Czechoslovakia's 10 million people participated in a 40-minute strike on Monday in which thousands of workers walked off the job to support the nation's "no" vote statement on the most recent Czechoslovakian constitution draft.

Aデンational Autonomist movement, in which community members and students made the decision to vote "no," is the major reason behind the "no" vote. Cellularism has been the political platform of the National Autonomist movement, which has called for a referendum to change the constitution, as free elections and political democracy are to be held this fall.

Iowa City man fights for trees

County plans to tear down trees, build new bridge

Debra. Glasgow

The Daily Iowan

An 85-year-old Iowa City man is waging a personal battle against the Johnson County Board of Supervisors over its decision to tear down 90-year-old trees near the new bridge over the Iowa River.

For the past two years, Jean Lloyd-Jones has fought to save the trees, which were planted in 1936 as a tribute to the Republic of Hungary.

"I was born in the 10th Ward, and I don't want to see it all go down," Lloyd-Jones said.

Lloyd-Jones said the bridge would be built on land where the trees now stand. The bridge was designed to counteract incompatibility concerns that the Iowa City Board of Supervisors had over seeing the bridge built over the Iowa River.

"I can't understand why they would want to tear down all the trees," Lloyd-Jones said.

Lloyd-Jones said he plans to fight the decision and hopes to appeal the decision to the Johnson County Board of Supervisors.

"I'm not going to give up," Lloyd-Jones said. "I'm going to fight this all the way."
Delusive Minister Milan Visarabh, a party critic, made a controversial statement today: "I am not sure that the current people are the most suitable. We should be assured that new people and movements are necessary, but there are limits." The statement came as the leader of Tuesday's demonstration in Prague accused the new government of a radical change in the country's direction.

Visarabh, a member of the Czechoslovak Communist Party, said that the new government had "failed" in its efforts to improve the economic situation and that people's confidence in the government had declined.

The statement was condemned by some critics who accused Visarabh of trying to undermine the legitimacy of the new government.

In Prague, demonstrators gathered in front of the Ministry of Education to protest against the government's decision to close the Prague University. They demanded the reinstatement of the university's dean, who was fired last week.

The government has been criticized for its handling of the university crisis and for its controversial decision to close the university.

The demonstrators were joined by students from other universities, who also expressed their support for the University of Prague.

In other news, the government announced that it would increase spending on education and that it would introduce a new school curriculum.

The government's decision to increase spending on education was welcomed by many, who see it as a positive step towards improving the quality of education in the country.

However, some critics have expressed concerns about the government's ability to implement its new education policy, given its track record of controversial decisions and its difficulties in implementing past policies.

In parliamentary debate, demonstrators called for a return to the post-communist era, arguing that the current government had failed to improve the economy and had not managed to address the country's social problems.

U.S., Soviets may advance on nuclear weapons treaty

WASHINGTON, D.C. (AP) - President George Bush's weekend meeting with Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev should have the superpowers a step closer to a long-sought nuclear posture agreement, a top U.S. official said Saturday.

"It was a very productive meeting," said Anthony Northrup, the White House official who oversees arms control negotiations.

Northrup said Monday he was encouraged by the fact that the two leaders agreed to continue discussions on a nuclear freeze and to hold further meetings soon.

Northrup said the two leaders also discussed the possibility of a nuclear weapons freeze, which would ban the development of new weapons for at least five years.

Summit deal: dollars for arms

William F. Buckley Jr.

You may respect the comparisons of your political enemy. And then you may try to end relations with him. But the memoir of the current business deal between the United States and the Soviet Union is likely to be less than impressive. The Soviet government has committed itself to an end to the arms race, and the United States has agreed to a 30 percent reduction in its budget for military purposes. The implications of this agreement are enormous, and it is likely to have a profound effect on the future of the world. WASHINGTON (AP) - The U.S. economy grew modestly from July through September, the government said Wednesday, but analysts said it has since weakened sharply, threatening to derail an unprecedented peacetime expansion.

The Commerce Department said the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic activity, grew at a 2.7 percent annual rate in the third quarter, slightly higher than the 2.5 percent rate originally reported last month. The growth rate was a plunge from a 4.9 percent rate in the second quarter.

Helicopter crash kills one, injures five

FORT CARL, Colo. — The most experienced U.S. Army helicopter pilot and five others were killed when a chopper being used by a military training program crashed north of Denver, officials said. The cause of the crash was not immediately known.

The helicopter was flying near the Denver International Airport when it went down, officials said. The crash occurred at about 10 a.m., and the chopper was a UH-60 Blackhawk.

The helicopter was carrying eight people, including the pilot, a crew of five, and three Army soldiers.

The pilot, identified as Capt. John McLeod, was killed in the crash. He was the UH-60's most experienced pilot, with more than 4,000 hours of flight time.

The other five people on board were also killed in the crash. The identities of the other victims were not immediately released.

The crash site was located near the airport's north runway, officials said.

The crash is being investigated by the National Transportation Safety Board.

The Blackhawk is a multi-purpose helicopter used by the Army for a variety of missions, including transportation, combat, and search and rescue.

The crash is the second involving a Blackhawk in the past month. In October, a Blackhawk crashed in Afghanistan, killing four Army soldiers.

The crash comes amid a review of the Army's helicopter fleet, which has been plagued by accidents and maintenance issues.

The Army has been working to upgrade its fleet, but accidents like this one continue to raise concerns about the safety of the helicopters.

The crash is the latest in a string of accidents involving army helicopters in recent years.

In 2017, a Blackhawk crashed in Oregon, killing four soldiers.

In 2016, a Blackhawk crashed in Afghanistan, killing five soldiers.

In 2015, a Blackhawk crashed in Mississippi, killing four soldiers.

In 2014, a Blackhawk crashed in Texas, killing two soldiers.

In 2012, a Blackhawk crashed in California, killing two soldiers.

Replay to be Finks' first test

NEW ORLEANS, La. — Instant replay and its role in governing baseball games will probably be two of the topics to come up at the first meeting of the NFL's competition committee. Finks wouldn't predict whether there will be a vote on another season or, if it returns, what form it will take.

Among other things, critics say that allowing instant replay during games would help officials better understand what they're calling and makebold officiating decisions about their decisions.

"I don't have an agenda," Finks said. "But I know the top thing we're going to have to address is instant replay, because it's become very controversial. That's one thing we'll discuss.

Comaneci — Bucharest — Comaneci's coach, Bernard Squarno, said Comaneci would stay in Hungary. "We respect Nadia and we would like to see her as often as possible," he said.

The coach of 1976 Olympic gold medalist Nadia Comaneci, Romania's world gymnastics champion, said Comaneci "is still a big star" and that the country's national gymnastics meet, which unlike Romania has an open program, would come to the United States.

"We respect Nadia and we would like to see her as often as possible," he said.

"This is not the country with the greatest tradition for Nadia. It is the country where she is now, in the same time a country still with the greatest opportunity," he said.

"I think this is an opportunity to start the year," Lendl said. "I hope to play well for the next two weeks and the spring season or, if it returns, what form it will take.

"I don't have an agenda," Finks said. "But I know the top thing we're going to have to address is instant replay, because it's become very controversial. That's one thing we'll discuss.

Joffrey readies cast of kids for ‘Nutcracker’ opener

Local children selected for roles in traditional Christmas Ballet

Bobby is a rat, Clarice is a sugar plum fairy, and 3-foot-tall Olivia Mills is a Spanish bullfighter. They’re not displaced elves. They are the Joffrey Ballet’s cast of children for the Iowa City “Nutcracker” performance at Hancher Auditorium Thursday. November 30, at 7:30 p.m.

Jaffe Hurley, Iowa City’s dance instructor and a member of the company, said children are usually more flexible and easier to work with than adult dancers. "They’re not displaced elves. They’re not tired, but very excited to be in the show," she said.

Joffrey's traveling version was created by Chicago-born choreographer Eugene Loring. All of the company's members, including the children, have performed the ballet throughout the United States, Canada and Europe, Hurley said. The company now travels to different cities with their own sets and costumes in a small truck.

The children selected for the Joffrey's in-house "Nutcracker" show are of traditional Christmas ballet roles. The children were chosen based on dance and acting abilities. "We were looking for kids who could fit into the costumes and were curious about the characters," said Hurley. "We think the kids will be a hit, but very excited to be in the show."

Hurley said the children were "tired, but very excited to be in the show." She noted, "We want to make sure they can adjust to the orchestra, which may not or may not play at a different tempo."

The interaction with Joffrey members and stage experience will prove valuable to the children, Hurley said. "It requires a lot of hard work. Olivia Mills, who plays the part of Olga in the battle scene and in the Polichinelle, said she was "tired, but very excited to be in the show."

"New friends for the Joffrey production of ‘The Nutcracker’ at Hancher Auditorium November 30 at 7:30 p.m.; and December 7 and 8 at 2:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $28, $22, $17.60 and $12.50 for nonstudents; $28, $22, $17.60 and $12.50 for seniors; and $14, $13.80 and $9.50 for children under 18.
