Takeshita steps down after scandal

TOKYO (AP) - Prime Minister Noboru Takeshita has decided to resign because a widening political scandal and an unpopular sales tax have sent his popularity plummeting, news reports said today.

The mass circulation Mainichi Shimbun newspaper and the Japan Broadcasting Corp. said Takeshita plans to resign as soon as Parliament passes the budget for fiscal 1989.

The reports said Takeshita planned to make the announcement after a Cabinet meeting later today.

Takeshita has chosen to resign because of low support ratings in opinion polls due to a widening political scandal and an unpopular new sales tax, the reports said.

Passage of the budget for fiscal 1989, which began April 1, has been blocked by an opposition boycott of deliberations in Parliament, but it is expected to come late this month or soon after several national holidays end early

Local businessman pleads not guilty

By Belinda Bloor The Daily Iowan

Iowa City businessman Harold Wayne Ambrose pleaded not guilty Monday to federal charges that he was involved in drug trafficking, according to U.S. District Court officials.

Ambrose, 41, a resident of Iowa City and owner of the College Street Club, 121 E. College St., was named along with Iowa City businessman Larry Gene Regennitter, College Street Club — and three Cedar Rapids businessmen in an indictment by a federal grand jury last week detailing charges of cocaine possession, distribution of cocaine to people under 21 years of age and conspiracy.

The other four defendants pleaded not guilty to the charges last Thursday, at which time Ambrose did not have an attorney present.

Monday Ambrose was arraigned and Spies said Monday that he did not know if any plea-bargaining would take place between Ambrose and Assistant U.S. Attorney Richard Murphy.

Bush praises 'heroes' of ship

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) - Thousands of grieving friends and relatives of the fallen 47 crewmen from the battleship USS Iowa gathered quietly Monday and heard President George Bush praise their loved ones as "brothers in eternity."

"We join today in mourning for the 47 who perished, and in fact, for the 11 who survived," the president told a packed memorial service at Norfolk Naval Air Station. "They all were, in the words of a poet, 'the nen behind the guns.

Locals air defense concerns

By Heather Maher The Daily Iowan

Americans are anxious to stop the spread of nuclear weapons and are very worried about the preservation and protection of the global environment.

These two issues head a priority list of national concerns that a countrywide cross section of about 1,000 people agreed upon recently, as part of their participation in a national forum on defense spending and national security.

Old Doctrines and New Threats: Citizens Look at Defense Spending and National Security" was the subject of 12 citizen assemblies that were held in various cities this past March. The Iowa City/Cedar Rapids area was one of the sites chosen to host such an assembly, as Cedar Rapids is home to a branch of the Washington D.C.based Roosevelt Center for Ameripolitical research institute which released earlier this month, that deal with.

The results of the report offer unique insight into the political psyche of the average American.

Seventy percent of the participants rated the threat of war in Europe with the Soviet Union - a major basis for American foreign policy as being "minor or negligible."

Sixty-two percent accorded the threat posed by the spread of communism the same low priority rating - nearly as many as the number who consider the possibility of nuclear war with the Soviet Union "minor."

Besides halting the proliferation of nuclear and chemical weapons and addressing environmental problems such as holes in the ozone and the greenhouse effect, the report ranks domestic social concerns and drug trafficking as the next highest

Legislature abandons sign-language bill

The Daily Iowan

After a dizzying volley of approvals and denials, the Iowa Legislature has finally laid to rest a bill authorizing American Sign Language instruction to be considered as a foreign language in secondary and post-secondary schools — at least for another session.

In early February the Iowa House approved File No. 157, a bill permitting the instruction of American Sign Language in both high schools and colleges, but the Senate rejected the proposal when it reached the floor later in

The Senate based its judgment on the grounds that secondary institutions weren't equipped to accommodate the four-semester-long collegiate foreign language requirement, Senate Education Chairman Larry Murphy's press secretary

"The House version didn't meet much acceptance in the Senate, so the Senate decided they'd draft a resolution because the bill still

The Senate, in its attempt to meet the time limit of its funneling deadline that marks the legislative session's end, created in conjunction with the House a concurrent resolution to further investigate the sign-language bill.

While the House's first bill proposal died before either the House or Senate could take any legislative action, the resolution to inquire into the validity of installing sign language as a second-language requirement still survives as a bill-of-sorts but in a diluted form that should seep into the next legislative session, Murphy's press secretary said.

"It's dead for the session, but it could come back again next year," she said. "I don't think we've heard the end of it."

Charles Anderson, a UI speech pathology professor, said that although the House bill hasn't survived in hard-and-fast form, the action to draft a resolution demonstrates concern on the part of the Legislature.

"My feeling is the Legislature needs to be commended and that their questions need to be answered," he said. "I'd hoped, however, that the information had already been avail-

For Anderson, the joint investigative resolution is a portent of good faith and not a flat

"One should not interpret the resolution as opposition - it shows that there's a need for more information," he said.

Janice Hawkins, a consultant for Deaf Services of Iowa, said the Department of Education, Deaf Services and the state Board of Regents will look at the variables of teaching certification, course selection and collegiate credit recognition when they make their final report to the Legislature in January 1990.

'I'm hoping these three groups will come up with something folks can use in the public school system and in college," Hawkins said. "At the university level there isn't a curriculum for ASL instruction, so it isn't surprising that the Senate decided to look into the issue.

"It's good to see that they're still giving it some consideration," she said.

'Drug czar' may head $2.4 million crackdown

DES MOINES (AP) — A House committee Monday approved a $2.4 million drug crackdown and called for a state "drug czar" to combat narcotics trafficking and addiction.

"We're losing the drug war," said Rep. Wayne McKinney, D-Waukee. "The current system isn't working. It's like a cancer, this drug thing."

Critics said legislators were trying to pad the state bureaucracy by adding a new agency to combat

"We need to get tough; we don't need a new depart ant," said Rep. Roger Halvorson, R-Monona.
"I the tomoney is the problem," said Rep. Dorothy Carpenter, R-West Des Moines.

After rejecting efforts to strip the new agency, the House Appropriations Committee approved the package 19-1, with one lawmaker not voting.

Backers said drug trafficking and use is growing, and more needs to be done. Committee members nuibbled about how far the Legislature should go. 'Let's put the death penalty on for drug pushers," said Rep. Ray Lageschulte, R-Waverly. "That's what you do with a cancer - cut it out." Backers of the bill want an approach combining tough new penalties and provisions allowing wiretapping with new treatment and education efforts.

Major provisions of the package, unveiled by legislative leaders last week, include: · Creating a new Department of Drug Control. Education, enforcement and treatment programs administered by many different agencies would be combined under the new "drug czar."

 Allowing police to use wiretaps when conducting major drug investigations.

· Adding 14 new drug agents and four lab technicians, at the cost of nearly $1 million.

 Spending an additional $300,000 to train local police officers and another $100,000 to train local • Spending another $1 million for treatment programs in Iowa's prisons. Backers said 80 percent of the inmates have drug problems.

• Sharply increasing penalties. Under the measure, using a weapon in a drug offense can bring a 20-year term, and selling drugs near a school could bring an automatic 10-year jail term. Both penalties are twice the current level. Anyone caught selling large quantities of drugs could face a 50-year term and $1 million in fines.

Most of the debate centered on whether a new state agency is needed, with Republicans against and Democrats in favor.

McKinney said the current fragmented system isn't working because no one is accountable.

"It's time we have someone who is answerable to the governor," said McKinney. "We have people scattered. It's very difficult to figure out who is in

"That's the problem - everybody can point the finger at somebody else."

Other backers said the drug problem has gotten

"We've been spinning our wheels. Things haven't gotten any better," said Rep. Tom Jochum,

D-Dubuque, chairman of the spending panel. The issue is an extremely sensitive political one for legislators who fear being labeled as soft on drugs.

Neurology researchers at the UI College of Medicine have received a $1.1 million grant to test a new model of the brain that may help explain not only how the brain is organized, but also the mechanisms underlying certain nervous and mental disorders.

The four-year award, from the Mathers Foundation, will allow UI researchers to test their hypotheses about the neural mechanisms that cause disorders of memory and language.

Principal investigators of the study are Drs. Antonio Damasio, Professor and head of the UI neurology department; Hanna Damasio, Professor of neurology; and Daniel Tranel, assistant professor of neurolog Dr. Gary Van Hoesen, professor of anatomy and neurology, is co-in ligator.

"We embarking on a new and exciting phase of work. After more than a decade spent identifying new links between disorders of the mind and specific brain structures in humans, we have developed a systems-level model of high order brain functions — the processes that make humans different from animals," said Antonio Damasio.

The new model, a preliminary version of which has just been published in the first issue of the journal Neural Computation offers a radical alternative to the traditional models of higher brain function and will guide forthcoming research at the Division of Cognitive Neuroscience.

Researchers will conduct sophisticated experiments involving complex mind processes and pinpoint the brain areas that are engaged by those processes or whose absence disturbs them. The current studies are Possible because of new theoretical and technological developments.

"Without the availability of brain imaging techniques such as magnetic resonance, we would not be able to proceed with this research program," said Hanna Damasio.

Tranel adds that the study's findings may lead to the development of new rehabilitation strategies and treatments for patients who have neuropsychological disorders as a result of strokes, brain tumors, infections of the nervous system or inherited disorders.

A UI College of Medicine neuroscientist has won a National Alliance for Research on Schizophrenia and Depression award for research into the causes, treatments and cures for severe mental illnesses.

Dr. Jorg Pahl, a clinical associate in psychiatry, is among 24 psychiatric investigators around the nation to win the Young Investigator Award.

Pahl will use the two-year, $60,000 award to study individuals who have schizophrenia, a mental disorder that usually deteriorates the thinking processes, the contact with reality and the emotional responsiveness of those who have it.

"I will work to determine brain function in individuals who have schizophrenia. MRI, SPECT and PET brain-imaging techniques afford us opportunities to do this in ways never before possible,"

Daley takes oath, promises a more open style to City Hall

CHICAGO (AP) - Richard M. Daley took the oath of office as mayor on his 47th birthday Monday, assuming the job his political-boss father held for 21 years but promising to bring his own, more open style to City Hall.

"I call on each and every Chicagoan to share their ideas and enthusiasm as we work together to move this city forward," said Daley, whose victory over two black politicians split the electorate sharply along racial lines.

With Daley's inauguration, Chicago becomes the largest U.S. city in which voters have replaced a black mayor with a Daley was sworn in by Senior U.S. District Judge Abraham Lincoln Marovitz, who performed the same service for the late Richard J. Daley six times.

The younger Daley campaigned on a promise to operate a more accessible government in the nation's third-largest city than did his father, who as mayor ran a political machine powered by Democratic patronage. He died in 1976.
"You don't hand down policies from generation to generation," the younger Daley said, "but you do hand down values." He said his father had instilled in him "a love for this city and a zest for public service."

The late-morning swearing-in was designed to pull together the disparate groups the new mayor seeks to unite, his press secretary said.

"We tried to include people from all ethnic stripes," said Avis LaVelle. Daley, who is leaving a job as Cook County prosecutor, was elected April 4 to complete the last two years of the second term of the late Harold Washington, Chicago's first black mayor. Daley succeeds Eugene Sawyer, named acting mayor by the City Council following Washington's death 17 months ago.

Daley defeated Sawyer in the Democratic primary Feb. 28 and then beat black third-party candidate Timothy Evans and Edward Vrdolyak, a former Democratic leader who switched to the GOP.

At today's ceremony, Sawyer congratulated Daley and offered a suggestion; "One thing that Chicago needs more than anything else is your strong, aggressive leadership to make this one city, one people, working together."

Simulcasting could boost track betting

DES MOINES (AP) - The state's four pari-mutuel race tracks could take bets on televised races held at other tracks around the country, under a plan tentatively approved Monday by the Iowa Senate.

"I suggest this is one way to help those individual tracks out there keep their heads above water," said Sen. Jack Rife, R-Moscow.

During debate of a wide-ranging bill making changes in state pari-mutuel regulations, the Senate voted 29-19 for an amendment to allow "simulcasting" at the tracks in Altoona, Council Bluffs, Dubuque and Waterloo.

Further action on the bill was later deferred before a final vote on the measure, and opponents of the simulcasting amendment planned to try to get it removed from the bill. But the wide margin of victory makes that move difficult. The amendment was offered by Sen. George Kinley, D-Des Moines, who is an avid backer of the Altoona horse track near Des Moines. He said track officials see simulcasting of horse racing's triple crown events as a means of generating enthusiasm at the fledgling track, which opened last month.

"You need a fan base," Kinley said. "All we want to do is bring in the (Kentucky) Derby, the Belmont (Stakes) and the Preakness for the racing fans here."

However, Kinley's amendment would empower the state Racing ommission to allow betting or televised races originating anywhere in the country at any time.

"This isn't off-track betting. You're on the track," Rife said in defense of the amendment.

Opposition was led by the Senate's chief gambling opponent - Democrat William Dieleman of Pella. He urged the Senate to defeat Kinley's amendment in the wake of last week's final legislative approval of a bill legalizing floating casinos.

"I don't know where it's going to end," Dieleman said. "It seems to me we've already gone far beyond what we ought to be doing, as far as additional sources of gam-

The Senate also voted 29-18 for an amendment that would require that property taxes continue being paid by the Bluffs Run greyhound track in Council Bluffs. An Iowa court ruling made Bluffs Run the only Iowa pari-mutuel track subject to property taxation. The state's other three tracks are linked to taxexempt ownership.

Bluffs Run currently is expected to be subject to up to $277,000 a year in local property taxes.

UI researchers win NIH grant

The Daily Iowan

Pediatrics researchers at the UI College of Medicine have recently received a $1.1 million grant from the National Institutes of Health to further investigate cytomegalovirus infections.

Dr. Jody Murph, assistant professor of pediatrics, will study the occupational risk of CMV infection in daycare workers. Murph will examine whether congenital CMV infection is more common among the children of mothers who have personal or occupational exposure to children in a group-care setting.

Murph will work with Dr. James Bale, associate professor of pediatrics, and Robert Woolson, professor of biostatistics in the UI preventive medicine and environmental health department.

CMV belongs to a group of viruses that cause herpes, chicken pox and infectious mononucleosis. It is normally harmless in humans who develop an immunity to it, but it can damage the brain, eyes, ears, liver, lungs and kidneys of an unborn fetus. Most people acquire the virus as children.

Previous UI research has shown that young children in group daycare settings frequntly have active CMV infections, and excrete the virus in saliva or urine for long periods of time.

Cronin leaves superintendent post for Wisconsin offer By Sara Langenberg

The Daily Iowan

June 30 will be David Cronin's last day as superintendent of the Iowa City Community School District. Cronin decided to leave the district Friday.

Cronin said he has mixed emotions about leaving the district after 15 years — 11 of which he spent as superintendent.

'My family has grown here, and I think (Iowa City) is a nice community to live in," he said.

"Obviously, I will miss the relationships I've established with people in the district. In many instances, I brought people into the district and worked with them for more than a decade. That's going to be tough," he said.

But he also cited many reasons for his excitement about joining the affluent Elmbrook School District near Milwaukee.

Last year Elmbrook was voted the "best suburban school district in Wisconsin."

There is a strong commitment on the part of the citizens of that district toward their schools, and they have more control over the money they spend on schools," Cronin said.

"It's a wonderful district with some exciting programs and impressive people," Cronin said. "Professionally, this is a wonderful opportunity. It would have been hard to turn down and is almost too good to be true."

Cronin also said he would have a considerably higher" salary in Elmbrook than in Iowa City. He is presently earning $64,900 per

The Elmbrook School District has between 6,100 and 6,200 students in a community of about 37,000, he

"The population of (the Iowa City) school district - the students and the people - is slightly larger, but we have smaller units here," Cronin said. Elmbrook has two high schools, one middle school and six elementary schools. Iowa City has two high schools, two middle or juniorhigh schools and over 10 elementary schools.

"When we heard Dave was looking around, we were pulling for him," Orville Townsend, vice president of the Iowa City Community School Board, said Monday.

Townsend said the board was not surprised at Cronin's decision to leave the district.

"I think Dave felt it was time for a change. He has done quite a bit for the district." Townsend said.

"But he's been here, what, 11 or 12 years now? Eleven years is a long time - you can only do so much before things become repetitious," Townsend felt Cronin's departure would also allow the district to pursue new directions.

"I think the change will be positive for Dave and the district," he said. He did not feel the board experienced a lot of animosity toward Cronin.

"Basically, when you have a per-on with administrative responsibilities, they are going to try to carry them out as quickly and efficiently as possible. As a school board, we have to look at the whole picture because we have total responsibility," Townsend said.

"There were times when the board felt one thing was the best thing for the district, and Dave disagreed. But in a situation like that, the majority vote will prevail," Townsend said.

Although Townsend would not speak on behalf of the whole board, he said he knew what he would be looking for when selectic Iowa City's new superinter Cant of schools:

"One thing I will be looking for is someone knowledgeable about the curriculum, someone with good people skills and who is a good communicator," he said.

Townsend said it is important for staff in the district to have input into decisions that affect them. A person who has been administrating in the district for a long period of time tends to forget that. He or she makes decisions at the top without a lot of input from others,

"It is my personal feeling that it is best for the students when we have a staff that feels like they are being listened to. We will definitely take a good look and make sure we've got the right person before rushing into a decision (about the new superintendent)," Townsend said.

It appears that relief is on its way, because when it rains, it pours. Thanks to the weekend's downpour, almost everyone I know was singing in the rain.

This is just as true of the financial markets lately as it is of the weather. In the past couple of weeks there has been a downpour of economic data released that have bolstered both stock and bond prices. The majority opinion feels the late formund of statistical economic measures has provided some relief in inflationary perceptions.

The Producer Price Index and the Consumer Price Index reports are the major reason for the optimism. Both of these numbers come in at .04 percent and .05 percent, respectively, for March, which was below expectations. Comparing these to the January figures of 1 percent and .06 percent, respectively, there appears to be confirmation of a slowing economy.

If this isn't enough evidence of a slowing economy and easing inflation fears, throw in the support of capacity utilization, industrial production and employment numbers it's easier to be a believer.

We have seen both the major stock indexes and the bond market rally very nicely in recent weeks. For example, the Dow Jones Industrial average gained nearly 4.5 percent allowing interest rates to fall, in the last two weeks, reaching its highest levels since the 1987 crash. The last hour of Friday's trading showed real strength to the upside and this move can easily spill over into this week, as many traders still feel U.S. stocks are undervalued, especially compared to foreign markets. However, the recent strong bond rally had a buy them for the attractive yields because of the increase in West German interest rates.

selection. It would be nice to see a confirmation of this recent rally in the broader secondary indexes before we get too comfortable.

If interest rates continue declining, this will be a very strong bullish signal. Industries that have done well the last quarter and during the last month (and that should continue to do well even if the economy eventually turns to a recession), are food producers and distillers/brewers.

For bondholders, these latest economic reports can be music to the ears. As the economy shows signs of slowing, this should aid in which increases bond prices. If an investor hasn't already purchased bonds, should one buy bonds now? Short-term interest rates may have peaked or be near doing so, which means it is still not a bad time to purchase bonds.

Try to make purchases on technical or short-term corrections, but slight distraction on Friday and long-term price appreciation potential.

Time dwindles for funding issue

DES MOINES (AP) - Efforts to reform financing of political campaigns have fallen victim to the drive to end this year's legislative session even though "the mood isn't there yet" to adjourn, House Speaker Don Avenson said on Monday.

Avenson said Gov. Terry Branstad's veto of a campaign finance measure has left lawmakers "in a box" seeking an alternative that would be accept-

With the Legislature struggling to wrap up this year's session in the next two weeks, Avenson said, there isn't time for lengthy partisan debate over new campaign finance laws.

"Because of that box, we will not end up having one to the governor before the session is over," Avenson said during his regular meeting with reporters.

"There will be some things like that that might not get through this year," said Avenson. "Campaign finance is the furthest away. It has been a difficult House committee, but there have been major questions raised about it. It has met with little enthusiasm among Democrats in the majority in the Legislative leaders met Monday to map strategy for the next two weeks, which they hope will be the session's final ones.

Bills to allow fundamentalist Christians to teach their children at home probably will join the measures falling through the cracks, said Avenson.

"That's not one of our priorities," he said. The planning is important because legislativeexpense payments end on Friday and there's always a rush to adjourn after the money runs out.

Before closing the session, legislators must approve a $2.8 billion state budget and major revisions of the way Iowa's schools and highways are financed.

None of those, considered the most significant issues lawmakers will accomplish, have won final approval.

a trip to five southeast Asian nations. He was scheduled to leave Saturday for the nine-day tour.

Masayoshi Ito, chairman of the party executive council and an eight-time member of the lower house, has been cited as a possible successor to Takeshita. However, political analysts say poor health may keep Ito, 75, from accepting the post. Ito is diabetic.

The newspaper Yomiuri Shimbun said Takeshita asked Ito about succeeding him, but Ito turned him down for health reasons.

Kyodo News Service said Ito denied the report, and Takeshita told Japanese reporters it was "totally unfounded."

But Kyodo quoted a senior mem-ber of Takeshita's faction within the governing Liberal Democratic Party as confirming the prime minister's approach to Ito.

At least 17 politicians or their aides, including those of Takeshita, reportedly bought discount shares of stock in a subsidiary of Recruit Co., an information-publishing conglomerate, in 1986. The transactions generated hefty profits when the share prices soared after the stocks were made available for over-the-counter trading.

Takeshita has denied wrongdoing but has acknowledged receiving more than $1 million in what he called legal political donations from Recruit.

News reports over the weekend said he also borrowed $381,700 from Recruit in 1987, returning the funds a few months later.

Recruit paid millions of dollars to influential politicians or their aides as contributions, raising suspicions that it was seeking favors in return.

In all, more than a dozen people have been arrested on bribery and other charges, and three Takeshita-appointed Cabinet members have resigned in connection with the scandal.

A recent poll by Kyodo put Takeshita's support at only 3.9 percent, the lowest ever recorded by Kyodo for a prime minister.

At a press briefing following the reception, Moosally praised the hundreds of men who fought the fire for "God gave birth to 500 heroes," the captain said.

"Fire on a ship is the most terrifying fear ... you have nowhere to run. "Our extensive training paid off," he said. "Besides the firefighting crews, we had cooks, engineers, deck seamen, Marines all fighting to save the ship." Moosally said the blast occurred just as he was turning to Vice Adm. Jerome Johnson, commander of the 2nd Fleet, to tell him to watch the No. 2 turret because it contained his best crew. "This was my best turret," Moosally said. He said the turret's senior chief, Chief Gunner's Mate Reginald Owen Ziegler of Port Gibson, N.Y., "was the most meticulous of men. He was my number one chief of the 84 chiefs aboard. "Nobody in that turret did anything unless they were qualified," Moosally said. All but 11 men in the huge gun turret died almost instantly last Wednesday when the explosion ripped through it. At the time, the Iowa was conducting open seas gun exercises off Puerto Rico.

The Navy said the investigation into the blast is continuing. Navy officials have refused to speculate on the cause of the explosion.

Cmdr. John Morse, the Iowa's weapons officer, said the guns were thoroughly inspected the morning of the accident, and Moosally said he had no hesitation about the guns' safety.

"I'll be in the turret for the first shot to go off," the captain said.

One of the survivors, Gunner's Mate 3rd Class Kendall Truitt, 21, of Tampa, Fla., said that at first the men down in the powder magazine in the lowest level of the turret didn't know anything was wrong. "We were waiting for the gun to fire, and we weren't sure," he said. When the men discovered that no one was answering the interior turret communications link, Truitt ordered the powder returned to the magazine and the compartment evacuated.

The sailors found smoke everywhere as they climbed through hatches and up ladders outside the turret toward the sea deck, Truitt recalled.

"My first thought was that I'd better get to a lifeboat station, because if the fire got to the magazine things would be bad," he said.

Members of UI College of Education student and faculty advisory committees, division heads and UI administrators including David Vernon, acting vice president for Academic Affairs, and Kenneth Moll, associate vice president for Academic Affairs, were questioned by the educational auditors.

Moll said the outcome of the audit is uncertain at this time, but the information gathered by the interviewers may further the state Board of Regents' desire to assess educational programs at the three public universities.

"There's no doubt there is duplication. We have education, and they have education. The question is whether that is an unnecessarily duplicative thing," Moll said.

Bush decries German proposal

WASHINGTON (AP) - Two mior West German officials urged the United States on Monday to negotiate reductions in battlefield nuclear weapons with the Soviet Union, but the Bush administration said such talks would be "a mistake" and instead stressed the need for NATO unity.

The quickly arranged meeting was eld at the State Department at the behest of West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl, whose political future could hinge on the outcome of the dispute. It also is causing strains in the Western

For nearly four hours, West Ger-an For an Minister Hansietrich sacher and Defense Minister Gerhard Stoltenberg bated the merits of keeping and proving U.S.-built Lance missiles in their country with Secretary of State James Baker, Secretary of Defense Dick Cheney and Brent Scowcroft, the national secuty assistant to President George

As they left the State Department, Genscher and Stoltenberg gave no indication if they made any head-way. "Good afternoon," Stoltenberg said to waiting reporters, declining to stop. He and Genscher then climbed into their black limousine. They were scheduled to return quickly to Bonn.

Baker, meanwhile, issued a brief statement that described the meeting as "useful and friendly." He said the two sides explained their positions.

He did not suggest the gulf between the two had narrowed. "We will continue our discussions in an effort to reach an agreement

"And he has said that we think it would be a mistake to engage in arms-control negotiations on SNF (Short-range Nuclear Forces)."

Tutweiler said Baker's message to the West German visitors was that "we should make an effort to work this out through negotiations with the Federal Republic and our allies

Activists call for animal rights

WASHINGTON (AP) - Animal rights activists on londay began a week of demonstrations nationwide gainst biomedical exeriments on laboratory anials. Medical and scientific researchers defended heir work as life-saving.

The last week in April traditionally has been a week activism by groups that oppose use of animals in search experiments. "Civil disobedience is defiitely on the ticket across the country" this week, aid Ingrid Newkirk, national director of People for e Ethical Treatment of Animals.

The groups, who have billed this as "World aboratory Animal Liberation Week," are calling on e federal government and universities to stop mal experiments and use research money instead n other medical needs, including developing prevenive medicine strategies.

"At a time when there are so many human needs, to e playing around with animals in the basements of iniversities seems not only cruel to the animals, but wasteful of dollars," Newkirk said.

She estimated the federal government spends as much as $6 billion a year on research using animals and said the results of this research could be derived ways that don't harm or kill animals.

In defense of animal research, advocates say that ost experiments are not painful and that about 90 percent of the animals used in such research are rodents bred specifically for lab experimentation.

Monday's protests focused on the National Institutes of Health in the Washington suburb of Bethesda, Md. Protesters said NIH is the world's largest source of financing for animal experimentation.

Police arrested 50 or so of the 200 demonstrators after they blocked traffic for about 30 minutes.

Although their ultimate goal is to stop all research experimentation on animals, animal rights activists say that for the immediate future they are seeking an end to the most blatant cruelties, such as amputation of an animal's toe for the purpose of

To defend their research, medical and scientific experimenters are using this week as an opportunity to speak out in support of the use of animals in medical research, pointing to the medical breakthroughs such research has brought - from coronary bypass surgery and cataract removal to vaccines and antibiotics.

"There's no such thing as anybody not having received some benefit from animal research," said Frankie Trull, president of the Foundation for Biomedical Research, a nonprofit group that supports animal research.

Paranoid ravings

Leading black activists converged in New Orleans last weekend for an African American Summit to forge a progressive agenda for the 1990s, but the last and loudest message heard from the summit tainted the positive results.

Richard Hatcher, the summit chairman who organized a similar event in 1972, proclaimed that many elements of the original agenda have become a reality in the last decade. Then, until Black Muslim minister Louis Farrakhan took the stage Sunday morning, the summit focused on realistic economic goals and plans for prudent political mobilization.

But Farrakhan — whose appearance at the conference was boycotted by conscientious moderate and conservative black leaders - delivered a typically incendiary performance, including rantings about a conscious federal conspiracy to undermine the black community, reparations for ancestors of slaves and the option for convicted black criminals to return to Africa rather than serve prison terms. Farrakhan also blasted his detractors for perpetuating a slave mentality of subservience to white politcal power.

Farrakhan's detractors are not perpetuating a slave mentality - they simply realize that an alliance with Farrakhan gives credence to his militant, racist ideology and will undermine the black community's political clout in the future. Paranoid ravings may energize some segments of the black community, but they alienate masses of American society that would otherwise be receptive to further political and economic progress by blacks.

By embracing Farrakhan, the leaders of the New Orleans summit shackled themselves to Farrakhan's offensive ideology and undermined their agenda's chances for progress.

Desire for vengeance

The United States and Iran have little in common. The two nations' cultures, religious histories and political philosophies are radically different. Yet one factor ties the two together: both embrace the death penalty.

Iranian leaders describe America as "the great satan." U.S. officials find the Iranian government to be dominated by dangerous religious fundamentalists. But Amnesty International pointed out this week that 100 nations, including the United States and Iran, practice the death penalty. Despite the considerable political, social and economic differences from nation to nation, all are unified by one human emotion:

The death penalty is employed for criminal and political reasons around the world. It is used as a deterrent, albeit an inneffective one, and as a means of silencing dissent. But most of all it is used for revenge.

Most Americans believe murderers should be murdered by the state. Why? For its deterrent value? It certainly deters that individual from killing again, but there is no evidence death sentences deter others from killing.

How about "an eye for an eye," the Biblical justification? But why is death the only penalty reflecting this approach? Those guilty of assault aren't assaulted by state officials. The man in California who severed the arms off a young girl was not sentenced to amputation.

The real justification for the death penalty is revenge. Human beings have some weird inherent desire to even the score. The Ayatollah has it. George Bush has it. We all have it. The question is, will we ever overcome it?

Look for alternatives

The recent oil spill caused by the Exxon Valdez has focused more attention on the debate over the future of Alaska's oil reserves. The Alaskan North Slope provides one-fourth of the nation's oil, with a value of billions of dollars per year.

Oil companies are now claiming that more exploration is needed in order to maintain production. Also, oil companies are seeking permission to begin drilling in the Arctic National Wildlife Refuge. Environmentalists and oil companies disagree over whether this tremendous wealth can be exploited without irreversibe harm or destruction to Alaska's fragile environ-

Oil companies point with pride to the beginnings of industrialization of the North Slope as an example of oil production co-existing peacefully with nature. Environmentalists cite instances of pits filled with hazardous wastes which have escaped into the ecosystem.

A large problem is that not enough is known about the natural state of the region to assess the environmental impact of the drilling which has already taken place and to predict the effect of more exploration and drilling.

Rather than focusing only on environmental questions, the nation's long-term energy goals should also be taken into account. Alaskan oil has been there for millions of years; it will take only a few years to deplete this supply. For too long it has been taken for granted that the supply of fossil fuels is limitless. Facing the reality of the depletion of the earth's fossil fuels would force us to look for alternative sources of

Rather than catering to the desires of huge oil companies to make huge profits, our attention should center on the proper care of our planet and preparing to meet our energy needs when we run out of fossil fuels to burn.

A question of rights — or one of choice

ro-choice advocates argue that abortion is only a question of a woman's right to control her own body. They argue that this is a personal, moral decision and thus cannot be subjected to any further analysis. Unfortunately, their argument is betrayed by the very premise that it is founded upon.

Namely, why do we have "rights"? When we say we have "rights" what do we mean? One can say that one is physically capable of doing something, but that in no sense provides any philosophical basis for "rights." What we do have is the ability to make decisions.

Does this ability to make decisions mean that we have the "right" to do so? No. Consider this: Just as a woman is able to make a decision to have an abortion, to not carry a child to term, so can a person decide to kill someone. The ability to make those decisions does not make those actions "rights." Pro-chioce advocates argue that pro-lifers cannot force their moral decisions on others, yet even by using the argument that a woman has any "rights" at all, they are imposing their own moral beliefs on others. One can just as easily argue that a person only has as many "rights" as he or she is capable of preserving. There are, in fact, a number of cultures which believe that only those capable of preventing themselves from being killed are worthy of existence. In other words the belief that any of us possess the "right" to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness is a moral belief. Is that any more valid than what other societies

The result of the denial of the Western concept "rights" would, of course, result in the disintegration of our social system as we know it. To say that this would be "bad" is to impose a value judgent. In fact, if I understand the pro-choice argument correctly, imposing value judgments is forbidden, thus one cannot say that things such as slavery, incest, apartheid, rape or human sacrifice are "bad" or "wrong" since that would be imposing a moral judgment. On the other hand, if we decide that, yes, well, perhaps all moral decisions are not prohibited, we run into another problem. If we decide that Randall Brinkhuis people not only have the ability to make certain decisions, but, in fact, do actually have the right to do so, then the first, and most basic, qualifier is that a person must first exist before they are able to make any sort of decisions at all. This is rather simple and obvious, yet pro-choice advocates ignore this and deny the most basic right, the right to live, to the unborn.

The woman, in the overwhelming majority of circumstances, made the choice to have sex. What pro-choice advocates are arguing is that a woman's "right" to choose to have sex outweighs the right of the child conceived during intercourse to exist. That child has had no choice but to come into being (to deny this is to ignore the scientific fact that, like it or not, the human body is designed to reproduce); the woman had a choice. The basic argument then is that people have the "right" to not accept responsibility where creating human life is concerned. If the value of human life is to be determined subjectively (e.g., by whether or not the child is "wanted"), then none of us is ultimately safe because someone else may decide that we are not "wanted" or "useful." (The frustrating thing about all this is that it is the same argument conservatives have been using with respect to private property and the "right" to destroy other people's lives through manipulation of the economy and irresponsible stewardship of the environment.) If abortion is allowed because to outlaw it is to impose someone else's moral belief, then what is the point in having laws since all laws are an imposition of someone else's moral values?

By saying that the unborn child is actually not a child one can then justify pleasant things like surrogate motherhood (selling a child for profit) or selling fetal body parts for experiments. If the child is "normal," a sale. If not completely normal, experimental fetal tissue. If unfit for experimental use, then it can be used as protein for cattle feed or dog food.

(What about those cases where the woman has no choice because of rape, incest, etc.)? This is, indeed, a dilemma: the right of a woman who had no say in the matter not to have to carry a child for nine months versus the right of the child to be born. Allowing abortions in such cases, however, is a far cry from today's "abortion on demand."

Finally, something that has mystified me for some time now. While abortion does eliminate unwanted pregnancies, what does it do about the conditions that led to those pregnancies? Does it make men treat women any less as sex objects? Does it teach husbands and boyfriends to be more caring and sensitive? Does it make men more responsible? Or does it encourage women to allow themselves to be used? Does it allow men to think they can get away with being even more exploitative since "she can always get an abortion if she has to"? Does it increase male irresponsibility even more since "it's her body, it's her pregnancy, it's her problem"? Is this why there are a greater percentage of households headed by single women today than there used to be? Are men learning this lesson?

Does abortion eliminate the social inequities that lead to poverty? Or does it just make us feel smug and self-righteous knowing that no more poor babies are being born to poor women in the ghetto or overseas (especially non-Caucasian women)? Does it make life better for them, or does it mean we just have to share our resources with less people?

Does abortion discourage the permissiveness and immorality in our society that lead not only to abortion but also to such things as date rape and other forms of violence against women? (How can abortion discourage violence when it is a form of violence itself?) Or does it encourage abdicating responsibility for actions and justifying grabbing whatever pleasure is desired (even at another's expense)?

Do we want a society with rights and responsible bilites, or do we want a society where anyone's life is of no particular value. That is the choice abortion gives us. Randall Brinkhuis, a library assistant in the U libraries, wrote this guest opinion for

New Wave confused To the Editor:

I would like to clear up some misconceptions about the U.S. Armed Forces and the people who Relating to New Wave's protest on Thursday, April 20, The Daily Iowan quoted New Wave member Bruce Nestor saying, "... the campus ROTC is really the guilty party for indirectly sanctioning the military actions in El Salvador." This all sounds "noble" and "justified," but he is thoroughly confused about the military and its role in world affairs. Let me help him and his friends straighten a few things out by giving them a short civics lesson.

I and everyone else who is in ROTC or serves in the Armed Forces have volunteered to do so. We, as patriotic Americans, have chosen to serve our country and the principles for which it stands. I have sworn to defend, giving my life if necessary, the Constitution of the United States. It is like me and those that have served before me that give New Wave and everyone else in America the right to do what they do, because we have kept this country free.

The U.S. military is an apolitical organization that does not dictate or "sanction" foreign policy, directly or indirectly; it is the publicly elected officials' job to do that. U.S. servicemen and women execute, with the highest professional, moral and ethical standards, the orders given to them by the president and other politicians, regardless of their political affiliations, to protect America's interest as they see best. Nobody prays for peace more than the men and women who might be asked to make the ultimate sacrifice if called upon to do their job. At the same time, we realize that the strength of the U.S. military and her allies is one of the key deterrents to war. So, if you have any gripes about American involvement anywhere in the world, do not come and protest the proud Americans who wear a uniform, because your cries fall on deaf ears. If you were truly concerned about the problems that you say you are, why not take your protest to the root of the problem and do something about it that will make a

Praise for water plant

To the Editor:

A number of weeks ago the Iowa City Water Plant found itself in the midst of public scrutiny because the water's taste, the urbidity

(clarity), smell and hardness grew even more undesirable. Now that order has been restored how easily it is forgotten that there ever was a problem. Were there follow up articles in the local newspapers, radio stations, or on television commending the water plant for doing everything within their power to return things back to normal? Not as far as we know.

Although a return to normality may not be sufficient enough to gain public approval, one must realize that the water you are receiving is the best water the Iowa City Water Plant can possibly provide with the facilities and resources they have. For most people, this still isn't good enough.

If you wish to improve the quality of water, we do not recommend calling the water plant and telling them to make it better. We encourage all those who are dissatisfied to contact Iowa City Council members and voice an opinion, as well as lobbying for more money for more money for the plant so quality can be improved.

Just remember if there is something you want changed it can be done if there are those willing to help. For instance, the Iowa City, Water Plant tried their hardest to make the water better, and they did. We would like to commend the engineers, managers and employ-ees of the plant. We know that you are doing the best job you possibly can, with the resources and facili ties you have.

Opposition unveils election platform

WARSAW, Poland - The Solidarity-led national opposition announced an election platform on Monday urging Poles to vote in June and "change this system" toward democracy.

But the Citizens Committee also stressed it has no illusions that democracy has already been achieved, and it does not recognize the elections as being fully free.

The platform was adopted Sunday at a Citizens Committee meeting and was released Monday.

An agreement reached April 5 between Communist authorities and the opposition, led by Solidarity chairman Lech Walesa, established the framework for elections for the national parliament, including a new 100-member Senate.

The opposition is allowed to run candidates for all of the Senate seats and for 161 seats in the 460-member Sejm, the existing

On Sunday the committee approved 252 candidates and announced plans to name the nine other candidates Wednesday for the 261 total.

Countries urged to abolish death penalty

LONDON - Amnesty International appealed Tuesday to 100 countries, including the United States and Iran, to abolish the death penalty, calling it an arbitrary "judicial lottery" that does

The human rights group, in a study of capital punishment worldwide, says it is slanted against the poor, ethnic minorities and political opponents.

Amnesty International recorded 15,320 executions in 90 countries in the past decade but said they often are done in secret. It said other estimates put the number as high as 40,000.

Victims ranged in age from 14 to 76, with the United States among six countries that have executed juveniles under age 18,

The death penalty is used in some countries not just to punish murder, but also adultery, prostitution, showing pornographic films, bribery, corruption, embezzlement, kidnapping, rape, robbery and drug-trafficking, it said. Victims include non-violent political prisoners and the mentally ill.

Rockets explode as tanker unloads oil

BEIRUT, Lebanon - Moslem forces fired rockets Monday that exploded around a French tanker as it delivered desperately needed fuel to battle-weary Beirut, which has been without electricity for nine days.

Police said four rockets crashed into the Mediterranean Sea about 700 yards from the French navy tanker, the Penhors, as it unloaded 4,000 tons of fuel in the Christian city of Zouk north of

There were no casualities from the rockets fired from Syriancontrolled west Beirut.

The salvo was fired despite what Christian officers called "solid guarantees" given to French Ambassador Paul Blanc by Christian and Syrian commanders that there would be no shooting while the tanker was unloading.

By police count, at least 270 people have been killed and nearly 1,000 wounded in the clashes that began March 8.

Britain calls S. African envoy on carpet

LONDON - The Foreign Office complained to South Africa on Monday over allegations that a South African diplomat was involved in trying to trade British missile secrets for weapons for Northern Ireland Protestant extremists. "We take an extremely serious view of the facts so far disclosed," Foreign Secretary Sir Geoffrey Howe told the House of Commons, discussing Friday's arrest by French police of three Northern Ireland Protestant extremists.

The three were caught in a Paris hotel room with an American businessman and a Paris-based South African diplomat while purportedly delivering parts of a British Blowpipe missile to the

The shoulder-fired Blowpipe, sometimes compared to the U.S.-made Stinger, weighs about 45 pounds and fires 76mm guided surface-to-air missiles.

Press Association, the British domestic news agency, quoted government sources as saying concern existed over the possibility that South Africa supplied arms to the extremists in return for information about the missile, which is manufactured in Belfast.

Soviet Georgians request antidote for gas weapons

TBILISI, U.S.S.R. (AP) - Georgians hospitalized with damage to their central nervous systems asked the government Monday for an antidote to whatever chemical soldiers used when dispersing a pro-independence demonstration.

Foreign Ministry spokesmen in Moscow have denied accusations by Georgian activists that troopers used chemical weapons in the confrontation April 9, but the Georgian Communist Party chief confirmed Monday some of the 20 deaths were caused by gas.

The leader, Givi Gumbaridze, spoke to some of the first foreign correspondents allowed into Georgia since the demonstration in Tbilisi, capital of the southern republic.

Several dozen of the approximately 120 people still hospitalized signed a letter containing the appeal to President Mikhail Gorbachev for Ordzhonikidze, a poet and museum director, said half of those still hospitalized were children from a contaminated school next to the demonstration site.

Dr. Vakhtang Bochurishvili, who teaches at Tbilisi Medical School, said Monday, "It is a crime that the military still will not tell us what substances were used."

He did not say when a replacement would be named for Rifai, a 52-year-old boyhood friend of the king who was educated in the United States and had been prime minister since 1985.

Hussein assigned secretaries-general of government ministries, second in rank to appointed ministers, to run their departments until a new government is formed.

Four days of riots, in which at least nine people were killed, began April 18 in the southern city of Maan and spread to dozens of cities and towns. Many rioters called for Rifai's ouster but also shouted support for the king. Officials said the toll rose to nine, including the death Monday evening of an air force major shot during riots in the town of Mazar. Many Jordanians blame the prime minister for declining living standards. Annual per capita income has fallen from $2,000 in the mid-1980s to about $1,200.

Last year, the government imposed import controls and austerity measures to meet payments on a foreign debt of $6 billion.

Riots were precipitated by price increases of 10 percent to 50 percent on gasoline, cigarettes and other goods decreed as part of a debtrescheduling plan worked out with the International Monetary Fund.

NEW YORK (AP) — Olympic gold medalist Carl Lewis says black athletes are generally "made better" than white athletes.

But sociologist Harry Edwards strongly disagrees, saying there are "no differences that make any difference" between black and white athletes.

Edwards, who is black, told NBC that blacks excel in sports because their opportunities are limited in other areas.

"We have racism and discrimination that curtails black access to alternative high prestige occupa-tions," Edwards said. "So we're channeled in disproportionately high numbers toward athletic participation."

However, the special cites several studies that indicate blacks have a

Edwards charged with battery

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (AP) -Former Indiana basketball star Jay Edwards was charged with two preliminary counts of battery Monday following an Indianapolis woman's accusations that he slapped and hit her at a party.

According to a Bloomington police report, Beth Ann Irish, 20, claimed Edwards had slapped her twice and punched her in the forehead at a party Saturday night at Jackson Heights apart-

Contacted at the home of his mother, Rosemary Edwards, in Marion, Ind., Edwards said he did not know the woman.

"She said something to me, I said something back," Edwards said. "I don't know if she was drunk or something, but she rushed me. I just slapped her once and that was it. They pulled her off of me, and that was it. The next thing you know, I come home and it's all over."

Edwards' mother said she and her son planned to go to Bloomington later Monday to "clear this up."

The Monroe County prosecutor's office was trying to contact Edwards, who has had no permanent address since he withdrew from Indiana University two weeks ago.

"My office has decided as a matter of courtesy to try to contact him to allow him to turn himself in," Monroe County Prosecutor Robert T. Miller said Monday. "We have not met with much success so far today.

"He probably has no knowledge of this action being taken yet,"

The Big Ten Player of the Year announced March 29 that he would forego his remaining two years of college eligibility to become eligible for the NBA draft. He withdrew from school two weeks ago after receiving threats that he would be set up for a drug bust, his mother has

Irish said the former Indiana University guard gave her two compliments when he allowed her and two of her friends into the party, according to police

Irish said she didn't respond to the compliments, and Edwards called her a "slut." She demanded an apology and he slapped her on the left cheek. She again demanded an apology and he slapped her on the right cheek, the report said.

Friends of Edwards' separated the two and Irish told Edwards he shouldn't have quit school and that he wouldn't be wanted in the NBA, she told police.

Edwards reached over his friends and punched Irish in the forehead, she said.

Dr. Owen Saughter, who treated Irish at the Bloomington Hospital emergency room, stated in a report that she had a bruise on her forehead and tenderness of facial bones.

Edwards faces two misdemeanor counts, one Class A count for the slap and one Class B for the punch, officials said.

Edwards averaged 20 points for Indiana last season and helped lead them to the Big Ten championship.

He was named Indiana's co-Mr. Basketball in 1987 with teammate Lyndon Jones after leading Marion High School to three state championships.

Hawks will need sweep to hold on to Big Ten lead

By Erica Weiland The Daily Iowan

Last Tuesday, the Iowa softball team swept a doubleheader from Northwestern in Evanston, Ill.

Today the Wildcats will have a chance to redeem themselves as they travel to Iowa City for a doubleheader beginning at 3 p.m. at the Hawkeye Softball Complex.

"We have to come back and match our performance," Iowa Coach Gayle Blevins said. "We actually have to do better because I'm sure Northwestern will come out and be more determined to even the series with us."

In last Tuesday's doubleheader, Blevins' squad defeated Northwestern 4-1 and 1-0, and according to Iowa sophomore Diana Repp, that will be a help to the Hawkeyes.

"After playing them already and with the confidence of the team, if our confidence is up, I know we will sweep them," Repp said.

The Hawkeyes are currently in first place in the Big Ten with a 10-4 league record and are ranked seventh nationally with an overall record of 33-14.

The Wildcats' stand at 5-5 in the conference and 14-19 overall.

In order for Iowa to maintain its No. 1 position in the Big Ten, Blevins said, it has to sweep Northwestern again today.

"We definitely need to take both games," Blevins said. "If you look at the standings, it's a real tight race, and it's going to get tighter and tighter."

While the Wildcats swept Ohio State 3-2, 1-0, 6-1 and 4-2 last weekend, the Hawkeyes split with Indiana, currently in second place. Iowa took the first and third games, 3-2 and 2-0, but dropped the other two, 2-1 and 3-0.

"(Last weekend's series) will help," Repp said, "because after a weekend like that, you want to win the next games even more."

Blevins said her squad needs to work on attacking the ball offensively and tightening up its defense to stop Northwestern's hitters, led by senior Ndidi Opia, her sister Chinazo and sophomore Kelli Horton. Ndidi Opia is Northwestern's alltime hit leader with 167 total hits and, along with Horton, leads the team in hits with 31. She is also hitting for a .344 average, while Chinazo, a junior this year, is batting .265.

Horton improved her average to .356 against Ohio State last weekend and has accumulated 41 total bases and 31 hits.

"We need to do a better job on the mound and stabilize our defense,' Blevins said. "They've got some big hitters, like the Opia sisters. They are Northwestern's big offensive weapons. We have to keep them from being in a position to hurt us."

Bookie says Rose bet a bundle

NEW YORK (AP) - An Ohio bookmaker told prosecutors that he took as much as $1 million in bets from Pete Rose, according to a federal transcript obtained Monday by The Associated Press, and letter from A. Bartlett Giamatti states the commissioner believes the bookmaker's testimony was truthful.

During a pre-sentencing conference at Cincinnati last Friday in the case of the bookmaker, Ronald Peters, assistant U.S. attorney Robert C. Brichler said: "Mr. Peters has indicated to us that he took bets over a period of two years from Mr. Rose that could very well amount to in excess of a million dollars."

Giamatti's letter, which was released Monday by the commissioner's office, said Peters "provided critical sworn testimony about Mr. Rose and his associates.'

"Mr. Peters has provided probative documentary evidence to support his testimony and the testimony of others," Giamatti wrote in an April 18 letter to U.S. District Judge Carl B. Rubin, who will sentence Peters on felonies of cocaine trafficking and tax evasion. Peters could receive up to 23 years in prison and $1.25

"Based upon other information in our possession, I am satisfied Mr. Peters has been candid, forthright and truthful with my special counsel," Giamatti wrote.

Nothing in the 13-page transcript indicates that Rose bet on baseball games.

Saturday's Drake Relays sold out

DES MOINES (AP) — The Saturday session of the Drake Relays is a sellout for the 24th straight year, Drake officials announced

All 18,000 tickets have been sold for the events at Drake Stadium on Saturday, and about 3,000 remain for Friday's session.

The Friday program has 28 final events, including the 3,200-meter relay, in which a meet record is possible. Illinois, Clemson and defending champion Arizona all have a chance of breaking the Drake record of 7:14.89 by Nebraska in 1985.

Clark garners NL honor

NEW YORK (AP) - Will Clark, who hit two home runs and batted .500 for San Francisco last week, was named National League Player of the Week on Monday.

The first baseman drove in eight runs, scored seven runs, stole a base and walked seven times during the week.

Other nominees for the award were Tom Herr of Philadelphia, Eddie Murray of Los Angeles, Dale Murphy of Atlanta, Scott Terry of St. Louis and Sid Fernandez of New York.

AL tabs Jackson Player of the Week

NEW YORK (AP) - Kansas City outfielder Bo Jackson, who hit three home runs and stole five bases last week, was named American League Player of the Week on Monday.

Jackson also drove in seven runs, scored six runs and batted .348

Also nominated for the award were Nolan Ryan of Texas, Dennis Eckersley and Terry Steinbach of Oakland, Cal Ripken Jr. of Baltimore, Nick Esasky of Boston, Eric King of Chicago, and Steve Sax and Andy Hawkins of New York.

Tyson earns honorary degree

NEW YORK (AP) - Heavyweight champion Mike Tyson will receive an honorary doctorate in humane letters Tuesday from Central State University in Wilberforce, Ohio.

Central State president Arthur Thomas said the school is honoring Tyson for his influence on young people.

The program, hosted by Tom Brokaw, also includes interviews with Canadian researcher Claude Bouchard and Gideon Ariel, who founded the biomechanics division of the U.S. Olympic Committee.

Bouchard said his studies show that blacks have more "fast twitch" muscles, which are good for sprinting and jumping, while whites have a greater percentage of "slow twitch" muscles, which are better suited for endurance events.

Ariel, a former Israeli Olympic athlete, tested eight blacks and to have slender hips . . . and propegight whites on the University of California-Irvine basketball team and found the blacks were more efficient and explosive jumpers.

> "I know the American system is very sensitive to statements of black and white, but you cannot defy science," Ariel said. "You cannot say day is night and night is day. . . . I think it is to the advantage of the black athlete . . . that God was on their side."

However, Edwards says portraying blacks as natural athletes is dangerous because it reinforces the stereotype that blacks are "closer to beasts and animals ... than they are to the rest of humanity."

error. Brian Wujcik walked to put lead. runners on first and third. On a double steal, Wujcik was thrown out at second but Hatcher scored easily on the throw back to the plate.

"We've been doing the little things all year," Banks said. "We just have to maintain the effort."

The Badgers tied the game 2-2 in the fifth inning on a sacrifice fly by Scott Cepicky off Iowa starter Brian Kennedy.

Kennedy earned the completegame victory to improve his record to 3-1. The righthander struck out eight and walked four while scattering five hits.

With the game tied 2-2 in the bettom of the seventh inning, sophomore combination Tim Costo and Hatcher hit singles and Wujcik walked to fill the bases. Freshman Tom Anderson followed with a ground ball to Badger third baseman Eric Liebenstein. Liebenstein's throw to first pulled first baseman Jim Wilson off the bag and allowed Costo to score the winning run.

Wisconsin just ran out of pitchers in the second game, as the 21-3 final score would suggest. The Hawkeyes scored 13 runs in the first three innings for the 13-2

"We definitely had a problem on the mound," Wisconsin Coach Steve Land said. "Any time you have a long series like this, a pitching problem can come up."

Iowa pitcher Robert Driscol extended his unblemished record to 6-0. The senior struck out seven and allowed five hits.

"It was tough sitting for some of the longer innings," Driscol said. "As the game went on though, I had much more confidence.'

The Hawkeyes totaled 21 hits in the finale. The loss dropped Wisconsin's conference mark to 5-11.

The Iowa offense was led by the middle of the order. No. 3 hitter Keith Noreen had three singles. Cleanup hitter Costo tripled, homered and singled with four RBIs to extend his hitting streak to 15 games. Fifth-place hitter Hatcher also tripled, homered and singled to notch three RBIs.

On the strength of a five-game winning streak, the Hawkeyes are ranked No. 21 in the nation by Collegiate Baseball.

A busy week of conference baseball continues for Iowa with a doubleheader Wednesday at Minnesota, and a four-game weekend series on the road against Michigan State.

Long Beach State's Jeff Graham in

Scouts said they doubted that Peete's being black had anything to do with his low draft, and Peete's father was hoping it didn't.

"I have some questions. I have some real hard questions that I don't know if anyone can answer," the elder Peete said in Green Bay.

Was it racial bias?

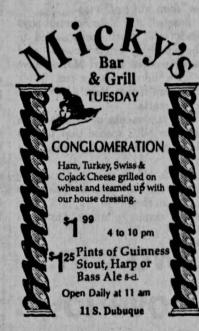

"I hope not, not in 1989," he said. "If there is, it's too bad. We're in real bad trouble.'

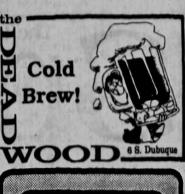

Peete holds or shares most Southern Cal passing records, including 54 touchdowns, 8,225 yards, 630 completions in 1,081 attempts for a .583 percentage, and he ran for 415 yards and 12 touchdowns.

Aikman, who signed with the Dallas Cowboys before the draft began for $11.2 million over five years, is considered to have a stronger arm than Peete, but in their head-to-head clashes the past two seasons, Peete came out on top, emerging from a week-long bout with the measles to beat UCLA in the showdown for the Rose Bowl last November.

Texas' Ryan Express still smoking at 42

(AP) Nolan Ryan is closer to his first Social Security check than he is to his rookie card. He's striking out the sons of batters he fanned years ago. Yet, he's come close to no-hitters in two of his four starts this season. Is there any way to explain him?

"Doesn't he know he's not supposed to throw the ball that hard at that age," said Bud Harrelson, a former teammate who retired at 36. "He's making the rest of us hitters, yet," he said. No one's ever bored when Ryan's on the mound. Even the opposition can't believe what he does.

"He has a God-given talent," Tor-onto's Tom Henke said after watching Ryan's performance, a 4-1 victory over the Blue Jays with 12 strikeouts. "I can't think of anyone who throws as hard now as put it off for the future," he said. Ogrean said some details of the plan are still secret, but he said the outline of the program calls for a 16-team field chosen by a selection committee using some of the standard s tion criteria used in choosing intenders for the NCAA basketball playoffs.

He said details have not been decided on who will join the selection committee, but said it might be patterned after the television committee, where there are representatives from each of the five conferences, and the two independent college groups. The five conference members include the Atlantic Coast Conference, the Southeast Conference, the South-west Conference, the Big Eight and the Western Athletic Conference. Independents include the northern colleges such as Notre Dame and Penn State, and the southern members such as Florida State, Louisville and Memphis State.

The Big Ten and Pacific-10 conferences, which are not CFA members, would be excluded.

Criteria for choosing the participants would include the won-loss record, strength of schedule and head-to-head competition. Ogrean said the change would mean more money for participating schools. Under the current bowl system, schools last year earned $33.5 million. Ogrean said earnings projections are secret, but estimates range from $50 million to $80 million. He said replacing the bowl system effort to keep the number of games played as low as possible. However, he said if the bowls object, there are other alternatives, including a revised playoff schedule. Ogrean said the proposed playoff schedule calls for 16 teams to be chosen by committee, including seven teams that would be automatic qualifiers, one from each CFA with playoffs would be ideal, in an constituent group. Nine teams would be chosen at-large. The first-round games would be held the first two weeks of December on campus. The quarterfinals would be held around New Year's Day, and the semifinals would be a doubleheader. The championship game would be played the week before the Super Bowl. Ogrean said the money would be divided among all 63 members of the CFA, with special weight given to the 16 teams taking part in the playoffs. Chuck Neinas, executive director of the CFA who presented the plan to bowl representatives last week in Atlanta, said a national playoff would have fans talking about college football through December

Balinese dance, music troupe brings exotic images to stage ancher Auditorium will present a performance by the Dancers and Musicians of Bali at 8 tonight. The company of 45 from the village of Peliatan, the first major Balinese troupe to tour North America in a half-dozen years, includes a full gamelan orchestra.

In conjunction with the performance, works by Balinese master painter I Made Budi will be on display through April and part of May in both the Hancher lobby and the UI Museum of Art. Budi will be in residence at the UI, where he intends to paint Iowa scenes in traditional Balinese style.

An accompanying conference on the role of the artisan in traditional societies was presented by the UI Center for International and Comparative Studies April 14 through 16 in the Museum of Art.

The names of few places in the world conjure the images of the mysterious and the exotic that are evoked by the word "Bali," and the music and dance of this Indonesian island amply fulfill the magical promise of the name.

In ornate masks and shimmering costumes, the diminutive dancers continue a mystical tradition in which dance is the medium for communication with the deities. The hypnotic gamelan, with its reverberating bells, gongs, xylophones, metallophones, cymbals and drums provides an atmosphere of reverence for the stylized spectacle of the dance.

In Bali, hardly a public ceremony occurs without music and dance, and all performances are permeated with religious worship. The Dancers and Musicians of Bali tour with their own priest, who conducts ceremonial offerings that precede the dancing.

The dances enact ancient stories and myths with stylized movements of the head, eyes, arms and upper torso. The iridescent, goldtrimmed costumes and striking masks move with great control, communicating mood, character and dramatic action.

The gamelan, with its ornate instruments, rich costumes and interactive style of performance, appears on stage with the dancers as an integral element of the performance. The exotic sound and pulsing rhythm of the gamelan has exerted a powerful influence on Western composers from French impressionist Claude Debussy, who encountered a gamelan at the Paris exposition that spurred the construction of the Eifel Tower, to contemporary minimalist Steve

Reunion fever hits The Who

NEW YORK (AP) - Three months ago The Who's Pete Townshend, inducting the Rolling Stones into the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame, took a swipe at the mercenary side of the Stones' upcoming reunion tour.

"It won't be easy for the Stones the next time around, and if it wasn't for the vast sums of money they can make, they might not bother at all," Townshend jibed. "... At least, Mick probably wouldn't. It's lucky for us fans that he has such expen-Now it's Mick Jagger's turn.

Two generations after "My Generation," Townshend, Roger Dal-trey and John Entwistle announced Monday they were reuniting for a 25th anniversary tour — their first since the 1982-83 "Farewell Tour." The band also appeared in a one-shot reunion at Live Aid.

Daltrey said they had decided against making an album to be released while they're touring.

"We felt like we weren't trying to resurrect the band. This is a celebration of the music we created, after all these years," he said. "One of the reasons we stopped is we were on that album-tour-album-tour rat race of the rock 'n' roll industry. To come back and do all that again we thought was a mistake.'

The British band last performed the rock opera "Tommy," by Townshend, in its entirety 17 years ago in Chicago.

The tour will include two fulllength performances of "Tommy," with guest stars, in New York City and Los Angeles. The latter will be videotaped.

Townshend acknowledged he has suffered a hearing loss, saying he has a "ringing in the ears at the kind of frequencies at which I play guitar. If I expose myself to loud electric guitar, particularly my own, my hearing suffers."
"I'm still very nervous about how

I can work on stage without further damage to my hearing," he said, but then drew a laugh by adding: "We're going to play very, very quietly The return of the Stones and The

Who to the stage highlights what seems to be a trend in rock 'n' roll today. Jefferson Airplane and The Stray Cats are reuniting. In recent months David Crosby has taken part in a pair of reunions, with ex-bandmates the Byrds and with Stephen Stills, Graham Nash and Neil Young.

As Townshend indicated, such get-togethers are lucrative: Rolling Stone magazine reported the Stones are guaranteed more than $65 million for a 50-date North American tour. Ticket sales for

Or maybe the reasons are more friendship than financial: Stray Cats leader Brian Setzer says he just missed bandmates Lee Rocker and Slim Jim Phantom.

There's another motivation: In most cases, the sum of the bands has proved greater than its parts. Lead singers Jagger and Daltrey have both released poorly received solo albums; the most recent, Jagger's "Primitive Cool," peaked at No. 41 on the album charts, while Daltrey's voice missed Townshend's songs. Guitarists Keith Richards and Townshend have both eleased critically praised bums, although the latter has put most of his effort into working part-time as an editor for the London publishing firm Faber & Faber.

The reunions also demonstrate that you can't believe everything you hear from rock stars. Richards, who threatened Jagger with bodily harm if he toured minus the Stones, repeatedly bad-mouthed his bandmate before the Stones reunited.

As for The Who, consider this from Townshend in 1985 - two years after the band's decision to go its different ways: "I think I've had it with rock. ... It wasn't growing old that was the problem with me in The Who. It was
