Space shuttle Discovery lands safely, ends secret mission

EDWARDS AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP) — Space shuttle Discovery streaked out of orbit and landed safely Monday at this Mojave Desert air base, ending a secret military mission extended an extra day and then an extra orbit by high winds.

Air Force Col. Frederick Gregory, commander of the five-person crew, guided the winged spaceplane to a touchdown on a concrete runway at 4:30 p.m. PST after a five-day flight that covered nearly 2 million miles.

"Commander Gregory reports wheels stop," said Billie Deason, the Mission Control commentator.

Two sonic booms cracked overhead as Discovery descended through a clear sky and made its sweeping approach to runway 04. Forty-five minutes before touchdown, controllers directed Gregory to shift to 04 from hard-clay runway 17 because of more favorable winds.

The rays of the setting sun shone brilliantly off the shuttle as it made its final approach to a centerline touchdown.

The shuttle landed in light crosswinds of 4 mph and a headwind of about 19 mph, ending the 5-day, 6-minute and 46-second mission in the pink streaks of a setting sun.

Mission Control lifted its curtain of silence on the flight to report 80 minutes before landing that Gregory had successfully fired two braking rockets to drop the shuttle out of orbit and start it on a fiery plunge through the atmosphere.

"The propulsion officer and the crew confirm that the burn was good," control center commentator Deason reported after the 3-minute, 4-second rocket ignition.

The five-day flight reportedly put in orbit a satellite to monitor military communications over a wide area of the globe.

Although as many as half a million people have flocked to this desert air base to watch previous shuttles land, Monday's touchdown was closed to the public because the mission was classified.

Winds gusting to 30 mph forced NASA to call off a landing attempt here on Sunday. It was the sixth time in 32 shuttle missions that a return to Earth has been postponed by bad weather.

Millions of Czechs continue to protest

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Millions of people ignored government pleas and joined a nationwide general strike Monday in the largest and most dramatic demonstration so far for democracy and an end to Communist Party rule.

"We don't want you anymore!" a flag-waving crowd of 200,000 roared in a thunderous chant that echoed off the 19th-century buildings surrounding downtown Wenceslas Square. It was the 11th straight day of massive protests in Czechoslovakia.

Huge crowds of workers also poured into the streets of Bratislava, the east Slovak industrial center of Kosice, the mining center of Ostrava on the Polish border, and in Usti nad Labem, the heart of industrial north Bohemia.

The showing was a resounding victory for the opposition, which had called the two-hour strike a referendum on the Communists' 40-year monopoly on power.

Communist leaders' frantic attempts to avert the strike failed, as workers joined the pro-democracy movement started by students, artists and intellectuals.

Shaken leaders continued to make new concessions to the opposition:

■ The party's Central Committee dumped three more hardliners from the ruling Politburo, the second major leadership reshuffle in three days.

■ The Czech and Slovak ministries of culture announced they Workers from the CKD factories in Prague raise flags on top of a factory building while their comrades assemble on a street, enjoying a nationwide strike Monday afternoon. The government opposition movement led the protest.

had lifted most forms of press censorship.

■ The Central Committee approved an inquiry by a parliamentary commission into a November 17 rally in which riot police clubbed hundreds of peaceful pro-democracy demonstrators.

■ But there were still more conditions to be met. Posters demanding free elections and an end to one-party rule were plastered over the windows of shops, hotels and restaurants that closed to observe the strike.

At Prague's largest industrial complex, CKD, workers demanded the formation of independent trade unions.

Hundreds of thousands of joyous workers streamed into the city's center, carrying banners of their factories, firms and offices in an outpouring of national pride and support for democratic reforms.

Sirens howled and church bells pealed as the strike began at noon.

"Look, Gustav, how thick the crowd is!" the people chanted, referring to President Gustav Husak, the man who headed the crackdown on democratic reforms after a Warsaw Pact invasion in 1968.

"Dubcek to the Castle!" they yelled, referring to Alexander Dubcek, the ousted leader of the failed "Prague Spring" reforms who was replaced as party leader by Husak. See Czech, Page 8

Smiley released early from 2-year probation sentence

Kelly David
 The Daily Iowan

Former UI football player Keaton Smiley was released early from a two-year probation sentence he was serving in connection with the assault of a former UI volleyball player.

Smiley's probation officer recommended that his sentence be ended a month early due to his good behavior, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Smiley was sentenced Nov. 30, 1987, to one year in jail with all but 60 days suspended and a two-year probation term for assaulting former UI volleyball player Cheryl Zematits on June 9, 1987.

Smiley allegedly hit Zematits with his fists while he was wielding a knife and threatened to sexually abuse her, according to court records.

After serving his jail term, Smiley continued to attend classes at the UI and to play UI football.

Smiley was also tried and found innocent of assaulting former UI student Jennifer Lee on May 17, 1986, at The Fieldhouse bar, 111 E. College St.

CAC councilors vote to postpone impeachment trial of McKinley

Ann Marie Williams
 The Daily Iowan

Next Monday's Collegiate Associations Council meeting will include an attempt to hold an impeachment trial of CAC President Vernon McKinley, according to councilors attending a meeting Monday.

The 15 councilors present Monday voted to postpone the trial for one week. Over 30 charges against McKinley had been passed by many of the same councilors two weeks ago and were presented to McKinley as well as members of the UI administration, according to council members.

An ad hoc committee had previously been appointed by council members to look into allegations against McKinley — who has been CAC president since October — resulting in a list of over 30 charges of misconduct.

"I think the impeachment will proceed," said councilor Mike Rogers.

He added that, according to the UI administration, such a decision by the council would be regarded only as a recommendation to impeach.

The administration has not responded to the council on the charges against McKinley, according to councilor Syd Smith. "We're being ignored," she said.

McKinley is expected to attend the next CAC meeting — he had canceled the previous three meetings, although councilors met without the presence of McKinley or his executive board. The councilors present at Monday's meeting discussed how to proceed with their planned impeachment trial.

LeAnne Cabalka, who was elected acting CAC president by the councilors who voted on McKinley's charges, said she received letters last week from Phillip Jones, UI dean of student services, and David Vernon, UI vice president for academic affairs, denouncing her appointment.

The letter from Jones stated that "further misrepresentation" by Cabalka would result in disciplinary action, she added.

Councilors expressed concern that Cabalka would not be able to chair next week's meeting, thus preventing the impeachment trial.

Caller claims 'Extraditables' bombed jet, killing 107

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — A Colombian jetliner crashed on the outskirts of Bogota on Monday shortly after takeoff, and all 107 people aboard were killed. A caller to a radio station claimed drug traffickers bombed the jet.

Witnesses said the Avianca Airlines Boeing 727-100 exploded before it plunged into a hilly area south of the capital, about a mile from a neighborhood of slum houses and factories. Pieces of the jet were found up to six miles from the main point of impact, police said.

Hours later, a man called the radio network Caracol and claimed that a group called The Extraditables blew up the jet to kill five police informants. He said the five gave police information that led to the discovery of the Medellin drug cartel leader's hideout.

The man did not identify himself, and the claim could not be immediately authenticated.

"The plane was flying along when suddenly it exploded, broke in two and fell in flames and smoke," said a witness, Alfonso Moreno, in an interview with Radio Caracol.

"I heard explosions, and I thought there was some problem with transformers in the electrical station, but I looked up and saw a plane explode in the air, and bodies and pieces of luggage were falling," another witness, Mario Vasquez, said.

Two Colombian air force pilots in another plane reported seeing two explosions on the jet, said Col. Jorge Gonzalez, director of Colombia's Civil Aviation Authority.

The airline refused comment on the reports of explosions. Avianca spokeswoman Patricia Duarte said the plane carried 101 passengers and a crew of six and that all were killed. Their nationalities were not immediately known.

No one on the ground was hurt, spokesmen for Colombia's Civil Defense teams said in radio interviews.

Investigators had found no evidence of a bomb, said Col. Edgar Leal, chief of national police for the state. He said the flight recorder had not been found.

Flight 203 was bound for Cali, about 190 miles southwest of Bogota. Cali is the headquarters of one of Colombia's biggest cocaine cartels and has been the site of frequent bombings and other attacks since the government declared war on drug lords in August.

The plane took off from Bogota's El Dorado International Airport at Wreckage from a Colombian airliner spread over six miles after the plane exploded in the air near Bogota.

I.C. adds services for the hearing-impaired

Brian Dick
The Daily Iowan

Iowa City's services for hearing-impaired persons are expanding beyond traditional emergency roles.

Iowa City social services formerly provided only emergency services for people who were hearing-impaired. But the city now has a "social" means of communication for the deaf, said Mary Martinez, director of the Crisis Center.

The Crisis Center, 321 E. First St., is expanding the services it provides to persons with disabilities to include persons with hearing impairments, she said.

The center already operates a suicide intervention network, a food bank, emergency assistance for transients, a clothing program, and provides community education services.

Although the "message relay for the deaf" network began two years ago, deaf persons are only now beginning to utilize the service on a widespread basis, Martinez said.

"Last year, we had 30,000 individuals who benefited from our services," she said, referring to the center's eight services. "Of those, we had 2,000 calls from deaf people last year, which meant we had to make a lot of other calls."

The message relay works when a deaf caller types in a message over a Telecommunication Device for the Deaf to the center to be relayed to some other third party, Martinez explained.

An operator will then phone the person whom the deaf caller has requested and give them the message, she said.

"Most calls come in between normal business hours," Martinez said. "Things like ordering a pizza or having us call someone up for a date — usually the more social things."

The Crisis Center's message relay operates the only service of its kind in Iowa City, but serves hearing-impaired persons well outside the city limits, Martinez said.

"This type of service is not available in other communities," she said. "People have moved here from Cedar Rapids just because of the service we provide."

Martinez said Iowa City, in comparison to major metropolitan areas with larger populations of hearing-impaired persons, is anything but lagging behind with its one major service for the deaf.

"This service isn't everywhere," she said. "We're the leaders in the community with this service," she said.

The Crisis Center serves 50 hearing-impaired clients on a continuing basis, operating between the hours of 8 a.m. and 11 p.m.,

Martinez said.

"They can't (make calls) to other places, so we do this for them," she said. "It gives them a chance to communicate by telephone. They call us by typing on the TDD machine and we respond by typing a message back."

While the Crisis Center's message relay provides the only social service of its kind in Johnson County, the Iowa City public library, police station, fire station and Johnson County Sheriff's department provide emergency services for the deaf, Iowa City Police Department Chief Dispatcher Nancy Sereduck said.

"I'd venture to say we handle a couple of calls a month, either informational or emergency on the TDD," she said. "Deaf persons are instructed not to call the police department for ordering pizzas and things like that."

Residents come home to waterlogged Mayflower

Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

Few UI students returning to Mayflower Residence Hall after Thanksgiving break were prepared for the waiting waterlogged mess in their rooms.

Carpets, ceiling tiles and personal belongings of many fourth-floor residents were drenched with water following a Thursday incident in which, according to UI residence halls officials, "a molded toilet piece and a toilet box gave way."

A fifth-floor toilet leak damaged rooms on the floors below, reportedly soaking clothes even on the second floor.

"We can hardly sleep in here," said UI freshman Brett Elder, who shares the fourth-floor suite below the damaged room. "It really stinks bad in here, and some of our mattresses are still wet. They (UI residence hall officials) haven't offered us any other place to live."

Several residents have been rooming with neighbors and replacing damaged books while the rooms dry out.

Doreen Schmitz, Mayflower Hall Residence Coordinator, said the incident was unfortunate but not negligent, so the UI is not bound contractually to cover the damages.

"This is not a unique situation," she said. "Since I started in July, this has not happened here, but it has happened in other residence halls."

Though similar water damages may have occurred in other residence-hall situations, the fourth-floor residents are not satisfied.

"I think they should have been checking the toilets off and on so something like this wouldn't happen," Elder said.

Posters, books and wallhangings were also damaged by the water running down from the floor above, he said.

"All of our stuff is stacked on the kitchen table, books, posters, it's like a junk heap," he said.

Elder added that his neighbor drained water from a computer, his roommate's stereo is not working, and his own computer may not work because of the incident.

Maintenance workers worked for six hours to clean up the damages to the rooms, Schmitz said.

"Right now the worst part for us is that when the carpet is wet it's smelly," she said.

Schmitz added there are plans in the works to repair the ceiling tiles and shampoo the carpets when they are dry.

Residents in the C-D wing of Mayflower were not notified of the water damage until they returned to school Sunday, Elder said.

Residents were met with letters posted to their doors stating that because this leak was not the result of negligence the UI, residence services does not take responsibility for the damages that have resulted from the mishap.

"I think they're going to give us laundry tokens, but you still can't live in this room because the smell is so bad," Elder said.

Local attorneys offer free advice clinic for low-income residents

Margo Ely
The Daily Iowan

Local private attorneys volunteering at a December 5 "advice clinic" will be offering free legal advice to low-income Johnson County residents. Many UI students are expected to take part due to the closing of UI Student Legal Services.

"The clinic is a way to serve more people," said Susan Dulek, an attorney for Legal Services Corp. of Iowa which participates in a joint effort with the Iowa State Bar Association in organizing the Volunteer Lawyers Project, sponsor of the clinic.

Legal issues that can be resolved in a short period of time, such as bankruptcy, landlord problems and small claims, are usually the subject of inquiry at the clinics, which are held about 10 times a year, Dulek said.

"Many people think they need to claim bankruptcy when in fact it is not an option. Debtor relief or debt counseling is more often the solution," said Dulek.

Two lawyers will meet with people in scheduled half-hour time slots, and walk-ins will also receive advice, she added.

Dulek said eight to 12 people usually attend these "advice clinics."

About 42 lawyers in Johnson County belong to the Volunteer Lawyers Project, which serves low-income people in legal matters — rather than criminal — all year.

Participating attorneys volunteer a certain amount of time to representing indigent people in civil litigation, Dulek said.

"Lawyers ought to do a certain amount of work for free for people who can't afford it," said Randy Larson, a local attorney who is a member of the Volunteer Lawyers Project.

Financial eligibility for attaining free legal advice is based on federal poverty guidelines. Seven counties in the state are served by the Legal Services Corporation of Iowa, and the Iowa City Regional Office has seen an increase in UI students seeking help, Dulek said.

"We're seeing more college students because Student Legal Services is not accepting any new cases until the first of the year," Dulek said.

Dulek said UI students usually seek legal advice in family law and housing matters.

The free clinic will run from 6:30 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. at the Legal Services Corp. of Iowa office, 420 Iowa Ave. Appointments can be made by calling 351-6570 or 1-800-272-0008.

Members of El Salvador panel air personal views

Jean Thilmany
The Daily Iowan

Christian-backed FMLN troops in El Salvador are struggling valiantly against the ARENA government, said four members of a Monday panel discussion on the country's military situation.

The discussion, sponsored by six UI organizations, was preceded by a candlelight picket on the corner of Clinton and Washington streets. The nearly 50 people who attended the picket filed into Phillips Hall to hear four panel members talk of their dealings with El Salvador.

Lisa Everson, whose husband is Salvadoran, spent four months in the country working as a doctor. She returned to the United States on Thanksgiving Day. Everson witnessed the November 11 FMLN offensive attacks on the military. She worked in a San Salvador clinic while bombs were going off overhead.

"We could hear continued strafing, rocketing and bombs exploding," she said. "At about 4 p.m. something hit the roof of the clinic and exploded."

Everson eventually learned she would not be allowed to return to the country as a volunteer visitor unless she left immediately. Her husband is still in El Salvador.

Gil Dawes, a Cedar Rapids Methodist minister, has been active in movements to provide sanctuary to Salvadoran refugees. He said Monday that the Catholic and protestant El Salvadoran churches are active forces in "liberating the country." Dawes said members of the liberation theology church movement must attend 60 training sessions before they can become active in the movement.

"The protests in Eastern Europe will lead to changes that are a fantasy of the news media. Changes cannot happen there because the church is medieval and wants to pull things back to the middle ages," Dawes said. "The media will soon realize Latin American people who are prepared by the church in liberation theology have indeed performed miraculous things."

UI doctoral student Howard Boles manages to keep his candle lit despite the rain and wind that accompanied Monday night's candlelight picket on the corner of Clinton and Washington streets.

UNI prof. bemoans ignorance

College students can't fill out U.S. maps

DES MOINES (AP) — Give the world to an Iowa college student, and probably he or she would barely recognize it.

"Most of them can pick out Iowa, you'll be glad to know, but the further they get from home, the worse they get," said Bob Clark, a geography teacher and one of the more outspoken critics of education in Iowa.

"Iowans spend a lot of time congratulating themselves on their education system; that's the thing that kind of gets to me," he said. "If this is all the good we are, God help us, we better sue for peace and get whatever terms we can."

Clark is the University of Northern Iowa professor of geography who amuses himself each year by handing out blank maps of the United States or, when he's feeling devilish, North America, and asking students to fill in the countries or states they know.

"I know better than to try the world."

The results are at once hilarious and discouraging.

"They're as bad as ever. Only 70 percent will get Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska and other surrounding states, but when they get to the Northeast, that's unknown land. And we won't even talk about Canada."

Chewning pleads not guilty to 2nd-degree murder charge

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

Murder suspect Frank Chewning pleaded not guilty Wednesday to a charge of second-degree murder in connection with the October 6 death of his wife.

The charge was dropped from a first-degree murder charge to a second-degree charge after Johnson County Attorney J. Patrick White determined there was not enough evidence to suggest the alleged murder was premeditated.

Evidence of premeditation is a condition of a first-degree murder charge, White said.

Chewning, 40, of Monmouth, Ill., was charged after his wife's dead body was found in a room at the University Inn, Highway 6 West, Coralville, according to court records.

Dianne Chewning, 43, of Monmouth, Ill., died of strangulation, according to T.T. Bozek, Johnson County medical examiner.

She was found by a motel employee in the bed of the room she was staying in with her husband. The sheets were spotted with blood, according to the medical examiner's report. She was naked except for a medical-alert tag around her neck indicating her blood type and allergies to penicillin and tetanus toxoid.

Frank Chewning, who fled the state after his wife's death, was brought back to Iowa to stand trial on November 7 after he was apprehended in Ogden, Utah, by local police officers.

Chewning was granted permission by the court to appear for his arraignment in plain clothes instead of the official Johnson County orange jumpsuit.

Waste dilemma

Early next year, the United States will begin producing nuclear waste for which there is no disposal facility. Here's the story, with a solution that so far has been overlooked.

At Rocky Flats, Colo., there's a plant that processes materials for the manufacture of nuclear weapons. One by-product of the production is plutonium, a transuranic waste so radioactive one thousandth of a gram will kill a human being. So far, this waste has been stored right at Rocky Flats, in a container equipped to hold all the plutonium the plant will produce up to March of 1990.

But the site the Department of Energy is considering using next has an overflow of problems. Problem one: The New Mexican facility, an underground repository called the Waste Relocation Pilot Plant, will not be functional until July 1, at the earliest.

Further, this date presumes that the Environmental Protection Agency will grant the Department of Energy a "no migration variance." This approval would free the facility from the requirement every other nuclear waste dump in America must meet: that the waste will not escape into the water table. Hence problem two: The EPA has never granted such a variance.

President George Bush has the authority to waive the requirement, but the Natural Resources Defense Council has promised a noisy lawsuit against the Department of Energy if he does. No president touting himself as an environmentalist would invite such bad PR.

Meanwhile, the Defense Department insists that Rocky Flats must stay in operation for the United States to remain militarily secure. Energy Secretary James Watkins has stated that closing the plant would amount to "unilateral disarmament."

The situation sounds irreconcilable. But all these Cabinet members have overlooked a simple solution. Since it is the military that produces the waste, let the plutonium be stored on military bases.

That way, instead of burying their waste underground and thereby passing the risk wholly onto the civilian population, the army will have to bear more personal responsibility for the risk of plutonium leaks.

Let the builders of weapons live with their handiwork — all of it.

Pundit laments passing of era

The bar of the Capitol Press Club was all but deserted — even reporters go home for the Thanksgiving holidays — so I was shocked to see Murray Trelbaum sitting by himself in a darkened corner.

As the Dean of the Washington Pundits (a term Trelbaum had given himself about 19 years ago), he was always in demand at cocktail receptions, dinner parties and Washington Redskins' luxury boxes.

What, I wondered, was he doing here by himself, especially looking like a man who'd sunk his life savings into Jim and Tammy Faye Bakker real-estate scams?

"Hi, Murray," I said, "care for some company?"

Trelbaum looked up at me with an expression of terror I hadn't seen since Dan Quayle last held a press conference.

"Go away," he said bleakly. "My career is over. I am a ruined man."

"What are you talking about?" I scoffed. "Your column's in 275 newspapers; you're on two Washington TV talk shows; your lecture fees are the envy of the town. You're —"

Jeff Greenfield

"And all of that," Trelbaum exclaimed, "is about to vanish from my life like the smile on the face of a used car salesman."

Trelbaum picked up a newspaper and waved it at me.

"Don't you follow the news, man? Freedom spreading through Eastern Europe; East Berlin border guards waving their countrymen through holes in the wall; the leader of the Soviet Union thumping the tub for pluralism." He put his head in his hands.

"I've spend my professional life offering incredibly profound thoughts about East and West," Trelbaum said. "It was all so easy."

"First, you warn about the cunning and strength of our Soviet adversaries; you call for realistic growth in the American defense budget."

"You caution against expecting major shifts in the geopolitical situation. You tap-dance about the future of NATO. You call for realism and prudence on the international scene. And there you are."

He shook the newspaper once again.

"Now look," Trelbaum thundered. "What am I supposed to do when the other team runs off the field and forfeits the game?"

"Oh, come on, Murray," I said. "It's not nearly that bad. Look at all the new stuff you get to worry about: German reunification, the economic threat of a united Europe, the revival of old nationalistic hatreds..."

"It's not the same!" he said angrily. "It's not the same at all! I used to love all those warnings from the Committee on the Present Danger — you know, how the Soviets were 165 feet tall and playing the West for suckers."

"So what's the present danger now — that Gorbys steals 7-Eleven's patent for Slurpees? And what about all these wonderful evenings when I used to warn about the moral fiber of the West and how we were too materialistic to compete with the communists?"

"Well, what do I say after all those TV shots of East Germans pouring across the border to buy microwave ovens?"

"Well," I suggested, "you could always complain that Bush is too cautious, that Gorbachev is moving much faster."

"Of course he's moving faster, you idiot," Trelbaum said. "Your house was on fire, wouldn't you be moving a lot faster than your neighbor?"

He sighed deeply.

"Well, all in all it's been a good run: nearly 45 years of Cold War to cover."

He started to brighten a bit.

"And you know," Trelbaum said, "it's not absolutely sure that Gorbys can pull this off. Maybe the economy will go south and the hard-liners will throw him out. And maybe the new guy in the Kremlin will start cracking down in the Ukraine and the Balkans, and maybe even Eastern Europe. Maybe — maybe there's still a chance for me."

"That's right, Murray," I said, patting him on the shoulder and walking off. "Keep your chin up; after all, this is the season of hope."

Witch hunt?

To the Editor:

The University of Iowa claims to seek and indeed encourage diversity among its students. However, recent actions of the Student Senate belie that claim. Student Senate has engaged in a witch hunt aimed at stifling meaningful dissent on campus. The recent Senate decision to freeze New Waves' funds, pending an investigation, is but the latest in a series of attacks aimed at harassing and silencing the organization.

In the latest episode, Sen. Larry Willis, a former staffer of Cong. Dave Nagle, took exception to a recent protest in front of Nagle's office. He suggested that New Wave be defunded for protesting one of Cong. Nagle's recent votes on aid to the contras in Nicaragua. Senators also charged that New Wave's criticism of Pres. Bush violated rules governing the use of school funds by student organizations, which prohibit [funding for any organization] which "advocates or works toward the election of political candidates or parties." New Wave does not and has not supported particular candidates or parties. We have not at any time suggested that anyone vote for or against George Bush, Dave Nagle or any other public figure.

Further, Student Senate knows its [funding] rules are not being violated [by New Wave]. Last month, when the Student Activities Board brought similar charges against New Wave based on our criticism of Bush's position on abortion, the charges were dismissed as groundless.

The recent protest at Nagle's office was cosponsored by the Central American Solidarity Committee which was not brought up on charges, and last month's protest against Bush's position on reproductive freedom was joined by Students for Reproductive Rights, which was also not brought up on charges. This pattern of selective enforcement can only be attributed to a campaign to silence New Wave.

The University administration is far from blameless. It is time they step forward in defense of diversity and free speech and stop the manipulation of Student Senate to serve the political agenda of campus reactionaries.

Unfortunately, Iowa students cannot count on our paper to report on the harassment of New Wave. In the article covering the freezing of our funds, the DI apparently did not find it newsworthy that Sen. Willis, who brought the charges, was a one-time staffer of Cong. Nagle. The DI also did not feel it was important to get a reaction from New Wave. This sort of bias would be expected from the Campus Review, but not The Daily Iowan.

A few reasons

To the Editor:

I would like to respond to J.L. McClure's column ["Rapist's mind still unknowable," the DI, Nov. 20] in which he asks, "What kind of rapist goes through his heinous act using a condom? It simply doesn't register in a sane mind that someone bent on committing one of the most abhorrent of crimes would possess even a whit of conscientiousness."

Mr. McClure is right when he infers that the reasoning and motivation of a rapist are, on the surface, puzzling. I do not think, however, that the answer lies in either consideration on the part of the rapist for his victim, or the fact that he is in weird and wacky California.

Three primary reasons an offender might choose to use a condom are: 1. many rapists are motivated by a desire to humiliate their victims, and personally view sex as dirty and disgusting; 2. many rapists are aware that they can be identified through chemical analysis of semen; and 3. many rapists fear venereal disease and AIDS.

Rapists have used condoms in a number of cases here in Iowa City, as well as everywhere else. Viewed from the perspective of a rapist whose ideas of sex, power and degradation are distorted and whose mind is disordered, the use of a condom in the commission of rape makes a great deal of sense.

Hollywood's women are no role models

Over Thanksgiving I made a random sampling of the newest films in the theaters, the ones so much hype has been telling us we must see or forfeit our places in Western civilization.

Thursday night I managed to wield my Thanksgiving-stuffed body in to see "Back to the Future II," only to decide it was a good thing I had eaten before the film. Are there any other women or men out there who are bothered by the fact that, although Michael J. Fox's girlfriend is allowed to come along for the ride this time, the wacky scientist is so concerned that she won't be able to handle time travel (might become hysterical, get her period, or need to stop to pee too often) that she has to be knocked out and left on a garbage heap while The Boys go about their heroic business?

Her Perspective

Betsy Hickok

Other women in the film include Fox's character's mother, who has had her breasts "enhanced" to the size of the Grand Tetons to please her husband, and various walk-ons in tiny, futuristic dresses that barely cover their futuristic buns. Is this what women have to look forward to in the year 2025? It's not as if Spielberg has given audiences a lot of strong female role models in his other films, so I don't know what I expected. But is it too much to ask to see women with intelligence and strength in movies, especially considering the huge audiences such films as "Back to the Future II" draw?

So call me a fool, but the next night I went to see Eddie Murphy's "Harlem Nights." It goes without saying that every woman in the film is a whore of some sort, and the words most commonly used to refer to women are... as I think of it, a word for a female dog, and an alternative name for a cat. How nice. I wouldn't want to spoil the plot (except to say it's plodding, unlikely, and clumsily written — and I think even ardent Eddie Murphy fans would agree with me), but suffice to say women are pretty much present in the film to pleasure men, ornament them, or be shot by them.

These films have an impact on their vast audiences and must shape, and be shaped by, society's consciousness on some level. Consider that these are the movies teenage girls are seeing. What sort of role models are being shown? Whom can they hope to emulate? After all, isn't our interest in movies derived from vicariously living someone else's life? What sort of power will women think they can aspire to, when men are always being portrayed as stronger in mind and body? When the only power a woman can have, if one can call it that, has to do with her physical appeal?

I had never given the matter much thought until the first year I taught at a private boarding school in New England. One evening a woman came to talk to the girls in my dormitory about body image and self-esteem. I sat in a room full of some of the brightest, sveltest, most interesting, most athletic 15- to 18-year-old girls I had ever seen. I couldn't imagine they would have any reason to doubt their self worth. Yet, when the woman running the meeting asked how many were happy with the way they looked, not one raised a hand. Not one.

I realized, then, how aware these girls were of the societal ideal of women that the media fed them. They literally starved themselves, and many developed severe eating disorders, because of the hatred they had for their bodies. Now matter how well the girls were doing in their classes (where they usually dominated discussions and tended to have higher grades) what really mattered to them was looking good and winning the acceptance of the boys — precisely what they are taught to do when they look at magazines and watch movies like "Back to the Future II" and "Harlem Nights."

I wonder why moviemakers can't make more of an effort to depict women as positive, three-dimensional characters. Why must the heroes nearly always be men? I love watching Indiana Jones, but can't women share in his adventures, rather than be screwed and then shot, or dropped into a deep crevice the way Alison Doody is at the end of the last Indiana Jones flick?

The women we see on the screen just don't reflect reality. Don't people watch these movies and wonder why the women are such cardboard stereotypes? Don't audiences ever say, "Wait a minute, my friends, my sister, my mother, none of them is like this, and I wouldn't want them to be?"

Don't they notice the difference between Darryl Hannah in "Splash," where she plays a mermaid, and Darryl Hannah in "Roxanne," where she plays an intelligent student of astronomy, an active role in the film, and is also very lovely? Just as Michael J. Fox, who is given free reign to be clever and strong and brave, also happens to be cute as a button, get out?

Roles are changing, but they're not changing quickly enough. Ten years back in 1942 we watched Ingrid Bergman being more beautiful and smart and tough in "Casablanca" than any of the contemporary characters I have mentioned. (Unfortunately, her only choice was to follow one of the two men in her life. How often I have wished she had told them both that she was a little tired and confused by all the romance, and was thinking of going back to school to get a degree in political science.)

In short, things seem just a tad out of whack to me. Guys (and gals), I like looking at sexy men, too, but cut women a little slack here. Don't you prefer the Sigourney Weaver of "Aliens" to the large-breasted hood ornaments, and neurotic, babbling babes in distress of most mainstream, popular pictures? With which of these sorts of women do you hope to have a long-term, balanced relationship one day? Which would you like to have as a role model for your children?

As for me, I'm off to see "The Bear," and maybe "Prancer." I think I'll stick with movies in which animal names really refer to animals.

Summit to address El Salvador

Bush condemns Soviet's missile shipment earmarked to leftists

WASHINGTON (AP)— President George Bush will head into his meeting with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev this weekend prepared to condemn "dangerous escalation" of the conflict in El Salvador while holding out the prospect of U.S. troop reductions in Europe, officials said Monday.

At the State Department, spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said a protest was lodged with the Soviet Embassy over a shipment of surface-to-air missiles. Salvadoran authorities said was earmarked for leftist guerrillas in their country by Nicaragua.

Tutwiler said the protest "refers to the dangerous escalation of conflict" in El Salvador. She said Bush "intends to make the Central American situation a prime area of discussion in Malta" when he meets December 2-3 with Gorbachev on board Soviet and American ships.

She said Bush would press the Soviets "to take action to ensure their allies cease this outrageous behavior."

On another potential summit topic, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said Bush will consider reducing U.S. military forces in Western Europe in light of the collapse of hardline regimes in Eastern Europe in recent months.

"Certainly the two presidents in Malta will talk about arms control and military force structure," said Fitzwater. "Those discussions will bear on future decisions about changes in our own military posture."

Noting the nation's tight budget posture, he said, "If there are arms control agreements or changes in military posture... that allow us to make defense spending cuts, we certainly are willing to do that."

At the same time, Fitzwater declined to go beyond describing possible U.S. troop reductions as other than an option open to Bush during the weekend talks.

"The president will have in his mind all of the options that are available to him," the spokesman said. "The president wants to be in a position to discuss the situation with the Soviet leader, to be responsive and to be in a position to then go to our allies and say, here's what our discussion produced."

He added that the administration does not want to "get the cart in front of the horse" in discussing any such reductions prematurely and before consulting with NATO allies.

"Any actions that we would suggest or recommend would only be with the approval of our allies," Fitzwater said.

The protest over the situation in Central America was delivered at 7 p.m. Saturday to the Soviet charge d'affaires by the highest ranking State Department official in Washington at the time, Under Secretary of State for Political Affairs Robert Kimmitt. He was accompanied by the assistant secretary responsible for Latin America, Bernard Aronson.

The unusual time of delivery reflected the gravity with which the administration viewed the incident. There were 24 SA-7 missiles and 21 rounds for a Soviet-designed mortar aboard a Cessna aircraft that crashed in eastern El Salvador, the State Department said.

Fitzwater said, "Despite Soviet promises to use their influence for peace in Central America, it is clear the Sandinistas and their Marxist allies continue to destabilize the legitimate democracies of the region."

Privately, U.S. officials said Monday the Soviets may be having trouble restraining Managua and Havana from supporting the FMLN rebels.

from DI wire services

Bush threatens to suspend support of U.N.

WASHINGTON — The Bush administration threatened Monday to suspend all U.S. financial support for the United Nations if the General Assembly recognizes Palestine as a country.

State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said there was no such nation and it did not meet the U.N. criteria for membership.

It was not immediately clear whether the U.S. threat would thwart the drive planned by a number of Arab countries later in the week in the General Assembly.

The United States does not have veto power in the assembly, but its support for the U.N. is essential to functioning of the world body.

The U.S. assessment for 1988 was $216 million, of which $65 million was paid in October.

"Any action to change the PLO status will have the most serious adverse consequences for the U.N.," Tutwiler said.

Indian president dissolves Parliament

NEW DELHI, India — The president dissolved Parliament on Monday, leaving Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi and a caretaker government to see India through what could be weeks of post-election uncertainty.

Gandhi's Congress Party had overwhelming control of Parliament, but voters in the world's most populous democracy took it away in three days of elections that began Wednesday and left the party far short of a majority.

To retain power, Congress must find partners for would be the first coalition government since India became independent of Britain in 1947.

Vote tabulations put Congress ahead of any single opposition group, but not far enough to govern alone.

Baltic states win economic independence

MOSCOW — Legislators approved major concessions from the Kremlin on Monday, granting the Baltic republics the right to issue their own currency and take a share of profits from centrally controlled factories.

After four months' work, the Supreme Soviet gave final approval to a plan launching Lithuania, Latvia and Estonia on the road to economic autonomy from Moscow beginning January 1.

Deputies from the tiny Baltic republic of Estonia smiled, stood and cheered after the legislature approved the economic independence measure on a vote of 296-67. Thirty-seven deputies abstained.

"It's a very big step forward," Lithuanian Communist Party chief Algirdas Brazauskas said in an interview after the vote.

Estonian legislator Mihail Bronshtein, an economist, called the vote a "big victory" for his republic.

Hungarians vote to delay elections

BUDAPEST, Hungary — Opposition groups narrowly won a referendum Monday that postpones the presidential election and gives them more time to organize against the ruling Communists, who now call themselves the Socialist Party.

According to preliminary results from the national electoral board, 50.1 percent of those participating voted for the first question on the ballot: "Should the presidential elections be held only after the parliamentary elections?"

It was Hungary's first free election in more than four decades, and the first since the Communists dissolved their party, renamed it the Socialist Party and opened the way for free, multiparty politics.

A statement from the board said the four opposition groups sponsoring the referendum won by only 6,618 votes. Official final results are to be announced today.

Aoun rejects ultimatum to 'clear out'

BAABDA, Lebanon (AP) — Christian army commander Gen. Michel Aoun rejected an ultimatum to leave the presidential palace, and said Monday he would die fighting, even with "kitchen knives, sticks and stones."

Aoun told a news conference in his bunker beneath the shell-battered palace east of Beirut that he was recruiting volunteers to meet a possible assault by the 40,000 Syrian soldiers stationed in Lebanon.

Military sources discounted reports of military buildups in mountains above the palace in the Baabda suburb and along the line that divides Moslem west Beirut from the Christian eastern sector.

A ranking Moslem army officer said privately: "There is absolutely no move on the ground to suggest that a collision is imminent."

He said the "fronts are as they have been since the cease-fire" that began September 22, ending six months of fighting between the Syrians and the 20,000 men of Aoun's Christian army units.

Elias Hrawi, the newly elected president who gave Aoun the ultimatum, issued a statement at his temporary headquarters in the Syrian-controlled Bekaa Valley town of Choura urging Christian troops to support him.

"Gen. Aoun is placing the Lebanese nation at an impossible, destructive and reckless option that leads only to the underground shelters . . . while the presidency has decided to lead the nation out of the death mill to peace," said Hrawi, a Maronite Catholic like Aoun.

Christian leader Gen. Michel Aoun on Monday rejected an ultimatum by newly elected president Elias Hrawi to step down. Aoun vowed to fight "even with kitchen knives, sticks and stones" to defend his headquarters at the presidential palace.

"It is the legitimate government's right to employ all means and potential to recover what has been usurped from it."

On Sunday, the president gave Aoun 48 hours to leave the palace.

In his bunker, the 54-year-old general said sarcastically Monday that Hrawi should have been "considerate enough to make it 72 hours, to give me enough time to pack and leave."

"Mr. Hrawi has no forces of his own to fight me with," Aoun said. "He will have to rely on Syria's occupation forces."

Aoun calls the Syrian soldiers an occupation army and has declared a "war of liberation" to drive them out. The Syrians are in Lebanon under an Arab League peacekeeping mandate issued in 1976, one year after the beginning of a sectarian civil war that has taken more than 150,000 lives.

Mukherjee, Blaise to read new works

Authors take 'different tacks' on home, roots in her novel and his short-story collection

Thomas Barbash
The Daily Iowan

The first place Bharati Mukherjee came when she flew from Calcutta, India, to the United States was Iowa City.

It was there the award-winning writer honed her craft, formed her first impressions of the country and met her husband, UI Writers' Workshop visiting teacher Clark Blaise.

Tonight, she and Blaise will read from their new works — Mukherjee from her new novel, "Jasmine," and Blaise from a collection of short stories yet to be published. The reading, which is sponsored by the Writers' Workshop and Prairie Lights Books will be held at 8 p.m. at Shambaugh Auditorium.

While both writers examine characters caught between cultures, or homelands, they have taken markedly different tacks, Blaise said.

"You've got to be from somewhere," he said, quoting the opening line of his next book, a personal memoir, "but I'm not." The statement stems from a vagabond youth in which Blaise attended 30 different schools before the eighth grade.

Rootlessness, Blaise said, has long been a central theme of his work. The writer has split time between two countries — Canada and the United States — and both coasts.

Mukherjee, winner of the National Book Critics' Circle Award for Fiction, has no such doubts about her origins.

Her recent writings tell the story of men and women who have emigrated from non-European countries and have made emotional and social commitments to new homes in North America. Hers are characters with well-defined, though sometimes discarded roots. "She's not writing about conflict between cultures. She writes about immigration, about the ability to put down new roots," Blaise said.

In his collection of stories called "Resident Alien," Blaise depicts characters who literally have no sense of nativity.

In "North," Blaise's main character, Phil Porter discovers one day the name he has been using is a sham. His real name is Carrier, and before he has time to sort out his past he is brought by his fugitive father to a French-speaking section of Montreal, Canada.

"You've got to be from somewhere, but I'm not."
— Clark Blaise

"This is a character who doesn't even know his own name," he said. Blaise said he traveled aimlessly his entire childhood with his own father, who would work a job for three or four months until he got himself into a fight and was fired. His memoir will recall his travels as well as his father's — from birth on.

In "Jasmine," Mukherjee writes about a 17-year-old woman from a small Indian village who is widowed by a terrorist and eventually moves to Iowa, where she takes the name Jane Ripplemeyer and becomes "happily pregnant by a middle-aged Iowa banker."

She said she has avoided autobiography in her work.

"I've always felt my self-imagined world has been more interesting than the world of nostalgia," she said.

Her writings, she said, are flights of imagination, stemming from an idea for a voice she has caught from a friend, on a bus, on the street or from a newspaper story.

"Sometimes my imagination is fertile enough that everything I see starts appearing in my fiction," she said. This may explain her wide range of characters. Her stories are the tales of men and women from India, the Philippines, Sri Lanka, Iraq and Central America.

"Like Jasmine, I've led many lives," she said, and laughed. "I've been reincarnated several times."

Mukherjee said the couple will move in 1990 to Berkeley, where she has accepted a distinguished professorship at the University of California at Berkeley.

Hradcany Castle, a national symbol, is the presidential residence.

"It has to go to the very end," said Jana Cervenkova, who was among the demonstrators. "As long as the Communists rule, it's going to be messed up as it was for the last 40 years."

Vaclav Klaus, a spokesman for the opposition group Civic Forum, called off any rallies for Tuesday, when the opposition meets the government for more negotiations. Communist Premier Ladislav Adamec on Sunday held an unprecedented meeting with opposition leaders to try to contain the peaceful revolt.

"Demands of the Civic Forum have been met in principle or are being met," Klaus said. But he warned that the rallies would resume if negotiators fail to make progress toward democratic reforms.

"The fundamental condition in our talks is the holding of free elections," Klaus told the crowd.

Václav Komarek, the head of the Forecasting Institute of the Academy of Sciences, branded the current orthodox Communist system "a message from the valley of shadows."

Actors and students groups in Prague and Bratislava, capital of Slovakia, have proposed that Komarek be named premier.

State TV, which has played a key role in the dizzyingly rapid popular revolt, broadcast footage from industrial centers around the country, showing crowds of hundreds of thousands attending strike rallies.

State radio said all enterprises were affected by the strike, although most had skeleton crews on duty so that production would not be halted completely.

In Bratislava, dissident Milan Simecka read a message from Vaclav Havel, the nation's most prominent opposition leader, who said "have no fear, the future is ours."

When a speaker at the rally mentioned Dubcek, the crowd of 100,000 people responded with a deafening roar.

Dubcek has made a dramatic political comeback after two decades of political exile, addressing huge crowds four days running in Prague and his native Bratislava.

In another unprecedented development, exiled actor Pavel Landovsky and writer Pavel Kohout were allowed into the country for the first time in more than 10 years and addressed the people gathered in downtown Bratislava.

7:15 a.m., and the pilot, Jose Ossa, told the tower at 7:18 a.m. that everything was normal. Duarte told The Associated Press. It crashed shortly afterward.

One witness said he saw black smoke pouring from one of the plane's three engines and the plane then blew up.

Most of the wreckage was in an area about 200 feet by 50 feet.

Leal said one piece of the jet was found six miles away. The RCN radio network said a body was found a half-mile from the main crash site.

The government of President Virgilio Barco declared war on drug traffickers in August, and since then there have been several bombings and other attacks, but none on a large scale.

The Extraditables is a shadowy group linked to the notorious Medellin drug cartel. The group takes its name from the U.S. Justice Department's list of 12 Colombian drug suspects most wanted in the United States. The head of the Medellin cartel, Pablo Escobar, tops the list.

Last week, authorities raided a jungle hideout, and Escobar reportedly came close to capture.

D.M. plane crash injures 3

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP)—Three men were critically injured Monday evening when their single-engine airplane crashed in Warren County just south of the Des Moines airport and Polk County border, officials said.

The plane, a six-seat Piper, crashed about 5:20 p.m. in a ravine in a wooded area just south of the intersection of County Line and Southwest Ninth Street.

A spokeswoman for Iowa Methodist Medical Center in Des Moines said all three occupants were in critical condition Monday night. She identified them as Stanley Seidler, 61, and Steven Jones, 36, both of Des Moines, and John Cain, 26, of Grimes.

Jones managed to climb from the wreckage and up the ravine and then walked to the Fast Track Convenience Store.

Six Hawks named to all-America team

The Daily Iowan
Six University of Iowa field hockey players have been named to the College Field Hockey Coaches Association/Sauk Valley 1989 Division I all-America team, school officials announced yesterday. The six include seniors Cherie Freddie, Erica Richards and Aileen Trendler and freshman Kristy Gleason on the first team, and seniors Missi Sanders and Erin Walsh on the second team. Iowa's four first team placements are the most of any Division I school, while Northwestern and North Carolina each placed two on the first squad.

Freddie, Richards, Trendler, Sanders and Walsh ended their Iowa careers with a four-year mark of 74-15-5 that includes four consecutive trips to the NCAA final four and a national title in 1986.

Wilson signs two-year deal

TORONTO (AP) — Mookie Wilson, who sparked Toronto's drive to the AL East title after being acquired in August, is staying with the Blue Jays for at least two more years.

Wilson, who had spent his entire career with the New York Mets before being sent to Toronto, on Monday signed a two-year contract with an option for a third year for a guaranteed $2.95 million.

Pena, Red Sox come to terms

BOSTON (AP) — Tony Pena signed a $6.4 million, three-year contract with the Red Sox on Monday as Boston ended its long reluctance to sign high-paid free agents in an attempt to end its catching problems.

Pena, a five-time All-Star who spent the last three seasons with St. Louis, will receive a $600,000 signing bonus and salaries of $1.5 million in 1990, $2.1 million in 1991 and $2.2 million in 1992. He earned $1.1 million last season.

The Cardinals have high hopes for rookie catcher Todd Zeile and had no interest in re-signing Pena, one of baseball's top fielding catchers.

Reports say Manley seeking help

HOUSTON (AP) — Suspended Washington Redskins defensive end Dexter Manley reportedly has checked into a substance abuse treatment center, but the operators of the facility Monday would not confirm his presence.

The Washington Post reported Monday that Manley, who was banned from the NFL on Nov. 18 for violating the league's substance abuse policy for a third time, had flown to Houston to be admitted to the John Lucas New Spirit Recovery Center at Houston International Hospital.

Lucas, however, citing confidentiality, would not confirm to The Associated Press that Manley had entered the center for treatment.

Niners down Giants 34-24

Phil Simms threw an interception deep in his own territory Monday night, dousing the hopes of the New York Giants in a key game against the San Francisco 49ers.

The Niners took advantage of the interception to score an insurance touchdown with 1:24 remaining, sealing the 34-24 win. San Francisco scored on a fourth and goal play from the one yard line, with Tom Rathman barely breaking the plane of the goal line.

Hawkeye Arena. Sophomore Ray Thompson exploded for 20 first-half points, finishing with a game-high 26.

Thompson went down with an ankle injury during the game, but has practiced this week. Davis said he will start against the Bulldogs.

Drake lost its season-opener 87-83 to U.S. International last Saturday and Abatemarco said playing the Hawkeyes is not his idea of getting back on track.

"Iowa is very well-coached and they play a full-court game. They guard you when you come off the darn bus with their press," Abatemarco said.

Nelson

After that, she began to think about looking for a coaching job at a Division II school.

"You always say 'I can do something else,'" Nelson said. "But some people are destined to be in a profession. I love the sport, and I feel I'm a good role model for women in sports. But I'd let it be known that I didn't want to go into coaching again."

A job was offered to Nelson to coach at a Division II school in California, but at the time she didn't feel she could leave her sales job.

Several months later, former Iowa coach Sandy Stewart called Nelson to tell her she was quitting. And Nelson decided to take a chance and apply for the job as the Hawkeyes' head coach.

"I knew (Iowa women's athletic director) Dr. (Christine) Grant well enough. I thought if they gave me the opportunity, I'd take it," Nelson said. "I had never applied for a job in my life, but I solicited and called like everybody else. I didn't know if I wanted to move, but I decided it might be my last chance. I couldn't turn down the opportunity."

Looking back on her past, Nelson now feels that being fired was a good experience. And it is also a reason she decided to return to coaching.

"I would like to choose to get out, not have someone choose for me," Nelson said. "I never thought I'd say I was glad I got fired, but it made me take a look at my whole life."

Iowa assistant volleyball coach Maureen Marek, who played for Nelson at LSU, said that she can see the difference in Nelson's coaching from her LSU days.

"She's found different ways of getting athletes to work," Marek said. "She's mellowing out. She knows that you don't always have to be hard and tough to get productivity out of players."

"Ruth's always been innovative, but she's even more innovative now. She's expanding on what other people have done; instead of staying at one level, she always takes it one step further. That's why I like working for her."

Now Nelson's aim is simple: to build up the Iowa volleyball program.

"I felt that Dr. Grant was honest up front," Nelson said. "The administration knew what was expected, and I knew what I wanted to do."

"... There are very few schools that are top in many women's sports. Volleyball isn't that big in Iowa; basketball is the kingpin. I'm just trying to create interest in the state and educate people to what it's about."

According to Nelson, it's just a matter of time until the Hawkeyes will reach her top goal — the NCAA final four.

"It's almost like a utopia here; we have what we need to make the move forward," Nelson said. "The question is how long will it take. A program doesn't go first round then final four."

"It's like the Ohio State coach (Jim Stone). This is his eighth year and his first Big Ten championship. I'm not willing to wait eight years. I know it will take time, but I don't have that much time ... I'm shooting for '93."

UI teams capture flag football crowns

Jay Nanda
The Daily Iowan

T. Galaxy and N. 2nd to None not only proved they are the best flag football teams in their divisions, but that they are also the best in the state.

T. Galaxy, the men's independent champion, defeated three teams to claim the crown of the annual state tournament at Drake over the weekend. They escaped Des Moines Area Community College 13-12, Palmer College 26-18 and shutout Iowa State 18-0.

Meanwhile, residence hall champion N. 2nd to None trounced the Minnesota state champions, 29-0. Residence hall champions representing the two states battle each year, according to Warren Slabos of Recreation Services.

In the men's badminton All-University playoff, Social division winner Yip Sau Leong defeated independent champion Hogri Hardarson to win the overall title.

Hardarson came back in the coed tournament however, as he and partner Adeline Tse ran away from the field with a first place total of 40 points. Lettie Gonzalez defeated Barbara Wilson of Delta Zeta in a tiebreaker, to capture the women's division.

The Pre-Holiday basketball tournament continued as well, but a shortage of officials endangers the status of the league tourney that is set to start next month.

"We only have 20-25 officials and we need 60," Slabos said. "We may have to alter the tournament by decreasing the number of teams or by making it a single-elimination tournament."

Anyone interested can contact Recreation Services at 335-9293.

As for the action on the court, Kappa Sigma, Young Guns, Engineers, Spike is Sweet, Masters of the Hardwood, Eppley Rehab, Dark Horses, and St. Mark's Midshipmen all advanced to the third round of the men's tourney. All of these teams, with the exception of Kappa Sigma, defeated clubs which had received first round byes.

In the women's tourney, the final four takes place at 6:30 tonight. Beastie Girls takes on Janelots while Going Nowhere plays Big Tennesse. The winners meet in the finals on Sunday.

In the coed division, the "elite eight" gets under way tonight at 7:25, with the winners advancing to Sunday's Final Four.

In other news, the UI Bike Racing Club will hold its only meeting of the semester on Thursday, November 30, in room E216 of the Field House at 6:30. No bike racing experience is necessary.

Morgan, Palmer top Hall ballot

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Morgan, a two-time National League Most Valuable Player, and Jim Palmer, who won the Cy Young Award three times, head 20 first-time candidates on the 1990 Hall of Fame ballot distributed to veteran members of the Baseball Writers Association of America on Monday.

Morgan batted .271 with 268 home runs and 689 stolen bases in 22 seasons, winning consecutive MVP awards in 1975 and 1976. He holds the National League record for most games played at second base (2,427) as well as a number of fielding records.

Morgan, a key member of the champion Cincinnati Reds, also played for the Houston Astros, San Francisco Giants, Philadelphia Phillies and Oakland Athletics.

Palmer pitched 19 seasons for Baltimore, posting a record of 268-152. He was a 20-game winner eight times and won the Cy Young Award in 1973, 1975 and 1976.

The other players eligible for the first time are Jim Bibby, Mike Caldwell, Bucky Dent, Roy Howell, Greg Luzinski, Tug McGraw, Rick Monday, Jose Morales, Amos Otis, Lou Piniella, Jerry Remy, Mickey Rivers, Ken Singleton, John Stearns, Champ Summers, Dick Tidrow, Mike Torrez and Bob Watson.

The ballot also includes 24 holdover candidates headed by pitchers Gaylord Perry and Jim Bunning. Perry received 304 votes last year, missing election by 32 votes. Bunning was 53 votes short with 283.

The other returning candidates are Dick Allen, Bobby Bonds, Ken Boyer, Orlando Cepeda, Elroy Face, Curt Flood, Ferguson Jenkins, Jim Kaat, Harvey Kuenn, Mickey Lolich, Sparky Lyle, Bill Mazerowski, Minnie Mino, Thurman Munson, Tony Oliva, Vada Pinson, Ron Santo, Tony Scott, Paul Splittorff, Luis Tiant, Joe Torre and Maury Wills.

To win election, a candidate must receive 75 percent of the votes cast by 10-year members of the BBWAA. Players become eligible five years after retirement and can remain on the ballot a maximum of 15 years before being passed along to the Veterans Committee. There are 204 members in the Hall of Fame, 76 of whom have been elected by the BBWAA, 119 elected by the Veterans Committee and nine by the committee that considered former Negro League stars.

Tigers win Classic in Stewart's return

LAHAINA, Hawaii (AP) — Missouri showed three different faces in winning the Maui Classic but it was all done with the same old face in front of the Tigers bench.

The 11th-ranked Tigers beat No. 7 North Carolina 80-73 Sunday night to win the title and give Coach Norm Stewart a return to the sidelines to remember.

Stewart missed the last 14 games of last season after undergoing cancer surgery and the Tigers quickly gave him three more victories to add to his impressive career total.

"It was nice for me, but I don't think it was on the players' minds," Stewart said. "For our guys to play that hard for three days in this heat takes real stamina and they responded real well."

No. 12 Louisville took third place with an 83-69 victory Villanova, while James Madison won the consolation bracket with a 70-60 win over Evansville. San Diego State took seventh with a 63-49 victory over host Chaminade, a Division II school.

In another game Sunday, No. 9 Arkansas beat Oregon 102-75.

On Saturday, sixth-ranked Arizona beat No. 4 Michigan 82-75, No. 5 Georgetown beat Hawaii Pacific 79-57, No. 7 North Carolina beat Villanova 78-68, No. 10 Duke beat Harvard 130-54, No. 11 Missouri beat No. 12 Louisville 82-79, No. 13 UCLA beat Santa Clara 66-62, No. 14 Indiana beat Miami of Ohio 77-66, No. 20 Minnesota lost to Cincinnati 66-64 and No. 24 Memphis State beat Tennessee 91-72.

Stewart watched his Tigers struggle from the outside in an opening-round victory over Evansville. Missouri then had to hold off Louisville in the semifinals as the Tigers blew a 22-point lead over the final eight minutes before scratching and clawing to advance.

Against the Tar Heels, Stewart decided to pack the defense in and, despite being out-bounded 41-27, it worked as North Carolina made just two of 18 3-point attempts and shot just 45 percent from the field.

"We had to pack it in for rebounding as much as anything else the way we handled the boards in the first two games," Stewart said.

Missouri's three-guard set leaves it vulnerable to rebounding problems but the defensive pressure it allows was effective against the Tar Heels, forcing them into 20 turnovers, 13 in the first half as the Tigers took a 44-37 lead at halftime.

 The Daily Iowan

Round two of the 1989-90 Iowa basketball season has the same scenario as the opener. Matt Bullard — still out. Ray Thompson — hobbled. At home. But this version of a Tom Davis club isn't the surly prize fighter that has stepped on the court in his first three seasons. Without Bullard, the team lacks court leadership. The senior from West Des Moines injured his right knee during practice last week. Besides taking away from the inside, Bullard's 3-point shooting will be sorely missed. In steps Tom Abatemarco's club — experience, experience and more experience — aiming for the knockout punch late. "We'll go to Iowa with the idea of trying to keep it close and trying to steal it at the end," Abatemarco said.

Center Sam Roark, point guard Rodney Chamble and forward Mario Donaldson are seniors. Off guard Terrell Jackson played extensively as a sophomore one season ago. And forward Kevin Sams, a junior college transfer, led the Bulldogs with 18 points in their season opener. Jackson pumped in 19 points at Veteran's Memorial Auditorium last year as Iowa won 96-72. The Hawkeyes rolled in the first half of the last matchup, scoring 64 points. But Iowa coach Tom Davis doesn't think Drake's aged team will let this one get out of hand. "They've got quite a few veterans from that ball club last year," Iowa coach Tom Davis said. "So, they've got five or six seniors back together and six juniors on their roster. "It's a pretty good veteran ball club. And for that reason, they'll come in here and play with a lot more poise." Iowa is 1-0 after topping Texas Southern 80-64 Friday at Carver-See Basketball, Page 9

Thompson cited for Camp award

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — Anthony Thompson, who set three NCAA rushing and scoring records this season for Indiana, was named on Monday as the Walter Camp Player of the Year.

Thompson won a plurality of the votes cast by Division I-A coaches and sports information directors. The voting revealed a lack of a consensus about who deserves recognition this year as college football's top player. "There are a lot of great players out there," Thompson acknowledged in accepting the honor and discussing his prospects for winning the Heisman Trophy, which is voted on by a committee of sportswriters and broadcasters. Asked if he felt he were the best player in college football, Thompson said: "I don't think so. When I was younger, my mother told me there's always somebody better."

Thompson, who will be the first Indiana athlete in any sport to have his uniform number retired, said his success would not have been possible without the contributions of his teammates and coaches. The votes cast for "player of the year" by about 190 head football coaches and sports information directors were only a recommendation. The final decision rested with the foundation named after the "father of American football." The foundation does not usually provide a breakdown of the voting for top player, according to president Ernest C. Williams. Williams would say only that Thompson was recommended by about 30 percent of those voting, while Houston quarterback Andre Ware was second with about 25 percent. He said three to four players captured most of the votes. "Our biggest concern was that the award would go to someone we felt strongly about and not someone who would (necessarily) win the Heisman Trophy," Williams said.

Thompson was named to the Walter Camp team last year and again this season, picking up more votes for inclusion on the 1989 team than any other player in the 100-year history of the selections.

"He was a known quantity to us. We knew his character and we know his statistics on the field, and quite frankly, there was no one else running away with it," Williams said. A 6-foot, 209-pound senior, Thompson ran for 1,793 yards and 24 touchdowns on 358 carries this season. He ran for 377 yards against Wisconsin on Nov. 11, shattering the all-time NCAA single-game rushing mark of 357 set by Washington State's Reuben Mayes in 1984 and tied by Fullerton State's Mike Pringle a week earlier.

Hawk Profile: Ruth Nelson

Iowa coach makes triumphant return to sport

Erica Weiland
 The Daily Iowan

Five years ago, Ruth Nelson vowed never to coach college volleyball again. Last spring, she changed her mind, and this weekend she will be leading the 22-10 Hawkeye volleyball team into the NCAA tournament for the first time in Iowa history. Nelson's coaching career ended, she thought, when she was fired from her job as head volleyball coach at Louisiana State University in 1985. The 1970 graduate of George Williams College had led the LSU Tigers to a 128-98 record and top-three finishes in the Southeastern Conference in her four years there. But a changed administration decided that they wanted another volleyball coach. "Everyone told me to be careful of politics," Nelson said. "But it didn't make sense to me at the time... They changed administration, and they said I wasn't what they wanted."

That was when the Beaumont, Calif., native decided to start another job. And that new profession was business. "I never wanted to coach again," Nelson said. "It was a bad experience being fired. You lose confidence with every aspect of your life when someone says you're not good enough to be part of a program." — Ruth Nelson

"Being out (of coaching), I learned how to deal with people better," Nelson said. "In the business world, you have to approach things differently. In sales, you're in for survival; if you don't sell anything, you don't eat. "Coaching is like selling. If you believe in your product, you can sell anybody on it... And people can tell if you believe in it or not." It was after two years of that when Nelson began missing her coaching days. In 1987, she got a job as the head coach of the Dallas Belles professional volleyball team until she ruptured a disk in her back and had to have surgery. See Nelson, Page 9

Buffs No. 1; Irish fall to fifth in poll

(AP) — Colorado took over the top spot in college football Monday for the first time in school history, while Alabama jumped to second and Miami moved back into contention for its third national championship of the decade. Colorado replaced Notre Dame as the No. 1 team in The Associated Press poll after Miami beat the Fighting Irish 27-10 Saturday. Notre Dame, which had been No. 1 since the first week of the season, fell to fifth while Miami rose three spots to No. 4.

Alabama, the only major undefeated team besides Colorado, moved up two places to No. 2 while Michigan remained third after beating Ohio State 28-18. Alabama, which had the week off, finishes its regular season Saturday at Auburn. The top five teams all have a shot at the national championship. Colorado can win it by beating Notre Dame in the Orange Bowl, but if the Buffaloes lose it would open the door for the other four teams. "It is going to be our ultimate challenge," Colorado coach Bill McCartney said. "Anyone who knows anything about Notre Dame and its great traditions knows that they will bounce back from the

Unranked Kansas vaults to 4th in hoop balloting

(AP) — Syracuse, third in preseason, took the top spot in the college basketball poll Monday, while Kansas, unranked but triumphant over Nos. 1 and 2, vaulted to fourth in the first balloting of the regular season. The Orangemen, who opened their season Monday night at home against Rutgers, received 23 first-place votes and 1,453 points from the nationwide panel of sports writers and broadcasters to edge Arizona (1-0) from the top spot by 11 points.

Eight teams received first-place votes in a poll scrambled by Kansas' topping of No. 1 UNLV, No. 2 Louisiana State and No. 25 St. John's on the way to the preseason NIT title. Syracuse last held the No. 1 ranking in the 1987-88 preseason poll. Arizona, which beat defending national champion Michigan in the Tipoff Classic, received 10 first-place votes and had 31 more points than Georgetown (2-0) which moved from fifth to third and received nine No. 1 votes. Kansas (4-0) was on top of 16 ballots and had 1,266 points to edge fellow Big Eight member Missouri, champion of the Maui Classic. The Tigers had 1,248 points, just one more than UNLV (3-1), which finished third in the NIT after being handled easily by Kansas in the semifinals.

Final outing may enhance Ware's chance at Heisman

HOUSTON (AP) — Andre Ware's final bid for the Heisman Trophy was picture perfect — even if it wasn't on television. Just days before the voters of the Heisman Trophy seal the envelopes on their ballots, the Houston quarterback pumped another four touchdowns into his stats Saturday in a 40-24 victory over Texas Tech. "It was just an average day for me," Ware said. "I felt no pressure. I wasn't playing for the Heisman Trophy. I played the best game I could have played against Tech." "If Andre does not win, they should stop giving the award," Houston coach Jack Pardee said. "He is a player who has put up statistics each week and has not had a bad day this year."

Heisman voters have not seen much of Ware because Houston is on NCAA probation and is prohibited from having televised games or receiving a bowl bid. But it would be hard to overlook Ware's achievements. Ware increased his season passing totals to 44 touchdowns and 4,299 yards. The performance certainly couldn't hurt his chances against chief rivals for the Heisman, which will be awarded Saturday at New York's Downtown Athletic Club. Indiana running back Anthony Thompson gained only 97 yards on 28 carries in a 15-14 loss to Purdue. Notre Dame quarterback Tony Rice rushed for 50 yards and passed for 106 in Miami's 27-10 defeat of the No. 1-ranked Fighting Irish. Neither Thompson nor Rice scored.

"If Andre does not win, they should stop giving the award. He is a player who has put up statistics each week and has not had a bad day this year."

West Virginia quarterback Major Harris, on the other hand, no doubt helped his chances with a Thanksgiving Day performance which resulted in a 24-17 victory over Syracuse. Harris, a junior, became the first player in college football history to pass for 5,000 yards and rush for 2,000 in a career. Against Syracuse, he rushed for 95 yards and a touchdown on 18 carries.

Iowa moves to 10th

The Daily Iowan Two runaway wins and a tournament title moved C. Vivian Stringer's Hawkeyes up one spot on the newest AP Women's Top 25 college basketball poll. Iowa is 10th after capturing its fourth Amana-Hawkeye Classic tournament over the weekend. The Hawkeyes cruised by Howard Saturday and crushed Connecticut 81-49 in the championship Sunday. In the preseason poll, the Hawkeyes were listed 11th. Tennessee took 41 of 63 first-place votes after the opening weekend of the season. Stringer's club travels to Lincoln, Neb., Wednesday for a 7:30 p.m. tipoff with Nebraska. Iowa beat the Cornhuskers 84-67 last year in the championship of the Burger King/Pepsi Classic.

A piece of the crane stories long dangled from the building under two hours after the accident. Police and ambulances rushed to the scene. The street was lined with cars and a cycle.
