West Germany asks help from western allies

Berlin's 2 mayors shake hands to begin new era of relations

BERLIN (AP) — West Germany's president on Sunday urged Western nations to help East Germany recover from the exodus of its citizens, and the mayors of East and West Berlin shook hands in no man's land to usher in a new era of relations. East Germany's Communist Party leader called for an emergency party congress and indicated a new slate of leaders will be installed to replace the Old Guard and institute reforms in his changing nation. Another hole was cut through the Berlin Wall to the roaring cheers of spectators. East Berliners continued to flood the western half of the city, buying all they could afford with their $55 of government "welcome money." By Sunday afternoon Burger King was out of beer and Haagen-Daz had sold all its ice cream bars. Unlike thousands who abandoned their Communist homeland for the West in recent weeks, most people crossing on the weekend were just visiting, taking advantage of the freedom created by the opening Thursday of East Germany's borders. By Sunday night the border gridlock had eased, and West Berlin's streets were returning to normal. Reflecting the new open-border policy, East German Defense Minister Heinz Kessler said Sunday that border guards, who once shot at their fleeing countrymen, have been told not to use firearms any more in cases of border violations. But amid the euphoria, there were reminders of the political changes and uncertainty still sweeping See E. Germany, Page 5

Seasoned TV reporter contemplates ethics in news coverage

As ABC News' Chief National Correspondent since 1981, Brit Hume has reported on all the major legislative issues in the Senate in the past decade. He also covered the campaign of George Bush, and now travels with and reports on President Bush for ABC News. Hume will speak on "Ethics in the Media" tonight at 7:30 in the Union Ballroom. The Daily Iowan's Heather Maher spoke with Hume from the White House press room last week. DI: The phrase "journalistic ethics" seems a little vague. Can you define what exactly it means for a journalist to have ethics? Hume: I can't, and I don't think a lot of other journalists could either. It's a question that has two sides to it. One side is the more obvious side that has to do with avoiding conflicts of interest, avoiding ethical problems that grow out of covering news that you have some personal interest in — they are easy calls. They have more to do with integrity. The more difficult questions are the obligations to be fair in your coverage, in your reporting, and that's the area where it's kind of subjective. The question of being fair in coverage of a campaign is different than observing standards in allowing people their privacy rights. DI: Is there an accepted ethics code or standard among journalists? Hume: There is considerable discussion in the media today about what is meant by the terms "fairness" and "balance." They are tricky and subjective and very hard to agree on. It is difficult for journalists to come to an agreement on the ethics issue. DI: As a highly visible newsmen, you must get daily reaction from people to what you're doing. What is your perception of how journalists are seen by the public? Hume: I think the public has a complicated set of reactions to the media. A lot of media people — in particular, those in broadcasting — have become celebrities, and people respond to celebrity in a positive way. When they see someone on the street (they recognize), there is a certain level of excitement. On the other hand, among people who are deeply interested in the news and have strong views about coverage, there is a very intense preoccupation with how journalists cover the news and how fair they are. There is a widespread feeling among conservatives, as well as political liberals, that journalists are unfairly biased. And there is a widespread perception among conservatives, especially, that journalists are biased in favor of liberal politicians. DI: How do you deal with such See Hume, Page 3

ABC White House Correspondent Brit Hume to speak at Union

Salvadoran guerrillas wage war

Attack claims life of American teacher

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Troops battled rebels in San Salvador Sunday during a guerrilla offensive that included an attack on the official residence of President Alfredo Cristiani, the military said. An American teacher was among at least 17 people reported killed. More than 40 people were wounded, and there were reports of fighting in four of the country's 14 provinces, including the northern section of San Salvador. Gunfire and explosions rattled through San Salvador as the leftist guerrillas launched their offensive Saturday night. Fighting continued Sunday morning. Military officials said Cristiani's official residence was attacked, but Clashes between Salvadoran troops and rebels claimed the lives of at least 17 people this weekend.

he was at his private home and was unhurt. The international airport was closed after military installations were attacked by mortar fire.

Cristiani, speaking on radio and television, announced he had called a meeting of the Council of Ministers to consider declaring a state of siege.

"The terrorists must know that there are judicial tools to fight these irrational attacks," Cristiani said. See El Salvador, Page 6

Hezbollah celebrates slayings with parade

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Iranian-backed group Hezbollah celebrated the slayings of hundreds of Americans, French and Israelis with a military parade Sunday that displayed 50 fighters groomed to carry out more suicide bombings. About 800 Hezbollah activists took part in the three-hour parade in Bir el-Abed, a Shiite Moslem slum in south Beirut. "You are the future of our nation," Hezbollah's senior clergyman Sheikh Sobhi Tofaili said in a speech. "Our hopes are pinned on you." Another clergyman, Ghassan Ghibris, said: "We pledge to remain the dagger we stab into their veins, the sword that pierces their hearts, the time bomb that blows them up and the mine they dare not step upon because it will kill them all." Thousands of wild-eyed Hezbollahis, waving clenched fists, responded with tumultuous cries of, "Death to America... death to Israel." They also raised banners that read: "We are at your disposal, Oh Khomeini," renewing allegiance to the founder of Iran's Islamic Republic, Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, who died June 3. The rally was called to mark the 7th anniversary of a suicide truck bombing of Israel's military headquarters in the southern port city of Tyre. The attack on Nov. 11, 1982, five months after Israel invaded Lebanon, killed 75 people, most of them Israeli soldiers. Ahmed Kassir, the truck driver who perished in the blast, is hailed by Hezbollah as its first suicide bomber. Hezbollah, or Party of God, was trained by Iranian Revolutionary Guards who had come to Lebanon to help fight the invading Israelis. Hezbollah now comprises about 4,000 members, backed by up to 2,000. See Lebanon, Page 2

Committee to review student govt.

Ann Marie Williams
The Daily Iowan

The future of student government at the UI will soon be reviewed by a committee to be established at the direction of UI President Hunter Rawlings. The goal of the Committee to Review Student Government is to develop a recommended structure for student government that "takes into account the specific needs of the University" and the broad purposes of student government," according to a memo circulated by David Vernon, acting UI vice president for academic affairs. Specific issues to be addressed by the committee include student government structure, jurisdiction, election procedures and the relationship of student government to the UI administration. This is an attempt to solve the problems that exist in student government and to restore a sense of normalcy," said Phillip Jones, UI dean of student services. He added that the committee's findings will not diminish the students' role in the UI government. The Collegiate Associations Council, one branch of the UI's bicameral student government, has recently been experiencing executive upheaval. David Elick was elected CAC president in last spring's elections. He was subsequently found to have a poor academic record, and CAC councilors voted to impeach Elick and Vernon McKinley, his running mate, and elected Dan Shanes and William Kalman to office. In October, Shanes was removed from office, and McKinley was installed as president after a fact-finding report from Anthony Sinicropi, UI ombudsman. See Memo, Page 2

New Challenger offers forum for minorities

Amy Davoux
The Daily Iowan

A new bi-monthly publication for black students at the UI will begin distribution Wednesday. Premiering November 15 on the ground floor of the Union, The New Challenger will give black students an opportunity to express their concerns about and learn about activities on the UI campus, according to Diane Hawkins, managing editor and publisher. The newsletter's first eight-page issue will contain profiles of black student leaders, feature stories, editorials and brief articles on upcoming black student activities. A review of Spike Lee's film, "Do the Right Thing," will also be featured. The New Challenger is designed to keep black UI students aware of campus events and issues that affect minorities, locally and nationally, Hawkins said. Although there have been three similar newsletters at the UI in the past 20 years, Hawkins said she wanted to create a black newsletter to give black students a greater voice on the UI's predominantly-white campus. Hawkins also said her writing experiences in an editing workshop taught by UI journalism professor William Zima contributed to her interest in creating a black newsletter. "Under (Zima's) leadership, I felt I could take what I've learned and benefit the community," she said. "Overall, the project was a new challenge for me." The New Challenger will be a forum where black and minority students can express themselves, associate editor Antoinette See Challenger, Page 6

Business exchange organized

UI, Soviets to compare practices in the name of perestroika

Sara Langenberg
The Daily Iowan

Two business managers from the Soviet Stavropol region may get an opportunity to learn more about American business practices at a UI seminar next June.

Soviet business officials have been eager to learn more about American business strategies since Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev announced the perestroika plan to restructure the Soviet economy, according to UI Economics Professor Gerald Nordquist.

Nordquist and eight other Iowans spent 10 days in early October visiting the small Soviet province Stavropol Cray.

Stavropol Cray, where Gorbachev once lived, is similar in size and population to Iowa, Nordquist said.

In late October, the First Secretary of the Stavropol Region Communist Party, Ivan Boldyrev, came to Iowa City.

At the UI, Boldyrev signed an exchange agreement with Gary Fethke, acting dean of the UI College of Business Administration. Through the agreement, two middle managers from the Stavropol region will attend a two-week, intensive Executive Development Program in June.

Two members of the UI faculty will visit Stavropol in return.

Nordquist said the business program will be especially beneficial for the Soviet managers.

"This program is extremely relevant for them because their managers are not trained in Western business ways," he said. "They will get a small sense of the way we do business."

When Gorbachev initially announced the perestroika plan, the economic changes were scheduled to occur according to a central plan, Nordquist said, adding that the central plan didn't work very well for them.

More recently, the plan was decentralized, forcing individual state enterprises to come up with their own strategies for a more "democratized" economy, he said.

The attendance of some of Stavropol's middle managers at the UI Executive Development Program is partially a result of this decentralization, Nordquist said.

"They are enormously eager to learn about American business practices," he said.

Nordquist and the eight other Iowans, including a journalist, two students of the Russian language, an athletic director and a private businessman, visited Stavropol through the Iowa Sister-State Committee exchange program.

The Sister-State Committee, instituted by Gov. Terry Branstad about three years ago, promotes cultural, educational, trade and sports exchanges between Iowa and several provinces worldwide.

Because of Stavropol's size and population, it is on of Iowa's sister-states, Nordquist said.

Nordquist was also in the Soviet Union in August with a group of international economists. Through that program, he visited Leningrad, Kiev and Moscow.

"That was fascinating," he said. "But this program got me out in the country. Stavropol is in a very rural region."

Researchers study hormone replacement therapy benefits

Jennifer Glynn
The Daily Iowan

The hormone estrogen helps protect women against heart disease for most of their adult life. But after menopause, that natural protection ends, meaning cardiovascular disease is the leading cause of death of older women.

UI College of Medicine researchers have joined six other centers nationwide to study the benefits and risks of hormone replacement therapy in post-menopausal women.

The Post-Menopausal Estrogen Progestin Intervention Trial is the first large scale clinical trial that evaluates risk factors for heart disease among post-menopausal women.

"Although menopause is part of a woman's natural aging process, the use of supplemental hormones may help women avoid osteoporosis and possibly coronary artery disease," said Susan Johnson, associate professor in the UI obstetrics and gynecology department and co-investigator of the study.

The study could eventually help a great number of women, said Helmut Schrott, UI associate professor of preventive medicine and internal medicine and the principal investigator in the study.

"While not every woman should have long-term estrogen replacement therapy, in many cases the overall benefits outweigh the alternatives," Schrott said.

The study will involve nearly 1,000 healthy women between the ages of 45 and 64. It will provide information about the effects of hormone combinations and cholesterol, blood sugar, insulin and blood clotting factors, all of which can affect a woman's risk of heart disease and osteoporosis.

The double-blind study will chart the effects on the heart of five different treatment regimens over the three years of the study.

Women participating in the study must be in good health and have had either a natural or surgical menopause. Participants also receive several study-related tests including: mammography, bone density measurements, electrocardiograms and annual physicals.

Two stars of the NBC-TV show, "The Golden Girls," Rue McClanahan and Betty White, have appeared in public service announcements, calling for volunteer subjects.

The other centers in the study are University of California in San Diego; John Hopkins University; University of California in Los Angeles; George Washington University; University of Texas in San Antonio; and Stanford University.

Hands Across Campus lined up for January 15

Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

Big Ten Conference student government leaders plan to bring in the new year by literally joining their campuses in a show of unity.

Resolving to participate in the first "Hands Across Campus" on Jan. 15, 1990, individuals across the Big Ten conference will link hands on Martin Luther King Jr. Day to demonstrate their dedication to multicultural education in the 1990s.

"We're hoping that we will be able to kick off the year and the decade in a positive direction," Pepe Rojas-Cardona, UI Student Senate president said.

He said the increased racial violence and tensions on college campuses should be eliminated in the upcoming decade.

Students, faculty, staff and administrators are invited to participate in the conference-wide event by joining hands at the designated locations during the appointed time.

Details have not been finalized for the event, but the Penatacrest may serve as the focal point for the UI activities, Rojas-Cardona said.

"We're trying to keep this least complicated as possible," Rojas-Cardona said.

He added that satellite transmissions may televise "Hands Across America" to the UI campus and the other Big 10 schools.

The senate may also utilize satellite capabilities to broadcast a number of speeches from the Martin Luther King, Jr. Center in Atlanta, Ga.

Satellite broadcasts from the center will include commemorative speeches by Martin Luther King III and other civil rights activists.

The project will be the first united effort of the Big Ten student association, which formed at the UI in September.

Rojas-Cardona and UI Student Senator Leon Davis introduced the hand-joining project as a way to illustrate commitment to diversity.

The suggestion drew unanimous support from the other Big Ten schools at the Big Ten Student Association meeting November 3-5.

Planning for "Hands Across Campus" is now in progress at the 10 universities.

Organizers said the combined Martin Luther King Jr. Day observance demonstrates a conference-wide commitment to diversity and civil rights.

"The timing of this was somewhat accidental, but it seems to be working well for us with the opening of the Big Ten Conference Association and the coming of the new decade," Davis said.

People who wish to volunteer for the project may contact the UI Student Senate. The senate "Hands Across Campus" organizing committee will be comprised this week.

Lebanon

Revolutionary Guards still entrenched in east Lebanon.

The parade was held a block away from Hay Madi, another Shiite slum where most of the 18 Western hostages are believed to be held. Hezbollah is the umbrella for the Shiite extremists holding most of them.

At least 10 other suicide bombings were claimed by Hezbollah or underground factions affiliated with it after the attack in Tyre.

The bloodiest were the simultaneous bombings of the U.S. Marine base and the headquarters of French paratroopers in Beirut on Oct. 23, 1983. These killed 241 American servicemen and 58 French paratroopers who were part of a multi-national peacekeeping force.

Islamic Jihad, or holy war, which claimed responsibility for the truck bombings, now holds at least two of eight American hostages. They are Terry Anderson and Thomas Sutherland.

Correction

The Daily Iowan reported Friday that Veterans Day this year would commemorate the 50th anniversary of the end of World War II.

Veterans Day was Saturday, November 11 — but this year is the 50th anniversary of the beginning of World War II — not the end.

The Daily Iowan regrets the error.

person, alleged that improper impeachment proceedings marred last spring's CAC election.

Sinicropi was appointed by Hunter Rawlings in July to look into the CAC election and the impeachment proceedings.

"Nobody wants to have the spring of 1990 a repeat of the spring of 1989," said Julia Mears, assistant to Rawlings.

She said the UI administration has no particular expectations about the results of the committee's review.

If the committee's recommendations differ from the existing structure of student government, the recommended alternative will go before the UI student body for a vote.

The report stating the findings and decisions of the committee will be submitted on or before January 12, 1990, the memo stated.

In Brief

Briefs

David Gurnett, a Carver-Van Allen Professor of Physics at the UI, has been named the recipient of the Award for Excellence in Plasma Physics Research presented by the American Physical Society's Division of Plasma Physics.

The award citation, to be presented at the division's annual meeting November 13-17 in Anaheim, Calif., reads: "For the experimental study in space of virtually all the waves known to plasma physics, with special emphasis on planetary radio emissions, as exemplified by his recent research on plasma waves at Uranus (1986), Comet Giacobini-Zinner (1985), and the Artificial Comet AMPTE (1984)."

Gurnett, known worldwide as a leader in space plasma physics research, used data from UI-built instruments aboard the Voyager spacecraft to obtain the first measurements of plasma waves and low-frequency radio emissions in the magnetospheres of Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, and most recently, Neptune.

He is a Fellow of the American Geophysical Union and the American Physical Society, and, in 1986, he received the NASA Space Act Award for developing instruments to detect plasma waves and radio waves.

In 1980 he received the NASA Distinguished Scientific Achievement Award for his contribution to the Voyager spacecraft. In 1987, he received the Governor of Iowa's Science Medal for Science Achievement. He also received the 1989 John Adam Fleming Medal from the American Geophysical Union.

Gurnett is a principal investigator of the Galileo Project.

Hume

Hume: This kind of perception is hard to have, because you need a trust from your viewers and readers or you have nothing. It affects your credibility. People generally tend to believe what they see in the mainstream media. People also tend to have a similar reaction to stories they know something about, like a fire in their neighborhood they witnessed firsthand — the results are kind of disturbing. People who are in government agencies that are intensely covered (by the media) insist the world they read about in the morning papers bears no resemblance to the world they live in day to day.

Q&A

DI: How seriously do you take such criticism?

Hume: It's a worrisome thing for those of us in the media to find that we're maybe not on top of the job. I really think that people's concern about fairness is an issue we in the media ought to take more seriously than we do. I think it's a very serious matter.

DI: How did you get into journalism? Did you always want to be a journalist or did you just "fall" into it?

Hume: No, no. Right out of college, I needed to get a job, and the first job I got was with a newspaper, and I knew I was home.

DI: What's the best thing about being Brit Hume?

Hume: The extraordinary front-row seat at all these events that I get. Since the beginning of this year, I have been inside the Great Hall of the People, in Tiananmen Square, in the Vatican, inside 10 Downing Street and in the White House for a number of history-making occasions. I've traveled to Japan, Paris, Germany, Poland, Hungary — all of these places in less than a year. When you're covering the United States president, you're whisked from one airport to another, all to occupy these front-row seats. That's a major part of my job.

Brit Hume

Also, the challenge of condensing the day's events and presenting it with the video you have in a brief time on the air is a great challenge. Sometimes the challenge wins; sometimes I win. But it's very mentally stimulating.

DI: What's it like to cover every move the president of the United States makes?

Hume: It's something you get used to. The president is somebody I see a lot of in this job. He's someone I've known for a long time. I covered his campaign back in 1980. Every now and then, it dawns on you what you're doing, and you stop grumbling about your job. You think, if I didn't have this job, I'd have to get a real one.

DI: What's the worst part of your job?

Hume: The job is demanding and tiring, the pressure is intense and the Washington press room is cramped.

DI: If you could have a dream story to cover, what would it be?

Hume: I feel like I'm doing it now — covering the presidency is a dream for me.

DI: How much longer do you think you'll do this kind of network reporting?

Hume: Well, I'm 46 years old, and it's demanding. When the president takes a trip, you're at the airport at four in the morning. I don't know how long I'll be here — maybe as long as I last or until they get sick of me.

Group starts fundraising drive to revamp College Green Park

Brian Dick
The Daily Iowan

In honor of Iowa City's 150th birthday, a local non-profit organization launched a fundraising drive to revamp the city's oldest park Friday.

Project Green, a volunteer citizens' group formed in the mid-'60s, has undertaken the renewal of College Green Park, which city planners originally designated as a mile-square plot in 1839.

150 years after the park's creation, Washington, Dodge, College and Johnson streets surround the block-square area of College Green Park, but time and weather have taken their toll on the park's plant materials, Project Green coordinator Pat Boutelle said.

"In 1956, a tornado swept through the area causing major tree damage to College Green as well as City Park," Boutelle said. "Dutch Elm disease has also contributed to the destruction of some of (College Green) Park's trees."

In 1839, the city's founding fathers planned other parks in areas near the College Green Park, on North, Centre and South Market streets.

Their decision to leave these spaces open demonstrated foresight in their first city plan, she said.

The park, now a popular spot for sunbathers, musicians, children and jugglers, retains its earlier "home-town" aura despite changes in its immediate environment, Boutelle said.

"It's been a park that has adapted well as its surroundings have changed," she said. "College Green is the only one that remains basically in its original state."

In August, the Iowa City Council approved plans for the park's renovation, but private contributions and volunteer effort will determine when and how well the College Green Park renovation will be finished, according to Boutelle.

"We hope that within two years we will raise the funds necessary to undertake the project," she said.

Iowa City councilman Darrel Courtney said that while the city has not made any official financial commitment to help fund the renovation, the city may match Project Green funds by donating labor or equipment.

"They were going to raise the funds themselves, but we may provide support and work with them," he said.

College Green Park earned a reputation as an unsafe park in recent years when inadequate lighting made its bushes a potential spot for muggers and rapists, Courtney said, adding that the new plans should deter the criminal element.

"The plans I saw certainly looked like an improvement," Courtney said. "It's had a problem with not being a safe park, but Project Green's plans and lights will keep it safe."

Once construction begins, the revamping would take less than a year to complete, Boutelle said.

Project coordinators working with landscape architects have already formulated plans to reshape the steep grades on the park's north and west sides, altered when Washington street was widened decades ago. Some of the park's diseased and decaying trees will also be replaced to reestablish the tree canopy, Boutelle said.

Sidewalks will be replaced and repaired, more lighting will be installed, a gazebo will be constructed in the park's center and a low, black iron post-and-rail fence will define the park's perimeter.

These enhancements, many of which replicate trends found in parks of earlier periods, will in a short time restore College Green to reflect the historical nature of the park, Boutelle said.

"We intend to replace the center pines, because it's nice to have a park that's green in the center all year round," she said.

Over $1,000 raised in study-a-thon

Tonya Feit
The Daily Iowan

For many people 24 hours of continuous studying might seem like torture, but about 30 UI honor students did just that this weekend to raise money for two local charities.

Just over $1,500 was raised from 6 p.m. Friday to 6 p.m. Saturday as participants in the 10th annual Study-A-Thon studied for 24 hours straight.

"Everybody cringes at the thought of studying for 24 hours," Committee Chairman Tim Oberlander said. "But it's interesting and constructive, and it's a good way for everyone to catch up on their studies."

"We're honor students, so everyone thinks we study all the time anyway," he added.

The funds were split evenly between the Handicare

Early Childhood Development program and the HeadStart program in Iowa City. The event was sponsored by Associated Iowa Honors Students.

Oberlander said AIHS raised $1200 at last year's study-a-thon, and $1400 in 1987.

Students gathered pledges for each hour they studied or received donations before the study-a-thon.

Though participants are supposed to study during the entire fundraiser, they are given three breaks for meals and six 10-minute breaks during the 24-hour period. They also got the opportunity to sleep from 5 a.m. to 8 a.m.

According to member Jeff Walton, AIHS is a social group for honors students. The organization sponsors intramural sports teams and a wide variety of activities for its members.

Collegiate Associations Council

To: University of Iowa Students
From: Vernon A. McKinley, President of the Collegiate Associations Council
Re: CAC Operations and Controversy
Date: November 13, 1989

The following information pertains to the viability and effectiveness of the Collegiate Associations Council. I strongly urge students to demand changes in the behavior of those individuals responsible for allocating a portion of your mandatory student fee dollars. As President of the CAC, I ask for your support.

Due to the non-productive atmosphere present during the last three CAC meetings, I feel it is my duty to inform the student body of my decision in accordance with CAC By-Laws Article II, Section A.1 to hold council meetings "at least once a month during the spring and fall semesters." Therefore the next CAC meeting will be held at 7p.m. December 4, 1989.

The ultimate obligation of my administration is to support student groups under the jurisdiction of the CAC. The destructive actions taken by a few will not damage the goals and educational opportunities which students at this university deserve and demand. Funding activities conducted by the Budgeting and Auditing Committee will continue uninterrupted.

My attention is now directed towards the Committee to Review Student Government proceedings. As co-presidents of the University of Iowa Student Association (UISA), Pepe Rojas-Cardona, President of the University of Iowa Student Senate (UISS), and I, as President of the University of Iowa CAC, will keep the student body informed of any actions taken. My executives and I are working on a state-wide educational conference to be hosted here at the University of Iowa. This event will bring together and unite concerns from different interests at our three major universities and address primary, secondary, and junior college educational issues across the state.

Any ideas or input concerning the structure of student government and how it affects your education are welcome. I or anyone of my acting executives will address your academic concerns honestly. We can be reached by calling the Collegiate Associations Council office at 335-3262 or 335-3859.

V. A. McKinley, President

What a party

The sheer velocity of change in Eastern Europe is hard to assimilate — for journalists, for statesmen, and for the 2.7 million East Germans who crossed an historically impenetrable border into the West this weekend, collected 100 marks of "greeting money" at West German banks, and celebrated in a city they have lived beside but not seen for 28 years.

And what a party it was. Images of this weekend will no doubt rank among the most memorable of the century. It is hard to know what to say. To be sure, there are questions.

Will Germany eventually reunify, and if so, what will happen to NATO and the Warsaw Pact? What about the oppressive regimes in Bulgaria, Romania and Czechoslovakia? How long can they resist the tide of democratization and openness? Will the changes in Poland, Hungary and East Germany and the destruction of the Berlin Wall — the premier symbol of communist intransigence — spill into Soviet provinces already hungering for autonomy and freedom? What will happen then?

But these are for later. Ideas about borders and ideologies that have stood for decades and divided millions — from their homes, their families, from peace of mind — have fallen.

For now, at the height of the biggest party that sundered Germany has ever enjoyed, there is only one thing to be said. Hooray.

Still censorship

Woodbury County Attorney Thomas Mullin has threatened seven Sioux City businesses with prosecution if they continue to sell or rent materials now illegal under Iowa's expanded pornography law.

That would be fine, if Mullin had told those businesses which publications and videos were in violation.

Two weeks ago Mullin obtained from police a list of materials judged to be in violation of the law. Without notifying businesses which items were prohibited, he threatened them with prosecution unless the items were promptly removed.

Mullin's actions, touted by him as an efficient means of enforcing the law without wasting the time of prosecutors, judges and jurors, is nothing less than self-censorship through intimidation.

"It's an example of prosecutorial discretion run amok," said Iowa Civil Liberties Union legal director Randall Wilson.

By refusing to list which materials are illegal, Mullin hopes the businesses will discard anything questionable out of fear of prosecution. Following advice from their attorneys, some of the stores have already removed many items from their shelves.

Self-censorship is still censorship when it is coerced. Mullin is using intimidation to rid Sioux City of things he finds objectionable. While it is true that many people find the materials in question repugnant, a business has every right to continue to sell those that pass the criteria of Iowa's obscenity laws, and voluntarily remove those that don't.

If Mullin has a list of items that explicitly violate Iowa law, he should file criminal charges and prosecute or notify the businesses which items need to be removed. He should not try to control booksellers and video retailers through threats and incomplete information.

Geographic idiocy plagues superpowers

We Americans seem to possess a curious masochistic fascination with the precise measurement of the depths of our national ignorance. Hardly a week goes by without one government-subsidized group or another announcing just how moronic we as a people have become.

A survey released in alarm by, say, the Institute of Extremely Concerned Scientists inevitably reveals that 26 percent of adults in this country identify Enrico Fermi as a type of pasta, that 32 percent think DNA was a failed amendment to the Constitution that would have guaranteed equal rights for "deranged nihilistic atheists" and that 87 percent of high-school boys believe Uranus is the punchline to a really funny locker-room joke.

Another survey by the Society for the Memorization of Dates and Other Historical Trivia reports that 43 percent of Americans think Herbert Hoover invented the vacuum cleaner (another 11 percent think he was a vacuum cleaner); that 62 percent percent of college graduates identify the date 1066 as the year Ronald Reagan was born (actually, of course, Reagan was born in 1929); and that a whopping 76 percent of historians themselves believe that the Wars of the Roses are New Years Day football games.

The typical response to such surveys is a general beating of the collective national brow. "Are we living in a land of boneheads, or what?" scream the headlines and editorial pages when the research is released. Educators quake and legislators fume as we're reminded once more that we are apparently sharing our ever-threatened oxygen supply with an unacceptable number of intellectually devolutionary nitwits.

About a year ago, you may recall, the National Geographic Society released one such survey that revealed Americans' massive ignorance regarding geographic literacy. In that study, 14 percent of the Americans queried could not even find the United States on a map. (One commentator wryly suggested the map should have included a helpful "you are here" pointer.)

When asked to identify 16 various locations on a world map, Americans averaged a measly 8.6 percent correct, with 54 percent of the respondents pointing to Russia and exclaiming, "Whoa, that's a big sucker, ain't it?" (Is it any wonder George Bush was elected president?)

Among the nine countries compared in the geographical survey, Sweden scored the best overall, followed by West Germany, Japan, Canada and France. The U.S. wound up a sorry sixth, above only lowly England, Italy and Mexico. Among 18- to 24-year-olds, however, America finished dead last; that group was able to identify an average of only 6.9 of the 16 map locations. "Most American young people," the study concluded, "don't know Shiite from Shiloh."

The good news for Americans is that the Russians are just as stupid as we are.

For a few days following the release of the report, the news media, Congress and various other institutional forces went into their usual tizzy and vowed that something drastic had to be done to save the country from obvious ruin. But then other pressing matters — Rob Lowe's sex video, Oprah's diet, Cher's tattoo — crowded their way into our national concern, and the worry over America's decline into cultural oblivion quickly lost its relative importance.

Now it turns out that we may not have had that much to worry about in the first place. It seems that, having plumbed the depths of Americans' global illiteracy, the National Geographic Society decided to take its survey to the Soviet Union to see how that country fares with the western industrial powers when it comes to finding their place on the planet. And the good news for Americans is that the Russians are just as stupid as we are.

While Soviets between the ages of 18 and 24 bettered their American counterparts somewhat by correctly identifying an average of 9.3 of 16 world locations on a map, the Russian population as a whole ended up in an embarrassing last-place tie with Mexico, with only a 7.4 average.

Thirteen percent of Soviet adults failed to correctly identify the Soviet Union on a world map, just a point better than the 14 percent of Americans who couldn't find the United States. But then the country is a whole lot bigger than ours, so it should be easier for them to find.

"We believe the results from the survey point to a startling superpower comparison," a spokesperson for the survey grimly concluded. "Americans and Soviets have demonstrated an astonishing lack of awareness of the world around them."

Which raises the interesting possibility that maybe we're going about the business of conferring superpower status on countries in the wrong way. Rather than designating superpowers according to economic might and military muscle, maybe we should every few years conduct a worldwide test of basic knowledge and skills, and the countries whose populations score the best on the test are handed the mantle of "superpowers," including the transference of economic might and military muscle that would go with the position.

In other words, to be a superpower a country would have to earn it, not by brawn, but by brains.

A radical notion, to be sure. But just think, the number one world power under such a plan would today be Sweden. And Sweden seems a particularly appropriate country for superpowerdom. Whenever it is.

Ghost of a violent rape haunts on Halloween

Awoman I know was beaten and raped in her high-rise Chicago apartment when she answered the door without first looking through the peephole. Sarah (not her real name) thought the person knocking was her roommate. It wasn't. The man who burst into Sarah's hallway demanded all her jewelry and then raped her in her bedroom. She tried to cooperate with him, like all the women's magazines and news reports told her to, but it didn't help. He beat her repeatedly in the head with a lead pipe anyway, tied her up, and robbed the rest of the apartment before leaving. Despite a massive blood loss, Sarah managed to maintain consciousness, free herself and call 911. She was rushed to the hospital, where more than 200 stitches were needed to piece her head back together. She was lucky to be alive, the doctors said.

Her Perspective

Hope Edelman

Sara is not a good friend of mine; in fact, she is an acquaintance only through association. It is her roommate, Mandy, whom I know well, but the degree of personal intimacy made no difference when I first heard the story. I cried just the same. The horror of any woman being attacked and rendered helpless left me feeling sick, wounded, violated. Vacuumed out. Sarah was touched against her will, forced to comply in order to survive. She was stripped of all personal power and treated like an object. And worst of all, it happened in her home.

When Mandy told me the story, I wasn't prepared for my own physical reaction — my body contracted; knees and elbows pressed together, protecting my stomach. I could almost feel the pain and fear that Sarah experienced, because as Mandy spoke, I heard my own voice echoing, It could have been me.

It easily could have been me. I live alone in an apartment without a peephole, and my landlord laughs when I ask for extra security. "This is Iowa City. You don't live in New York anymore," he says. Oh, foolish me. I should know that women don't get stabbed with needles on

Clinton Street or "wilded" when they jog at night in City Park. But aren't they still date-raped in college dorms, murdered in suburban homes and attacked in double-security apartment buildings? I read these stories in the news and, as my landlord encourages, try to believe that these things can't happen to me. I'm a strong, assertive, no-nonsense kind of woman, I tell myself, the type that potential attackers would not dare approach. I'm too independent, too self-reliant to ever be a victim. But then something like Sarah's attack brutally reminds me that perhaps I fool myself. I can work hard, fight for professional equality, achieve self-sufficiency — and none of it matters when the person who knocks on my door is bigger, stronger, and swinging a lead pipe.

I can work hard, fight for professional equality, achieve self-sufficiency — and none of it matters when the person who knocks on my door is bigger, stronger, and swinging a lead pipe.

This weekend before Halloween, I drove to Chicago to visit Mandy for the first time since the attack. Sarah was gone, moved back to her parents' home in another state, but Mandy was still living in the apartment, protected by her brother until she could move into her new place or until the rapist was caught, whichever came first.

The blood had been cleaned from the carpeting, and the door to what had been Sarah's bedroom was kept shut. There were no visible signs of struggle; but the apartment spooked me, and every small noise — the kittens rolling their toys on the kitchen floor, a neighbor fumbling for keys in the hallway — made me jump. When Mandy went down to her car for a few minutes, I was left alone to wait for the pizza delivery man. I shouted "Who is it?" at the closed door three times, looked through the peephole twice to verify the claim, and still waited until Mandy came back before I felt safe opening the door. I did not like living like this, but there was a ghost in the apartment, twice as vivid as the ones I later saw trick-or-treating on Broadway, and twice as frightening.

Mandy and I went to a costume party that night, at a friend's apartment. There were no ghosts dancing in the living room or talking in the kitchen, but by 11 p.m. the back porch was filled with inebriated financial types from the Chicago Board of Trade.

I was talking with two female friends, when a loud, drunk man with whom I had exchanged obligatory "nice to meet you's" earlier dropped his beer near my feet. I was wearing a skirt, and some of his beer splashed on my ankle. Not enough to discomfort me, though; in fact, not even enough to make me want to do anything about it. So I kept talking, until I felt something rubbing my leg. I looked down, and there was this guy, repeatedly running his hands up and down my leg, from ankle to knee. Was he serious?

"Would you please remove your hand?" I asked. OK, so it wasn't the friendliest remark, but consider the logistics — his hands, my leg, and no sort of contractual agreement there. What made him think that I couldn't take care of my leg myself? What made him think he could massage my body without asking? And what kind of social codes were at work that made him feel offended, put down and put down by my reaction?

"What the hell is wrong with you?" he demanded. Me? What's wrong with me? This joker turned my leg into a free-for-all and I'm the bad guy?

"Bitch," he mumbled, turning away. "You must be from New York."

"Aw, you're overreacting. He was just trying to be nice," said a male friend when I expressed my outrage (a male friend who, incidentally, went to high school with me in New York). Sorry, but I don't buy this. Nice is handing me a napkin. Nice is saying, "Oops — sorry! Is there anything I can do?" Nice is not assuming you can touch me, treat me like an object, wherever and whenever you want. Do I need to bring a date to every party to avoid being anyone's fair game? Do I need to live with a man to be protected from strangers who burst through the door?

I wonder about this, and I think about Sarah, when I feel a stranger rubbing my calf, and I tell him to keep his hands to himself. Even if I sound like a bitch.

Baker: No money for E. Germany

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State James Baker said Sunday that any U.S. economic aid for East Germany must await clear evidence that the East Bloc country is willing to reform its economy, not just open its borders.

The dramatic change unfolding in Berlin is a "historic" political event, "but it doesn't mean a whole lot in economic terms," Baker said.

Baker, interviewed on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley," defended the Bush administration's cautious response to the events, saying, "It would be wrong to start funneling economic assistance to any country in Eastern Europe ... before there is clear evidence that they want to reform their economic system."

Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennadi Gerasimov praised President George Bush's response to the tumult in East Germany, saying, "I think he's handling it as a real statesman."

Bush is still preparing a response to an informal cable he received Friday from Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev underscoring the importance of the changes taking place in East Germany and expressing hope the situation remains calm and peaceful.

Gerasimov, on CBS-TV's "Face the Nation," predicted that at next month's shipboard summit off Malta, Bush and Gorbachev "may come to a common ground ... that both countries — and actually everybody — is interested in stability, in not too much upheaval in Europe."

through East Germany, which began carving passages through the 29-mile-long Berlin Wall on Friday.

Communist Party chief Egon Krenz called for an emergency party congress next month, the official ADN news agency said. He indicated a new Central Committee will be elected to carry out various reforms aimed at stopping East Germans from going West.

"We need a Central Committee that can carry the full responsibility and enjoys full trust," Krenz was quoted as telling reporters.

Krenz said the current Central Committee would meet Monday to approve holding the congress. Also Monday, East Germany's Parliament is to meet to name a Cabinet to replace the one that resigned Tuesday. The reform-minded party chief of Dresden, Hans Modrow, was expected to be named premier.

Since Krenz replaced hard-liner Erich Honecker as party chief October 18, 10 full members of the ruling 21-member Politburo have lost their positions. There also has been pressure for the 163-member policy-setting Central Committee, chosen under Honecker, to resign.

On West Berlin's fashionable Kurfurstendamm avenue about 1,000 leftists marched through the streets shouting slogans against German reunification.

An appeal signed by the official Free German Youth movement and representatives of the democratic opposition voiced fears about "the very existence of our country" in the wake of the massive westward stream of visitors.

More than 3 million East Germans headed West over the weekend, while several hundred thousand people made their way to Berlin from other countries to join a 4-day-old celebration.

"The wall will never be what it used to be. It remains a memorial to inhumanity," West German President Richard von Weizsaecker said in a speech in West Berlin's Kaiser-Wilhelm-Gedachtnis Church. The church, a landmark to World War II destruction, combines the bombed-out ruins of the old Kaiser-Wilhelm church with a modern structure.

"Winter is at the door, the ailing have to be taken care of," von Weizsaecker, the former West Berlin Mayor, said, alluding to the near decimation of parts of the East German economy and the severe shortage of medical personnel as a result of the recent exodus of East Germans to the West.

More than 200,000 East Germans have left East Germany since September. There have been reports that medical students have been drafted to work in hospitals to make up for the loss of doctors and nurses.

Turning his attention to other nations, von Weizsaecker said: "The West should be ready to help East Germany with open hearts and open doors."

He cautioned that the West should not interfere in East German internally but urged the East Berlin leadership to stick to its promise of free elections.

Weizsaecker later went through the new Berlin Wall crossing at Potsdamer Platz, took several steps into East Berlin and exchanged a few words with some border guards as he was mobbed by hundreds of people.

West Berlin Mayor Walter Momper and his East Berlin counterpart, Erhard Krack, met at the Potsdamer Platz, once a vibrant city center but now a bleak no man's land bisected by the Berlin Wall and flanked by concrete watchtowers.

Their highly symbolic handshake represented a start of a new era of optimism on closeness for the German people, although Krenz and other officials have flatly ruled out reunification of the countries.

Earlier, thousands of people cheered as East German border guards used jackhammers to bore a hole in the wall at Potsdamer Platz. It was the fourth opening created in the wall since Friday. The others are at Bernauer Strasse, Puschkinallee, Mahlow and the Glienecker Bridge foot-crossing.

"It's a great day in our history and the history of the world," said Torsten Fischer, a 20-year-old East German border guard who has been doing wall duty for six months at Potsdamer Platz.

Cheering spectators on both sides of the concrete barrier watched the reunion of mayors.

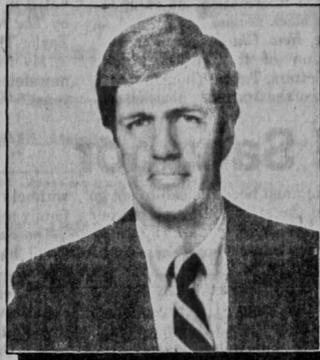

Outside Berlin, East Germany opened at least 10 more border crossings.

British rock star Joe Cocker joined the party in Berlin with a performance that drew thousands to the Deutschlandhalle concert hall in the western sector, about two miles from the wall. He was among more than 20 musicians performing at the concert, which police said was staged partly to draw crowds from the wall.

Taylor-Thomas said, adding that the newsletter will make up for "limited information" on campus about black issues.

The New Challenger is a recreation of former UI black newsletters, Taylor-Thomas said. One of the first black newsletters on campus was the 1972 Pamoja. Another, the Challenger, originated in 1982, and was followed by The New Challenger of 1986, Taylor-Thomas said.

"My first goal is to keep this newsletter active for several years," she said. "It's been re-activated three times in this decade alone."

Funded by the UI Black Student Union, The New Challenger is staffed by nine UI students.

About 600 issues will be distributed Wednesday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. on the ground floor of the Union, though future distributions will be available from the Black Student Union office, the IMU Campus Information Center, the UI Afro-American Cultural Center and the UI School of Journalism and Mass Communication.

"You must heed the call to not go out in the streets, to stay in your houses or where you are right now. It's just a question of a short time," he said.

Cristiani reported seven civilians were killed and 41 were wounded. Hospital officials speaking on condition of anonymity, said at least six soldiers and four guerrillas were among those killed.

Cristiani is the leader of the rightist Nationalist Republican Alliance, or Arena, and was installed in office June 1 after winning the presidential election.

A U.S. citizen who was a teacher at the American High School in San Salvador was among those killed Saturday night, according to U.S. Embassy spokesman Barry Jacobs. Jacobs gave no details and said the victim's name was being withheld pending notification of family members.

The Farabundo Marti Liberation Front has been fighting a succession of U.S.-backed governments for 10 years.

In a broadcast over their clandestine Radio Venceremos, guerrillas called the San Salvador attacks part of a national offensive called "Remove the fascists, Febe Elizabeth lives."

Febe Elizabeth Velazquez was a union leader who perished in an October 31 explosion at the National Federation of Salvadoran Workers. The rebels claim the government was behind that attack that killed 10 people and wounded more than 30.

"Today we are fighting against misery, against those who stay in power through savagery aimed at churches, universities, opposition political parties, guilds, unions and dissident sectors," the rebel broadcast said.

Government troops and a tank entered El Salvador National University Sunday and damaged some buildings when they opened fire, a photographer said.

Twelve students and workers were detained and taken by truck to a military base, according to the photographer. He said the prisoners were accused of harboring guerrillas.

A guerrilla leader who identified himself as Commander Fernandez told reporters Sunday, "Here we will die fighting. They won't remove us from here."

At a news conference at a home in the northern part of the capital, the guerrilla leader said, "This is the start of the counteroffensive. We won't leave until the government gives up or calls us to the negotiating table."

Civilian sources contacted by telephone reported fighting in four of 14 provinces.

An airline employee who spoke on condition of anonymity said international flights were suspended because two bombs were found at the airport and the access road to the airport was damaged by guerrilla mortar attacks.

In Managua, Nicaragua, the government-run radio Voice of Nicaragua broadcast a statement by Salvadoran guerrillas warning civilians living near military installations to leave.

'NO CLIPS, NO JOB'

Newspapers: 'We're looking for experience'

Thinking about a career in journalism after graduation? Well, unless your family owns a newspaper, the post-graduation job search can be a frustrating experience. Aspiring journalists can't get a job without experience, but they can't get experience without a job.

At the University of Iowa, though, there's an answer: The Daily Iowan.

For more than a century, The Daily Iowan has provided an unparalleled educational opportunity for talented and dedicated young journalists.

The Daily Iowan offers a unique newsroom environment that combines the latest technology with full student editorial control. Staff members gain valuable experience while producing a newspaper that is widely regarded as the nation's premier collegiate daily.

The Daily Iowan:

- Has a daily circulation approaching 21,000, the largest circulation of any newspaper in the Iowa City area.
- Is the nation's most frequent winner of the Society of Professional Journalists' "Best Overall College Newspaper" award.
- Has twice been honored as Iowa's best newspaper by the Iowa Newspaper Association.
- Has been the collegiate training ground for hundreds of top editors and writers, including several Pulitzer Prize winners.

If you're serious about journalism, don't miss out on The Daily Iowan experience.

Merchant, Navy ships collide

1 killed, 4 Navy crewmen injured

PEARL HARBOR, Hawaii (AP) — A U.S. Navy destroyer and a 428-foot merchant ship were limping toward Singapore on Monday after a collision off Malaysia killed one Navy crewman and injured four others, a Navy spokesman said.

It was the latest of a series of fatal accidents involving Navy ships in the past two weeks.

The USS Kinkaid was bound from the Indian Ocean to Singapore for a visit early Sunday when it collided with the 428-foot Singaporean tanker Kota Petani in the Malacca Strait, 240 miles west of Singapore, said Lt. Cmdr. Bob Anderson, a spokesman for the Pacific Fleet headquarters at Pearl Harbor.

The predawn collision tore a 15-by-56-foot hole above the waterline on the right side of the 563-foot destroyer, Anderson said.

The Kota Petani sustained major damage to its bow, but there were no injuries reported on the merchant ship, he said. There was no information yet on the contents of the tanker or any leaks, he added.

Both ships were able to proceed toward Singapore under their own power, Anderson said.

Fires that broke out on both ships were extinguished quickly with the assistance of the USS Rentz, a guided missile frigate accompanying the Kinkaid, he said.

The names of the dead and injured are being withheld pending notification of their families, Anderson said.

The Navy is investigating the cause of the collision.

The Kinkaid, which is based in San Diego, has a normal crew of 20 officers and 297 enlisted men, Anderson said.

Echoing other recent Navy comments, Anderson said the string of shipboard accidents in the past two weeks was just bad luck.

"It's really an inherited danger in working on a warship, but we don't feel it's a training problem, and these accidents are totally unrelated to each other, and it's just unfortunate," he said.

On October 29, a training jet crashed aboard the aircraft carrier USS Lexington in the Gulf of Mexico, killing the pilot and four sailors on the ship. The next day, a sailor fell off the carrier USS Carl Vinson north of Wake Island in the Pacific Ocean and was presumed lost, and an F/A-18 pilot dropped a 500-pound bomb on the guided missile cruiser USS Reeves in the Indian Ocean, injuring five sailors and blowing a 5-foot hole in the ship's bow.

On October 31, three sailors and a reported $4 million worth of non-nuclear missiles were swept by a wave from the carrier USS Eisenhower near Cape Hatteras, N.C. One sailor was missing and presumed dead. The next day, nine sailors suffered smoke inhalation, and four of those were treated for burns, after a boiler fire aboard the USS Monongahela, some 500 miles west of Gibraltar.

Israel OKs Jewish settlement in Gaza

JERUSALEM (AP) — Palestinians on Sunday hanged a suspected pro-Israeli collaborator from a lamppost in a Gaza Strip refugee camp and fatally stabbed another in the West Bank, residents said.

Also Sunday, the government approved the establishment of a Jewish settlement in the occupied Gaza Strip, Israel radio said.

The United States and European nations oppose new settlements in the occupied lands, saying they are an obstacle to peace. The approval came three days before Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir visits Washington. More than 70,000 Israelis live in about 130 settlements in Gaza and the occupied West Bank.

In the Jabaliya refugee camp in Gaza, the body of Ahmed Mohammed Jamil Shehadeh, 28, was found hanging from a lamppost early Sunday. Arab reporters said he had been kidnapped by four men and was suspected of collaborating with Israel.

In the West Bank village of Idna, masked Palestinians stabbed and mortally wounded Abdel Hamid Nassar Tmaizi, 40, Arab reports and hospital officials said. The army confirmed Tmaizi's death and suggested that criminal motives were behind the slaying, but it did not elaborate.

On May 19, three armed guerrillas attacked Tmaizi's house, but he escaped unharmed when a three-vehicle army convoy came to his rescue. An Israeli army sergeant and all three Arab enforcers were killed in an ensuing gun battle.

Sunday's deaths brought to 146 the number of Palestinians killed by other Palestinians, most on suspicion of assisting Israeli authorities in the 23-month-old uprising against Israeli occupation of the West Bank and Gaza Strip.

At least 613 Palestinians have been killed by Israeli soldiers or civilians in the uprising, and 40 Israelis have been killed.

The government approved of a new settlement in the northern Gaza Strip, Israel radio said.

Zvi Hender, the head of the Gaza Coast Regional council, told Israel radio that foundation work would begin on the settlement this week and the first 10 families would probably move into temporary quarters in a few weeks.

Raj Mohan Gandhi challenges incumbent Gandhi

AMETHI, India (AP) — Rajiv Gandhi, the prime minister, lands outside a big town, the clatter and windstream of his helicopter's rotor blades churning up reminders of the power and money he has pumped into his electoral district.

Raj Mohan Gandhi, a 54-year-old writer and political novice, bumps down dirt lanes in a venerable white sedan, telling villagers barely touched by the 20th century why they should vote for him instead of the prime minister.

It's an uphill battle for the challenger, even though he is the grandson of beloved independence leader Mahatma Gandhi.

He is unrelated to the prime minister, whose name also evokes rich pages of Indian history. Rajiv Gandhi is the grandson of Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru and the son of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi.

Most people in the Amethi parliamentary district are poor, many are illiterate, but they know the power of the office of prime minister. They know that even if Raj Mohan Gandhi defeats Rajiv Gandhi in this month's election, Raj Mohan will be just another member of Parliament — not prime minister.

Still, there are rumblings of discontent with the government. Despite an impressive construction boom in towns like Amethi and Gauriganj since the last elections in 1984, there are villages a few miles away where people wonder why they do not also have electricity.

Across the road from a modern steel plant, farmers wonder why laborers were imported from other states for jobs they wanted for their sons.

In the larger towns, unemployed young men with high school educations and engineering degrees talk about corruption and an arms scandal that has dogged the government.

However, in Jais and Gauriganj, cities of several thousand people on a narrow but well-maintained blacktop road, it's hard to believe anyone except the prime minister is running for the seat he has held since 1981.

Posters with his portrait are plastered on shops and hang from lightposts. The orange, white and green colors of his Congress Party — also the colors of the Indian national flag — are festooned across the streets.

In a 10-hour drive through the Amethi constituency barely two weeks before the election that starts November 22 and ends November 26, not a single portrait of Raj Mohan Gandhi was spotted. The solid green banners of the Janata Dal party he represents were seldom seen outside Amethi town.

Raj Mohan Gandhi has an answer for this.

In Misrauli, outside Amethi, he tells villagers: "Each Rajiv Gandhi poster costs 10 rupees (62 cents). For that, you could feed your families today."

His listeners nod in agreement and say they'll vote for him. He drives through Khushyal village a few miles away on a bone-jarring dirt road and doesn't stop. In his wake, though, the inhabitants of the mud and thatch houses say they too will vote for this tall, slim, scholarly looking man.

George Shultz joins pro-legalization echelons

WASHINGTON (AP) — The conversion of former Secretary of State George Shultz has experts predicting others from across the political spectrum will join ranks with those who see decriminalization as a workable solution to the drug problem.

National drug control policy director William Bennett acknowledges that Shultz may draw others with him, but argues that legalization is a "dopey idea" and a "moral disaster" that won't wash with anyone who has been "within five miles of a crack house."

Nevertheless, legalization proponents are trumpeting an October speech by Shultz that appeared in The Wall Street Journal as a major step toward moving the once-radical viewpoint into the mainstream.

The political mix of legalization advocates is already broad. On the conservative side are Shultz, who headed President Ronald Reagan's State Department, and President Richard Nixon's Treasury Department, economist Milton Friedman and political commentator William Buckley. The liberal side includes Democratic Mayor Kurt Schmoke of Baltimore, a former prosecutor, Hodding Carter, journalist and chief State Department spokesman in the Carter administration, and former Attorney General Ramsey Clark.

"The liberal-conservative definitions keep crumbling," Princeton University's Ethan Nadelmann said in an interview. "Each is split into libertarian and social control groups."

Some legalization advocates say the issue simply needs to be addressed, while others call for controlled legalization with alcohol-like regulations for drugs such as marijuana, and more restrictive rules for more dangerous drugs.

Most say President George Bush's anti-drug strategy, developed by Bennett, is more of the same law enforcement programs that have not worked in the past.

In an open letter to Bennett published in The Wall Street Journal on September 7 — two days after Bush presented the strategy in a prime-time television address — Friedman wrote: "The path you propose of more police, more jails, use of the military in foreign countries, harsh penalties for drug users, and a whole panoply of repressive measures can only make a bad situation worse. The drug war cannot be won by those tactics without undermining the human liberty and individual freedom that you and I cherish."

The column by Shultz — like Friedman, a denizen of the Hoover Institution at Stanford University — was less vitriolic but made similar arguments.

"It seems to me we're not really going to get anywhere until we can take the criminality out of the drug business and the incentives for criminality out of it," Shultz wrote. "Frankly, the only way I can think of to accomplish this is to make it possible for addicts to buy drugs at some regulated place at a price that approximates their cost. . . . We need at least to consider and examine forms of controlled legalization of drugs."

Shultz declined to be interviewed for this article.

11-year-old boy killed outside drug house

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — An 11-year-old boy was shot to death after knocking on the door of a suspected drug house, police said. The suspect in custody Sunday is 14.

Police said they found Frederick Jones lying in the street after receiving a report of a shooting about 5 p.m. Saturday. The boy was taken to a hospital where he died about an hour later from a shot to the chest.

"There is no motive," said Sgt. Pete Edlund of the homicide unit. "He knocked on the door, a guy said, 'Who is it?' then the door opened" and a shot was fired.

Edlund said police recovered weapons at the house. He would not say whether a drug transaction was involved, but he said it is not unusual to see children in the drug trade.

"We see 8-, 9- and 10-year-olds running drugs and selling them in the street," he said.

The suspect will be referred to juvenile court, which will decide whether he should stand trial as an adult.

State police commander fired over tapings

HARTFORD, Conn. — Gov. William O'Neill fired the state police commander Sunday after revelations that the police secretly tape-recorded telephone calls between suspects and their attorneys.

The governor said he believed Commander Lester Forst's assertion that he wasn't aware of the scope of the taping system, but he said Forst had to go "because the people have to be assured that their police department is on their side."

O'Neill named former Hartford Police Chief Bernard Sullivan to replace Forst as state police commander and public safety commissioner.

In a four-sentence letter to the governor, Forst said he was resigning with "profound regret." O'Neill said he had asked for Forst's resignation.

"I have not violated any laws nor have I condoned any wrongdoing. However, it has been my training for over 27 years to serve the best interests of the state of Connecticut and the Department of Public Safety," he wrote.

The firing had been anticipated since The Hartford Courant disclosed the tapings on Tuesday.

Calls between suspects and their attorneys were taped as part of a system that recorded all incoming and outgoing calls at the state police's 12 regional barracks.

Large turnout for Peruvian elections

LIMA, Peru — Thousands of Peruvians defied rebel threats and voted Sunday in mayoral elections. Maoist guerrillas trying to disrupt the balloting killed a candidate and blew up a church and a school.

Polls opened at 8 a.m. and were to close at 3 p.m., but they were kept open another two hours in Lima because of the lines of people waiting to cast ballots. Voting was slower in the Andean highlands, where a rebel-decreed strike paralyzed public transportation.

Results were not expected until late Monday.

The mayoral election in Lima has always been considered a key reflector of political strength and separate exit polls by television Channels 4 and 5 in Lima late Sunday projected television personality Ricardo Belmont would win the race.

Belmont, a political independent and owner of television Channel 11, campaigned with the promise "Action, not words."

The main parties with candidates in the municipal races are the United Left, a Marxist-led alliance, and the Democratic Front, a center-right coalition headed by novelist Mario Vargas Llosa who is favored to win the presidential race in April.

Vargas Llosa called Sunday's vote "very important to the future of our country . . . to demonstrate that Peruvians do not fear the extremist minorities that want to destroy our democracy."

Chinese quake victims to resume school

BEIJING — Children whose schools were destroyed in a series of earthquakes last month in northern China will resume classes in heated tents, an official report said Sunday.

The earthquakes struck Shanxi province about 140 miles west of Beijing from early to mid-October. The strongest measured 7.1 on the Richter scale and toppled more than 27,000 homes.

At least 29 people were killed and 150 injured, news reports said. More than 50,000 were reportedly left homeless.

The quakes destroyed 2,350 classrooms, the official Xinhua news agency said Sunday.

Local authorities set aside $160,000 to rebuild the schools and buy 300 tents so classes could start again, Xinhua said.

The tents were taken to the area Friday, but the report did not say when classes would resume.

Abortion-rights activists begin series of protests

The Associated Press

Abortion-rights activists, fresh from electoral triumphs in New Jersey and Virginia, began a nationwide series of protests Sunday with candles at dawn in a small Maine coastal town, hoping to illuminate the "darkness of back-alley despair."

The events played upon President George Bush's "thousand points of light" theme with a sunrise candlelight service in Kennebunk, Maine, near Bush's vacation retreat, and a sunset vigil in San Francisco.

Pro-choice activists were energized last week by the success of gubernatorial candidates in Virginia and New Jersey who support the right to an abortion.

In Washington tens of thousands of demonstrators jammed the Mall, filling the area between the Lincoln Memorial and the Washington Monument.

U.S. Park Police estimated the crowd by early afternoon at 150,000, said Lt. W.T. Lynch. Organizers, however, estimated the turnout at 300,000.

"Turn up the heat across the nation," Sen. Alan Cranston (D-Calif.), urged the crowd that waved signs and chanted pro-choice slogans for about five hours on a sunny, mild autumn day. "While the other side is out bombing (abortion) clinics, we'll be electing candidates and passing laws."

"Today is historic and it marks for all of us no turning back," said Molly Yard, president of the National Organization for Women. "This will be the issue of 1990."

In Los Angeles' Rancho Park, Rev. Jesse Jackson told a celebrity-laden crowd estimated by police at 20,000 that women aren't "puppets of the court." "We are creatures of a creator who endowed us with choice," Jackson said. "In our society, women are burdened with choices, and they must have the freedom to choose a response to those burdens."

Speakers at several rallies linked support for abortion rights to the struggle for freedom in the Communist bloc.

"Anti-choice is our Berlin Wall, and together, we will make it fall forever," actor and activist Gloria Steinem told about 1,300 people in Atlanta.

Greek freighter damages reef; U.S. prosecutors seize vessel

MIAMI (AP) — Federal prosecutors filed suit Sunday against the owners of a Greek freighter for damaging the environment when the vessel ran aground on a fragile coral reef off the Florida Keys.

U.S. marshals seized the 470-foot MV Elpis on Saturday after it was floated off the reef by high tide. The vessel, laden with sugar and bound for Mexico from the Netherlands, ran aground about 5 miles off Key Largo late Friday.

It was the third ship to run aground off the Keys in less than three weeks. All hit at night, but in fair weather in areas marked by navigational lights.

Federal agents boarded the ship late Saturday and moved it to anchorage off Miami Beach, Diane Cossin, a spokeswoman for the U.S. Department of Justice in Miami, said Sunday. Marshals then went aboard and served a warrant to keep the ship there, she said.

"We are filing charges against the ship and the ship's owners, alleging damage to the reef and the consequent future damage to the ecosystem within the (Key Largo) National Marine Sanctuary," she said.

The government will seek to recover damages and costs of recovery, but Cossin wouldn't cite specific figures until federal marine scientists make a report.

The Justice Department has filed a $9 million lawsuit against the Yugoslav freighter Mavro Vetrican, which ran aground off the Keys late last month, alleging the ship was unseaworthy and the crew incompetent.

A Coast Guard board of inquiry is to convene Monday to investigate the Elpis grounding and question crew members, said Captain Herbert Robinson, commanding officer of the Coast Guard Marine Safety Office in Miami.

The crew was not tested for drug or alcohol use, the Coast Guard said.

'Cats': insignificant, but catchy

Steve Cruse
The Daily Iowan

"Cats" is vivid and cheerful, and relentlessly audience-friendly; it shows us pretty things without expecting anything in return. Unpretentious and unchallenging, it just keeps whirling along, coming up with enough catchy tunes and clever sight gags to make at least partially for the lack of a plot (T.S. Eliot, upon whose poems "Cats" is based, wasn't thoughtful enough to provide a libretto). The entire show is a whimsical parade of feline characters, one after the other; they're introduced, then discarded, and no significant connections ever develop among them. It's like watching MTV: You start trancing out, thinking, "Gee, I wonder what the next cat will look like."

The opening night performance of "Cats" at Hancher Friday wasn't a gala affair on the level of, say, "Les Miserables," the show has, after all, been to Iowa City before (in 1987). But the audience was large and, fortunately, enthusiastic. The play's tone was evident even before the action started onstage: I liked the forthright cheesiness of the Christmas lights strung up along the walls, and the way the performers ran down the darkened aisles to flash their electric eyes at the audience. When the cats finally slinked onstage, there was a certain amount of electricity in their movement: Their costumes were cunningly decadent, and their makeup was like a violent tattoo.

Musically, "Cats" was often better than competent. The show's Big Number is of course "Memory" — even if you haven't seen the show, you've probably heard David Letterman's dead-on parody. As sung by Holly Cruz as the cat Sillabub, it effectively evoked the isolation expressed in Eliot's "Rhapsody on a Windy Night" (from which the lyric borrows a few lines). It was during this song, with the sight of the cats staring longingly at the moon, that the show achieved the closest bond with the audience (Of course, it's also camp — anyone who can't chuckle at the sight of an angst-ridden feline doing an Anthony Newley impersonation is, to put it bluntly, missing something significant).

Actually, the best tunes were the rocking odes to mystical hedonism sung by the Rum Tum Tugger (Bradford Minkoff), and Mr. Mistoffelees (Joey Pizzi). Minkoff stole the proverbial show, playing his tail like a guitar and kick-stepping across the stage like an amalgam of Chuck Berry and Mick Jagger (Amusingly, he didn't stick around onstage for the mushy numbers).

Despite such occasional flourishes, though, the choreography was nothing special. Most of the time the performers moved in unison, strutting around and flicking their claws at each other, turning the stage into a writhing mass of furry body gloves.

The characters' incessant attempt to explain the concept of "jellie cats" became tiresome; slinking around the stage on all fours, they whispered and hissed en masse, trying to send chills up the audience's collective spine. But the ominousness was forced, and mostly unintelligible; it's doubtful even an Eliot scholar could tell what they were saying. Not that it mattered; the fact that the characters were cats was pretty much irrelevant until the final number, "The Ad-Dressing of Cats," which attempted to give the entire play a tidy but (by then) pointless rationale.

"Cats" opened on Broadway in 1983, when America was going through a bit of a cat craze: Garfield was still reasonably cute, and there was a Persian on the cover of Time (caption: "Cats: Love 'Em! Hate 'Em!"). But seven years down the road, the sheen is worn; the gimmick has lost its immediacy, and seeing it played out with such practiced verve seems quaint and a little sad.

It's worth noting that real cats — domestic ones, anyway — would rather scratch out each other's eyes than hang in packs. "Cats" isn't really about cats as we know them — but the society it describes is also too patriarchal and primitive to be a metaphor for modern human society. The action onstage creates its own exclusive weird world; we can watch and be entertained, but it's impossible to take seriously. The show is two and a half hours of consummate tacky charm.

Michigan edges closer to Big Ten crown

In the end, Michigan showed why it's the defending Big Ten champion and on track to represent the conference in the Rose Bowl.

"This was vintage Michigan," Illinois fullback Howard Griffith said after the Wolverines' 24-10 victory over the Illini Saturday at Champaign. "Michigan has been tough for 30 years."

Michigan took a 17-10 halftime lead, then shut down a powerful Illinois offense for the rest of the game to take undisputed control of first place in the Big Ten, with a 6-0 record.

Elsewhere in the Big Ten, Michigan State beat Minnesota 21-7, Indiana battered Wisconsin 45-17 and Purdue defeated Northwestern 46-15.

While Michigan still could be derailed in its drive for the roses, Saturday's victory was a big step in that direction.

"I smell them (the roses) a little bit," admitted Michigan's Tony Boles, who broke free for a 73-yard run in the first minute of the game. Boles collected 115 yards on nine carries and scored twice.

"We're tremendously pleased," said Wolverine coach Bo Schembechler. "Illinois has a very, very fine football team. We had to play at our best and I thought we did that."

Schembechler is now 19-1-1 against Illinois.

"We played our hearts out, but it wasn't enough," said Illinois quarterback Jeff George, who completed 22 of 38 passes for 253 yards.

Illinois could still make it to the Rose Bowl, but it would have to win its two remaining games, with Ohio State winning its remaining pair of games, including the season finale over Michigan.

Spartans 21, Gophers 7

In East Lansing, Michigan State's Courtney Hawkins caught nine passes for 197 yards, including two touchdowns, in the victory over Minnesota.

Quarterback Dan Enos completed 13 of 26 for 240 yards for the Spartans, 5-4, 4-2.

Hoosiers 45, Badgers 17

Indiana, 5-4, 3-3, had little trouble handing Wisconsin its sixth loss in seven conference games, keeping the Hoosiers' slim bowl hopes alive.

Hoosier tailback Anthony Thompson set an NCAA rushing record with 377 yards on 52 carries. The previous record of 357 yards was set by Rueben Mayes of Washington State in 1984.

Boilermakers 46, Wildcats 15

Purdue had failed to score a first-quarter point all season until last-place Northwestern came to West Lafayette.

Using three blocked punts, the Boilermakers scored 32 points in the first period on their way to handing the Wildcats their ninth consecutive loss this season.

Michigan's Jarrod Bunch, center, goes over Illinois defense Saturday to score a touchdown in the first quarter of the Illini's game with the Wolverines in Champaign, Ill. Michigan won 24-10, taking the inside track to the Rose Bowl.

Irish break school mark with victory

(AP) — No. 1 Notre Dame (10-0) won its 22nd straight, a school record, in its mismatch with Southern Methodist. Ricky Walters also set an Irish record with a 97-yard punt return for a touchdown.

Notre Dame's previous mark of 21 consecutive victories was set under coach Frank Leahy from 1946-48. The longest college football winning streak is Oklahoma's 47 games from 1953-57.

The Mustangs were so overwhelmed that, trailing 33-6, punter Casey Clyce backed out of the end zone in the second quarter and took a safety rather than give Notre Dame a chance to return the ball for a touchdown.

In other games involving ranked teams, it was No. 2 Colorado 41, Oklahoma State 17; No. 4 Alabama 32, Louisiana State 16; No. 6 Nebraska 51, Kansas 14; No. 7 Miami 24, No. 14 Pittsburgh 3; No. 9 Southern Cal 24, No. 25 Arizona 3; No. 10 Arkansas 19, Baylor 10; No. 11 Tennessee 52, Akron 9; No. 12 Auburn 38, Louisiana Tech 23.

Also: No. 13 Penn State 13, Maryland 13; No. 15 Houston 47, Texas 9; No. 18 Virginia 32, Virginia Tech 25; No. 19 West Virginia 21, Rutgers 20; Georgia 17, No. 20 Florida 10; No. 21 Brigham Young 44, Air Force 35; Duke 35, No. 22 N. Carolina State 26; No. 23 Texas Tech 37, Texas Christian 7, and No. 24 Fresno State 45, New Mexico State 5.

No. 2 Colorado 41, Ok. St. 17

Darian Hagan rushed for two touchdowns and passed for another, and Colorado scored 24 points in the second quarter to erase a 10-0 Oklahoma State lead. J.J. Flannigan ran for 143 yards and a touchdown for the Buffaloes (10-0).

Flannigan had 64 of his rushing yards, and Hagan had all five of his completions and 118 passing yards in the second quarter.

Colorado can clinch the Big Eight championship and an Orange Bowl berth by beating Kansas State next week.

No. 4 Alabama 32, LSU 16

Alabama clinched a tie for the Southeastern Conference title by beating Louisiana State. Siran Stacy ran for 211 yards and three touchdowns, one a 72-yarder, for the Crimson Tide (9-0).

Alabama needs a victory over Auburn on Dec. 2 to win the title outright and earn a trip to the Sugar Bowl.

No. 6 Nebraska 51, Kansas 14

Gerry Gdowski threw for three touchdowns and 105 yards, giving him 1,101 for the season. He also rushed for 75 yards, giving him 903 for the season.

Ken Clark rushed for 177 yards and two touchdowns for the Cornhuskers (9-1) and helping give coach Tom Osborne his 17th straight season of nine or more victories, 21 in all for Nebraska.

No. 7 Miami 24, No. 14 Pitt 3

Steve McGuire, subbing for injured fullback Leonard Conley, ran for 114 yards and a touchdown as Miami's defense refused to give a touchdown for the fifth time in 10 games.

Craig Erickson, whose grandfather was a star guard at Pitt in the 1930s, passed for 199 yards and a touchdown for Miami (8-1), which apparently is headed for the Sugar Bowl.

No. 9 USC 24, No. 25 Arizona 3

Southern Cal (8-2) clinched its third straight Pac-10 title and an automatic Rose Bowl berth. Ricky Ervins rushed for 151 yards, giving him 1,096 for the season. On the first play of the game, he ran for 50 yards to the Arizona 1, setting up a USC field goal.

Southern Cal's defense, third nationally against the rush, held Arizona to 158 on the ground, well short of their 245-yard average.

On The Line turns into 2-man contest

If Lou Holtz ever wears out his welcome at Notre Dame, the Fighting Irish need only venture to humble Iowa City to find a logical replacement. On Saturday, Holtz was the model of decorum and sportsmanship, instructing his players to hold down on a scoring onslaught against a hapless SMU team.

Elsewhere in the Midwest, Iowa's Hayden Fry was apparently employing a similar tactic against the Ohio State Buckeyes. Forget the "running up the score" spectacles of Fry's past. The Holtz philosophy is now in vogue: Excessive scoring is impolite. Gentlemen prefer punts.

Unlike Holtz's triumphant Irish, however, Fry's troops were perfectly polite. No rude outbursts of touchdowns, nor field goals, nor safeties blemished the final score.

The Hawkeyes' well-mannered afternoon even helped tidy up the ongoing OTL celebrity staffer race. Assistant Sports Editors Erica Weiland and Kerry Anderson, favoring courtesy over logic, picked Iowa to upset the Buckeyes. Weiland is now seven games behind the leader, while Anderson started half-way through the season and was never in the running.

Now the race gets tight.

Managing Editor Joe Levy, highly touted as the newsroom's tallest staffer, held a two-game lead coming into this week's contest. And that's where he stayed, holding off the competition with his 8-2 week. Close behind, frantically wiping Levy's road grit from his glasses, is Sports Editor Bryce "Hot Wheels" Miller, who went 7-3 this week.

Levy and Miller. Not since Bobby Riggs squared off against Billie Jean King has there been such an unlikely match-up. It may take a spirited round of rock-paper-scissors to see which staffer dons the spring dress for the final OTL rounds, but suffice it to say that the heat is on. And if you can't stand the heat, get out of the kitchen. And if it isn't the heat, it's the humidity. And, as Whitesnake sings, in the heat of the night when my heart feels heavy, its telling me I gotta have more.

You get the point.

Speaking of points, another eleven OTL players racked up the points to emerge slightly scathed but triumphant in last week's competition. Perched atop the withering OTL Week Nine slag heap is Lonnie Yoder, who has already amassed a veritable closet-full of graphically striking and flagrantly glamorous OTL T-Shirts.

For his winning effort, Lonnie wins a $25 gift certificate from World of Bikes. Lonnie said he plans to use the prize as an added element in his undying effort to eradicate hunger and facilitate peace on a global scale.

Patricia Young, John Ashby, Tom Stueck, Lance Goetz, Gary Sanders, Steve Reschley, Paul Vetter, Jim Whetstone, Alan Young and Tim Meyer will all on OTL shirts, appropriate with both blazer and clinging Speedo swimsuit.

Hoosier runs wild

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Anthony Thompson has added another NCAA record to his Heisman Trophy resume, but says he could care less. Records and awards don't make him go.

The Indiana tailback isn't counting touchdowns, even though he's scored an NCAA-record 64 in his regular-season career for the Hoosiers.

And Saturday he wasn't keeping track of his mileage, when he ran around and through Wisconsin's defense for an NCAA-record 377 yards on a bone-tiring 52 carries.

"I'm not really concerned about the Heisman. I'm more concerned with next week's game against Illinois. It's a big game for us," Thompson said.

"Hoosiers and weaves. I know that sounds like a boxer but it's true," Wisconsin linebacker Tim Knoeck said.

And Thompson wasn't even tired, despite his school-record 52 carries. That's because the Hoosiers were winning.

Chiefs' All-Pro breaks arm

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Pro Bowl noseguard Bill Maas of the Kansas City Chiefs suffered a broken left arm Sunday on the next-to-last play in Denver's 16-13 victory.

Maas, a 6-year veteran and leader of what has been the best Chiefs' defense in more than 10 years, was hurt on the play that Steve Sewell carried to the 9-yard line to set up David Treadwell's 26-yard field goal in the final seconds. There was no immediate word on whether he would return this season.

Out of position

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Atlanta quarterback Chris Miller, called on to kick when placekicker Paul McFadden was injured in pre-game warmups, booted a 25-yard field goal in a 45-3 loss to San Francisco on Sunday.

Miller hooked the kick through the uprights and raised his arms jubilantly in the air as his smiling Falcons teammates congratulated him.

McFadden suffered a right thigh sprain and was ruled out for the game. Running back Keith Jones took over the kickoff duties.

Miller, in his third year out of Oregon, had never attempted a field goal in the NFL.

An all-around athlete, Miller made the national finals of the NFL's Punt, Pass and Kick competition four times and the semifinals once between the ages of 8 and 13.

He also has played minor-league baseball in the Seattle Mariners' farm system, is a near-scratch golfer who can drive the ball over 300 yards, and was a star basketball player as a youth in Eugene, Ore.

Vegas classic won in sudden death

LAS VEGAS (AP) — Charles Coody sank a six-foot birdie putt on the second hole of sudden death to earn his first victory in three years on the Senior Tour, winning the Las Vegas Classic at the Desert Inn on Sunday.

Coody, who entered the final round one stroke ahead of Al Geiberger and Tom Shaw, beat out Bob Charles and Chi Chi Rodriguez after shooting an 11-under-par 205 in regulation.

He shot a bogey-free 69 and used a key save of par on the final hole of regulation to forge his way into his first professional playoff. Charles and Rodriguez, playing one group ahead, also finished at 11-under with six birdies each in the final round on the 6,800-yard, par-72 resort hotel layout.

With a chance to win with a birdie at 18, Coody hit a strong drive that left him with a 110-yard approach to the pin. He left his second shot 10 yards short of the green, however, and then salvaged par from six feet.

Close... but no cigar

TEMPE, Ariz. (AP) — Backup quarterback Tom Tupa threw a 72-yard touchdown pass to Ernie Jones with 58 seconds remaining Sunday, giving the Phoenix Cardinals a wild 24-20 victory over the Dallas Cowboys.

After Dallas (1-9) had taken a 20-17 lead on a 75-yard bomb from Troy Aikman to James Dixon with 1:43 left, Tupa lofted a third-down pass to Jones along the sidelines.

Jones caught the ball in stride at midfield and raced untouched into the end zone for his second touchdown of the game as Phoenix improved its record to 5-5.

Gladu said. "They are so quick and they work well together. I'd put my money on them next weekend."

All the top seeds moved on to the national semifinals. No. 1 Old Dominion got past Massachusetts 2-1, while the Tar Heels earned the final with Iowa by posting a 2-1 win against Northeastern.

Midwest Collegiate Field Hockey Conference foe Northwestern, tied for fourth in the nation, filled the last slot in a 3-2 victory over Pennsylvania.

The Wildcats meet Old Dominion Saturday to determine the other participant in the national-title game set for Sunday.

"Now we have to finish it up," Walsh, one of five seniors on the team, said. "We've been playing together for a long time and we're ready.

"I want Old Dominion." A year ago the Lady Monarchs edged the Hawkeyes 2-1 for the national title in rainy conditions at Franklin Field in Philadelphia. The Iowa seniors were on the only team to claim a national crown in 1986.

One goal stopped the Hawkeyes from gaining their second last year. And it doesn't take much prodding for Iowa to remember that fact.

Hawkeyes take third at districts

Tough breaks plagued the Iowa women's cross country team as they could only manage a third-place finish this weekend at the District IV NCAA meet at Ypsilanti, Mich.

Indiana's Michelle Dekkers won the individual title in a time of 16 minutes, 47.04 seconds. While only the top two teams have automatic berths to the championships, the Hawks still have a shot at receiving an at-large bid.

50th, and Wendy Welch in 65th. Hassard commented that Brower had a remarkable finish considering the fact she had to come from far back in the pack. "I was happy with my race," Brower said. "Last year I finished in 41st; this year I finished 20th."

back really well. After the race, Hassard said the third-place showing may have been a blessing if Iowa does turn out to be one of the teams chosen to receive the at-large berth. "I've seen many teams come back much stronger after a loss," Hassard said. "The race is very stressful; it's like a bottle-neck. Everything has to come through it to go to the championships."

Men start out slow, finish 16th in meet

Pat Axmeier
The Daily Iowan
Despite a 16th place finish, the Iowa men's cross country team took a step toward its goal this weekend of building a winning program at the NCAA District meet in Ypsilanti, Mich.

"I think it was a real learning experience," Iowa coach Larry Wiczorek said. "It was not disappointing because we put forth the effort. It was our first district meet as team. The results were not due to lack of trying."

went out too slow and couldn't make it up. "I think we will learn from this. We are in the process of building our program; being (at districts) gives us a big step. Now we need to make the commitment to make the bigger step."

Running two more kilometers than most events, and the rain-soaked ground added even more of a challenge to the meet. "The course was real tough because it was wet and slippery," Wiczorek said. "Because of my race plan, the pack got broken up. There are so many people it's hard once people start to break away."

INSIDE SPORTS

The Michigan Wolverines are on track to represent the Big Ten at the Rose Bowl after defeating the Fighting Illini 24-10 Saturday. See page 10

Iowa field hockey player Cherie Freddie moves the ball down the field Sunday in the Hawkeyes' 5-0 win over Providence. That win takes Iowa to the semifinals of the NCAA tournament to be held next weekend in Springfield, Mass., where they will face North Carolina.

Hawks stroll to fourth-consecutive final four

Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

No. 3 Iowa put an exclamation point — and a goose egg — at the end of a long-awaited road to its fourth-consecutive NCAA final four.

The Hawkeyes routed No. 6 Providence 5-0 Sunday at the Iowa Field Hockey Field to advance to a national semifinal game against second-ranked North Carolina Saturday in Springfield, Mass.

"There's been a tremendous amount of pressure on this team," Iowa coach Beth Beglin said. "Since even before the first organized practice, people were asking where you were going to stay for the final four."

"That's something that's tough to live up to and it makes it really difficult."

A record crowd of 951 watched Iowa score first on forward Melissa Sanders' shot inside the circle with nearly nine minutes gone in the game. The Hawkeyes' second score came when senior sweeper Erin Walsh wound up and cranked a ball from nearer to midfield than the Providence cage.

The ball sailed by the goalkeeper at 21:25 of the first.

The boisterous crowd smashed the total of 531 set against Michigan State in 1987. It was only the fourth game Iowa had played on the new facility in 1989.

Just before the end of the half, senior forward Erica Richards kept her string of perfection alive, hitting her seventh penalty corner in seven tries on the season.

After the official handed Richards the ball, she knelt and put her head down, taking several seconds before depositing the ball in the right-hand corner of the cage.

"I just kept saying this is just like practice," Richards said. "I knew I was 100 percent and I didn't look at the goalkeeper because that can psyche you out."

Richards opened the second-half scoring on an assist from Kris Fillat. At the 22:38 mark, Sanders wrapped up the scoring with her second goal of the contest.

"They have strength at every position," Providence coach Jackie See Field Hockey, Page 11

Hawks prove skeptics wrong with victories

Erica Welland
The Daily Iowan

While some people may have had doubts about this year's men's swimming and diving team, the Hawkeyes dispelled those insecurities by defeating both Purdue and Minnesota last weekend at the Field House Pool.

Iowa handed the Boilermakers a 61-52 loss Friday night, capturing first place in all but four events.

Saturday morning, the Hawkeyes returned to the pool and earned a 65-48 win over the Gophers in what was expected to be Iowa's toughest dual meet of the year.

"We're real happy," Iowa swimming coach Glenn Patton said. "We had two really good meets. The one with Minnesota was particularly gratifying since it was our biggest dual meet of the year, and it was a conference win."

The doubts about how successful the Hawkeyes will be this year have come from the graduation of some key athletes and the loss of several others for different reasons.

But starting off the season with a first-place finish at the North-western Relays Nov. 5, and at 2-0 in dual-meet competition has given the team added assurance.

"We were kind of down (when the team lost some swimmers), but we have a good team left," backstroke Matt Smith said. "I think a lot of that was just blown out of proportion. We have a lot of potential talent."

In Saturday's competition, Smith, a freshman from Scottsdale, Ariz., swam the leading leg in Iowa's first-place 400-yard medley relay squad, which was a key event for the Hawkeyes, according to Patton.

"We weren't expecting to win the medley relay," the coach said. "I thought we'd have to play catch-up."

Another surprise for Patton came when junior Jamie Morrow finished first in the 3-meter diving competitions, Friday and second on the 3-meter board Saturday.

Morrow, who in the past has taken a backseat to Hawkeye senior and Polish Olympian Tomek Rossa, was the only Iowa diver to compete in the 3-meter events last weekend since Rossa sprained his neck at practice last Monday.

"Jamie Morrow was very instrumental in scoring, especially with winning (Friday) night," Patton said. "We weren't expecting that."

"I'd hoped (I'd do well), but I was surprised," Morrow said. "I just have to keep working and hope I get better."

Fry erupts while OSU blanks Iowa

Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Ohio State needed a win to keep its Rose Bowl hopes afloat. A gritty Buckeye defense, combined with a troubled Iowa offense, plugged the holes on the boat.

And Buckeye coach John Cooper never once reached for the bilge pump as Ohio State routed the Hawkeyes 28-0 Saturday in front of more than 89,000 at Ohio Stadium.

The win moved the Buckeyes to 6-2 on the year, but more importantly, 5-1 in the Big Ten. In a battle of league leaders, Michigan topped Illinois 24-10 Saturday, opening the door for Cooper's squad.

In the final week of the season, the Wolverines host the Buckeyes in a game that could be for the right to travel to Pasadena.

"I think by far, this is the most complete game we've played so far this season," Cooper said. "The fact that we were able to hold them without a touchdown really speaks well of the effort that our defensive football team put in."

Iowa fell to 4-5 and 2-4.

The shutout of Iowa was the first since Illinois pounded the Hawks 33-0 in 1983. Coach Hayden Fry was constantly frustrated on the sidelines, getting more tosses than Oakland's Dave Stewart in a quake-shaken World Series.

His repertoire of pitches: A headset, a clipboard and his sunglasses. Fry even had a curveball that kept plenty of people, including Iowa quarterback Matt Rodgers, guessing in the third quarter.

Fry yanked Rodgers out of the game after he completed a 12-yard pass to Danan Hughes — then threw him back in after fifth-year senior Tom Poholsky took six snaps.

Fry said Rodgers was constantly ignoring primary receivers that were "wide-open" downfield. Rodgers came out, and Fry grabbed his facemask with the kind of flagrancy that would yield a 15-yard

Hawkeye Tony Stewart attempts to ward off Ohio State linebacker Derek Isaman Saturday while carrying the ball downfield. Stewart ran penalty and a nasty look from an official.

"I don't know why he put me back in," Rodgers said. "Yea, I was surprised. I've never been pulled in a game."

"No, I take that back. I was pulled when I was a holder last year and I screwed up a snap."

On Poholsky's first play, Fry said he checked off a streaking Scott Neuman, opting for Peter Marciano on a 15-yard gain. Fry said he couldn't understand how his quarterbacks were missing a field-full of open receivers.

"We had people wide open and we didn't even look at them," Fry said.

"I thank God for looking after me today," Fry said. "I thought I was going to have a heart attack on the sidelines. This was the most frustrating day in 38 years of coaching."

Ohio State registered 435 yards of total offense, compared to 341 for the Hawkeyes. A week after Iowa recorded six turnovers, a fumble by Rodgers in the first quarter was the only miscue of the game.

The Buckeyes gave up an interception from quarterback Greg Frey on Ohio State's third play from scrimmage. Free safety Eddie Polly stepped in front of a receiver and picked off the errant pass.

Iowa returned the favor on the very next play when Rodgers looked frantically for an outlet, scrambling for what seemed an eternity, then coughed up the ball on a hit by linebacker Alonzo Spellman.

"We did not play well," Fry said. "We made all kinds of mistakes. We were terrible on offense. Our execution was terrible on each side of the ball."

Against Northwestern a week ago, the Buckeyes had three backs hit the century mark. Iowa didn't yield that kind of yardage, but consistent rushing in crucial situations keyed scores.

Running back Scottie Graham opened the scoring with a three-yard burst in the first quarter. He had 86 yards on 19 carries. Dante Lee led the Buckeyes with 99 yards on 13 attempts. Carlos snow had 19 carries for 75 yards.

"I felt good today," Graham said. "We know how important it is to win every game."

Iowa's rushing game wasn't as effective.

On fourth and goal from the Ohio State three with time running out in the first half a crossback trap to running back Lew Montgomery was a yard shy.

"There linebackers commit early on the first fake, so we sent Nick Bell up the middle and they went for it," Fry said. "But they caught him right at the goal line."

Iowa travels to Purdue and Ohio State hosts Wisconsin this week.

Fry said he doesn't even know what to say about the Hawks' increasing odds of snapping a string of eight-straight bowl appearances.

"I have no idea," Fry said.

Errors cause Iowa to drop two games

A number of errors were the downfall of the Iowa volleyball team last weekend, as they lost to both Ohio State and Indiana at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

In the Hawkeyes' 14-16, 15-5, 13-15, 15-6, 17-15 loss to the Buckeyes Friday, 13 service errors were committed by Iowa. Ohio State, which is first in the Big Ten, made 23 service errors, but the Hawkeyes' mistakes seemed to come at key times.

"We had five service errors in the last game," Iowa coach Ruth Nelson, whose team will probably be ranked fourth in the league this week, said. "And three of those were at match point."

After that win slipped through their fingers, the Hawkeyes tearfully left the court, only to return Saturday to a 15-10, 16-14, 15-13 defeat by the Hoosiers.

"It's very depressing," Iowa outside hitter Jenny Rees, who hit 125 Friday and 333 Saturday, said. "We came into (the Ohio State match) more positive; we thought we could take the game. We worked really hard, but there were a lot of mental errors. And tonight was the same thing."

In Saturday's match, Iowa players totalled 24 attack errors, while Indiana committed 16.

According to Nelson, those errors, along with only having six block assists and no solo blocks, was what hurt the team the most.

Nelson seemed a bit surprised at the way her team played against Indiana.

"We've never jumped out like that against anybody," Nelson said. "Indiana is in the bottom five (in the conference). They could have pulled out at any time but they just kept at it."

"We just didn't play well," she continued. "I don't think (the players) thought much about this match at all."

Bears get first win in Pittsburgh since WWII

(AP)—Chicago won in Pittsburgh for the first time since World War II, and that was a good idea. The Bears scored all 20 of their points in the first half, and that wasn't such a good idea.

"I don't think we played any better than they did, but the turnovers were the difference," Bears coach Mike Ditka said. "Any time you shut out a team in the National Football League you have to be encouraged, but we were shut out in the second half, and that's not encouraging."

Jim Harbaugh threw one touchdown pass and set up another, and Chicago turned two of Pittsburgh's six turnovers into 13 points in the final 2:07 of the second quarter for a 20-0 victory Sunday.

Lemuel Stinson had two interceptions, the first thrown by Bubby Brister in eight games, and William "The Refrigerator" Perry had two sacks and a fumble recovery for Chicago (6-4).

Harbaugh kept alive Chicago's first scoring drive with three 9-yard scrambles before Neal Anderson scored from the 2. Harbaugh threw a swing pass to Brad Muster for an 18-yard touchdown with 1:13 left in the first half for Chicago's final points.

The Bears, 0-4-1 since they last won in Pittsburgh in 1944, had lost four of their last five and three in a row on the road. The Steelers (4-6) have been outscored 54-7 in their last two games.

"When you keep making mistakes and turning it over, there's not much of an explanation to anything," Steelers coach Chuck Noll said.

In other games, it was Los Angeles Rams 31, New York Giants 10; San Francisco 45, Atlanta 3; Denver 16, Kansas City 13; Detroit 31, Green Bay 22; Buffalo 30, Indianapolis 7; Miami 31, New York Jets 23;

Minnesota 24, Tampa Bay 20; New Orleans 28, New England 24; Washington 10, Philadelphia 3; Cleveland 17, Seattle 7, and Phoenix 24, Dallas 20.

The Los Angeles Raiders were at San Diego in a Sunday night game, and the Monday night game had Cincinnati at Houston.
