Navy brass hopes recent mishaps 'just streak of bad luck'

WASHINGTON (AP)—It's been a bad week for the Navy. Starting with the Sunday jet crash that claimed five lives on the USS Lexington and continuing through Wednesday's fire aboard the oiler USS Monongahela, each day has brought another mishap at sea that has Navy brass shaking their heads — and hoping it's just a streak of bad luck.

One civilian specialist on industrial hazards warns that cutbacks in Navy training could lead to more accidents. "Congress is always trying to cut training budgets. But if a pilot can't practice flying, those on the deck don't get trained either. . . . It's a prescription for an accident," said Karlene Roberts, an industrial psychologist participating in a five-year study of Nimitz-class aircraft carriers and hazardous industrial systems.

She said, however, that overall the Navy's safety record "is excellent." "Operating at sea is an arduous life, and the lesson is that even at peacetime there are dangers," said Rear Adm. Brent Baker, the head of the Navy's information division. "That's no consolation to the families who have lost sons or daughters. But those who have been around the Navy a long time realize that's why we train so hard and emphasize safety. . . . You can't prepare for war at the pier," said Baker. "It's frustrating. It's a real streak of bad luck," he said. In the latest incident, the Navy reported that nine sailors suffered smoke inhalation, and four of those were treated for burns following an early morning fire in a boiler aboard the USS Monongahela some 500 miles west of Gibraltar. The other incidents include: ■ Three sailors and a reported $4 million worth of non-nuclear missiles were swept by a wave from the aircraft carrier USS Eisenhower near Cape Hatteras, N.C., on Tuesday, with one sailor still missing and presumed dead. ■ A sailor aboard the aircraft carrier USS Carl Vinson fell into the Pacific about 620 miles north of

Wake Island late Monday and was presumed lost. ■ A F/A-18 pilot dropped a 500-pound bomb on the guided missile cruiser USS Reeves in the Indian Ocean also on Monday, causing minor injuries to five sailors and blowing a five-foot hole in the ship's bow. ■ In the week's most deadly event, a jet pilot making his first landing

Wednesday's mild weather made it a good day to take care of the leaves, however today's weather could be a bit more seasonable with highs expected in the 30s.

Ortega cancels 19-month truce with guerillas

U.S. blamed for rebel attacks

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — President Daniel Ortega ended a 19-month truce with Contra guerillas on Wednesday, blaming the United States for renewed rebel attacks and accusing President George Bush of "promoting death, assassination, crime and terrorism in Nicaragua." Ortega said the truce was being canceled because of increased Contra attacks, including one last week he said killed 18 people and another Monday that killed four. The White House denounced Ortega's decision to end the truce but brushed off talk about renewing military aid for the Contras. "We don't want to give him any excuse" to cancel elections scheduled for next February, said presidential press secretary Marlin Fitzwater. Ortega read a communiqué in which he said, "Nicaragua reaffirms once again that, regardless of the position assumed by the mercenary forces, the electoral process culminating with the February 25 elections will be guaranteed." But, he said, replying heatedly to a reporter's question on U.S. aid to the Contras, "Now it will depend on the Yankee Congress and the Yankee president whether these elections take place or not on February 25." Alejandro Bendana, secretary-general at the Foreign Ministry, emphasized later that Nicaragua had no plans to cancel the elections. Commenting on possible renewed U.S. military aid to the Contras, Bendana added, "Obviously, if they let a bomb fall here we can't have elections." Ortega said U.S. aid to the Contras should be used only to demobilize and resettle the army that has been trying to overthrow his leftist Sandinista government. Fitzwater said in Washington no request for renewed military aid was contemplated. The administration said Bush was consulting with leaders in Central America to bring diplomatic pressure on Ortega to reverse course. "This has little to do with the military situation and much to do with the electoral situation," said Virgilio Godoy, vice presidential candidate of the National Opposition Union, a 14-party coalition

Libel project gets $92,000 for research

Brian Dick
The Daily Iowan

A joint libel research project between members of the UI School of Journalism and Mass Communication and the UI College of Law recently received two grants totaling $92,000. The Iowa Libel Research Project received a $67,000 grant from the John and Mary Markle Foundation to fund an ongoing experimental program that settles libel disputes outside the court system. In addition, a $25,000 grant from the Knight Foundation will be used to study whether courts creating journalistic standards in libel lawsuits are threatening freedom of the press. ILRP's Libel Dispute Resolution Program was started in 1987 after UI researchers found plaintiffs in libel cases are more interested in obtaining a ruling on a story's truth or falsity than in receiving monetary damages, according to John Soloski, associate journalism professor. Some of this research is published in "Libel Law and the Press: Myth and Reality," a book co-authored by Soloski, Gilbert Cranberg, a George Gallup professor of journalism at the UI, and former UI law professor Randall Beanson, now dean of the Washington and Lee University School of Law. Under the ILRP program, libel plaintiffs give up the right to monetary damages in exchange for a prompt determination of a story's truth or falsity by an independent mediator or arbitrator.

Debate surrounds LASA membership petition invalidation

Jennifer Glynn
The Daily Iowan

Liberal Arts Students Association's Tuesday night invalidation of 20 petitions for LASA membership has fueled a heated debate between the three UI governmental bodies.

Pepe Rojas-Cardona, UI Student Senate president, was at Tuesday night's LASA meeting to discuss the invalidation of the 20 new LASA members. After Rojas-Cardona refused to obey a congressional order to leave the LASA meeting, UI Campus Security was called to remove him. Rojas-Cardona left of his own accord. The petitions were invalidated because some signatures on the petitions were not from registered members of the UI College of Liberal Arts, and some were from people already serving on the LASA congress, according to LASA President Syd Smith. But the presidents of the three UI governmental bodies disagree as to why the petitions were invalidated. Vernon McKinley, president of UI Collegiate Associations Council, said Smith would like to keep LASA at its current 20 person membership so she can better control the group. "It is easier to control 20 minds than to control 40 minds," McKinley said. LASA's membership capacity is 42. It currently has 24 members, including four new members whose petitions were not denied. Smith said LASA has had two ads in The Daily Iowan, has set up a table in the Union and has sent out several flyers to boost LASA membership. "I would encourage any and all liberal arts students who are interested to apply," Smith said. "I have no power and no desire to limit the size of the congress — I would much rather see LASA be at

Iran: Law claims power to arrest, try Americans

NICOSIA, Cyprus (AP) — Iran on Wednesday approved a law giving it the power to arrest Americans anywhere and put them on trial, and a newspaper suggested that the first target be the former commander of the USS Vincennes. The action came amid growing anti-U.S. passion being whipped up to mark the 10th anniversary of the storming of the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. Protesters plan to burn 160 American flags outside the compound — now a school — on Saturday. The official Islamic Republic News Agency said the Majlis, or parliament, unanimously approved a final version of the bill that earlier had been passed by the 12-member Council of Guardians, a constitutional watchdog body. The council acted after the 270-seat Majlis approved a first draft of the measure on Tuesday. The law will remain on the books "as long as the U.S. president is authorized to commit inhuman practices against the lives and interests of Iranian citizens," the agency reported in a dispatch monitored in Cyprus. The Iranian move was in response to the Justice Department's authorization of the FBI to arrest suspected terrorists abroad and bring them to trial in the United States without the permission of the countries where they were located. The U.S. move did not specify Iran. But it is one of several nations accused of supporting and encouraging terrorism, including the kidnapping of Americans and other Westerners in Lebanon, assassinations and hijackings. Iranian radicals clearly saw the Justice Department's action as aimed at the Islamic republic. "You who scream about human rights and talk about terrorism, are yourselves innately terrorists and criminals who have taken security away from the people of the world," said Parliament Speaker Mehdi Karrubi, a leading radical. Several Iranian-backed Shiite militants in Lebanon are wanted by the United States for hijacking a TWA airliner in 1985 and killing a U.S. Navy diver aboard the jet.

The Associated Press

House Speaker Thomas Foley and Sen. Edward Kennedy (D-Mass) address a news conference Tuesday on Capitol Hill. The Democratic leadership has reached an agreement with the Bush administration's plan to raise the minimum wage.

House OKs bill raising hourly wage to $4.25

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House voted overwhelmingly Wednesday to raise the hourly minimum wage from $3.35 to $4.25 by April 1991 and create a new, lower wage for teen-agers with less than six months work experience. The 382-37 vote on the compromise struck between President George Bush and congressional Democrats sends the measure to the Senate, where leaders have promised to pass it before Thanksgiving. Bush's signature then would trigger the first increase in the minimum wage since January 1981 and end an eight-year political stalemate between the majority Democrats in Congress and two successive Republican administrations. That stalemate has kept the minimum wage at $3.35 an hour since January 1981. The compromise provides a 45-cent increase to $3.80 next April 1 and another 45-cent jump a year later. It also creates for the first time a subminimum "training wage" that would allow employers to pay workers from 16 to 19 years old 85

Group to sit it out for homeless

Amy Davoux
The Daily Iowan

Pledge members of a UI coed service fraternity will brave the bitter winds of Iowa's winter next week to raise funds for the homeless and needy of Iowa City. Fall pledge class members of the UI Alpha Phi Omega service committee will don warm clothes and blankets as they rock for 24 hours on Union Field in rocking chairs November 9 and 10. The rock-a-thon will be held from 3 p.m. Thursday to 3 p.m. Friday.

Jill Wiele, APO pledge class member, said the organization chose to hold a rock-a-thon because it is a unique idea.

"It's something different; it catches people's eye," she said.

APO members are also hoping to catch the eyes of some local dignitaries such as UI President Hunter Rawlings and Iowa City Mayor John McDonald. A few extra rocking chairs will be available if the officials decide to join in the rocking.

APO is also working to secure local DJs to provide music for the event.

Members are now soliciting pledges for each hour they plan to rock. They have set a fundraising goal of $300.

"We're shooting for a low figure at $300," said Wiele. "Hopefully we can raise $500. We've raised quite a bit so far."

Monetary donations will also be accepted at Union Field during the rock-a-thon. All proceeds will go to the Emergency Housing Project in Iowa City.

"It's not going to be easy to sit there for 24 hours," Wiele said. "Just as it's not easy being homeless."

New graduate program will help teachers of severely disabled

Sonja West
The Daily Iowan

Teaching special education students has always involved teacher skills which differ from those needed to teach other classes and until recently, few specialized graduate programs existed to help teachers acquire these skills.

Beginning next semester, the UI will be working towards meeting the demand for graduate-level special education courses with a new teacher skills program. The UI College of Education will sponsor a new master's degree program to train public school teachers to work with students with severe disabilities.

The new graduate program will be supported by a federal grant of $75,600 that can be renewed for up to three years. The program will be taught in cooperation with the UI College of Medicine and the UI College of Law.

According to Alan Frank, UI Special Education Division chairman, the purpose of the program will be to give public school teachers the ability to instruct students with severe mental retardation and/or physical disabilities.

The program will prepare teachers to deal with excessive student behaviors.

The program will also concentrate on medical and legal policy issues involved in the lives of special education students. According to Frank, these areas of specialization will set the UI program apart from other colleges across the country.

The program will focus on the nationwide aspect of working effectively with disabled students, he said.

"We wanted to include areas of national interest in this moderate to severe disabilities program," Frank said.

People will soon be able to formally enroll in the special education graduate program.

According to Frank, the UI College of Education is expecting approximately eight to 10 students to be initially enrolled in the program.

State lobbying-drive hearings open on new $3 billion budget

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa's first $3-billion budget began taking shape Wednesday as hearings opened on the annual lobbying drive for shares of state spending.

"It is the culmination of budget preparation that starts within each division of each agency," said Dick Vohs, a spokesman for Gov. Terry Branstad.

Branstad's first budget in 1983 cracked the $2-billion barrier, and annual spending has grown by $1 billion while he has been in office. Revenue projections say the state will have just over $3 billion to spend next year.

Experts predict the budget will grow by 4.5 percent next year. They will give their final growth figure next month.

Fighting for pieces of the budget, top agency heads Wednesday kicked-off a month of presentations to Branstad arguing for more money.

The Department of General Services, housekeeping agency for state government, kicked-off the hearings pushing for more spending on the Statehouse complex. That's followed by a plea from the Iowa State Fair for help in renovating aging buildings at the fairgrounds.

In all, there are 34 such sessions, plus one final hearing on the overall budget. They will include some interesting moments such as when Atty. Gen. Tom Miller and Lt. Gov. JoAnn Zimmerman — both Democratic gubernatorial candidates — make their spending pleas.

The hearings end December 5, when state Human Services officials will push for a 20-percent increase in welfare spending.

Flight 232: disk's crack not detected

SIoux CITY (AP) — An expert testified Wednesday that the crack in the rear engine fan disk of United Airlines Flight 232 probably existed when the disk was last inspected in 1988, but a United Airlines official said testing required at the time could not have detected the flaw.

United spokesman Robert Doughty said that since the July 19 crash of the DC-10 jumbo jet at the Sioux Gateway Airport that killed 112 people, the Federal Aviation Administration has ordered ultrasonic examination of all disks similar to the titanium disk that split apart in the tail engine of Flight 232.

Ultrasonic testing can detect cracks and other flaws beneath the surface of a block of material. Before the Sioux City crash, surface testing of disks was deemed adequate.

"If the ultrasonic testing had been required, it (the crack) would have been discovered," Doughty said during a break in testimony at the National Transportation Safety Board hearing.

The crash occurred as the crew of the crippled plane attempted an emergency landing after the plane's rear engine disintegrated over northwest Iowa. Metal spewed out of the engine severed all three of the plane's hydraulic systems, rendering the aircraft nearly uncontrollable.

The rear engine's huge fan disk was found in two sections in northwest Iowa farm fields.

Defendant of vehicular homicide files motion

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

Paul G. Stillmunkes filed a motion October 17 to suppress the results of a blood test which would establish whether or not he was intoxicated the night an accident resulted in the death of his son, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Stillmunkes, 127 Hilltop Mobile Home Park, was charged with vehicular homicide for allegedly causing the death of his son in a drunk-driving accident July 4.

The motion was filed on the basis that the arresting Iowa State Trooper did not have reason to believe that Stillmunkes was intoxicated and that the warrant to obtain a blood specimen was invalid.

Open cans of beer in the van accounted for any smell of alcohol emanating from Stillmunkes, which may have caused the trooper to believe he was intoxicated, according to the motion.

In the state's resistance to the motion, Asst. Johnson County Atty. Timothy Ross-Boon said Still-munkes appeared to be under the influence of alcohol not only to the trooper, but also to witnesses of the accident.

In order to issue a warrant for a body specimen, the defendant must refuse consent to the test.

Stillmunkes refused both a blood and urine sample, according to the state's resistance to the motion.

At the time consent was required, Stillmunkes was under physical stress from injuries sustained in the accident and mental stress from the shock of learning that his son had been killed.

Courts

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man was charged with fourth-degree theft Tuesday after he allegedly stole an exit sign, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Blaine J. Kupris, 19, N435 Currier Residence Hall, was seen by a UI Campus Security officer carrying the sign in a hallway of Currier, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for November 16, according to court records.

■ A Coralville man and woman were charged with third-degree theft Tuesday after they allegedly obtained two Nintendo game cartridges from That's Rentertainment, 411 Second St., Coralville, using a fake name and then attempted to keep them as their own property, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The woman, Sandra R. Spina, 20, 409 Sixth Ave., Apt. 3, obtained the cartridges under a fake name on the same day that she quit working at the store, according to court records.

The man, Robert Jasso, 23, 409 Sixth Ave., Apt. 3, admitted removing stickers from the cartridges, which identified them as property of That's Rentertainment, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing on both matters is set for November 16 according to court records.

■ An Iowa City man was charged with possession of a controlled substance Wednesday after he was arrested in connection with a loud party, according to Johnson County District Court records.

During a pat-down search of the defendant, David W. Burlingame, 25, 1001 Lakeside Drive, P.O. Box 3194, police found a wooden pipe containing residue of a green leafy substance, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for November 16, according to court records.

■ An Iowa City man was charged with forgery October 17 after he allegedly forged a check for $72.80, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Patrick D. Lowe, 19, 1946 Broadway St., was arrested on $2,500 bail, after handwriting tests confirmed that he had forged the check, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for November 16, according to court records.

In Brief

Briefs

• All five candidates for the Iowa City Council will participate in the Annual Candidates Forum at 9:15 a.m. in the First Christian Church, 217 Iowa Ave.

The one-hour forum will provide the candidates and citizens with an occasion to define major issues before the city. The candidates will then have the opportunity to state their views, and the citizens will have the opportunity to ask questions.

Since the forum is one hour in length, the candidates have been asked to make direct responses to the questions. Rev. Bob Welsh, minister at First Christian Church, will serve as moderator.

• The UI Department of Ophthalmology has received the 1989 Distinguished Service Award of the American Academy of Ophthalmology. The award was presented October 30 at the academy's annual meeting in New Orleans.

The academy bestowed the award in recognition of the program's contributions to medicine in training many excellent ophthalmologists.

The UI has an international reputation for training ophthalmologists who are involved not only in patient care, but who have become leaders in academic centers around the country, according to Thomas Weingeist, professor and head of the UI department.

Since the UI program was established, the department has trained 274 residents and 267 fellows.

City Council Candidates

District B Seat

Showdown for Dist. B

Graf, Courtney speak of their goals for city, stances on issues

Tonya Feit
The Daily Iowan

Two candidates, incumbent Darrel Courtney and Rick Graf, are vying for the District B seat on the Iowa City Council in the upcoming November 7 election. The Daily Iowan's Tonya Feit talked to both candidates this week and asked them where they stand on city issues and what they plan to accomplish if elected.

Darrel Courtney

Courtney is completing his first term on the Iowa City Council and his second year as mayor pro tem. At 40, he is a stockbroker with Dain Bosworth Inc. and received a bachelor of arts from the UI in industrial relations and psychology.

DI: What do you think are the major issues facing the Iowa City Council in the next four years?

Courtney: One of the problems that is going to have to be addressed in this upcoming budget session will be the transit system. The ridership has been falling off

"My posture in the community has always been to be very visible and to be in the mainstream of things." — Darrel Courtney for several years, and at the same time the federal government has almost entirely cut back our money coming in. We now have to make a decision as to service versus funds.

There is also a lot of talk going on with affordable housing. It is true that the spread keeps widening. We're going to have to be innovative and come up with some means of narrowing that gap. I'm looking forward to working with the housing task force.

The landfill is always an issue. There are those who think we are not moving fast enough on our environmental issues. But you always have to blend the need along with our resources.

DI: What impact have you made on the council's policies?

Courtney: There are several things in the economic development area that I think I helped along the way. One of the first things we tackled once I got on council was opening up a direct link to the interstate from the new industrial park. We're starting to see some very good development coming into the park. We had no public relations officer for many years to work directly with schools, so I got council to hire an extra officer to do that.

There has been a lot of development in the area of increasing the tax base and increasing the amount of industry coming to town. We've had, in the last four years, $65 million worth of new construction in the area. I don't claim responsibility for all of that, but I like to think that I helped it along.

The police and fire departments had been neglected for many years when I came on to council. We now have the level of equipment we need for the safety of our fire fighters and, we have added some personnel to the police department. They're now also getting the room that they've needed desperately for several years.

DI: What do you hope to accomplish if you win another term as Iowa City councilor?

Courtney: I would like to see continued expansion of the tax base and continued economic development so that we are not as completely dependent on the fortunes of the university for our economy to expand. The more that we can add to the tax base in new taxes collected, the less we'll have to worry about raising the current tax payers' burden.

The housing issue is something we need to at least make some gains on. I'm not convinced we're going to be able to totally change the world there. This town has a very high level of income, and the forces are working against that issue.

DI: How will your role in the Iowa City community translate into the role you hope to play on the council?

Courtney: My posture in the community has always been to be very visible and to be in the mainstream of things. When you're making decisions on the council, it's valuable to know as many people and have as many folks you can go to as possible to ask for opinions. I resent the allegation that I am not accessible. I am totally accessible to citizens. My phone number is in the book. I have people walk in the office all the time and sit down and talk to me about things.

Rick Graf

Graf is active in civil-rights efforts for people with AIDS through the Iowa Center for AIDS Education, which he helped found through the Johnson County AIDS Coalition. He is 40 years old and owns a residential and remodeling firm called Advanced Design Builders. He attended the UI for three years.

DI: What do you think are the major issues facing the Iowa City Council in the next four years?

Graf: The primary issue in this race and the reason I got involved is responsiveness of our city council to its citizens. I feel there are groups of influential people that get heard easily, but the majority of average citizens simply have a difficult time getting their concerns heard.

DI: What type of impact do you believe you can make as an Iowa City councilor?

Graf: I have a lot of knowledge and interest in low-income housing,

"My open accessibility for citizens will also bring about greater participation in our city government." — Rick Graf and a lot of ability to discover creative ways of solving low and moderate income needs for the people of Iowa City. We have dragged our feet too long on these

I would like to look into ways to assure people that they can come to their council either individually or through a mechanism such as a community liaison to get their needs heard. I can bring my energy and my determination to solve problems and my willingness to tackle difficult issues with a sense of discovery and enthusiasm for what I do to the council.

Iowa City Council Elections

Tuesday, November 7

District B - encompasses most of eastern Iowa City, but all Iowa City voters will cast ballots for the District B councilor.

Friday The Daily Iowan will look at the race for two at-large council seats.

Darrel Courtney - (incumbent), is completing his first term on the Iowa City council. He is 40 years old and a stockbroker with Dain Bosworth. He is a UI graduate.

Rick Graf - (challenger), a local AIDS activist. He helped found the Iowa Center for AIDS education. He is 40 years old and owns a residential and remodeling firm, Advanced Design Builders. He attended the UI for 3 years.

DI: What kinds of things do you hope to accomplish if you are elected?

I'd like to see a good housing program set on its way. It will not be a program that can be fully completed in a four-year term, but I certainly feel we can get a program off the ground. I can start examining and setting up mechanisms to assure that council decisions reflect all the concerns and issues of the citizens of Iowa City.

I will definitely be able to begin programs to meet our environmental concerns. We are required by law (to do this) already, but I think I will be able to move more quickly than the law demands in getting waste reduction and recycling programs enacted.

DI: How will your role in the Iowa City community translate into the role you hope to play on the council?

Graf: I have always been an activist. I have always stood up for people who have a difficult time being heard for some of the most minor and for some of the most major concerns that we face today. My willingness to tackle difficult issues, to be straightforward and honest in my opinions and views, and to fight for those views, are going to be my biggest assets on council.

Many council people end up being very careful of what they say and the actions they take until they get some sense of support from their constituents. I feel that people will elect me for my leadership, for the stands I take and will also respect my firm stance on various issues.

I've also been a person in the community whose activism has gotten other people involved in the process — people who have given up and felt they could not have an impact on their government.

If I was elected to council, I'm sure there would be more people who would take a greater role in their city government. My open accessibility for citizens will also bring about greater participation in our city government.

My activism to see that people always have a voice will easily be reflected in a council that will make referendums, petitions, and other such citizen actions unnecessary because they will have easy access to their council and their voice will be heard.

IS MARXISM DEAD?

With the crisis in the "socialist" countries and the decline of the far left in Europe and North America, writers have been busier than ever writing obituaries for Marx and Marxism.

Ahmed Shawki, editor of Socialist Worker, will argue that only Marxism provides a basis to understand these developments and to solve the problems confronting humanity today.

UI students discover 'D.C. life' as interns

'I miss strolling by the Capitol'

Margo Ely
Special to The Daily Iowan

Ann Glessner, a UI senior who had an internship at the National Wildlife Federation this past summer, is homesick. But not for her hometown. Rather, she longs to return to Washington, D.C.

"I miss strolling by the Capitol. I'll always have a special bond with Washington," said Glessner of her time in D.C.

Twenty UI students had internships in the nation's capital this summer, according to Cooperative Education Director Kathy Wyatt. The internship program started in 1978 in cooperation with the Washington Center, a non-profit internship placement agency in Washington.

"No one has said they regret the experience," Wyatt said. "You certainly can't get it in Iowa."

Senior Derek Murphy, who worked for the public relations firm of Chwat/Weigand Associates, said just living in the D.C. area was exciting and added to the internship experience.

"The daily aspects of reading The Washington Post, knowing what was happening on the Hill and with the president were enthralling," he said. "Some of the work I was involved with constituted taking an oath of confidentiality in order to protect the client. I had the opportunity to interact with congressional staff and members of the bureaucracy."

Glessner, who was involved with clean air issues and dealt with the grassroots operations of the organization, said she was involved "at the top level."

Senior Sue Watzke said she received more insight on issues than she could have gotten from simply being in a classroom.

Watzke worked for the Jamestown Foundation — a non-profit organization that helps high-level Soviet defectors resettle in America.

"I learned about Soviet issues, like Gorbachev's democratic reforms, from a defector's point of view," Watzke said.

"We filled in where the CIA left off," she explained. "We helped the defectors learn English, find apartments, get jobs and generally settle in the United States."

The experiences of interns during their time in Washington often leads to changes in career plans, as Matt Jacobsen learned.

"I learned there's a vast difference between private and public sector law," said the UI senior, who worked for the Federal Trade Commission in the Bureau of Consumer Protection.

"Before I left, I thought I'd want to work for a private or corporate law firm, but now I'd much rather work in some facet of public sector law," Jacobsen said. "The perks were great. I had a desk, a telephone, a dictaphone and my window overlooked the Smithsonian Art Museum and the U.S. Capitol."

The Washington Center provides interns with job placement, housing, academic classes and the opportunity to hear prominent speakers. Students in the program receive six to nine hours of credit for the 11-week term. They are required to work at least 35 hours a week, take one class and attend five of the six lectures provided by the Washington Center.

But not all the aspects of the program are popular with the participants.

"It was nice to go there in a structured program with added events, although the speaker series could have had more diversity," Watzke said.

"My academic class required lots of library time, which took away from other things I wanted to do," Jacobsen added.

In addition to paying regular UI tuition, participants pay a separate Washington Center fee.

"The Washington Center is definitely a cash outlet, but a well-structured program," Glessner commented.

Glessner also said she found the atmosphere of Washington, D.C., stimulating.

"There is a specialized, intelligent political mindset. There's so much going on every day," she said.

The most enjoyable aspect of the internship was being where the action is, Watzke said.

"Instead of just being a spectator of the news, I could be a participant," she said. "I could go to where the news was happening, like the Supreme Court or Lafayette Park," she said.

Watzke said she is now "very motivated to get out of here — to go back and continue the work I was doing."

Plug seals hole in ventilation system of Iowa nuclear plant

CEDAR RAPIDS (AP) — A large hole that could have permitted radiation to escape at Iowa's only nuclear power plant has been plugged, according to officials.

The 1-foot-by-12-foot hole was discovered in a ventilation system on September 20, but a spokesman for Iowa Electric Light and Power Co., which owns and operates the Duane Arnold power plant near Palo, said there were no known radioactive leaks from the hole.

The containment building around a nuclear plant is supposed to prevent radioactive releases into the environment, said IE spokesman Dick McGaughy. However, the hole in the vent would have let contaminated air from an accident escape into the atmosphere without first going through the proper filters, he said.

"The principal problem was that a vent duct, a sheet metal thing, was supposed to be anchored to a concrete wall and had come loose for a few feet, leaving a hole," he said. "So we put a good solid anchor there."

McGaughy said tests designed to check the ventilation system failed to detect the hole.

Russ Marabito, a spokesman for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission, said a nuclear plant in Monticello, Minn., was built by General Electric Co. from the same design as the Palo plant.

Botha: Namibian elections could be delayed

PRETORIA, South Africa — The South African army is on alert because of a reported guerrilla incursion into Namibia and next week's pre-independence elections could be delayed, Foreign Minister R.F. said Wednesday.

He told a news conference that U.N. military observers monitoring Namibia's transition from South African rule to independence reported the incursions from Angola in radio messages to each other and were too frightened to intervene. The U.N. force denied it.

Leaders of the South-West Africa People's Organization, which fought a 23-year bush war for independence, said none of their guerrillas were crossing the border. SWAPO is expected to get the most votes in a five-day election starting Tuesday for seats in an assembly that will draft a constitution.

A statement from the U.N. Transition Assistance Group released at U.N. headquarters in New York and in Windhoek, Namibia, said: "It has been established that the messages do not emanate from any UNTAG source."

"It continues to be the case that UNTAG is unable to confirm allegations that SWAPO PLAN combatants are present in southern Angola."

PLAN refers to the SWAPO fighting force, the People's Liberation Army of Namibia.

Former Salvadoran President gravely ill

WASHINGTON — Former Salvadoran President Jose Napoleon Duarte, suffering from cancer for the past 16 months, may have only a few days to live, an administration official said Wednesday.

Duarte, who completed a five-year term of office in June, was admitted to Walter Reed Army Hospital last Saturday. He was diagnosed with cancer of the liver in June 1988 and has undergone treatment at Walter Reed many times since then. The hospital had no comment on his condition.

At El Salvador's embassy, press aide Eduardo Torres said that Duarte arrived in Washington last Friday and "he's in bad shape."

The tentative plan is for Duarte to remain at the hospital for about two more days and then return to El Salvador, said the administration official, who asked not to be identified.

The official said President George Bush is expected to take part in a ceremony Thursday at the hospital in which a scholarship at Notre Dame University, Duarte's alma mater, will be set up in his name.

Retailer recalls rattles

WASHINGTON — A national toy retailer is voluntarily recalling 15,000 crib toy sets whose small parts may pose a potential choking hazard for young children, the Consumer Product Safety Commission said Wednesday.

Toys 'R' Us is recalling the Crib Pals "Play Shapes" sets because the small shapes fail to meet the commission's mandatory standard for baby rattles.

The sets are imported from Taiwan and marked SKN 157198. They contain four plastic pieces — one is a circle with a ball that rattles — in different shapes and colors.

The play sets, which were sold nationwide for ages 1 and up during 1988 and 1989 are considered a rattle and must satisfy a more stringent choking standard than items classified as toys.

The commission said consumers should take the sets away from children and return them to the nearest Toys 'R' Us store for a full refund.

Quake rocks Japan; 6,000 evacuated

TOKYO (AP) — A major earthquake rocked northeastern Japan early Thursday and more than 6,000 coastal residents were evacuated as a precaution against seismic-caused tidal waves, officials reported.

No casualties or major damage were reported, and the evacuation order was lifted after 3½ hours as the danger of such waves, called tsunamis, subsided.

The quake, centered 18 miles below the seabed and about 80 miles off Japan's main Honshu island, struck at 3:26 a.m. (1:26 p.m. Wednesday EST) with a magnitude estimated here at 7.1 on the Richter scale. That was the same magnitude as the October 17 quake that devastated the San Francisco Bay area.

Toshihara Kon, a fire department official in Iwate prefecture, about 300 miles northeast of Tokyo, said 6,165 people from six coastal towns and villages were evacuated to town halls and school gymnasiums after the quake.

Quoted . . .

Pan Am seeks proof of terrorist warning

WASHINGTON (AP) — Pan American World Airways is demanding documents and interviews at the CIA and other U.S. agencies seeking support for its contention that Israel and West Germany warned that Flight 103 had been targeted by terrorists days before it was blown from the sky over Scotland.

The airline also seeks "all documents" linking Flight 103 to a reported Syrian arms merchant whose name came up in the Iran-Contra affair.

Flight 103 was blown up last December with 259 people aboard. The airline is trying to defend itself against more than $300 million in lawsuits filed by families of victims of the explosion, in which 11 people on the ground were also killed.

The airline is demanding to interview personnel at U.S. intelligence and law enforcement agencies about "warnings from Mossad," an Israeli intelligence agency, "within the 24-36 hours before Dec. 21, 1988," that Flight 103 was to be hit by terrorists, according to subpoenas and notices of depositions filed in federal court.

Pan Am also wants information about any warnings from the BKA (West Germany's FBI) "within the 90 minutes before the scheduled departure from Frankfurt" of Flight 103 concerning "suspicious activities" that "appeared to be taking place" in the baggage loading area.

The airline in addition is subpoenaing any documents "concerning the activities" of Monzer Al-Kassar.

The congressional Iran-Contra committees found that the organization of Richard Secord had paid $1.5 million to Al-Kassar to buy weapons in 1985 and 1986. White House aide Oliver North had enlisted Secord as part of a secret operation to run arms to the U.S.-backed Nicaraguan Contra guerrillas.

At the 1987 congressional hearings, Rep. Jack Brooks (D-Texas) said Al-Kassar had been identified as a Syrian arms merchant whose associates included the Palestine Liberation Organization's Abu Abbas. Abbas is accused of masterminding the hijacking of the Italian cruise ship Achille Lauro, in which an American passenger died.

In its papers, filed in late September in New York and Washington, the airline is seeking "all documents" concerning "photographic and/or video surveillance . . . by the BKA . . . at Pan Am's baggage loading area at Frankfurt" on December 21.

Krenz calls protesting 'good sign'

MOSCOW (AP) — East German leader Egon Krenz called public protest at home a "good sign" Wednesday and said his country, rigidly orthodox until now, would follow President Mikhail Gorbachev on the path of reform.

Krenz said he and Gorbachev reached "total agreement on all questions we discussed," one of which was reform in the Soviet Union and East Germany.

Many of the hundreds of thousands marching for democracy in East Germany were showing support for "the renovation of socialism," he said.

"In this sense, I consider this a very good sign," Krenz told a news conference after meeting with Gorbachev on his first trip abroad since replacing hardliner Erich Honecker, his 77-year-old mentor, two weeks ago.

The remarks about protest were his most tolerant to date. Krenz's government has embarked on a program of dialogue with the opposition and more open dealings with the people, trying to gain their trust after decades of repression.

Honecker, who led the country for 18 years, was brought down by the flight of tens of thousands of East Germans, most of them skilled young workers, and weeks of mass protest.

East Germans continue leaving.

More than 500 showed up Wednesday at the West German Embassy in Prague, Czechoslovakia, seeking passage to the West.

ADN, the official East German news agency, said 8,000 East Germans had crossed the Czechoslovak border under the new policy of visa-free travel to the neighboring Communist country. Thousands of East Germans already have fled to West Germany through Czechoslovakia.

More signs of change were evident at home.

Officials in East Berlin acknowledged serious problems in the planned economy and indicated sweeping reforms may be in store to restructure industry and improve supplies. Quality consumer goods are rare in East Germany and many people wait 10 years for a car.

On a visit to West Germany, a city Communist Party chief even questioned the Berlin Wall, the symbol of East German repression built in 1961. Johannes Chemnitz of Neubrandenburg said the opening of borders by other Soviet bloc countries made the wall's significance "limited and illusory."

Krenz expressed the opposite view in Moscow, however, declaring that the wall "is not a border between two states . . . it's a border between two social systems."

EPA restricts radioactive emissions

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Environmental Protection Agency tightened controls Wednesday on radioactive releases from hospitals, nuclear power plants and other facilities, although officials said in many cases the tougher standards already are being met.

The new regulations were issued 10 years after the federal Clean Air Act called on the agency to establish emission standards for radioactive byproducts. Such releases already are controlled by the Nuclear Regulatory Commission.

William Rosenberg, the EPA's assistant administrator for air and radiation, said the long delay in the regulations reflects the difficulties the agency faces in reducing hazardous releases under current federal air quality laws.

He said some changes would shorten the process by years, such as the proposal by President George Bush to no longer require the EPA to make risk assessment for each type of release and, instead, establish broader requirements for industries to use the "best available" pollution control technology.

So far the EPA has only established regulations for eight of the hundreds of toxic or carcinogenic chemicals released into the air by industry and other sources.

The new regulations on radionuclide emissions cover nearly 7,000 facilities — most of them hospitals, laboratories, research facilities, atomic power plants, and uranium mines or processing plants — where atomic materials are used causing radioactive byproducts to be released into the air.

The EPA under the new standards requires such releases to pose no more than a 1-in-10,000 risk of individuals closest to a facility getting cancer from a lifetime of exposure. Although many facilities, including hospitals and atomic power plants, currently meet such standards others do not, said the EPA.

Express train derailment kills at least 41 in India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — An express train traveling from New Delhi to Calcutta derailed Wednesday, killing at least 41 people and injuring 75, news reports said.

Press Trust of India quoted Railway Minister Madhav Rao Scindia as saying that 36 bodies were removed from the wreckage and another five were being extricated.

It also reported passengers saying that 100 to 100 people were killed and 200 injured. United News of India news agency said more bodies could be trapped under the train's smashed cars.

Ten of the Toofan Express' 18 coaches derailed outside the railroad station at Sakaldaha, about 435 miles southeast of New Delhi, the spokesman said.

The cause of the derailment was not known, he said, speaking on condition of anonymity in keeping with government practice.

He said he did not know how many people were aboard the Toofan Express. Trains between New Delhi and Calcutta are usually crowded, carrying several hundred people.

Press Trust and United News of India said one of the derailed cars plunged into a water-filled ditch.

The agencies' initial reports said eight cars had fallen into the ditch. Press Trust said injured passengers were taken to the railway hospital.

LA Herald prints last edition

Newspaper shuts down after long-term financial losses

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Herald Examiner, once the nation's largest afternoon newspaper, announced Wednesday it would publish its last edition on Thursday.

The announcement was made in a tearful 1 p.m. meeting called in the newsroom by Robert Danzig, Hearst Corp. vice president and general manager of Hearst Newspapers, who spoke from atop the copy desk.

The closure was attributed to heavy losses and a lack of suitable buyers since the paper was formally placed for sale this past summer. Herald officials and analysts said the underlying causes were a bitter strike that began in 1967 combined with competitive problems shared by all afternoon papers.

The paper's 831 employees were told they would receive 60-days severance pay and help looking for work, with longtime staffers getting additional benefits.

Employees greeted the news with emotional embraces as editor Maxwell McCrohon urged them to "put out a hell of a last edition."

The newspaper had considered going to a tabloid format for seven years and probably a dozen prototypes were produced, but it remained a full-sized newspaper to the end.

Founded by William Randolph Hearst in 1903 as the Los Angeles Examiner, the Herald was put up for sale by the Hearst Corp. The company cited "intense pressure" from the Los Angeles Times, the city's dominant daily with five times the Herald's daily circulation.

The Herald, which switched to morning publication in 1981, also had to wrestle with increasingly successful suburban papers like The Orange County Register, based in Santa Ana, and the Los Angeles Daily News, based in the San Fernando Valley.

In its dying days, the newspaper covered local politics aggressively, breaking a number of stories on embattled Mayor Tom Bradley that embarrassed the Times. While it provided little staff-produced coverage of Washington or international affairs, its entertainment coverage, sports columnists and local reporting were highly regarded.

The Herald, which reached its highest circulation of 729,000 in 1967, had an average circulation of 238,392 daily and 183,122 Sunday for the six months ended March 31, compared with the Times' 1,119,840 daily and 1,423,310 Sunday, according to figures compiled to Audit Bureau of Circulations.

Those who had expressed interest in buying the paper included billionaires Kirk Kerkorian, Marvin Davis and Rupert Murdoch and the company that owns the Toronto Sun.

Panic attacks may add to suicides

BOSTON (AP) — People who suffer recurring panic attacks are 18 times more likely than people with no mental disorders to try to kill themselves, suggesting that this often-neglected disorder may be a major contributing cause of suicides, according to a study.

The researchers said their work should encourage emergency room doctors and other physicians who see people during panic attacks to offer treatment for the disorder.

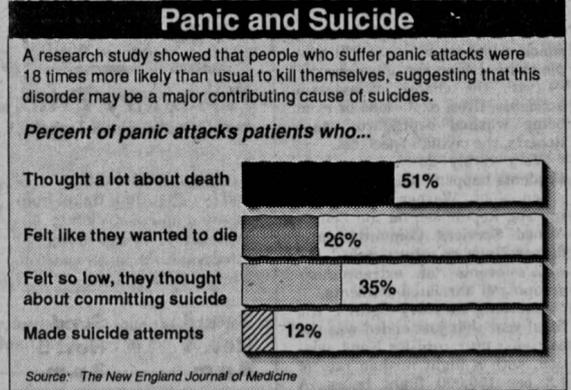

Victims often seek help for heart attacks, choking and other medical emergencies that mimic the symptoms of panic attacks. These people are often told "it's all in their head," rather than being referred to psychiatrists, said Dr. Myrna Weissman, who directed the study.

The latest finding that panic attacks are strongly linked to suicide attempts "points to a potentially serious complication of a common disorder that has been relatively neglected," said Dr. Kerin White of McLean Hospital in suburban Boston.

An estimated 1.5 percent, or more than 3 million, Americans have panic disorder, recurring bouts of intense fear that strike for no apparent reasons. Two to three times this many have occasional panic attacks.

The latest study, based on a large survey, found that 20 percent of people with panic disorder had attempted suicide, as had 12 percent of those with occasional panic attacks.

The researchers said that people plagued by panic attacks often think they are going crazy or dying. Many turn to alcohol, become afraid to leave their homes or grow depressed.

"We hope this alerts the non-psychiatric physician to the potential mortality and morbidity of panic disorder," said Weissman, a psychiatric epidemiologist at Columbia University. "If a patient comes into the cardiac clinic and has panic disorder, and heart attack is ruled out, we would like the physician to realize that the patient should be evaluated for panic disorder."

Just why people with panic attacks are unusually prone to suicide is unclear. Some believe that depression may play a role, although it does not entirely explain the increased risk.

"People who have panic attacks for many years become demoralized," said Dr. Gerald L. Klerman of Cornell Medical School, a co-author of the study. "They stay at home and withdraw socially and become depressed. We know that depressive feelings are associated with suicide."

The study was published in Thursday's New England Journal of Medicine, along with an editorial by Dr. Peter Reich of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

He called the findings "quite remarkable" and said they deserve widespread attention because they "may provide general physicians with new opportunities to prevent suicide by recognizing and treating panic disorder."

House steps up spending in drug war

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House on Wednesday voted to step up spending in the war against drugs by almost $3.2 billion, $900 million more than what President George Bush requested when he launched the campaign almost two months ago.

The money represents the major congressional contribution to the war against drugs this year, and lawmakers said it was urgently needed to combat the scourge of illicit narcotics.

"It's destroying our morals, its destroying our lives," Appropriations Committee Chairman Jamie Whitten (D-Miss.) declared as the House approved the funding increase on a voice vote.

The measure was included in a transportation money bill fashioned by a House-Senate conference committee, and the overall measure must be acted upon by the Senate before going to the president's desk for his signature.

The measure would add almost $3.2 billion in spending to the war against drugs, bringing the total to $8.8 billion for the fiscal year that began October 1.

Contained in the new funding package is $1 billion for the federal prison system for buildings, $308 million for justice assistance block grants and $727 million for programs involving alcohol, drug abuse and mental health.

Everything in the package except for a few details was worked out between the administration and Senate negotiators in September, and the measure moved easily through the House.

A number of non-money portions of the anti-drug package were dropped in the conference committee, with House members saying the Senate should never have put them in a money bill.

They ranged from requiring states to have drug programs to laying the groundwork for stepped up aid to Andean nations. House leaders said lawmakers would consider them later.

The sole snag in House action on the bill came Tuesday when Rep. William Frenzel (R-Minn.) blocked an immediate vote, saying the measure violated the budget act. Sponsors retreated to the House Rules Committee and obtained permission for action on the bill despite that objection.

Under the plan, spending would be offset by cuts in other programs, leading sponsors to call it "deficit neutral." They brushed aside Frenzel's complaint that the levels were still too high.

"We can have a balanced budget and a whole lot of other things at the expense of our economy and our whole country," said Whitten.

Rep. Bill Alexander (D-Ark.) said the important thing was to make the money available.

its capacity." But Rojas-Cardona maintained Smith invalidated the petitions for the wrong reasons.

"She doesn't want me on LASA because she doesn't like me," Rojas-Cardona said. "If a student wants to get on LASA and she doesn't like the way they dress, should she have the right to discriminate against them?"

"I was discriminated against under the (UI Student Association) Constitution, and because of this I will file a complaint against LASA through CAC," Rojas-Cardona said.

The complaint would launch an investigation led by McKinley.

"The investigation will be carried out according to the constitution. A committee will be appointed," McKinley said. "Innocent until proven guilty is the assumption we will be working under."

Smith said she knows of Rojas-Cardona's plans to file charges against her, and added that she has done nothing wrong.

"My actions were totally indiscriminatory. I checked the petitions of the new members and the incumbent members of the congress," Smith said. "Each of the invalidated petitions contained between five and 11 invalid signatures.

"It appeared that Pepe grabbed a bunch of petitions and had a bunch of his friends sign them, then filled in names at the tops of the petitions," Smith said.

But Rojas-Cardona said he is disturbed that the 20 people were officially accepted as LASA members, but that membership was later denied.

"If (Smith) was too lazy to check my petition and invalidate it when she received it, then that was her fault, and she has no right to kick me off of something I was already a part of," Rojas Cardona said.

Smith said she was following policy in making the new applicants members.

"It has been LASA policy for years to accept a petition on good faith — pending verification," Smith said. "Pepe's even told me his motives are to badger LASA until I lay off CAC."

LASA controls six of the CAC seats.

The ultimate solution to the problem, McKinley said, is to get more students involved in student government.

"We need to get some new blood," McKinley said.

tor, according to Soloski. This alternative process should appeal to plaintiffs for two reasons, he said.

Past libel cases have rarely produced rulings on the truth of a story, and the press wins about 90 percent of these cases, according to Soloski.

News organizations stand to benefit from this procedure because it avoids intrusions into their editorial process, which may occur during a trial. In addition, both sides avoid a time-consuming and expensive trial, he added.

Funding from the Markle Foundation will extend the life of the Libel Dispute Resolution Program by 15 months, through December 1990. During this time, the researchers can handle additional cases and collect more information on attitudes and opinions regarding libel and libel litigation, Soloski said.

The ILRP's new study on libel law as a source of journalistic standards comes 25 years after a significant Supreme Court libel ruling. The high court ruled then that plaintiffs must prove the news organization recklessly or negligently published false information about the plaintiff.

"That decision seemed to provide the news media with enormous protection from libel suits," Cranberg said. "But one of the undesirable consequences is that the courts must scrutinize press conduct to make judgments about whether they were at fault in their coverage."

Journalism organizations believe such standards would violate their First Amendment rights, he said.

"From those cases, there is evolving a body of court-related journalistic standards that can be made applicable to the press in general," Cranberg said.

The ILRP will attempt to document the creation of such standards and to explore the ramifications by examining all reported press libel cases from 1964 to the present, Cranberg said.

on an aircraft carrier crashed into the USS Lexington in the Gulf of Mexico on Sunday, killing him and four others on the deck of the huge ship.

The accidents bear down on the Navy at a time when the service has been under intense scrutiny for its controversial report on the April explosion aboard the USS Iowa in which 47 sailors were killed.

Critics have found fault with the Navy's report, which concluded that gunner's mate Clayton Hartwig was the "most likely" person to have used an explosive device to touch off the fireball in the ship's 16-inch guns.

On Sunday, a Washington Post editorial accused the service of having "not a shred of evidence" to back up its claim against Hartwig. Meanwhile, the General Accounting Office and congressional aides are looking into the Navy's investigation.

The Navy has 599,000 full-time personnel and some 566 ships — and usually a third of those are at sea for training operations. "Potentially, the Navy has thousands of opportunities to kill people every day on any given carrier — with the chance of aviation accidents, fires, explosions or even being washed overboard," said Roberts, the civilian specialist.

"Very rarely do we see these accidents happen," she said. Sen. John Warner of Virginia, ranking Republican on the Senate Armed Services Committee, and former Navy secretary, called the week's events "an extraordinary grouping of unrelated accidents."

According to Navy figures, the fiscal year that just ended was the best year on record for Navy aviation, with a flight mishap rate of 1.8 per 100,000 flight hours. A mishap is a death or major loss of aircraft.

According to the Pentagon's annual report on active-duty military deaths, 44 sailors fell overboard and drowned or were lost at sea from Oct. 1, 1979, to Sept. 30, 1988. Over that same time, 201 lives were lost in aircraft lost or crashed at sea.

percent of the prevailing minimum wage for their three months in the work force. The subminimum could be paid for an additional three months provided the youths were in certified training programs.

Beneficiaries of the compromise will be the roughly four million Americans who, according to government figures, work at the minimum wage. Congressional researchers say two-thirds of them are women and between 25 percent and 33 percent of them are heads of households. Eleven states have laws mandating minimum wages higher than the current federal floor; a few of them already are at the $4.25 level.

The agreement on the subminimum, an anathema to organized labor that was demanded by Bush, cleared the way for the compromise and was the focus of most of the House debate.

That debate was short and subdued, with lawmakers from both parties finding fault with the compromise; most Democrats said the increase was too small, while conservative Republicans said there should be no boost and that matter no minimum wage.

But gone was the acrimony and political posturing that characterized the fight just months ago over a bill Bush ultimately vetoed and the bitter debates on the subject during each of the eight years of the Reagan administration.

"This will have to be our best, our pitiful best," said Rep. Joseph M. Gaydos (D-Pa.). "We're not really being fair to those eight million Americans who work at the minimum wage."

Voting in favor of the compromise were 247 Democrats and 135 Republicans.

that is the Sandinistas' main election rival.

Ortega declared in a live nationwide radio broadcast, "We have the responsibility for defending the lives of Nicaraguans. Therefore we can't allow assassinations to be committed."

His announcement was a blow to the Central American peace process and the August 7 agreements that called for disbanding the Contras in exchange for moves toward democratization in Nicaragua.

"The Sandinistas are looking for excuses not to hold elections," Contra commander Enrique Bermudez told The Associated Press in Tegucigalpa, Honduras.

The Contras were not a party to the peace accords and Contra field commanders have said they will not abide by them.

Bermudez said the Contras would continue to observe the cease-fire except to defend themselves. He said he recognized renewed U.S. military aid was unlikely, but called it "the only option."

At U.N. headquarters in New York, Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar summoned Nicaraguan Ambassador Alejandro Serrano Caldera to strongly protest Ortega's decision.

"We do not agree with Ortega's decision... because it jeopardizes the peace process that Nicaragua was following," said President Oscar Arias of Costa Rica, who won the 1987 Nobel Peace Prize for spearheading efforts for peace.

Arias' press secretary, Jorge Urbina, later said "the government of Costa Rica is profoundly disappointed by this decision."

Ortega said his government had made every effort to promote democracy in the region.

Iowa linebacker Melvin Foster, left, circles around a Michigan State lineman in a game with the Spartans earlier in the season.

Foster 'pads' linebacker slot

Erica Weiland
 The Daily Iowan

Things have changed since Melvin Foster's younger days. "At the beginning, I didn't even like football," Foster said. "After a while, I saw everybody else playing, and I thought it was just the thing to do. So I started playing."

But despite his early dislike for the game, Foster kept playing.

Now he is Iowa's leading tackler with 75 total tackles this season, 22 unassisted and 53 assisted.

Taking into account the conditions Foster played under as a youngster, though, it's no wonder he didn't like it.

But after he learned about some key equipment for the sport, he began to enjoy it more.

"We played what they call street ball where you didn't have any pads on; you just tackled whoever had the football," the 6-foot-3, 240-pound junior said. "I didn't like that because I was starting to get all these marks all over my arms and my legs. And then I found out that you can obtain some padding — shoulder pads, knee pads, thigh pads. And you could pretty much try to keep from getting hurt."

Since putting on that padding, Foster has gotten a lot more out of football than he ever imagined — namely a college education.

"I didn't even have college in the back of my head," Foster said. "It was always junior high, high school, then go out and get a job and work somewhere; get that high school diploma . . . I really didn't feel like I was qualified to play Division I football anywhere."

But even if the Houston, Texas, native didn't think he was good enough to play Division I ball, many people did.

Foster was rated the No. 1 high school player in Texas in 1985, and was named a USA Today and Parade Magazine first-team all-American. Parade also tabbed him the nation's top high school linebacker.

Despite his qualifications, Foster was redshirted in his first year at Iowa, which proved to be a difficult time for him.

"My first year wasn't what I expected," Foster said. "I thought I could come here and help right away, but I had to realize within myself that there were some things I was lacking that I needed to obtain."

The next year, he tallied 49 tackles. And in 1988, even though he missed two games, Foster recorded 65 stops.

Although last year was a good one, Foster believes his time to really shine is yet to come, and said he has instilled within himself a philosophy to make sure he is as good as he can be.

"At the beginning of the season, my goal was just to come and play a solid Melvin Foster season," Foster said. "And that means the way I played back at home. If it happens, then fine. If it doesn't happen, look back, evaluate yourself, wonder why it didn't happen, why you didn't have a particularly good game and try to improve on it the following weekend. That's what I went into the season doing, and it's working out for me."

"I feel that I have yet to play a complete game. But when I do, whatever team it's against, watch out!"

Iowa's Patton is a leader without troops in 1989

Erica Weiland
 The Daily Iowan

Because of the graduation of some key performers, Iowa men's swimming coach Glenn Patton knows this could be a difficult season. But there have been some surprises already in the preseason.

"We're suffering from a lack of athletes," Patton said. "We just had a great turnover in our team. We had a lot of people graduate last year and (Iowa 100-yard freestyle record-holder) Steve Grams transferred to USC. We thought (UCLA transfer) Mike Johnson would be ruled eligible, but he was ruled ineligible (because of transfer rules) . . . Then our top freshman, Scott Townsend, dropped out of school and joined the Marines last week."

"(Distance freestyler) Erik Bacon was out with mono and just started coming back. Now he's out with pink eye," Patton continued. "He's just starting to come back from that. (Freestyler) Stewart Carroll has been out with jaundice. So our team is really being challenged to pick up the slack."

In the past, the Hawkeyes were led by a good sprint corps. That has always been a factor in the team's success since most dual and national meets are geared toward the faster races.

But with the loss of five key sprinters, Patton said that will be the area hurting them the most.

"Our sprint group is really going to be challenged to step forward and accept some of the burden from that loss," Patton said. "A college meet is very sprint oriented; that's why we've always tried to have a good sprint group . . . And we don't have the depth the sprint corps have had. On swimming and diving

paper, it's our weakest sprint group we've had in years."

The sprints will be led by senior Todd Kellner, who has recorded career bests of 20.29 seconds in the 50 free and 45.02 in the 100 free.

Iowa's strongest area this season will be middle- and long-distance freestyle, led by the Hawkeyes' top swimmer, Artur Wojdat.

A native of Poland, Wojdat led Iowa to its eighth-place finish at the NCAA Championships last year with first-place titles in the 200 and 500 frees. His 4:12.24 in the 500 was a new U.S. Open and NCAA record.

Wojdat also has a good background in international competition, having won the bronze medal for Poland in the 400-meter freestyle at the Seoul Olympics and finishing first and second in the 400- and 200-meter freestyles at the European Championships last summer in West Germany.

All-Americans Bacon and Tomasz Gawronski are also accomplished freestylers and will add depth to the distance corp.

"(Graduate assistant) Brad Flood is coaching that group," Patton said. "He's done a great job with that group, and they're in solid shape."

Breaststroke, Patton said, is also in good shape this year with Rob Leyshon, the school record-holder in the 200-yard breaststroke, and Doug Mencl, who owns the Iowa record in the 100 breaststroke, both returning.

They are backed up by senior Mark Kohmetscher and freshman Brad Gaeth.

The butterfly is another area up in the air this season.

Kellner will be at the helm of the squad in the 100 fly, with freshmen Steve Mayes and Boris Bachmann behind him.

The status of the diving squad was also somewhat of a surprise for Patton since all-American senior Tomasz Rossa is still recovering from an injured knee.

Rossa, who competed in the Seoul Olympics for his native Poland, has been working out with the diving squad, but can only execute dives from the end of the board. He hasn't been able to do a complete

Frank Robinson

Robinson pegged tops in AL

NEW YORK (AP)—Frank Robinson, who guided the Baltimore Orioles to one of the greatest turnarounds in baseball history, was selected American League Manager of the Year on Wednesday.

Robinson took the Orioles from last place in the AL East with a 54-107 record in 1988 to second place and an 87-75 mark this year, only two games behind Toronto. It was the third-best one-season turnaround ever.

He got 23 of 28 first-place votes and 125 points on a 5-3-1 basis from a panel chosen by the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Cito Gaston, who managed the Blue Jays to first place in the AL East, finished second with three first-place votes and 62 points.

Tony La Russa, who guided Oakland to the AL pennant and World Series title, was third with two first-place votes and 51 points.

California's Doug Rader finished fourth with 13 points and Kansas City's John Wathan got one point.

Robinson was also The Associated Press' Manager of the Year.

The Orioles, rebuilt this year around a mostly rookie pitching staff and only one proven star, shortstop Cal Ripken, Sr., almost became the first team to go from last place to first in one season.

After last year's miserable showing, Baltimore was expected to finish in the basement of the AL East again this season. Instead, the Orioles moved into first place early in the season and stayed there for much of the year, before being overtaken by the Blue Jays.

Robinson, a Hall of Famer who played with the Orioles from 1966 to 1971, was promoted from coach to manager in 1988 after Baltimore began the year with six straight losses under Cal Ripken, Sr. They went on to lose their first 21 games, the worst start in baseball history.

This year, the youthful Orioles played like confident veterans, and Robinson — impatient and temperamental in his previous stints as manager — led the transformation.

Women's tennis team tries to change history

Rick Gabriel
 The Daily Iowan

History. It's tough to change, but the Iowa women's tennis team will attempt to do just that in Madison, Wis., starting today at the ITCA Rolex Midwest Regional tournament.

"It's always been a tough tournament for us," coach Micki Schillig said. "We've never done well there before. I think the farthest we ever got was the second round."

Madeleine Kooreman and Liz Canzoneri will be competing in singles competition for the Hawkeyes. Participants were selected on the basis of fall records and will be playing for a position in the National Indoors Tournament. The tournament features the top players in the entire Midwest region. Rhonda Fox is the first alternate and Andrea Calvert the fourth.

Kooreman will also get a chance to play doubles, as she qualified with partner Catherine Wilson. The team of Canzoneri and Tracey Donnelly also qualified, but will be unable to compete because of injuries to Donnelly.

"I'm really disappointed that we won't get to play doubles," Canzoneri said. "We're a good team and I think we could have done well."

Canzoneri, making her third trip to the regionals, now will be able to concentrate solely on her singles, which she is approaching with a different attitude.

"I'm going in with a different frame of mind," she said. "In the past, I've put a lot of pressure on myself. This year I've got the attitude to just go for it."

Schillig said that she expects this year's participants to do well. She said that they have been practicing hard and they all seem pretty psyched.

Former Nebraska adviser testifies on school records

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—A former University of Nebraska adviser who claims she was fired after investigating student athletes' records, said Wednesday she found irregularities on at least one football player's high school transcript.

The transcript had the wrong race and had handwritten senior year grades on an otherwise computerized form, Mary Jane Visser told a U.S. District Court jury.

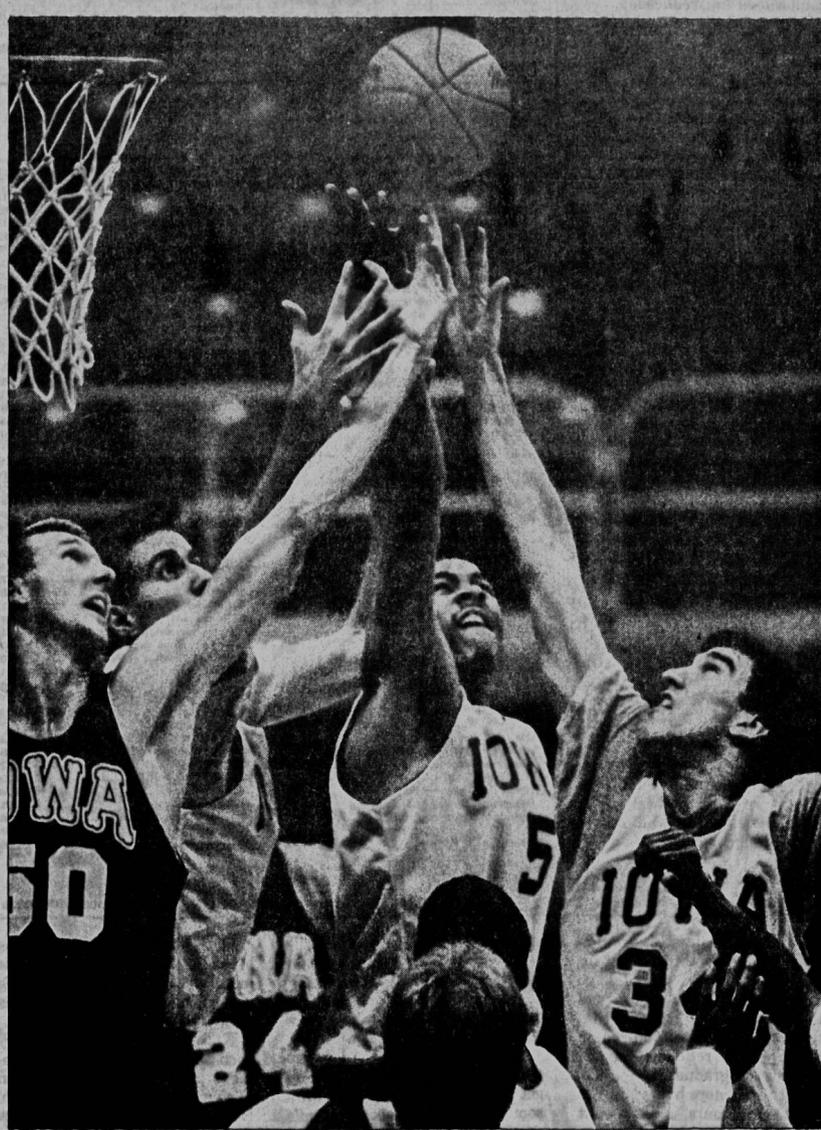

The 19-year university employee testified in the second day of a trial on her lawsuit against the university. The trial resumed Wednesday after a one-day break.

Visser said she brought that transcript and other problems with student athletes' academic performance to the attention of her superiors as well as the Faculty Senate because she was concerned for student athletes.

"I really kind of felt sorry for them. Each semester the same athletes files would be on my desk," she said. "I noticed that their grades were just below average."

"There they are, being thrown in with the cream of the crop and having a difficult time. It was just destroying their self-image," Visser said.

She testified that her concern dated back to at least 1985.

Up in arms

Hawkeyes post upset

The Daily Iowan
The Iowa volleyball team defeated 12th ranked Minnesota Wednesday night 13-15, 10-15, 15-10, 15-9, 15-12 in Big Ten conference action at Williams Arena in Minneapolis.
"They played super," Iowa coach Ruth Nelson said. "I knew if we could get to the fifth game, we could win."

Golf team receives highest ranking ever

The Daily Iowan
The NCAA women's golf rankings released Wednesday have tabbed the Iowa team 25th nationally, its highest ranking ever.
The ranking is especially significant to the Hawkeyes, as it represents their improvement from last year at this time, when they faced their lowest ranking ever, 43rd, on a similar poll.
Georgia was slotted as the No. 1 team, followed by Tulsa, San Jose State, Arizona State and Arizona. The only other team from the Midwest region in the top 25 was Indiana, ranked 16th overall.
Iowa coach Diane Thomason said she was happy with her team's ranking, adding the Hawkeyes are usually in 35th or 36th place nationally after the fall season.
"I'm real excited," Thomason said. "We've moved up ten or eleven spots from where we've been in the past. I think it's a good summary of how the fall season went."
The Hawkeyes have completed their fall schedule, and will resume competition again next March at a tournament in Arizona.

Quake puts damper on park plans

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Voter support for a new downtown baseball park appears to have been badly damaged by the Oct. 17 earthquake, according to a new poll released Wednesday.
The ballpark measure, which is on the city's ballot next Tuesday, was trailing by 49 percent to 40 percent in the poll conducted for the San Francisco Examiner on Sunday and Monday. Eleven percent remained undecided.
Before the 7.1 quake that caused over $2 billion damage in San Francisco, the two sides in Proposition P were in a virtual dead heat, according to Steve Teichner and Associates of Los Angeles, which conducted the polls.

Illini not looking past Iowa

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. (AP) — Illinois nose tackle Moe Gardner feels right at home on any football field — even Kinnick Stadium at Iowa City.
"You have to play good football wherever you are and whoever you play," said Gardner, whose Illini continue their quest for the Big Ten championship Saturday at Iowa.
"We're going into Iowa with the same feeling we had when we went to Michigan State," said Gardner, who is not concerned about road games.
But, Illinois Coach John Mackovic said Tuesday the Illini need to regain that "real gusto" as they prepare for Iowa.
"We have to play better," said Mackovic, noting that his team seemed to lack that extra enthusiasm in its 32-9 victory over Wisconsin last Saturday. "There can't be any let-downs."
Mackovic has his players seeing pink this week — the color of the visitor's dressing room at Iowa. That shade apparently was selected because it is thought to be a calming color — one that would lull opponents into a passive mood.
Other coaches have tried to mask it with paper, but "we might as well get used to it," said Mackovic.
So, there are "think pink" signs and even a pink flamingo — Illinois' version of Herky, the Iowa mascot — made by Mackovic's daughter.
The eighth-ranked Illini, 6-1, meet Iowa, 4-3, at 2:30 p.m. Saturday.
Mackovic said Iowa, 2-2 in the conference, is playing its best football of the year.
"We have to be sharp this week," he said.

Baseball names deputy commissioner
NEW YORK (AP) — Stephen Greenberg, the son of Hall of Famer Hank Greenberg and an agent for many major league players, was appointed baseball's deputy commissioner on Wednesday.
Greenberg, the former managing partner of the Los Angeles law firm Manhatt, Phelps, Rothenberg & Phillips, will take office on Jan. 1 and also have the title of baseball's chief operating officer.
Greenberg, who played minor league baseball before becoming a lawyer, is a graduate of Yale University. Commissioner Fay Vincent is a graduate of Yale Law School and his predecessor, A. Bartlett Giamatti, was the former president of Yale.
"I'd like to think I bring a lifetime of involvement in baseball to the job," Greenberg said. "I grew up in a household of baseball."

Tennis
The Hawkeye women will not participate as a team again until the middle of January, when they compete in the Gophers Doubles Invitational in Minneapolis. Schillig said that the team will continue to practice, perhaps only four times a week, and look to improve for the spring season.
Improvement may be difficult though, as the team finished the fall season with a 3-0 mark in dual meets and three strong tournament showings, something that pleasantly surprised Schillig.
"I thought it might take the fall to get all our new people oriented," she said. "But they practiced hard and deserved all the success they had."

Swimming
dive with a hurdle since May.
And according to diving coach Bob Rydzy, it is uncertain as to when Rossa will be able to perform up to standard.
"I don't know when he'll be ready," Rydzy said. "But we're not going to push him. He's got a great career internationally, and we don't want to mess that up."
Out of the five divers on the men's team, only Rossa and junior Jamie Morrow have had experience at the collegiate level. The three freshmen, Rydzy said, will be using this year to adjust.

Foster
academics are also a high priority. But, it hasn't always been that way.
What made Foster more serious about getting his degree?
"It was because of all the play that (the media) had about athletes which showed (Iowa) had 51 percent of athletes that graduate," Foster said. "I don't know if that's good or bad, it's just that I said I don't want to be the number that doesn't get my number."
"I feel like right now I play on Saturday and I've got bruises all over me, and I want something for it when I finish," he continued. "The best thing to get for it is saying that you did go through this university . . . and you were able to obtain that paper. And when you come around here for reunions, you can say that you graduated, not 'No, I've got three more hours,' or 'I've got six more hours.' I don't want to have to say that."

Foster added because of the small percentage of professional football players that actually get playing time, it is far more important to get a degree.
"You can get that paper, and that's a promise to you for the rest of your life," Foster said. "I finally woke up and realized that . . . Next December I'll be graduating, and then I'll take it from there."

"Football only lasts so long, so you might as well go ahead and get that paper. Then if there's some afterlife for football, that's great. But if there's not, then I might as well work for a living."
And on top of everything else, Foster is a nice guy.
Scott Reed, an Iowa senior from Marion, found that out firsthand.

At the beginning of Christmas break in 1986, Reed and his mom, Mary Kay, were taking some of his things home from his room at Slater residence hall.
Walking out of the dorm, they each had armfuls of stereo equipment and other things when Foster happened to see them. Even though he did not know Reed, Foster took the things from Mary Kay and carried them out to the car for her.
"It was really nice because he didn't have to do it," Mary Kay said. "It was a side of him that most people don't get to see."

Cup runneth over with talent

HALLANDALE, Fla. (AP) — D. Wayne Lukas will play another strong hand in the Breeders' Cup, but the two aces will be played by Shug McGaughey and Charlie Whittingham — against each other.

Eleven of the 83 horses entered for the seven races on Saturday at Gulfstream Park, which will be worth $10 million, are trained by Lukas, who has two favorites and three second choices in the early line.

Team Lukas, however, has had to play second fiddle in media attention this week to Easy Goer, trained by McGaughey, and Sunday Silence, trained by Whittingham.

These two 3-year-old colts will renew their Triple Crown rivalry in the $3 million Classic.

Easy Goer is the 6-5 early favorite in the 1 1/4-mile race, which drew an eight-horse field, and Sunday Silence is next at 2-1.

Either one would clinch Horse of the Year with a victory.

Easy Goer has won five Grade I stakes since finishing second to Sunday Silence in the Kentucky Derby and Preakness. Sunday Silence followed his runner-up finish in the Belmont Stakes with a second in the Swaps at Hollywood Park before winning the Super Derby in his last start Sept. 24 at Louisiana Downs.

There has been much speculation about how a change of jockeys will affect Sunday Silence. Chris McCarron will replace Pat Valenzuela, the colt's regular rider, who has been suspended for 60 days after testing positive for cocaine.

"I don't think it will have any affect on Sunday Silence," Whittingham said Wednesday at the post-position draw. "It's harder on Valenzuela than it is on the horse."

The Seven Races

The sixth running of the Breeders' Cup to be held at:

Hallandale, Florida

AP/Carl Fox

The winner's share in the Classic, will be $1.35 million, of which 10 percent will go to the jockey.

McGaughey and Whittingham each have one Breeders' Cup victory.

McGaughey won the Distaff with Personal Ensign last year when Easy Goer was upset by Is It True in the Juvenile. Whittingham won the Classic in 1987 with Ferdinand.

Lukas has posted nine Breeders' Cup victories with 48 starters in 21 races in the first five years of the series. He also has picked up pieces of purses with nine seconds, 4 thirds, 2 fourths, 3 fifths and 5 sixths, and his earnings stand at $6.8 million. No other trainer is close to those figures.

Of his prospects on Saturday, Lukas said, "I think our best shot is Grand Canyon, then Stella Madrid and Steinlen. Grand Canyon, a winner of the 1 1-16-mile Norfolk Oct. 15 at Santa Anita, is rated the 4-1 second choice in the $1 million Juvenile, also at 1 1-16-miles. The 5-2 favorite in the 12-horse field is the Ogden Mills Phipps' entry of Adjudicating and Rhythm, the McGaughey-trained colts, who ran 1-2 in the one-mile Champagne on Oct. 14 at Belmont Park.

Stella Madrid, a winner of three straight stakes, is the 5-2 choice in the $1 million Juvenile Fillies, which drew a 12-horse field. Lukas also will saddle Special Happening and Voodoo Lily in the 1 1-16-mile race, but his three fillies won't be coupled in the betting because of different owners.

Steinlen, who has won four straight stakes, is the 4-1 second pick in the $1 million Mile on the grass. The 9-5 favorite in the 13-horse field is Zilzal, an unbeaten British-based 3-year-old colt.

Lukas's other favorite is On The Line, who is 7-2 choice over 13 rivals in the $1 million Sprint, even though the 5-year-old horse has lost his last two starts.

His other second choice, at 5-2, is Eugene V. Klein's entry of Open Mind, Winning Colors and Wonders Delight in $1 million, 1 1-8-mile Distaff. Lukas also will saddle Joseph Allen's Highest Glory. The 6-5 pick in the 10-horse field is Argentine-bred Bayakoa.

Lukas's other starter will be Slew City Slew, who is a 20-1 shot in the Classic.

The only race in which Lukas will not be represented is the $2 million Turf over 1 1/2 miles.

PATAGONIA® FLANNEL

Patagonia uses Portuguese cotton flannel for its shirts - without qualification the best flannel in the world. It's fine, tightly constructed and brushed to a baby-soft nap. All Patagonia shirts are cotton twill, the weave with a distinctive diagonal rib. The shirts are roomy, finished to dress-shirt specifications and have flat-felled seams. The final test of a fine flannel shirt - the plaid on the pocket matches perfectly the plaid on the shirt.

Court rules for NFL in union case

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The NFL won a major victory over its players union Wednesday when a federal appeals court ruled that the free agency clauses of its 1982 labor agreement can't be challenged as antitrust violations just because negotiations are at an impasse.

The 2-1 decision by the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals left the league pushing for new negotiations. The union, meanwhile, said it would appeal or — in an extreme scenario — push for decertification that would leave the NFL without labor antitrust protection.

The decision involved the antitrust suit filed after the unsuccessful conclusion of the 24-day players strike.

Last year, Judge David Doty, presiding over the suit filed in Minneapolis, ruled that an "impasse" in bargaining existed and as such, the league's labor antitrust exemption no longer existed. Doty also suggested that he believed the union would prevail at trial.

But the trial was put off indefinitely by Wednesday's split decision.

The majority consisted of Judges John R. Gibson and Roger L. Wollman, who upheld the position of the NFL Management Council, argued last May by Paul Tagliabue, who was elected the NFL's new commissioner last week.

They held that because the system of free-agent compensation was the result of a collective bargaining agreement, it didn't constitute an antitrust violation.

"In sum," they wrote, "we hold that the antitrust laws are inapplicable under the circumstances of this case as the ... exemption extends beyond impasse."

"This contractual provision was spawned in collective bargaining, and as it is the product of a labor relationship, we cannot agree that it should be considered a violation of antitrust laws."

But Senior Circuit Judge Gerald W. Heaney said in dissent that the ruling gave the owners too much power.

"Today, the majority permits the owners to violate the antitrust laws indefinitely," Heaney wrote. "Because such a result is not justified by the labor laws, I dissent."

Flag football crowns first champion

Jay Nanda
The Daily Iowan

One champion has been crowned in the intramural flag football league while, in other divisions, some playoff teams marched closer to the top.

In the women's dorm/independent division, River City Sports continued their dominance by destroying Kathy's Killers in the title game. The final score was 57-13, culminating a season in which River City outscored their opponents 184-19.

River City now awaits the champion in the women's sorority division, which is down to two teams. Zeta Tau Alpha shutout Chi Omega 6-0, setting up a rematch with Delta Zeta in the finals next Sunday.

When the two teams last met, Delta Zeta came away with a decisive 34-6 victory. And, things don't get any easier this time around for Zeta Tau Alpha as they would have to defeat Delta Zeta twice in the double-elimination tournament to win the championship.

Intramurals

The men's playoffs continued as well.

Half of the final four in the independent division has been determined as The Franchise and Dionysus advanced. The Franchise defeated Delts II 38-32 while Dionysus got past previously unbeaten Ex-Lance by a score of 27-7. The Franchise and Dionysus will play each other on Sunday.

Phi Kappa Psi moved on to the finals in the social fraternity division with a 34-22 win over Sigma Chi. They will now take on the winner of Delta Tau Delta and Kappa Sigma for all the marbles Sunday afternoon at 2:00 p.m. by the field hockey field.

In the men's residence hall division, Flight Nine trounced Hillcrest Homies 40-7 and will take on Backstabbers, who defeated Bad Boys 27-14.

DeVoe begins without starters

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Don DeVoe ran the Florida Gators through a fast-paced first practice Wednesday, although two starters from last year's squad stayed away.

Senior center Dwayne Schintzius and junior forward Livingston Chatman didn't attend the team meeting or the first practice session with DeVoe, who was named interim head coach Tuesday after the sudden retirement of Norm Sloan.

"They're not here because they elected not to be here today,"

DeVoe said. "I'm not surprised, but a little disappointed."

He said would attempt to talk to the two players later Wednesday.

"If the team wants to get better, we need the leaders here," DeVoe said.

DeVoe, 47, who was forced to resign as coach at Tennessee at the end of last season, met with the team and then immediately launched into practice.

At a news conference, DeVoe said he hoped to be offered the job on a permanent basis.

"I'm qualified for this job and I hope I'm qualified for the full-time position," said DeVoe, who was given a six-month contract that includes $60,000 in salary, $15,000 for television appearances, a living allowance of $10,000 and a car.

"The University of Florida should have the best basketball coach it can get and I'm hopeful I can be that basketball coach. I'm number one today," DeVoe said.

DeVoe said he would run the program by himself until he can hire some assistant coaches.

"They're not here because they elected not to be here today. I'm not surprised, but a little disappointed."

New league of veterans takes off

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—The boys of fall took the field Wednesday for the inauguration of a new league, one dedicated to the proposition that you never grow too old for a head-first slide, a chaw of tobacco and the smell of a leather glove.

Rick Horrow, the president of the Senior Professional Baseball Association, was racing from one opening day event to another when he paused to reflect on the chances of his league that features some of baseball's big names from the past.

"When these guys told me at the beginning of camp, they'd all go in with their spikes up, slide head first ... the managers said they'd win all 72 games, I was skeptical," said Horrow, a Harvard lawyer.

"After watching today's game I have no doubts that we've created the boys of fall."
— Rick Horrow

"After watching today's game I have no doubts that we've created the boys of fall."

The new league is for players 35 and older, although some exceptions have been made. The 72-game season will run three months with eight teams, all based in Florida and with rosters almost exclusively of former major leaguers.

Tickets for the games will cost between $4 to $10 and they will be played at stadiums often used for spring training. But some players were grumbling with the facilities.

"This is like a little league stadium," carped St. Lucie Legends outfielder Bobby Bonds, referring to Pompano Beach's Municipal Stadium.

Dick Williams, manager of the West Palm Beach Tropics, says he does not expect the league to be dominated by power hitting.

"I look for defense and pitching to be the big factors in the league," said Williams, one of the top managers in the big leagues for years. "If you have that, you'll survive."

Survival will be the name of the game for the fledgling league.

Horrow was still optimistic. "There appeared to be more than 3,000 paid (at the Fort Myers game)," he said. "There were lines at the ticket office; crowds were genuinely enthused and all of those I talked to indicated this would be the first of many games they would see."

Jim Morley, owner of the St. Petersburg Pelicans, conceived the idea while vacationing in Australia last winter. He recognized the pitfalls of the league, to the point that he provided oversized uniforms he later had to shrink.

The investors plunked down about $1 million for franchises and have lured big names such as Graig Nettles, Luis Tiant, Bert Campaneris, Rollie Fingers and Dave Kingman to the league.

The founders of the league hope to duplicate the success of other senior events such as the Senior PGA Tour and Masters tennis.

Prinz, Lange star in touring comedy

The Daily Iowan

Rosemary Prinz and Ted Lange will star in "Driving Miss Daisy," the Pulitzer Prize-winning comedy by Alfred Uhry, at 8 p.m. Saturday and 3 p.m. Sunday in Haney Auditorium.

This hilarious and touching story, tracing the 25-year development of a friendship between a feisty Jewish Southern widow and her black chauffeur, stars two actors well known for their television roles. Prinz was daytime TV's first dramatic star when she portrayed Penny for a dozen years on "As the World Turns," and Lange was a prime-time fixture for nearly a decade as the genial bartender Isaac Washington on "The Love Boat."

The touring production is directed by Charles Nelson Reilly, who in his varied career has been a director, TV and stage actor, author, teacher and eccentric TV personality. Reilly may be best known for his appearances on TV game and talk shows and his role in "The Ghost and Mrs. Muir," but he has performed in more than 30 New York stage productions, including the original "Bye, Bye Birdie," "Hello, Dolly!" and "How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying," for which he received a Tony Award. Reilly was resident director and master acting teacher for 10 years at the Burt Reynolds Institute.

"Driving Miss Daisy" was the first conventional play by Uhry, although he had already established a diverse writing career. He wrote theme songs for television shows and comedy material for TV's "That Was the Week That Was," but he was best known for his work on musicals, including ing to the people in her family but pretty much without humor, which is what made her so funny.

"I thought somebody should tell what the South was really like," he told the New York Times. "I was tired of all these stereotypes — that white people were running around being openly hostile and rude to black people and that black people were standing around there with hat in hand saying 'Yassir, boss,' or else being firebrand revolutionaries. None of that was true in our case."

Tickets for "Driving Miss Daisy" are $22.50 and $19.50 for adults, $18 and $15.60 for UI students and senior citizens and $11.25 and $9.75 for young people 18 and under. Tickets are available from the Hancher box office.

The event is supported by the National Endowment for the Arts.

"The Robber Bridegroom," for which he wrote the book and lyrics. He also worked on the rewrites for the recent hit movie "Mystic Pizza."

Uhry derived the story and the vivid characters in "Driving Miss Daisy" from his recollections of growing up in Atlanta, and the two leading roles owe a great deal to his memories of his grandmother and her chauffeur.

"When I sat down to write the play, I pretty much wrote my grandmother," he commented. "She was a very healthy and very determined woman, warm and lov-

Former soap star will go anywhere for a good part

NEW YORK (AP) — As they struggled through a snowstorm toward a theater in a small town, actress Rosemary Prinz's husband said to her, "You don't care where you act, do you?"

"You're right, I don't," was her answer then. Still is.

"You give me a good play and a good part and Bogalusa suddenly is like Broadway," says Prinz.

As well as not minding tours, she says, "I'm an actor who doesn't mind long runs. I love keeping it fresh, making it like I've never heard it before or said it before. I find that very challenging."

"I love peeling away the layers and finding all that richness underneath."

Prinz's most recent role was the mother, for 840 performances, in off-Broadway's "Steel Magnolias," which is set in a beauty parlor. Much was made of the fact that she broke Mary Martin's record, set in "South Pacific," for the number of times getting her hair washed on stage.

"I couldn't believe they were making such a fuss," the actress says. "Is that what I want to be remembered for?"

Prinz has been cast in some blockbuster stage parts, she says, because people had seen her on "As the World Turns" from 1956 to 1968.

"In the 12 years I was Penny, I did 40 plays," she says. They were

"commercial" — Neil Simon plays, "I Do, I Do," Mama Rose in "Gypsy." She kept pushing her agent to get her "arty" plays — Tennessee Williams, Chekhov, where soap opera stars are suspect.

"Once I got that started, about 10 years ago," she says, "they realized I was a serious actress." Her start was at the Milwaukee Repertory Company in Williams' "The Glass Menagerie" and Sam Shepard's "Buried Child."

"I'm having the best time of my career right now," Prinz says. "I keep working on the kind of plays I've always wanted to do. I won't do anything anymore that I think is not good."

UI dance dept. hosts 2nd guest teacher

Kathleen Hurley
The Daily Iowan

"T here is SO MUCH to get out of dance — a freedom and an extreme joy," said the man sitting in front of me. Proof of his quote, even his "normal" movement of reaching for a cigarette became a dance in itself. His name is Winthrop Corey, the second guest teacher in this fall's UI Dance Department series.

Presently presiding as the artistic director of the Mobile Ballet, Corey also serves on the summer faculty of the famed Joffrey Ballet School in New York. Formerly a principal dancer with Canada's Royal Winnipeg Ballet and the National Ballet of Canada, his background of principal roles staggers the mind. His expansive energy gained him such roles as the Prince in "The Nutcracker," Franz in "Coppelia" and Prince Sigfried in "Swan Lake." Also dancing in

Dance

"Sleeping Beauty," the Diamond Variation was specifically created for him by Rudolph Nureyev. In addition, he danced opposite Nureyev in Jose Limon's classic, "The Moor's Pavane." Corey has also founded the Festival Ballet in Rhode Island and directed his own school, The Dance Academy. Rare indeed is Corey's additional talent for costume design.

Noted for his exquisite choreography, Corey created "Patriotism," a Japanese form of "Romeo and Juliet." The ballet, reaching heights of passion only possible in dance, follows a young couple's love tragedy through a ritual of death. "My Heaven," performed last weekend by the Mobile Company and possibly by the Joffrey II in the future, shines as a pas de deux of emotion and serenity.

Corey began dancing at the relatively late age of 17. He won the Ford Foundation Scholarship and proceeded to the Washington National Ballet. "I had an angel on my shoulder," he laughed, "Most dancers have to really struggle. I had to work hard, but I just happened to be in the right place at the right time."

Concert to raise apartheid awareness, money

S. Africa's Imilonji to sing from their lives, with their 'power'

Staci Sturrock
The Daily Iowan

Voices will be raised tomorrow night in Macbride Auditorium in an effort to raise money for South African students attending the UI and to raise consciousness about apartheid. The featured performers at the benefit concert are Imilonji, a group of South African singers in Iowa City who will be making their formal debut. Imilonji means "sweet songs." But for some who have heard Imilonji sing, "sweet" is too weak a word. "If you've never heard South Africans singing a cappella and straight from the very core of their being, you haven't heard power," said Joy Conrad-Klammer, concert coordinator. "The power of their music and the power of their message is absolutely engrossing. It's so personal; they are singing their lives."

The songs that Imilonji performs are indeed an integral part of their lives. Zuki Cindi, a member of Imilonji, said, "We don't have to practice and rehearse these songs because they are sung when the commemorations take place." The commemorations she refers to are for the Soweto riots and the Sharpsville massacre. Imilonji's performance tomorrow night will include several of these songs as well as the South African national anthem. "We will be explaining some of the songs because some of them are in our language," said Cindi. A translation of the national anthem will be included in the program, and the audience will be encouraged to sing along, which is customary.

Music

"This national anthem is not a pledge of allegiance," explained Rockwell Williams, chairman of Iowa South African Scholarship, Inc., the organization presenting the benefit concert. "Like 'God Bless America,' it is a hymn of love and concern. Singing it does not alter my allegiance."

ISASI put this concert together, and they will also be collecting all the proceeds. In the past year, ISASI has raised and distributed more than $9,000 to South African students attending the UI.

Imilonji is sharing the bill with two other powerful and popular acts: the Voices of Soul and Dave Moore. The Voices of Soul are known in Iowa City for their performance of music in the gospel and African-American tradition. Including musicians, the group tomorrow night is expected to number around 60. Diane Hightower, adviser for Voices of Soul and concert associate coordinator, said the gospel choir is participating to show the close relationship between Black Americans and South Africans.

The Imilonji Singers

Dave Moore is a folksinger who has appeared on "Prairie Home Companion" and with Modern Jazz Quartet. This performance marks his formal debut in Iowa City, although he has appeared informally numerous times at the Mill Restaurant and the Sanctuary Restaurant and Pub.

Williams acknowledges that people will attend the benefit concert for different reasons, but he doesn't think anyone will leave disappointed. "None of us know anything about apartheid unless we have lived under it," he said. "This is not a lecture; it is music. You can enjoy the music for its sake, regardless of the political message."

The benefit concert, which is being co-sponsored by the Iowa Coalition Against Apartheid and the South African-Asian Student Association, takes place tomorrow night at 8 p.m. in Macbride Auditorium. Tickets are $5.00 for adults and $2.50 for children under 12. Tickets are available at Prairie Lights Books, 15 S. Dubuque St., Real Compact Discs and Records, 308 E. Burlington St., Women's Resource and Action Center, 130 N. Madison St., and at the door.

The Dangtrippers: New guitarist replaces old

Laura Parks
Special to The Daily Iowan

Saturday at Gabe's Oasis, 330 E. Washington St., The Dangtrippers will perform for the first time in Iowa City with a new guitarist. Guitarist Devin Hill left the band on September 22, after spending two years with The Dangtrippers.

Roberson met Hill in the years after Roberson graduated from the UI and started to take his band, The Shy Strangers more seriously. Hill had been in the local band Letters From The Circus. He and Roberson were joined by drummer Mark Bruggeman and bass player Scott Stecklein to form The Dangtrippers. They played their first gig at Gabe's in April of 1987.

Doug described The Dangtrippers' music as leaning toward a classic rock sense, often covering The Beatles and The Byrds, but with a late 1980s post-punk sound. "Noisy, raunchy and weird" as Roberson put it.

But life within an emerging college band isn't always easy.

"The long drives, the low pay, sleeping on floors. It's not good for the psyche," said guitarist Doug Roberson. "We've been gigging for two years now. It is a drain."

In a telephone interview, Hill said "It wasn't like, 'I hate you Doug. I don't want to be in your band anymore.' I was losing other jobs that paid my rent to go to Milwaukee and get paid ten dollars."

Roberson said Hill wanted to "get away from the high-energy pop-rock and go for a lighter music form. One that's more mellow."

"The kind of music in my head that I wanted to do," explained Hill, "was not going to cater to the present college radio scene."

Hill was also unhappy with attitudes and methods within The Dangtrippers. "The band wasn't trying to be the best band it could be," said Hill. "Because of disorganization, it got sloppy and I could no longer be proud of what I was doing."

"I didn't see the band going any farther with me in it," Hill said. "I certainly want to see them go as far as they can with their new lineup."

The Dangtrippers have replaced Devin with Patrick White, of the local band Big Drama. "He was a big fan of ours, and we got to be friends," said Roberson. "There are few people outside of Iowa City that really know and understand our music. He knew how to play it all."

Bands

"After Devin quit, we did a three-piece in Milwaukee. Then we started practicing with Pat. Finally on September 29, we did a show with him in Minneapolis at the 7th Street Entry. Since then we've done several shows."

The Dangtrippers have a newly released debut LP, "days between stations," recorded on Dog Gone Records, whose owner manages R.E.M. They also had previously released a 7-inch EP on Southeast records and a cut on all three volumes of the Iowa Compilation, also on the Southeast label.

The Dangtrippers, with their new guitarist, have just returned from two gigs in New York in conjunction with the CMJ convention, the College Music Journal, which keeps track of the No. 1 group in terms of airplay.

Dog Gone Records is planning a video project for the group in November on which they'll work with local audio-visual artist Lloyd Dunn of The Tape Beatles. They hope to get it aired on MTV and "wherever else they can use it."

"This isn't all that bad," said Roberson of the changed lineup. "Maybe we'll progress into a new sound."

As for Hill, he said he'll "wait and see if I can find some people who want music to be fun again."
