Supervisors defend county road upkeep

By Lisa Songle  The Daily Iowan

The Johnson County Board of Supervisors Tuesday turned down a request for an additional $4,500 for improved maintenance and dust collection on county roads.

Supervisor Bob Myers said the county can't afford to maintain Jonesville Road because road-use fees aren't high enough. "We just don't have the budget for it," he said.

County resident John Oak said this concerns the entire county, and that the road should instead be built in a park next to the river. "They made the road, we should at least have some control over it," he said.

"We would just have to do better," Myers said. "But just cost, we just don't have the budget for it."
UI, community colleges team up to reach out with video courses

The Daily Iowan

Under an agreement signed Thursday, the 13 Iowa community colleges will team up to market continuing education programs available in all parts of the state through video instruction.

The agreement, signed by Sen. Bruce Rastetter and State Librarian Jean Garber, the chairwoman of the Iowa Association of Community Colleges, will expand opportunities for UI and community college students in areas where state-of-the-art educational technology is not yet available.

Under the agreement, the UI will charge the community colleges a fee to use the satellite facilities available in Iowa. The community colleges will be able to sell video instruction that is available from the UI satellite facility with a portion of the proceeds going to the UI.

The cooperative relationship will enable the UI, through its programming in the future, including a one-day weekend workshop in "Canada: Continuing Education for Iowa Dentists" scheduled for December in Toronto, to help the community colleges in their programming in the future.

The programming agreement was first tested in March 1987 with a pilot project. At that time, a six-hour workshop on "educating adults" short course was scheduled for community colleges and one was telecast to the UI satellite center with a readiness of faculty and community colleges.

Workshops are being planned in the future, including a one-day weekend workshop in "Canada: Continuing Education for Iowa Dentists" scheduled for December in Toronto. The program will be available in the community colleges in the future.

Utah's decision to restructure its government has set off a series of events that could significantly impact the state's future. Governor Mitt Romney, a key figure in the party, has announced his intention to run for the presidency in 2008. Romney's decision has sparked a debate within the party, with some questioning his eligibility due to his previous run for the Republican nomination in 1996. The potential for a third-party challenge in the primaries is also being discussed, with several candidates mulling over a run.

The state's budget crisis is another significant issue that will likely dominate the election campaign. Romney has already proposed a comprehensive plan to address the budget deficit, including cuts in government spending and tax reforms. The party's platform will likely focus on these issues, with candidates vying to demonstrate their leadership in addressing the state's fiscal challenges.

In addition to these political developments, there are also signs of a shift in public opinion. A recent poll shows a majority of voters are concerned about the state's economic future and are seeking leaders who can provide a clear vision for the next administration. This could lead to a more ideologically diverse set of candidates running for office in the upcoming election.

Overall, Utah's decision to restructure its government has set the stage for a significant period of change and uncertainty. Watchers are eagerly waiting to see how the state's political landscape will evolve in the coming months and years.

Bad presidential habit

Finally, a signal from the White House we all can understand:

Defense Secretary Dick Cheney's weekly prediction of failure for Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev; and President George Bush's latest announcement to send the parade of history, indicate a profound schizophrenia paralyzing American foreign policy toward the newly reforming world.

The 109 day mark for a new administration is an arbitrary deadline, but Cheney's poll-gal could have set out a more laden moment. These weeks and months after announcing earlier George Bush has done little more than watch the parade of history, and Cheney has said it too.

How possible was Cheney's speech as indisputably off the cuff? Cheney's remark was not the mere "personal observation" he claimed. When a defense secretary speaks, even out of turn, he speaks policy.

That said, Cheney's prediction that Gorbachev "will ultimately fail" and be replaced by someone "far more healthy" casts two on the end. One, Cheney is right to counsel caution. The news media has the longer Bush in the Soviet diplomatic community, the more NATO and America's European allies turned toward Gorbachev, and perhaps precisely what Bush wants to avoid.

The other eye on the parade, and espionage, for the Bush administration's first dress. A president has many handlers and hangers-on, and one of the necessary functions of a president is doing nothing. Nothing can be harder than doing nothing.

For example, according to the Fund For Open Information and Association Freedom Watch, it is estimated that the Freedom of Information Act, the FBI keeps files on 80 million Americans — a full third of the population. And who are these people? You or me.

Members of and contributors to various organizations — the National Parent-Teachers Association (PTA), the NAACP, the National Council of Churches, the ACLU, the American Civil Liberties Union, and, handbreadth the number of any person you subscribed to a certain periodical, e.g., The New York Times, The Village Voice, or Mother Jones — you may have been on FBI file.

It is true that the FBI may be keeping a frightening number of files on people and groups, and for the most troubling reason, the attorneys general of the states of New York and New Jersey have also led to political disruption campaigns. For example, a few months ago the Socialist Workers Party was a major loser against the FBI for subversity. More recently, the FBI added "communist" in its "Investigation of CRSP". What's happening is that student groups and individuals are being targeted in ambush. This strikes at the very heart of the Bill of Rights.

What can be done? First, the Freedom of Information Act, which has allowed us to learn as much about government spying as we can, must be expanded. Second, government officials, who infringe our democratic rights must be made to look like the criminals they are. Power and prestige are no excuse.

Big Brother lives

As Americans, we often pride ourselves on being one of the freest, greatest countries in the world. Yet, scratch the surface of our "democratic society", and we'll find a government that sacrifices our privacy.

Long-term costs

Fauls in improvements the U.S. educational system could saddle America for generations, according to a recent congressional Joint Economic Committee report (April 18).

The report described the educational system as "a major social problem" with "significant economic and social implications" (April 16).

This week's report by the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, which released its report on the state of the nation's educational system, highlighted the long-term costs of inadequate education for the country.

The report found that the nation's educational system was in disarray, with too many students failing to learn basic skills, and too few preparing for college or careers.

The report also found that the United States was falling behind its international competitors and that the country was losing its global economic edge.

The report suggested that the nation's educational system was in need of significant reform, including increased funding, improved curriculum, and better teacher training.

The report's findings were met with both praise and criticism. Some educators praised the report for bringing attention to the nation's educational challenges, while others criticized the report for not going far enough.

Overall, the report called for a system of education that is focused on preparing all students for success in life, not just those who are likely to attend college.

WASHINGON (AP) - The United States is poised to try a Lance compromise, but with a twist. The West Germans have agreed to a non-nuclear force designed to discourage short-range nuclear attacks.

The West Germans met with the Soviets on Friday. The compromise was designed to prevent a nuclear build-up on both sides of NATO. The West Germans agreed to a few Lance rockets, which would be used to discourage short-range nuclear attacks.

President Ford, who will be in West Germany next week, has yet to announce whether he will accept the West Germans' offer.

Holland considers Kentucky

CHARLOTTEVILLE, Va. (AP) - Still dealing with nagging injuries, Louisville coach Denny Holland is no longer interested in qualifying for the NCAA tournament.

"I don't think about it," Holland said. "I just go to work and I try to get ready for the next game and I have no interest in worrying about whether we'll be in the NCAA (tournament)."

Holland said he has had physical difficulties with Kentucky athletic director C.M. Newton about the status of the basketball program for almost two years. He said Newton has been looking for a new coach since March in the wake of an NCAA investigation. Holland was fired because he was considered a "serious" gambling problem.

"I'm not looking back any more, but I have no way of knowing when C.M. Newton will say, 'Okay, you can go back to work,'" Holland said. "I really don't think the NCAA is two weeks away from possibly coming to a decision on what's going to happen with the school's basketball program."

Big Ten honors Knuckleberg

"On the basis of an outstanding performance at the 80th Drake Relays, Iowa State University's Tom Knuckleberg has been named the Ten Conference Men's Track and Field Athlete of the Month."

"Knuckleberg was chosen by the media as the Drake Relays Outstanding Male Athlete after leading the Cats in the decathlon and winning the discus. He placed second in the 400 meters, and led his team to a seventh-place finish in the men's team event."

Schilling signs three recruits

Iowa has added three more names to its roster for next season with the signing of three top athletes from the state.

Stewart snaggs two athletes

Iowa volleyball Coach Sandy Houtz announced the signing of two athletes to the Hawkeye volleyball program.

Canseco's Huntsville assignment is contingent upon his progress during workouts in Oakland. After two days of lasting practice, Canseco's Doctors have given him more time to recover from his injury.

NBA

Oakley threw the ball inbound to Wilkins, whose dribbling skills helped the Hawks take the lead back. Jordan and Stockton, who both scored 20 points, helped the Hawks to their third win in a row.

Propp out 5 days with concussion

MONTREAL (AP) - Winger Mike Propp spoke Tuesday morning at the Montreal General Hospital, he wasn't sure what city he was in or how he ended up in a room full of doctors.

"I found out reading a newspaper that I had been traded," Propp said at Montreal Forum, where he was still recovering from surgery on his back and behind his right ear. He also suffered a mild concussion.

The injury to Propp, the team's second-highest scorer with 12 goals, happened last week when he was hit by the puck and knocked into the board by Montreal defenseman Chris Chelios.

"I'm here today, he wasn't sure how or what might have happened," said Propp, who was the Montreal Canadiens' 51st Medical night and said he had left the game at 7:07 of the second period on a stretcher, after being showed into the hospital.

"I wore a helmet tonight, I wore a neck brace tonight," Propp said.

Writer ties success to experience at UI

The Daily Iowan

With its area reputation as the cradle of the musical theater, Iowa City is where would-be playwrights go to try to learn the craft. The University of Iowa, which is an American Theatre PGA member, is at its core a training ground for future playwrights who are drawn to the university's Playwrights Workshop for its reputation as one of the finest in the nation. The program, which is highly selective and demanding, has produced some of the finest playwrights of our time. Among them is playwrights Jon Robin Baitz, who was a member of the Playwrights Workshop at UI for three years before going on to study at New York University. Baitz's first play, "The Glass Menagerie," was produced at the University of Iowa in 1970 and received its world premiere at the University of Iowa in 1971. The play was later produced at the Shakespeare Theatre in Washington, D.C., and was later produced on Broadway. Baitz has received several Tony Awards for his work, including the Tony Award for Best Play for "The Men of the Forest." Baitz's other plays include "The Boys From Syracuse," "The Glass Menagerie," and "The Great Wall." Baitz is currently a professor of drama at the University of Iowa and is a member of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences. Baitz's success is a testament to the importance of the Playwrights Workshop at the University of Iowa. The program provides students with a unique opportunity to develop their skills as playwrights and to gain a deep understanding of the craft of playwriting. The Playwrights Workshop at the University of Iowa is one of the finest in the nation and is a source of pride for the university. The program is open to students who are interested in pursuing a career in playwriting. The program is highly competitive and selective, and students are chosen based on their talent and dedication. The Playwrights Workshop at the University of Iowa is an excellent opportunity for aspiring playwrights to develop their skills and to gain a deep understanding of the craft of playwriting.

"Doonesbury" was without a doubt the most pretentious, unreadable, antipathetic, and dorkiest comic strip of the late 70s and early 80s. (I wasn't always a dork, you know.) When Steve Breen first revealed his creation, "Bloom County," and not a moment too soon. About five years later and Milo Bloom will be put permanently to pasture. Well, not permanently. Well, at least not permanently. You see, "Bloom County" was without a doubt one of the most pretentious, shallow, snotty "smart" comic strips of the 80s. As soon as it was doled out in a way perfectly suited to this decade, I knew I liked it. Steve Breen is the best-parody in the whole world. "Bloom County" was — let's face it — "Doonesbury," for dorks. Reading it was like being locked in a room full of preposterous eight-graders — people who think they're witty and sophisticated just because they read "The New Yorker," and about a million years ago, when Breathed was given the Pulitzer Prize for distinguished editorial cartooning, the award showed up at the Binkley residence. (Is that the name of the Thanksgiving for dorks?) Anyway, I'm sure that such an award showed up at the Breathed residence, because they're dorks. Read all about this in the Deadline. By accepting the award Breathed doesn't mean, I liked it too ...
