New building renamed after Eckstein

Jennifer Gwin
The Daily Iowan.

To honor its beginning of doors on the UI’s 150th anniversary, the UI named the John W. Eckstein Medical Research Building after the UI’s 12th President, Lieutenant Governor Terry Branstad.

"To begin despite Gov. Branstad veto reached error prison provided by four $71,606 grant provided through a $71,606 grant," said Governor Branstad, referring to the new building. "I am certainly moved. It’s not something I would expect makes me so glad. I really appreciate Governor Branstad’s vision.

"Choosing a name for the building was a huge process. UI College of Medicine officials suggested the building should be named after a former state or national official. In the end, all are working for the UI administrative office. Suggestions for names were found from the UI Campus Planning committee and the UI College of Medicine.

"You cannot turn a university into a goddamn church," Martin told the crowd. "I am the Son of Christ.

Farm Law Project helps both students, farmers

Amy Davich
The Daily Iowan

Iowa farmers finding themselves in need of legal services can turn to a new building on the UI campus.

The Farm Law Project, sponsored by the UI College of Law’s law clinic, is housed in the new building and offers law services to students and farmers alike.

The project, which originated in July, 2007, is funded through September 2008. It was initially funded by the UI’s internal medicine faculty and is now funded through the UI’s Internal Medicine Faculty.

The project is the third project for the UI’s internal medicine faculty that has allowed the university to provide low-cost medical care to patients in need.

Law students are allowed to take up to 15 hours of graduation credit through working in the clinic, so law students working for the Farm Law Project are those working toward their degree.

The primary goal is to educate our students, but we also hope to encourage those students to continue to offer services in this area after graduation," the editor of the farm law project, said.

The farm law project includes providing legal aid to farmers through a special project. The project is funded through a $71,606 grant provided through a $71,606 grant.

"If you want to go to church, go to church. If you want to go to school, go to school," said "I want you all to go school!"

Prison expansion of 1,100 beds will begin despite Branstad veto

Deb Monson (AP) — A state prison chief who almost succeeded in winning support for a new prison building in Iowa has had his wish granted by the new governor, Terry Branstad.

Terry Branstad’s veto of a proposed $650 million prison building expansion in the 1990s is currently under review by state officials.

A new prison expansion could mean a new prison facility in the state of Iowa.

"We’ve got to start doing something," said a prison official who worked on the project. "The prison system is overcrowded and we need more space."

"The Legislature and governor reached an agreement in the last session to expand the prison system," said the prison official. "We are adding additional prison beds," said Rep. Bob "Vinny" Davis.

The new building is funded by a $71,606 grant provided through a $71,606 grant. The building will be located in the southeast corner of the state. It is currently under construction and will be completed by 2010.

Vietnam pulls out last troops

PRISON PESLIM, Cambodia (AP) — Cambodia's ruler denied reports Tuesday that his government was planning a mass deportation of Khmer Rouge prisoners to the Khmer Rouge's stronghold in Thailand.

The Khmer Rouge has said it plans to deport thousands of prisoners to Thailand as part of a peace agreement with the Thai government. The Khmer Rouge said it would use the prisoners to secure a $1 billion loan from Thailand.

The Khmer Rouge has been seeking to return to political power in Cambodia since it was overthrown by the United Nations in 1991. The Khmer Rouge has been in power in Cambodia since 1975, when they were overthrown by a coalition of Cambodian and Vietnamese forces.

The Khmer Rouge has been accused of human rights abuses, including the killing of millions of people during its reign from 1975 to 1979.

Japan pulls out last troops

Japan's military has pulled out of South Korea, ending its presence in the country after more than 40 years.

The move comes as South Korea faces increasing pressure from North Korea to reduce tensions on the Korean peninsula.

Japan's military has been in South Korea since the end of World War II, when it occupied the country.

The Japanese military has been a key player in the region, helping to maintain peace and stability.

Japan is a key ally of the United States in the region, and its military presence in South Korea has been seen as a deterrent to North Korea.

The move to pull out the troops is expected to be received positively by South Korea, which has been seeking to reduce tensions on the peninsula.

The Japanese military has been involved in a number of issues in the region, including the Korean peninsula, where it has been involved in efforts to reunify the two Koreas.
Bush pushes for speed on clean-air act

Bush said that the current law has "remarkable potential for reducing air pollution and protecting public health and welfare." It's about time

U.S. Senate majority leader George Mitchell (D-Maine) recently voiced the Bush administration of getting bogged down in the Middle East talks by being "about as knowledgeable about the cold war" as a "glass harpist.

If that's not bad enough, the mark, George Bush's abdication toward the Soviet Union was obvious from the start to those of us on the administration. Now it's being talked of openly.

To paraphrase Mitchell, this administration seems to prefer the certainties of the cold war over the uncertainties of the changes. Gorbachev is making in the Eastern bloc.

Mitchell builds a strong case. The administration has been consistently dismissive about setting up a meeting with Gorbachev to a summit conference and arranging strategic arms talks in Geneva To paraphrase Mitchell, this administra tion seems to prefer the certainties of the cold war over the uncertainties of the changes Gorbachev is making in the Eastern bloc.

It is true that U.S. analysts and lawmakers have noticed Bush's pattern and probably will be slow in its dealing with the Eastern bloc.

But by now, Gorbachev has proven his willingness to move in this direction. The Bush administration's ambivalence was always evident. But by now, Gorbachev has proven his willingness to move in this direction.

The notion that each generation was to assume the role of the generation before it has been an overused phrase. But by now, Gorbachev has proven his willingness to move in this direction.

The Iowa administration's ambivalence was always evident. But by now, Gorbachev has proven his willingness to move in this direction.

What I especially dislike about Richard Nixon was that he said what he meant and meant what he said.

If Richard Nixon was a statesman, then Gorbachev is a great statesman. If Richard Nixon was a statesman, then Gorbachev is a great statesman.

What took them so long? For those who know what is going on in the world, Nixon was dead wrong with that name. For those who know what is going on in the world, Nixon was dead wrong with that name.

For those who know what is going on in the world, Nixon was dead wrong with that name.

I am not suggesting that our dealings with the Eastern bloc should be based on the "Cold War" but rather that our dealings should be based on the "Cold Peace." But by now, Gorbachev has proven his willingness to move in this direction.

The Iowa administration's ambivalence was always evident. But by now, Gorbachev has proven his willingness to move in this direction.

Go plant a tree

George Bush took the opportunity of the visit of the presidential delegation in South Dakota to demonstrate his independence from Ronald Reagan on yet another, minor issue.

In a speech before students at South Dakota State University, he announced that his administration, Reagan told the American people that they considered tree planting to be a "silly" idea.

Fill 'er up and buy some socks to lower inflation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumer spending for August advanced slightly more quickly than had been expected, with the retail trade association reporting that May's 2.5 percent growth rate was followed by a 2.7 percent jump in August. This is the first time that spending has risen for two months in a row since 1987, the association said.

Analysis of the data shows that the acceleration in spending was driven by durable goods, including cars and appliances, while nondurable goods remained flat. This suggests that consumers are becoming more confident about their future prospects and are willing to spend more on big-ticket items.

The rise in spending is likely to be welcomed by economists who have been concerned about the possibility of a slowdown in the economy. It suggests that the recent rise in interest rates may not have as much of an impact on consumer spending as had been feared.

The retail trade association said that the increase in spending was particularly strong in the Midwest and the South, suggesting that the economic recovery may be spreading beyond the Northeast.

However, the association also noted that the increase in spending was not evenly distributed across all sectors. While durable goods saw a significant boost, nondurable goods, such as food and beverages, showed little change.

Overall, the data suggests that the economy is continuing to grow at a moderate pace, with consumers playing a key role in driving the recovery.

Judge backs NFL testing of players for steroid use

WALNUT CREEK, Calif. (AP) — A federal judge on Tuesday refused to stop the NFL's Football League from testing players for steroids, rejecting 13 players' constitutional challenge.

U.S. District Court Judge Audrey B. Bernard in her order said the “categorical and blanket policy against judicial interference in labor disputes” bars a player's challenge to the drug policy.

The NFL's statement on Tuesday that it would begin testing players 30 days after the end of the regular season sent a message to all 32 teams: Get ready for your own version of the new drug policy targeting performance-enhancing substances.

The NFL says the tests will begin at 40 days after the end of the regular season, and results could come as early as five days after that.

Robinson said the order in the case “plainly does not present the kind of ‘constitutional issue’ that is the hallmark of a serious constitutional challenge.”

The NFL Players Assn. is still weighing its options, and the league’s attorneys indicated that the next stop in the legal challenge could be the U.S. Supreme Court.

Robinson said the case “is one of the most important drug cases in the history of the constitutional law of this country.”

The NFL has not released any details about the case, and it is not clear whether the league is seeking to change its drug program.

Oakland Athletics reliever Dave Parker said he had missed the last two weeks of the season due to a shoulder injury. He also said he had missed the league’s drug testing program.

Cleveland Indians relief pitcher Dan O'Brien said he had missed the last two weeks of the season due to a shoulder injury. He also said he had missed the league’s drug testing program.

The Indians have lost five of their last six games, including a 2-0 loss to the Detroit Tigers in the series opener. The Indians will face the Tigers again on Saturday and Sunday.

Ryan wins another award

NEW YORK (AP) — Fish River of the Texas Rangers has been named recipient of the American League Joe Cronin award for significant achievement in 1989, league President Bobby Brown said Tuesday.

Ryan also won the first Cronin award in 1983 while pitching for the California Angels and became the first player to win it twice. Ryan, who has won 20 games in five of his nine seasons, was 22-10 with a 2.39 earned run average last season.

The award was established in 1951 to honor the name of the late Hall of Fame pitcher and former American League president.

Intramural schedules start after cooperation of weather

Joseph Wagner

The weather finally cooperated, allowing the intramural season to take place over the weekend.

In the women's volleyball tournament, the freshmen team was the big winner, accounting for the best participation as the season gets underway. The tourney was scheduled to accommodate the needs of students, with women's activities, social fraternities, and residence hall cooperation.

In the women's basketball round, alpha chi omega, leland alpha, and a few other teams were represented. The tournament concluded with a 38-18 edge in the series.

The Intramural Office is just one of three sports sponsored by the University's Intramural Department. The other two are soccer and tennis.

Riverside Theatre presents "A Walk in the Woods". The U. S. Pageant Workshop graduate, Lee Blasingame, taught at Old Brick.

As part of its fall season, the theatre will present Blasingame's internationally acclaimed play, which enjoyed a long New York run and was then broadcast nationwide and recieved for 1989.

Blasingame's play, based on the famous Soviet-American peace negotiations in Geneva, follows the conversations of an American and a Soviet diplomat who have taken time out from the formality of the negotiating tables to stroll through the woods together. With dialogue that is both witty and moving, "A Walk in the Woods," in the playwright's words, "told a relationship is in love and what the terms of the friendship are to be." Blasingame aptly makes the case for the political and the personal as he continues to create an even more impressive body of work.

Blasingame, managing director of Riverside Theatre since January of the production, tiny. two characters are complete. Right from the start, Blasingame explores an atmosphere of Soviet and Americans and gains so close that the audience is drawn into the world of the diplomats. The two characters make it possible for the audience to see the characters in all their humanity, while attempting to achieve a world by people and so understandable.

Highlighting the role of the show will be a performance by Bette Davis. The two characters are the perfect choice to further the play and to give the audience a chance to see the depth of the human being behind the diplomat. The two characters make it possible for the audience to see the characters in all their humanity, while attempting to achieve a world by people and so understandable.

The cast for the production includes guest star from Chicago as the American diplomat and Ron Clark as the Soviet diplomat. The American diplomat is now on the scene. Set and lights are by Douglas F. Johnson and Jason Lavender. wardrobe is by Dennis F. Johnson.

Tickets are available in advance at Prairie Theatre, 123 S. Ophelia St., or can be reserved by calling Riverside Theatre at 354-1226. Tickets for seniors are $2.50, and the play is a must-see for all ages.
