where he remains a backup to Bubby Brister, a less-heralded 1986 third-round choice of the Steelers. There are other examples. In 1981, New Orleans turned to the wrong Carolina for the draft's No. 1 pick. With North Carolina linebacker Lawrence Taylor on the board, the Saints went instead to South Carolina for running back George Rogers. Rogers won a rushing title but played just four years with New Orleans before being traded to Washington and then drifting out of football. Taylor, drafted by the New York Giants, became the anchor of their defense and the NFL's MVP in 1986. He remains one of the league's impact players. How does that happen? How does a high pick that seems so right turn out to be so wrong? Gil Brandt, vice president for player personnel of the Dallas Cowboys who has been in the business of evaluating football players for more than 30 years, chuckled at the question. "Sometimes, teams draft to fill a position," he said. "They'll say, 'If we don't draft him in the first round, he won't be there in the second.' Some positions are hard to find." So, when Denver was determined to get a nose tackle last year, it went sight unseen for Ted Gregory of Syracuse — ignoring his slow recovery from knee problems and his lack of size. He reported late to training camp and left early, traded by the disappointed Broncos to New Orleans for Shawn Knight, another failed No. 1. This year, the Broncos decided to take no chances and, like most other teams, got up close and

Aikman ends NFL draft speculation

IRVING, Texas (AP) — The Dallas Cowboys ended weeks of NFL draft speculation Thursday by signing quarterback Troy Aikman to a rookie-record six-year, $11.2 million contract.

Aikman, who played at UCLA and who will be the No. 1 choice in Sunday's NFL draft, said he hoped that within five years "the fans will be comparing me with Roger Staubach."

He said he wanted to sign with the Cowboys because every Sunday he used to watch Staubach on television from his home in Henryetta, Okla.

"I remember all those comeback victories and I'd like to be part of that someday," Aikman said. "I can't step into Roger's shoes but maybe I can do some of the things he did."

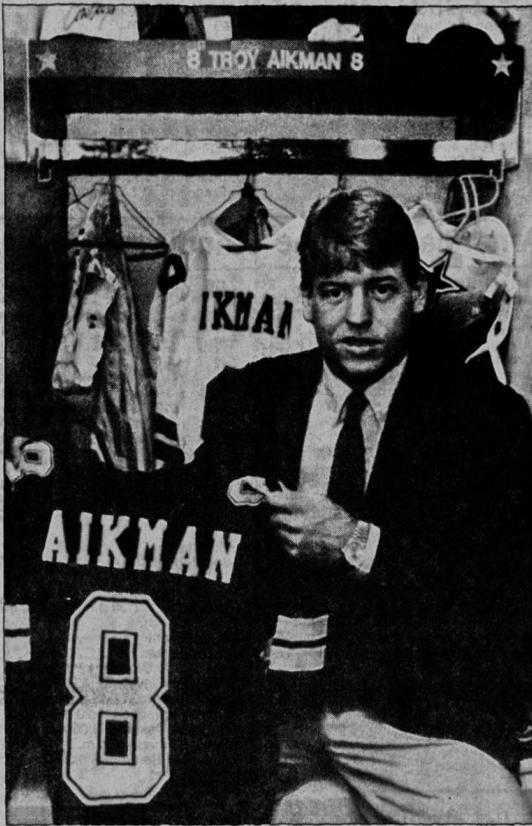

Cowboys Coach Jimmy Johnson said the third time was the charm trying to attract Aikman.

"He turned me down out of high school and went to Oklahoma," said Johnson, who was then coaching at Oklahoma State. "Then, when I was at Miami, I tried to get him when he left Oklahoma but he went to UCLA. I was afraid he would turn me down a third time."

Ironically, Aikman suffered a broken leg during a game against Miami when he was at Oklahoma. He sat out the rest of that season and decided to transfer to UCLA after Oklahoma coaches announced they would return to the run-oriented wishbone offense the following season.

"Thanks for breaking my leg, Coach," Aikman said. "You did me a favor."

Iowa quarterback awaits call

By Michael Triik
The Daily Iowan

Chuck Hartlieb has always dreamed of making it in the NFL. He always told his mother he would buy her a big house and a nice car should his dream ever come true.

His mother's only reply was a chuckle.

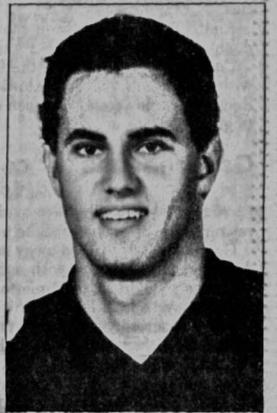

Hartlieb may have chuckled at the time too, but come Sunday, or in Hartlieb's case, probably Monday, the former Iowa quarterback will be too nervous to laugh.

Hartlieb is one of a handful of ex-Iowa football players expected to be picked in Sunday and Monday's annual NFL draft.

"I've been looking forward to this for the past two or three months," Hartlieb said. "It will be nice to get the weekend over with. In my case it will probably be more like Monday than Sunday. Everybody has been saying six to 10 (rounds) for me."

Talking to pro scouts last August, projecting Hartlieb as a sixth- to 10th-round selection would have been silly. Hartlieb was a front runner for the Heisman Trophy before the 1988 season began, but an injury and two less than flattering performances have bumped him down the list.

"I didn't perform well in the Peach or the Hula Bowl," Hartlieb said. "That was a bad decision for me to even play as far as my professional opportunities go because I was injured. But I'm glad I did because they were both great experiences."

Should Hartlieb get the call this weekend or earlier next week, and then make it through his team's training camp, he would be the third Hayden Fry-coached quarterback to find a spot on an NFL roster.

Mark Vlasic calls signals for the San Diego Chargers, while another former Heisman candidate, Chuck Long, is with the Detroit Lions.

Any roster is fine with Hartlieb. "I really don't care who picks me," Hartlieb said. "I hope the team that picks me, picks me because they feel I fit into their

Rangers rollin' toward club win record

ARLINGTON, Texas (AP) — The Texas Rangers used to welcome days off to recover from another flogging.

On Thursday's off day, they wished they could have played two.

With eight games left on their schedule this month, the rollin' Rangers are one victory shy of tying the club record for the most victories, 13, in April.

Texas was 13-8 in April 1974 under Billy Martin. The Rangers were 12-9 in 1983.

Texas defeated Milwaukee 6-2 Wednesday night to win its fifth series of the year and improve its major league-leading record to 12-2.

"When you're going like we're going, you hate to take a day off," Rangers manager Bobby Valentine said.

Shortstop Scott Fletcher said, "We have confidence now when we play a team that we'll find a way to beat them. It's something new for us."

The Rangers have held sole possession of first place in the American League West for 11 days. They are three games ahead of defending AL champion Oakland.

Texas' off-season trades and free agent dealings have paid off. Free agent pitcher Nolan Ryan, baseball's all-time strikeout leader, is 1-0, while Jamie Moyer, who was obtained from the Chicago Cubs, is 3-0. Moyer has filled in for Jose Guzman, who hasn't pitched because of arm trouble.

Second baseman Julio Franco and first baseman Rafael Palmeiro, both acquired in trades, have added clutch hitting to the Rangers' lineup.

"They've got a good team mixed with power and speed," Milwaukee pitcher Mike Birkbeck said. "Their starters and bullpen are good; they have all the components."

Speedy Cecil Espy, who replaced the traded Oddibe McDowell in center field, has ignited the Rangers' attack from the leadoff position. He has 11 stolen bases and is batting .345.

"Cecil is our jump-starter," Valentine said. "He gets us going."

In 33 innings, Rangers' relief pitchers have allowed only four inherited runners to score. Jeff Russell has four saves and Ceciliano Guante has one.

"You couldn't ask much more from our bullpen," Valentine said.

The Rangers open a three-game series at Toronto Friday, then go to Cleveland before returning home next weekend against Boston.

Minnesota, Augustana meet marks home finale for seniors

By Neil Lewis
The Daily Iowan

Nine seniors will see their final home competition Saturday when the Iowa men's track team takes on Minnesota and Augustana at Cretzmeier Track.

The May 13 Iowa Open, originally slated as the final home meet, has been scratched from the schedule. Field events for this Saturday's meet will begin at noon with running events following at 12:45.

The meet will be a training session for the Hawkeyes in anticipation of the April 28-29 Penn Relays in Philadelphia, according to Coach Ted Wheeler.

"We look at this as a stamina and conditioning meet," Wheeler said. "It's a big move toward firming up our sprint groups."

Wheeler said the key matchups should occur in the 800-meter run, 1,500-meter run and 400-meter intermediate hurdles. The Gophers have two runners who break the 3 minute, 50 second mark in the 1,500, and Augustana will run Division III cross country champion Dave Terronez.

At this point in the season, Iowa has qualified hurdler Pat McGhee for the NCAA Championships in the 110-meter high hurdles and the 400 hurdles. Senior jumps specialist Paul Jones has also qualified in the long jump. Senior Paul Steele will take another shot at qualifying this weekend in the 400 hurdles.

McGhee said Iowa looks to qualify in more events, and that cool, spring weather may have slowed down training schedules.

"I think the weather has handicapped us and we still have a ways to go," McGhee said. "It's frustrating because of my slow times in the 400."

Along with Saturday's competition, the Iowa coaches will induct former Iowa distance runner Harold Phelps into the Iowa track Hall of Fame. Phelps ran at Iowa from 1922 to 1925, won two Big Ten cross country titles and competed in the 5,000 meters at the 1924 Olympics in Paris.

Hawks enter 18 events at Kansas

By Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

The Kansas Relays in Lawrence, Kan., are one of the most prestigious invitation-only events in women's track.

For Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard, the envelopes just kept coming in. "This is probably the largest group we've taken to Kansas," Hassard said of this weekend's meet. "I'm feeling really good about the number of entrants."

The Hawkeyes are entered in 18 events at the meet, matching last year's total. Hassard said the past two years have produced an unusually high number of participants from his squad.

At last year's event the Hawkeyes captured three titles. In the 10 years before that, Hassard-coached teams had recorded only three wins combined.

"It's traditionally a strong field,"

Women's Track

Hassard said. "This makes a good lead-up meet for the Drake Relays." Iowa travels to the Drake meet in Des Moines April 28-29.

Iowa junior Jeanne Kruckeberg won the 1,500-meter run last year in 4 minutes, 29.31 seconds, defending her title in the 1,500 that she won as a freshman. In last weekend's Lady Bulldog Invitational at Des Moines, Kruckeberg qualified for the NCAA meet in her first 1,500 of the year at 4:19.71.

"I've been running pretty loose," Kruckeberg said. "I know I can improve on that time, but I don't want to push it right now. I'll be ready to peak at the right time."

Surprisingly, after the past success in the event at the Kansas Relays, the two-time champion won't line up to defend her title.

"I won't run (the 1,500) because I ran a tough race last week," Kruckeberg said. "When I run the event again I want to go out and improve, and I don't know if I can do that right now." Kruckeberg is also slated for the 880-yard relay.

Sophomore Bev Powell will also represent Iowa in two events. The East St. Louis, Ill., native is scheduled to compete in the 100- and 400-meter hurdles. In field events, Laura Kriener will throw the shot and discus, while teammate Sara Joens will also be in the discus as well as the javelin.

"Laura (Kriener) has become more improved nearly every time she goes on the field," Hassard said. "I don't think she has reached her potential and she continues to work at it."

Mets rally to beat Cubs

NEW YORK (AP) — Gregg Jefferies broke a 1-for-28 slump with a game-tying single and Mookie Wilson's grounder scored the go-ahead run in the seventh inning as the New York Mets beat Chicago 4-3 Thursday night, sending the Cubs to their fourth straight loss.

Dwight Gooden, 3-0, pitched seven innings and allowed four hits for the victory and Roger McDowell finished for his first save. Gooden improved to 16-3 lifetime against the Cubs.

Calvin Schiraldi took over for Mike Bielecki in the seventh and walked Kevin Elster leading off. One out later, Mitch Williams, 0-1, relieved and walked Len Dykstra.

Jefferies then singled to center to tie the score and send Dykstra to third. Wilson's grounder to second scored Dykstra with the go-ahead run.

Williams entered the game with six saves in six save opportunities.

Andre Dawson had given the Cubs a 3-0 lead with a two-run double in the first and an RBI single in the third.

Gooden got in trouble in the first when Mitch Webster singled with one out and moved to third on Ryne Sandberg's single. After Sandberg stole second, Dawson doubled down the right-field line to give the Cubs a 2-0 lead.

Gastineau makes comeback bid

PHOENIX (AP) — Former New York Jets defensive end Mark Gastineau, who would have made $875,000 this year if he hadn't retired, may be about to make a comeback in his own back yard.

Gastineau, 32, walked away suddenly with no word for several days last Oct. 11 to be with actress Brigitte Nielsen, his fiancée who was thought at the time to have cancer, though subsequent tests showed she didn't.

Now, reportedly on the outs with her, Gastineau has been discussing a return with the Phoenix Cardinals of the National Football League.

"I had one of the best years of my life last year," he said after meeting with Cardinals general manager Larry Wilson on Wednesday. "She got sick and it changed my perspective on how important (football) is. Now she's healthy and we both want each other to be good in our careers."

"I still want to play football," he added. "I told her the other day the reason I quit was because of her. I didn't make any statements if I was going to come back or if I was not."

Gastineau resides in suburban Scottsdale, a few miles from the Arizona State stadium in Tempe where the Cardinals play. He has family in Springville, the mountain community where he was born 220 miles east of here near the Arizona-New Mexico border.

Hockey Hall nominates Soviet

MONTREAL (AP) — Soviet goaltender Vladislav Tretiak was among 10 players nominated Thursday for election to the Hockey Hall of Fame.

Tretiak, a long-time star with the Soviet National Team, is the first European player ever nominated for election to the Hall of Fame. He led the Soviets to 13 World Championships and helped the Central Red Army to 13 Soviet Elite League titles.

The other nominees in the Players Category are Bill Barber of the Philadelphia Flyers; Ted Green, a defenseman who played with Boston in the NHL and New England and Winnipeg of the World Hockey Association; Steve Shutt of the Montreal Canadiens and Los Angeles Kings; Darryl Sittler, who played with Toronto, Philadelphia and Detroit; and Ed Westfall, a forward who played with Boston and the New York Islanders.

Missouri-Kansas City jumps to Division I

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — The University of Missouri-Kansas City was approved Wednesday as a full-fledged member of NCAA Division I.

UMKC, which was a member of the NAIA before becoming a corresponding member of the NCAA two years ago, was elected to full status by the NCAA Division I Council at a meeting Wednesday in Kansas City. The change is effective Sept. 1.

"It's definitely good news for our athletic program," said Lee Hunt, athletic director and men's basketball coach. "Everyone around here's been operating on the assumption that everything would work out, but you know it's never over until it's over."

UMKC, which sponsors basketball and 11 other varsity sports, will remain an independent next season.

Aikman

Quarterback Vinny Testaverde signed a six-year, $8.2 million contract with Tampa Bay when he came out of Miami in 1987.

Quarterback Warren Moon recently signed a contract with the Houston Oilers for five years at $2 million per season. Leigh Steinberg, Aikman's agent, also negotiated that contract.

Aikman's $11.2 million contract included a signing bonus believed to be worth more than $2 million.

"It was the highest contract for a rookie," Steinberg said of Aikman's deal.

"I was proud to pay it," Cowboys owner Jerry Jones said. "In my opinion, Troy could have gotten more money if he had played for another team in the NFL."

Johnson wanted Aikman badly.

"Everybody kept saying I had a poker face but at times I had to bite my lip to keep my enthusiasm inside," said Johnson, who took over as coach of the Cowboys last month and has since signed a 10-year contract.

Aikman said how fast he plays in the NFL depends on how quickly he picks up the system.

"The ideal way would be to take things slowly," he said. "I'll have a lot of talent around me and that will help."

Johnson said he and Aikman would begin studying film Thursday night.

"There's no timetable for when Troy will play," Johnson said. "We'll go at his pace. We'll see what happens in training camp."

system. Hopefully, it will work out the way."

Hartlieb passed for 6,506 yards in his career at Iowa and was the only Hawkeye quarterback to throw for more than 3,000 yards in two seasons. His career-passing efficiency of 150.1 is second best in NCAA history. He was named All-Big Ten his last season.

For now, all Hartlieb can do is wait. He says it won't be easy but he won't be alone either.

Hartlieb's roommate, former Iowa tight end Marv Cook is also expected to be drafted over the weekend.

"Oh sure it makes it easier," Hartlieb said. "We get together and talk about it all the time. It has been a lot of fun."

Maybe not as fun as chuckling when he hands his mom the keys to a new car.

personal examinations and evaluations of their draft candidates.

"Sometimes you reach for something that's not there," Brandt said. "You pass on a better player to fill a need and you can get burned. We've done the same thing."

Which may explain why the Cowboys have the No. 1 pick Sunday.

The draft is now a high-tech operation that Brandt compares with the difference between "flying DC3s and Conquairs with 747s."

Then there is the matter of one man's opinion against another's.

"In any walk of life, you'll have people who disagree," Brandt said. "Some people like redheads. Some people like blondes. Some people want to live in Bozeman, Mont. Some people want to live in Key West, Fla."

So it follows that some people will like that quarterback and some people won't.

Linksters take different routes, still feel at home

By Michael Trilk
The Daily Iowan

It may be over 430 miles away, but this weekend's Spartan Invitational will seem a lot like home to the Iowa men's golf team.

The Hawkeyes have played at the East Lansing, Mich., event for the past several years and last year finished second to eventual Big Ten champion Illinois. But it is the Spartans' Forest Acres Golf Course that will remind the Iowa contingent of home.

"It is very similar to Finkbine," Michigan State Coach Bruce Fossum said. "Our ladies team is in Iowa City this weekend and they feel like they are playing at home. It is a good golf course and we will have it set up some good scoring. You'll see some good scores come out of here this weekend."

Illinois will not return to this year's 16-team field which makes Iowa a front runner for the team championship. Teams will play 54 holes, 36 Saturday and 18 Sunday.

Indiana, Wisconsin and the host Spartans are also possible challengers for the team title.

"The Big Ten is really loaded this year,"

Men's Golf

Fossum said. "I can't classify ourselves as a favorite because we are so damn young. We haven't been playing very well, but we are do to break loose one of these days."

So far the Hawkeyes have had a fairly successful spring, finishing second at the Purdue Invitational, winning the Big Four meet and finishing seventh out of 22 teams at the Kepler Invitational at Ohio State last weekend.

Iowa Coach Chuck Zwiener said he is happy with the way his team has been hitting the ball so far this spring, but is hoping for some lower scores as the weather gets nicer.

"The key thing is improvement and everybody on our team is capable of doing better," Zwiener said. "Once the weather warms up and conditions become better we'll do better. Many times it takes a little sunshine and warm weather to improve a player's mental outlook on the game."

Fossum says the weather should be nice in East Lansing this weekend.

For the first time all spring, the Iowa women's golf team won't have to endure the routine of teeing it up on the road. And they aren't complaining a bit.

"There's a huge advantage (in playing at home)," junior Kelley Brooke said, "because we've been on the road so often lately, it's nice to be able to catch up on schoolwork and relax."

"Another advantage in playing on our home golf course is that some of our par-three holes are pretty long and the greens are tricky. We know where the best spots to place the ball for our second shots are, too."

Iowa will play host in the 54-hole Hawkeye Invitational Friday and Saturday at Finkbine golf course. Every Big Ten squad will be competing in the 14-team tournament, except for Michigan and Ohio State.

Iowa Coach Diane Thomason says she eagerly awaits any conference competition. "Everytime we meet Big Ten teams," Thomason said, "it's a good opportunity to see how we shape up against them."

"It's just another tournament, however. How we perform will affect our confidence one way or another. If we have a good weekend, it will help us out next weekend."

Brooke puts a little more importance on the confrontation.

"Indiana and Minnesota are here," Brooke said, "and they are two of our top competitors, along with Ohio State. If we can beat them, it will be a good indication that we can win the Big Ten."

"Plus, playing well will get our momentum going."

Thomason will start Brooke, sophomore's Shirley Trier and Stacey Arnold, junior Jeannine Gibson, and seniors Amy Butzer and Sarah Ward. Also, Iowa juniors Marne Miller and Kristi Heatherly will be competing as individuals.

Arnold and Trier are leading the Hawkeyes in scoring, with averages of 77.5 and 81.1, respectively.

Trier stressed the importance of Iowa gaining some scoring consistency before the Big Ten Championships next weekend.

MOORE ABOUT WINE

by Ken Moore

What's a Gewurztraminer?

What's in a name? Gewurztraminer is a white grape whose name means spicy Traminer. The Traminer has been grown in Austria, Germany and the Alsatian region of France. A spicy variation developed and has since become the preferred stock.

The smell is pungent with descriptions as rose petals, grapefruit, elder flowers, being applied. The taste varies from dry and flavorful in California. This wine is a wine with pleasant sweetness, but not overly cloying, and some character and complexity. It is often a wine drinkers next step in complexity after white Zinfandel. A wine to enjoy with light foods, it is a good selection for spring and summer afternoons and picnics.

And if you can't say Gewurztraminer just say "Gewurz".

Hawks try for success in middle

By Julie Deardorff
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's tennis team has already lost to the best teams in the league and beaten the worst. Now they face the middle this weekend, Wisconsin and Minnesota, in the final home meets of the dual season.

"I would say the teams that we still have to play are in between the best and the worst," Iowa Coach Steve Houghton said, "but we'll have to play the best tennis we've played this year to beat them. The next four teams we play are all close."

Minnesota is tied for first in the Big Ten with Michigan, 4-0, while Wisconsin is tied for third with

Men's Tennis

Northwestern, 3-1. Iowa sits at fifth, with a 3-2 record.

"This weekend will definitely have an impact on the seeding of the Big Ten meet," Houghton said. The Badgers are coming off of a 5-4 loss to Indiana which snapped a seven-meet win streak.

Their top player is junior Marc Schwartz, who is 22-13 overall, and has the best record in the Big Ten, 3-0. He will face Claes Ramel, 16-5 overall and 3-2 in the Big Ten. Joey Deer will play No. 3 for Wisconsin and Jack Waite, who has an eight-match win streak is at No. 4. Jim Schneider and Rob Oppenheim fill in the last two spots.

Iowa will go with its usual lineup with Ramel, Mike Kiewiet, Lars Nordmark, Dave Novak and Jay Maltby.

In doubles, Nelson and Schwartz will be matched up with Ramel and Martin Aguirre in the No. 1 slot. At No. 2, Jim Schneider and Dave Mirsberger will play Kiewiet and Buckingham, and Dave Novak and Bryan Stokstad will play Deer and Wait at No. 3.

Sunday, Iowa will play Minnesota, one of the surprise teams of the conference. The Gophers recently beat 22nd-ranked Indiana, and are undefeated in the Big Ten, 4-0.

"They are extremely well balanced and evidently playing good doubles," Houghton said. "Their players are very similar one through six." Minnesota features a brother combination at No. 1 doubles. Duke and Brian Uihlein are ranked 22nd in the nation and 3-1 in the Big Ten. They will face Ramel and Aguirre who are 4-1.

Kiewiet and Buckingham hold the best record in the conference at No. 2 doubles, 13-1, and will play Rafer Leach and Matias Olson, 2-1. Novak and Stokstad will play Jason Hall and Kevin Werwie at No. 3.

Younger Berra arrested in drug investigation

MORRISTOWN, N.J. (AP)—Former major league infielder Dale Berra, son of Hall of Fame catcher Yogi Berra, was arrested Thursday and charged with conspiring to buy cocaine, authorities said.

Berra, 32, was among 23 people named in warrants issued after a six-month investigation, Lee Trumbull, the Morris County prosecutor, and Police Chief Jay White said in a joint statement.

Berra was arraigned Thursday and bond was set at $5,000, authorities said.

Berra, who is from Glen Ridge, N.J., was arrested at his home about 8 a.m. and charged with conspiracy to violate state narcotic laws, said Lt. John Dempsey, a spokesman for Trumbull. Berra is accused of meeting several times with John Bailey, purportedly to buy cocaine, Dempsey said.

Authorities said Bailey is the key figure in an operation that distributed $15,000-$20,000 worth of cocaine weekly "to people ranging from street level dealers to 'corporate-type' individuals purchasing drugs for personal consumption or limited distribution."

Berra met Bailey on three occasions, twice at Bailey's home and once at Berra's home, authorities said.

"What he was doing was purchasing from Bailey," Dempsey said.

Two people named in the warrants were still at-large Thursday.

Berra played for the Pittsburgh Pirates and the New York Yankees during his major league career. His career ended last season when he was released from the Baltimore Orioles' Rochester farm team of the International League.

His father is a former Yankees' catcher and currently a coach for the Houston Astros. Yogi Berra was in Atlanta Thursday for an Astros' game.

Indiana at Iowa matches top Big Ten teams

By Erica Weiland
The Daily Iowan

The series between Iowa and Indiana today and Saturday at the Hawkeye Softball Complex is a key one for both teams.

The Hawkeyes currently own the No. 1 spot in the Big Ten with an 8-2 league record, while the Hoosiers are tied for second with Michigan at 6-4.

"Obviously this is a real big series for both teams," Iowa Coach Gayle Blevins said. "Being in command after this series would put us in real good shape for running for the conference title."

"This is a real pivotal series for both teams," Indiana Coach Diane Stephenson said. "Iowa has been playing excellent ball, and we're tied for second in the Big Ten. You have to feel good, not necessarily for being ranked second, but for knowing that you still have the opportunity to play the team that's ranked ahead of you."

Although the Hoosiers graduated five starters and are working with a large class of freshmen, Blevins said it should still be a tough series.

"We're going to have our hands full," she said. "I have no doubt that they are prepared. Their big strength is their pitching and catching. Even with a young group, if you have the pitching and catching, you can do a lot of good things."

Iowa has been concentrating on its offense lately, and according to freshman outfielder Pam Palmore, that, along with mental strength, will be the keys to this weekend's games.

"It should be a pretty tough series," Palmore said, "but we've gone over a lot in practice, and we have to try to take their defense apart. We have the talent. We just need to get together mentally."

The Hawkeyes currently stand in seventh-place on the NCAA Division I coaches poll, and that ranking has been motivating Indiana, Stephenson said.

"We're excited because Iowa is ranked seventh nationally," Stephenson said. "That's a big motivational factor for us. If Iowa plays a good series, they might be hard to catch. If Indiana plays a good series, people will be chasing us."

"I feel confident that we'll beat them," Palmore said. "I'm really excited because we want to stay on top."

For Stephenson, winning this series means something more than just improving the team's record. Because she was an assistant coach at Indiana under Blevins for four years, it's a chance to show her former boss that she learned her lessons.

"There's nothing better than to beat your mentor," Stephenson said. "I worked for Gayle for four years, and I have a lot of respect for her. But I would like to beat her just so she knows how well she taught me."

'Carmen' parades pomp and passion

By Steve Donoghue
The Daily Iowan

With all the pomp and fire it can muster, the UI Opera Theatre will stage George Bizet's "Carmen" at 8 tonight in Hancher Auditorium.

Barbara Buddin stars as the mightiest, most enduring femme fatale of them all — if Euripides' Medea is discounted — in the production, stage-directed by Beaumont Glass, director of the Opera Theatre, who has also provided a new English translation of the opera. James Dixon will conduct the University Symphony. Sets and costumes are by Margaret Wenk of the UI Opera and Dance Production Unit.

One of the best-known and best-loved operas of all time, "Carmen" tells the realistic story of a naive soldier, Don Jose, and his obsession with the wild gypsy woman Carmen. After arresting her for starting a fight in a cigar factory, he later allows her to escape and has to go to prison in her place.

After his release, Jose deserts his regiment and joins a band of smugglers in order to be with Carmen. But when the fickle gypsy turns her attentions to the handsome bullfighter Escamillo, Jose's anger and Carmen's pride lead to the opera's fatal conclusion.

"It's the biggest thing I've ever done," said Buddin. "I have a healthy respect for the character. It's exhausting."

An element of spectacle will be added during the procession to the bullfight in Act IV, which will feature colorful costumes, a large chorus and, thanks to the Johnson

Opera

County Sheriff's Posse, picadors mounted on horseback. Five members of the sheriff's posse, led by Captain Duane Lewis, will ride across the Hancher stage as part of the parade.

The production will star one former and several current students of the UI School of Music. The title role will be sung by graduate student Barbara Buddin, who has appeared in several previous UI Opera Theatre productions. She was Dorabella in "Cosi Fan Tutti" last spring and Gianetta in last summer's production of "The Elixir of Love." She also appeared as the Old Woman and Blair Daniels in University Theatres' production of "Sunday in the Park With George" last fall.

Tenor Dennis Petersen, who sang as Dennis Maher when he was a student at the UI, will appear as Don Jose. Petersen's professional experiences include a tour with the New York City Opera National Company and a tour with the Texas Opera Theater. He also appeared in 10 operas with the Opera Orchestra of New York.

Kimm Julian, the Opera Theatre's Boris Godunov in 1986, will perform the role of Escamillo. A doctoral student in the School of Music, Julian was a national semifinalist in the 1989 Metropolitan Opera National Council Auditions in New York.

He appeared as Figaro in "The Barber of Seville" last summer in a statewide television broadcast for the Des Moines Metro Opera.

Julian returns to the Metro Opera this summer for two roles before heading off to Europe for auditions with several leading opera companies.

Beaumont Glass has been director of the Opera Theatre at the UI since 1980, where he has staged 16 major productions and provided translations of several of the operas. In 1988 he published the authorized biography of the legendary opera singer Lotte Lehmann, for whom he was an accompanist and assistant.

When asked for her response to the possibility of facing a sellout crowd in Hancher tonight, Buddin replied in unflappable character: "That'd be great. That just means more energy for me."

Tickets for "Carmen" are $18, $13 and $7 ($14, $10 and $5 for UI students, children and seniors) and are available from the Hancher Auditorium Box Office. The box office is open 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday.

Payton turns woes to whoas

By Brian Jones
The Daily Iowan

Few things in life are more rewarding than trying to compile an "All-Time Top Ten Love Boat Episodes" list. Remember the one where usually cheerful Gopher, drunk as a pirate on paint thinner, holds the rest of the crew hostage screaming, "I'm tired of you goofy (expletive) calling me a rodent! From now on it's MISTER Gopher! I'm going down, and I'm taking some of you with me. Make one more move Doc, and you can prepare to meet Allah. And you Julie, what's the deal with that stupid smile?"

Just as soul-satisfying is trying to decide what geographical area can lay claim to the title of "World's Most Famous Blues Place." Beale Street in Memphis? The entire state of Mississippi? Maybe, but since World War II, probably no place has produced more blues greats than Chicago's 43rd Street.

That statement would certainly elicit no argument from Dion Payton and his 43rd Street Blues Band, who are appearing tomorrow night at Gabe's, 330 E. Washington St.

Although various backing bands for Buddy Guy and Junior Wells have called themselves the 43rd Street Blues Band, Payton went to the trouble of actually registering the name.

Like most real blues guys, Payton's musical history is a circuitous one, full of odd twists and turns. Payton, who was born in Mississippi, began his career, like so many other blues musicians, in Gospel music, recording with the Volinaires on Chess records. Surrendering to secular sounds, Payton toured with Albert King, Millie Jackson and others in the '70s, before forming his own band in 1985.

Since forming the registered 43rd Street Blues Band, Payton has been compared to many of bluesdom's acknowledged masters — Buddy Guy and Magic Sam among them. Even Warren DeMartini, who plays in the worthless heavy metal band Ratt (send those letters informing me that the very wonderful Ratt is actually a very bitchin', most rockin' teen combo; care of the Arts and Entertainment editor), praised Payton in the pages of "Guitar Player" magazine. Payton can be heard on Alligator's blues compilation LP "The Bluebloods," where his "All Your Affection Is Gone" is one of the record's highlights.

Payton moves easily between traditional Chicago blues, funky stuff and more overt rock songs. He explains this by characterizing himself as more aggressive than most blues players, saying that he is often compared to Jimi Hendrix and Carlos Santana.

As finals week approaches, you're faced with the incontrovertible fact that you're failing each and every one of your classes. Boy, are your parents gonna be pissed. So listen to the blues. Hang your head and moan.
