Widiss, Willis win by over 500 votes in school board election

Jean Thilmann
The Daily Iowan

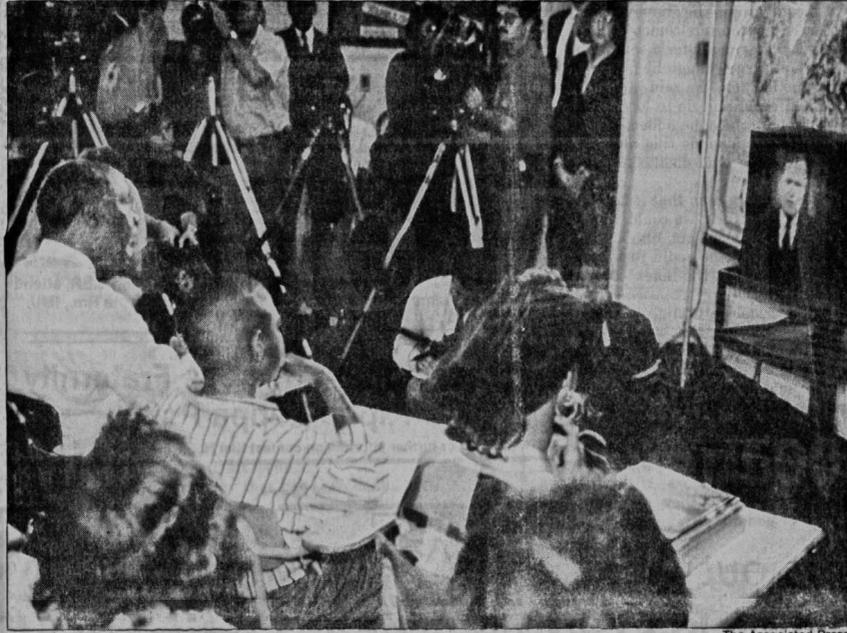

Incumbent Ellen Widiss and challenger Craig Willis won seats on the Iowa City Community School District Board of Directors Tuesday. Willis received 2,194 votes in the election; Widiss garnered 2,457 votes. Of the other two candidates, incumbent Orville Townsend received 1,957 votes, and Charles Duffner received 1,420 votes.

This will be Widiss' third term on the board. She was first elected in 1983 as a write-in candidate and was active in the school system several years before deciding to run for the school board. She said she was not surprised by the results of the election, but neither would she have been surprised if she had not won a seat. "I'm very pleased," Widiss said. "I had dreamed up so many scenarios that it could have gone in any direction, and I wouldn't have been surprised. I had planned for it to go in any direction." She said she is looking forward to further serving on the school board. The board will be searching for a new superintendent to replace David Cronin, who resigned last spring. "We wanted broad public input, and it's hard to get that in this community over the summer, so we had to wait until the fall," she said. "Of course, the fall means a school board election, so we will soon start intensively searching for a superintendent." Willis practices law with his wife Nancy and owns Security Abstract Company. He has also served as the chairman of the Parks and Recreation Department and as chairman of the Iowa City Citizens Committee for City Revenue. "It is always better to win than to lose," Willis said of Tuesday's election. "It is appreciated to have some kind of ratification of the message that one has been working hard." He said he plans to follow his campaign commitments to help the school board develop a long-range fiscal plan, to aid the board's participatory process and to give the taxpayers specifics on how the enrichment tax money will be spent. The election turnout — 4,296 registered voters — was "quite high for a school board election," said a spokesman for the Johnson County Auditor's Office.

'Worldly' schoolchildren skeptical of campaign

Associated Press

After listening to President George Bush tell the nation's schoolchildren, "Saying 'no' won't make you a nerd," 10-year-old Amos Dunn shrugged at the anti-drug exhortation like a skeptical, middle-aged man. "I don't think what he said is going to stop it. It needs a lot more to stop it," said the Boston fifth-grader. The only answer is "not making any more drugs," he concluded. Like Amos, other students who watched Bush's speech in classrooms around the country demonstrated intimate awareness of the drug problem. And many wondered if anything the president says is going to make a difference. Tres Whitlow, a seventh-grader at Carl Sandburg Junior High in the middle-class Chicago suburb of Elmhurst, doubted speeches by politicians could counter the pressure teens feel — from their peers and from dealers — to try drugs. "They see drug dealers tell them it's going to make them do better," said Tres, 12.

"I think he should have been tougher," said Katherine Jo, ninth-grade class president at Roosevelt Junior High School in the Los Angeles suburb of Glendale. "He doesn't know how bad it is." Stephanie Rodriguez, a freckled 13-year-old at Roosevelt, suggested: "What they should do is have every kid who comes to school, like, check them to see if they have drugs or anything." Tres watched the speech in a guidance class designed to build self-confidence, at Sandburg Junior High, which students and teachers agreed was largely drug-free. One Sandburg student, Christine Gershak, 12, took heart in the president's message that there are people willing to help youths resist drugs. "I think it will make a big impact because the kids will, like, know what to do, to go for help," she said. Classmate Tania Durdevic, 12, noted Bush didn't address one of the causes of drug abuse. "Some kids might take drugs because they have family problems and think nobody likes them," she said. See Bush, Page 6A

U.S. trade deficit up this quarter

Imbalance reveals extent of commerce setback

WASHINGTON (AP)—The deficit in the broadest measure of U.S. trade widened to $30.99 billion from April through June as the country suffered its first shortfall in the category covering overseas investment earnings in three decades, the government reported Tuesday.

The Commerce Department said the current account deficit rose by 2 percent over the January-March imbalance of $30.39 billion. It marked the second consecutive quarterly setback and provided fresh evidence, economists said, of how entrenched America's trade problems are.

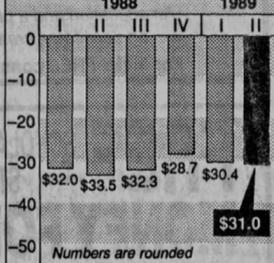

The current account, also known as the balance of payments, is the most important trade statistic because it measures not only trade in merchandise but also trade in services.

The deficit in merchandise trade actually narrowed during the spring, falling by 2.3 percent to $27.7 billion, the smallest imbalance in merchandise trade in more than four years.

However, this improvement was offset by the first deficit in the services category since 1958.

That category, which primarily reflects investment earnings between countries, registered a deficit of $176 million in the second quarter, compared with a surplus of $1.5 billion in the first quarter.

Analysts called the services deficit an ominous sign as foreigners begin to earn more and more on U.S. investments.

Cuts in J-School spur director's quitting

Sara Langenberg
The Daily Iowan

Significant cuts in the UI School of Journalism and Mass Communications operating budget over the last two years have spurred the resignation of Don Smith, the school's director and chief executive officer.

In a memo distributed to the school's faculty and staff yesterday, Smith cited budget-slashing of up to 50 percent as an explanation for his resignation. He feels the cuts have diminished the journalism school's reputation as "one of the nation's premier programs."

"Our expense budget has been cut by (one-fourth), our non-recurring funds (by which we hire adjuncts, part-time lecturers, etc.) has been cut by (one-half), and "our support staff in the main office has been reduced from 5 to 2 (having lost even an additional person the year before)," Smith wrote in the memo.

Smith's resignation comes amid a recent trend toward increasing economic cutbacks at the UI — especially within the UI College of Liberal Arts — and one year before the journalism school faces re-accreditation.

Smith declined to be interviewed Tuesday, but in the memo he criticized the UI College of Liberal Arts for not supporting his department's needs.

"This withdrawal of support by the College of Liberal Arts has been incessant," he wrote. "No sooner would we effectively adapt to the consequences of one cut than we would receive news of yet another."

In the memo, Smith said the journalism department hasn't been delegated a "level playing field" within the UI.

"All the School of Journalism and Mass Communication needs to re-establish itself as one of the nation's premier programs is a level playing field at the university," he wrote.

Smith has asked the dean of the College of Liberal Arts to find a replacement for him by the end of this semester.

The memo does not indicate whether or not Smith plans to stay at the UI as a journalism professor. He has been teaching at the UI since 1980.

Gerhard Loewenberg, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, said he will accept Smith's resignation as director.

"I have no alternative, and I am very sorry to see it," Loewenberg said Tuesday.

Loewenberg, contacted at home, said he did not have exact figures to dispute the size of the budget cuts Smith cited in his memo, but said the figures sounded inaccurate.

"The budget cuts Smith cited are the result of the journalism department being forced to stay within a predetermined budget, rather than 12 Solidarity party members win seats in Poland ministry

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Parliament Tuesday approved the first government in the East bloc not led by communists, giving half the seats to Solidarity but reserving the key ministries controlling defense and police for the communists.

"For the first time in half a century, Poland has a government that can be considered by millions of people as their own," said Solidarity leader Lech Walesa from Gdansk, where the independent movement struggled through eight years of communist repression to its triumph.

"My biggest dream has come true," said Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki, also of Solidarity, after his Cabinet was approved by a vote of 402 in favor, none against and 13 abstentions.

The new Cabinet, called the Council of Ministers, includes Mazowiecki, 11 Solidarity members, and a foreign minister independent but sympathetic to Solidarity. The communists have four seats.

The Solidarity-aligned United Peasant Party holds four seats, and Solidarity's other coalition partner, the Democratic Party, has three.

The communists, in addition to controlling the army and police, will retain considerable influence

Rally commemorates all who died over apartheid

Tonya Felt
The Daily Iowan

Speakers at a rally on the Pentacrest Tuesday called on listeners and passersby to remember all of those who have died in the struggle against apartheid and to act out against the injustices in South Africa.

The rally and a candlelight service, organized by the South African/Azanian Student Association and the Iowa Coalition Against Apartheid, commemorated the death of Steven Biko, an anti-apartheid activist who was allegedly killed by South African police 12 years ago.

Organizer Obed Norman explained that planners originally intended to read all the names of people who have been killed protesting against apartheid. But 30 more were killed during the short interim between planning and the rally.

"We discovered it is impossible to bring all the people to light, so we must remember them collectively," Norman said. "Even as we speak here so many more people are dying."

Norman stressed the need for one of the opposing forces to put a stop to the violence in South Africa but explained expecting protesters to do so is wrong.

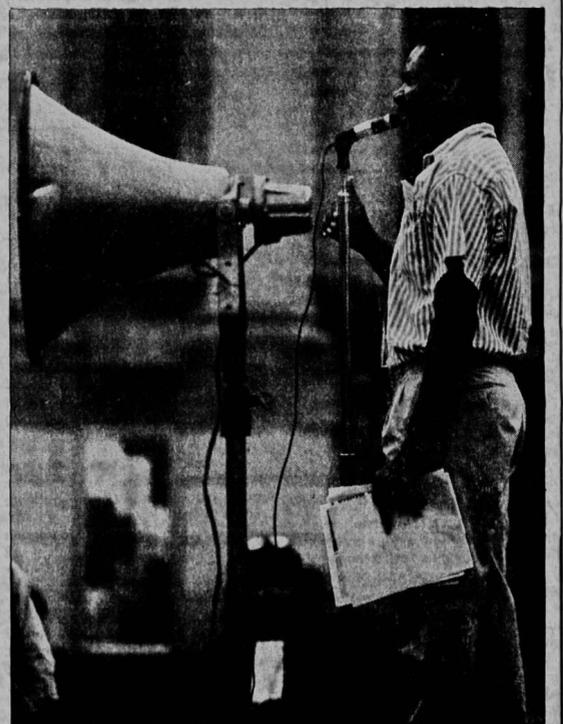

"We must remember that when protesters are killed in South Africa, they are killed because they are protesting against apartheid. To protest against apartheid is to invite death," Norman said. "We would like the world to know we will never stop protesting against apartheid. So there is nothing we can do to stop violence."

According to the coalition's UI Student's Guide to Apartheid, of the 33 million people living in South Africa today, only the 4.8 million whites enjoy full citizens' rights.

Only 13 percent of South Africa's territory is reserved for black Africans, and they may only live in reservations called bantustans or in designated townships, according to the guide.

Norman urged rally participants to exert pressure on Congress to

Death inquiries: A team effort

Bozek blames 1-man autopsy fallacies on 'Quincy' drama

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

So you thought Quincy did it all, huh? — solving murder investigations single-handedly with only occasional help from his assistant Sam, and hardly ever from the police.

"In the real world, things aren't as dramatic," said T.T. Bozek, Johnson County medical examiner. He also accused the TV series "Quincy" of misrepresenting medical examiners as one-man teams.

Contrary to Quincy's TV portrayal, the official duty of medical examiners — a term that has replaced coroner — does not even include performing autopsies. Instead, Bozek orders a certified pathologist to perform an autopsy at which he may be present.

Bozek, a physician in Iowa City, has been appointed the medical examiner for Johnson County for 11 consecutive two-year terms, or 22 years. He said he "fell into the position by chance" when the previous medical examiner died.

In real life, the county medical examiner's job is to investigate deaths in cooperation with a team including the local police, the state Bureau of Criminal Investigation, the county sheriff and a pathologist, Bozek said.

"We all work in concert by following a pattern of procedures," he added.

Deaths that warrant an investigation under Iowa law are homicides, deaths that occur in jails or police custody, unexpected deaths, poisonings, airplane pilot deaths, motor vehicle deaths, death by electrical shock, on-the-job deaths and burn-victim deaths, Bozek said.

In Johnson County, Bozek investi-

Johnson County Medical Examiner T.T. Bozek says his job doesn't officially include performing autopsies, which are performed by specialists he appoints.

gates an average of 250 deaths yearly. Of these, 6 percent are suicides, 10 to 15 percent are violent or accidental deaths and 74 percent are natural deaths.

Each death involves an investigation at the scene of the death, an autopsy and a report of the findings, Bozek said.

At the scene of death, simultaneous investigations are conducted by the local police and Bozek, and separate reports are filed.

During the investigation, Bozek tries to determine the circumstances surrounding the death — such as whether the death appeared to be natural or accidental.

Depending upon the circumstances of the death, the Bureau of Criminal Investigation may be called to examine the scene and take photos and samples, Bozek said.

Although Bozek has investigated hundreds of cases, each new death scene is still a shock, he said.

"Every one is still always the first one. It still hits you that this is tragic, especially the youth and the children," Bozek said.

Another misconception surrounding the medical examiner's profession is the "feeling from the public that you're cold," Bozek said.

"We are compassionate and full of sympathy," Bozek said. "But I don't know how many different ways there are to tell people that their (relative) is dead."

Once an examination on the scene is complete, the body is taken to either Mercy Hospital or UI Hospitals and Clinics for an autopsy by a certified pathologist. If the death is suspected to be criminal in nature, a police officer is present at the autopsy.

Afterwards, a report of the autopsy and of the toxicology is filed with the Johnson County attorney and the Iowa State Department of Health.

The whole process takes only a couple hours under normal circumstances, though homicides, which require a detailed investigation, can take up to six hours.

Another common misconception about medical examiners is that relatives have a legal right to the autopsy report, Bozek said.

Under the Federal Privacy Act, relatives have the right to read the section of the report that states the cause of death, but they are denied access to any other facts revealed by the autopsy, Bozek said.

These facts may include a pregnancy or a disease about which a relative may be unaware, he added.

"If there are secrets about you and your past, they will die with you," Bozek said. "Only I, the pathologist, the city attorney and the state department will know."

Another public misconception is that relatives of the dead must hire a funeral service.

"The only thing they have to do is go to the appropriate cemetery and make arrangements for a sexton to dig a hole large enough by law and drop the body in," he said.

A bed sheet will do to lower the body into the hole, he added.

Bozek recommends this alternative to people who dislike funeral services.

"I once told a man that if he just got a pickup truck, we could wheel Dad around back, put him in the truck and then he could just drop dear old Dad in (the hole)," Bozek said.

"Most people are slightly taken back and say that they wouldn't do that to dear old Dad," he added.

The point, however, is that the public should know that there is an alternative to flashy, expensive hearses, he said.

Medical examiners are appointed every two years by the county's board of supervisors with the requirement that they be osteopathic or general physicians.

Police sergeant receives 30-day suspension without pay

The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City police sergeant was suspended from duty for 30 days without pay Monday based on the results of an internal investigation which found he had violated police policies and procedures, according to William Suellep, assistant city attorney.

"The results of the investigation, in my opinion, warranted this type of action," said Police Chief R.J. Winkelhake.

The sergeant, James Hazlett, could not be reached for comment.

Hazlett was already under suspension with pay as the result of the investigation.

The investigation was prompted by a charge of simple assault filed by Dong Nguyen of West Liberty after she was stopped by Hazlett for a traffic violation, according to Johnson County District court records.

After an argument about whether Nguyen needed glasses, Hazlett confiscated Nguyen's driver's license. When Nguyen went to the police station to pick up her driver's license, Hazlett allegedly took her into an office and grabbed her right shoulder and wrist in an attempt to take her car keys.

Courts

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

Two Coralville men were charged with possession of a controlled substance Tuesday, after a Coralville Police Department officer serving a search warrant saw a water pipe bowl containing marijuana, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The warrant was issued for defendant Chad A. Banken, 21, 1205 Fifth St., Apt. 35. His roommate, Steven P. Christensen, 21, was also charged. The search revealed additional marijuana hidden throughout the apartment, according to court records.

H.S. athletes charged with assault

ESTHERVILLE, Iowa (AP) — Two Armstrong-Ringsted High School students have been charged with assault after a freshman suffered a ruptured spleen during football practice.

Emmett County Dist. Atty. Richard Meyer said a 16-year-old and a 17-year-old were charged Monday with assault resulting in bodily injury, a serious misdemeanor.

During a school board meeting last month, the incident was characterized as hazing.

But Meyer said the situation did not fit Iowa's hazing law because it didn't take place during initiation into an organization or team. Both charges are serious misdemeanors and carry the same penalties, he said.

"Apparently, they've got a tradition of roughing up the freshmen and 'putting them in their place,'" Meyer said.

Armstrong-Ringsted Superintendent Charles Missman said he was unaware of school traditions because he is in his first year.

He said both boys were suspended for two games following the incident. He said he was consulting the school's handbook to see if further suspensions were mandated since formal charges have been filed. One of the boys was suspended for a third game in an unrelated incident, Missman said.

Meyer said the Emmett County Sheriff's department filed the charges after investigating an August 15 incident that left Mathew Tietje, 14, of Armstrong, with a ruptured spleen.

The boy was hospitalized for eight days in Fairmont, Minn., said the boy's father, Ken Tietje.

Meyer said that during the practice, the 17-year-old picked up Tietje and bounced him up and down while Tietje's abdomen rested on the older boy's hip bone. Later, he said the 16-year-old grabbed the younger boy by the head and swung his body into a pickup truck.

He said the incidents took place during practice on school property.

Student Senate committees have several positions open

Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

After spending all summer preparing for last weekend's first All-Big Ten Conference, Tuesday night's Student Senate meeting gave senators an opportunity to discuss other business.

Vacancies remain in several large committees, including the nine-member Student Broadcasters Incorporated.

"It's a very important and fun board, especially for journalism and communications students," said Lori Meyers, CAC executive associate.

SBI approves appointments and funding requests for KRUI Radio and Student Video Productions. Both organizations enable students to gain practical broadcasting experience.

Other boards requiring additional members include the Election Board, Union Advisory Board and Human Rights Committee.

"We'd like to encourage people to apply," said Senate President Pepe Rojas-Cardona.

He added that the committees are open to all students. A meeting for interested students will be held Wednesday, September 20 at 7 p.m. in the Union, Iowa Room.

Senate members and about 50 other student organizations are participating in the Student Activities Board 1989 Student Activities Fair Thursday.

Participants will be in the Union Main Lounge from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. to distribute information and gain more members.

Homecoming, University Travel, Riverfest and Army ROTC will be among represented groups.

Future senate-sponsored activities include a Minority Welcoming Reception Saturday, September 30 in the Union, South Room.

Senator Terrence Watts said the event will be an opportunity for all 26 UI minority student groups to come together.

"The word has been out," Watts said. "I think black students are making a major effort to network and get to know each other here and that this would be a great way to come together."

The function is for all minority organizations and various group presidents will be recognized.

Recent early closings of the Union Wheelroom were also discussed at Tuesday's meeting.

Kevin Taylor, director of campus programs and student activities, said the Union Food Service staff is 14 people short and the early closings will continue until the positions are filled.

Tougher national policies on alcohol take the 'keg' out of greek festivities

Ann Marie Williams
The Daily Iowan

A fraternity party without beer? This year, UI fraternities and sororities are gearing up to follow stricter national policies on alcohol, said Mary Petersen, UI greek adviser.

Petersen said most fraternities and all sororities have national policies forbidding the purchase of alcohol with chapter funds.

At many of the greek houses' national conventions this year, increased alcohol awareness and adherence to national alcohol policies were highly stressed, she said.

"(The fraternities and sororities) are going to have to follow their national policies," Petersen said. "They need to read them and know them."

The stricter laws must be enforced because of the difficulty in finding adequate insurance coverage for fraternal organizations, she said.

"One alcohol-related accident can drag an entire national fraternity under," said Laura Fus, vice president of the UI Panhellenic Council.

Delta Chi is a UI fraternity that has been dealing with the stricter policies for over a year, said Jim Kunik, chapter vice president.

"Our national policy states that we cannot serve multiple people from one container," Kunik said. "That means no kegs with chapter money."

The rules don't necessarily mean that there will be no alcohol at fraternity parties, however. Many houses will have individual members of legal drinking age provide alcohol for their own personal consumption, Kunik said.

"Actually our first party this year was a B.Y.O.B. — Bring Your Own Booze — party," he said. "This takes some of the liability away from the house."

He said he has noticed a difference the Delta Chi's social activities since the implementation of the policies.

"There is more emphasis on the theme of the parties rather than just on the drinking," Kunik said. "There is something besides just beer to get people pumped up."

Although some fraternal organizations are undecided on how to deal with the national rules, they will definitely have to make some major changes in their alcohol policies soon, Kunik said.

"It used to be easy to rely on beer to have fun at a party," Kunik said. "Now we're forced to be more creative to have a good time."

3-year study: UI researches artery plaque

Sonja West
The Daily Iowan

Last June, the UI College of Medicine began conducting a new, national study of whether hardening of the arteries can be slowed.

According to Jose Biller, associate professor in the Division of Cerebrovascular Diseases in the UI Department of Neurology, the UI is one of five medical centers conducting the three-year study, which is funded by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute.

The Asymptomatic Carotid Artery Plaque Study will address the buildup of cholesterol as it relates to various medications and dietary modifications.

For the next year, researchers will be recruiting participants who will be given a combination of medication consisting of "baby" aspirin or a placebo, a low-dose blood thinner and a cholesterol-lowering agent, said Linda Bean, registered nurse and program coordinator.

Those involved in the study will receive physical examinations, laboratory tests and medications required for the study at no charge, and regular reports on their progress will be sent to their personal physicians.

Participants will also be asked to follow a dietary program and visit UI Hospitals and Clinics once every six weeks at the beginning of the study, and once every six months for the duration of the three-year study. Potential participants will undergo cholesterol testing and a general medical examination. Researchers will determine if there is buildup by a noninvasive ultrasound procedure, she said.

"Middle-aged women between the ages of 50 and 79 who have never had a stroke or heart attack and who do not take insulin or medication for high cholesterol are eligible for the ACAPS study," Bean said.

In atherosclerosis, cholesterol and fat collect in the arteries. This can lead to heart attacks — the leading cause of death in the United States — and strokes, the third leading cause of death in the nation, Biller said.

"We hope to find out what factors may play a role in slowing down the progression of this often fatal condition," he said.

Branstad's item-veto right questioned by Legislature

DES MOINES (AP)—Lawyers for the Legislature and Gov. Terry Branstad on Tuesday accused each other of playing political games, and each said the other side is making subtle efforts to expand control over Iowa's purse strings.

In arguments before the Iowa Supreme Court, lawyers for the Legislature said Branstad, with a 1985 veto of parts of a bill, was trying to expand his power to reshape legislation before he signs it.

Branstad's lawyers said lawmakers find the governor's item-veto power inconvenient and are asking the court to grant them a way around it.

"The single issue before this court today is whether the Legislature is going to be able to unilaterally deprive the governor of the item veto," said Robert Van Vooren, who represents Branstad.

Ann Ver Huel, who represents lawmakers, said Branstad's move "allows the governor to erode the power of the Legislature."

Several of the justices voiced skepticism of both positions during the oral arguments. A decision in the case isn't expected for at least a month.

This legal battle is only the latest the Legislature and governor have fought over the item veto. It is being watched closely because the court is being asked to redefine the powers of two branches of government.

"It is a very important one, obviously," said Chief Justice Arthur McGiverin, after the arguments were finished.

The lawsuit, centered on a relatively minor bill, raises fundamental issues of power over the budget.

In 1985, the legislature approved a bill adjusting a gradual state takeover of the court system.

But in the same measure, they revamped the retirement system for judges, increasing how much judges must contribute and trimming their retirement.

Branstad vetoed the judicial retirement sections but approved the rest.

Under a 1968 amendment to Iowa's constitution, the governor has the power to item-veto portions of spending measures but not other legislation.

Lawmakers challenged the vetoes. In their challenge, they are asking the court to spell out a precise definition of a spending bill.

Ver Huel said legislators frequently approve new programs,

If Branstad vetoes the funding, he avoids the political fallout from a veto but renders the program useless.

Iowa State to use $1.3 million grant to recruit minority faculty

AMES (AP)—Iowa State University officials are celebrating a $1.3 million grant to help attract more minority students for training as engineering professors.

"I think this grant will have a far-reaching, long-lasting impact on our effort to recruit minority students," said David Kao, dean of the College of Engineering.

The National Science Foundation told ISU's College of Engineering on Friday that the grant had been awarded. It goes to help recruit minority graduate students and train them to become professors of engineering.

Iowa State administrators said the grant shows outside agencies are taking note of ISU programs which are attracting minority students and faculty.

"Each year we're doing a little better," Provost Milton Glick said. "There is a genuine commitment on the part of the institution that we have to have if we are to become a great university."

Iowa State has increased its number of black National Achievement Scholars from six to 10 and increased its number of National Hispanic Scholars from one to 32, Glick said.

Glick said ISU this year added nine black tenure-track professors to the 10 it already had. ISU also hired two Hispanic professors and one Native American professor, Glick said. And the university retained all its minority faculty members, he said.

George Jackson, ISU assistant vice president for student affairs and assistant dean of the graduate college, said the university admitted nearly 800 freshman minority students this year. Jackson, who heads the university's minority-recruitment efforts, said half the number admitted usually enroll. He did not have precise figures.

"We've had a very good year," Jackson said.

The state Board of Regents has set a goal for ISU of 8.5 percent minority enrollment by 1991.

Entrance exam results drop but Iowa still earns top grade

DES MOINES (AP) — Even with slipping grades, Iowa remains at the top of the class in the latest results from college entrance examinations.

Iowa students led the nation in both the verbal and math sections of the SAT exam, although fewer than 5 percent of the state's high-school seniors took those batteries of tests.

Iowa also remained a leader in the ACT exams, the dominant college entrance exam in 28 states, which were taken by more than six out of 10 Iowa seniors in 1989.

Yet while Iowans scored well above the national averages, they also followed a national trend of declining scores in both sets of tests.

William Lepley, the director of the Iowa Department of Education, said he was concerned, but not alarmed, about the drop in average scores.

The tests are designed to predict a student's success in the first year of college. But developers of the tests say the scores should not be used to rank states or districts within states because of such variables as the number of students taking the tests and their academic background.

Among the 1,784 Iowa 12th graders taking the Scholastic Aptitude Test, the grade-point average was 3.48 out of a possible 4.0, state education officials said. The 23,466 Iowa students taking the ACT exams reported a 2.93 grade-point average when they registered for the tests, compared with a national average of 2.90.

On the SAT exam, which is based on a top score of 1600, Iowans averaged 512 out of 800 on the verbal section, down from 513 a year ago, but well above a national average of 427. On the math section, Iowans averaged 572 out of 800, down from 577 in 1988, but above the national average of 476.

Iowans averaged a 20.1 composite score out of a maximum 36 in the ACT tests, down from 20.3 in 1988 but above the national average 1989 score of 18.6, state officials said.

"As the pool of students taking the tests expands, we expect to see a decline in scores," said Lepley.

In 1976, for example, 45.3 percent of Iowa seniors took the ACT and had an average composite score of 21.6. This year, 60.5 percent of the seniors took the tests and the average was 1.5 percentage points lower.

The ACT, administered by the American College Testing Program in Iowa City, does not release state-by-state results. But a survey of surrounding states and other states that usually perform high in the exam showed Iowa tied with Wisconsin for the highest composite score in 1989.

The Iowa average on all four subject areas making up the ACT test also declined this year, officials said. English scores fell to 19.3 from 19.6, math slid to 18.9 from 19.2, social studies averages dipped to 18.8 from 18.9 and natural science dropped to 22.8 from 23.2.

About 73 percent of the students rated their high-school experience as good or excellent.

"We're always concerned when test scores decline," Lepley said.

"This slight drop merits our attention and analysis. But while college entrance exam scores are one indicator of the health of our education system, they are far from the only measure," he said. "A careful examination of other indicators, such as pupil-teacher ratio, graduation rates or school attendance rates, is also important."

The department is revising the way it assesses the performance of Iowa schools. The first of the new condition of education reports is due in October 1990.

Report: Easing state attendance laws 'viable'

DES MOINES (AP) — State education officials say in a new report that easing Iowa's compulsory attendance law is a "viable alternative to the current law" but said students should be tested if no certified teacher is used.

The officials said easing the laws would be a "significant departure" from current strict school attendance laws and said it should be done only as a temporary, pilot project.

Parents who teach their children at home or send them to private schools not using certified teachers should be required to notify local school officials so the children can be tracked, they said.

"In sum, we believe that a change can be made in the existing law that will protect the child and yet be consonant with the principles of parental choice," said the report, prepared for the State Board of Education.

"The staff and director are providing the state Board of Education with three options . . . in the belief that any of the three is a viable alternative to the current law," said the report.

The options offered by staffers are similar and include a mix of testing and monitoring of students and reporting to local school officials. One would call for a certified teacher offering instruction in the home.

The report was written by Department of Education staffers David Bechtel, Kathy Collins and Gail Sullivan, and one of the options is certain to be endorsed by the state board when it meets later this month.

In the report, staffers said their compromise would allow the state to fulfill its responsibility to assure that children get a quality education. It also would take into account that many fundamentalist

"The staff and director are providing the state Board of Education with three options . . . in the belief that any of the three is a viable alternative to the current law," said the report.

Christians believe religious freedoms guarantee them the right to educate their children as they see fit, the report said.

The key is requiring tests to assure that youngsters make progress, they said.

"The state holds parents accountable for the educational decisions they make on behalf of their children," the report said. "The state will not endorse a parent's decision to let a child languish in an educational setting where the child fails to make progress, by requiring at least the assurance that the child is not in need of special education.

"On the other hand, the state will not interfere with a parent's decision so long as the child is making progress," the report said.

The report said data should be gathered for three years to measure how well children are performing in home or church schools, and at the end of the fourth year a decision could be made on whether to continue.

The three options are:
• Requiring parents to report to local schools and submit children for annual testing. There would be no curriculum requirement and no requirement for a certified teacher.

• Requiring the teacher to be state-certified and eliminating the requirement for testing. That is virtually identical to the current law that does not require children be sent to school, only that they be taught by a state-certified teacher.

• Requiring teachers at church schools to have a college degree; parents teaching at home wouldn't have to have a degree. This option also requires annual testing and sets minimum curriculum requirements. "This proposal or option keeps the closest eye on the child," the report said.

Once the board picks an option, that recommendation is likely to win a quick endorsement from Gov. Terry Branstad, who has pushed for years for relaxing attendance laws.

Without any change in state law, officials of the Des Moines School District have worked out an agreement with fundamentalists where district staffers aid parents who want to teach their children at home and provide periodic testing.

Similar proposals have been offered in the Legislature in past years and have been defeated.

Fundamentalists say voting and reporting intrude too much on their religious freedoms. Education groups say the state is abdicating its educational responsibilities.

A one-year moratorium on prosecutions of attendance law violations expired last summer, and some non-certified schools are operating in violation of the law.

Branstad has asked the State Board of Education to develop a compromise he could submit to the legislature when it convenes in January.

Bush

Tania said. "But, like, my life is really good, my family — I know they care about me."

Amos and his classmates at Mattahunt Elementary School in inner-city Boston were all too familiar with the dangers about which Bush tried to warn them. They see it on the streets, and what they learn there often is embellished with what they get from television.

"The white people are supplying it to black people, who are selling it to black people. Like on TV," said Larry Bates, 11. "It makes me feel bad seeing black people are using it. I'm black. I'm not going to be using it."

"Some parents don't take care of their kids. Because (the parents) are on drugs or something," said

11-year-old Louranda Ross. The children get into drugs, she said, "because they want to leave their parents. They can make money and show their parents they can do what they want."

Louranda observed, almost more wearily than an 11-year-old should: "It's not going to make no difference. People don't listen."

The teacher of the Boston class, Ouida Kalokoh, warns her students about drugs. But she didn't know the ingredients in crack cocaine — until her pupils filled her in.

"I was told everything, and they were fourth-graders," she said, dismay in her voice. "They knew all about it."

Smith

continuing a previous pattern of over-extending it, Loewenberg said.

For example, the "non-recurring funds" — previously an unlimited allowance for visiting lecturers — was recently set at a fixed amount, Loewenberg said.

"The suggestion that the school as a whole is suffering because of budget cuts is contrary to what has been happening over the last year or so," he said.

The journalism school is not the only department facing the budget restraints, Loewenberg added.

"Last year there was only a 3-percent increase in the (liberal arts) college's operating budget, while the cost of supplies and other things increased by about 7 or 8 percent," Loewenberg said. "So in real terms, every department is suffering from an inadequate general expense budget."

John Bennett, an assistant journalism professor and head of the school's undergraduate studies program, said Smith's resignation has "real implications" for the department.

"I think it has significant implications for the direction of the school," Bennett said. "I think that was part of Don's concern — what we are and what we can be with the resources available to us."

"It is clear we have lost resources, and that has real implications for our program," he added.

The resignation comes at a very significant time for the school, Bennett said.

Every six years, the school seeks accreditation from the Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communication. The last accreditation process occurred in 1985, meaning the school will seek accreditation once again during the 1990-91 school year under the auspices of a new director.

In addition, if the recommendations of the Peat Marwick Main & Co. duplication study are accepted by the state Board of Regents, the UI will be the only university in Iowa offering a journalism degree.

impose economic sanctions against South Africa to stop such conditions.

But James Lee, past president of the Black Student Union, said writing to members of Congress and imposing sanctions aren't enough to stop the injustice in South Africa.

"Moralistic persuasion and peaceful means have been used in the past, and we're still under a white power structure," Lee said. "The reason we're not free is because the whites are in power because they want to be in power. They like being racist. We must do what we have to do take the tyrants off our necks."

"We are dealing with a barbaric system," he said. "Barbarians must feel a little pain before they'll change. The price for freedom is a price paid by blood."

Speaking of the South African oppression that has existed since 1916 in Namibia even though the United Nations declared South Africa's presence there illegal in 1971, Rev. Ted Fritschel said the United States helps keep the South African government alive.

"The government could clearly come to the side of the blacks, but they haven't, clearly," Fritschel said.

"The Macintosh is a very powerful computer."

"About a year ago, my family purchased a Macintosh SE and, from the moment I began working with it, I really enjoyed it. It is a pleasant and versatile computer to work with. When I came to Iowa, my information about the Mac increased greatly. There is an abundance of Macs and different programs.

As I've become more educated about computers, it's been pleasant to discover how much a Mac can really do. I've been able to save hours and hours with Microsoft Word & other word processors.

The Mac has also proven very useful within my major. I'm a music major and music majors are required to write a fair amount of music to satisfy requirements. Programs such as Professional Composer are great timesavers and a wonderful help when composing. All in all, the Mac is an excellent machine— for beginners as well as the advanced."

Did You Remember To...?

- Contact the telephone, gas, electric, and cable companies?
- Divide the responsibility for bills evenly among your roommates?
- Fill out a checklist?
- Read the lease to see what the landlord allows and doesn't allow (waterbeds, pets, etc.)?
- Obtain the home addresses and phone numbers of your roommates?
- Sign an agreement with your roommates assigning each person responsibility for a percentage of the rent?
- Find out who is responsible for snow removal and yard maintainance?
- Establish rules of conduct for the apartment or house (visitation by friends, frequency of parties, cleaning of the tenancy, purchase of groceries, and establish a cooking schedule, if applicable)?
- Decide who will bring or purchase appliances?
- Check to see what kind of parking facilities are available?
- Ask the landlord or manager if nails may be used to hang articles on the walls?

Hidden Costs

Rent will not be the only expense when you move into a rental unit. You and your landlord should discuss who will pay for each of the utilities and expenses. Some of these costs may actually be quite expensive, such as a heat for an old, drafty house. These expenses should all be considered when budgeting for the rental unit:

for the entire lease. This means that the landlord can sue any one or all of you for any unpaid rent. Some landlords also ask their tenants to pay rent with a single check. This practice also helps the landlord.

2. Check the Roommate Agreement. If you have been paying rent with separate checks, or if you have a signed roommate agreement specifying how much rent and utilities each roommate is responsible for paying, that may be enough to protect the paying roommates from being sued by the landlord.

3. Talk to Your Landlord. Most landlords are reasonable people trying to run a business. Help them understand why the roommate is no longer paying rent and discuss what can be done to remedy the situation. Though the landlord may have to sue the non-paying roommate for unpaid rent, working with him or her may keep you out of court.

4. Try to Assign or Sublet. Again, check your lease. You may need the landlord's permission to sublet or assign. You can look in the Daily Iowan and at the Housing Clearinghouse (335-3055) for people who need a room.

We hope, of course, that you never have any problems with your roommates. The options listed above, however, will hopefully aid you in correcting any problems which do arise. For more information on roommates or any problem or question you have, please call or stop by the TLA, no appointment necessary.

Housing Survival Kit

by The Tenant-Landlord Association

Whew!! The last box is unpacked and you're beginning to feel like this apartment really is "home". Your new roommates are wonderful and you just know that this is going to be a super semester. Nothing can ruin how great it is to be in your own place—or can it?

No one likes to think of the problems that can result in a housing situation. But what are you going to do if your new roommate doesn't pay rent, if your apartment suddenly becomes the newest "roach motel" or if your neighbors decide that Led Zeppelin at 3:00 a.m. is the only way to go?

This publication is designed to help you learn how to prevent problems such as these or if they are already happening, what you need to do to remedy the problems. Part of your responsibility of being a tenant is dealing with problems as they arise. Part of our responsibility as a housing organization is helping you be aware of options available to remedy problems.

Even if you think that the problems are going to happen to someone else this semester, don't throw this survival kit away. Stick it on the shelf next to last year's Biology notes. It won't take up much room and you may be very glad it's there later on!

We have a new name! The Protective Association for Tenants is now known as the Tenant-Landlord Association.

The Tenant-Landlord Association is located in Room 154 of the Iowa Memorial Union. TLA works with tenants and landlords, both students and non-students. All information is free. Call TLA at 335-3264. TLA is funded by the Student Senate.

Roommates

Sometime last spring, you decided it would be great if you and both of your best friends rented an apartment together. Now, after living with them for a couple of weeks, you're beginning to wonder why you ever called them "friends". Funny how you never noticed those annoying little habits they had until after you started living with them; things like never putting the cap back on the toothpaste, not washing a dish until all others are dirty, not to mention his/her "significant other" who likes to sleep over five days a week. Now he/she is refusing to pay rent! Is there anything you can do about it? Can't you move out? What can be done with the Roommate From Hell?

Living with roommates in an apartment can be difficult. Before, you either lived with your family, in the dorms, or at the Greek house. Now, however, you have entered into a contractual relationship with total strangers, and you have to negotiate new things like cleaning, dusting, and doing dishes. Hopefully, your situation isn't too bad.

Here are some different options you can consider when you encounter roommate problems:

1. Talk It Out. Chances are, your roommate is more reasonable than you may want to admit. He or she may, however, have very different ideas about the use of the apartment. Try to understand what the other person wants out the living area, either a quiet study place, or a site of major parties. Attempt to explain to them how your expectations differ and try to strike a compromise. You'll be getting valuable experience in working together to solve common problems.

2. Make Your Roommate Aware of His/Her Legal Responsibilities. Under Iowa law, every tenant has certain obligations. These include:

- keeping his/her area of the apartment clean,
- disposing of trash and other waste in a clean and safe manner,
- using all facilities and appliances in a reasonable manner,
- not destroying or damaging the premises or knowingly allow another to do so, and,
- conduct himself or herself in a manner that will not disturb a neighbor's peaceful enjoyment of the premises.

For more information on tenant obligations, contact our office at 335-3264.

But what if your roommate decides to quit school, move out, and/or stop paying rent?

1. Read Your Lease. Check to see if there is a "joint and several liability" clause in your rental agreement. If so, each roommate has agreed to be wholly liable

Leases

The lease and its contents The Rental Agreement

When you decide you want to rent a dwelling unit, the first step is to come to an agreement with the landlord. If you and the landlord agree that you will rent the house at 101 Main St. for $500/month for one year, you have entered into a legally binding rental agreement.

Important elements in any rental agreement include:

- 1) The names of the parties involved,
- 2) the address of the dwelling unit,
- 3) the amount of rent to be paid,
- 4) and the period of time the agreement covers.

A rental agreement may be verbal or written. Most verbal agreements are month-to-month tenancies, although they may cover a designated period of time. A written rental agreement (lease) may also be a month-to-month tenancy or may be for any number of months or years.

Put it in writing

A written lease is often preferable to a verbal agreement. No law requires a landlord to redecorate, remodel, allow pets, or provide furniture. If a landlord promises you any of these things as part of your rental agreement, the promise is binding. However, if a landlord breaks these promises, you may have difficulty proving that the promises existed unless they are in writing.

Illegal Lease Provisions

A landlord may include any terms or conditions in a rental agreement, except illegal ones. Iowa law prohibits a landlord from including any provision which requires you to:

- 1) waive any rights or remedies which the law gives you,
- 2) waive the right to present your side of the dispute if a landlord takes you to court,
- 3) agree to pay a landlord's attorney's fee under any circumstances,
- 4) agree to excuse a landlord from liability to you if he/she causes you damage.

If any of these clauses exist in your rental agreement, you should realize that these illegal provisions are not enforceable.

Rules

A landlord may make and enforce any rule governing your behavior as a tenant providing each rule is:

1) In writing - unwritten rules are not enforceable, even under an oral agreement, and you are not obligated to comply with oral rules.

- 2) For a legitimate purpose, such as promoting tenant's welfare or protecting a landlord's property.
- 3) Reasonably related to its purpose.
- 4) Applies fairly to all tenants.
- 5) Sufficiently explicit to fairly inform you of what you must and must not do.
- 6) Not designed by a landlord to evade his/her responsibilities.

You should receive notice of any rules at the time you sign your lease. Be sure to read through all the rules and understand them before you agree to rent.

A landlord may enforce a new rule after your tenancy begins only if it does not substantially change your agreement and only after reasonable notice to you.

Month-to-Month Tenancies vs. Longer Rental Agreements

A written or oral rental agreement for a specified period of time (i.e. a lease for one year) prevents a landlord from raising the rent until your agreement expires. Until the agreed time period expires, a landlord may not evict you except for non-payment of rent, or for some substantial violation of the rental agreement, the housing code, or the Iowa landlord/tenant law.

Under a written or oral month-to-month tenancy a landlord may raise the rent or terminate your tenancy for any reason by simply giving you a 30 day written notice. As a tenant, you can also terminate your tenancy by simply giving the landlord a 30 day written notice. Each of these notices must be given at least 30 days prior to the periodic rental period.

Obligations

Tenant Obligations Under 562A.17 Uniform Residential Landlord and Tenant Law

1. Comply with all obligations primarily imposed upon tenants by applicable provisions of building and housing codes materially affecting health and safety.
2. Keep that part of the premises that the tenant occupies and uses as clean and safe as the condition of the premises permit.
3. Dispose from the tenant's dwelling unit all ashes, rubbish, garbage, and other waste in a clean and safe manner.
4. Keep all plumbing fixtures in the dwelling unit permits.
5. Use in a reasonable manner all electrical plumbing, sanitary, heating, ventilating, air-conditioning and other facilities and appliances including elevators in the premises.
6. Not deliberately or negligently destroy, deface, damage, impair or remove a part of the premises or knowingly permit a person to do so.
7. Conduct himself or herself in a manner that will not disturb a neighbor's peaceful enjoyment of the premises. [C79, 562A.17]

Essentially, it is the responsibility of each tenant to maintain a safe, clean environment for his or herself as well as any roommates with whom the tenancy is being occupied. This responsibility includes a relatively noise-free living space where all occupants can expect to be protected from unreasonable invasion of space and privacy from non-leaseholders ("live-in" boyfriends or girlfriends, overly frequent guests).

Discrimination

Some Questions Frequently Asked by Landlords

1. What should I look for in selecting a tenant?

The most important thing for you to determine is whether the tenant will be able to pay the rent in a timely, regular manner. You will also want to know that the tenant will not disturb other tenants and will keep the unit in reasonable condition. These questions can often be answered by references from previous landlords, employment verifications, or a credit bureau.

2. How selective of my tenants may I be?

You can be very selective as long as you use the same set of standards or requirements for all prospective tenants. These standards cannot be based upon race, color, creed, national origin, religion, or disability.

3. I'm afraid that a woman wouldn't be able to maintain the lawn or make repairs. Can I rent only to men?

No. You cannot choose tenants on the basis of their sex.

4. I recently rented an apartment to a single woman. Now I have discovered that her boyfriend, who visits regularly, is black. I don't approve of the "mixed" relationship. Do I have the right to tell her he cannot visit her?

No. You cannot impose terms on your tenant which are based upon a tenant's race or the race of her guests.

5. I want a racially balanced building. Can I maintain a quota?

No. Quotas of any kind may be illegal. However, through voluntary affirmative advertising, you may be successful in reaching your goal.

6. I recently painted the apartments in my complex. Must I rent to a person in a wheelchair who may damage or mark the walls?

Yes. This person cannot be denied housing because of a physical handicap. You have the right to require that the tenant restore the unit to its original condition, minus normal wear and tear, just as is the case with every other tenant.

7. I think I have an obligation to see that my current tenants live within a comfortable atmosphere. I'm sure they wouldn't be comfortable living next to minorities. Don't I have a responsibility to protect their interest in this regard?

No. Any person has the right to live wherever they choose—regardless of their race, color, or national origin. Tenant preference is not a legitimate defense.

8. There are som many Americans looking for housing; do I have to rent to foreigners?

Yes. The law requires that your decision be based on the individual's likelihood to be a good tenant, not on his or her national origin.

9. Do I have to accept people on welfare or other forms of public assistance?

Yes, if their income is sufficient to meet your income requirements. While a person's source of income is not directly protected under the law, automatic exclusions for this reason may have a greater effect on one group of people over another.

10. Can I set a dollar amount on the income I require of my applicants?

Yes. You can determine how much your applicants should make but this figure must be applied equally to all prospective applicants.

Snow Removal

Depending on the type of dwelling leased, the responsibility of snow removal falls on either the tenant or landlord. The walkways in front of your dwelling are not cleared by city workers. The landlord (or manager as assigned by the landlord) is responsible for removing snow unless the responsibility is otherwise delegated to the tenant in the lease.

Communication

It's The Key For Both Tenants and Landlords

Always Put Everything In Writing

Every communication between you and the landlord should be in writing. When repairs are needed or you are planning to move, you will probably phone or talk to the landlord in person. After such conversations, immediately write the landlord as letter spelling out all details of any agreements you made, or if there was no agreement, what you are going to do and what you expect the landlord to do. If the landlord has promptly made repairs after your oral request, write a thank-you letter recounting what you requested and what the landlord did and when.

Keep Copies of All Communications

Mail the letter by ordinary situations. Mail the letter by certified mail, return receipt requested, if the letter is a notice. Another option is to deliver it in person to the landlord with a witness.

Proper Notice Procedure

Whenever this handbook says that you or the landlord must notify or give the other person notice before taking some action, remember that if the notice is defective in some way, the action cannot be lawfully taken. If you fail to give proper notice, it may cost you time and money.

To make sure the notice you give is effective, follow these suggestions:

1. Always give written notice.
2. Think ahead. Most notices must be given at least 30 days before you take action. Find out how far ahead you have to give notice and always give yourself plenty of time.
3. Always keep a copy for your own records.
4. Always mail the notice by certified mail, return receipt requested, or deliver the notice to the landlord in person, with a witness who will be willing and able to go to court with you if necessary.

Certified Mail. Go to the Post Office and tell the postal worker that you want to send your letter certified mail and that you want a return receipt. After the landlord receives and signs for the letter, the Post Office will mail you the receipt.

Keep the receipt. Attach the receipt to your copy of the letter. This is your proof that the landlord received the letter on the date indicated on the receipt.

White SWAPO leader shot to death at home

WINDHOEK, Namibia — Anton Lubowski, the only white to hold a leadership post in the South-West Africa People's Organization guerrilla movement, was assassinated Tuesday outside his home in suburban Windhoek, police said.

Lt. Kierie du Rand, a police spokesman, said Lubowski was shot in the head at about 8:50 p.m. by an assailant who drove away in a red sedan. Du Rand said an all-out manhunt had been launched.

Lubowski, 37, was an unofficial spokesman for SWAPO, the Namibian independence movement that had waged a bush war against South African rule of the territory since 1966.

South Africa has agreed to grant independence, expected by early next year, as part of a regional peace accord also calling for withdrawal of Cuban troops from Angola.

Typhoon lashes Taiwan, 20 dead or missing

TAIPEI, Taiwan — Typhoon Sarah lashed Taiwan with heavy rains and high winds for a second day on Tuesday, killing at least 11 people and leaving nine missing, officials said.

They said the typhoon set off landslides, immobilized transportation, flooded crops and broke a Panamanian freighter in two.

The 12,000-ton Lung Hao with 26 Turkish and Indian crew broke apart Monday off Hualien, 110 miles southeast of Taipei, and rescuers still are looking for five crew members believed to be stranded on the vessel.

Four sailors swam ashore Monday, and 17 were rescued Tuesday. Hualien was the hardest-hit area, with four people reported dead.

Hungary: Flow of refugees has peaked

BUDAPEST, Hungary — Border officials monitoring entry into Hungary suggested Tuesday that the flow of refugees to the West had peaked, saying the number of East German visitors was usual for this time of year.

They sought to soft-pedal suggestions that a majority of the more than 50,000 East Germans reported on vacation in Hungary could join others who had formally requested to leave for a new life in the West.

Maj. Janos Hornyak of the border guards said 6,529 East Germans had arrived between 6:30 a.m. Monday and 9:30 a.m. Tuesday.

He said that 3,220 East Germans left for home over the same time via Czechoslovakia, which is sandwiched between Hungary and East Germany.

Most entered from Czechoslovakia and the rest from Romania, he said, adding that the figures were normal for this time of year.

Virus set to attack after Columbus Day

NEW YORK — A harmful but rare computer virus is set to attack IBM-compatible personal computers after October 12, experts in computer security said Tuesday.

The virus cripples personal computers' hard disks, where programs and data are stored, by wiping out the directory sections known as the partition table and file allocation table.

"It's like taking away the index from the library," said John McAfee, chairman of the Computer Virus Industry Association in Santa Clara, Calif.

The industry association says it has created a program that will detect the virus and another one that will eradicate it. Both are available free from computer bulletin boards or from the association itself.

But McAfee said the virus, while unusually harmful, is so rare that most PC owners do not need to be too worried.

Bakker Trial: Testimony of Opulence

CHARLOTTE, N.C. — Jurors watched videos Tuesday showing the opulent lifestyle of PTL founder Jim Bakker, including a 4,000-square-foot suite in a hotel at the PTL ministry's Heritage USA theme park and retreat.

The video tour was conducted by James Taggart, Bakker's former interior decorator, who was sentenced to 17 years in prison and fined $500,000 last week for tax evasion while at PTL. Taggart said the suite could be divided into three smaller suites for the Bakkers and their two children.

The presidential suite in the Heritage Grand Hotel at Heritage USA, outside Charlotte at Fort Mill, S.C., was used occasionally by the Bakkers, who also had a five-level parsonage at nearby Lake Wylie.

Reporters could not see the video screen as Taggart described gold-plated swan bathroom fixtures, antique beds and mirrored walls in the bedroom. He said the suite included a 10-by-60-foot closet for Bakker's wife, Tammy Faye.

2nd day of Gabor trial draws smaller crowd

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. — Zsa Zsa Gabor arrived in court Tuesday wearing a leopard-patterned dress to watch jury selection for her trial stemming from a run-in with a policeman, but the audience was far smaller than on opening day.

"Leopard is coming back in," she said.

Gabor, who appeared in "Moulin Rouge" and "Picture Mommy Dead," drew a crowd of only about 20 when she arrived.

She was mobbed by about 100 reporters at the courthouse Monday when jury selection began. Only six reporters were allowed inside, leaving the rest to chase interviews with fans and bystanders.

She was accompanied Monday by her hairdresser, daughter and eighth husband, Prince Frederick von Anhalt, Germany's Duke of Saxony. The duke returned Tuesday, but the hairdresser did not.

through President Wojciech Jaruzelski, a communist. The new government also has promised allegiance to the Soviet-led Warsaw Pact military alliance.

Still, Mazowiecki, once a political prisoner, promised an overhaul of communist institutions in an eloquent speech that he was forced to interrupt for 45 minutes when he felt faint from exhaustion.

He called for reforming the police and the justice system, liberalizing laws on associations, gatherings and censorship, creating a new democratic constitution, removing political and ideological barriers to promotion, giving universities full autonomy and battling "catastrophic" environmental pollution.

The main focus was Poland's economy. Mazowiecki said the ranks of the poor were swelling and warned that production and living standards, already lower than 10 years ago, were likely to decline further.

"The new government will act under the pressure that at any moment the construction of democracy that only just started can collapse under the economic crisis," he said.

He called for immediate steps to combat triple-digit inflation, including tax reform, making the zloty convertible with Western currency and creating a stock exchange.

Mazowiecki, a Solidarity newspaper editor who became the East bloc's first non-communist prime minister, rejected a past when the communist government "wanted to rule not only over the lives but the minds" of Poles.

"Poland can be lifted only by a society of free citizens and by a government that enjoys the confidence of the clear majority of society," he said.

Marian Orzechowski, the Politburo member who heads the communist parliament delegation, rose to support Mazowiecki.

"My party is not going into opposition," Orzechowski said. "We will govern together."

In the Soviet Union, Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov said, "We are prepared to cooperate with (the new) government and develop our relations with Poland."

their U.S. investments, making it even more difficult for the country to close its trade gap.

"The negative services payment is a distressing omen. We are now paying more to foreigners on their U.S. investments than we are earning on our assets in foreign countries and that is worrisome," said Allen Sinai, chief economist for the Boston Co.

While the spring services deficit was small and could well be revised away in coming reports, analysts said the trend is clear: The United States will be forced to transfer more and more wealth overseas to service the growing level of foreign holdings in the United States.

John Hagens, senior economist at the WEFA Group, an economic consulting company, said he expected the services trade category would be in deficit throughout the 1990s.

New York City mayor struggles to hold job

New York City Mayor Edward Koch held a dwindling lead over a Democratic rival as he struggled to keep his job Tuesday, while Detroit Mayor Coleman Young appeared headed toward a primary victory that could catapult him into a record fifth term.

In one of two special congressional elections, Democrat Pete Geren narrowly won the Texas seat left vacant by House Speaker Jim Wright. A similar election was held in California to fill the seat vacated by Democratic Whip Tony Coelho. Both Coelho and Wright resigned over alleged ethics violations.

Endangered complex

The Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commission joined local residents this week in their negative assessment of a proposal to build UI fraternity and sorority houses along Taft Speedway, making it likely the so-called "greek complex" project will not evolve beyond the blueprint stage.

Although the project would require changes in land zoning, admittedly a difficult task, the commission put disproportionate weight on residents' arguments that "greeks" pose a threat to the neighborhood and to endangered species.

That's right, endangered species. Area residents believe that allowing a fraternity or sorority to exist next to an environmentally fragile area would be a mistake. But this argument runs contrary to the findings of the Army Corps of Engineers.

In truth, these residents are waving the environmental banner to mask their fears of college students. They believe the fallacy that students "think college is just a play period between high school and life," as one resident told a local reporter, and as such are a menace to property values.

These concerned citizens must be wearing blinders when they walk into the stores and restaurants of Iowa City, where the staff is often comprised of responsible college students earning money for tuition. A walk by the manicured lawns and elegant columns of the Kappa Alpha Theta Sorority house will answer any questions about the collegial menace to property values.

The commission members are similarly blind; they are passing up an opportunity to ease the pressure of Iowa City's housing crisis.

This debate has forced college students to once again prove they are conscientious and responsible adults. In the face of a reasonable request for decent housing, the "greek complex" has become the real endangered species.

Hitting a nerve

The Consumer Pesticide Project, an anti-pesticide group, should be commended for its recent action in getting six national grocery firms to agree to encourage reduction of cancer-causing chemicals in the food they are supplied with, and to not knowingly sell food with toxic chemicals after Jan. 1, 1995.

The firms are all members of the Food Marketing Institute and have been warned that they could be subject to antitrust violations if they side with the anti-pesticide group.

The anti-pesticide group — in light of recent success enlisting public support for banning the pesticide alar, used on apples — wants to make consumers aware of foods that contain dangerous levels of toxic chemicals. Formerly, the group worked only with federal government officials in influencing governmental regulation of those chemicals.

The Consumer Pesticide Project has hit a nerve. Food industry officials are up in arms about the group's new, head-on approach, which includes heavy media coverage about the effects of pesticides in food.

The new technique has the potential to be very successful. The public learns of the harmful effects of pesticides such as alar and can use that knowledge while shopping — thus the food industry's negative response. When pesticide lobbying is done only on the governmental level, however, the public doesn't know about the toxins they are ingesting until after legislation has passed.

The one drawback to the new technique is that the grocery firms must police themselves. They have agreed to not knowingly sell toxic chemicals, but without governmental regulation, there is nothing holding them to that agreement.

Mere economics

The call for political change in the Warsaw Pact is ringing out loud and clear. Citizens are demanding a role in shaping the policy of their governments, and although they haven't given up on communism, they're insisting on democratic freedoms.

Throughout the East Bloc nations, the educated and the young are pursuing their dreams of greater liberties. On Tuesday, more than 12,000 East Germans emigrated to West Germany — the greatest single movement since the construction of the Berlin Wall in 1961. The emigration was made possible by the communist government of Hungary, whose leaders proved they value political freedom more than their Warsaw Pact alliances.

The daily strikes and protests in several of its provinces is making the Soviet Union look like a card house in a stiff breeze. Soviet "political maverick" Boris Yeltsin, talking with reporters in New York on Monday, said Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has "probably about six months" to achieve domestic progress or "we're going to have some difficult times."

The people who live in the Warsaw Pact nations aren't satisfied with their situation, and they are making their displeasure known. In the past, the use of violence has truncated social change, but that too seems to be changing. This is a chance for a new style of communism to arise; one which accepts and embraces each member of society, combining the freedoms of democracy with the Marxist principle of egalitarianism.

If communist governments within the Warsaw Pact have the courage to continue loosening their internal structures and resisting the temptation to suppress dissident behavior, maybe one day the differences between East and West will be reduced to economic theory, not basic human rights.

'Progress' in farming deceives

Last week, the National Academy of Sciences released "Alternative Agriculture," a report that could revolutionize American farming. The key to implementing the recommendations of the study is an alliance between scientific research and public policy.

Scientific research produced the synthetic chemical fertilizers and pesticides that the new report claims are overused in America today. One of the things "Alternative Agriculture" advocates is increasing the amount of money spent on research to identify or develop farming methods that minimize our dependency on chemicals. The Department of Agriculture is scheduled to spend $4.45 million in 1990 for research into alternative methods of farming. The report urges that such funding be increased to $40 million.

That's almost 10 times the current level of funding. To see how serious the National Academy of Sciences is about the importance of alternative agriculture, think back to President George Bush's address to the nation last Tuesday. Despite the president's claim that "the gravest domestic threat facing our nation today is drugs," Bush's proposed budget would not even double the amount of money spent on the war on drugs (and the Department of Agriculture needs only limited funds for incarcerating vegetables).

The $40 million recommended by "Alternative Agriculture" for research is just the beginning. According to The New York Times, the administration will seek to increase the total research budget of the Department of Agriculture from $1.2 to $1.7 billion. Scientific research for the war on chemicals seems to be considerably better funded than research for the war on drugs.

Something the two programs have in common, however, is the current public sentiment against what used to be touted as "better living through chemistry." The time is right for increasing funding for research into life with far fewer drugs and chemicals. Never have Americans been as concerned about synthetic chemicals in the food supply. More and more Americans are wary of the widespread, long-lasting consequences of the use of agricultural chemicals.

Some years ago, when I was working in orchards on the West Coast, I saw my first pesticide container. It was an empty drum, sitting by a roadside. Warning labels in large type listed the various ways not to dispose of this container. It was a long list. Basically, it shouldn't come near people, livestock, birds or fish. I had to wonder where it was supposed to go.

That evening, I struck up a conversation with the foreman of the cherry orchard where I was working. "What is this stuff?" I asked. He told me that particular chemical was a descendant of nerve gas that had been developed for use in war. He wasn't afraid of it, though, he said. We only use enough to kill a fly.

It's true the concentration of the chemical used is small. But some people see that as a drawback. One day I stopped by to see a pharmacist friend who worked for the Poison Control Center hotline. He had just received a call from an individual who was concerned about breathing the fumes in his house, produced by a small operation he was conducting in his kitchen. The man was reducing a liquid chemical pesticide by boiling it down. That way, he reasoned, it would be more concentrated, and more effective.

Now, it's true that no chemical company ever recommended this course of action. But if you've ever worked in the fields, you know that agricultural chemicals are not being applied and disposed of by crack teams of scientific geniuses.

The whole thing scares me. Even when agricultural chemicals are used correctly, one has to wonder about health consequences.

What can be done? "Alternative Agriculture" has specific suggestions about crop rotation, natural pest, disease and weed control programs, conservation tillage, and the use of livestock to provide manure fertilizer. To those who scoff and say this would be turning our backs on progress, the report documents impressive Scots from farms currently using these methods.

Public policy is the way to implement the recommendations of "Alternative Agriculture." Remember, it's not as if we now do nothing to influence farmers. The Times reports that the government has spent over $136 billion since 1980 on farm programs.

The current subsidy program encourages the use of synthetic chemicals. For example, given the way the subsidy program is now set up, farmers are discouraged from growing a variety of crops and replenishing the soil through rotation — which means more synthetic chemicals.

Even more telling is the subsidy program's stress on quantity. Currently, subsidies are calculated in terms of bushels per acre. This kind of payment ties into a basic American calculation: Bigger is better.

But that may be the wrong way to think about farming. We now have farmers producing surplus crops for which the only buyer is the United States government. This means your tax dollars are supporting production of a useless crop, by farming methods that may be harming both the food supply and the environment.

And have you noticed that the biggest zucchini never tastes any good?

Images from South Africa sadden, inspire

The recent elections in South Africa and the events surrounding them once again highlight the essential malady of South Africa under apartheid. With an election result in which there was as much movement to the right of the governing party as there was to the left, the white electorate has again demonstrated that elections

Soweto uprisings are all instances of this resistance.

The tragedy and the triumph of the South African situation lies in the fact that the more murderous and repressive the apartheid state has become, the more fearless, resolute and widespread has the opposition to it grown.

At present, South Africa is in a state of emergency with strict and assert their ownership of beaches, hospitals and other amenities, the use of which they are denied under apartheid. The response of the regime was characteristic and predictable: So far, 29 people, including children, have been killed by police.

The symbols and images emerging from the South African conflict deserve our close scrutiny. Consider the image of hordes of steel-helmeted and armed soldiers deployed at beachfronts and around hospitals to ensure that only those with the correct skin color make use of these facilities. The almost instinctive belly-laugh that wells up chokes in one's throat and is quickly replaced by a sense of the image's grotesqueness, when one learns that the police killed almost 30 people in the discharge of this "duty."

But the image of a militarily powerless and politically disenfranchised people peacefully defying the ruthless might of the apartheid state is also inspiring. A powerful symbol of hope and strength is presented by a righteously angry and defiant Archbishop Desmond Tutu reconsecrating St. George's Cathedral in Capetown after police entered and assaulted people inside with horsewhips and batons.

We South Africans have no doubt that in the foreseeable future we will reclaim our land from the evil forces of apartheid and reconsecrate it for full and fair use by all its people, black and white.

In sharp contrast to the inconsequential dithering of the apartheid elections, the vast majority of South Africans have also chosen this period to proclaim loudly and unequivocally their total rejection of apartheid. The Defiance Campaign now underway in South Africa, while unique in many ways, is only the most recent manifestation of a long tradition of resolute resistance to the state sponsored terrorism of apartheid. # Bush to aid Soviet reforms

WASHINGTON (AP) — Soviet political mavericks met briefly with President George Bush on Tuesday and urged the administration and U.S. business executives to help salvage the political and economic reforms being pushed by Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Bush emphasized that the American people have his hope for the success of the reform movement in the Soviet Union, the White House said in a short statement after the 15-minute meeting.

Bush told Yeltsin his administration enjoys a "very positive relationship" with Gorbachev and reiterated support for perestroika, or the restructuring of Soviet economic and political life, the White House said.

The 58-year-old Yeltsin, ousted as Moscow's Communist Party chief in late 1987 and then dumped from the ruling Politburo, was elected to parliament with overwhelming popular support in a contested election. He arrived in the United States on a private tour Saturday.

After meeting for nearly an hour with Secretary of State James Baker, Yeltsin said he did not expect the United States to loan money to the Kremlin, but that he wanted American companies to invest in the Soviet Union.

In a statement, the State Department said that Yeltsin "offered his views on the kinds of changes that are taking place in the Soviet Union, his assessment of where the reform process stood, and of what would be needed for the reform process to move forward and succeed. Examples:

- "Acceptance of existence of private property."
- "Importance of a mixed economy."
- "Enticing external investment in the Soviet Union."
- "Mr. Yeltsin made it very clear he would welcome U.S. support for perestroika. He does not want and is not seeking American grants. Rather he sees great virtue in private American investment in the Soviet Union."

Yeltsin, rushing from his meeting to catch an airplane to Chicago, told reporters that "in my discussion with the president and vice president, I made a list of 10 issues that could be discussed between us that could serve to rescue perestroika."

He declined to give specifics, but said "the president supported the proposals that I suggested."

The State Department said Baker told Yeltsin that "in order to make the Soviet Union an attractive place for Americans to invest, the Soviet Union needs to address price reform and convertibility of the ruble."

The ruble, Soviet currency, is not generally traded on world currency exchanges. A dollar buys many more rubles on the black market than it does in official transactions in Soviet state banks, a sign of an ailing economy. The Soviet government is sponsoring a world-wide competition among economists with a $25,000 prize for the best plan to make the ruble convertible.

Pro-democracy rallies cheer Chinese leaders

HONG KONG (AP) — Tens of thousands of people, many wearing black armbands, rallied to cheer escaped leaders of China's pro-democracy student movement on Tuesday, the 100th day since its suppression.

In London, 100 white paper flowers were laid on a street in the Chinatown section to commemorate victims of the crackdown. Other protests were held in Taiwan and the Portuguese territory of Macao.

China's state media did not mention the day.

Many of Hong Kong's favorite pop singers performed during a nearly three-hour concert to mark the day, but the loudest cheers were for leaders of the movement who escaped Chinese authorities.

Wu'er Kaixi, a charismatic Beijing student who was one of China's most wanted activists, vowed success for the fight for freedom in a speech to the hushed crowd.

"Democracy will come to China, but it's going to be a long and difficult road," Wu'er said in a voice cracking with emotion. "If we unite with a democratic spirit, one day we will rebuild the Goddess of Democracy in Tiananmen Square."

He was referring to the statue that became the movement's symbol in the final days before Chinese troops entered central Beijing on June 3-4 to clear Tiananmen Square of pro-democracy activists.

China says about 300 people died in the street clashes, but Western intelligence sources say the toll may have been 3,000.

Also addressing the crowd by long-distance telephone were student leader Li Lu and dissident intellectual Yan Jiaqi. Organizers did not say from where the three leaders spoke.

The military suppression traumatized this British colony, which is to return to Chinese rule in 1997.

Police estimated the crowd at more than 20,000, while organizers said it could be up to 50,000.

China's government in recent weeks has harshly criticized Hong Kong residents who continue to support the pro-democracy movement, which Beijing authorities call a "counterrevolutionary rebellion."

Seventeen people staged a 32-hour hunger strike at the local Xinhua News Agency office, which is China's de facto embassy in the colony. In front of the building was a poster bearing the Chinese character "ai" — which means mourning.

House OKs bill to penalize flag-burners

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. House on Tuesday overwhelmingly approved a bill designed to overturn an unpopular U.S. Supreme Court decision and restore criminal penalties for flag-burning.

The Democratic-sponsored bill was passed 380 to 38 and sent to the Senate, which plans action next month.

The lopsided tally came after Speaker Thomas Foley promised a vote later on a constitutional amendment, the remedy demanded by President George Bush and many congressional Republicans to undo the court's ruling that flag-burning could be a protected form of free speech.

"I remain opposed... and I think the leadership is opposed to a constitutional amendment," said Foley (D-Wash.) calling such action unnecessary tampering with the Bill of Rights.

However, he said he had assured those seeking an amendment they would get their vote, and he denied that that marked a political setback. He suggested he would work to keep the amendment from getting the two-thirds vote needed for passage.

Some seeking an amendment softened their opposition to the statute, once assured that the Democratic leadership would not use it to block their alternative.

Rep. Sonny Montgomery (D-Miss.), chairman of the House Veterans Committee and co-sponsor of Bush's amendment, stood up in the House and announced he would vote for the statute.

"I still have doubts that we can do the job by statute, but this is a step in the right direction," he said.

At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, "We believe that this bill is insufficient to provide the protections that we seek, and therefore continue to press for a constitutional amendment."

But he stopped short of any veto threat; thus helping the House Democrats garner support for the statute.

"I remain opposed... and I think the leadership is opposed to a constitutional amendment." — House Speaker Tom Foley

Conservative Republicans, however, continued to accuse the Democrats of trying to sidetrack the constitutional amendment while pushing a statute the GOP lawmakers contend may still be unconstitutional.

"The game is obvious," said Rep. Chuck Douglas (R-N.H.). "This is the flag-burner protection act of 1989."

The statute, a version of which is expected to come before the Senate in early October, includes criminal penalties of up to a year in jail, plus an unspecified fine for flag-burning or other flag mutilation.

Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell has promised a vote on the constitutional amendment later next month, and Foley said Tuesday that House action would follow the Senate's.

Both the statute and the constitutional amendment are attempts to address a Supreme Court ruling in June that threw out the conviction of a man who burned a flag at the 1984 Republican National Convention in Dallas.

The court held the law was unconstitutional because it was aimed at suppressing the man's right to political expression as guaranteed by the Constitution.

Bush, who visited a flag factory as part of his campaign last year, joined Republican leaders on Capitol Hill in a drive for a constitutional amendment to protect the flag from desecration.

Australia's gone frog wild - well, at least wild with toads

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Toads that grow to the size of dinner plates are invading Brisbane, Australia's third-largest city, and local authorities are planning an elaborate program to get rid of them.

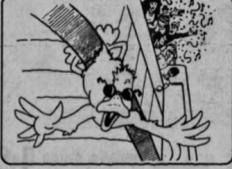

"For toads in Brisbane, this summer is shaping up as a nightmarish scene from the Texas Chainsaw Massacre," the Sydney Morning Herald said Tuesday, the day the eradication project was announced.

Plans include ringing the city's suburbs with recordings of the rattling call the male toad uses to attract females. When the unsuspecting females arrive, trappers will shove them into plastic bags and freeze them, said Greg Stegman, a city councilman in charge of the eradication plan.

Residents who find toads around their homes are being advised to sprinkle detergent on them because it "does the job quickly," Stegman said.

He promised that the city of 1 million in the northeastern state of Queensland will be toad-free within five years.

CHICAGO (AP) — Iowa guard B.J. Armstrong, the Chicago Bulls' second pick in the 1989 draft, has signed with the National Basketball Association club, it was announced Tuesday.

Armstrong, the 18th choice overall in the draft, was one of three players Chicago selected in the first round.

The team's top pick, Oklahoma center-forward Stacey King, the No. 6 choice overall, has yet to sign a contract. The Bulls earlier signed Georgia Southern forward Jeff Sanders, the No. 20 pick. Terms of Armstrong's contract were not disclosed.

"I'm elated to sign and finalize my contract," Armstrong said. "I'm very happy to get things started and I am looking forward to the beginning of training camp."

Jerry Krause, the Bulls' vice president of basketball operations, said Armstrong "will be a great asset to the team this season and in the years to come."

The 6-foot-2 Armstrong is Iowa's career assist leader with 517. He averaged 18.6 points and 5.4 assists last season, when he earned second-team all-Big Ten Conference honors. Armstrong also was a second-team all-conference pick as a junior.

Firing off successive games of 15-13, 15-10 and 15-11; the Iowa volleyball team swept Illinois State Tuesday night at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

"We really needed this win," Iowa coach Ruth Nelson said. "We needed a confidence boost, and Illinois State is a very good team."

"The team had a lack of effort, organization and desire," Illinois State coach Julie Morgan said. "This is the first time that they just couldn't generate anything. It's very frustrating to have a match like this. We just couldn't get going."

The Hawkeyes, Nelson said, were motivated by their 3-1 loss to Iowa State at the Carousel Motors All-Iowa Championships last weekend.

"I think that when we played against Iowa State, the team got embarrassed," Nelson said. "They outplayed us, and we don't want to do the same thing again. I think they're becoming conscious of how they perform."

"The morale of the group has definitely improved," junior setter Janet Moylan said. "Tonight it was more fun, and we enjoyed it more."

Unity among the players on the floor also seemed to be an improvement from last weekend's loss, Nelson said.

That could have been due to a change in Nelson's policy of substituting.

Questions remain prior to opener against Oregon

Michael Triik
The Daily Iowan

About the only thing anybody seems to know about Iowa's season opener Saturday is that the 24th-ranked Hawkeyes will entertain Oregon in the newly resurfaced Kinnick Stadium.

The Ducks don't know much about Iowa because the Hawkeyes have yet to take a snap this season. Iowa doesn't know much about itself because 13 of Iowa coach Hayden Fry's players will start for the first time Saturday.

"I don't know how good this football team is," Fry said during his first weekly press conference Tuesday. "We have a lot of new faces. At this point we really are a mystery team and we are very anxious to find out just how good we really are."

Fry released a two-deep list for Saturday's opener, but he cautioned that no position is set in cement.

"No one on the offense or the defense can think they have it made," Fry said. "If someone looks real good in practice this week he still has a chance to start."

Offense is where most of Fry's questions lie. Iowa will use seven new starters offensively against Oregon; including quarterback, wide receiver, tight end and one running back. In addition, Iowa has a four new coaches on the offensive side of the ball.

Former running backs coach Carl Jackson has taken over the offensive coordinator duties. Only one wide-receiver returns from last year's team, which should mean that Iowa will try to run the ball more this year than in the recent past.

That concerns Fry.

Tony Stewart, Iowa's starting tailback last season, hasn't fully recovered from knee surgery. Nick Bell will start for the first time at that position.

"We're very concerned with the running game," Fry said, "because of the newness of some of the blockers up front and some of the runners. Tony Stewart hasn't had any contact this year. We're anxious to see how Nick Bell is going to perform, but if he goes down, who's to say how Tony Stewart will perform."

"Travis Watkins is the only fellow who has caught any passes to speak of," Fry added. "Tommy Poholsky hasn't thrown many passes since he was a freshman. We've got more question marks this year than we've ever had."

Poholsky, regardless of how many balls he has thrown since his freshman season, will start at quarterback Saturday, but there is some question as to how long he

"No one on the offense or the defense can think they have it. If someone looks real good in practice this week he still has a chance to start."

will direct the Hawkeye offense. "Frankly you could flip a coin between the three," Fry said, talking about Poholsky and backups Matt Rodgers and Jim Hartlieb. "Tommy new our offense better. He's been here longer and he deserved to start because he is a fifth-year man. I would like to think that the other two fellows will get to play but I just don't know."

One would think that was enough unrest for any coach heading into a season opener, but the questions continue to flow.

The battle between senior kicker George Murphy and sophomore Jeff Skilleit is possibly the biggest question mark facing Fry and his staff.

The war for Iowa's kicking duties is so fierce that Fry won't announce a starter until just before kickoff.

"We are having a very difficult time deciding which one is the best," Fry said. "We chart them every day and it is so close it is unbelievable."

Fry said he has a similar battle going on between freshmen Jim Hujsak and Sean Snyder for the punting duties.

Indians fire Edwards after poor late season

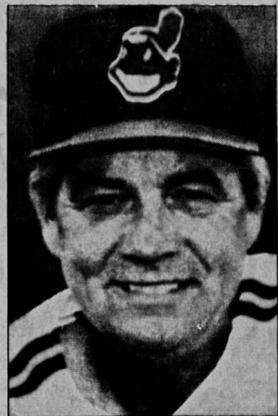

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Cleveland Indians fired Manager Doc Edwards on Tuesday, hoping to reverse a late-season swoon that dropped the team out of its first pennant race in 15 years.

The Indians, who haven't won a division or American League title since 1954, were 54-54 on Aug. 4, only 1½ games out of first. But since then, they've gone 11-24, falling a season-worst 14½ games off the pace at 65-78.

Edwards, 52, was replaced on an interim basis by John Hart, 41, a former coach and minor-league manager in the Baltimore organization. Hart was the Orioles' third-base coach last year and was brought to Cleveland as a scout by Indian president Hank Peters, former Baltimore's general manager.

The early favorite to be Edwards' permanent replacement is Mike Hargrove, a former Cleveland player who managed the Indians' Class AAA Colorado Springs affiliate this year. Hargrove and Hart will be among the people considered for the job, Peters said. Others outside the organization, such as former Yankees manager Lou Piniella, might also be considered, he indicated.

"I think they (Indians' players) had reached the point where they were satisfied with the type of baseball they were playing, and I wasn't," Peters said. "The thing that changed the perspective this year was the nature of the race in the (American League) East. We looked at the standings in August and said, 'My gosh, anybody can win this.'"

Edwards took the news hard and was heading for his home in Great Valley, N.Y., Indians' spokesman Bob DiBasio said.

Edwards was popular among most of his players and coaches because of his easy-going attitude, but some thought that also may have been his undoing.

Cubs blank Montreal to widen lead

Montreal second baseman Damaso Garcia leaps Tuesday to corral a late throw during the Cubs-Expos game at Wrigley Field in Chicago. Rookie Dwight Smith recorded the stolen base as Chicago went on to a 2-0 win, securing its lead in the NL East.

Bielecki tosses 2-hitter in win

CHICAGO (AP) — Mike Bielecki pitched a two-hitter and Vance Law scored from third base on a passed ball to snap a scoreless tie in the fifth inning as the first-place Chicago Cubs beat the Montreal Expos 2-0 Tuesday night.

It was the fourth straight victory for the Cubs and their fifth win in six games. The fourth-place Expos lost for the fifth time in six games and fell six games behind the Cubs in the National League East.

The Cubs also moved 4½ games ahead of St. Louis as the Cardinals lost 5-0 to Pittsburgh, and 5½ games ahead of the third-place New York Mets, who lost 2-1 to Philadelphia.

Bielecki, 16-6, and Bryn Smith, 10-9, were locked in a scoreless duel when Law opened the fifth with a single and moved to third on Shawon Dunston's double.

Smith retired Rick Wrona on an infield pop and struck out Bielecki. Jerome Walton then swung at a 1-0 pitch that eluded catcher Nelson Santovenia and Law scored the unearned run on

Former Hawkeye star dies

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Julian C. "Dutch" Reinhardt, a member of the University of Southwestern Louisiana athletic staff for 58 years, died Monday in Wisconsin where he had been ill with cancer for years, the school announced Tuesday. He was 82.

A native of Centralia, Ill., Reinhardt died at a hospital near Boulder Junction, Wis., where he had spent more than 60 summers working the Red Arrow Camp for boys, said a news release issued by Southwestern.

A former University of Iowa basketball star, Reinhardt was hired in 1931 as Southwestern's freshman football coach and head basketball coach and, after compiling a record of 346-253 in 27 seasons of basketball, he finished his active USL career as head trainer and associate athletic director.

After retiring in 1975, Reinhardt was named associate athletic director emeritus, a position he held until his death.

He also was a member of the Helms Athletic Foundation Hall of Fame, the Southwestern Hall of Fame, the Louisiana Athletic Trainers Association Hall of Fame, the Louisiana Association of Basketball Coaches Hall of Fame and the Louisiana Sports Hall of Fame in 1986.

Additionally, the main thoroughfare of the USL Athletic Complex was named Reinhardt Drive in January 1980.

Gioiosa is guilty

CINCINNATI (AP) — A federal jury on Tuesday convicted Thomas Gioiosa of participating in a cocaine ring and conspiring to hide Pete Rose's racetrack winnings from the Internal Revenue Service.

The U.S. District Court verdict bolsters the government's case against Rose, who is being investigated by a federal grand jury in Cincinnati looking into his tax claims.

Federal prosecutors convinced the 12-member jury that Gioiosa falsely claimed a $47,646 racetrack ticket that actually was owned by Rose. Rose's gambling and other sources of income are the focus of the federal grand jury probe, which is expected to last for at least several more weeks.

The former Cincinnati Reds' manager was banned for life from baseball on Aug. 24 — the day Gioiosa's trial began in U.S. District Court.

Gioiosa, 31, of New Bedford, Mass., could be sentenced to 28 years in prison and fined up to $1.5 million. Judge S. Arthur Spiegel did not immediately set a sentencing date.

The jury found Gioiosa innocent of two other counts of filing false income tax returns for 1985 and 1986.

Bullets sign Hammonds

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — Tom Hammonds, the first pick of the Washington Bullets in June's NBA draft, signed a multi-year contract Tuesday.

Details of the agreement were not revealed. Hammonds signed with the Bullets after entertaining an offer from a team in Salonika, Greece, the same club that tried to sign forward Randy White, the Dallas Mavericks' first-round choice.

"There was a real good offer made, and you had to really consider it, but I wanted to play in the best league in the world and against the best players in the world, and I think I can do that by staying here in the NBA," Hammonds said.

The 6-foot-9 forward, who was the ninth player chosen overall, received his offer from the Greek team after White rejected a bid.

"Normally players sign in a cluster. When White and some of the other guys (taken near Hammonds in the draft) signed, there was some sort of idea what the market (price) was," Washington general manager Bob Ferry said. "Nobody, not the players nor the teams, wants to go first and set the market."

Ferry's son, Danny, was the second player selected and opted to sign with a team in Italy rather than play for the Los Angeles Clippers. Ferry said he wasn't worried about losing Hammonds to Europe.

Barnes ordered to stand trial

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Former NBA player Marvin Barnes was ordered Tuesday to stand trial on charges of petty theft and resisting arrest after allegedly stealing adult videotapes and lingerie from an adult video and bookstore.

Barnes, 37, who played at Providence College and began his professional career with St. Louis of the American Basketball Association went on to play for Detroit, Buffalo, Boston and San Diego in the NBA, allegedly entered the Adult Video and Bookstore on several occasions in July, each time taking merchandise he did not pay for.

During a preliminary hearing before San Diego Municipal Court Judge Robert P. McDonald, a store clerk testified that Barnes entered the store on July 29 and grabbed nine videotapes off a rack.

The clerk said he called police, who took a report and arrested Barnes on Aug. 17. The tapes ranged in price from $10 to $20, the clerk said.

Who's playing?

The former Hawkeyes who are active on NFL rosters: Mike Haight and Joe Mott, New York Jets; Jay Hilgenberg, Chicago Bears; Joel Hilgenberg, New Orleans Saints; Reggie Roby, Miami Dolphins; John Alt and Jonathan Hayes, Kansas City Chiefs; Ron Halstrom, Green Bay Packers; Joe Devlin and Ronnie Harmon, Buffalo Bills; Quinn Early and Brett Miller, San Diego Chargers; and Marv Cook, New England Patriots. The former Hawkeyes who are on injured reserve lists: Dave Croston, Green Bay Packers; Mark Vlasic, San Diego Chargers; Kevin Harmon, Seattle Seahawks; and Bob Kratch, New York Giants.

Remember when: Saturday's football opener against Oregon will be only the second time the two schools have met on the gridiron. The last time was 1949 when the Hawkeyes overcame a 24-6 Oregon lead late in the third quarter to beat the Ducks 34-31 for one of Iowa's most thrilling comeback victories ever. Legendary USC coach John McKay was a star on that Oregon team. The two schools will meet for a second time in Kinnick Stadium, 1:05 p.m. Saturday.

Play it again Sam: All Iowa football games will be replayed on television Saturday nights at 10:30 p.m. Ron Gonder and Mike Reilly will do the play-by-play on the 11-channel network. The network consists of KGAN-Cedar Rapids, KDSM-Des Moines, WHBF-Quad Cities, KCAU-Sioux City, KDUB-Dubuque, KOIA-Ottumwa, KJMH-Burlington, KIMT-Mason City, KPTM-Omaha, KCAN-Albion, Neb., and KUSK-Phoenix, Ariz.

Quotable: The finishing touches are being put on Iowa's new grass field. Kinnick Stadium switched back to grass this season after a 16-year stint with AstroTurf. Iowa has scrimmaged five times on the new surface and Iowa coach Hayden Fry gave the new turf rave reviews. "The new turf is so soft. We have the finest field in the nation, college or pro." The new turf may have an affect on Oregon's speed this weekend. Fry is hoping the grass will slow down the speedy Ducks. "I hope the lawn mower gets sick this week," Fry joked.

Weather shackles start of intramural activities

Joseph Wagner
The Daily Iowan

Despite uncooperating weather conditions, the intramural season got under way last weekend. Only one of six events scheduled for the weekend was able to be completed before the rains halted competition.

The Home Run Derby crowned a winner in the women's division, when Jeanette Painovich scored 56 points, taking the individual championship. Her team, River City Sports, also won the team championship with strong showings from Painovich, Trudy Grout, and Libby Kestel, the top-three finishers.

The men's division was postponed due to rain. People who had signed up to enter must sign up again at Recreational Services, located in room E216 of the Field House.

Some of the women's softball tournament was able to be played.

Intramurals

The River City Sports women's softball team advanced to the semifinals against Kappa Alpha Theta. Also advancing to the semifinals were Pi Beta Phi and Delta Zeta.

The rest of the women's softball action was cancelled due to weather conditions. Coed softball was also able to be played, up to the quarterfinals.

Facing each other in the quarterfinals will be Endless Talent and Rebels, Sigma Pi and Cornholed Again, Ricky's and Shreddah's and The Governor's versus Rump Rangers.

Recreational Services has over 200 teams signed up for flag football, the most popular intramural sport. However, Recreational Services is in dire need of officials.

"We don't have enough to play right now," said Warren Slebos, assistant director for Recreational Services.

Any people who are interest in officiating flag football should contact Recreational Services at 335-9293, or go to the office at the Field House for more information.

Flag football schedules will be available Thursday afternoon from Recreational Services.

The only other scheduled activity that was able to be played was the opening rounds of the men's tennis tournament. Upcoming matches are to be scheduled by participants, with each round to be played within one week of another.

Canoe races are also approaching. The events will be held Sept. 19 and 20 on the Iowa River. The course will follow a path from the canoe house bridge to the Union foot bridge and back.

Men's, women's, and coed competitions will take place. Deadline for sign-up is 4 p.m. today at Recreational Services.

Volleyball

somewhat liberally lately to give team members playing time, Nelson kept the same basic group of players on the floor for the whole match.

"I was working with one group of people," Nelson said. "And the ones that were out there will probably see lots of playing time throughout the season."

Junior Ruth Spethman saw a lot of playing time Tuesday, and was taken out only when she injured her finger in the first game.

But after taping her finger up, she returned to the game where she had 11 digs.

"I felt good on defense," Spethman said. "But I have to work on my hitting. I'm not to the level where I want to be yet."

Junior Barb Willis and senior Kari Hamel led the team on the offense with 14 kills out of 29 attempts and 23 kills out of 47 attempts, respectively.

"Barb did great," Moylan said. "She hit every ball and held the block really well. And Kari hit everything that came her way."

"The difference (between Tuesday and last weekend) was that the hitters were talking. Saturday I didn't know when they wanted to be set, but tonight Barb and Kari were shouting to me. We connected really well."

Moylan sprained her ankle earlier in the season, but she said she has been feeling stronger every match.

She expects to return to form within a couple weeks.

"I'm still feeling a little slow," Moylan said. "But I felt better tonight than I did last weekend. I've been working on my strength every day."

"And if that wasn't enough, Oregon already has a game under its belt — a 35-19 romp over Pac-10 rival California.

"They have a distinct advantage," Fry said. "Not only do they have a game under their belt, but they have won going away over a tough California team. (Oregon) Coach (Rich) Brooks says this is the best Oregon football team he has had in the 13 years since he's been there. I anticipate this as being one of the toughest games we'll have all season."

One way or another the questions will be answered Saturday. Kickoff is 1:05 p.m.

Cubs

the passed ball.

Ryne Sandberg led off the eighth inning against reliever John Candelaria with his 30th homer to give the Cubs a 2-0 lead. Sandberg is the first major-league second baseman to hit 30 homers in a season since California's Bobby Grich hit 30 in 1979.

It's the highest total for a Cubs second baseman since Rogers Hornsby hit 39 in 1929.

The shutout was the third of the season for Bielecki and his fourth complete game. He walked three and struck out seven.

The two hits were the fewest allowed by Bielecki in a complete game.

Bielecki gave up a leadoff single to Tim Raines in the first inning but Andres Galarraga bounced into an inning-ending double play.

Tim Wallach singled with one out in the second but Bielecki retired the next 13 batters before Raines drew a two-out walk in the sixth.

Hubie Brooks walked with one out in the seventh but Wallach hit into a double play.

Expect good tunes all weekend

John E. Lyons
The Daily Iowan

This weekend will be a rarity for Iowa City; there'll be live music worth seeing both Friday and Saturday nights. How, you might well ask, could such an anomaly possibly occur? Because of the Third Annual Iowa Alternative Music Festival on Friday, September 15, at Gabe's Oasis, 330 E. Washington St., featuring: Full Fathom Five, House of Large Sizes, Big Drama and Moveable Feast. And on Saturday, September 16: Voodoo Gearshift, the Dangtrippers, Bernie Lowe and his Orchestra and East & West.

The above-mentioned Iowa bands will be featured on this year's Iowa Compilation (along with a lengthy list of Iowa musical counterparts), put out annually by Southeast Records. The Iowa Compilation No. 3 will be released on compact disc and cassette only, heralding a step up in format and sound quality from previous compilations.

The music of Iowa City (and Iowa in general) has experienced remarkable success over the course of the last few years. House of Large Sizes, from Cedar Falls, has released an LP, the success of which paves the way for a second release next year. Full Fathom Five, with two LPs out, is receiving national attention on the college alternative scene; the band's third LP (the second on Link records), titled "Multi National Pop Conglomerate," is slated for an October release.

Big Drama, hailing from Iowa City, released its 7-inch in July on Southeast Records. Voodoo Gearshift, the winners of the 1989 Riverfest Battle of the Bands, will release a 12-inch and a full LP sometime in October. Look for the video to the song "China Wall" on MTV's "120 Minutes" starting sometime this month. If you'd like a sample of the band's music, check out the cassette-only release, available at local record stores. The Dangtrippers, Iowa City's self-proclaimed "Cult Pop Gurus," have released their debut LP "days between stations" on Dog Gone Records; they'll follow up with a national tour this fall.

The Iowa Alternative Festival continues next weekend at the Laughing Igwana in Des Moines, the following weekend at Steb's in Cedar Falls, and concludes in Chicago at the Cabaret Metro on Thursday, October 5.

Closing note of possible interest: Former Iowa Citizens, SD (formerly several different versions of "SDT"), will release a 7-inch some point in October. . . Look for it.

Tandem plays about nuclear, Soviet threats

Steve Donoghue
The Daily Iowan

Riverside Theatre's 1989-90 season begins with a fable, but you won't need to polish up on your brothers Grimm to appreciate it. This particular fable is the pernicious dark favorite of everybody who'll be in the audience, and it revolves around the quintessential hypothetical of the 20th century: What if they drop the bomb?

"When the Wind Blows," Raymond Briggs' disarming play about a retired couple bumblingly attempting to prepare for a nuclear strike, stars Ron Clark and Jody Hovland, and it opens Thursday at 8 p.m. at Old Brick, 26 E. Market St.

This pastoral English couple tries to bring to the situation some of the stiff-upper-lip cheeriness they brought to the WWII blitz, and the gap between that

Gilliam's 'Munchausen' brings unbelievable to life

Locke Peterseim
The Daily Iowan

"This man has wather a weak gwasp of weality," observes Horatio Jackson, the evil representative of weason and logic.

It's the "Age of Reason," and a European town is under siege by the Turks. A play about the fictional Baron Munchausen is interrupted by a decrepit old man who claims to be the real Baron Munchausen. He vows to save the town by rounding up his former superhuman assistants, a quest that takes him to the moon, Vulcan's forges and the South Seas.

There really was a Baron Munchausen, an 18th-century cavalry soldier whose outrageous tales of his exploits became popular household stories (as well as several other films). The catch is that Baron Munchausen, both in history and in this film's play-within-a-play, is a liar, and Gilliam shows us that. And then turns around and makes us believe in him. That yo-yo-ing of audience's belief is the joy of "The Adventures of Baron Munchausen."

Terry Gilliam is no stranger to the fantastic; the former Python has crowned "Munchausen" the conclusion of a trilogy begun with "Time Bandits" and "Brazil." The first follows a young boy through a fairy tale of the kind of warped historical exploits closed to mature adults. And "Brazil," of course, is Gilliam's masterfully dark satire, showing the fate of dreamers in an oppressively totalitarian, bureaucratic world.

Both "Bandits" and "Brazil" end with the subjugation of fantasy to reality. "Bandits" returns to reality, orphaning its protagonist in the crossover. "Brazil" escapes reality into permanent dreaming, as Sam Lowry hides in insanity.

But "Baron Munchausen" makes reality fit the fantasy. The film is not escapism, but a spirited call to embrace imagination and fantasy. The Baron not only deludes himself and his listeners with his exaggerated accounts, but in the end he wonderously bends the physical world to his visions.

The same could be said of Gilliam. He has a delightful lack of connection with the realities of filmmaking. Not that he's bumbling or inept — he is an amazingly accomplished director; his films manage to maintain both his reckless artistic whims and his eye for detail and polish. Mainlining imagination, Gilliam forces his vision onto the screen, the result being both a treat for the eyes and a feast for the soul.

"Munchausen" is not strictly a comedy (the inevitable touches of Python absurd humor and slapstick feel a bit out of place on this stage), and it's John Neville as the Baron who carries the film off. Neville has the kind of delightful gleam in his eye (and twinkle in his teeth — literally) that Peter O'Toole or Burt Lancaster conjure up from time to time.

A catalog of "Baron Munchausen" wonders would be space-consuming and futile — these are treats to be seen, not described. However, there are standout moments that deserve specific praise. The scene on the moon brings together the film's most amazing effects and its most entertaining performances, including the gifted Robin Williams (in his manic Mork-mode, rather than the saddened Garp-persona of "Dead Poets Society"). But the subsequent scene in Mount Aetna, where Vulcan (Oliver Reed) is in wage negotiation with his cyclops, is the film's highlight. Here all the elements of visual beauty and wonder, comedy, fantasy and the-matic content mesh as the Baron dances into the clouds with Venus (Uma Thurman).

On the flip side of the waltz's exuberance, the film's Death scenes are delightfully chilling — at one point the Baron takes his famous cannonball ride, passing by the winged specter of Death, whose slow, deliberate flight is a dark triumph of cinematic imagery.

Most importantly, "The Adventures of Baron Munchausen" is simply a joy to watch. Gilliam's overture of imagination and whimsy sweeps you up and enraptures you with its unwavering belief in itself. And at the center of this whirligig of disembodied heads, gods and goddesses, clockwork griffins, leviathans and lunar beachfronts is a very clear, very real, but much slandered platitude: Dreams can save the human soul.

Theater

peril and the present generates the play.

"When the Wind Blows" will be performed in rotation with Lee Blessing's "A Walk in the Woods," the story of a Soviet and American diplomat talking informally about the tensions of the world their homelands share. Riverside Theatre director Ron Clark, who has major roles in both plays, devised the rotation to stress the common notes in both.

"What we're trying to do with the Autumn Rep. is deal with an issue through two plays that approach the same subject from very different angles — the subject of how to find a common ground, even with those you fear most — your enemies."

The danger in a play such as "When the Wind Blows" is that the characters' naiveté will become a source of scorn, or even disdain, for the audience. Clark and Hovland are aware of the potential for backfiring, however.

"The audience has to pick out the double entendres in what they hear," said Clark. "The characters themselves can't be aware of irony. They have to be straight. The greater problem is that we, as actors, have to show that in these people's minds there is always hope, even to the very end. The audience, of course, is wiser. But we can't show that we know that, or the play is over, isn't it?"

The characters, in their innocence, are in many ways as unreal as figures from the brothers Grimm, but Clark hopes this quality won't foil the audience's appreciation of what's going on.

"The characters, I think, are ultimately endearing and sympathetic. It's a parable, and the audience will hopefully come away with a sense of that parable — that you must take care not to trust your life to the powers that be."

"When the Wind Blows" and "A Walk in the Woods" start off a season that also features "A... My Name is Alice," a thoroughly ribald and enjoyable musical comedy about women and the people they love.

In April the season closes with a classic of the American stage, Tennessee Williams' "A Glass Menagerie," which manages to be filled with night-at-the-theater fun even though it contains no elaborate cat makeup, no onstage deaths and no trace of the French Revolution.

Season tickets for Riverside Theatre's 1989-90 season are on sale now. Patrons can choose from three series, with a savings of up to 30 percent over single ticket prices. To receive a season brochure, just call Riverside Theatre at 338-7672.
