Departmental politics flaw engineering audit

Andy Brownstone

The Daily Iowan

The impending termination of the University's engineering programs, as the university may be due more to depart- ment merit and "no justification," but instead to "hidden" factors, has left the engineering faculty in a quandary. The programs were targeted for elimination earlier this year by the Peat Marwick firm and a study conducted by the faculty itself. The audit, however, was conducted by the university's own standards and criteria.

A ‘classic’ guy

Rawlings’ antiquities background enhances his administration duties

John Novosel

Special to The Daily Iowan

He was once a young, aspiring department at Rawlins, and I believe he continues to be one of those people and what they were doing with their administrative bureau, for me, a way of learning more about what was happening in the field.

Rawlings said he is moving in the direction that Rawlings called it the UI’s chief speaker.

“I think it’s (analyzing the classics portion) a very nice way of doing it. People don’t always have the classical background, but I think it’s a bit of a turn of the period,” he said.

The subject is an integral part of Rawlings, after finding it ways into his processes as a professor.

Iowa not a hazardous-waste dumping ground

By ALISON J. SWANSON

Iowa cannot be considered a hazardous-waste dumping ground.

"No one wants to have a hazardous waste site in their back yard," said Thomas Blewett, an environmental specialist for the Department of Natural Resources. "The state is a big importer of hazardous waste, primarily to Wisconsin and Indiana."

"We have heard some people say that Iowa is becoming a dumping ground. But in fact, we export far more hazardous waste than we import," Blewett said.

Blewett said the state is not generating hazardous waste at its current rate. "We are managing the waste that we do generate in the state or at plant sites," he said. "And we are not accepting waste from out-of-state sources."

"We have been exporting waste to other states for many years," Blewett said. "But we are not importing hazardous waste to Iowa."

Blewett said Iowa exports six times as much hazardous waste as it imports. "We have heard some people say that Iowa is becoming a dumping ground. But in fact, we export far more hazardous waste than we import," Blewett said.

Fed works to aid stock market hurt by deficit

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Treasury urged Congress Thursday to sharply raise the $17.7 billion in August interest payments due on the national debt. In a letter at a record, the government said it had failed to make the payment on time, which had weakened the government's creditworthiness.

The Treasury said its failure to make the payment on time was a result of the second straight day of trade deficit increases, pushing the national debt over $30 trillion. The government said it had failed to make the payment on time, which it called a "serious mistake," and was 31 percent bigger than a two-thirds majority of members of Congress.

Court refuses tennis judge case

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A New York state court refused Thursday to hear an appeal filed by the family of a tennis judge who died after he was struck by a ball by opposing States Teachers tennis player in 1989.

The decision by the state Court of Appeals is the latest in a series of legal battles between Richard Wertheim, of Boston, Mass., and the United States Tennis Association.

The seven-member court ruled that Wertheim's widow has no standing to file a lawsuit for wrongful death.
