Workers join students in Beijing

BEIJING (AP) — More than 150,000 students and workers calling for democracy pushed through police lines Thursday and marched cheering and singing through central Beijing in communist China's biggest protest ever.

Workers by the thousands joined the students, giving them poppies and bread in their strongest act of support in 11 days of protests.

Beijing residents escorted the students on bicycles and on foot and tried to shield them from soldiers and police, who had issued harsh warnings against marches.

But the security forces were unarmed, and although they pushed fiercely against advancing students in a vain effort to halt the march, they did not use other force against them.

There was no immediate information on any injuries in the crush.

The march turned instead into a jubilant procession. For more than 15 hours, the students marched through streets and under overpasses jammed with thousands of applauding people. High-rise dwellers leaned from their windows to watch, store clerks stood in their doorways and the patients of one hospital emerged in blue-and-white-striped pajamas.

The march was the biggest and most dramatic action yet by Beijing students in their campaign for sweeping democratic reforms, including a free press and an end to corruption.

In Washington, the State Department called for restraint on the part of Chinese authorities and hoped the demonstrations would

Flaking asbestos found in UI buildings

Removal cost deters action, officials say

By Steve Donoghue
The Daily Iowan

So you thought that lecture in the Biology Building was a killer, huh? Maybe you didn't know how right you were.

The Biology Building was among a group of UI buildings from which fraying pipe insulation was removed that proved to be asbestos.

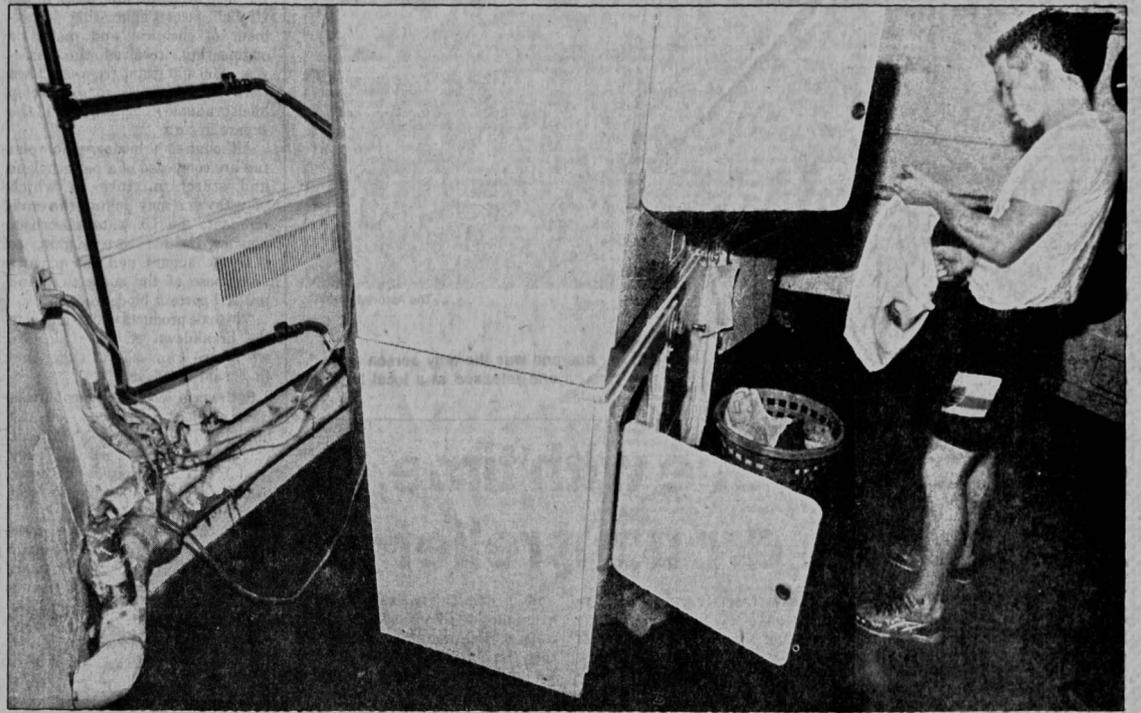

The Daily Iowan has obtained samples scraped from pipes in public areas such as the Biology Building, Currier Residence Hall and Burge Residence Hall that, when tested, were discovered to be asbestos.

Asbestos, an insulating material that has been in widespread use since the '30s, can be found in virtually all UI buildings. Airborne asbestos fibers are a proven health hazard, responsible for asbestosis, a disease which results from the heavy scarring of the lung lining. Asbestos has also been linked to mesothelioma, a cancer of the pharynx lining of the lungs.

"The danger (of asbestos) is a function of concentration and time of exposure," said James Merchant, professor of preventive medicine. "The conclusion that asbestos is dangerous is based on an occupational data base: people who are exposed to it under working conditions day by day. And that conclusion is incontrovertible."

"Estimates of non-occupational danger is extrapolated from occupational data, but you want to avoid it if you can. I think people need to be aware of the health hazard. From a prudent public health perspective, you should take proper steps to remove it if it's in poor condition."

OSHA regulations instruct that in situations where workers must deal with asbestos, it must be removed under strict conditions. And federal regulations instruct Iowa secondary schools to have plans for dealing with asbestos in their buildings by late spring of this year. But the UI is not required by law to inventory, monitor or remove asbestos from its buildings.

"We've been working on a kind of de facto basis for the last few years," said Dick Gibson, director of UI Planning and Administrative Services. "Basically, that means that when we find friable asbestos in public places, we remove it."

"There are no regulations that say we should remove it," said James Christenson, director of the UI Physical Plant. "But there's very little that's in public places."

However, asbestos in flaking condition was found by The Daily Iowan in UI buildings with a great deal of public traffic, including laundry rooms in Burge and Currier residence halls.

See Asbestos, Page 3A

Branstad launches floating-casino law

DES MOINES (AP) — Gov. Terry Branstad on Thursday signed a law launching low-stakes riverboat gambling on Iowa's rivers and lakes.

Branstad declared "the integrity of the state will be protected" as more than 50 backers crammed into his ornate Statehouse office to witness the signing, the culmination of a four-year drive to legalize floating casinos.

"I couldn't be happier," declared Rep. Tom Fey, a Davenport Democrat who was an author of the gambling bill. "It took a long, hard effort."

"This bill will provide an economic shot in the arm for many river communities that wish to further promote tourism," Branstad said. "Our major rivers are already prime tourist destination points and this bill would attract even more tourists to these locations."

Jubilant backers predicted historic 19th century riverboats would be plying the Mississippi River, luring thousands of tourists and millions of dollars to a state that's suffered from years of farm-based economic hard times.

"In two years we'll see a major economic benefit to eastern Iowa," said House Majority Leader Robert Arnold, a Davenport Democrat.

Gambling proponents were in an upbeat mood as Branstad, a conservative Republican, used 50 pens to sign the measure, passing out souvenirs. Supporters strolled the Statehouse halls whistling the musical theme from the television series "Maverick," which featured a professional gambler.

"This is where having a long names pays off," said Branstad, working his way through a stack of pens.

For his part, Branstad focused on economic development, tourism and controls which limit each bet to $5 and nightly losses to $200.

"I believe it can provide a real economic boost to many communities along our major rivers through enhanced tourism activities," he said.

With his move, Branstad made Iowa one of a handful of states allowing casino gambling. Blackjack, roulette and dice games are among those allowed.

The governor rejected suggestions floating casinos are out of place in the conservative middle of the nation's heartland.

"I'm very sensitive to that," said Branstad. "I'm very proud of the pristine reputation our state has."

"I think it will put us on the map

Bush restricts assault rifle imports

WASHINGTON (AP) — To no one's surprise, President George Bush moved quickly to fulfill his campaign promise of strong efforts against the illegal drug trade. But to almost everyone's surprise, he also suspended imports of assault rifles and talked of possible federal controls.

Drugs and guns have highlighted the domestic policies of the first 100 days of the Bush administration, including an emergency plan to combat drug-related murders in the District of Columbia which became the nation's murder capital in 1988.

A leftover problem and a sudden crisis put the spotlight on other domestic areas in the 100 days that ends Saturday, as the Republican leader moved carefully in many other policy matters.

Bush sent a major proposal to Capitol Hill to deal with the savings and loan crisis left from the Reagan years. Congress is grinding away on the bailout bill, estimated to cost $157 billion over 10 years.

And then the Exxon Valdez ran aground, pouring oil from the giant tanker into the sea and polluting the Alaska shoreline.

The administration received criticism for not moving fast enough to try to halt the environmental damage. Bush eventually dispatched Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner and other top U.S. officials to deal with the cleanup.

But the president made clear from Inauguration Day that dealing with the drug problem was at the top of his agenda.

"This scourge will stop," Bush declared, adding that it was "the most obvious" area "in which we as a society must rise up united and express our intolerance."

The president named William Bennett the nation's drug czar, charged with the task of coordinating the fight.

Employers discuss job-hunting techniques

By Lisa Swegle
The Daily Iowan

In the midst of finals-week studying, apartment hunting and good-bye parties, many UI students also have to pound the pavement in search of a summer job.

Finding a summer job is never easy, said Tom Bullington, director of Job Service of Iowa, 1810 Lower Muscatine Road.

"The difficulty is finding something that will last the entire summer. There are a lot of temporary jobs," Bullington said.

"We're always going to have detasseling and the seasonal jobs we have every year, but there's never enough full-time jobs available," he said.

The most plentiful positions are in the areas of detasseling, clerical, restaurant and retail work, Bullington said. Specialty jobs in areas like medicine, engineering and accounting are more difficult to track down.

But Iowa City summer employment opportunities have remained constant this year, Bullington said.

"My best advice is apply wherever you can, certainly Job Service — but then don't just go home and wait for the phone to ring. Get the word out to your friends, your parents, whoever you know, because a lot of times, word-of-mouth is very effective," he said.

Bullington said word-of-mouth is equally effective as job hunting through Job Service or newspaper classified ads.

"Another good source is to sit down with the yellow pages," he said.

UI Cooperative Education is a job-hunting tool expressly for UI students.

Mary Starck, associate director of UI Cooperative Education, said this spring is the busiest season cooperative education has ever experienced.

"Many of the positions for summer are filled, especially nationwide," Starck said. "We still do have a pretty good variety of positions for summer, but the sooner the student gets in here, the better the chances."

Internships, part-time and full-time positions are available through the UI program, but local positions are mostly part-time, Starck

NASA readies 'Magellan' probe

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Five astronauts tracked a perfect countdown Thursday as technicians prepared the shuttle Atlantis for a midafternoon launch on Friday. The mission will propel NASA's "Magellan" probe to Venus and revive America's deep-space science program.

"After an 11-year gap in the planetary program, we're anxious to get started," said John Gerpheide, Magellan project manager.

Officials described the countdown as the smoothest of four since the Challenger disaster. The chance of high winds provided slight concern as NASA looked forward to liftoff in an unusually tight launch window that opens at 2:24 p.m. EDT and lasts just 23 minutes.

Magellan, ready for its 15-month flight to Venus, "is 100 percent healthy and ticking along," said Lennard Fisk, NASA's chief scientist. "We're ready to go fly," said Richard Truly, who heads the shuttle program and is the incoming NASA administrator.

Earlier Thursday, three Soviet cosmonauts returned to Earth, leaving the Mir space station unattended for the first time in more than two years. Two of the cosmonauts had been in space for five months, the other for eight months.

Atlantis' cargo is the Magellan spacecraft which has a radar system powerful enough to pierce the dense sulfuric acid clouds of Venus and map its surface. The mission costs $550 million, not including the $225 million cost of the four-day shuttle flight.

14-week bloodbath in Beirut lingers despite cease-fire plea

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Christian army units and Syrian troops kept fighting Thursday, despite a resolution by Arab foreign ministers meeting in Tunis that a cease-fire end the seven-week bloodbath.

One man was killed and two were wounded in the fighting, which sent thousands of people scurrying for cover in basements and underground bomb shelters.

The Christian Cabinet headed by Gen. Michel Aoun and its rival government headed by acting Prime Minister Salim Hoss, a Sunni Moslem, withheld official comment on the Arab League call for a cease-fire to take effect at noon Friday.

At a two-day emergency meeting in Tunis, Tunisia, the league called for a cease-fire to end the worst outbreak of violence in four years in Lebanon's 14-year civil war.

Aoun's 20,000-strong army has been locked since March 8 in ferocious fighting with an alliance of Syrian troops and Druse Moslem

UI to conduct biodegradable plastic study

The Daily Iowan

Two UI engineering professors have received a grant to conduct research on the development of biodegradable plastics from corn. David Rethwisch and Jonathan Dordick, assistant professors in the UI College of Engineering department of chemical and materials engineering, received the three-year, $60,000 grant from the Iowa Corn Promotion Board to develop biodegradable plastics from the sugars in corn.

Although some biodegradable plastics are composed of a polyethylene and starch mixture in which polyethylene may pollute the environment, the UI water-absorbent plastics include corn sugars, so that the sugars and the plastics decompose at the same time and are 100 percent biodegradable.

"No toxic products will result from the breakdown of these plastics, which are composed of sugar and fat," said Rethwisch.

Rethwisch, who is principal investigator on the project, said the biodegradable, water-absorbent polymers will be used for such products as drug delivery systems, linings for disposable diapers, and hygienic products.

Dordick, project co-principal investigator, said the ultimate economic objective is to increase the commercial value of corn. He estimates that there is a U.S. market for about seven billion pounds of corn-based plastics per year. Because the proposed plastics would contain more than 50 percent corn-based sugar by weight, there would be a potential market for 3.5 billion pounds of corn-based sugars, or 100 million bushels of corn per year.

UI law professor granted fellowships

The Daily Iowan

John Reitz, professor in the UI College of Law, has been awarded two fellowships to conduct year-long research at Westfalian Wilhelms University in Muenster, West Germany beginning in the fall semester of 1989.

Reitz, the law school's faculty authority in comparative law, has received grants from the Fulbright Scholar Program and the German Marshall Fund of the United States to investigate German views of activist judicial lawmaking.

In an effort to better understand the role of judges in determining the law, Reitz will conduct legal research and will discuss the issue with judges, lawyers and academicians from throughout Germany, France, Belgium and the Netherlands.

"The recent Bork hearings have accelerated debate in U.S. society over how much freedom judges should have to incorporate their own values in making up the law," he said. "My goal is to understand what the role of the judge is in modern Germany and why it differs from our society."

Reitz and his wife Sharyn, along with their sons Christopher, 7, and Benjamin, 4, will reside in Muenster through the summer of 1990. He will return to the UI law faculty in the fall of 1990.

Officials wrestle with time, red tape for drought relief

DES MOINES (AP) — Federal officials under the gun to certify parched Iowa counties for emergency drought relief said Thursday the first applications could be on their way to Washington in a few days.

But they cautioned that while they're trying to cut through red tape to speed relief to farmers whose livestock operations are threatened by a lack of water and feed, the process of justifying emergency aid remains complicated and time consuming.

"It's like me going to the bank and saying, 'I've got an emergency and need money right now.' . . . I've still got to fill out the forms," said Bill Hawks, a program specialist at the state office of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. "I've got to show the banker on paper that I need the loan."

While the ASCS continued its county-by-county drought condition surveys and storms swept through the state dumping rain on some fields but missing some of the driest pastures, Iowa's secretary of agriculture said he is reconvening a drought task force formed in 1988.

"The situation in Iowa is far too serious for us to take a wait-and-see attitude," Dale Cochran, Iowa's secretary of agriculture, said in a statement released Thursday. "The task force must now begin looking at ways to provide resources to those areas of the state where water is short, pastures are dry, and crops cannot be planted."

Cochran said the group, composed of representatives from farm commodity groups, agricultural organizations, the agribusiness community, state and legislative leaders, Iowa's congressional delegation and Iowa State University extension specialists would meet Wednesday afternoon in Des Moines.

Formed during last year's drought the group made recommendations for federal assistance programs to provide hay and feed for livestock. Cattle producers already are struggling to feed herds because of burned-out pastures. Without assistance, producers have said they will sell some of their breeding stock.

Conditions are most critical in southern Iowa.

"Where I went, it looked pretty bad," said Robert Furlough, state executive director of the ASCS, who toured parts of Decatur, Ringgold, Taylor and Union counties on Wednesday. "A lot of them (farmers) are hauling water for their livestock and their households."

The ASCS is studying temperature and precipitation records and examining livestock sales activities to see if farmers are selling off their breeding stock. Such a move would make it costly and difficult to re-establish a herd and could lead to long-range meat shortages, something that would make beef more costly at the supermarket.

Furlough said he hasn't seen much evidence yet that Iowa herds are being liquidated, but that there appears to be early culling of herds, or sales of the least desirable stock.

"Ultimately, if they are out of feed, out of water and out of money, they have to liquidate the herd," Furlough said.

Programs offered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture would allow the harvesting of hay and grazing of livestock on farmland taken out of production to comply with federal farm programs, make available emergency assistance for buying feed and provide other assistance in getting feed.

Those programs would be available only in counties certified by the ASCS as drought disaster areas.

"That's not a simple, automatic thing," Furlough said.

But he said the paperwork would not gather dust once it is completed.

Storms strew hail, spawn twisters

Strong thundershowers dropped rain in southeast Iowa and temperatures reached a record high in Sioux City on Thursday as Iowans took stock of the damage caused by violent storms the day before.

The temperature reached 90 degrees at the Sioux Gateway Airport in Sioux City, tying a record high for April 27 set in 1981.

Showers and thunderstorms spread over much of the eastern third of Iowa on Thursday morning, with strong thunderstorms in the southeast.

A tornado watch was in effect for a small part of western Iowa until 8 p.m. Thursday, but there was no rain indicated anywhere in the state by midafternoon.

That was in marked contrast to Wednesday, when a strong storm system spawned damaging winds and hail across much of the state.

Strong winds in Granger toppled a newly erected wall, killing Leroy Lundberg, 21, a construction worker from Boone, according to Gary Lyons, a Dallas County Sheriff's deputy.

Lundberg died when the wall of a new service building at Granger Motors fell over him, according to State Medical Examiner Thomas Bennett.

Chemical spray controversy leads board to stop roadside spraying

By Lisa Swegle
The Daily Iowan

Controversy over the potential health risks of using chemical spray to kill roadside brush prompted the Johnson County Board of Supervisors Thursday to stop the spraying for one year.

Members of Project Green on Tuesday urged the Johnson County Secondary Road Department to manually cut down roadside brush instead of using chemicals.

Supervisor Bob Burns said manual roadside brush-cutting is a less-efficient system that residents will have to tolerate.

"This can be done, but it's going to be slower, more manpower and more expensive," he said. "We are going to have people unhappy about it."

Burns said other government agencies need to back up the county's act of discontinuing the use of chemicals — otherwise the gesture won't make a dent in total chemical spraying.

Supervisor Patricia Meade directed County Engineer Glen Meisner to closely monitor the time and cost incurred by the change.

In other business, Burns said the supervisors need to examine zoning laws.

Supervisor Betty Ockenfels said the board needs to curtail any rising costs or problems in the county caused by zoning that is too lenient on land developers.

Burns said the board is following zoning decisions that were made years ago by a different group of supervisors. He suggested asking the Linn County zoning commissioner to speak with the board about how Linn County handles zoning.

County Planner JoAnne Lilledahl said Johnson County processes as many zoning applications in one morning as most counties do in a week.

The board also split on a motion to change the smoking lounge at the Department of Human Services to a different room.

Burns said the public should be allowed to smoke in the lobby because they will not be able to find the proposed smoking lounge.

"I think it's a denial of people's rights," Burns said.

Meade said people with emphysema have rights too.

Duffy said the room could be better utilized for other purposes.

"Why can't they smoke outside?" Duffy said.

Bush

But almost immediately Bush's fight against drugs raised another tough issue — gun control.

Semiautomatic assault-style rifles were becoming increasingly popular with warring drug dealers around the country, but public demands for controls on the weapons didn't take off until January, when innocent children became the victims of a man who opened fire with such a rifle on a school yard in Stockton, Cal. Five children were killed.

Bush, a lifelong member of the National Rifle Association, vowed for the first six weeks in office that he opposed any ban on the rapid-fire assault-style rifles.

He maintained that stance even though his wife, Barbara, told The Associated Press just two weeks after her husband's inauguration that she fears guns and thinks assault weapons should be banned.

Faced with a growing public outcry against the weapons, Bush relented a bit.

Less than a month later, the president asked Bennett to look into the situation and revealed at a news conference that he had told Bennett, "if you come to me with a sensible answer that takes care of the concerns that I've felt over the years, I'll take a hard look at it, and I'll work with you to that end."

The initial suspension on imports of semiautomatic weapons, announced March 14, came only a few days after Bennett was sworn in as director of the office of national drug control policy, and the announcement came out of Bennett's office.

Asbestos

OSHA has determined 100,000 fibers per cubic meter as an acceptable limit for the protection of the public and workers dealing with asbestos, and although this limit has been debated, the UI's main policy toward asbestos deals with the workers who must deal with it directly.

The UI's unwritten policy toward asbestos is completely ad hoc: if construction requires workers to deal directly with asbestos — and over 300 Physical Plant workers have been trained to recognize the material — the UI takes steps to remove it before work is done. And this brings up the primary problem with asbestos removal: It's expensive to remove. Extremely expensive.

"It's a horribly difficult process to remove it," said Gibson. "The federal government has not seen fit so far to tell universities what to do (about asbestos). Society has so far not said it's enough of a problem to spend great deals of money on removing it. It's not a priority yet."

Christenson said, "If I had to give a wild estimate, I'd say it'd cost over $50 million to remove all the asbestos on campus. It's that kind of money we're talking about."

Brooks Simpson, a UI student involved in a class project on asbestos, was indignant. "It seems to me the UI is just dragging its feet on the issue. It seems like they're just covering their butts to avoid a lawsuit or something."

There also exists no system for inventoring the condition of asbestos on campus, according to UI officials.

"As far as I'm aware, there's no systematic, thorough inventory system," said Gibson.

remain peaceful.

"The United States believes in and supports the right of peaceful assembly, including peaceful protest and the freedom of expression," department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said.

Even before the march ended, the government announced it was willing to hold talks with the students "at any time" if the students return to their campuses and "adopt a calm and reasonable attitude."

However, a government spokesman quoted by the official Xinhua News Agency said the talks should be conducted through official student groups already rejected by the protesters as non-democratic. The government calls the protesters' newly-formed unions illegal.

Xinhua later quoted a city spokesman as saying many of the students' demands, such as wiping out corruption, were "in accord with the wishes of the party and the government." The spokesman, who was not identified, urged the students to return to class, disband their illegal organizations and stop agitating.

militiamen.

By police count, 273 people have been killed and 993 wounded in the clashes. Most of the victims have been civilians who fell in the indiscriminate shelling of population centers in and around the capital.

Radio stations in the Moslem and Christian sectors of Beirut interrupted regular programming Thursday to broadcast the Arab League resolutions, which included agreement to dispatch military observers to monitor the truce and a call for lifting a blockade of ports which sparked the latest bloodshed.

Aoun, a Maronite Catholic, rejected three previous Arab League cease-fire calls because they did not include a direct reference to Syrian involvement in the fighting, instead portraying the crisis as one between Lebanese Christians and Moslems.

He demanded that the 22-member Arab League exert pressure on Syria to withdraw an estimated 40,000 troops stationed in Moslem regions under a 1976 Arab League peace-keeping mandate.

An aide to Aoun said the general was "disenchanted" by the Tunis meeting. The aide, who spoke on condition of anonymity, said the Tunis statement "addressed only the Lebanese parties to the conflict, asking them to cooperate with the observers, while the Syrians have been doing most of the bombardment."

The aide did not say if that meant Aoun would reject the resolutions outright.

A police spokesman said the escalation in clashes along the Green Line that divides the capital into Moslem and Christian sectors was "a bad sign."

"They (Aoun's forces) are skeptical about the outcome of the meeting," the spokesman said. He could not be named under standing regulations.

Magellan's radar images, relayed to Earth and enhanced by computer, should reveal details as small as 100 yards across, about the size of a football field. That is 10 times sharper than previous pictures of the planet.

Stephen Saunders, Magellan project scientist, said the radar images could help scientists understand how Venus was formed and might provide an answer to the puzzling question of how Earth and Venus evolved so differently even though they were almost identical when the solar system formed 4.6 billion years ago.

The Magellan deployment is scheduled 6 hours 18 minutes after liftoff, with astronauts Mark Lee and Mary Cleave conducting a countdown from inside their shuttle cabin. An hour after the release, a rocket is to fire to hurl the 7,600-pound unmanned probe on a 450-day journey to Venus, a complex trip that takes Magellan 1½ times around the sun before it intercepts its target planet.

The Atlantis crew also includes commander David Walker, pilot Ronald Grabe and mission specialist Norman Thagard. Lee is the only one who has not flown on a previous shuttle mission.

Spending cutbacks and delays forced by the 1986 Challenger accident prompted NASA to use the roundabout approach to Venus. The trip could have been made in four months under better circumstances.

Wal-Mart clears first hurdles, awaits City Council approval

By Paige Bierma
The Daily Iowan

Having cleared the second major hurdle in his efforts to gain city approval for building a new shopping mall off Highway 1 West, Illinois developer Michael Wisdom now awaits the Iowa City Council's go-ahead.

Wisdom wants to build a 220,000-square-foot mall which would include a Wal-Mart, two other anchor stores and several smaller retail shops just west of Carousel Motors on Highway 1.

The land is currently zoned for industrial use.

In order for Wisdom to proceed, two actions must be completed: Iowa City's Comprehensive Plan would have to be amended, and the land would have to be rezoned to commercial. Both actions must be voted on by the Planning and Zoning Commission and then given final approval by the council.

The Comprehensive Plan—which states how land should be used to best develop the city—requires that the land remain zoned industrial. The Planning and Zoning Commission voted 4-3 three weeks ago to recommend council approval of the plan's amendment.

The commission voted 5-1 last week to recommend the subsequent rezoning of the land from industrial to commercial use. The vote came after Wisdom agreed to several conditions concerning the construction and aesthetic appearance of the mall.

The Planning and Zoning Commission is made up of private citizens appointed by the council.

The Department of Planning and Program Development—made up of hired staff—opposes the rezoning, however. Senior Planner Karin Franklin said Iowa City does not need anymore commercial land and that the land in question should be left open for potential industrial developers.

But commission chairman Thomas Scott, who voted for both measures, said the land is not well-suited for industry.

"Because of the area's lack of rail service, and the close proximity to residential neighborhoods and to the airport, the land lends itself to uses other than industrial," Scott said.

Commission vice-chairwoman Sally Dierks, who voted against the amendment, agrees with the planning staff.

"We already have more commercial land than is considered viable in Iowa City," Dierks said.

Dierks also expressed concern that the mall could hurt other area businesses.

But Scott said there was no evidence of this. Although some Sycamore Mall (Highway 6 and First Avenue) merchants and other business owners objected to the rezoning, the commission received just as many calls from businesses who were in favor of the development, Scott said.

Dierks also said if the land in question—which lies along an entryway to Iowa City—is zoned commercial, other commercial businesses may sprout out there as well.

"I'd hate to see a Coralville strip go in down there," Dierks said.

Scott said he voted for the rezoning only because of the conditions Wisdom agreed to follow in the construction of the mall. Some of the conditions limited the number of signs that may face the highway, and required that trees be planted around the mall, Scott said.

The council will hold a public hearing on the rezoning issue at their May 2 meeting and will vote for first consideration at their May 16 meeting.

The University of Iowa SUMMER SESSION 1989 COURSE CHANGES

Registration is now in progress. Students will register through the Registration Center, Room 17, Calvin Hall. New courses and closed courses are posted in this space. The closed list is in numerical order and indicates the department, course, and section numbers followed by a code (CD) indicating why the course is closed.

Code 1: the course or section is full
Code 2: the course or section has been cancelled
Code 3: the course or section is not available until the first day of classes
Code 4: the course or section is pending (undetermined)

These lists should be reviewed and adjustments made prior to entering the Registration Center. Registration information is printed in the Schedule of Courses.

The University of Iowa FALL SEMESTER 1989 COURSE CHANGES

Registration is now in progress. Students will register through the Registration Center, Room 17, Calvin Hall. New courses and closed courses are posted in this space. The closed list is in numerical order and indicates the department, course, and section numbers followed by a code (CD) indicating why the course is closed.

Code 1: the course or section is full
Code 2: the course or section has been cancelled
Code 3: the course or section is not available until the first day of classes
Code 4: the course or section is pending (undetermined)

These lists should be reviewed and adjustments made prior to entering the Registration Center. Registration information is printed in the Schedule of Courses.

Tornado kills hundreds in Bangladesh

MANIKGANJ, Bangladesh — A tornado swept through central Bangladesh, killing 600 people and injuring 12,000 others as it flattened buildings and tossed fishing boats, government officials said Thursday. At least 200 people were missing.

Wednesday's storm, which also unleashed hail and heavy rain, struck hours after President Hussain Muhammad Ershad led nationwide prayers for an end to a drought that has been tormenting Bangladesh.

Survivors said the funnel cloud raged for 10 minutes at dusk Wednesday in the Manikganj area 25 miles northwest of Dhaka and tore down "everything, including buildings."

The twister capsized several fishing boats, raising fears that many of the 200 missing may have been killed.

"I saw black clouds gathering in the sky. In moments, we found we were flying along with the house," said Sayeda Begum, a 30-year-old housewife in the village of Satura, near Manikganj.

The government official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, confirmed the toll of 600 dead. A government doctor from the area said at least 12,000 people were injured.

Moderate quake felt in four states

NASHVILLE, Tenn. — A moderate earthquake felt in four states Thursday was the strongest in the region since 1976, a U.S. Geological Survey spokeswoman said.

There were no reports of damage or injuries from the earthquake that measured 4.7 on the Richter. It was centered in New Madrid, Mo., 10 miles north of Blytheville, Ark.

It was felt in Arkansas, Missouri, Kentucky and Tennessee, said Pat Jorgenson of the survey's National Earthquake Information Center in Golden, Colo.

The earthquake emanated from the New Madrid seismic zone, which was the center of a series of great earthquakes that rocked the area during the winter of 1811-12.

Officials have warned repeatedly that a serious earthquake can be expected during the next several years in the New Madrid zone area, which stretches roughly from southern Illinois to Arkansas.

Thursday's was the strongest quake in the region since March 25, 1976, when one registered 4.9, said Jorgenson.

Thousands clash with police in Korea

SEOUL, South Korea — About 20,000 striking workers and students clashed with riot police in Seoul and seven other cities Thursday, and dissidents planned weekend demonstrations in defiance of a government ban.

About 10,000 striking workers from 12 plants fought police with rocks and firebombs in the southeastern industrial city of Changwon, demanding the release of jailed strike leaders.

In the nearby port of Masan, about 3,000 workers also clashed with police, demanding pay increases and the release of strike leaders. Protesters set fire to a governing office and threw rocks at several police posts.

About 1,000 students in the southern city of Kwangju clashed with police after a campus rally at which they burned effigies of President George Bush and President Roh Tae-woo.

Police officials said two riot troopers had been seriously injured in Changwon, but they had no further details. It was not known immediately if there were any workers injured or arrested.

Hussein swears-in new prime minister

AMMAN, Jordan — King Hussein swore-in his tough former army commander as prime minister Thursday after widespread rioting and told him to reorganize the government and prepare for Jordan's first general elections in 22 years.

State-run Jordan TV showed the swearing-in ceremony for Zeid Bin Shaker and said Hussein issued 19 directives to the new government, including calls for freedom of the press, support for the PLO and stamping out corruption.

But the king also told the government to "put an end to the involvement of religion in politics," an apparent reference to Islamic fundamentalists accused of encouraging the unrest.

Bin Shaker takes office after the kingdom's worst domestic violence since 1971. Riots stemming from government price increases and economic difficulties killed at least nine people last week in southern Jordan. Government buildings and banks were attacked in dozens of cities and villages.

Doctors have an exaggerated sense of the sacred nature of life. It seems to me he should have been able to write a letter to the hospital saying, "Please turn off the respirator. Very truly yours."

— Richard Epstein, a University of Chicago law professor and fellow at the school's Center for Medical Ethics, referring to the plight of a Chicago man who kept hospital staffers at bay with a gun while removing his comatose son from life support and letting him die. See story, page 7A.

Jobs

UI students must be approved by departmental faculty to participate in cooperative education.

Don Canfield, Chamber of Commerce president, said summertime is a good season for students to locate jobs because total employment is greater. Outside jobs in construction and agriculture boost the employment numbers.

In addition, some businesses need part-timers to pick up extra hours for vacationing full-time employees, said Canfield, also a Hy-Vee Food Store manager, First and Rochester avenues.

Hy-Vee's need for part-time employees is greatest in the summer because most full-time workers take their vacations then, Canfield said.

UI students should avoid contacting businesses whose busiest time is during the UI academic year.

Mike Campbell, manager of Kinko's Copies, 14 Clinton St., said the smaller UI summer school session decreases Kinko's business by about half because students are Kinko's main clientele.

More students have been applying at Kinko's in the last few weeks, he said.

"But I pretty much squelched it because we won't be hiring this summer," Campbell said.

Rick Ruchotzke, manager of Rocky Rococo, 118 S. Dubuque St., said positions will be available because summertime business decreases only slightly.

Most UI students apply at Rocky Rococo after finals week, he said.

Gambling

as an innovative, creative state," said Fey.

Under the new law, riverboats could begin operating in 1991 and would be regulated by the state's Racing Commission, which would issue gambling licenses. Before any license could be issued, voters in the county where it would dock would have to approve.

"Oh yeah, it's a feeling of accomplishment," said Fey. "It's going to feel even better once we christen the first vessel."

Proposals for new developments include a historic amusement and theme-park along the Mississippi River in Davenport with a $10 million riverboat for gambling.

Iowa is in a race with Mississippi River neighbor Illinois over the riverboats. Similar legislation is working its way through the Illinois Legislature.

Branstad also said he plans to sign a companion bill keeping minors off the gambling boats and giving police the power to conduct searches of the boats without obtaining a warrant.

"It, along with the accompanying legislation, contains the necessary safeguards to ensure that the integrity of the state will be protected," said Branstad. "Wagers and maximum losses are strictly limited."

The gambling measure was the brainchild of Arnould and Fey, who said the farm recession has cost their community 20,000 jobs as farm equipment manufacturers went out of business.

"It's the farm crisis," said Fey. The law is extremely popular along the Mississippi River corridor, where liberal Democrats and pro-business development forces joined together.

Criticism came from a coalition of conservative Republicans who fought it on moral grounds and liberal church groups who feared exploitation of the poor.

"That (law) is so full of holes and everybody knows it," said Rep. Donald Hermann, a Bettendorf Republican. "It's a travesty."

Branstad, who faces re-election next year, never asked the Legislature for the legalized gambling but agreed early to go along.

"I've not been an advocate of this," said Branstad. "I do recognize the tourism potential."

The riverboat gambling measure is only the latest form of legalized gambling to win approval in Iowa. It joins a state-run lottery and pari-mutuel betting at horse and dog tracks.

While critics said Iowa will soon see all the ills of legalized gambling, backers said the betting restrictions will make the gambling family-style entertainment.

"You really can't compare this with Las Vegas or Reno," said Fey. "You're not going to entice professional gamblers."

The fight to pass the riverboat gambling bill slowed action in the Legislature as the House and Senate first rejected it and then approved.

"Three-and-a-half years isn't that long a period of time to pass a gambling bill when you look at the lottery," said Fey. "It was 10 years to 15 years for pari-mutuel betting."

Baby's death divides ethicists

CHICAGO (AP)—A man who kept hospital staffers at bay with a gun while tearfully removing his comatose son from life support and letting him die has revived questions over when medicine merely prolongs the deaths of babies, ethicists said Thursday.

"I have sympathy for this father, because it seems to me he felt he had no choice but to act on what he felt was best for this child at the point of a gun," said Arthur Caplan, director of the Center for Biomedical Ethics at the University of Minnesota.

"I still think he should be prosecuted. I don't think you can use weapons to direct medical treatment," Caplan said in a telephone interview from Minneapolis.

"But I have sympathy, because I think society has not made it possible for parents to be heard about when medical treatment should be stopped — when it is futile — for very young children," Caplan said. Caplan spoke a day after Rudy Linares, 23, entered a hospital intensive-care unit and unhooked the respirator of his 16-month-old son, Samuel, while holding hospital workers off with a .357-caliber handgun, police said.

The boy had been unconscious and "partially brain-dead" since August, when he swallowed a balloon at a birthday party, said a spokeswoman at Rush-Presbyterian-St. Luke's Medical Center, where Wednesday's incident occurred.

Linares, father of two other children in west suburban Cicero, surrendered the gun as soon as he was sure the boy was dead, authorities said. His wife, Tamara, was out of the room when the incident occurred.

"I did it because I loved my son, all right?" the father, a painter, shouted to reporters after he was arrested. "I loved my son, all right? I love my wife."

Linares, charged with first-degree murder, was ordered Thursday to undergo a psychiatric examination by a judge who called his case "an extraordinary situation surrounded by extraordinary circumstances."

"I not only have concerns for the community, but concerns for him," said Cook County Judge Robert Bastone, before setting another hearing for May 18.

Linares, free on $75,000 personal recognizance bond, refused to talk to reporters.

Authorities said Linares also disconnected the respirator in December, but it was quickly replaced and he was not charged because the hospital did not call police.

Hospital officials have said they were preparing to transfer the boy to a long-term care unit. The family had planned to see a lawyer Friday to discuss shutting down Samuel's life-support equipment.

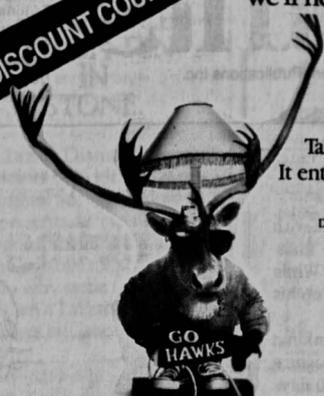

Linares should not have had to pull a gun to have life support ended, said Richard Epstein, a University of Chicago law professor and fellow at the school's Center for Medical Ethics.

"Doctors have an exaggerated sense of the sacred nature of life. It seems to me he should have been able to write a letter to the hospital saying, 'Please turn off the respirator. Very truly yours,'" Epstein said.

Gilbert Goldman, the boy's physician, said the family had asked months ago that life-support be withdrawn, but that while he thought it a reasonable request he believed the law stood in the way.

Max Brown, legal counsel for the hospital, said the only way the institution could have complied with Linares' request would have been if Samuel had been determined totally brain-dead or his heart and lungs had stopped functioning.

Showdown on the hill

Defense Secretary Richard Cheney's Tuesday showdown with the House Armed Services Committee dramatized the knot-tiest problem facing the military budget planner. While Congress demands budget cuts, no one is willing to give up his pet program.

The cuts Cheney outlined were prudent, forward-thinking, and consistent with the wait-and-see foreign policy posture that has characterized President George Bush's first 100 days in office. Few programs were cut outright. The Midgetman missile, the B-2 (Stealth) bomber, space-based anti-ballistic missile defenses, and MX railcar basing all will proceed, though on a delayed schedule. Although Army manpower will be reduced by 7,900 troops, military pay remains protected.

Oddly, it was not budget reductions for the big weapon systems that sparked committee divisiveness, but a handful of lesser cuts — the accelerated mothballing of naval ships, including one aircraft carrier, and cancelled or delayed procurement of several redundant, overpriced or untested aircraft, including a Marine troop carrier, a Navy fighter, and an Army helicopter. Immediately, committee members with close ties to the affected branches called foul and mobilized their allies in Congress to do the same.

Competition between the branches for appropriations has always been fierce, and rarely has it served national security interests. The bickering over Cheney's budget provides a case in point, because his priorities are, or ought to be, evident to everyone on Capitol Hill.

One: Keep the White House and State Department happy by maintaining a commitment, if slightly scaled back, to the larger strategic systems, until Bush can find an arms-control agenda for his administration and meet with NATO leaders in May. Make sure the White House has something to bargain away.

Two: Keep the military happy by protecting military pay from budget cuts. Trimming salaries there has become political suicide.

Three: Keep the Office of Management and Budget happy by cutting outright those secondary systems of unproven military or foreign policy value.

The first job of a defense secretary is to provide Congress with a procurement agenda that balances defense needs with fiscal sense, and long-term foreign policy objectives with short-term security. He must play both stern nanny and loving son to Congress, the Pentagon, the State Department and the White House.

It is an almost impossible juggling act. But so far, Dick Cheney — a man whose experience in defense was thought wanting — has kept all the balls aloft.

Now, can Congress do the same?

Misusing Mickey

When Walt Disney Studios threatened a lawsuit following the unauthorized use of its Snow White character during the Academy Awards, it seemed like the corporation was getting a little too sensitive. But a similar action by Disney attorneys this week indicates the studio has completely lost touch with its roots, if not reality.

The threat against the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences was somewhat understandable. Given that Disney ultimately accepted an apology, it appears the motive was to simply make a public example in an effort to deter copyright infringement.

But this week Disney went a step farther. Company attorneys sent threatening letters to the owners of three California day care centers demanding that they remove unauthorized Disney characters from their buildings. One of the three centers has large, painted illustrations of Mickey Mouse, Donald Duck and other Disney favorites on its outer walls, facing a playground.

The children, understandably, love the paintings. But Disney says such unauthorized use of its copyrighted characters is not only a violation of law, but it also falsely implies that the studio supports or approves of the day care center. As for the latter charge, the day care center says it has never tried to indicate such a connection to Disney. The cartoon characters were painted because kids love them, and the place is full of kids.

The attorney's claim of copyright infringement is probably technically correct, but that really isn't the point. A parent of one of the day care center children summed up Disney's stand: "Walt Disney started this with kids in mind. I don't think they have kids in mind anymore. I think they have money in mind." What would Walt say?

The first 100 days

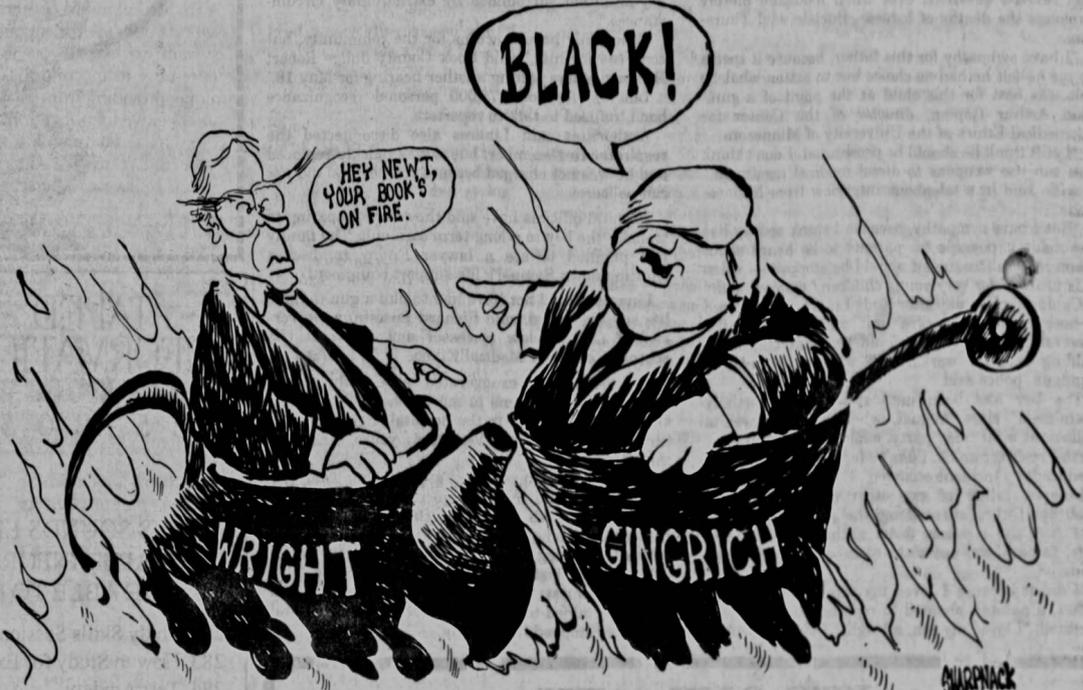

No, we haven't noticed an increase in the number of times the Pledge of Allegiance is being recited.

But George Bush can be fairly judged on his handling of the economy, the war on drugs, environmental protection, foreign policy, government administration, and his pledge to transform America into a kinder and gentler nation.

In general, he's been doing a good job, a better job than we expected. If we were to peg a letter grade to his performance, it would be a C plus. But his progress has come slowly — slower than a clock in a classroom on a beautiful morning in May.

Distinguished panel discusses 'trash T.V.'

New York City, 9 a.m. Voice over: "T.V. talk shows. Critics say they've gotten out of control and are overly sensational. Stations say they bring in great ratings. Today on 'Donahue,' we're going to examine the phenomenon known as 'Trash T.V.'"

Phil: "Today, we are going to examine the controversial topic of whether current talk shows go too far in their efforts to bring in ratings. I want to welcome our guests today, who include talk show hosts Geraldo Rivera, Morton Downey, Jr., and Oprah Winfrey, along with Louisiana State Legislator David Duke, Black activist the Rev. Al Sharpton, New York psychologist Barry Levine and a man who runs what he says is the country's only Satan worshipping nudist colony. (applause)"

"Thank you. By the way, I should point out that for today's program, we have tried to diversify our studio audience by inviting racist teenage skinheads, members of the New York chapter of the Afro-American Defense Society, men who were the victims of negligent sex-change operations and teenage prostitutes who happen to be twins."

Morton: "Yeah, looks like a bunch of fags and slimeballs to me!" (spits on audience)

Audience: "Mort! Mort! Mort!"
Phil: "O.K., we'll get to you in a second Mr. Downey. First, I have a question for Al Sharpton. You have appeared on many of these shows Rev. Sharpton and..."

Sharpton (interrupting): "Actually, I'm not too happy with this particular show, Donahue. I though you were going to allow me to present my newly discovered evidence proving that the grand jury's claim that Tawana Brawley was never raped was actually part of a cover-up instigated by Mario Cuomo, the Ku Klux Klan and singer Barry Manilow."

Duke: "Hey, that's not true! My organization, er, the Klan would never associate with an Italian."
Morton: "You know Al, while we're here, I just want to tell you your hair MAKES ME WANT TO PUKE MY GUTS OUT! What the hell do you do to it, wax it?"

Audience: "Mort! Mort! Mort!"
Oprah (turning to Downey): "Why don't you shut up, Downey. You're scaring him." (points to nude Satan worshipper)

Morton: "Oh yeah, why don't you suck my..."
Phil: "All right, all right, calm down everybody. Now, Mr. Duke, how do you feel about..."

Morton: "Oh, zip it Phil, you feminist weasel!"

Geraldo: "Phil, if I could just interrupt for a minute. I've got something to say, but before I do, let me warn you its going to be pretty harsh stuff. So parents, if your kids are in the room, GET THEM AWAY FROM THE SET! Tell them to go to the store or something, but don't let them watch this program! O.K. Phil, now that I've taken care of that let me say that if you ask me, it's punks like him (points to Downey) that are giving talk shows a bad name."

Morton (standing up, menacingly): "Hey, who you calling a punk, scuzball?"

Geraldo: (also standing up) "You're trash, Downey. How can you look at yourself in the morning, you (bleep) (bleep) freak!"

Morton (shouting): "Hey listen, dirtbag!"

Geraldo: "Slime!"
Morton: "Wimp!"
Geraldo: "Scum!"
Morton: "Liberal!"

Geraldo: "O.K., that's it. I don't have to take this!"
(Pulls out gun, shoots Downey twice in the chest. Oprah screams, Sharpton and Duke run for cover)

Phil: "Oh my God!"
Nude Satan Worshipper: "Oh my Lord of Darkness!"

Geraldo: "I'm sorry, I couldn't help myself! Satan made me do it. Kiss the devil! Kiss the devil! Aarrgh!" (shoots Phil in the chest)

Audience: "Geraldo! Geraldo! Geraldo!"
(Geraldo runs over to Phil's microphone and picks it up as pandemonium reigns in the studio)

Geraldo (with microphone): "Ladies and gentlemen, if you have just joined us, let me recap for you the extraordinary events which have occurred today. Under apparent possession by the devil, I have just shot Phil Donahue and Morton Downey, Jr. Let me ask Dr. Levine for his reaction. (turns to the doctor) Dr. Levine, would you say my actions just now were a result of a psychological problem, or do you think I was actually possessed by Satan?"

Levine: "Well, Geraldo, as you know, incidents where actual satanic possession can be proven to have taken place are very rare, especially in murder cases. In this case, I think..."

Racist Skinhead Audience Member: "Shoot the black guy next!"

Afro-American Defense Society Member: "Hey, what do you mean, 'shoot the black guy next'!"

Racist Skinhead Audience Member: "Just what I said. You wan'ta make something of it?" (Pulls out his uzi, as do other skinheads)

Black Defense Society Member: "Yeah, I'll make something of it." (Also pulls out Uzi, as do other members of group. Both groups begin firing on each other.)

Geraldo: "I have never seen anything like this in my 20 years on television, except possibly for the time I covered that vigilante group which burned down crack houses..." (suddenly, nude Satan worshipper stabs him in heart with pitchfork)

Nude Satan Worshipper: "I have made my sacrifice to you, oh Lucifer. Admittedly, it's not as good as Diane Sawyer, but..." (he is killed by stray bullet)

Phil (dying, amidst the chaos): Oh, why, why couldn't I have just done the show on Interracial Transvestite Married Couples like I planned this week?" (dies)

TEN HOURS LATER ON ANOTHER CHANNEL:
Maury Povich: "Hi, I'm Maury Povich, and this is 'A Current Affair.' Tonight, we'll be showing you graphic footage of the massacre which occurred on the 'Donahue Show' earlier today. But first, this report on women who strip for God..."

Intriguing, rhetorical questions

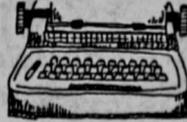

To the Editor:
Randall Brinkhuis asked enough intriguing, albeit rhetorical, questions to keep me reading his guest opinion "A question of rights — or one of choice," (The Daily Iowan, Apr. 25).

But I don't get it.

Two-thirds of the article is spent mucking about in a pseudo-philosophical discussion of "rights" and choice; wherein the reader is left with the distinct impression that Brinkhuis is against abortion. However, when a real-world example is introduced, parenthetically no less (rape, incest, etc.) the profundity spigot clamps shut. And a paltry "This is, indeed, a dilemma," is the only thing to dribble out. Gee thanks. That really clears up the question-of-rights issue.

Brinkhuis has been mystified for quite some time now, he says, about "While abortion does eliminate unwanted pregnancies, what does it do about the conditions that led to those pregnancies?" That's like asking what band-aids have to do with preventing scrapes and cuts on shins and knees.

The pro-life argument is not that difficult to fathom. Unvarnished, it looks like this: A) killing another person is always wrong, B) the fetus is another person, therefore,

C) aborting a fetus is always wrong. At least two of those claims are suspect!

Abortion and the issues surrounding it are not to be treated lightly (unless the context makes the attempt at humor plain, such as graffiti on the sacred walls of a men's restroom). Real people are involved that laugh and cry and wonder if they're doing the "right thing."

As I see it, the bottom line is still this: Sometimes one quality life is more important than two beating hearts.

Suffering for sex

To the Editor:
The U.S. Supreme Court should not heed the hysterical eunuchs, religious zealots and their gullible followers who want people to suffer for having sex.

Crucifixion is not for everyone. The idea of Imitation of Christ introduced by Thomas A' Kempis in the 15th century is a ridiculous perversion of original Christianity which simply viewed Jesus Christ's life as an historic epic event opening the gates of heaven. This could only be accomplished by God Himself and certainly not even imitated by mere mortals.

Bertrand Russell rejected Christianity largely due to its anti-sex bias and wrote in Why I Am Not A Christian that the earliest Christians saw no use for sex since they believed in Jesus Christ's false prophecy that the end of the world would happen during their generation.

The religious zealots' targets are not only abortion and gay rights but also contraception of any kind, sex hygiene items, such as condoms, divorce, married clergy and female pastors. They cannot even get their own congregations to practice their pious strictures and frequently do not practice those pious strictures themselves.

Self-righteous 'civics lesson'

To the Editor:
In his self-righteous 'civics lesson' for New Wave members, (Apr. 25) Brian Patterson strings out several cliches about "patriotism" and his personal defense of the Constitution but completely misses the moral challenge which the organization's anti-ROTC protest posed for those who control U.S. foreign policy and their lackeys in the military.

Patterson suggests that we should be grateful to the military because they "have kept this country free." How did the bombing of Cambodia enhance our civil liberties? What did our glorious victory in Grenada have to do with the Constitution? How does the build-up of 14,000 American troops on the Honduran/Salvadoran border ensure our right to assemble? How can anyone justify the bombing of a Salvadoran rebel hospital by the U.S.-funded and trained Salvadoran military? The United States has been more active terrorizing the citizens of other nations than protecting the rights of ours.

According to Patterson however, the Armed Forces are "apolitical" and therefore not responsible for the policies they carry out. In this count, he should learn from the experience of his fellow serviceperson Oliver North, who is becoming aware that he cannot absolve himself of guilt for his personal actions by saying "I was following orders." Every person who takes part in the Armed Forces therefore has a responsibility to assess whether or not the orders which he or she has been given are, in fact, moral.

New Wave has never backed down from criticizing the president of other governmental officials for their part in America's destructive policies in El Salvador or elsewhere, but this specific protest was meant to underline the importance

The death of campus radicalism

It's spring again, folks. I know it is spring, not only because of the warm weather, but because the circus has returned to town.

The circus of which I speak is comprised of our merry band of campus radicals, such clown troupes as New Wave, CIA Off-Campus, and the various committees for the support of "Sandinista Boy Scouts." In short, the 40 different Communist front groups for the 40 Communists on campus.

Alas, the circus is going out of business. Not for lack of funds — the Student Senate is always willing to give them money for spray paint. The circus withers because the performers are sick and tired of their incessant whining. The real problem with the radicals these days seems to be the inability to rally behind a single cause of significant importance.

Two weeks ago, they rioted over styrofoam, while wearing it on their heads. Unfortunately, the clowns were out of their forum, and the act just didn't fly. Next week, they're going to protest the immigration of Wombats from the planet Anthrax. Or at least I wouldn't be surprised if they did.

Most recently, the radicals held a protest against "the U.S. secret war in El Salvador." It was held, as usual, on the Pentacrest. Apparently, most of the performers are getting tired of their own inane protests, as only about 20 of them bothered to show up. Their only spectators were Campus Review staff members who seemed to feel more pity than disgust for the naifs, and did not even bother to photograph them.

The Maranathas were out preaching on another part of the Pentacrest. They did much better than the heathens by attracting about 60 spectators, all of whom ignored the protest.

Despite the utter lack of attention, the radicals continued their unintelligible yammering, and proclaimed a march on the ROTC Detachment, Iowa City's "major military installation." They lined up, and with banners in hand, set off for the Armory. Within the first block, they had lost most of their participants, probably because of heat prostration. Attrition thinned their ranks until only six hardy souls remained. I also went to the Armory, accompanied by my conservative friend, Twit, in order to view the spectacle.

Meanwhile, Campus Security busily took home movies.

The radicals called the U.S. Embassy in San Salvador, but the embassy hung up on them. "They told us they're not interested," one radical said to a friend of mine. I was not surprised at this lack of interest, and neither were the Army cadets I was standing with.

This failed protest demonstrates the condition of campus radicalism in the 1980s. Back in the 1960s, students had clear-cut reasons to protest, such as the fight for civil rights. Few such unifying issues exist today, and those that do exist will usually not be affected by campus protests. Protesting the actions of the Salvadoran death squads, especially those of the FLMN, may be a laudable cause. However, I doubt that the Salvadorans care what New Wave and their cronies think. It seems to me that the campus radicals continue their buffoonery for three reasons.

First of all, these people like attention. Their causes tend to be so ignorant that they might as well be ranting about the evils of Lime Jell-O, for all the good they accomplish. They get in the newspaper, and occasionally on television. This gives them a misguided feeling of importance.

Secondly, activism makes them feel better. They protest something, and feel they've worked to actually solve the perceived problem. The fact that they haven't made a whit's difference means nothing to them; they choose to ignore reality. This is part of what makes them radicals.

But last of all, I must say I honestly believe that a few of these people are trying to make some sort of a positive difference. I know of at least one person in these groups who was tortured by the Israelis, and who therefore obviously has a good reason for being peeved at Israel.

Others go to Central America in order to help the poor, which is also worthy of praise. But these people comprise only a minute fraction of the people involved in activism on this campus, compared to the numbers of limelight-grabbing demagogues. The majority of them only want attention, or merely want to feel better about themselves by being "politically correct" (and publicly inane).

If these people really want to be of any use, I have a suggestion. They should stop protesting issues like the civil war in El Salvador and other causes over which they have absolutely no control. They should stop protesting problems like graffiti and styrofoam to draw attention to themselves, as such protests only make them look more foolish and hypocritical than is necessary.

What they should do is to get involved in local charities and public services that work against hunger and homelessness, as well as other real social ills, in our own community. The publicity would not usually be as high, but I think that the radicals might even accomplish something useful. They might even gain a little credibility. They might help someone.

But I know that they will not follow my advice, as the vast majority of them just want to riot on the Pentacrest, spouting nonsense. In fact, I rather suspect a few of them will send in misspelled letters to the editor, berating me for daring to be politically incorrect.

Campus radicalism, as a viable force, has died. It is not because all college students are "evil conservatives," but because the New Left is comprised mainly of ignorant demagogues leading even more ignorant vagrants (but I don't intend to demean vagrants; some of my best friends have no lawful means of support).

The radicals mindlessly copy the techniques their parents used in the 1960s, not realizing that these methods are ill-suited for the present day. College students have evolved past the point where such methods would stir them to action. They demand moderate, open-minded, intelligent discourse, which does not hide behind stupid chants and slogans, but instead attacks issues head-on and makes them seem relevant to the individual. The New Left, like their intellectual twins, the YAF, do not offer such discourse, and fail to gain widespread support as a result.

Both shoulders

To the Editor:

As a first-year graduate student, I've noticed a phenomenon at the UI that I think is prevalent at other colleges, universities and high schools around the country as well. That is, the practice of wearing a backpack strapped to one shoulder only.

Except for those on bicycles, the majority of students wear backpacks in this fashion. I suppose I am a nonconformist, but I've always worn my backpack strapped to both shoulders.

Many times, I've walked past a group of students and have heard the word "geek" uttered under their breaths.

The advantages of using both shoulders, however, are numerous: it provides greater balance, is more therapeutic, leaves both arms free, keeps you warmer on those cold winter days, and facilitates defensive maneuvers. For these reasons, I suggest we all put practicality over fashion, and wear our packs on both shoulders.

HUD probe points to fraud by Reagan administration

WASHINGTON (AP)—An investigation into a federal housing renovation program has revealed a pattern in which former Reagan administration officials raked in handsome profits on contracts to rehabilitate subsidized apartments for the poor.

The inspector general of the Department of Housing and Urban Development drew a comparison with the Pentagon procurement scandal, with former government officials drawing big fees as consultants to developers seeking government contracts.

But Inspector General Paul Adams said he had found no evidence that active HUD officials had been involved in influence-peddling and made no charges of criminal activity.

The investigation by the department's inspector general, announced Wednesday, also listed several former top-level HUD officials who later won contracts as developers of rehabilitation projects.

The consultants — who charged fees up to $1.3 million — included President Ronald Reagan's first interior secretary, James Watt; the late John Mitchell, attorney general under President Nixon; former Republican Sen. Ed Brooke of Massachusetts; and former Kentucky Gov. Louis Nunn, also a Republican.

Adams, in an interview Thursday, said that while he had found no illegality or criminal activity in the investigation into HUD's Moderate Rehabilitation Program, contracts had been distributed in ways that suggested favoritism and insider information was used to direct HUD awards for projects.

Money for over half the units audited went to just 10 states, who by HUD formula were fairly entitled only 16 percent.

Adams said he had turned over the

James Watt

700-page investigative report to the Justice Department's public integrity branch for review.

The rehab program is a $225 million a year endeavor that has survived in Congress despite efforts by the Reagan administration to kill it. Through it, developers win contracts to acquire and renovate existing housing and receive HUD guarantees of subsidized rents for 15 years.

Adams said in a memo to HUD Secretary Jack Kemp that developers and local public housing agencies "were led to believe the consultants enjoyed a special relationship with persons making recommendations and decisions."

Interviews with housing officials suggested favoritism in the program was widely suspected.

"This is not news to me; it was suspected," said Gordon Cavanaugh, attorney for the Council of Large Public Housing Authorities.

One HUD official, speaking only on the condition of anonymity, said, "This was the road to the gravy train — you come in here and work a few years and then get out and make millions in mod-rehab."

Committee gives S&Ls bailout time

WASHINGTON — The House Banking Committee voted Thursday to make savings and loan owners put nearly $13 billion more of their own money at risk as the price for a $90 billion federal bailout but gave them 3½ more years than President George Bush wants to do it.

Eleven Republicans joined all but four Democrats in a 36-15 vote to delay until January 1994 the June 1991 deadline that Bush had proposed for the thrift industry to come up with new "hard cash" capital.

Several other efforts to further weaken the administration's bailout bill were afoot with at least 29 other amendments on capital requirements before the committee.

"Without real capital — hard capital — the taxpayers have no protection" from further raids on federal deposit insurance funds by imprudent S&L operators, said the committee's chairman, Rep. Henry Gonzalez, D-Texas.

The administration and others have argued that the S&L crisis was caused by operators entering the business with little or no money of their own and using federally insured deposits for loans to risky and often fraudulent real estate and other ventures.

Including interest, the taxpayer cost of backing up the federal insurance guarantees to depositors whose money was lost is expected to be well over $200 billion over the next 30 years under Bush's bailout plan.

Opponents of the plan said many of the nation's thrifts would be forced out of business or into mergers by rapidly imposing stricter capital standards.

Griffey takes dad's advice

SEATTLE (AP) — Rookie Ken Griffey Jr. of the Seattle Mariners isn't threatening to eclipse his father's major league totals just yet, but he is certainly showing signs that he could be headed that way.

The 19-year-old Griffey has eight hits in eight straight at-bats after going 4-for-4 with a game-winning homer and a two-run single in a Mariners' 7-6 victory over Toronto Wednesday.

A hit in his next at-bat would give him the team record for consecutive hits.

Griffey went into Thursday night's game sharing the record with Harold Reynolds and Darnell Coles, who each strung together eight straight hits last season.

The major league record for consecutive hits is 12, set in 1938 by Pinky Higgins of the Boston Red Sox and matched by Walt Dropo of Detroit in 1952.

Griffey's first three hits, a double and two singles, came off Toronto starter Dave Stieb, who had held left-handed batters to just .149 hitting, lowest in the American League.

"My teammates said he'll (Stieb) give me something good to hit so I should just look for my pitch," Griffey said. "I've had an aggressive attitude lately. I'm not happy with just one hit a game."

"My dad has always told me to go out, have fun and let my natural ability take over. He always tells me not to worry, just keep swinging the bat." — Ken Griffey Jr.

The rookie and his father, Cincinnati outfielder Ken Griffey Sr., form the first father-son duo to play in the major leagues at the same time. The senior Griffey is a three-time National League all-star with over 2,000 hits and two world championships with the Reds.

The younger Griffey credits frequent advice from his father as a key to his success.

"My dad has always told me to go out, have fun and let my natural ability take over," Griffey said. "He always tells me not to worry, just keep swinging the bat."

That advice came in handy during a season-opening batting slump.

After hitting a double off Oakland ace Dave Stewart in his first major league at-bat, Griffey went hitless in his next 17 trips to the plate.

Griffey's teammates echoed the advice of his father, telling him to keep swinging despite the slump.

"They told me not to worry and just go out and swing the bat, just like my dad always said," Griffey recalled. "A lot of them had a hard time hitting when they came into the league. Harold (Reynolds) said he was 0-for-30 before he got his first hit."

Griffey snapped out of his slump in a big way, hitting a home run on the first pitch in his first Kingdome at-bat. He homered in his first at-bat the following night, sending him on his way to an 18-for-45 stretch, a .400 pace. His batting average has climbed from .056 to .302.

Seattle was hesitant to bring Griffey up to the major league team after only one season in the minors. He forged a place on the roster with a record-breaking spring campaign.

"We heard he was a good player and tonight he showed it," Toronto's Frank Tomac said after Griffey's first major league at-bat. "I know they kind of wanted to send him down to the minors, but they didn't have a choice but to keep him."

Griffey's exploits are not limited to the batter's box. He made six putouts Wednesday, including an over-the-shoulder catch and a diving catch of a Pat Borders' line drive.

"He put a show on, didn't he?" Seattle manager Jim Lefebvre said. "He just has a great natural hitting action and has such great speed that he covers a lot of ground in the outfield."

"He's such a super talent, but the more games he plays the better he'll get."

Drake will unveil new Hawkeyes

A couple of factors may be in the Iowa women's track team's corner this weekend.

Women's Track

When the Hawkeyes compete in the 80th Drake Relays today and Saturday at Drake Stadium in Des Moines, they take a number of trump cards into the world-class event.

Uniforms: Iowa will unveil its new running gear this weekend. Iowa Coach Jerry Hassard said the uniforms are "sharp and a little racier than what we've had in the past. I think it will give us some momentum."

Hawks outlast Bucks in playoff opener

ATLANTA (AP) — Dominique Wilkins and Glenn Rivers scored seven points each in the final 6:34 Thursday night to spark the Atlanta Hawks to a 100-92 victory over the Milwaukee Bucks in the opening round of the NBA playoffs.

At New York, Gerald Wilkins scored a season-high 34 points and Patrick Ewing had 26, including the go-ahead basket with 2:50 remaining as the New York Knicks defeated Philadelphia 102-96 in the opener of their first-round NBA playoff series.

The Hawks took the lead in the best-of-five series by maintaining their mastery of the Bucks this season. Atlanta beat Milwaukee in all six regular-season meetings.

Rivers broke a 79-79 tie by hitting a free throw with 6:34 remaining and referee Wally Rooney stuck Bucks assistant coach Frank Hamblen with a technical foul before Rivers could shoot his second free throw.

Reggie Theus made the technical shot and Rivers then added his second free throw, giving the Hawks an 82-79 lead.

Wilkins, who finished with 28 points, stretched the lead to 84-79 before the Bucks hit two consecutive baskets to get within one, but Atlanta opened the lead to five again on another basket by Wilkins and two free throws by Cliff Livingston.

Milwaukee never got closer than three points the rest of the way.

Rivers, who had 15 points, stretched the lead to 98-91 on a 3-pointer from the right corner with 53 seconds left. It was Atlanta's biggest lead of the night until Wilkins' two free throws with nine seconds left provided the final margin.

The 76ers, who won four of six games between the teams in the regular season, including two victories at Madison Square Garden, stayed close the entire game, never trailing by more than seven points.

The Knicks trailed 92-91 after 76ers rookie Hersey Hawkins' layup with 3:11 left.

Then Ewing drove into the lane for the field goal that put the Knicks ahead for good. Wilkins, whose previous season high was 30 points on Nov. 15 at Houston, then made it 95-92 with a jumper with 2:08 left.

Iowa trio eyes graduation while NBA draft day nears

BELLEVUE, Iowa (AP) — For the time being, Roy Marble is thinking about the present, not the future.

The way the former Iowa basketball star sees it, he has done all he can to impress the professional scouts, so why worry about when he'll get drafted.

"I'm very optimistic," Marble said after a recent benefit game. "I'm not guaranteed anything. Right now, I'm concentrating on my studies and these games. A lot of that takes up time so I don't have to worry about the draft."

Marble's stock in the June 27 National Basketball Association draft rose after his performance at the All-Star Classic in Orlando, Fla., earlier this month. The 6-foot-6 guard was voted the most valuable player after finishing the three-day tournament with 68 points, 22 rebounds and six steals.

"From what I hear — from the evaluations down there before I left — I'm No. 1 or 2 at my position," Marble said. "I think it really helped tremendously."

Marble said the Milwaukee Bucks, Golden State Warriors, San Antonio Spurs and Seattle SuperSonics have shown the most interest in him. He expects to be among the top 15 to 20 players selected.

"I'll wait and see what happens in June," Marble said. "I just want a chance. I think I'll hit the first round, get a good shot."

Marble's senior teammates, B.J. Armstrong and Ed Horton, also hope to get drafted, although the draft is only two rounds this year.

Armstrong suffered a setback when he broke his left hand while practicing for the all-star games in Orlando and is now wearing a large cast on his hand and wrist. He said he's not sure how the injury will affect his draft chances.

"You can't know until the draft," Armstrong said. "I'm just concentrating on my studies. I'm graduating in two weeks.

"I would just love to get the opportunity to play in the NBA," he added. "I just want a tryout with some team. I'll be excited to find out, just like everyone else."

Horton led the Big Ten Conference in rebounding, earned first-team all-conference honors and averaged 18.3 points a game. He said his rebounding is probably what helped his NBA prospects the most.

"I rebounded well and the team did well," Horton said. "It boosts me. It showed one of my strengths."

Marble, Iowa's career scoring leader, said he has been encouraged by the recent play of former Hawkeye Kevin Gamble with the Boston Celtics.

Gamble, who played two years at Iowa with Marble, Armstrong and Horton, has averaged better than 22 points a game since replacing the injured Dennis Johnson in the starting lineup.

"It makes you more hungry," Marble said. "Having played with him, he does have something in common. It gives you incentive to do what you want to do."

Philadelphia forces seventh game

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Tim Kerr and Derrick Smith each scored twice as the Philadelphia Flyers beat the Pittsburgh Penguins 6-2 Thursday night and tied their NHL playoff series at three games apiece.

The Flyers and Penguins meet Saturday night at Pittsburgh for the Patrick Division title. The winner advances to the Stanley Cup semifinals, beginning Monday night at Montreal.

The Canadiens reached the semifinals with a 4-1 victory over Boston in the Adams Division final.

The Penguins had taken a 3-2 lead in the series Tuesday night at home when Mario Lemieux, the league's top scorer with 85 goals and 199 points, scored five goals and three assists.

But the Flyers blanked Lemieux, and the young Penguins couldn't put the series away. The Flyers scored two first-period goals, and twice answered after Pittsburgh came within a goal at 2-1 and 3-2 in the second period.

The Flyers took a 2-0 first period lead on Kerr's 13th and 14th goals of the playoffs — nine in this series. Kerr beat goalie Tom Barasso high to the glove side from the top of the slot at 4:28 for a 1-0 lead. He took a pass from behind the net by Mike Bullard.

Kerr's second goal came at 18:22 on a deflection of a shot from just inside the blue line by Mark Howe.

The Penguins cut it to 2-1 at 2:18 of the second on a power-play goal by Randy Cunneynworth. Cunneynworth followed his shot off the boards to beat goalie Ron Hextall, who misplayed it as he slipped to the ice at the side of the net.

But the Flyers struck back 70 seconds later as Smith scored from the right of the crease.

Less than two minutes later, at 5:24, the Penguins' Dan Quinn faked a shot and passed to Cunneynworth, who pushed it past Hextall's stick side to make it 3-2.

Iowa pitcher Tami Chown winds up during a game at the Hawkeye Softball Complex earlier this season. Chown and Terri McFarland have paced the Hawkeyes' pitching since Diana Repp injured her knee earlier this season.

Hawks travel to Michigan with league up for grabs

By Erica Welland

The Iowa softball team is trying to forget the past, especially against Michigan today and Saturday in Ann Arbor, Mich.

The four-game series is crucial for both the Big Ten leading Hawkeyes and the second place Wolverines.

"Obviously we're going to have our hands full," Blevins said. "We're not going in in the position I'd hoped we'd be in."

hoping for a sweep. A sweep of the Wildcats would have made the Hawkeyes grasp on the Big Ten lead a lot tighter.

The Hawkeyes are currently eighth in the NCAA Division I Coaches' Poll with an all-time record and an 11-5 league record.

49ers sign Haight

Former Iowa football player Dave Haight signed as a free agent with the NFL's San Francisco 49ers Thursday. Haight, whose brother Mike plays with the New York Jets, was left out of last weekend's NFL draft. Four Hawkeyes were selected in the draft. Joe Mott, Marv Cook and Bob Kratch were all selected in the third round while Chuck Hartlieb was picked in the 12th and final round. Haight was a first team all-Big Ten selection last year.

Stringer signs recruit

Necole Tunsil of St. Petersburg, Fla., has signed a national letter of intent to attend the University of Iowa and play basketball, Iowa Head Coach Vivian Stringer announced Thursday. As a senior, Tunsil tallied a triple double, averaging 25.7 points, 11.2 rebounds, and 10.4 assists per game. She led Lakewood to a 30-1 record and to the school's first Florida Class 3A championship title. In the title game of the state championship, Tunsil scored 44 points and grabbed 21 rebounds to lead her squad to a 78-75 double overtime victory over Sanford Seminole. Tunsil is a first team Parade All-American, only the second Florida player ever named to the team, and a second team USA Today All-American.

Bird will miss opener

BOSTON (AP) — Larry Bird will not be accompanying the Boston Celtics to Detroit for the first-round playoff series starting Friday night, officials of the NBA team said Thursday. "Nothing's changed, he's still the same," said Celtics public relations director Jeffrey Twiss. "We just think he'd be better off staying here and practicing instead of going to Detroit and sitting ... most of the time."

The announcement came after Bird's third day of scrimmages with his Boston teammates. Until Thursday, team officials were hesitant to rule out the possibility of Bird playing against the Pistons.

Celtics officials said Bird will work out alone at Hellenic College while the team is in Detroit.

Bird underwent surgery on both heels Nov. 19 and missed the last 76 games of the NBA's regular season.

He was placed on the playoff roster Sunday. General Manager Jan Volk said Bird was activated more so he would possibly be available after the first round, if the Celtics survive it, than to have him to face Detroit.

Skinner gives up coaching

PALMER, Iowa (AP) — Alden Skinner, whose successful basketball teams brought national attention to this tiny Pocahontas County town, probably won't be coaching next year. Skinner is the father of Iowa guard Troy Skinner.

Skinner said Wednesday he has been unable to find a coaching job that is tied with an administrative position, so he'll continue as superintendent in Palmer, which will house grades kindergarten through eight in the combined Pomeroy-Palmer school district.

The high school students from Palmer, which has an enrollment of 41 in the top three grades, will go to Pomeroy.

Pomeroy-Palmer officials offered Skinner the basketball coaching job for the combined district, but he turned it down. The district then hired Clive Clark, who has been the head coach at Pomeroy the past four years.

"My feeling was that they weren't comfortable with me," Skinner said, "and I didn't want to do it unless we were all pulling from the same position."

attire — maybe Hassard isn't too far off. "The uniforms are 10 times better," Iowa runner Jeanne Kruckeberg said.

Officials: This advantage is clear cut. Hassard has been picked as the women's referee during the meet. That would allow him exclusive rights on rules interpretations and final judgement in all situations.

Enough said. "It's quite an awesome task," Hassard said, "but I'm honored to do it. It's certainly a big undertaking."

But one he certainly wouldn't pass up. "I'll be a lot of responsibility, but I'm looking forward to the chance to do it."

Beyond those far-flung examples, the Hawkeyes have a healthy number of athletes scheduled to take part in the invitation-only event.

In the 1,500-meter run, Iowa's Kruckeberg and Rachelle Roberts are among the field of eight participants. Kruckeberg came in fifth at the meet last season and has already produced an NCAA-qualifying time in the event this season.

"I try to approach each race the same," Kruckeberg said. "It will be nice to have someone on our team in the race, and I hope it goes well."

Roberts took the 1,500 title at the prestigious Kansas Relays last weekend.

"Drake is a good opportunity to run against some of the best athletes in the world," Roberts said.

While Kruckeberg has run under 4 minutes, 20 seconds in the event, Roberts has never dipped below 4:28. Hassard feels the invitation was based upon Robert's win last weekend.

"I think (Roberts) was invited because of how strong she was at Kansas," Hassard said.

In other short-distance events, Karen Layne is the fourth alternate in the 400-meter dash, while Kruckeberg has made the 800-meter run field, but won't compete.

Kruckeberg will concentrate on the 1,500 and relay events. Iowa will line up in the 400-meter relay, sprint medley and distance medley.

In field events, Traci Claussen made the 5-foot-8 qualifying mark in the high jump, while junior Becki Borg will be in the triple jump.

Laura Kriener is slated for the shot put and will be in the discus with teammate Sara Joens. Joens will also throw the javelin.

"We're expecting rain over the weekend, so we're just hoping the weather will cooperate," Hassard said. "If it doesn't, we'll just have to work with what we've got."

for second place at 6-4 in the conference and 29-13 overall.

"It's a real tight race now," Blevins said. "We needed that second win against Northwestern. Michigan is right with us in position in the conference. We've just played a little more."

"Michigan's going to be tough," sophomore Andi Meyers said. "We've had some tough losses, but there's nothing we can do about the past. We just have to play our game, keep attacking at the plate and keep our offense going."

"The team's offense is still a little patchy," Blevins said, but its defense has been consistently strong.

Iowa's pitching squad may be hurting in numbers since sophomore Diana Repp hurt her knee earlier in the season and can't pitch. But according to Blevins, sophomore Tami Chown and Terri McFarland have been picking up the slack.

"Tami Chown did some real strong pitching in our win against Northwestern," Blevins said. "With Diana Repp hurt, it doesn't offer us as much flexibility or backup if someone is having an off day. But we have to pace (Repp). We can't impose too much on her. She's done real well for us in offense."

While Iowa could be at a disadvantage, playing in Ann Arbor instead of Iowa City, Blevins is hoping that consistency will make up the difference.

"They play extremely well at home," Blevins said. "They also have a lot of fans. Being at home and having a lot of vocal support, they'll be hard to play. We need to have far more consistency, but our defense has been good. We just have to keep good, upbeat intensity."

Remarks force judge to default

CINCINNATI (AP) — A federal judge disqualified himself Thursday from a case involving an Ohio bookmaker linked to Pete Rose, one day after law professors said he should step down for remarks defending the Cincinnati Reds manager.

U.S. District Judge Carl B. Rubin filed a one-sentence order with the court clerk, taking himself off the case of Ronald Peters, who said he took bets from Rose.

"The... case is hereby returned to the clerk of this court for the procedure of reassignment," the order said.

Rubin, who was to sentence Peters on tax evasion and drug trafficking charges, was replaced by Judge S. Arthur Spiegel.

Linda D. Kloth, chief administrator of federal court in Cincinnati, said Rubin removed himself from the case because "he just felt there was an appearance of impropriety."

Hawkeyes adopt new attitude for Big Tens

By Steve Reed
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa women's tennis team can only improve on their conference standing as they enter the Big Ten Championships in Bloomington, Ind.

The Hawkeyes, who finished tied for ninth in the conference with Ohio State, are seeded 10th and open this weekend's tournament against sixth-seeded Purdue.

Iowa comes in with an 8-14 overall record, and 1-8 in the Big Ten, while Purdue is 11-11 overall, and 3-6 in the conference.

Although the Boilermakers handled the Hawkeyes 8-1 in Iowa City this year, Iowa Coach Micki Schillig said her team is ready to get some revenge.

"I think we have a really good chance at beating Purdue," Schillig said. "We had a really poor showing against them during the season and we were just flat."

Women's Tennis

"The girls are excited about playing them. We're not looking past them, win or lose. We've focused our thoughts on beating Purdue."

Iowa sophomore Leslie Dietz agrees that the Hawkeyes have a good chance to beat the Boilermakers.

"Confidence is an attitude and we have a lot of it," Dietz said. "We just have to go in there with a winning attitude and play hard. Everybody is excited that we drew Purdue because we think we can beat them."

Iowa will go with the same lineup they've used the past three weeks featuring Madeleine Willard at the No. 1 singles position. She'll be followed by Liz Canzoneri, Tracey Peyton, Patti DeSimone, Karen Muldowney and Colleen Nichols.

The Hawkeyes doubles teams will consist of Canzoneri and Willard at the No. 1 slot, Dietz and DeSimone at No. 2 and Muldowney and Nichols at the No. 3 position.

The Iowa-Purdue bout will begin at 8 a.m. today and if the Hawkeyes win they will play in the early afternoon, according to Schillig. A loss means they're back on the courts at 8 a.m. Saturday.

"Last year we were in pretty much the same situation," Schillig said. "We didn't have a great season but everyone was ready to go for the conference championship. They came out and played hard."

Last season the Hawkeyes captured sixth-place at the Big Ten Championship, and Dietz said that's not out of their reach this year.

"We played well lately, plus we're fired up," Dietz said. "So we feel if we play well we can hit sixth in the Big Ten."

Carlesimo ponders Kentucky job

SOUTH ORANGE, N.J. (AP) — P.J. Carlesimo met with Seton Hall officials and his returning basketball players Thursday and was quoted as telling them that nothing has been finalized about taking the coach's job at Kentucky.

Seton Hall athletic director Larry Keating said Carlesimo faces "a very tough decision" and it could be a couple of days before anything is decided.

"I don't know what their timetable is," Keating said of Kentucky. "I would think they would want it settled as soon as possible. I think he (P.J.) has asked for time for considering and that's what's happening."

A source close to Kentucky, however, said Carlesimo's selection will be announced before the NCAA hands down sanctions against the school's program, something that could be as far off as three weeks. After his meeting with Keating, Carlesimo walked into Walsh Gymnasium at about 3:30 p.m. looking a little haggard, his sports jacket slung over his shoulder and carrying a small leather suitcase.

Carlesimo walked into his office and his players followed for a 15-minute meeting.

"All he told us is he went down there and talked with people," forward Frantz Volcy said.

Forward Michael Cooper, the Pirates sixth man last season, refused to comment.

Assistant coach Bruce Hamburger said that all Carlesimo told the team was that he knew they had read and heard a lot lately, but that nothing was finalized.

Carlesimo had two days of interviews at Kentucky earlier this week and sources told The Associated Press that the 39-year-old two-time Big East Conference coach of the year had agreed to become the Wildcats next coach.

Carlesimo has not commented on the report and he again refused to talk with the media on Thursday about the situation.

Keating and Carlesimo met for between two and three hours in what Keating described as a good meeting.

"There is really nothing to discuss," Keating said after the meeting. "I don't think they'll be anything for a couple of days."

Keating said he could not say whether Kentucky offered Carlesimo a contract, but just as quickly said Carlesimo is facing "a very tough decision."

"Obviously we want him to stay here," Keating said. "He has an opportunity to go to one of the top two or three programs in the country."

Kentucky has been under investigation by the NCAA for 18 alleged violations and it is likely to be placed on probation.

Composers plan coup de Clapp

The UI Composer's Workshop will celebrate the 200th anniversary of the French Revolution with a musical "coup d'etat," symbolically taking over the UI School of Music starting at 7 p.m. Saturday.

The celebration will include two formal concerts, at 8 p.m. in Clapp Recital Hall and 9:30 p.m. in Harper Hall. For an hour before the first, and again between the concerts, there will be performance "exhibits" in a variety of locations throughout the Music Building, including Voxman Hall, classrooms and stairwells. Audience members will be encouraged to stroll through the building, visiting as many different performance spaces as they wish during these times.

The exhibit performances, which will be essentially the same at 7 p.m. and at 8:40 p.m., will all be repeated several times, so that listeners can go from place to place and be able to hear everything that is being played.

"We want it to be like a fair," said Marc Weber, a doctoral student in music composition and assistant director of the Composer's Workshop. "If you miss the beginning of a piece you can just wait until it's repeated, then go on to something else."

The works performed during the exhibit times will be Weber's "Caprices" for piano and tape, in Room 1020; his "Found Sound," a piece featuring amplified sounds, in Rooms 1008 and 1010; Kenneth Baker's "Marimbas for Marc" for three marimbas in Voxman Hall;

Michael Miller's "BlakeStein" for solo alto and speaking chorus, in the main stairwell at the front of the Music Building; and Dana Honn's "Paths" for solo viola, in a back stairwell of the building.

The program for the first concert, at 8 p.m. in Clapp Recital Hall, will be "Intrada for Brass and Percussion" by Duane Heller; "Dialogue for Two Horns" by Andrew Boysen; "I Was Blind" for assorted voices by Carmen Olland; and "Compose Yourself" for brass and percussion by Lisa Somodi. Heller's piece is the winner of this year's Ensemble Composition Contest sponsored by the UI chapter of Phi Mu Alpha, a national music honorary society.

The program for the closing concert, at 9:30 p.m. in Harper Hall, will be an improvisation for solo electric guitar, by Andrew Parrott; "Duo for Violin and Piano" by David Rogers; "Star Shell" for flute, violin, cello and piano by Elaine Erickson; "Song of Ulmo" for cello and tape by Mark Schultz; and "Meditations in Counterpoint" for string quartet by Andrew Boysen.

All of the composers are graduate and undergraduate students in the UI School of Music except for Erickson, a 1977 doctoral recipient in composition from the UI who is currently a resident of Baltimore; Heller, who teaches music theory and composition at Humboldt State University in Arcata, Calif.; and Schultz, who is a composer working at the University of Texas in Austin. Erickson will attend the performances.

As Weber explains it, "The original idea of the concert being in all parts of the building was of freeing new music from traditional performance spaces. Multiple spaces allow the composers greater freedom of expression because now they have more individual say in the performance environment."

"Then, when we realized that it was indeed the 200th anniversary of the French Revolution, it seemed as if there were a natural association just waiting to be made. The connection is with the idea of revolution and freedom from an old order, which we naturally associate with the events of 1789. The French Revolution in particular was cultural as well as political. For a time, everything in French culture reflected the idea of breaking out of old molds for the purpose of greater personal expression."

Weber is quick to add, however, that "Audience members will be relieved to know that we expect no heads to roll!"

The French Revolution, which is traditionally dated from the storming of the Bastille prison in Paris on July 14, 1789, is being celebrated with a myriad of commemorative and cultural events around the globe this year. The anniversary was recently commemorated during an International Dance Concert presented by the UI Dance Department.

All of the Composer's Workshop performances on Saturday are free and open to the public.

Film festivals honor fruits of UI labor

By Locke Peterseim
The Daily Iowan

You're a college student, and you've just spent anywhere from $500 to $1,500 on your film or video project. Now what? After you've shown your work to every relative or friend you can collar, how do you get complete strangers to view the fruit of your artistic labor?

For many broadcasting and film students in the UI Communication Studies Department the answer is to enter your work in festivals around the nation and world. And for some, the rewards are festival screenings of their pieces and even distinguished honors and awards.

Barry Kimm and Jim Lipetsky both had their 16mm films shown at the Athens (that's Ohio, not Greece or Georgia) International Film Festival. In addition to "Measuring Oxford," the aforementioned Athens entry, Kimm also had his video "Anywhere is Better than Nowhere" broadcast on WTTW Image Union, a Chicago PBS station.

Lipetsky's "Nobody's Home" was a "Film Production I" class project. Normally "Pro I" films are not "printed" (a process involving making copies from a negative), but in the past year several students have decided to print and enter their "Pro I" films with good results.

Eric Mueller entered his "Pro I" film, "One Day the Refrigerator Broke" in 13 festivals. In return, his work, which he describes as "an experimental narrative about a man trying to come to terms with his own mortality — which coincides with his broken refrigerator," was honored by five festivals, including screenings at the Athens and Visual Studies Workshop National Student Film Festivals. It was also named the Regional Student Academy Award winner, given first place at the Marin County Film Festival and awarded a cash award at the Ann Arbor Film Festival.

Mueller said that attending festivals where his work is entered gives him the opportunity to meet peers from other film schools and encounter different styles of student filmmaking. Personally, he said the recognition bolsters his self-confidence: "It tells you that you're doing something OK, and encourages you to continue in the same vein."

Another multiple-award winner was Kyle Bergersen's "Electric Jesus," which received the Regional Student Emmy Award and Honorable Mention at the Oswego Film Festival, in addition to being shown at the Uppsala International and Visual Studies Workshop National Student Film Festivals. "Electric Jesus" was also shown at a German festival. Bergersen describes the film as "a satiric look into the attractive nature of TV evangelism as traced back to its electrical origins."

Bergersen finds the recognition from festivals satisfying in that "if you put $1,000 into a film and nobody sees it, then it's money out the window." He also noted that winning the regional Emmy has possibly "opened a door" toward getting an Academy of Television Arts and Sciences interest.

Last year Jonathon Meenick and Dirk Eitzen's video "Around Round Barns" won the national Emmy for Best Documentary.

Other students who have received honors from festivals in the past year are Lane Wyrick ("Culture Shell," a Regional Student Academy Award winner); Sally Mendzela ("Before I Wake," shown at the Ann Arbor Film Festival) and Andy Langton ("Eye Play," also shown in Ann Arbor).

The Broadcasting and Film Student Show will be tonight from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in the Communication Studies Building, Room 101. As with previous semester-end shows, the program will include recent student works from film, television, radio and video classes. In addition, a second screening of the show will be held on May 5.

Sex or death — Which is your deepest fear?

By Locke Peterseim The Daily Iowan

Fear is a funny thing. Sometimes that which frightens us most is the completely fantastical, the irrational — that which we know could never happen. For instance, a father leaves his wife and children, only to reappear in a new family three years later.

But other times, fear springs from the everyday — those commonplace anxieties and occurrences with which we've all had firsthand experience. For instance, a 3-year-old plays kiddy-face with a hurtling semi, only to bounce back from the dead a few days later murderously wielding a stainless steel surgical scalpel.

But which is ultimately more frightening? Which form of terror strikes coldest into our hearts? In the interest of reader service, and in order to counter wild accusations that our reviews are only loose opinion and never hard facts, we present the following facts about two recent films in town — "See You in the Morning" and "Pet Sematary" — in order to let you the reader decide which is scarier:

Movies

"See You in the Morning" — Jeff Bridges, star of "Tucker" and "King Kong," is Larry Livingstone, a psychiatrist who runs into all sorts of problems when he tries to make a new life with a new family and a new home in former Native American-populated Manhattan.

"Pet Sematary" — Dale Midkiff, star of "Elvis and Me" and "Casual Sex?" is Louis Creed, a doctor who runs into all sorts of problems when he tries to make a new life with an accident-prone family and a new home near a former Native American burial ground in Maine.

"See You" — Much of the narrative revolves around old family photos.

"Pet" — Much of the narrative revolves around old family graveyards.

"See You" — Supporting cast includes former TV detective and "Logan's Run" star Farrah Fawcett.

"Pet" — Supporting cast includes former TV cop and "Munsters" star Fred Gwynne.

"See You" — In the past, director-screenwriter Alan J. Pakula has dealt with Jane Fonda.

"Pet" — In the past, author-screenwriter Stephen King has dealt with vampires, werewolves and rabid dogs.

"See You" — The eeriness of many scenes is increased with disturbing cello music played by a pale, sickly child.

"Pet" — The eeriness of many scenes is increased with disturbing choral music sung by ghostly children.

"See You" — Characters spend a lot of time unearthing buried fears while talking about "the externalization of confused identification roles" and "the transposed projection of maternal guilt."

"Pet" — Characters spend a lot of time unearthing buried bodies while talking about "sour ground" and "the soil of a man's heart."

"See You" — Larry is tormented by the returning temptation of an ex-wife Farrah Fawcett, who's on-screen presence is strengthened by her highly visible hair.

"Pet" — Louis is tormented by the returning vision of ex-patient Victor Pascoe, whose onscreen presence is strengthened by his highly visible brain tissue.

"See You" — Thankfully did not show Jeff Bridges suffering impotency with Farrah Fawcett in graphic detail.

"Pet" — Thankfully did not show child getting hit by truck in graphic detail.

"See You" — Jeff Bridges wanders through the film singing off-key.

"Pet" — Shambling undead corpses wander throughout the film, wailing and screaming.

"See You" — Has creepy cameo appearance by "Alice" star Linda Lavin.

"Pet" — Has creepy cameo appearance by author Stephen King.

"See You" — Son visits father's grave.

"Pet" — Father exhumes son's grave.

"See You" — Has disturbing scene in which father figure, armed with Spockian child psychology, makes peace with stepdaughter Drew Barrymore.

"Pet" — Has disturbing scene in which father figure, armed with syringe, battles demonic scapel-wielding toddler.

"See You" — Contains cute mutts, divorce, suicide, heart disease, kleptomania and self-analyzing 5-year-olds.

"Pet" — Contains zombie cats, dead rats, blood, brains, necrophilia and scapel-waving 3-year-olds.

"See You" — Keeps you on the edge of unconsciousness with mind-numbing boredom.

"Pet" — Keeps you on the edge of your seat with gut-wrenching suspense.

"See You" — Film reaches satisfactory conclusion as husband and wife have sex in the bathroom.

"Pet" — Film reaches satisfactory conclusion as wife guts husband with a kitchen knife.

Perky Kylie Minogue locomotes into serious silver screen role

SYDNEY, Australia (AP)—Australian soap opera star and pop singer Kylie Minogue will shed her squeaky-clean image in a new film, "The Delinquents," playing an uneducated 1950s teen-ager.

The film, based on a novel by Ciena Rohan, calls for Minogue to play several intimate love scenes. Her character will also undergo an abortion.

Minogue, 20, said Thursday the movie appealed to her "because the producers wanted me for who I am, not just because I can put bums on seats."

"I've been offered lots of roles, but this was the first one that is decent," said Minogue, who played Charlene, a motor mechanic, in the soap opera "Neighbours," which tops the ratings in Britain and Australia.

Bach festival encourages sing-along

By Steve Donoghue
The Daily Iowan

If you think sacred or liturgical music is intimidating, think again. This weekend, you'll not only get a chance to hear Bach, Bach and more Bach, you'll also get a chance to — horror of horrors — sing along!

The Chamber Singers of Iowa City, under the direction of David Rayl, will present their 16th annual Bach Festival today and Sunday at 8 p.m. in Zion Lutheran Church, 310 N. Johnson St. on the corner of Bloomington Street.

"Bach has something for everyone," said Danelle Essing, president of the Chamber Singers of Iowa City.

And she wasn't just whistling the proverbial dixie. In a lifetime of 65 years, Bach managed to turn out more music than whole orchestras of lesser men — and all of it ripples with such consummate grace that if Bach were alive today, he'd almost certainly win some sort of award or something.

As for the Singers' own performing venue: "This is the type of music that your average church choir isn't able to do," said Essing. In other words, it's pretty heady stuff.

Friday night's program begins with Cantata No. 61, "Nun komm Der Heiden Heiland"; continues with solo Cantata No. 82, "Ich Habe Genug," featuring baritone soloist Phillip Collister; and concludes with Cantata No. 80, "Ein feste Burg is Unser Gott."

Sunday night's program begins with Cantata No. 4, "Christ lag in Todesbanden," after which soprano soloist Susan Bender will sing Cantata No. 51, "Jauchzet Gott in Allen Landen." The program will be concluded with the "Easter Oratorio."

The Washington Post described soloist Susan Bender's voice as "nothing short of breathtaking." Bender was the National Winner of the Metropolitan Opera Council in 1986 and is a 1983 UI graduate. Listeners will be treated to a fitting display of her vocal skill in a coloratura Albert Schweitzer called "brilliant."

"This is probably one of our more accessible concerts," said Essing, addressing the possibility that potential listeners would be scared off by the nature of the beast. "The cantatas are based on hymns by Luther. The melodies are familiar; it's just like Carmen — you go home humming. That's how it is with this Bach."

The 45 or 50 amateur and professional members of the Chamber Singers do all the setting-up and taking-down work themselves; they're community-based and dedicated to bringing interesting music to the ears of the faithful and non-alike.

In their collective 19 year history, the Chamber Singers are responsible for bringing to Iowa City such conductors as Gerhardt Zimmerman, Catherine Comet, Peter Perret, Helmut Rilling, Thomas Dunn and Tamara Brooks.

Past performances by Chamber Singers have included Honegger's "King David," Handel's "Messiah," Dominick Argento's "Jonah and the Whale" and Bernstein's "Chichester Psalms." The singers have been privileged to present premiere performances of works composed especially for them by renowned German composer Heinz Werner Zimmerman and American composer Edwin Penhorwood.

The admission to Bach Festival 16 is, of course, free. No rendering unto Caesar this weekend.

At the Bijou

Friday — "The Postman Always Rings Twice" (Bob Rafelson, 1981) — 6:45 p.m.; "The Stationmaster's Wife" (R.W. Fassbinder, 1978) — 9 p.m.; "Blade Runner" — (Ridley Scott, 1982) — 11 p.m.

Saturday — "The Stationmaster's Wife" — 6:45 p.m.; "The Postman Always Rings Twice" — 8:45 p.m.; "Blade Runner" — 11 p.m.

Sunday — "The World of Apu" (Satyajit Ray, 1959) — 7 p.m.; "Spirit of the Beehive" (Victor Erice, 1973) — 9 p.m.

Television

Saturday — "Movie Classics — His Girl Friday" — This really IS a classic, and one of the best movies ever made, Orson Welles notwithstanding. It's a madcap tale of newspaper huckstering, starring Cary Grant, Rosalind Russell and Ralph Bellamy — and you really should watch it (9 p.m.; IPTV 12).

Sunday — OK — it's animal special time! First up, there's the extinct contingent — "Digging Dinosaurs" describes derring-do diggery done by dusty deadpan... archeologists (4 p.m.; IPTV 12). Then the turtle contingent — "Whence Turtles Come" eschews the simple answer — other turtles — and instead travels AROUND THE WORLD and inevitably ends up on Australia's Great Barrier Shark Snack-bar Reef (5:30 p.m.; IPTV 12). Onward then with nary a pause to the avian contingent: "Nature — Rulers of the Wind" — this heart-warming special about hawks, eagles and the like is for birds and birds-at-heart (8 p.m.; IPTV 12). And finally, we finish up a whirlwind tour of animal specials with the cephalopod contingent, as "Nautilus: 500 Million Years Under the Sea" examines the home life of brainless mollusk (10:30 p.m.; IPTV 12).
