Increase called 'deceptive'
CAC's Shanes criticizes proposed mandatory health fee

Jean Thilmany
The Daily Iowan

CEDAR FALLS — A proposed 4.27-percent tuition increase drew only mild criticism from student leaders Wednesday, who focused instead on a proposed mandatory student health fee at the state Board of Regents meeting.
At the UI, a 5.3-percent tuition increase to be levied against out-of-state students has been proposed to improve UI computerization and library services.

"It's unusual for me not to be bellyaching about tuition increases, but inflationary tuition increases is the goal we've been pushing all along," Dan Shanes, UI Collegiate Associations Council president, told the board. "I do think the increases are deceptive, because the mandatory health fee will be outside tuition."
The tuition increases, which would take effect in the summer of 1990, mirror the current rate of inflation as reflected by the Higher Education Consumer Price Index. Under the proposed mandatory student health fee, UI students would pay a $27.30 per-semester fee to establish a self-supporting student health service. Currently, UI students pay $10.09 per semester in health fees.

The proposed increase was made in response to a request from the board to have each university propose a means of phasing in a self-supporting student health service. The board recently reviewed mandatory student fees charged at the universities and found some fees are targeted for non-academic services, such as the health fees.
The general fund money would then be used

Violence, looting break after deadly hurricane

MIAMI (AP) — Hurricane Hugo quickened its pace toward the Eastern Seaboard on Wednesday as residents gathered supplies and made evacuation plans, while violence and looting broke out on the shattered islands in the storm's wake.
Armed Coast Guard crewmen went ashore on the U.S. Virgin Island of St. Croix to help restore order after National Guardsmen and police reportedly joined prison escapees advisories warned: "Remember the people of Puerto Rico."

"Everybody is taking this very seriously," said Lee Barnett, assistant director of emergency management in Volusia County, Fla.
Forecasters warned that Hugo could come ashore late Thursday or early Friday anywhere from northeastern Florida to Cape Hatteras, N.C., after the hurricane skirted past the Bahamaian chain and picked up speed over open waters.
Since Sunday, Hugo has killed at least 25 people, left thousands homeless and caused hundreds of millions of dollars in damage as it slashed through the northeastern Caribbean with wind of 125 to 150 mph.

Chaos reigned on St. Croix, as police and National Guardsmen joined machete-armed mobs on a post-Hugo looting spree. Gunshots were fired, and ham radio operators heard reports that inmates had either escaped or been released because of prison damage and were looting.
Tourists pleaded with reporters landing on the island to take them off.
"They said, 'Please get food! Please get water! Please help us! They're looting. We've seen police looting. We've seen National Guard looting. There's no law and order here,'" said Gary Williams, a reporter for the San Juan daily El Nuevo Dia.
The U.S. Coast Guard had six ships in the area and sent armed crewmen from the cutter Bear ashore to help restore order.
"Initial reports from the Bear indicate that the situation ashore is serious. Looting and civil disturbances are continuing," Coast Guard officials said in Miami.
The crew was evacuating "all people from the island who fear for their safety," the Coast Guard said in a statement. A cargo planned

Misérable pedestrian

The logo of the musical Les Misérables appears to watch a pedestrian as he makes his way down a sidewalk near Hancher Auditorium and the Music Building. The logo was painted on the side of a semi trailer. Les Misérables will open in Hancher Wednesday, September 27, for a five-day run.

Laser center rebudgeted: $10 mil. more

Jean Thilmany
The Daily Iowan
CEDAR FALLS — The UI will need about $5 million in both fiscal years 1991 and 1992 to equip its $25.1 million laser research center, David Vernon, UI acting vice president for academic affairs, told the state Board of Regents Wednesday.
"We're putting in a request," Vernon said. "It is labeled a lottery request, but, in essence, it's a special-needs request, because that is the only way we can get (money)."
"The laser building is in the process of being redesigned now, and I think that will be accomplished. But we need equipment," he said.
The facility is behind schedule because the UI rejected too-high construction bids last July.
Vernon said UI officials are currently hiring researchers for the facility. Over the next six years, two faculty chairmen or chairwomen and eight to 12 faculty members will be named, in addition to the five faculty members already hired.
"We now have a nucleus of people

Ole Miss frat suspended for racial prank

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — Members of a University of Mississippi fraternity painted racial slurs on the naked bodies of two white pledges and dumped them on the campus of a mostly black college nearby.
"They had no idea that there were racial connotations in it. They should have, but they appeared not to have viewed it that way," said Ed Meek, Ole Miss public relations director, Wednesday.
"When I was informed of it I was shocked and angered," university Chancellor Gerald Turner said Tuesday night. He said he had apologized to Rust College and had instructed the Beta Theta Pi fraternity, which was involved in the Monday night incident, to do the same.
Ishmeel Edwards, dean of students at Rust, 25 miles north in Holly Springs, said the fraternity chapter's officers apologized in person and in writing to college officials.
Witnesses said the two naked fraternity members, with "KKK" and "we hate niggers" painted on their chests, ran into the Rust College security office to escape pursuing Rust College students.
"We're treating this as a very serious violation of good taste and ethics on our campus, and we're doing a thorough investigation," Meek said.
He said a closed disciplinary hearing "for perhaps individuals as well as the fraternity" has been scheduled for Friday. Ole Miss officials probably won't announce results until Monday or Tuesday.
"My impression is it was a small group of students, all of whom were freshmen," Meek said of those involved in the prank, adding that "it was not students who were familiar with campus rules" or who were "more mature."

All 171 aboard French DC-10 killed; mid-air bomb suspected

PARIS (AP) — A French DC-10 that crashed into a remote desert in southern Niger was probably blown out of the sky by a bomb, French authorities and airline officials said Wednesday. The army said all 171 aboard died.
In separate telephone calls to the airline and to a Western news agency, a caller claiming to represent the Moslem extremist group Islamic Jihad asserted responsibility for downing the plane.

Seven Americans were aboard, including Bonnie Pugh, wife of the U.S. ambassador to Chad, Robert Pugh.
The UTA airline jetliner was on a flight from Brazzaville, Congo, to Paris when it crashed Tuesday shortly after making a stop in NDjamena, Chad. Debris was scattered over an expanse of desert about 400 miles northwest of NDjamena.

The French army, whose troops stationed in neighboring Chad were the first to reach the scene, said the 15 crew and 156 passengers died, including eight children.
Authorities said the early indications are that the aircraft was felled by a bomb.
"It exploded at high altitude leaving every reason to believe it was a bomb," said UTA spokesman Michel Friese. He said it was possible, but less likely, that the explosion was due to technical failure aboard UTA Flight 772.
A Foreign Ministry spokesman, speaking on condition of anonymity, echoed that sentiment and said: "The pieces are widely scattered, so it didn't crash on impact."
UTA said it had received an anonymous phone call from a man claiming responsibility on behalf of Islamic Jihad, but said it had no way to authenticate the call.
In London, an anonymous caller also telephoned a Western news agency and said:
"In the name of Allah and Imam

Invasion of bees doesn't kill, but the sting still smarts

Margot Hopner
The Daily Iowan
It may not be the invasion of the killer bees, but many eastern Iowans may be noticing an increase in the number of things that sting this fall.
The number of people being treated for bee and wasp stings has more than doubled at one Iowa City hospital.
"The number of bee and wasp stings we've treated in the last five weeks is more than double what we do normally," said Karen Zittergruen, Mercy Hospital emergency room nurse. "Our physicians have never seen anything like it."

The high number of stings is probably caused by a flourishing population of yellow jackets this fall, according to Donald Louis, an entomologist for Iowa State University in Ames.
"Last summer's drought, a relatively mild winter and dry weather again this summer are three seasons that have been favorable to the yellow jacket," Louis said.
Yellow jackets are small wasps. Many people confuse the petite, yellow jackets with their cousins of similar appearance — the honey bee.
"Ninety percent of the calls we get about problems with honey bees turn out to be yellow jackets," said Iowa Department of Agriculture entomologist Chuck Stoltenow.

Although both insects are prevalent during the fall, state apiarist (bee specialist) Bob Cox noted the honey bee population is stable throughout all the seasons, while the yellow jacket is far more abundant.

'Yellow rain' caused by Asian bees - not biological warfare

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Thousands of Asian bees leave their nests together to defecate, producing "yellow rain" that the U.S. government once claimed was a Soviet biological weapon, to cool themselves and their nests, scientists say.
By relieving themselves of hot feces equal to one-fifth of their body weight, the honeybees are able to cool their nests more efficiently and help their offspring grow, the researchers said in Thursday's issue of Nature, a British science journal.
In a 1981 speech and 1982 report, then-Secretary of State Alexander Haig asserted that "yellow rain" was a Soviet biological weapon used to kill thousands of people in Cambodia, Laos and Afghanistan during the previous decade.
The claim later was discredited by scientists who proved the yellow deposits were bee droppings, although the State Department never retracted the claim, said biologist Peter Kevan.
The latest study found why the Asian honeybees make what scientists call "mass defecation flights," Kevan said by phone from the University of Guelph, located in Ontario about 50 miles west of Toronto.
"It can be explained by the need to prevent the temperature of bees'

3 more residents vie for Iowa City Council

Tonya Feit
The Daily Iowan

The race is on for seats on the Iowa City Council as three more residents add their names to the list of candidates running in the November elections.

Environmental Advocates' chairman Joe Bolkcom, Mayor John McDonald and Naomi Novick will be vying for the two available at-large seats on the council.

Bolkcom said his three major concerns would be maintaining the integrity of Iowa City neighborhoods, downtown accessibility and local environmental issues as a council member.

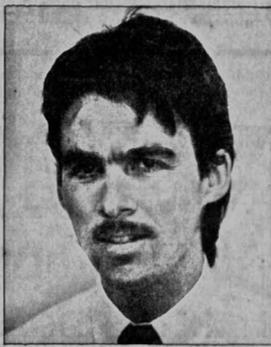

"It makes good sense, from a community and economic perspective, that the downtown remains a vital part of our community," Bolkcom said. "We also need to preserve our neighborhoods to maintain a strong neighborhood identity."

While Bolkcom said he did not find flaws with current councilor's accessibility to Iowa City residents, he stressed the need to always improve accessibility to assure responsiveness to citizens' needs.

On environmental issues, Bolkcom has been a local leader in recycling and working to control toxic air emissions. He hopes to continue those efforts as a council member.

Bolkcom also hopes to create a strategy to address the problem of bad-tasting drinking water in Iowa City.

As assistant for Consumer Affairs for the Johnson County Health Department and as director of two senior citizen advocacy programs, Bolkcom said he has insight on community issues such as housing, transportation, health care and income security.

"I have a working knowledge of government programs," Bolkcom said. "I know what the problems are in the programs, and the source of those problems."

Bolkcom holds a master's degree in Public Affairs from the UI with an emphasis in municipal government.

McDonald has served as a councilor for eight years and is currently serving his second term as mayor.

He said he hopes to maintain the quality of life and the government service levels he has helped to establish during his past terms on council.

Specifically, McDonald said he is concerned with maintaining Iowa City's fiscal responsibility.

"Fifty percent of all property in the city is non-taxable, and the sources of federal funding are dwindling away," McDonald said.

"We have to make sure the revenue available is utilized to the maximum in the best possible way to maintain the level of service we're expected to provide."

McDonald also stressed the importance of developing a strategy of solid waste management and encouraging downtown development to Iowa City's future.

"The area of solid waste management has to be addressed," McDonald said. "We can't continue to go on in the same way we have in the past."

South of Burlington Street is the best area for redeveloping and expanding the downtown area, according to McDonald.

"We need to start looking to the future and start making policies for the development of that area," McDonald said. "I really want to pursue that."

Novick also said downtown development will be important to Iowa City's growth.

Novick declined to be interviewed because she has laryngitis, but in a press release she said Iowa City should plan for development which will provide equitable land use and preserve the city's unique qualities.

"Whatever is built on the last urban renewal parcel should enhance and complement the vitality of our downtown in both design and purpose," Novick said.

Novick also stressed the need for a well-designed and well-coordinated transportation system.

As a member of the city Chamber's Landfill and Groundwater Subcommittee, Novick thinks Iowa City should expand its efforts to reduce and recycle solid waste.

Novick currently serves on Iowa City's Design and Review Committee and the Iowa City Area Chamber of Commerce Local Government Affairs Committee. She has been past president of the League of Women Voters of Johnson County and has been a member of the Hancher Guild.

"Serving on the city council would be an excellent way to contribute to the community that my family and I have enjoyed for 19 years," Novick said.

$25,000 donated for Alzheimer's research

Brian Dick
The Daily Iowan

The UI College of Medicine received a $25,000 donation Wednesday to kick-off a $1 million statewide fundraiser to fight Alzheimer's disease.

Harry Barrows, board chairman of the Scottish Rites Masons presented a $25,000 check to Dr. Antonio Damasio in the UI Hospital's Colleton Pavilion. Damasio is the director of the UI Alzheimer's Disease Research Center.

Alzheimer's disease, the single most common cause of mental decline in elderly people, mentally cripples its victims by robbing them of memory, logic, emotional stability and self-identity.

It has been estimated that the disease affects more than three million Americans a year, Damasio said.

"Alzheimer's disease is a condition that affects neurons in the brain by making them die gradually and relentlessly," Damasio said. "Though there is no known cure for the disease, UI neurology researchers are studying Alzheimer's in the hopes of mitigating its devastating effects and working for future possible prevention."

Alzheimer's dates back in recorded medical history some 80 years, but has resurfaced recently because of American's increased longevity and better overall living conditions in the United States, Damasio said.

"The fact that more people live into their seventies, eighties and ninties in better health is a sign of both good medicine and a better environment," he said. "Now we need to do something about the tragedy of this disease, because it is robbing society of its productive members."

Damasio said a new drug called THA which has recently received public attention is not living up to its claim of being a promising treatment for Alzheimer's disease. The research community needs to develop new approaches, he said.

"Currently we are not only trying to help those who already have the disease, and their families, but also making every effort to understand the mechanisms of the disease by characterizing the brain's cells that are injured in Alzheimer's patients," Damasio said.

Noting that the UI Hospitals and Clinics receive only 10 percent of their funding from the state of Iowa, Damasio said outside support from organizations such as the Scottish Rites Masons provides the only means for the researchers to develop preventative treatments for Alzheimer's disease.

"Without these grants, we would not be doing the research," he said. "The fellowship is the sort of thing that will make research continue into the future."

Darrell Wyrick, president of the UI Foundation, told the audience of about 75 people that the fellowship and the continuing efforts of the Scottish Rites Masons will advance the UI to the forefront of Alzheimer's research.

"The fellowship will help keep the UI program at the leading edge of research," Wyrick said. "The Scottish Rites Masons Campaign is an exceptionally generous effort, not only because of the important research work that will be accomplished by money being raised, but also because the campaign represents an extraordinary amount of volunteer effort by a statewide network of more than 150 Scottish Rites Masons volunteers who believe so strongly in this cause."

Damasio accepted the check for Dr. Steven Anderson yesterday. Anderson is a UI fellow in neurology who received the first fellowship designed to fund teaching, research and patient care for those afflicted with Alzheimer's disease.

Mason chairman Barrows, who presented the $25,000 check for Anderson's fellowship, said the campaign to raise $1 million will hopefully meet its target goal within two years.

The initial $25,000 fellowship is a gift for education that will organize donors to contribute their time, love and money, Barrows said. "We haven't yet scratched the surface of what we can give to caregivers," Barrows said.

Promoters in dispute over Holly reunion

CLEAR LAKE, Iowa (AP)—The Surf Ballroom will host its 12th Buddy Holly reunion next winter, but because of a dispute between promoters, a competing bash will be held on the same February weekend.

The organizer of the past 11 reunions, Darryl "The Mad Hatter" Hensley, said the reunion will be held February 2-3 at the North Iowa County Fairgrounds and not at the Surf Ballroom in Clear Lake because the owner of the Surf is charging too much.

But Surf owner Darrel Hein said the Surf will again host the reunion.

"Mr. Hein doesn't understand that this is an event that's bigger than the Surf Ballroom," said Hensley. "People come from all over the world for this event, not for the Surf Ballroom. They don't come to stand in awe at the Surf," which is where Holly conducted his last performance Feb. 3, 1959. He was killed in a plane crash later that night.

Malloy replaces Champion as I.C. school board president

Sonja West
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City Community School District Board of Directors elected two-year board member Fran Malloy as board president Tuesday. Malloy replaces Connie Champion as president of the board. Malloy was elected in 1987 for a one-year term, and re-elected in 1988 to a three-year term. "I'm excited at the chance and opportunity to provide leadership in the community, and I'm honored that my fellow board members chose me," she said. Malloy said her goals for the school board this year include trying to find an excellent superintendent for the district and addressing budgetary problems.

"In the long term, I'd like to work on improving the already good education system in this district," she said. "I'm hoping to be a part of that. I hope that we can continue to build the morale of the district," Malloy said. "Last year's board worked hard on that, and I'd like to continue the dialogue between the teachers, administration and the board. I feel that that is a critical step." In addition, Ellen Widiss replaced outgoing board member Orville Townsend as vice president of the board. Last week, Widiss was appointed to her third term. She was first elected in 1983 as a write-in candidate and was active in the school system several years before deciding to run for the school board. Widiss said the board will step-up their efforts to find a new superintendent to replace David Cronin, who resigned last spring. "We will soon start intensively searching for a superintendent," Widiss said. In other business, the school board decided to endorse for former board member Lynne Cannon for a position on the Grant Wood Area Education Agency's board of directors. This will be Cannon's second term on the AEA board, whose members are elected by the school boards of the districts they represent. Malloy will cast this district's vote next week.

Green: $$$ is not only for minorities

Wants to involve the 'unique' aspects in UI

Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

From her office in Calvin Hall, Rosalyn Green watches a parade of cultural diversity pass by her window each day. As the new director of UI Special Support Services, Green hopes to make each of these unique cultures more active components in the UI's educational system.

"There has to be some mechanism so that all the various ethnic groups come together and interact," she said.

Special Support Services is that mechanism.

Professional advisers from Special Support Services assist students who have financial, social and academic concerns. Contrary to what most people believe, the services are not exclusively for minority students, Green said.

"Given that I view Special Support Services as a retention program, I do feel strongly that we must serve all students who experience adversity," she said.

Though much of their literature is aimed at minority students, the service strives to help all students at the UI, Green said.

Collaboration between the various colleges, departments and Special Support Services is necessary to insure the UI's diversity efforts effectively retain and recruit minority students, she said. "It has to go beyond just getting students here on campus," Green said. "It has to be about faculty being made more sensitive to what kinds of changes are going to have to occur so that students can be successful."

Green's educational background includes social work, academic advising and teaching. She received a doctorate from the UI College of Education in 1982.

Part of her drive comes from being one of 10 children in a lower middle-class Iowa family, she said. She was already aiming for her doctoral degree when she came to the UI as a freshman.

"I wanted to make a difference in people's lives, I wanted to help people," she said.

Achieving cultural diversity and getting rid of some of the prevalent "isms" in society is possible through education, she said.

"You help educate people to respect differences," she said. "So often we attribute differences to be negative but really, to come to respect the differences, you need to come to a university and build on those differences so we can be enriched."

Special Support Services targets American Indians, Alaskan natives, Blacks, Hispanics, Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders.

Alpha Kappa Lambda established new colony

Ann Marie Williams
The Daily Iowan

For many freshman, the idea of formal fraternity rush is an intimidating one. But 20 young men face an even bigger challenge this fall — they are the founding members of the newest fraternal organization at the UI, Alpha Kappa Lambda.

A newly formed greek organization is called a colony until it receives full chapter status from its national organization.

"Our primary goal is to have 40 men and a chartered colony by April," said Guy Davis, graduate adviser to the new colony.

The Alpha Kappa Lambda national chose to establish a new colony at the UI because of its already strong greek system, Davis said.

"We're looking for stable systems," he said.

Currently, the Alpha Kappa Lambda colony is the only colony on campus, although many new chapters have been added in the past few years. This was seen as an advantage for the new colony as well.

"The key is whether or not there is room to grow," said Kevin Lammers, one of the fraternity's national chapter consultants.

The decision to found a colony at the UI was followed by a campaign to publicize the fraternity and what it has to offer, Davis said.

Davis and Lammers organized an initial meeting to provide information about the fraternity to prospective members. The meetings were successful, and a colony was formed with 20 initial members, Davis said.

The process of forming a colony is a selective process, as is rush, according to Davis.

There are interviews, and then a two-week process in which the group of men work together to determine who will go on to become initiated members of the fraternity, he explained.

"We're looking for good students who are interested in their educations," Davis said. "We want them to be scholastically, as well as socially, oriented."

A colony member differs from a typical fraternity pledge because he is immediately offered leadership positions in the organization. For freshman colony member Ryan Hurt, this was especially appealing.

"(The colony) is a one-of-a-kind chance to obtain leadership right away," Hurt said. "This is something I can work at and build."

Davis will be working with the new members to get them "established and running," he said.

Although Davis was a member of an established Alpha Kappa Lambda chapter, he can see the benefits of belonging to a new colony.

"There is an opportunity to be a part of a program you really feel good about," he said.

"Something had to make it easier."

"I returned to graduate school ten years after I'd completed my M.A. at Iowa. Re-entry was difficult enough, add to that an ad hoc interdisciplinary program that I designed and you have something bordering on chaos. Something had to make it easier!"

"Computers had always been a little intimidating to me, but the Mac has changed all that. Once I started in, all it took was practice and a few quick glances at the manuals. Quick access to bibliographies and cross-referencing is essential to me. My papers can be quickly reformatted to publication specifications, plus the LaserWriter gives me the professional look I need. I haven't even begun to explore all the things a Mac can do for me.

"Why a Macintosh? My best friend recommended the Mac and showed me all the things it could do. It was the logical choice. If you can't trust your best friend—trust a Macintosh. I trust both."

Ouija (pronounced "wee-gee" or "we-ja") is a board game that relies on the alleged interaction of supernatural forces.

Class? Naw, let's go out and play a while

Games aren't only for kids

Sonja West
The Daily Iowan

Big kids never die, they just go to college.

A surprising number of games which were popular many years ago have proven they have the staying power to remain favorites into adulthood, according to many UI students.

One such game, Ouija (pronounced "wee-gee" or "we-ja") is a board game that relies on the alleged interaction of supernatural forces.

Manufactured by Parker Brothers in Salem, Mass., Ouija is played by many people as "just a game," but to some people it is a weird phenomenon connecting the world we live in to another one.

When playing, two or more people put the flat, thin board on their laps. Each person lightly places the tips of their fingers on the "mysterious message indicator" and begins asking questions.

The goal of the game is to get a response from a supernatural force via the board and the "message" indicator.

One former UI student, Todd Wood, claims he and his friend were "haunted" by a demon after playing Ouija at age 18.

"There was this demon on the Ouija board who said he was after us," he said. "Strange things would happen, like the lights would flicker on and off in our house."

"After the first night, my friend and I were each at our own houses, and he came to us during the night and stood at the end of our beds. The next day I went to my friend's high school to tell him about this weird thing that happened to me and before I told him, he said, 'The exact same thing to me,'" Wood said.

"He was following us around. We'd see this person at night and eventually in the daytime. He attacked people. I was never attacked, but some of my friends were. My best friend was in bed one night, and it grabbed him by the back and scraped up his back," he said.

Wood and his friend, both artists, began drawing pictures on the board as they called out questions.

"I did a painting one time. It was a large splatter painting. The teacher suggested that I cut it off and frame it and turn it upside-down. When I did it, it was a picture of a graveyard. About two months later a friend of mine moved to a new house and about a half mile from her home was the exact graveyard in the painting. The trees were in the right places, and there was a stream that ran through the middle," Wood said.

"I guess I was just fascinated, but it got really freaky, and we had to stop," he said.

Most students who play the Ouija do not get the results Wood did. "I don't put a whole lot of stock in the predicting powers of something manufactured by Parker Brothers," UI sophomore Tony Roberson said.

Other games that are sweeping the campus include the wide variety of role-playing games. These games involve acting out various characters in many different settings.

"A role-playing game is basically an advanced version of when kids play 'Let's pretend we're cowboys and indians' or something else," UI sophomore Lon Sarver said. "You just use dice and rules to make it a bit more organized."

"Instead of playing with a board like Candyland or something, you play the part of an imaginary person," UI senior Kathy Whisler said.

According to Sarver, in role-playing games like "Dungeons and Dragons," players take on the roles of wizards, warriors, monsters and goblins to act out stories. There are other similar games about spies, superheroes, the Old West, Saturday morning cartoons, science fiction travelers or "commie-mutant" traders.

"It's really just sitting down for an hour with five or six other people and giving in to wild abandonment," Sarver said.

"Some people say that you want to try and get as much money, fame and fortune as you can as quickly as you can," Whisler said. "I suppose that depends on how you play the game, but basically nobody wins and nobody loses."

UI graduate student Chris Mortika is a free-lance writer for such games as Advanced Dungeons and Dragons, Top Secret, Marvel Super Heroes and D.C. Heroes role-playing games.

"A role-playing game is a set of rules," Mortika said. "These rules give you guidelines on how to tell a story."

With so many different games the names and rules change. "What you call them basically depends on who you're talking to," Sarver said. "The Christian fundamentalists groups call them 'evil devil tools.' Most people call them just plain fun."

There is no limit to the number of players in some games.

"You can play with as few as two," Mortika said. "The group that I play with is freakishly large and has a dozen people playing."

Other popular games on campus include mind games of fake telepathy, magic tricks, board games like Trivial Pursuit and Jeopardy, and the yo-yo.

"My roommate and I both have yo-yo's," UI sophomore Mark Renken said. "The problem is, everyone else on the floor borrows them. Half the time I don't know where my yo-yo is because some other schlep has it."

Like the other games, the comeback of the yo-yo may represent a yearning to extend childhood into adulthood.

"It's really rather addictive," Renken said. "Of course I liked yo-yo's as a kid, but I never really played with them until I came to college."

Gov.'s pad picketed by pro-choicers

DES MOINES (AP) — Two pro-choice groups on Wednesday announced plans to picket the governor's mansion at Terrace Hill to protest Gov. Terry Branstad's anti-abortion position.

The National Organization for Women and the National Abortion Rights Action League will picket Sunday to warn Branstad "your record on reproductive rights is a threat to our homes and families," officials said.

"While we respect your right to your personal decisions, you must express respect for individual Iowans' ability to make their own decisions," the groups said in a letter to Branstad. "The voters of Iowa expect elected officials to defend their rights and are deeply angered when those rights are threatened."

The groups told Branstad: "Your anti-family and anti-woman words and actions in the past seven years . . . indicate you are against privacy and personal freedom."

They said the picketing will last two hours and say it is their way of responding to Branstad's comments.

Is that an ethanol cloud up there?

DECATUR, Ill. (AP) — Ethanol — alcohol squeezed from the United States' abundant corn supply — is being injected into diesel bus engines, turning billows of black exhaust smoke into nearly invisible white clouds.

Supporters say the alcohol fuel will reduce air pollution, extend the life of engines, and raise the price farmers receive for their corn by boosting demand.

The first ethanol-diesel buses are rolling through the streets of Des Moines, in the heart of the corn-belt.

And dozens of other transit systems — including Cedar Rapids and Decatur, Ill. — have expressed interest in burning ethanol in their fleets as they prepare for tougher emission standards.

"Our findings could revolutionize the way mass transit systems are fueled in the future," said K. Stephen Spade, general manager of the Des Moines Metropolitan Transit Authority.

"By using ethanol . . . we expect to reduce hazardous emissions by 50 percent while maintaining diesel fuel mileage."

The ethanol injector system is manufactured by Midwest Power Concepts, a Radcliffe, Iowa company that developed the technology so farmers could burn ethanol in their diesel tractors and combines.

The test buses have separate fuel systems — one for diesel fuel and one for ethanol, MPC President Warren Dobbertin said. The fuels are not mixed as gasoline and ethanol are blended to create gasohol.

The buses draw ethanol during periods of high power demand, such as during acceleration when the greatest pollution would occur with diesel fuel. At other times, such as at cruising speeds, buses switch to diesel fuel to maintain top economy, Dobbertin said.

"You don't have to scrap all the engines that are in place now as you would with other alternative fuels," said Dobbertin. "We can do this now, with existing buses, in a few hours."

Des Moines will run 17 buses with the ethanol injectors. They will be tested for pollution from the exhaust pipes and for fuel mileage.

Tuition

for undergraduate education, fire safety and library services.

Iowa State University's voluntary $27 per semester fee would become a mandatory per-semester fee of $40 in three years, and the University of Northern Iowa's mandatory $3.50 per semester fee would increase to $20 per semester over three years.

"At the University of Iowa, the 'true' tuition increase would be over 6 percent and 7 percent with the health fees," Shanes said. "The tuition increase can't be considered separately from the student health fees increase. Clearly this is a step backward."

He suggested the regents ask the Iowa

Legislature for funds to support student health services.

"The increased fee is unpalatable, because there will be no increase in health services," he added. "Also, what about the rest of the non-academic mandatory fees? What happens if the library needed money, would we impose a 50-cent book fee?"

Shanes added non-resident UI students were being treated unfairly because they are the only group targeted for the proposed 5.3-percent tuition increase.

According to the regents' docket, the higher tuition increase is recommended for UI non-residents due to increased "non-resident student demand, and the need for additional funds for improving library services" at the UI.

"A higher tuition increase for non-resident students at ISU is not recommended because of a decline in non-resident enrollment. And a tuition increase of more than 4.3 percent at UNI might decrease non-resident enrollment there," according to the regents' docket.

"Non-resident students should not be treated as an external source of funds," Shanes told the board. "To use them as a revenue enhancement venture is simply wrong."

The regents are expected to vote on the proposed tuition hike at their October 18 meeting in Ames.

who are working, and we need equipment," Vernon said. "For each chair it will cost $1 million in equipment, and each scientist will mean $200,000 to $400,000 in equipment."

"We will need $5 million each year, and the other half we can raise through reallocation and grants," he added.

Regent Marvin Berenstein expressed concern the UI may not be able to fund its half of the equipment costs.

"I hate to be a spoilsport, but what if we don't raise the money for equipment?"

The UI would have no problem paying its half, Vernon said in response.

"I don't have any doubt we'll raise the money. If we can't raise the money, we will have to proceed more slowly than planned," he said.

R. Wayne Richey, the board's executive director, told Vernon the state Legislature may allocate some money to cover the equipment costs.

Bees

dant in the fall.

The yellow jacket population, with the exception of the queens, perishes during the winter. The queen breeds during the warmer months, until its colony reaches a peak between 3,000 to 5,000 bees.

"By this time of year, the yellow jacket population has accumulated all summer," Cox said.

While opinions vary on the aggressiveness of yellow jackets, Cox believes they are more aggressive in approaching humans than honey bees.

Anything sugary — fruit, open pop cans, hairspray or perfume — will attract a yellow jacket, Cox said.

Because being stung can be highly unpleasant, Cox recommends putting alcohol or baking soda on the sting. Swelling around the sting is a normal reaction to a bee or wasp sting.

But if the victim suffers a reaction that is not on or near the sting sight, such as a body rash or shortness of breath, medical attention should be sought, Cox said.

Louis said bee and wasp stings aren't all bad, however.

"Yellow jackets are a mixed blessing," Louis said, "In the summertime, wasps are predators of caterpillars and other insects."

"But they are a nuisance (to humans) when it comes to stinging," he added.

Khomeini, the Islamic Jihad issued this statement: We are proud of this action which was very successful. We would like to say the French are warned not to exchange information regarding Sheik Obeid with the Israelis no more. We demand the freedom of Sheik Obeid, and otherwise we will refresh the memories of the bombings in Paris of '85 and '86. Long live the Islamic Republic of Iran."

Sheik Abdul-Karim Obeid, a Shiite Moslem religious leader in southern Lebanon, was kidnapped by the Israelis July 28.

The Ministry of Transport sent four investigators from the Civil Aviation Authority to the scene of the crash. The authority said military helicopters had reached the site and found the debris scattered over a 16-mile area.

The U.S. National Transportation Safety Board said it was sending a team of investigators to assist in the probe.

At the White House, presidential press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said President George Bush has been briefed on the matter.

"The obvious widespread nature of the debris suggested it blew up in the sky and not on the ground."

"It's far too early to make any assumptions on motivation or cause at this point," he said.

was ready to supplement the evacuation if needed.

In addition, a small team of FBI agents was sent to set up a command post, said a government official in Washington who spoke on condition of anonymity. There has been no request for U.S. troops.

President George Bush on Wednesday declared the U.S. Virgin Islands a disaster area and a White House spokesman said a similar declaration was expected soon for Puerto Rico, which suffered widespread damage.

The Coast Guard sent cutters to St. Thomas to pick up personnel and their families whose homes were destroyed. It also was evacuating 200 American medical students at Montserrat, a British colony where Hugo damaged nearly 90 percent of the homes.

Federal relief shipments laden with supplies and rescue workers from Florida, South Carolina, West Virginia and Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, went to Puerto Rico, while British and French forces helped Montserrat and Guadeloupe.

At 3 p.m. EDT, Hugo's center was 645 miles southeast of Charleston, S.C. Its coordinates were 26.5 north latitude and 72.6 west longitude and it was moving northwest at 20 mph, a course it was expected to maintain throughout the day. Earlier, it had been traveling at 12 mph.

Little strengthening was expected for Hugo, whose wind speed has dropped to 105 mph.

"Even at 105 mph it can do quite a bit of damage," said Bob Sheets, director of the National Hurricane Center.

nests becoming so hot as to endanger the larvae," wrote Kevan and Makhdzir Mardan, a biologist at the Agricultural University of Malaysia.

Mardan and Kevan took 306 bees from six nests in Asian tropical forests before and after the insects made mass flights. They killed the bees, weighed their gut contents and measured the amount of heat in the bee droppings.

The study determined that the Asian giant honeybees excrete large amounts of hot waste during the mass flights. "It's like somebody weighing 200 pounds suddenly losing 40 pounds," Kevan said, adding that a colony of 40,000 bees eliminates 1,850 calories of heat during a single flight.

"This behavior doesn't directly cool the bees, but lets them cool their nests 35 percent more efficiently through a process known as 'gobbetting,' which also is used by European honeybees," Kevan said.

Right path, wrong time

Since becoming the UI's 17th president, Hunter Rawlings has articulated a vision for the future of this institution that many hope will someday place it among this country's elite state universities. At the UI's Faculty Convocation ceremonies Tuesday night, Rawlings added another, quite premature, element to that vision.

In his address, Rawlings suggested closing off several city streets and reworking underdeveloped campus sites to accommodate several majestic, safe and intellectually stimulating pedestrian walkways.

Rawlings unveiled this grand architectural vision to rave reviews from UI and city officials. Mayor John McDonald praised the plan, saying "his main goal is to really dress up the campus, and I think the whole city benefits from those kinds of changes."

Certainly. But, considering the current state of the UI, dressing up the campus seems akin to purchasing a lavish new wardrobe for a dying patient. The demise may be more handsome, but the fate remains the same.

Without a doubt, the renovations Rawlings envisions would add an appealing touch to an already attractive campus. And that, in turn, would benefit both the school and the city. But those renovations would be costly and, quite simply, that money could be far better spent.

A fundamental element to Rawlings' vision has been emphasis on improving undergraduate education. Progress has been made, yet underfunded and understaffed programs continue to erode the UI's liberal arts foundation. In addition, buildings remain in dangerous disrepair and major construction projects stand unfinished.

Already Rawlings has taken a stagnant institution and ignited new spirit, initiative and direction. Largely because of his efforts, the UI is once again on the path toward academic excellence.

Someday, when the academic elements of his plan are much closer to being realized, Rawlings' 'pathways' proposal may justify its expense. Until then, the focus must remain on improving academics before atmosphere.

Frank: Pertinent facts

There was a time, not so long ago, when the halls of government functioned as the biggest boys' club in the nation, and all manner of indiscretion by members was simply winked at. Boys will be boys, so the unwritten rule went, and a gentleman doesn't snitch on a gentleman.

Obviously, those days are over. Congress isn't anybody's club, and from Jim Wright to 'Buz' Lukens, personal indiscretion has become to the body politic what terminal illness is to the body human.

But Barney Frank (D-Mass.) doesn't agree. Wednesday, the embattled House Democrat told critics calling for his resignation that it would be "cowardly and inappropriate" to bow out before the House Ethics Committee convenes to consider his case.

Frank is entitled to due process, and that means a full review by the Ethics Committee. Nonetheless, there are compelling reasons for Frank to cut the process short by resigning now.

A great deal of peripheral information has clouded the Frank affair: Some of it merely irrelevant, such as the fact that Frank is gay; some of it downright silly, such as the allegation that Frank knowingly permitted a male prostitution ring to be run out of his Washington, D.C. apartment.

The relevant facts in the Frank affair are actually quite simple:

- Frank, by his own admission, purchased the services of a prostitute in the District of Columbia.
- Frank later hired the prostitute as a personal aid, paying him out of his own pocket.
- Frank is a Member of the U.S. House of Representatives. Here's why they're relevant:
 - Buying the services of a prostitute, male or female, is against the law in 49 states and the District of Columbia; the term for those that break this law is "sex offender."
 - Whether or not Frank hired the prostitute as a personal aid as a philanthropic gesture, as he claims, he continued to associate with a known felon in a situation where money changed hands.
- As a member of the House of Representatives, Frank must hold himself to the highest standards of personal conduct — which he clearly has not done.

No one doubts that Frank exhibited atrocious judgement. But those that condone his behavior with the tired axiom that "members of Congress are human, too" overlook the gravity of his offense. And from our legislators, we expect a little more than the least common denominator of human behavior.

Moreover, the stakes in his case are far higher than one man's career. Though Frank's sexual orientation is peripheral to his offense, it has direct bearing on the consequences.

As one of the most competent legislators in the House, and a man candid about his homosexuality, Frank has opened the doors of Congress to gays and lesbians as few before him have. Now, the longer he tries to stay afloat, the more that work is undone.

For the good of Congress, his constituents, the Democratic Party and particularly gays and lesbians in government, Frank should acknowledge the magnitude of his error by resigning.

Benefits of anti-smoking act don't outweigh smokers' pain

The passage by a large majority in the U.S. Senate of a bill that would forbid smoking on commercial airplanes isn't yet the Anti-Airborne Smoking Act. Before that happens, there will need to be a conference between senators and members of the House to settle whatever differences in emphasis distinguish their respective positions.

Both houses are saying about the same thing, and the vote in the Senate was by heavy voice vote. Smoking is bad for you. Smoke contaminates other people. Flight attendants are crazy-mad enthusiastic for the bill.

The heaviest smoking is done by the relatively ignorant class; more and more, those who are sophisticated in matters involving health don't smoke. It happens that most of the people who travel are members of that class: businesspeople, white-collar workers, professionals. With the result that although 30 percent of American adults smoke (the figure is probably 50 percent of non-adults), only 20 percent of regular fliers smoke, according to one airline survey.

It is surprising to this ex-smoker that Sen. Frank Lautenberg (D-N.J.) should be proceeding with his campaign to ban smoking in the spirit of Savonarola. You can smell it from his rhetoric. The senator is talking about Evil! He is the recovered alcoholic who wants to keep other people from drinking. He is the Don Juan grown jaded who wheezes against fornication. What Lautenberg and a few others tend to forget is that smoking is a most powerfully addictive habit (drug?) and that compensations need to be made for it. Wherewith hangs a tale.

One New Year's morning in 1954, my wife and I woke up feeling a little bit of the ravages of the night before. We resolved that a little mortification of the flesh was in order, and agreed we would there and then give up smoking cigaret-

William F. Buckley Jr.

Twenty-four hours later, we decided that only two courses of action were plausibly open to us. Either a. one of us would resume smoking, or b. we would be divorced. We tossed a coin, and I — lost. (Won?) She still smokes, and like most smokers I know, is miserable if made to go five hours without smoking, which is exactly what the Senate wishes to do to anyone who flies from New York to Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle or Vancouver.

Now, traveling on airplanes is for many people a relatively anxious experience. Oh, they do it all the time, but there is a certain tension there when one contemplates that one is whizzing along six miles above the Earth at 600 mph in a little cylinder with an aluminum carapace about an eighth of an inch thick. We noblemen who do not smoke easily forget the kind of relief that is experienced by smokers when there is tension. Not only when there is tension in the air, but also when there is tension on the ground.

It is lamentable to admit it, but it is simply true that tobacco smoking does that to people, and the question before the House ought to be: Is the compensating satisfaction given to the 80 percent who do not smoke in any way equal to the sheer frustrating pain visiting upon those who do smoke? Jeremy Bentham might have explored his utilitarian coefficient, which asks about the greatest good for the greatest number, and it is by no means clear that you could equate the relative satisfaction of the 80 passengers with the excruciating pain of the deprived 20.

Enlist me in any crusade gently to lower and to lower the number of smokers, in the hope that a few decades from now cigarette smoking will be as quaint as snuff-taking. But between now and then, reasonable measures need to be taken. No one allergic to smoke, whether biologically or aesthetically, should be required to share a small office with a smokestack. Large restaurants should be free to search out their own arrangements: If the majority are emphatic in refusing to patronize a restaurant that permits smoking, then let the restaurant owner impose his own sanctions, little by little. The railroads have smoking cars, and the buses have smoking sections, and smokers can do without their cigarettes in taxis and riding on elevators.

But we should curb those instincts in us to impose on others reforms we have painfully undertaken. It is one thing to apply pressure on a single person to give up smoking and along with it his/her perpetual hacking cough; another to pretend that someone smoking in the back of the airplane is going to give us a hacking cough or a malignant tumor or a heart attack. Maybe the smokers will need to appeal to the 14th Amendment. Why not? Everybody else does.

Journalists' upsmanship hurts debate

The $1.25 million report by Peat Marwick Main & Co. consultants recommending, among other things, that journalism be scrapped at Iowa State University, has touched off some interesting reactions among media people in Iowa.

Recently an editorial page commentary in the Des Moines Register, admittedly put together in a department with four ISU alumni, said that if journalism were to be concentrated at one state school,

Guest Opinion

that school should be ISU. It has the best program, the article contended.

Last Friday, the Iowa City Press-Citizen carried an editorial which led with the proposal that the UI's journalism program should be taken out from under the dean of the College of Liberal Arts and put under its own dean reporting directly to the university president. That's an idea worth considering, particularly in light of circumstances surrounding the recent resignation of Don Smith, head of the UI School of Journalism and Mass Communication.

But the editorial went on to say that if a journalism program were to be located at just one state school, that school deserves to be ISU. Iowa State journalism has been bearing "bountiful fruit" for the profession, the editorial said.

The fine ISU journalism program deserves praise. I don't know any respected journalists across the state who think journalism at ISU should be eliminated — certainly not people on the journalism faculty at the UI.

The ironic thing is that some Iowa journalists, instead of slamming the Marwick report for its weak analysis of unnecessary duplication in the state's universities, are conducting one-upsmanship campaigns under the banner of "my journalism school is better than yours."

This school chauvinism, while understandable, only diverts attention from the real issue: What's best for students seeking a journalism education in Iowa? In some ways, so-called practical journalists shoot holes in their own arguments. Some contend that, on the one hand, journalism is a profession, not a craft. On the other, they press for an educational priority that teaches journalism as a craft, without the academic disciplines of a profession.

Naturally, editors want to hire journalists that can spell and put together sentences. But if journalists are to achieve professional status, they must demand more from their colleges and universities than teaching the mechanics of inverted pyramid leads and covering city hall.

The field of journalism needs people who can bring new thinking to the problems of media in a dynamic society. The kind of analysis and research being done within the UI's nationally recognized program might produce more long-range practical value than some observers are prepared to admit.

In truth, all good journalism programs mix the practical and theoretical. Iowa State probably deals more with theory than it gets credit for; and the UI, likewise, provides more "practical" journalism education than some observers are willing to acknowledge.

Listening to discussions about the Marwick report, I find myself wondering why the people of Iowa aren't madder than hell that $1.25 million was spent on a report that — as one editor said — "contains more holes than a tin can hit by buckshot."

Let's hope that cool heads on the state Board of Regents will prevail and the correction of any duplication problems will be delayed.

We can also hope that the state's media professionals will start thinking less about where they studied journalism themselves, and more about the irreparable harm the shallow Marwick study poses to higher education in Iowa.

A DRAMATIC CHANGE IN THE AMERICAN ANTI-DRUG POLICY!

Letters

Letter to regents

To the Editor:

The following is an open letter, drafted by the United Students of Iowa and the respective student governments, sent to each member of the state Board of Regents on behalf of all students at the three state universities:

Dear regents:

In the coming months, you will be faced with the difficult task of determining the tuition rates for the 1990-91 academic year, making recommendations on program duplication at the three state universities, and whether or not to approve a precedent-setting action to initiate mandatory student health fees at those three campuses.

The proposal for initiating a mandatory student health fee above and beyond tuition is particularly disturbing. Students have consistently borne the burden of increased tuition throughout the '80s. Higher tuition rates are empirical evidence of increased educational costs, and therefore, barriers to the accessibility of higher education in Iowa. This proposal, in essence, asks the regents to consider another such obstacle to an affordable education.

The health fee is simply an additional tuition increase for students. To students and their parents, an increase in either tuition or the establishment of this type of fee, is a dollar for dollar increase in the total cost of pursuing an education.

Regardless of the label, an increase in the cost of an education in Iowa is relevant to their overall financial burden.

The birth of this health fee proposal (which will certainly increase over time), is coupled with a likely continuation of tuition increases, however modest. This occurs at a time when the state treasury reports evidence of unprecedented surpluses. State surplus revenue and projections for fiscal 1990 forecast the first-ever revenue collections of over $3 billion.

No other state takes as much pride in education as Iowa. If affordable education is truly the goal which Iowans so strongly support, we need to approach the state legislature to appropriate these resources. Given the past strained economic conditions, students and parents attempting to pay for an education in Iowa should not be burdened with this additional financial responsibility. This burden ought to lie with the state.

Thank you for your support. We look forward to seeing you at the board meeting this week.

—Letter submitted by Daniel Shanes (President, Collegiate Associations Council, University of Iowa), David Boyer (President, UNISA, University of Northern Iowa), Paul Thibodeaux (President, GSB, Iowa State University) and Pepe Rojas-Cardona (President, Student Senate, University of Iowa).

Congress subpoenas Pierce for mismanagement at HUD

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressional panel voted unanimously Wednesday to subpoena former HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce Jr., to testify about alleged influence-peddling and mismanagement at the department he once headed. His attorney accused the panel of vindictive and punitive actions.

Pierce was ordered to appear on three separate occasions — the first coming next Tuesday — before the subcommittee that is investigating scandals at the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The vote had been expected since Pierce provoked anger among the panel members when he demanded a third delay on the eve of his scheduled voluntary testimony last Friday.

"I think the subcommittee had no option," said Rep. Tom Lantos (D-Calif.), chairman of the employment and housing subcommittee of the Government Operations Committee. "The subcommittee had an agreement with Mr. Pierce. . . . That agreement was broken unilaterally by Mr. Pierce."

Pierce's attorney, Paul Perito, said the former secretary — who appeared voluntarily before the panel in May — was willing to testify but needed another two weeks' time for preparation.

In a letter to the panel received before the vote, Pierce's attorney said: "We believe the subcommittee's vindictive and punitive actions in denying Mr. Pierce adequate time to obtain and review pertinent documents and in insisting on use of subpoenas are taken in retaliation against Mr. Pierce's exercise of his constitutional right."

But Republicans and Democrats on the panel rejected that claim, saying Pierce was trying to unduly delay and had months of time for preparation — even though Pierce said he only hired a lawyer this month.

"Rather than coming forth and clearing the record . . . he is toying with the subcommittee in order to evade or avoid his responsibility," said Rep. Ted Weiss (D-N.Y.).

The subpoenas compel Pierce to appear or face the possibility of contempt of Congress proceedings.

But Pierce's attorney, in holding open all legal options, raised the possibility Pierce could appear as demanded but refuse to answer questions by invoking his Fifth Amendment constitutional rights not to incriminate himself.

"We are forced to review each and every option," Perito said.

Congressional staff attorneys said such refusal by a former Cabinet official could appear to invite efforts to appoint a special prosecutor to investigate Pierce under the law providing for a court-appointed independent counsel to handle investigations of current or former top-executive branch officials.

Contract killer executed by lethal injection

HUNTSVILLE, Texas (AP) — A man described as "Satan personified" was executed by injection early Wednesday for one of five slayings he was accused of committing.

James Paster, 44, a onetime lounge singer and Elvis Presley impersonator, was pronounced dead at 12:17 a.m.

Paster was sentenced to death for the 1980 contract killing of a 38-year-old Houston man, said Bill Zapalac, an assistant attorney general.

On Tuesday, the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals refused to grant a reprieve. Defense attorneys contend jurors at Paster's trial should have been allowed to consider evidence of his abused childhood.

Paster's attorney, Stanley Schneider, said he spoke with Paster by telephone Tuesday and found his client upbeat, but declined to divulge the nature of the conversation.

Paster also was serving a life prison term for the rape and murder of an 18-year-old Conroe woman, Stephen McCoy, Paster's co-defendant in that case, was executed earlier this year.

Paster also pleaded guilty to the slaying of another woman and has confessed to killing two other Houston-area women, although he never was tried for those offenses.

In April, Paster and another condemned killer unsuccessfully tried to escape from death row by squeezing through a 1-foot-square air vent and sawing through an exhaust fan opening.

"I'm about as smart as a box of rocks," Paster, whose left arm is adorned with a large tattoo of a swastika with the word "Hero" written through it, said recently in a death row interview. "I'm not trying to justify any darn thing. There's no justification for what I've done."

Paster was condemned for the Oct. 25, 1980, shooting death of Robert Edward Howard, for which he said he was paid $1,000 and a motorcycle. Howard was gunned down as he emerged from a Houston bar.

"Had I ever known this individual, had a drink or beer with him, I wouldn't have done it," Paster said. "It made it easier, like hitting someone on the highway. I never got out of the car."

Giants Stadium: Purported burial site of former Teamsters leader Jimmy Hoffa

Former 'free-lance' hitman says Hoffa buried in Giants Stadium

CHICAGO (AP) — Former Teamsters leader Jimmy Hoffa was killed because of union and underworld rivalries, and his mutilated body was buried in concrete near the end zone at Giants Stadium in New Jersey, an ex-convict says.

Donald "Tony the Greek" Frankos, a self-described free-lance hitman, told Playboy magazine he was supposed to kill Hoffa but was in prison when the labor leader disappeared on July 30, 1975. So others killed him and described it to him later, Frankos said.

His account, one of many over the years purporting to reveal what happened to Hoffa, appears in November's Playboy.

Frankos said Hoffa was shot in the forehead at a home near Detroit, his body dismembered in the basement, then stored in a freezer until his burial in the football stadium near New York.

The FBI refused to say if it finds the account credible.

An official with the State Commission of Investigations in New Jersey called the story "possible but . . . improbable."

And Jim Minish, stadium assistant general manager, said workers dug nearly four feet into the concrete while replacing the artificial surface during the past year and found nothing.

Frankos, a federally protected witness in the forthcoming New York trial of reputed Mafia boss John Gotti, says he told the FBI in 1986 that Hoffa was killed by alleged Irish mob boss Jimmy Coonan at a house in Mount Clemens, Mich.

Frankos said that Coonan, armed with a .22-caliber pistol with a silencer, "hit him twice in the forehead with the bullets — exploded his brains."

With the help of John Sullivan, described by Frankos as a mob hitman, Coonan carried the body into the basement.

"They plugged in the bucksaw, and they also had a meat cleaver to cut away any tendons," Frankos said.

De Klerk promises new laws

PRETORIA, South Africa (AP) — F.W. de Klerk was sworn in as president Wednesday and promised a new constitution that would bring blacks into South Africa's government by the end of his five-year term.

He appealed to South Africans of all races to help build a nation "free of domination and oppression."

"We accept that time is of the essence and we are committed to visible, evolutionary progress," de Klerk said in his inaugural speech.

He has vowed to eliminate discrimination and to allow blacks, who currently cannot vote, participation in government under a five-year plan.

But he did not specify any apartheid laws he would repeal. Nor did he say how he would implement his goal of providing limited political rights to the 28-million black majority while maintaining the political domination of the country's 5 million whites.

De Klerk, 53, took the oath of office as reports spread that his government will free jailed black nationalist leader Nelson Mandela early next year. Newspapers quoted official sources as saying the release will be part of a package of reforms to draw blacks into constitutional talks.

"The negotiation process will, from the start, receive incisive attention," de Klerk said in the speech following his swearing-in ceremony.

His conciliatory words, affable style, and new policy of allowing peaceful protests against the government have generated optimism among foreign observers and many South Africans. But de Klerk rejects the basic demand of most black leaders: majority rule.

Study: Overnight contact wear causes ulcers

BOSTON — About 12,000 contact lens users in the United States suffer painful and potentially blinding eye ulcers each year, largely because they wear their lenses while they sleep, research concludes.

The studies also showed, however, that even ordinary daytime use of contacts — while far safer than overnight wear — seems to slightly raise the odds of these ulcers, which are the most serious complication of contacts.

The research is most critical of extended-wear lenses, which were approved in 1980 for continuous use up to 30 days at a time. It found that people who wore these lenses day and night were 10 to 15 times more likely than strictly daytime users to have eye ulcers.

"Our paper shows that overnight wear is the major risk factor," said Dr. Oliver Schein. "It begins with even the first night of overnight wear. To some extent there is a risk with any kind of contact lens wear, whether they are hard or soft, worn daily or extended."

Mercedes Benz misses out on mileage list

WASHINGTON — Call it the mystery of the missing Mercedes — 15 of them, in fact. The luxury cars, most of them gas guzzlers, all failed to show in the Environmental Protection Agency's auto mileage survey this week.

Was it an innocent lapse or by design? Among the 981 cars, whose expected gasoline efficiency was detailed in the EPA list and then widely distributed by the news media, were cars ranging from the 58-mpg Geo Metro to the 6-mpg Lamborghini Countach, not to mention a half-dozen versions of the Rolls-Royce.

But no Mercedes-Benz. Don Larson, branch manager at the EPA's auto testing laboratory in Ann Arbor, Mich., said that every year some cars — perhaps 80 or 90 — do not make the list because manufacturers do not provide the testing data for certification early enough to make the deadline for sending the list to the printer.

Nevertheless, he said, "it would be unusual for a manufacturer to have his entire product line not listed."

Study: College students not using condoms

HOUSTON — About 75 percent of white, middle-class Canadian college students are sexually active, but only 19 percent use condoms, even though they know condoms can protect against AIDS and other diseases, a survey found.

The survey "suggests most education and media campaigns to increase condom use are dismal failures," said Nomi MacDonald of the University of Ottawa in Canada. She presented her findings Wednesday at a meeting of the American Society for Microbiology.

"They know the facts; that's not the problem," MacDonald said. "More than 80 percent got the safe-sex questions correct. But do they use it? No."

MacDonald, a member of a Canadian health ministry task force on sexually transmitted diseases, said her findings would probably apply to white, middle-class American college students. "If we've got it in 'middle-America Canada,' you must have it in middle America," she said.

A recent study of condom use by adolescent males in the United States found that 57 percent reported use of a condom the last time they had intercourse, but that only 30 percent said they had always used a condom with their last partners.

Hinckley calls Manson a 'cool dude'

WASHINGTON — Presidential assailant John Hinckley referred last year to killer Charles Manson as a "cool dude," the government disclosed in court Wednesday.

Hinckley made the comments in a June 2, 1988, letter in which he thanked a man for sending him a semi-nude caricature of actress Jodie Foster, which Hinckley had requested, according to testimony by psychiatrist Raymond Patterson.

The testimony came in a hearing before U.S. District Court Judge June Green on Hinckley's request for face-to-face access to the media, which he says will prove he is sane. Testimony was to continue Monday.

Patterson, who treated Hinckley from 1983 until March, testified that Hinckley is seriously mentally ill, suffering from a narcissistic personality disorder.

Hinckley was acquitted by reason of insanity in the March 1981 shooting of President Ronald Reagan, press secretary James Brady, a Washington police officer and a Secret Service agent. The shooting left Brady partially paralyzed.

Hinckley said after his arrest that he attempted the assassination in an effort to attract Foster.

On Wednesday, Hinckley testified he hadn't had been "obsessed, fixated, (or) preoccupied" with Foster in five or six years.

Duarte reported to be near death

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — Former President Jose Napoleon Duarte, who has liver cancer, has suffered a sharp deterioration in his condition and could be near death, his doctor said Wednesday.

Dr. Jose Luis Saca told The Associated Press in a telephone interview that Duarte was in "serious but stable" condition Wednesday afternoon.

"I thought he was going to die last night. But we were able to stabilize him, and I don't think he'll die within the next 24 hours," said Saca.

"Even so, he probably will not recover from this crisis," the doctor said.

Duarte, 63, led this country for five years prior to June 1 and was Washington's staunchest ally in the Western Hemisphere. He handed power to elected successor Alfredo Cristiani, of the rightist Republican Nationalist Alliance.

Duarte's cancer was diagnosed in June 1988 in Washington's Walter Reed Army Medical Center. Two-thirds of his stomach was removed and chemotherapy was applied in an effort to slow the disease's advance in his kidney.

Food for thought: Frog imports jumping

SEOUL, South Korea — A demand for health potions has spurred a jump in frog and snake imports to South Korea, a government report said Wednesday.

Some Korean men believe snake soup and frog meat build stamina.

According to an Agriculture and Fisheries Ministry report to the National Assembly on imports of foreign food items, South Korea's imports of snakes in the first half of this year climbed to $380,000, surpassing the $295,000 in imports during all of 1988.

The report also said South Korea imported $48,000 in frogs in the first six months of this year, compared with $37,000 through all of last year.

California 'Night Stalker' guilty; awaits sentencing

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Richard Ramirez was found guilty of multiple murder counts Wednesday from a list of 43 verdicts returned by jurors who agreed Ramirez was the devil worshipping "Night Stalker" who terrorized Southern California during the summer of 1985.

Readings of the verdicts were delayed when Ramirez asked to be excused. He was led from the courtroom to a cell one floor below, where he reportedly listened to the rulings via remote loudspeaker.

Ramirez, a 29-year-old drifter from El Paso, Texas, is accused of 13 murders and a series of assaults that terrified Los Angeles in the summer of 1985.

The prosecution claimed Ramirez is the "Night Stalker" who left symbols of demon worship at some murder scenes and gouged out one victim's eyes. The defense claimed that Ramirez was a victim of mistaken identity.

- There should be lights in all of the entrances.
- All windows should be in place and have locks.
- Curtains and blinds should be on every window.
- In basement and first-floor apartments, bars for protection are a good idea.
- There should be a strong deadbolt lock for every door. For added security, install double locks.
- Be aware of possible hiding places in your home: under stairs, behind furniture, in closets, between buildings, etc.
- Don't use your full name on your mailbox and/or in the phone book, and encourage men and women you know to do the same. (Example: S.A. Smith). Remember, it is one thing to be called by your first initial by someone you don't know and quite another to be called by your first name.
- Get to know your neighbors and those you can trust in an emergency.
- ALWAYS find out who is at your door BEFORE you open it.
- If a service person comes to your door, ask for identification, and don't hesitate or be embarrassed to ask him to wait while you call his company to verify his identification. Many companies encourage you to do so because they certainly don't want to be falsely represented.
- If you're a woman and/or elderly person, respond to a knock or a ring by answering, "I'll get it, Dad," or "I'll get it, Bill."
- ALWAYS have your keys or whistle ready when you return home, and remember to be aware of your surroundings.
- If you feel that someone is watching you or following you, try not to let him know which apartment you've gone into. Wait a few minutes before you turn on the lights in your apartment, or go to a neighboring apartment where you know and trust someone.
- If there is a suspicious person or persons on an elevator, don't get in. If you are already on an elevator and such a person gets on, push all of the floor buttons and get off as soon as the elevator stops at a floor. Also, if you are threatened, push the alarm button and hold it.
- NEVER give your address to someone before he explains why he wants it. If you aren't satisfied with his explanation, don't give out your address or any other information.

Fay vows to appeal America's Cup decision

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — New Zealand syndicate chairman Michael Fay said Wednesday he will attempt to appeal a New York court decision allowing the San Diego Yacht Club to retain the America's Cup.

"We have always expected this dispute would go all the way to the final court," Fay said. "Mercury Bay is committed to seeing it through and we are going to win."

Fay described the court decision as "a disgrace."

He said Mercury Bay Boating

Club's appeal, the final step in the legal process, should be completed within four months and should not interfere with plans to race the next America's Cup in 1992.

In a 4-1 decision Tuesday, the Appellate Division of the New York State Supreme Court declared San Diego the winner of last year's regatta, reversing a lower court verdict that disqualified the U.S. defender and awarded the America's Cup to New Zealand.

Fay said the decision made a mockery of the idea of sportsmanship.

"The idea that a competitor can fix a contest to win makes a nonsense of any sport. It is wrong, plain and simple," Fay said.

Justice Bentley Kassal's dissenting opinion maintained that last year's cup races were "manifestly unfair in every sense" because the United States raced a catamaran against New Zealand's monohull.

Fay said the appeals court itself was sharply divided on fundamental issues. "If this ruling is not overturned, sportsmanship and the cup are out the window," he said.

Under New York law, either the Appellate Division or the Court of Appeals, the state's highest court, must give Fay permission to appeal. George Tompkins Jr., Fay's lawyer, said the Court of Appeals accepts about 10 percent of the cases it is asked to hear. Fay has 30 days in which to ask for permission to appeal.

Even while the New Zealanders were losing 2-0, they maintained that the contest was invalid, as the deed of gift governing the 138-year-old contest called for the defender to enter a boat that was similar to the challenger's.

"Mercury Bay's challenge was right, San Diego's defense was wrong," Fay said. "Even a five-year-old can understand that. There isn't a yachtsman or a sportsman anywhere in the world that will agree with the other judges' ruling."

Meanwhile, New Zealand skipper Chris Dickson said he was "mystified" by the court decision.

"In legal terms the appeals court may be right. I am not a lawyer," he said. "But everybody knows the original deed of gift intended challenges to be sporting contests in essentially similar boats."

"What we saw last year with a monohull against a multihull was not sporting."

"Unless the defenders are prepared to compete in essentially similar boats, in the future the Cup will just sit gathering dust."

Dickson said the argument was not over.

Cards beat Mets to trim East lead

ST. LOUIS (AP) — John Morris and Milt Thompson drove in two runs apiece as the St. Louis Cardinals made an early five-run lead stand up for a 5-3 victory over the New York Mets Wednesday night and closed within three games of first place in the National League East.

The Cardinals scored three runs in the first and two in the second off David Cone, 13-8, to stretch their winning streak to four games and move closer to the first-place Chicago Cubs, who lost 9-8 to Philadelphia earlier in the day.

Both the Cardinals and Cubs have 10 games remaining.

Ken Dayley, the fourth Cardinal reliever, got the final two outs for his 12th save. Dayley closed out the win by getting Darryl Strawberry on a routine fly to center with the bases loaded.

The third-place Mets lost for the fourth time in five games and remained 5½ games behind the Cubs. The Mets fell to 31-45 on the road, better than only

NL

Atlanta and Philadelphia in the National League.

Phillies 9, Cubs 8

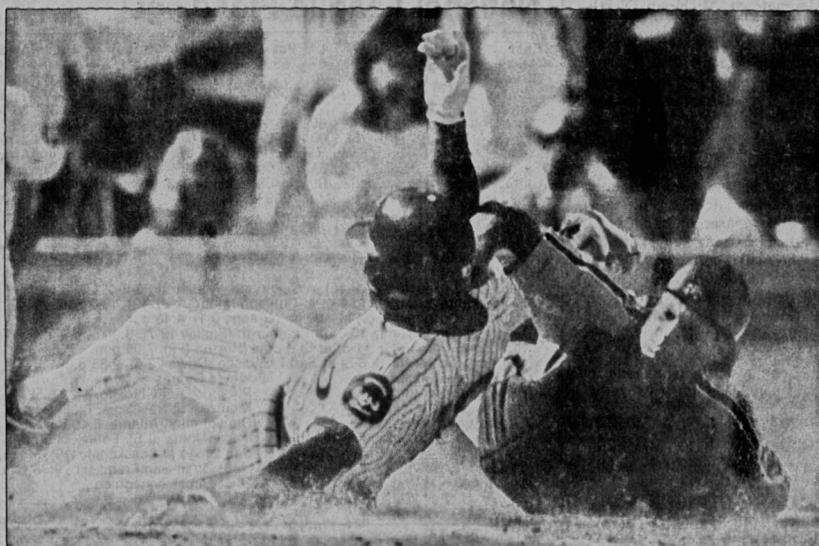

CHICAGO (AP) — Von Hayes drove in four runs and Ricky Jordan's run-scoring single broke a sixth-inning tie as last-place Philadelphia beat first-place Chicago 9-8 on Wednesday in another wild Phillies-Cubs game at Wrigley Field.

Philadelphia's Darren Daulton went 5-for-5, but didn't score or drive in any runs.

The Cubs, who have lost two straight, entered the contest with a four-game lead over second-place St. Louis. The Cardinals played a night game against New York in St. Louis.

On Aug. 10, the visiting Phillies beat the Cubs 16-13.

The Phillies and Cubs combined for 36 hits, including 16 singles, a double and a triple by the Cubs.

Chicago baserunner Lloyd McClendon, above, undercuts Philadelphia catcher Darren Daulton action, Oakland's Dave Henderson also avoids a tag in the A's game with the Cleveland Indians.

Oakland stays hot in AL West

CLEVELAND (AP) — Tony Phillips hit a bases-loaded triple to cap a five-run rally in the sixth inning and Storm Davis won for the ninth time in 11 starts as the Oakland Athletics beat the Cleveland Indians 8-6 Wednesday night for a three-game sweep.

Oakland began the night leading the American League West by 2½ games over California. Cleveland lost its sixth straight.

AL

matching its worst skid of the year, and is 2-7 under interim manager John Hart.

Davis, 18-7, gave up three runs, two of them earned, on seven hits in five-plus innings. He is 15-4 since he came back from a strained hamstring in June. Dennis Eckersley, Oakland's sixth pitcher, went one inning for his 30th save.

Greg Swindell, 13-6, allowed five runs in 5 1-3 innings, his longest stint in five starts since he returned from a sore elbow last month. He is 0-3 with a 10.80 earned run average in the five games, raising his ERA from 2.69 to 3.55. He hasn't won since July 20.

Rickey Henderson, who led off the game with a home run for the 40th time in his career, walked to start Oakland's sixth. He stole second and third, and Carney Lansford walked before Jose Canseco's sacrifice fly made it 3-all.

Mark McGwire's single chased Swindell, and Dave Henderson greeted Steve Olin with an RBI single. Dave Parker walked to load the bases, and one out later, Phillips drove in three runs with his triple off Jeff Kaiser.

Rickey Henderson walked, stole two bases and scored on Canseco's sacrifice fly in the seventh for an 8-3 lead.

Angels 9, Twins 1
 MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Jim Abbott scattered nine hits and Tony Armas singled home the tiebreaking run in the seventh inning as the California Angels kept pace in the American League West, routing the Minnesota Twins 9-1 Wednesday night for their fourth straight victory.

Astros, Padres stay close to Giants in Western title race

ATLANTA (AP) — Alex Trevino led off the 14th inning with a home run, giving the Houston Astros a 7-6 victory over the Atlanta Braves Wednesday night.

The Astros kept their faint hopes alive in the National League West race. They entered the game in third place, six games behind front-running San Francisco.

Trevino, who had struck out his previous two times up, connected on a 1-2 pitch from Joe Boever, 4-11, the Braves' sixth pitcher.

Larry Andersen, 4-4, the Astros' seventh pitcher, got credit for the victory. Brian Meyer pitched the final inning for his first save.

The Braves took a 3-0 lead in the first on Darrell Evans' RBI single and Mark Lemke's two-run double.

Houston scored in the second on an RBI single by Rafael Ramirez.

The Braves chased Houston starter Rick Rhoden with another run in the third. Leadoff batter Jeff Treadway walked, took second when Lonnie Smith singled and scored on Evans' single.

Treadway and Smith were on base with walks when Lemke tripled in the fifth to give the Braves a 6-1 lead.

After Craig Biggio opened the Houston sixth with his 12th home run, the Astros tied the score on Kevin Bass' grand-slam home run in the seventh off Mark Eichhorn. The blast scored Bill Doran, who had singled, and pinch hitters Alex Trevino and Harry Spilman, who had walked.

It was Bass' second slam this season and fourth of his career.

Padres 3, Reds 1
 CINCINNATI (AP) — Jack Clark scored the winning run on third baseman Luis Quinones' throwing error in the 10th inning to lead the San Diego Padres to a 3-1 victory over Cincinnati, the Reds' ninth straight loss.

The Padres' 23rd victory in their last 29 games secured their hold on second place in the National League West. They began the night five games behind San Francisco.

The Reds' loss assured them of their first losing season since 1984, when Pete Rose returned as player-manager.

Braves vent steam over Giants' claim

ATLANTA (AP) — Russ Nixon is livid.

The manager of the Atlanta Braves vows to remember the San Francisco Giants' insult of his team, which should make next season's first meeting between the two teams rather interesting.

"I'm not blowing this off," Nixon said Tuesday night after being told by National League president Bill White that the Giants were complaining about the Braves' lineup against the Houston Astros — a team still in contention in the NL West race.

"Who's kidding who?" Nixon asked after his lineup filled with youth handed the Astros a 3-0 defeat, pushing Houston six games behind the first-place Giants. "I don't think if I had a five-game lead and the best club in the league I'd be worrying too much about a last-place club. I'm going to remember this.

"That kind of burns me up. The Giants are getting paranoid out there. I wonder if they called Cincinnati, too, and told them not to pitch (rookie Scott) Scudder, told them to throw (Tom) Browning every night."

"I guess they look like fools now," Atlanta shortstop Andres Thomas said of the Giants after the Braves snapped Houston's five-game winning streak and beat the Astros for the first time in eight tries.

Cincinnati dropped a 5-1 decision to the second-place San Diego Padres, who remained five games behind the Giants, a 3-2 winner over the Los Angeles Dodgers.

"Maybe they are better than the guys he's been running out there," Giants manager Roger Craig said.

Rockets offer deal, Lloyd back in NBA

HOUSTON (AP) — Former Drake star Lewis Lloyd, banned from the NBA on Jan. 13, 1987, for violating the league's substance abuse policy, agreed to terms Wednesday on a 1-year contract with the Houston Rockets that would pay him $350,000 this season.

"We've reached an agreement in principal on a 1-year contract with an option year," Rockets general manager Steve Patterson said.

"We hope to get it formalized and in the right form by tomorrow and try to get it signed as soon thereafter as we can."

Lloyd, who has been working at the John Lucas drug recovery center in Houston, would become the first banned player to be readmitted to the NBA following a 2-year ban.

Micheal Ray Richardson, formerly with the New Jersey Nets, was cleared last year, but chose to play in Europe.

"I guess I'll go down in history, I know that," Lloyd said. "It feels good to be the first guy to come back."

"It lets a lot of people know, and a lot of young kids know, if you do mess up in life, or make a mistake in life, you can always have that second chance if you get your life together."

Lloyd was a popular player at Houston in 1986 when the Rockets reached the NBA finals.

Lloyd and Rockets guard Mitchell Wiggins were banned from the NBA the following year for violating the league's substance abuse policy.

Wiggins also has been readmitted to the NBA and currently is negotiating a contract with the Rockets.

U.S. golfers hope to reverse Ryder Cup trend

SUTTON COLDFIELD, England (AP) — Consecutive victories by Europe in the Ryder Cup have made the biennial matches the most intense rivalry in golf.

The United States long dominated the competition that began in 1927 when British merchant Samuel Ryder put up a claret jug for play between British and American professionals. Once the Europeans started winning, it developed into a confrontation rather than a casual get-together.

"We're going to kick some butts," veteran Tom Watson said, giving voice to the aggressive — almost combative — attitude of an American team that sees a Ryder Cup victory in the matches starting Friday as a restoration of lost international golf prestige.

"Now we can talk about who's the best, Americans or Europeans," Watson said. "We want to win every match. Of course, that won't happen, but that's what we're here for."

"This team is ready to win. We didn't come over here to lose."

The once-humdrum Ryder Cup matches have assumed an extraordinary stature.

As recently as 12 years ago, a single American newsman covered Ryder Cup matches in Britain. Credentials for 52 writers from the United States have been issued this year.

American players have called it "pride" instead of "ego." American captain Ray Floyd has promised to do everything in his power to return the cup to the United States.

"It's like the America's Cup," he said. "When we were winning it all the time, nobody cared. Now that we've lost it, everybody wants it back."

It was here, at the Belfry Golf Center in the English midlands, that American domination of the old event, conceived as a goodwill match, came to an end in 1985.

Gubicza makes early exit

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — All-Star pitcher Mark Gubicza of Kansas City, who has been bothered by soreness in his chest, left Wednesday night's game against Chicago after throwing only 30 pitches.

Gubicza, 15-10 entering the game, leads the majors with 255 innings and 36 starts. He was lifted after issuing a bases-loaded walk in the second inning. He ultimately was charged with two hits, three walks and four runs.

Gubicza first experienced soreness on Sept. 12 in a game against Texas and had not received a decision in his two previous starts. The Royals began play 3½ games behind Oakland in the American League West.

Duke gets oral hoop commitment

RESTON, Va. (AP) — South Lakes High School's Grant Hill, the 6-foot-8 son of former star National Football League running back Calvin Hill, announced Wednesday he will play college basketball at Duke.

"I just felt comfortable with Coach K and his program and felt that I could fit in there," Hill said. "Coach K" is Mike Krzyzewski, the Blue Devils' head coach.

Hill, a senior at South Lakes, cannot commit in writing to the Atlantic Coast Conference school until Nov. 8, the first day of the NCAA's early signing period.

As a junior, Hill averaged 25 points, 10 rebounds and five assists in leading South Lakes to a 27-2 record, and maintained a 3.2 grade-point average.

Hill also considered California, Georgetown, Michigan, North Carolina and Virginia.

South Lakes coach Wendell Byrd said Hill "has the ability to play on the frontline or the backline. He's very difficult to match up with because of his flexibility. He's a tremendous ballhandler, he can shoot the 3-pointer and he can take it to the basket and dunk over you."

Gioiosa may get released

CINCINNATI (AP) — A federal judge is to hear arguments Thursday on whether convicted drug dealer Thomas Gioiosa, a former housemate of Pete Rose, should be released on bond.

Gioiosa, 31, was convicted last week by a jury in the court of U.S. District Judge S. Arthur Spiegel, who will conduct Thursday morning's bond hearing. Gioiosa, formerly of New Bedford, Mass., was found guilty of conspiring to distribute cocaine, failing to declare income on his 1987 federal income tax returns and conspiring to hide Rose's racetrack earnings from the federal government.

Spiegel revoked Gioiosa's $20,000 bond after hearing federal prosecutors say Gioiosa might flee and pose a danger to society. He has been in federal custody since the jury convicted him Sept. 12.

Gioiosa, a former college baseball player, faces maximum punishment of 28 years in prison and $1.5 million in fines. No sentencing date has been set.

He met Rose in 1978 during the Reds' spring training in Tampa, Fla., and lived with the former player and manager at his suburban Cincinnati home from 1979 to 1984.

Marino gains AFC honor

NEW YORK (AP) — Dan Marino of Miami, who reached the 200-touchdown pass mark quicker than anyone in history, was named the AFC's player of the week on Wednesday.

Rookie linebacker Derrick Thomas, who had 2½ sacks for Kansas City in only his second NFL game, earned defensive honors.

"There has now been one ruling each way, and there is one court battle left, which will be the decider," he said.

"It has been generally expected the fight would go the full three rounds, and until the appeal court makes a ruling we still don't know how it will all work out."

The appeals court ruled Tuesday that "San Diego's catamaran was an eligible yacht, that it was the winner of the two races held on Sept. 7 and 9, 1988, for the America's Cup and that San Diego, as the winner of the two races, is entitled to the America's Cup."

Justice Carmen Beauchamp Ciparick ruled last March that the best-of-three race between New Zealand, a monohulled yacht about 90 feet at the water line and sailed by the Mercury Bay Boating Club, and the Stars & Stripes, a 60-foot catamaran sailed by the San Diego group, was a "gross mismatch."

Ciparick found that competing vessels must be "somewhat evenly matched" in America's Cup competition and that using a lighter, faster catamaran violated the spirit of the international competition.

1-900 call Jose

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—"Hi, I'm Jose Canseco, and thank you for calling my hotline."

With that timeless greeting, you're introduced to the latest 900 pay-to-listen telephone service — a daily update on the life and times of the Oakland A's slugger and occasional bad boy.

"How it originally came out was, the media stuff was happening with the speeding and the guns, and people weren't getting the story from the horse's mouth," Canseco explained. "I just wanted to tell my side of the story. Every single day it's updated. It will tell you about the game, and also what happened to me that day. Like, at the time of the gun incident, I'd have said I was traveling to the hospital when a policeman stopped me, and I'd talk about all the things that happened that day."

Although the outfielder promised daily updates, on Wednesday afternoon Canseco was still explaining what happened Monday night.

Of course, the call isn't free. You'll pay $2 for the first minute and $1 for each additional minute. There are 4½ minutes of Canseco's comments about guns, cars and steroids, and it costs $5 for the spiel.

The total tab to hear it all, depending on the length of the game discussion, will be about $10.

Thousands of people a day are apparently willing to open their wallets to hear Canseco chatting about speeding tickets, allegations about steroid use and his arrest for having a gun in his car.

Iowa Notebook

Hot at home: The Iowa women's basketball team holds the second-longest current win streak at home with 41-consecutive victories. The Hawkeyes are one win behind Auburn at 42. Iowa first plays at home Nov. 25-26 in the Amana-Hawkeye Classic at Carver-Hawkeye Arena against Howard University. Also scheduled for the Classic are 1989 NCAA tournament qualifier Connecticut and Penn State.

Party at Ames: The Iowa Alumni Association and the I-Club will host a reception prior to the Iowa-Iowa State football game at the Scheman Continuing Education Building in the Iowa State Center at Ames. It begins at 9 a.m. and is open to the public.

The other one: All the attention paid to the $1-million grass surface on the floor of Kinnick Stadium has detracted from another remodeling job a couple of blocks away. The new $600,000 Iowa field hockey field will get its first test over the weekend. The Hawkeyes play Michigan State Friday at 3 p.m. and Michigan Sunday at 11 a.m. The field is located immediately west of the Iowa baseball diamond. The game against the Spartans will be the Hawkeyes first action in the newly-formed Midwest Collegiate Field Hockey Conference composed of Iowa, Michigan State, Michigan, Northwestern, Ohio State and Northern Illinois. The Big Ten had to drop field hockey as a conference sport because of a lack of schools.

Hurricane watch: Tulsa quarterback T.J. Rubley of Davenport, Iowa, will start against the Hawkeyes Sept. 30 at Kinnick Stadium. Rubley is the school's all-time passing leader and is averaging 196 yards in air and has four touchdowns this season after games with UTEP, Oklahoma State and Arkansas. The Golden Hurricane also have the youngest Div. I coach in 32-year-old coach David Rader.

Quotable: At Tuesday's Board In Control of Athletics, Wayne Rawley, chairman of the Facilities Planning and Construction Committee, said that his group had nothing to report except: "On Saturday, we found that the grass works in some respects and not in others. One team took to it like ducks on water." Keep your day job.

Orangemen gaining exposure as legitimate national power

(AP)—Since the start of the 1987 season, Miami has the best record (25-1) in college football. Which team is second?

No, it's not Notre Dame, Nebraska, Oklahoma or any other of the traditional superpowers. It's Syracuse, a school better known in recent times for its basketball teams.

The Orangemen are 23-2-1 during the span, with the only losses coming to Ohio State and West Virginia last season. They tied Auburn 16-16 in the 1988 Sugar Bowl.

On Saturday night, 10th-ranked Syracuse meets No. 13 Pittsburgh. Pitt's offense is led by redshirt freshman Alex Van Pelt, who completed 15 of 18 passes for 216 yards and two touchdowns against Boston College. After two games, Van Pelt is the nation's third leading passer.

But he'll be tested by Syracuse's pass defense, which has given up only 71 yards in its first two games. Pitt is favored by 1 1/2 points. ... SYRACUSE 24-21.

Rutgers people claimed Princeton students stole the weapon, while Princeton people said it belonged to them all along.

"They always asked, 'When are you going to take the cannon back?'" Pitt said. "They always taunted them on the trains to New York. The Rutgers fellas were doing well with this new football game, so they issued a challenge."

Needless to say, it was accepted. What also may have encouraged the challenge was a baseball game played in 1866 between the two schools, located about 20 miles apart. Princeton embarrassed Rutgers 40-2 and Pitt said that, from that day, the Scarlet Knights were looking for revenge.

It came three years later with a football game. Students at both schools were playing a form of mass soccer between classes, open to as many players as wanted to play. The object was to kick the ball into a goal with players on each team running interference as the ball was moved upfield.

On the day of the Rutgers-Princeton game, Pitt said players from the Ivy League school took a train to New Brunswick, were met at the station by Rutgers players

While the players ate, the captains — William J. Leggett of Rutgers and William Gunmere of Princeton, met and agreed on rules. Since the teams played with slightly different rules, they agreed to use Rutgers guidelines for the first game and the Tigers more free-kicking rules for the second game, a week later in Princeton.

Boggs nears hit record

BOSTON (AP) — Wade Boggs says he won't win a fifth straight American League batting title, but the Red Sox third baseman is pushing to become the first player this century to get 200 hits in seven consecutive seasons.

"It's the only thing on my mind," Boggs said of a 200-hit season before Tuesday night's game against the Blue Jays in Toronto, where the Red Sox lost 6-5.

He went one for six in the extra-inning game leaving him 12 hits short of his goal and 11 games to get them. But, his batting average dropped two points to .322. Kirby Puckett leads the league with .341, and Carney Lansford is behind him with .337.

"It's over. It's out of reach," Boggs said before the game. "I need too many hits."

"I can blame this on a lot of things," he said of the fall-off in his batting average. "The bottom line, though, is I had a bad year as far as I'm concerned. But I'm human. I'm not an android." He said his right knee bothers him.

"I can't be as selective now," he said of the pitches he swings at now. "Walks don't do me any good."

Wes Willie Keeler, who got 200 or more hits for eight straight seasons, from 1894 to 1901, is the only major league player ahead of Boggs in that department.

"It doesn't really matter whether people think about it or not," Boggs said of that record.

'First three rows watch out!' La La La to perform at Hancher

Steve Donoghue
The Daily Iowan

When Edward Lock talks about his dance company, La La La Human Steps, you get the impression that not one single word is impromptu. Every answer is pared down to a catchy sound bite, eminently quotable. The reason isn't insincerity. It's that Lock talks about his company a lot.

And the reason for that isn't promotional overdrive. It's that La La La Human Steps is, in the parlance of the now, hot.

The troupe will perform "New Demons" this Friday at 8 p.m. in Hancher Auditorium. Newcomers to dance — heck, any-comers to dance — will recognize very few familiar landmarks. This is because La La La Human Steps specializes in destroying or carefully disguising those landmarks, making you wander around in your detonated preconceptions.

And possibly making you like it. Its appeal has grown extensive — by the end of its current tour, the company will have performed "New Demons" 200 times on four continents, for audiences in the millions, including TV viewers in England, Italy, Germany, Canada and the United States. Sources as diverse as the largely-conservative Boston Globe and geriatric rocker David Bowie have agreed that La La La Human Steps deserves the reputation it's carving as one of the finest, most thought-provoking dance acts of the decade.

Thought-provoking because La La La Human Steps in some ways undermines the very idea of dance. "Oh, it's nothing so subversive as that," said Lock, with a somewhat counterbalancing laugh. "I just thought people's preconceived notions about what dance is are limited to ballet and a few well-known modern dance groups."

Not that the company undermines the idea of dance in the same way as, say, Joyce undermines the idea of the novel. There's nothing so blaringly self-conscious about it.

"I don't think a show's a place to intellectualize or teach," said Lock.

La La La Human Steps

"We're primates — the one thing we love above all else is to see each other move."
— Edward Lock

Dance

"I think people come in with one reality and have it replaced by another for about 90 minutes. Our stuff might set people off-balance, but that's good. I think people need to be off-balance, I think."

The Human Steps company specializes in danger. Not ideological danger, like the idea of restricting someone's free speech. More like physical danger, of the "first-three-rows-watch-out" variety. But according to Lock, the danger overplays an even greater pleasure:

"We're primates — the one thing we love above all else is to see each other move."

And the controversy they arouse?

"Theater has always been a forum for shouting," Lock said with the verbal equivalent of a shrug. "It's only recently that it's become a polite forum for clapping."

"And besides," he continued with the air of a man who knows he's right and knows exactly why he's right, "if you try to control whether an audience likes it or not, you become a politician."

Following the Hancher performance, Lock will be the guest at a discussion of "New Demons" in the Hancher Greenroom. No tickets are required.

Tickets to the Hancher performance of La La La Human Steps are $18.50 and $16.50 for general audiences, $14.80 and $13.20 for UI students.

Guest choreographer visits UI

Kathleen Hurley
The Daily Iowan

Welcome to Iowa City, Jan Erkert! Visiting the UI Dance Department this week is Jan Erkert, winner of the Seven States Choreography Competition for 1989. This week she's teaching the Major Modern II/III dance classes and setting choreography on student dancers. Erkert brings a refreshing style of modern dance characterized by natural and honest movement.

The UI Dance Department initiated the choreography competition in order to honor excellence in the Midwest. Amateur, professional, and academic choreographers from Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri and Wisconsin are eligible to enter. In addition to a $1,000 cash prize, Erkert's choreography will be performed by UI dancers this season.

From Monday evening's audition junior Mary Sharon Dziedzic was chosen to perform Erkert's solo "Antigamente." Sophomore Charlie Livingston was chosen to understand the demanding role. The piece will be performed in the Dance Gala, February 9 and 10, at Hancher Auditorium.

"The dance requires a constant 'in and out' kind of energy," commented Livingston. Dziedzic described the piece as "very primal with intense athletic qualities."

"Antigamente," Portuguese for "time that is ancient," portrays a character of intense emotionalism and vulnerability. With primitive earthy movement, the character performs on a stage scattered with crumpled paper blown from offstage fans which create a textured rocky feeling. Feeling out of place in the modern world of cars, trucks and airplanes, the solo creates an uncivilized atmosphere with wild leaps, frantic rolls, animal crouches and moments of complete stillness.

"I deal with humanness in my dance, not just abstract forms," comments Erkert. "I want the audience to get to know the person. The dance is a celebration of the individual."

With dance training from the University of Utah, Erkert has accomplished many successful endeavors. In 1979, she formed the Jan Erkert and Dancers company and has since received many choreographic fellowships from the National Endowment for the Arts and the Illinois Art Council. Her outstanding choreography won her a 1988 Fulbright Award and a nomination for the 1989 Choreography Award. In addition, her works have been performed at the Riverside Dance Festival in New York, the Briar Street Theatre in Chicago, and several Gala concerts of the American College Dance Festival of America. This past year, she worked with the National Dance Company of Nicaragua and the National Theatre of Taiwan in Taipei.

Very unique in her approach to modern dance, Erkert draws the audience into the movement. "I shy away from presentational or entertainment dance," Erkert says. "I focus on the internal energy which extends to the audience and returns back to the dancer in a continuous circular motion."

Without reservation Erkert sometimes breaks the norms of technique to portray a particular emotion. "The lack of external form makes the dance look deceptively easy. Often my work is misunderstood for its simplicity — and that can be frustrating," Erkert acknowledges. "I throw away the formal style imposed on the individual and bring the best out of the dancer."

Art professor's paintings part of Soviet show

Three paintings by Hans Breder, professor of art at the UI, are included in "Painting Beyond the Death of Painting," an exhibition of contemporary American paintings that opened September 14, at the Kuznetsky Most exhibition site in Moscow.

The exhibition is jointly sponsored by New York Artists in Moscow, Inc., and the Artists Union of the Soviet Union. One of the first exhibitions of contemporary American art works to be shown in the Soviet Union, "Painting Beyond the Death of Painting" features the works of 33 established American artists, including Alex Katz, Julian Schnabel, Lucas Samaras and William Wegman.

Trained in Hamburg, Germany, in painting and drawing, Breder has always considered himself a conceptual artist who works in several media. His first major success in this country came in the mid-Sixties with a series of mirror sculptures. Much of his energy over the last two decades has been devoted to video art, and his work in this area has attracted international attention.

His video work is included in the collection of the Museum of Modern Art in New York City and has been shown in two Whitney Biennial Exhibitions. Breder was one of four American artists to be included this year in the Fukui International Video Biennale in Japan.

While he has been engaged in his video work, Breder has continued to paint. The works for the Moscow exhibition come from a current series of more than 30 paintings, the "Liminal Icon" series. The artist describes the series as "evocations of a threshold state between the mundane and the sacred."

Antonio Damasio, head of the Department of Neurology at UI Hospitals and Clinics and a collector of Breder's work, says: "Breder's work has reason. You can look at his drawings or paintings the same way you listen to a rational piece of chamber music: enjoying the beauty of form and texture but, always being reminded that meaning is carried by the structure behind the surfaces and not by the surfaces themselves. You are made aware of a hidden order."

Without Eddie or Aykroyd, SNL bounces back, again

Steven Scholz
Special to The Daily Iowan

“Live from New York, it's Saturday Night!”

When people hear that phrase, many things come to mind. Nick the Lounge Singer, Tommy Flanagan (the Liar) and the Church Lady. Fifteen years of “Saturday Night Live” has left our culture with scores of funny memories.

Back in the '70s, late night television was dead. No “Late Night,” no “Senio,” no Sajak. Carson was king on weeknights and weekends in reruns. The time was ripe for “Saturday Night Live,” and it debuted on Oct. 11, 1975. Creator and producer Lorne Michaels assembled the Not Ready for Prime Time Players, who performed material by writers from the cutting edge of comedy. Movie stars and celebrities hosted, and were roasted by the show.

These early episodes, now in their “best of” format on Nick at Nite, funny comedy at the TV generation. Slapstick, heavy sarcasm and acid wit were typical of the show. Volatile satire, dark humor and crude jokes also surfaced along with film and television parodies. Not everything was funny to everybody — indeed, SNL succeeded in offending much of America — but experimentation continued. SNL's newness gave it a smart-alecky attitude, and the show took on topics like teen pregnancy, circumcision, dyslexia and child molestation — all for humor's sake.

After five years, the remains of the early cast had departed, along with Lorne Michaels. A season of poor shows tried to live up to the originals, and not until Dick Ebersol — co-creator of SNL with Michaels — came in as producer did the show regain acceptance. Out of the next five years would come stars like Eddie Murphy, Joe Piscopo, Jim Belushi, Mary Gross and Tim Kazurinsky. Yet this version of SNL was not the dangerous little show of 1975 and it took less risks with broadcasting standards. Political humor was sparse, and the show adopted a sterile “this is humor” attitude, neglecting commentary for show business humor.

Then in 1985 Lorne Michaels returned to SNL. He brought back many writers and crew people who made the show look like the early days. However, the new cast had movie actors — Randy Quaid, Anthony Michael Hall, Joan Cusack, Robert Downey Jr. — who didn't mesh well with the best sketch players — Jon Lovitz, Nora Dunn, Dennis Miller. A year later, Michaels dropped all but Lovitz, Dunn and Miller, then brought in Dana Carvey, Phil Hartman, Jan Hooks, Victoria Jackson and Kevin Nealon. This cast clicked. They are now the longest-running group (four seasons) to withstand a major cast change. While few big names have emerged from this ensemble, most members are easily recognized. Carvey and Nealon “pump you up” as Hanz and Franz, for instance, and the hip-square Dennis Miller is always anchoring Weekend Update. These players carry the show as a group and work well together, emphasizing ensemble comedy.

Admittedly, the show still relies on formula — film and TV parodies, repetition of characters and catchphrases — but there are still some experimental pieces and short films. Recent sketches on the Exxon oil spill, Pete Rose's gambling and President George Bush's response to China prove that SNL has recovered its satirical edge.

The 15th anniversary show airs this Sunday, September 24, at 8 p.m. on NBC. Prince and Paul Simon are the musical talent, and the guest list features hosts and cast members of then and now; Steve Martin, Tom Hanks, Eric Idle, Charlton Heston, Mary Tyler Moore, Chevy Chase, Billy Crystal, Jane Curtin and Eddie Murphy. Watch for your favorite sketch, character, host or missing performer. Look to see if highlights of previous shows skip over certain seasons and people. After that, stay tuned on Saturdays at 10:30 p.m. The new season will soon begin. It's much more fun than screaming heavy metal roller-brawlers. And just think — only five more years 'til the 20th anniversary!

Glass to play solo recital

Composer Philip Glass, best known for his music for theatrical, dance and movie spectacles, will reveal another side of his art when he presents a solo piano recital of his compositions at 3 p.m. Sunday, September 24, in Clapp Recital Hall.

The recital, sponsored by Hancher Auditorium, will feature "Opening" from the recording "Glassworks"; "The Fourth Knee Play," from the opera "Einstein on the Beach"; "Planet News," composed to accompany readings by poet Allen Ginsberg; "Mad Rush," which was used by choreographer Lucinda Childs; and "Five Metamorphoses," a set of pieces written for the film, "A Thin Blue Line," and a staging of Kafka's "Metamorphoses."

Opera Monthly described Glass as "the most popular and controversial composer of our time." Abandoning the atonality and serialism in which he had been schooled, Glass became one of the founders of a musical tradition labeled "minimalism."

Using repetitive patterns, complex rhythms, inspired by Indian music and simple harmonies, Glass wrote pulsing scores with a cumulative impact. Over the years, his music has become richer and more varied, moving well away from the minimalist label while retaining the distinctive Glass stamp. Annalyn Swan wrote in The New Republic, "Glass' position as a pivotal figure in contemporary music is assured. He represents a radically different set of values. It gives you the experience of sitting back and letting a music carry you along on a shimmering wave of sound."

While writing for his own Philip Glass Ensemble, orchestra and chorus, Glass composed for opera, film, theater, dance and concert settings. All the works on the September 24 concert have been composed since 1976, the year Glass collaborated with Robert Wilson on the epic opera, "Einstein on the Beach."

During those years Glass has composed operas, including "Satyagraha" and "Akhnaten"; music/theater works, including "The Fall of the House of Usher," "The Making of the Representative for Planet 8," "CIVIL wars" and "1000 Airplanes on the Roof"; scores to the films "Mishima," "Koyaanisqatsi," "The Thin Blue Line" and "Powaqqatsi"; and dance scores for Molissa Fenley and Twyla Tharp. His music has also been used by Laura Dean, the Joffrey Ballet, the New York City Ballet and other dance companies.

David Byrne, Laurie Anderson, Suzanne Vega and Paul Simon contributed lyrics to Glass music for the recording, "Songs from Liquid Days," which featured vocals by Linda Ronstadt.

Encountering the music of Philip Glass in the intimate setting of a solo recital produces what the Syracuse Post Standard called "a stimulating night of music that is fresh and haunting."

A Glass solo concert also gives his audience an opportunity to glimpse something that is usually hidden from view, his engaging personality. As John Rockwell observed in The New York Times, "He has a personal charisma that is a long way from the academic-modernist stereotype of a composer."

Tickets for the solo piano concert of Philip Glass are $12.50 ($10 for UI students) and very limited. They are available in advance from the Hancher Auditorium box office.

This event is supported, in part, by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts.

Murder movie not much of a mystery - it's the ex-husband

Locke Peterseim
The Daily Iowan

This is going to be brief, so let's get one thing out of the way early: It's the ex-husband who's the killer — he's the jarhead cable-TV repairman.

So there. Now you know how "Sea of Love" is hollow murder mystery comes out. Don't be upset, it wasn't that big of a deal. The film is only marginally concerned with the whodunnit; it's just there to give Al Pacino something to talk about when he's not having stand-up sex with Ellen Barkin.

Pacino is Frank Keller, a good, but tired, cop who's divorced, lonely and lies around in his underwear drinking JD out of the bottle. He's working with John Goodman to find a killer who really hates the song "Sea of Love." We're supposed to think it's Helen (Barkin), who spends a lot of time wearing slinky dresses and making the corner of her mouth look like Sly Stallone's. So of course Frank falls head over heels in love with her, probably because he thinks it'd be cute to have a wife named Helen Keller.

So that's the gist of it. "Sea of Love" has one ace card — the "is she or isn't she the killer" mystery — and I've already given that away. So you really have no reason whatsoever to go see this film. Well, John Goodman is good in a big and jovial way — like a John Candy who can act (though of course anyone who appears with Rossane Barr is going to look pretty good when she's not around — it's like wearing ankle weights when you jog).

It's kind of hard to figure out who would like this film. Dumb guys in tank-tops who drive Trans-Ams will be bored because Frank only kills one person and never even drives a car, let alone ramp it over garbage cans. And anyone with half a brain will get annoyed with the character and narrative holes big enough to drive a failed '70s acting career through.

Oh, and you get to hear "Sea of Love" about 34 times; 31 times by Phil Phillips, once by Tom Waits, once by John Goodman and once by Al Pacino (never by Robert Plant). Consider yourself warned.
