Czechs vote to abolish monopoly

Politburo member predicts election

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — The Communist-controlled Parliament on Wednesday swiftly ended the party's 40-year monopoly on power in a frantic effort to satisfy the demands of the growing pro-democracy movement.

A member of the ruling Communist Politburo said the first free elections in four decades could be held within a year.

Voting with the somber, mechanical gestures born of decades of rubber-stamp approval of Communist measures, the 309 deputies unanimously scrapped Article 4 of the constitution, which mandated the leading role of the Communist Party. They also deleted a clause that bases all education on Marxism-Leninism.

"The revolution is proceeding much quicker than we expected," said Jiri Dienstbier, spokesman for the Civic Forum opposition, minutes after the vote was broadcast live on national television.

The changes were among historic concessions the opposition won from the Communist government on Tuesday when Premier Ladislav Delegates raise their hands in the Czechoslovakian parliament Wednesday to pass the agenda proposing changes in the constitution, such as free elections and parliament democracy.

Adamec also promised to form a new government, including non-Communists, by Sunday.

They followed 11 straight days of huge anti-government demonstrations, which culminated in a two-hour strike on Monday in which millions of workers participated.

Adamec went on national TV and said he had asked Civic Forum for its suggestions on whom to include in the new government. He also said he would negotiate a reassessment of the 1968 Warsaw Pact invasion that crushed reforms.

Civic Forum proposed that the new defense minister be a civilian Communist and the interior minister, who controls the police, be a civilian non-Communist, Dienstbier said.

Parliament also eliminated the Communists' leading position in the National Front, an umbrella organization embracing all political parties and social groups allowed in Czechoslovakia. Four deputies opposed the measure and 16 abstained.

Shortly after the historic votes, state TV showed Slovak actor Milan Kuzak announcing word of the changes to a packed National Theater in Bratislava, capital of Slovakia. The entire audience, which included prominent dissident Vaclav Havel, rose to its feet in thunderous, minute-long applause.

El Salvadoran rebels rage in capital streets

U.S. forced to shut embassy

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist rebels invaded parts of the capital's most affluent neighborhoods before dawn Wednesday and dug in after often-fierce combat with government forces.

How many people killed in the latest guerrilla offensive was not clear. Eleven bodies of combatants were seen lying in the streets.

In Washington, Secretary of State James Baker said guerrillas "briefly overran" a U.S. Embassy officer's home and "we are taking steps to assure the safety of embassy personnel."

Embassy personnel were told not to report to work Wednesday, and the embassy was closed for the day, White House spokesman Roman Popadiuk said. Administration officials said no Americans were injured.

A State Department committee monitoring events in El Salvador reported that the home of the embassy employee, who was not identified, apparently was seized at random.

"The family was safely evacuated by Salvadoran government forces, and the family was not actually in the hands of the guerrillas at any time," said David Denny, a department spokesman.

Heavy and sustained fire was reported blocks from the residence of U.S. Ambassador William Walker. Embassy spokesman Jeff Brown had said Walker was "fine . . . working in his office at the embassy."

Denny said, "Several families are unable to leave their homes because of fighting in their locations," which included the neighborhoods of San Benito, Escalon and San Francisco.

A statement from the leftist guerrillas said their fighters had been told not to attack Americans.

Guerrillas took over the Japanese Embassy, four blocks from Walker's house, an El Salvador Foreign Ministry source said privately.

He said only a few embassy personnel were inside and the insurgents allowed relief workers to evacuate them.

A diplomatic source, also speaking anonymously, said rebels seized the residence of a French diplomat, but allowed those inside to be evacuated. He gave no details.

U.S. Embassy spokesman Barry Jacobs said a charter flight might

Iowa Democrats face off in gubernatorial debate

Ann Marie Williams
The Daily Iowan

All five Democratic candidates in Iowa's gubernatorial race expressed the need for a change in the state's leadership at a debate Monday night in Phillips Hall.

House Speaker Don Avenson, John Chrystal, Atty. Gen. Tom Miller, Sen. John Peterson and Lt. Gov. Jo Ann Zimmerman made opening remarks before responding to questions submitted by the audience and presented by a seven-member panel.

Education and the economy were targeted throughout the debate as high priority issues facing the next governor of Iowa.

The majority of the candidates expressed concern for financing education and preserving the state's environment, although Peterson said the elimination of poverty and treatment for substance abusers were more pressing issues. Avenson discussed his proposal to gradually reduce college tuition — making higher education accessible to more people — while Chrystal proposed more funding for elementary and high-school students.

Chrystal said high schools should merge with community colleges to enhance education.

Zimmerman said one of her priorities is to keep Iowans in the state after they graduate from Iowa universities. She blamed the farm crisis for the loss of over 100,000 people aged 25 to 45 from the state.

Miller said his top priorities for the state include economic development, education and the environment.

The debate, sponsored by Johnson County Democrats and University Democrats, drew a crowd of community members and students which filled lecture room 100 of Phillips Hall.

Skip Jensen, past chairman of Gubernatorial candidates Jo Ann Zimmerman, Tom Miller, John Peterson, Don Avenson and John Chrystal.

University Democrats, said Wednesday's debate was well-attended because all five Democratic candidates are major contenders for the gubernatorial office.

"A debate at this stage is always educational," he said. "A lot of people right now are still undecided."

Besides enabling local Democrats to attend the event. "Personally, I'm for Governor Branstad," said Jason Gross, who watched the debate. "But I want to familiarize myself with what the other candidates have to offer."

Jensen said he anticipates more Iowa City visits from the gubernatorial candidates as the 1990 election draws nearer.

But Democrats and Democratic supporters were not the only ones

Speaker: Elections a fraud in Nicaragua

Brian Dick
The Daily Iowan

Returns for next February's elections in Nicaragua will not be counted election day — they are already being tabulated today, professor Antonio Ybarra-Rojas said Wednesday.

In an interview at the downtown Iowa City Holiday Inn before delivering a speech Wednesday evening, Ybarra-Rojas said the Nicaraguan government is fraudulently registering voters in an attempt to maintain control of the country.

Ybarra-Rojas, a professor of sociology at the University of Dubuque, said that as a result of the tampered registration the prospect for free elections in Nicaragua is slim to nonexistent.

"The elections in Nicaragua are being handled with fraud by the Nicaraguan government," Ybarra-Rojas said.

Ybarra-Rojas taught at the National Autonomous University of Nicaragua at Managua and the Universidad Centro Americana and previously served as an election observer in Nicaragua.

He was later expelled by the Nicaraguan government for "focusing on the fraud," he said.

Ybarra-Rojas said that of Nicaragua's 3.5 million citizens, the government has already registered about 1.9 million people to vote.

Based on population projections that estimate a 3.3-percent yearly growth-rate and in which 50 percent of the population is under 15, Ybarra-Rojas said the figure of 1.9 million registered voters is dangerously inaccurate.

Antonio Ybarra-Rojas

"We still don't get a population figure that justifies 1.9 million voters," he said.

10 protesters disrupt, delay Nicaraguan speech for 2 hours

Jennifer Glynn
The Daily Iowan

About 10 protesters delayed a speech in Schaeffer Hall Wednesday night for nearly two hours. The speech advocated American support of free elections in Nicaragua.

Young Americans for Freedom, a UI student organization, brought a Nicaraguan election observer to speak at the UI on "The Prospects for Free Elections in Nicaragua."

But the speech, scheduled for 7 p.m., was put off until 8:45 due to the presence of protesters holding signs proclaiming, "The Contras have blood on their hands" and "Stop all U.S. election aid, including the $5 million in covert aid funneled through the C.I.A."

UI Campus Security was called, but no arrests were made and none of the protesters were removed.

At 8:45, at the request of the speaker, Antonio Ybarra-Rojas, the speech was moved to another room which the protesters were not allowed to enter.

Ybarra-Rojas was the first outsider to apply for credentials as an election observer in Nicaragua. The communist Sandinistas expelled Ybarra-Rojas from Nicaragua.

Now a professor at the University of Dubuque, Ybarra-Rojas formerly taught at both the National Autonomous University of Nicaragua at Managua and the Universidad Centro Americana. He holds a doctorate in sociology from Iowa State University.

Wednesday night, he encouraged Americans to go to Nicaragua in February to insure that the Nicaraguans get free elections.

There are presently no free elections in Nicaragua, he said.

"It is a fraud," he said. "They have far more people registered to supposedly vote than even live in the country, and 55 percent of the country is under the age of 15."

"Free elections are not decided the day of the election," he said. "They are decided way before, through

Study finds possible link to cancer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A study by a leading U.S. health scientist has found a statistically significant link between cancer and human exposure to electromagnetic fields from the network of electrical wires that criss-cross the nation.

The unpublished findings by Dr. Genevieve Matanoski of Johns Hopkins University add to a rising sense of concern in the American scientific community that health risks from power distribution lines no longer can be ruled out.

Matanoski, a professor of epidemiology, said in a telephone interview Wednesday her findings were preliminary and required further testing, but that the study results had changed her view of the theory about a cancer link to power lines.

"I thought before that the theory was wrong," she said. "I'm not so sure anymore. I'm swayed to think it's more likely than before."

The major conclusions from her study of 50,000 New York state telephone workers are that there may be an increased risk of leukemia among active workers, and that incidence rates for almost all types of cancer are highest among linemen, whose exposure to electromagnetic fields is the highest in the telephone worker group.

Matanoski also found exceptionally high rates of breast cancer among male technicians who work on central office telephone switching equipment. Her study found two cases of breast cancer among 9,500 central office technicians; ordinarily the incidence rate for males would be about one in one million, she said.

Matanoski reported on her study at a technical meeting sponsored jointly by the Energy Department and the Electric Power Research Institute in Portland, Ore., November 15. She said she expected to publish the findings early next year.

In the century since the United States began using electric power, scientists generally have dismissed suggestions of any danger to human health. While no proof of a threat yet exists, accumulating scientific evidence has prompted several states to regulate the

UI sophomores up for debate

Team takes 1st place in major collegiate tournament

Amy Davoux
The Daily Iowan

Winning the Wake Forest University debate tournament is the latest victory for UI sophomore debate team of Nathan Coco and Chuck Smith.

The tournament, held November 18 to 20, was the largest intercollegiate tournament of the season, with 110 teams competing.

Coco and Smith participated in eight preliminary rounds and five rounds of single elimination before reaching the finals, where they beat Dartmouth College.

Two other UI debate teams also reached the elimination rounds. UI senior Shawn Shearer and UI sophomore Randal Sandler finished in the octofinals, and UI senior David Bushek and UI freshman Omar Guevara finished in the sextodecimofinals.

Guevara received a speaker award "Pretty much every good debate team in the nation was at Wake Forest University," Smith said. "It was an exciting achievement for us."

Coco and Smith have done well in several other tournaments this year. They reached the quarterfinals in the Northern Iowa, Kentucky and Harvard tournaments and tied for fourth in Kentucky's pre-tournament for the top nine debate teams.

Most recently, Coco and Smith were among the top 16 teams in the Georgetown tournament on November 24 to 26, losing in the octafinal round.

The team of Shearer and Sandler placed third in that tournament, reaching the semifinals, according to David Hingstman, UI director of debate.

According to Smith, the debate topic for the 1989-90 season is: "the federal government should lower fossil fuel consumption." Coco and Smith debate the idea of substituting nuclear power plants for coal plants.

The debaters must argue both sides of the issue within a tournament. Hours of research develop these arguments, Smith said.

"We've got a team that works incredibly hard," he said.

He attributed much of their success to his teammates and coach.

"David Hingstman, we feel, is by far the best coach in the nation," Smith said.

Hingstman has similar views on his debaters. He said he is very pleased at the progress they have been making.

"It is very unusual for sophomores to do as well as they are," Hingstman said.

Hingstman credits much of Coco and Smith's success to knowing when to concede arguments they are losing, being quick on adapting to unexpected arguments from opponents and having good senses of humor.

He eventually hopes that the sophomore team will have a chance at winning the National Debate Tournament, where competition includes the top teams in the nation.

"There's a lot of luck involved in winning that tournament," Hingstman said. "I have high hopes for their abilities."

Renowned geography prof. dies

The Daily Iowan

Clyde Kohn, formerly professor and chairman of the UI Geography Department, died of cancer last week in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. He was 78.

An internationally renowned geographer, Kohn authored 25 books and published several articles on geography, urban development and the educational system.

He was a professor at the UI for 26 years before his 1984 retirement.

Eleven years before he retired, in 1973, Kohn created and taught a popular geography-based course called "World of Wines." After moving to Fort Lauderdale in his retirement, Kohn regularly returned to the UI to teach the wine course during the summer sessions.

In addition, Kohn was once president of the Association of American Geographers and a member of the National Council for Geographic Education.

A memorial service for Kohn will be held at 10 a.m. December 2 at Trinity Episcopal Church, 320 E. College St. He and his wife were members of the church for 26 years.

Efforts needed to curb Iowa's growing gang-related activity

DES MOINES (AP) — Police in Iowa cities need help from local schools to spot signs of gang activity so gangs can be stopped before they spread, members of a state drug enforcement group agreed Wednesday.

The state Narcotics Enforcement Advisory Council agreed to call in teachers, principals and other school officials for a meeting next month to discuss anti-gang efforts. The efforts could include a call for mandatory reporting to police of any gang-related activities in schools, the council members suggested.

Iowa Drug Policy Coordinator Mike Forrest agreed to set up the meeting with education officials before the council makes its recommendations to the Legislature for new drug enforcement laws next year.

"It seems to me if you're going to make recommendations about the educational community, you probably ought to talk with them," Forrest said at Wednesday's meeting.

Commission members acknowledged that school administrators might bristle at a mandatory reporting requirement. The state requires teachers to report instances of suspected child abuse, but they are not required to report alleged illegal activity by students.

However during Wednesday's meeting, state and local law officers told the council that gangs from Los Angeles, Chicago and other major cities are just beginning to operate in Iowa, and that a concerted early effort is needed to stop them from recruiting youths for drug trafficking.

"There's no doubt around the state that there's been some gang influence in the school systems," said Jon Neuschwanger, a state narcotics division agent. "It has not progressed to hard-core activity at this point."

Neuschwanger said gang activity has been identified in Des Moines, Davenport and the Waterloo-Cedar Falls area.

"Sioux City, I understand, is just starting to have some concerns," he said.

Lt. Pete Rounds of the Des Moines Police Department's narcotics unit told the council that gangs are making a mark in Des Moines.

"Most of the people in gangs are local people who have been involved in criminal activity in the past," he said. "They're trying to recruit kids in elementary schools. Most of those kids aren't selling drugs, but it gives them an identity."

"There's no doubt around the state that there's been some gang influence in the school systems."

"There is definitely recruiting going on... in the elementary (school) level," said Tony Stevenson, a Des Moines police narcotics officer.

Rounds suggested that schools take steps such as prohibiting the wearing of clothes bearing gang colors, such as the black and gold of the Vice Lords, a Los Angeles-based gang.

"Basically the schools have been helpful, but we need to strengthen that — we need to find ways of making them stronger," Rounds said.

"Des Moines and Iowa is small enough in population that we have a good opportunity to subdue it," he added. "You're not going to eliminate the illegal activity completely, but you can keep them from recruiting people who are on the border line."

Courts

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

A Coralville man was charged with assault resulting in injury, driving under suspension and driving with a revoked license Monday after he allegedly attacked a friend who accused him of unsportsmanlike conduct while playing football, according to the Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Manuel Bryant Jr., 22, 704 Fourth Ave. Place, Coralville, was reportedly playing football with two friends in the park at Coralville Central High School, according to court records.

After one of his friends said his behavior was unsportsmanlike, Bryant reportedly attacked him. The victim was hospitalized due to injuries sustained in the attack, according to court records.

After the attack, Bryant allegedly walked home, returned to the school by car and then threatened the victim with a car jack, according to court records.

Bryant allegedly drove the car to the school while his license was under revocation for refusal to take a blood-alcohol test, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for December 13 according to court records.

● A Muscatine, Iowa, man was charged with second-degree burglary Wednesday after he allegedly entered a UI residence hall room and threatened the occupants with a screwdriver, according to the Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Rodney L. McFadden, 19, 1523 Lucas St., allegedly threatened the room occupants while looking for a stolen compact disc. The roommates identified McFadden by his voice, clothing, shoes and stature, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for December 13, according to court records.

● An Iowa City man was charged with assault causing injury Tuesday after he allegedly struck a woman in the upper arms causing large bruises, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Kenneth H. Schultz, 43, 3028 Cornell Ave., was released on his own recognizance, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for December 13, according to court records.

● A Tipton, Iowa, man was charged with third-degree criminal mischief Tuesday after he allegedly broke the rear window of a car, according to the Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Tory A. Koch, 21, RR 2, Box 179, and two other men fled after Koch broke the window. The two men were caught and charged with the offense until Koch came forward and admitted he had damaged the car, according to court records.

The damage was estimated at $475.81, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for December 13, according to court records.

County plans to axe trees, build new bridge

Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man is waging a one-man battle with the Johnson County Board of Supervisors to save nearly 2,000 trees along North Dubuque State.

The board plans to replace the heavily-traveled Butler Bridge, located about two miles north of Iowa City, because its narrow, 50-year-old span is dangerous.

But Jim Glasgow, who lives near the bridge, wants the board to consider an alternative construction plan that would not require the county to clear the half-mile stretch of trees near his property.

"The point that I am trying to stress to them is that having a safe bridge and these trees is not an incompatible situation," Glasgow said.

Glasgow said he is not against a new, wider and safer bridge but wants to be sure alternatives are assessed and environmental regulations observed.

Construction in the area, slated to begin December 11, may violate a new Iowa environmental protection law which states that highway construction and repair should not cause unnecessary destruction of the state's natural heritage, he said.

In addition, Glasgow said the board's plans will destroy about $15,000 worth of trees on his property.

In order to change the board's plans, Glasgow collected about 200 signatures from people requesting that the board curtail the action.

Jim Glasgow

He has also filed for a court restraining order to delay the action.

Last week, about 25 supporters marked the target trees with red flags to make passing drivers aware of the impending changes.

But despite the efforts of Glasgow and others, the bridge construction will begin as planned, according to board Chairman Bob Burns.

"That's a county right-of-way out there, and (those trees) should have been cut down a long time ago," Burns said.

Burns said county residents have complained to supervisors about the red flags and several "Save the Trees" signs posted along the road. The flags, placed on county property, litter the highway and create dangerous distractions, he added.

"This is just nonsense," he said. "I think it's an attempt to get a higher settlement."

Burns added that the roadway was once located where the new bridge will be built, so no trees in the area are more than 100-years-old.

But Glasgow claims some of the oak, maple, linden, walnut and ash trees are more than 100 years old and are irreplaceable.

Glasgow has approached the Iowa Department of Transportation, Army Corps of Engineers, Department of Natural Resources, Sen. Jean Lloyd-Jones (D-Iowa City) and the Environmental Protection Agency for assistance.

UI's Engles honored by Hungarians

Sonja West
The Daily Iowan

Hualing Nieh Engle and Paul Engle, former directors of the UI International Writing Program, have received the Pro Cultura Hungarica award from the ambassador of Hungary for their work with the UI International Writing Program.

The award was given to the Engles for working and contributing to the exchange of Hungarian and American literature by bringing Hungarian writers to Iowa City as part of the program.

"The award is a tremendous satisfaction because when this program began there were very, very few East European writers," Paul Engle said. "It took a few years before we got any writers from Hungary."

"Since then we have had Hungarian writers almost every year. They are wonderful people," he added.

The Engles began the writing program in 1967, and before they retired last year they had 20 visiting writers from Hungary.

"We have worked very hard to raise private funds to bring them here," he said.

The award is the most prestigious prize available in Hungary for citizens of other countries, according to the Hungarian Minister of Culture.

"In Eastern Europe especially, the writers are important because the cultural matters are very much a part of the government," Hualing Engle said.

The Engles visited Hungary last year for the second time to explore changes in the country since it changed its name from the Republic of Socialist Hungary to the Republic of Hungary.

"Writers are tremendously important (there), far more than in the United States," Paul Engle said. "They are all very much involved in their political situation."

"The writers are behind all these changes. In these countries politicians are scared of writers," he added. "You can imagine how exciting that was for Hualing and me."

Farmers: Environmentalists are hampering agricultural needs

DES MOINES (AP) — Hostile feelings toward environmental activists surfaced Wednesday as delegates to the Iowa Farm Bureau Federation convention spoke in opposition to environmental initiatives.

"Our enemy is little old ladies who have nothing better to do than bitch about things," Thomas Niess of Osage said as county delegates gave tentative approval to resolutions on toxic cleanup programs and wetlands preservation. Niess also singled out "younger ladies who sit around all day."

In a debate on a proposal that farmers be barred from working land bordering waterways, Karl Killsholm of Algona said that when the subject of state Department of Natural Resources agents comes up, farmers call them "somewhat of a nuisance... somewhat of a pest."

Farm groups worry they are losing a voice in setting farm policies as environmental issues move to the forefront in Congress and the Statehouse.

"We have a concern that environmental agencies within the government have more influence on farm legislation than they should have," Iowa Farm Bureau President Merlin Plagge of Sheffield said.

After The Wall:
What's Next for Eastern Europe?

The upheaval in East Germany and Czechoslovakia is of historic importance. A mass movement from below has shaken both regimes to the core and thrown into question the political map of Europe.

PAUL ADAMS, who has written widely on East Germany and perestroika, will examine the claim that these developments represent a defeat for socialism and that Western political and economic institutions like the market can solve the crisis and lead to prosperity.

"Everyone age seven, eight and nine must be registered," he speculated. The communist Sandinistas have inflated the number of registered voters in order to stay in power, Ybarra-Rojas said.

"Pressure needs to be put on the Sandinistas by the Bush administration... so they cannot steal these elections and get away with it."

A continued absence of free elections could prompt Nicaraguan citizens to civil war, Ybarra-Rojas said.

applause. Parliament also planned to consider creating a constitutional court and a commission to investigate allegations of police brutality in a crackdown on protesters November 17. The removal of the requirement that Marxism-Leninism be the guiding principle of education was a prime demand of students who staged the November 17 protest and have led the pro-democracy movement since.

Defense Minister Milan Vaclavik, a member of Parliament, sounded a cautionary note: "I am aware that neither the army nor the party have the best position now. We should be aware that retreats and compromises are necessary, but there are limits."

Alois Indra, who said Tuesday he was quitting as Parliament president, delivered a formal speech of resignation to the 350-member chamber.

He described the resignation as "a logical step in the context of the present developments."

Indra was said to be among party leaders who requested the Soviet-led invasion of August 1968 that crushed the "Prague Spring" of reform instituted by Alexander Dubcek, then Communist Party chief.

Bretislav Nedbalek, secretary of a preparatory committee, said Czechoslovakia's Social Democratic Party had been re-established after an absence of 41 years.

At the Vatican, Pope John Paul II prayed that Czechoslovakia would use its Christian traditions in building its "new future."

About 5,000 people attended a Communist-sponsored rally Wednesday at Ostrava, an industrial city near the Polish border, including supporters of the opposition group Civic Forum.

Senek Milota, a local party leader, told the rally, "We don't want to eat soup from a charity kitchen," an apparent reference to the party giving up power. Civic Forum backers jeered loudly, but no trouble was reported.

Vasil Mohorita of the party's ruling Politburo said Wednesday that free elections could be held within a year, now that the Communist Party has agreed to relinquish its monopoly on power.

Mohorita, the first member of the new leadership to face the international press, was asked at a news conference when Czechoslovaks would have a chance to vote freely and replied:

Despite repeated questions, Mohorita did not say specifically the party would hand over control if it lost free elections, but he stressed several times: "We're a different party now, and you all should get used to it."

In parliamentary debate, broadcast live on TV for the first time, deputies openly admitted past party failures and said the Communists must work hard to win the people's confidence.

"We have betrayed the trust of the electorate, and whatever laws we pass today will not change this," said Blanka Hykova of the Socialist Party, until recently a docile ally of the Communists.

Anton Blazej, dean of a Communist Party training academy, said: "We have misunderstood the leading role of the party and its position. We must regain this trust."

freedom of the media. "We need to help them have free elections," he added.

"Now is the opportunity for Americans to be observers — to come to Nicaragua and to be a witness of what really goes on in the elections," he said.

"Stay in one of the voting booths from beginning to end, and you will see what goes on, you will see the people and you will see that they need you to be a witness to this injustice," Ybarra-Rojas said.

President George Bush honored Ybarra-Rojas at Captive Nations Day with prominent figures from Cambodia, Cuba, Poland, the Baltic Republics, Ethiopia and Hungary.

Ybarra-Rojas has been published extensively on issues regarding the Central American crisis and serves as a consultant to both the American and European governments on the peace process in Central America.

Through out his speech, the protesters chanted and pounded on the glass outside the classroom door.

depart Thursday with embassy dependents who want to leave El Salvador, and embassy personnel who planned to go home for Christmas would leave early.

He said some dependents and other Americans had moved into the heavily fortified embassy in downtown San Salvador to get away from the fighting a few miles away.

A home about a half-mile from Walker's house was burned after having been taken over by rebels, and unconfirmed reports said a U.S. Embassy employee lived in it. The Washington officials said nothing of a fire at the house seized by rebels.

Whether rebels burned the house or it caught fire as a result of fighting was not clear.

The guerrillas attacked working-class districts of San Salvador earlier this month in their biggest offensive of a 10-year-old civil war that has killed more than 71,000 people, most of them civilians.

A statement from the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front, the rebel umbrella group, said U.S. personnel and buildings were not targets.

Americans in the area should "stay sheltered in their residences" and "if they come in contact with our forces, they should identify themselves," it said. "Our units have instructions not to attack North American personnel."

Fighting began well before dawn in the western neighborhoods of San Benito and Escalon, the capital's wealthiest residential areas. Most people stayed inside the comfortable homes, which are surrounded by trees and 15-foot walls, as the chatter of assault rifles sounded in the winding streets.

It appeared about a dozen homes were taken over by the scores of insurgents, who apparently came down from the San Salvador volcano northwest of the city.

"By taking this part, we bring the war to the rich," said the leader of a rebel squad behind a barricade of cars with their tires shot out, arranged to block a tree-lined street. He said the guerrillas were beginning the second phase of the offensive launched November 11.

In Washington, CIA Director William Webster said the rebels were continuing to "make a symbolic and important statement about their ability to keep causing trouble" through urban attacks, but posed no threat to the government.

Shipboard Summit

U.S., Soviets may advance on nuclear weapons treaty

WASHINGTON (AP)—President George Bush's weekend summit with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev should leave the superpowers "better prepared to make substantial progress" on a treaty to slash long-range nuclear weapons, Secretary of State James Baker said Wednesday.

However, he emphasized anew that no such agreement would be reached during the two-day meeting.

In a pre-summit news conference at the White House, Baker also said the democratic reforms that are bringing down Eastern Europe's hardline communist regimes are "the only path to long-term legitimacy and stability in the region," and he warned against any crackdown by authorities.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the two leaders also talked about Kohl's new proposal Tuesday for a confederation with East Germany as a step toward eventual reunification.

On that point, Baker said, "If there's unification, it should occur in the context of Germany's continued alignment with NATO and an increasingly integrated European Community."

He ruled out any "trade" with Moscow in which the two Germans would be reunited as a neutral government.

Mindful of some reservations among U.S. allies in Europe, Baker said he preferred a gradual, step-by-step process of bringing the two Germans together.

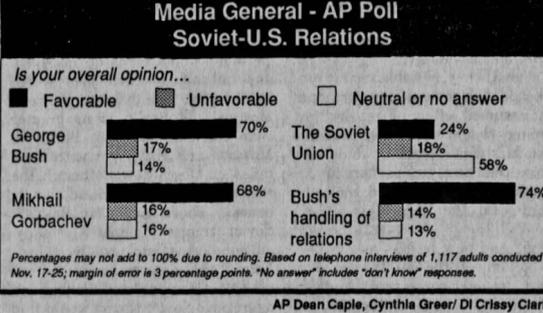

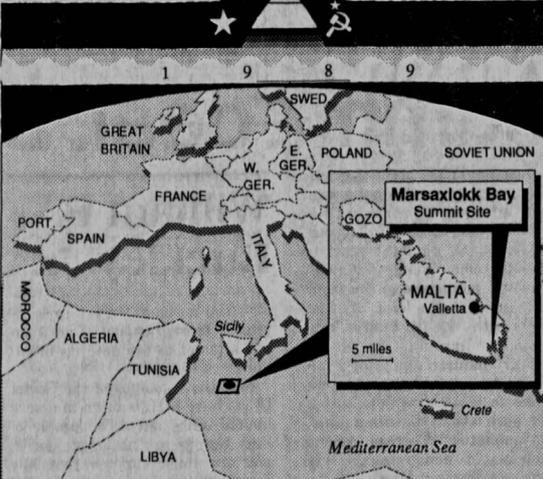

Bush also planned to discuss the summit at a dinner with Canadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney.

At his news conference, Baker said Bush would complain to Gorbachev about what U.S. officials say is a continuing flow of Soviet-made weapons to the Moscow-backed government of Afghanistan, as well as to leftist rebels in El Salvador through Nicaragua.

Noting that Soviet officials have promised to prevent Nicaragua from shipping Soviet arms to El Salvador, Baker said, "Either the Nicaraguans are lying to the Soviet Union or the Soviet Union is lying to us."

"We prefer to believe it's the former."

U.S. - SOVIET SHIPBOARD SUMMIT

Baker said the Malta meeting would not be an arms-control summit, emphasizing that no agreement would be reached either on long-range nuclear weapons or reductions in troops and conventional arms in Europe.

Poll: Soviets seek self-reform, not path to world dominance

NEW YORK (AP) — Americans' suspicions of the Soviet Union's motives are fading rapidly, with a majority of people now convinced that the Soviets do not seek to dominate the world, a national poll has found.

As presidents George Bush and Mikhail Gorbachev prepare for their weekend summit off Malta, the poll found overwhelming belief that the Soviet leader seeks reform in his country, although opinion was mixed on his prospects.

Both men were highly popular in the Media General-Associated Press poll, with Gorbachev out-polling Bush among the most-educated Americans. A plurality said Gorbachev has done more than Bush to ease East-West tensions.

Their meeting comes at a moment of great change in the Communist world. While Gorbachev pushes liberal reforms in the Soviet Union, his Eastern European allies have taken dramatic steps toward democracy in recent weeks.

Forty percent of the 1,117 adults surveyed November 17-25 rated Bush as "too cautious" in encouraging reform in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe. Still, 46 percent said he was doing enough; the rest were unsure.

Respondents by a 2-1 margin favored establishing normal trade relations with the Soviets, a step administration officials are exploring. A far less likely move, U.S. foreign aid to the Soviets, was soundly opposed.

Despite good will toward Gorbachev personally, the poll found lingering doubt about Soviet reliability, with 53 percent saying the Soviets cannot be trusted to live up to their arms control agreements. The level of doubt was down, though, from 61 percent in a poll last year.

Reflecting the cautious view, 52 percent in the new poll said the United States should not significantly reduce military spending because of lessening East-West tensions. The Bush administration is contemplating sizable cuts in its military budget.

Respondents were divided on whether the United States should remove all of its troops from Western Europe if the Soviets removed theirs from Eastern Europe. Of those who had an opinion, 47 percent favored such a deal and 42 percent were opposed, a split within the poll's 3-point error margin.

By a 68-25 percent margin, respondents opposed immediate cuts in U.S. troops stationed in Western Europe as a response to reforms in the East. But among those who opposed cuts, a majority said they would favor troop reductions later if the reforms continue.

On the broadest East-West issue, respondents by a 57-35 percent margin rejected the notion that the Soviet Union is trying to dominate the world, with the rest unsure.

The secretary spoke on the eve of the president's departure for the Mediterranean island of Malta. Bush and Gorbachev will hold talks Saturday and Sunday on U.S. and Soviet warships anchored in Malta's Marsaxlokk Bay.

Bush spent Wednesday preparing for his first meeting as president with Gorbachev, discussing the talks in a telephone conversation with West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said the two leaders also talked about Kohl's new proposal Tuesday for a confederation with East Germany as a step toward eventual reunification.

On that point, Baker said, "If there's unification, it should occur in the context of Germany's continued alignment with NATO and an increasingly integrated European Community."

No wave

Last week marked the latest episode of a tired campus saga that is fast becoming a parody of itself. Once again, the UI Student Senate responded to allegations against New Wave by freezing the organization's funding while it decided whether or not the radical activist group was impermissibly "political." And once again, New Wave escaped unscathed, its funding intact.

While the real issue this time may be why New Wave members chose to waste their energies with a vigorous picket of a congressman whose views on Central America nearly mirror their own, their demonstration resurrected an ongoing controversy over the group's status as a funded student organization.

Anyone on campus even vaguely familiar with New Wave — from the conservatives who find them irritating and ridiculous, to the liberals who find them embarrassing and ridiculous — realizes that under the Senate's definition, New Wave is definitely "political."

But the absurd funding freeze routine and the group's countercharges of "right-wing" harassment constitute nothing new for New Wave or the Senate. Since New Wave was founded, it has faced almost annual charges because of its overt disregard of the Senate's funding regulations.

According to the Senate's Budget and Protocol Act, any group "which publicly advocates or works toward the election or defeat of particular candidates or parties," or whose office supplies are shared with a political group, is considered "political" and is therefore ineligible to receive student Senate funds.

Anyone on campus even vaguely familiar with New Wave — from the conservatives who find them irritating and ridiculous, to the liberals who find them embarrassing and ridiculous — realizes that under the Senate's definition, New Wave is definitely "political."

Yet, the Senate consistently disregards strong evidence against New Wave and has refused to enforce regulations that supposedly keep student funds away from political entities.

Of course, no one has accused the current Senate leadership of thrift, but the yearly allocation of several thousand dollars worth of student funds to provide New Wave with bullhorns and office supplies has become acutely disturbing to the vast majority of UI students who do not support New Wave's radical politics or juvenile behavior.

Actual enforcement of Senate regulations may endanger other, equally political student funded organizations, but that is probably just as well.

Student Senate inaction on issues important to real students is not uncommon, nor especially surprising. But when a radical student group continually and improperly siphons critical student funds away from more vital recipients, time has come for the Senate to terminate New Wave's funding.

Scant comfort

The official censure of a Texas District Court judge, whose anti-homosexual remarks to the media last year sparked an outcry for his removal, gives little reason to expect much justice in the future for gays and lesbians in the Lone Star State.

The furor began when the judge, Jack Hampton of Dallas, sentenced a man convicted of murdering two homosexual men to 20 years instead of the expected life term. Hampton explained to the press: "Those two gays that got killed wouldn't have been killed if they hadn't been cruising the streets picking up teen-age boys. I don't care much for queers cruising the streets picking up teen-age boys. I've got a teen-age boy."

To mitigate the offense of murder because the victims were homosexuals is a license few would grant themselves in the name of parenthood. And certainly it reveals an unacceptable flaw of character in a man charged with the disinterested distribution of justice.

But Hampton, after the State Commission on Judicial Conduct had reviewed the incident, was merely censured on the grounds that his remarks were "destructive of public confidence in the integrity and impartiality of the judiciary."

That's scant comfort to gays and lesbians who may, at some future time, find themselves before Hampton's bench.

But Texans of all sexual orientation should be disturbed by the Commission's finding that Hampton's remarks, not his nature, were the object of concern.

Prejudice is the bugbear of the bench not because it erodes confidence, but because it is philosophically antithetical to the function of the judiciary. And quiet bigotry, which the Commission implicitly endorsed in their report, is very often more insidious than its louder cousin — more difficult to identify, and therefore more difficult to combat.

But meanwhile, in the person of Jack Hampton, a bigot stands revealed. He has no business coming anywhere near a judge's chambers, and his fellow judges have no business excusing him.

Summit deal: Dollars for arms

It would be grand if it turns out that we are on the way to effective disarmament. For reasons that dismay, many speak as though the day has already come. We are all accustomed to politicians and moralists who compare the cost of a new tank with the cost of a slum project, implying that the military-industrial complex that rules America actually prefers tanks to low-income housing. But now such folk speak with a sense of consummation. Whereas yesterday they would denigrate the extra tank as redundant, now they speak as though there simply isn't any need for tanks. Oh, maybe a few in case Operation Rescuers get out of hand, but not many.

Dick Cheney, our able secretary of defense, has come a long way since he assumed office. First he was saying that he frankly doubted that Mikhail Gorbachev would last. From that position, perhaps under pressure, he retreated, but he reaffirmed the need to maintain our military budget at its present level. And now he has asked for a reduction in the military budget over the next three years, indicating several species to be scrapped outright and fingering a number of military bases that can be closed.

One is reminded of the grammar of military knowledge. It goes like this: You measure the resources of your potential enemy. And then you attempt to evaluate its intentions.

Now the resources of the Soviet Union have been reduced in a very limited sense only. The people of East Europe are no longer docile, and one must suppose that any Soviet military drive against the West would meet with active opposition from Poles, East Germans and Czechs. But Poles, East Germans and Czechs do not have any military of their own worth speaking of. The distance between Moscow and Berlin is no greater than the distance from Berlin to Moscow, and Hitler got within six miles of Moscow even though the resistance was massive and heavily armed. There are still 380,000 Soviet troops in East Germany, outnumbering our own by 2-to-1. Even if these troops are pulled out of East Germany and Poland, an aggressive Soviet thrust would find the road ahead even easier than Hitler did.

And that has to do with the fate of Europe, not with the strategic danger for the United States. Soviet strategic strength has not diminished. We are justified in thinking it less likely that Moscow would use it against the West. We would be reckless flatly to rule out the possibility that it might use or threaten to use its nuclear artillery against the West. Since the very size of that artillery is aggressive in shape and in density, why is it there at all if the Soviet Union is prepared to renounce any possibility of using it?

We would be reckless flatly to rule out the possibility that the U.S.S.R. might use or threaten to use its nuclear artillery against the West.

Anyone who worked at a separation center in 1945-46 knows something about the fever associated with demobilization. Granted, we were dealing in those days with a conscripted soldiery and today we have a volunteer military — but the fever is the same, and we feel now its first emanations. The lust for the money now going to the military feeds it; and if unchecked, we are going to find a great hole where the Pentagon once was.

Yes, that is an exaggeration, but our editorialists sometimes sound like East Germans the day the wall was penetrated. And no doubt Gorbachev will know this when he meets next week with President George Bush at one of those fateful summit conferences we almost always wish had never taken place.

William Safire of The New York Times advises Bush not to bail out the Soviet Union, but do not push the Soviet Union toward desperation. And the desirable formula is obvious: Our cash, their guns. But any contract designed to effect this change must be conclusive in character. We need to establish that that element of the Soviet war machine that constitutes a potential threat to the world should be dismantled. Ream the barrels of those launchers and artillery pieces and grow flowers there, and visit them every week or two to clip the blossoms, which we can spray about our military cemeteries, rededicating ourselves to our determination not to have to fight again.

Phi Beta Rip-off

To the Editor:

On Sunday, I will be initiated into the ranks of the oldest collegiate honor society in this country, Phi Beta Kappa. I will also have the privilege of footing the bill; it costs me $40 to be so honored. Is it not ironic that a university gives extensive lip service to the virtues of hard work and scholarship and then refuses to pay for a speech, a certificate and some Hawaiian Punch for those "model students"? What a rip.

The good life

To the Editor:

This morning I got up and my apartment was cold. I looked at my roommate Jeff and he was watching TV. I said to him that I thought it was cold in the apartment. He agreed. "Have you gotten The Daily Iowan from the hall?" I asked. "Nope," he replied. "I just can't go to my French class unless I read 'Jim's Journal' in the DI," I exclaimed.

So I opened the door, got the DI, read "Jim's Journal," and life was good.

God bless "Jim's Journal."

To the Editor:

The Student Senate is attacking the campus left again. Recently, they froze New Wave's funding until the Senate completed an investigation. The investigation was called for because "New Wave allegedly participated in events and distributed materials that contributed to the defeat of a political candidate" (DI, November 15) when they picketed in front of Rep. Dave Nagle's (D-Iowa) office.

There is a problem with the accusation made by the Student Senate. Dave Nagle is not a candidate. Nagle's term was not up for consideration on November 7. New Wave did not attempt to endorse any replacement for Nagle. New Wave attempted to get Nagle to end his support for Contra aid and to get the Bush administration to follow the rules of the Central American Peace Agreement.

In an astonishingly broad interpretation of the funding rules, Kevin Taylor, director of campus programs and student activities, reportedly said "they can talk about the issues but not about the candidates... You can hate Reaganomics or Bushonomics, but you can't say you hate Bush" (DI November 15). That [equates] having an opinion with actively working for the defeat of a candidate. It rules out making an opinion known to or about any elected official, whether a candidate or not.

Taylor and the UI would surely be happy to see New Wave defunded and ultimately off the campus, because New Wave and other left groups have often criticized the UI, and quite loudly. If the senate is successful in its attack on New Wave, other groups will be in the same danger. Even if they don't lose their funds, they will feel pressured into "playing it safe," severely limiting the actions of many groups. New Wave must be allowed to keep its funds.

Impoverished position

To the Editor:

I was deeply dismayed to read Michael Lorgenger's misinformed and simplistic editorial, "Aiding democracy" (DI, November 27).

His repeated use of sensational, reactionary buzzwords and his pathetic submissions to the processed right-wing propaganda on Central America serve only to obscure the facts and mislead the public.

Lorgenger's idea of the Bush administration actually increasing involvement in Central America is preposterous. The shameful Reagan/Bush policy in Central American has bankrolled military death squads in El Salvador and widespread civilian executions by the Contras in Nicaragua. After nine years and billions of dollars dedicated to this policy, the United States has succeeded only in subverting freedom and promoting terrorism.

The disgraceful achievements of the Reagan/Bush policy on Central American speak for themselves. As the McCarthyan dogma is dispersed and the truth revealed, so revealed is the poverty of Lorgenger's position.

Coast Guard searches for missing plane

NARRAGANSETT, R.I. — Debris from a missing twin-engine plane and the bodies of two dogs provided mounting evidence Wednesday the commuter plane plunged into the cold waters off Block Island with eight people aboard, but the Coast Guard pushed on with its search.

"We never work on that assumption" that people are dead, said Petty Officer Dave Winters at the Coast Guard's Point Judith rescue station, which coordinated the search by helicopters and a flotilla of Coast Guard and fishing boats.

"If they happen to be on a piece (of wreckage) out of the water, there's always a chance," said Petty Officer Dave Brear.

But Block Islanders said the seas of 5 to 6 feet and water temperatures of about 45 degrees made survival unlikely. The Coast Guard said the debris was found mainly in an area where the water averages 100-feet deep.

Debris that was plucked from the water or washed ashore included a shoe, a fire extinguisher, a headset, life jackets, seat cushions and a box with a New England Airlines label, officials said.

Prisoners on hunger strike in Bulgaria

SOFIA, Bulgaria — Hundreds of prisoners have begun a hunger strike, demanding the abolition of capital punishment and improved prison conditions, a newspaper reported Wednesday.

Lawmakers and judicial officials met with representatives of the 632 prisoners, who began their hunger strike November 20, and assured them some of their demands would be discussed at Parliament's next session on December 14, according to the newspaper Trud.

The strikers said they would end their protest if their grievances were published in the national press, but it was not known if they had given up their hunger strike.

According to Trud, the hunger strikers sent an open letter to new Communist Party chief and President Petar Mladenov, Parliament, the official Committee For Human Rights and the state prosecutor's office.

They demanded a shortening of prison terms; exemption from prosecution of persons under 16, women over 55 and men over 60; a government decision on a partial amnesty; abolition of the death penalty; and a shorter duration of investigative custody.

High milk prices hurt chocolate makers

WASHINGTON — The government should temporarily lift the import quota for non-fat dry milk to avert a holiday season shortage of chocolate goods, the chocolate supplier to some prestigious confectioners said Wednesday.

"The import limit is 7,000 pounds per year. That's what we use in a day," said Peter Van Leer, whose 40-year-old family business in Jersey City, N.J., produces 30-million tons of chocolate each year.

Van Leer chocolate is used in Godiva products, Pepperidge Farm cookies and Ben & Jerry's ice creams.

Aoun refuses peace until Syria leaves

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Christian militias that have opposed Gen. Michel Aoun said Wednesday they would join him in fighting the troops, tanks and artillery Syria is massing around Lebanon's Christian enclave.

Elias Hrawi, the new Christian president backed by Syria, dismissed Aoun as army commander Tuesday and ordered him to leave his command post in a bunker beneath the presidential palace in Baabda, east of Beirut.

Aoun claims Hrawi's election by Parliament last week was unconstitutional, says he won't accept a new peace plan until the Syrian "occupation army" leaves the country and has refused to turn over the shell-battered palace.

Lebanon's largest Christian militia, the Lebanese forces, said it would fight beside the 20,000 Christian troops who followed Aoun through a six-month artillery war with the Syrians earlier this year.

The Phalange Party, the main right-wing Christian political force and also a foe of Aoun, pledged to confront any attempt to storm the 310-square-mile Christian enclave north and east of Beirut.

Thirty-three members of the French parliament met with Aoun. In a show of support that contradicted the official French government stand, the legislators joined thousands of young men who have formed a human shield around the palace.

One of the lawmakers, Bernard Bosson, said he was "amazed at the flood of masses" at the palace and declared: "This is like the people's movement in Eastern Europe asking for democracy."

France supports Hrawi, who is trying to strengthen his central government and reunite the fractured military as part of an effort to end the 14-year-old sectarian civil war, in which more than 150,000 people have been killed.

Christians have dominated the government, army and judiciary since Lebanon became independent.

Sluggish economy, end of expansion predicted

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. economy grew moderately from July through September, the government said Wednesday, but analysts said it has since weakened sharply, threatening to derail an unprecedented peacetime expansion.

The Commerce Department said the gross national product, the broadest measure of economic health, grew at an annual rate of 2.7 percent in the third quarter, slightly higher than the 2.5-percent rate originally reported last month.

Earlier this year, economists had widely forecast only sluggish growth in the quarter, but the revision means the third quarter topped the 2.5-percent second-quarter rate.

At the White House, presidential spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said, "We always like to see increase in growth. And this report is relatively good news in that sense."

However, private analysts predicted with near unanimity a sharply weaker performance in the final three months of 1989 and the first quarter of next year. A few expect the nation to topple into a recession, ending the expansion, which enters its eighth year in December.

"We should enjoy these (third-quarter) numbers, because the chances are we're not going to see their like anytime soon," said economist Robert Dederick of Northern Trust Co.

Most economists attribute the current sluggishness to a yearlong anti-inflation campaign by the Federal Reserve Board which pushed interest rates up through this spring.

Since then, the Fed has nudged rates lower, but the economy won't reflect the full benefit of rate cuts — and any further declines in the next few months — until later next year.

"The reason the economy will skirt a recession, but not fall into one, is interest rates are coming down substantially," said economist Bruce Steinberg of Merrill Lynch. He predicted a further decline in rates next month.

In other economic news, an administration source who spoke on the condition of anonymity said that President George Bush planned to name Assistant Treasury Secretary David Mullins Jr. to a vacancy on the Federal Reserve Board. Economists said the appointment was likely to give the administration, which has sought a looser monetary policy, a greater voice in the Fed's decisions.

Although the GNP revision Wednesday was in line with economists' expectations, it still caused a negative ripple in financial markets.

Gandhi resigns from prime minister post

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi resigned Wednesday, and for only the second time since independence in 1947 his Congress Party did not claim the right to form the next government.

Opposition parties began trying to assemble a coalition.

Gandhi submitted his resignation to President Ramaswamy Venkataraman and said he was ready for the role of opposition leader.

"The people have given their verdict," he said in a televised speech Wednesday night. "In all humility, we respect the verdict."

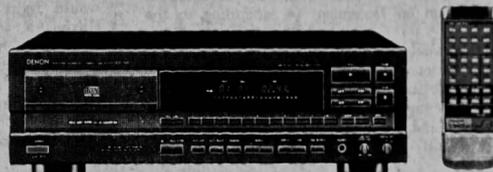

"A new government will be formed. We extend to them our good wishes and offer them our constructive cooperation," said the 45-year-old former airline pilot, who won his own Parliament seat overwhelmingly for a third time.

Congress won more Parliament seats in last week's elections than any other party, but was far short of a majority.

Venkataraman asked Gandhi to remain in office as caretaker prime minister. The resignation cleared the way for the National Front alliance to form the next government for the world's most populous democracy.

THE IOWA CRITICAL LANGUAGES SCHOLARSHIP

an innovative program designed to prepare highly qualified secondary school teachers of Chinese, Japanese, and Russian is now accepting applications for it's 1989-90 competition

The three-year program has the sequence:

- Intensive language training at a summer institute recognized for it's excellence in these languages.
- One year of intensive preparation at The University of Iowa in language, history, and culture.
- A second summer of intensive language training at a more advanced level.
- One year of study abroad in the appropriate language area.
- One year of study at The University of Iowa to complete graduation and teacher certification requirements, including a semester of student teaching.

Scholarships are provided for the two summers of intensive language instruction and the year of study abroad. Other support based on eligibility available through the Office of Financial Aid.

Students who participate in the program are obligated to teach in a cooperating Iowa school district for at least three years after graduation. School districts currently cooperating in the program are Cedar Rapids, Des Moines, Iowa Marshalltown, Urbandale, and West Des Moines.

Iowa stoppers earn 1st-team honors

Brad Quast

CHICAGO (AP) — Iowa linebacker Brad Quast made the 1989 Associated Press All-Big Ten football for the second year in a row, and was joined by Hawkeye defensive lineman Jim Johnson.

Indiana's Anthony Thompson, the nation's leading rusher, and defensive stars Percy Snow of Michigan State and Moe Gardner of Illinois were unanimous selections on the team announced Wednesday.

All three were repeaters from last year's team, along with linebacker Darrick Brownlow of Illinois and tailback Tony Boles of Michigan.

Thompson was named the league's Most Valuable Player for the second year in a row. Quarterback Eric Hunter of Purdue was selected Freshman of the Year.

Illinois led the way in the rankings with six players, all of them juniors, named to the team. Champion Michigan landed five spots, as did Michigan State. Ohio State, Indiana and Iowa each had two players listed, and Northwestern and Purdue had one each. Minnesota and Wisconsin were shut out on the first team.

The team was chosen by a panel of 19 sportswriters and sportscasters covering the Big Ten.

Illinois' Jeff George, an outstanding passer, was named quarterback for the all-conference team, with Richard Buchanan of Northwestern and Courtney Hawkins of Michigan State the wide receivers.

Rounding out the unit on offense were tight end Derrick Walker of Michigan, tackles Bob Kula of Michigan State and Joe Staysniak of Ohio State, guards Dean Dingman of Michigan and Jeff Davidson of Ohio State, center Curt Lovelace of Illinois and kicker J.D. Carlson of Michigan.

Snow, Brownlow and Quast marked a rarity as the linebacking corps repeated from last year. Up front with Gardner were Travis Davis of Michigan State and Mel Agee of Illinois.

Defensive back Tripp Welborne of Michigan missed being unanimous by two points. He received 17 first-team votes and two second team votes.

Joining Welborne were Harlon Barnett of Michigan State, Mike Dumas of Indiana and Henry Jones of Illinois.

Seahawks searching for Boz

SEATTLE (AP) — Ever wonder what happened to "The Boz," that $11 million linebacker from Oklahoma? The Seattle Seahawks do.

The Seahawks, who won a lottery to take Bosworth in the June 1987 supplemental draft, fear they may have seen the last of him.

"I don't know, I can't answer that," Seahawks President Tom Flores said when asked whether Bosworth would ever play again. "Right now it looks a little tenuous."

Bosworth's third NFL season — in which he is being paid $500,000 — is symbolic of the Seahawks' demise from AFC West champions to a 4-8, non-playoff team.

"All I know right now, and the only thing that we can go on, is that the right shoulder was a similar injury to the left and the rehabilitation is similar," Flores said.

"Hopefully, the right one will be able to come back like the left one did. Then we'll have to re-evaluate it at that time. But right now we don't know."

Bosworth's third season with the Seahawks consisted of two games and a dozen tackles before he was forced out by a sore shoulder. That's $41,666 per tackle.

A year ago he missed seven games, including the Seahawks' playoff game, because of an injured left shoulder, which required arthroscopic surgery. His right shoulder didn't require surgery.

Except for his rookie season, he has been a virtual one-armed tackle.

The man who was supposed to make a dramatic impact on the Seattle defense has become invisible, remembered more for his hairdo and his deodorant commercials than his tackling.

His most memorable on-field performance was when he hit Bo Jackson at the 1-yard-line in a Monday night matchup with the Los Angeles Raiders. Bo beat the Boz and scored the touchdown.

His pro career has consisted of 24 games and 175 tackles.

Coach Chuck Knox danced at the team's headquarters in Kirkland and hugged then-General Manager Mike McCormack after the Seahawks got the right to pick Bosworth. Visions of a blond Dick Butkus danced in his head.

The Seahawks signed Bosworth to a 10-year, $11 million contract. The NFL Players Association said the first five years were guaranteed.

Flores was coaching the Raiders when Bosworth arrived in Seattle, but he doesn't second guess McCormack or Knox for wanting Bosworth. All 28 NFL teams

Iowa butterfly and individual medley specialist Roland Zschiegner is one of the upperclassmen on the Hawkeye men's swimming team stepping to the forefront in competition this season. Zschiegner is hoping to make his NCAA cuts at the Texas Invitational this weekend.

Junior steps forward, leads depleted squad

Erica Weiland
The Daily Iowan

Because of the loss of 11 lettermen from last year's Iowa men's swimming and diving team, coach Glenn Patton is looking for new leaders for his sixth-ranked team.

And he has found one of those leaders in junior Roland Zschiegner.

"We need people like Roland to step forward and take charge because we don't have the superstars," Patton said. "We need people with a couple years of experience to come forward."

It is also a step that Zschiegner said he is ready to take.

A butterfly and individual medley specialist, Zschiegner just missed making his NCAA cuts last season. This season, making those times is his number-one priority. And he hopes to do that this weekend at the Texas Invitational.

"At this point, I think I have a really good chance of making them," Zschiegner said. "Coach Mu (Xiang Hoa) has done an excellent job of coaching the stroke group, so I have a lot of confidence that I'll make the cuts. But there's always that chance that something might happen."

"Supposedly, Coach Patton said I should have made the cuts last year. So this year, I should be up there, placing in the top 16 hopefully."

According to Patton, Zschiegner has responded especially well to

"We need people like Roland to step forward and take charge because we don't have the superstars..."

the coaching of visiting Chinese national coach Mu Xiang Hoa.

"Coach Mu is getting the maximum effort out of Roland on a daily basis at practice," Patton said. "He's worked harder this year than he has in his past two years at Iowa. And I think his effort will show up at the end of the season as well as this weekend (at Texas)."

The biggest change in the 5-foot-7, 160-pound Camarillo, Calif., native, Patton said, is the way he

Scouting Report: Ohio State

Hawks, Buckeyes to meet for third time

Erica Weiland
The Daily Iowan

Ohio State volleyball coach Jim Stone is in his eighth year as the Buckeyes' leader, but this year has presented something different for him — a Big Ten title and a bid to the NCAA Tournament.

Last year his 14-16 Buckeyes finished seventh in the conference, but this year, with five starters having returned, Stone is tasting success. And the Ball State graduate is hoping that his team continues to prosper when they host Iowa in first-round action Friday at St. John's Arena in Columbus, Ohio.

That match presents the third opportunity this season for Ohio State to face Iowa. The Buckeyes' pulled out close 3-2 wins in the two previous matchups.

But according to Stone, this weekend's match isn't to see if they can beat Iowa a third time.

"Iowa is a very good team," the coach said. "We had two close matches and we were fortunate enough to win. I respect their abilities."

"We're both after the same thing, to win a match and get to regionals. We're not looking to beat them three times, we're just looking to win a match, and I think (Iowa coach) Ruth (Nelson) is after the same thing."

According to Nelson, it may be difficult for the Buckeyes to pull out another win against the Hawk-

"I don't think they know what to expect of us," Nelson said. "We've played different both times this year... And it isn't easy to beat someone three times."

This year is the first time Ohio State has been given an NCAA bid, which leaves some people with a question: Did Stone expect it to take this long?

"I didn't have any expectations as far as time," said Stone, who has compiled a 137-93 record in his seven years at Ohio State. "We're just glad it happened this year... I thought we would be good enough to compete with the best teams. We tried to take one step at a time. The closer we got, the more excited we became."

Stone said he's not sure what the Buckeyes' key to success is, but one of the main reasons could be that few injuries have handcuffed Ohio State this year.

"I don't know if we have a single key (to success). If a coach knew that, he would do it every year," Stone said. "One reason is that

Sooners miss 100-point half, crush International, 173-101

NORMAN, Okla. (AP) — Oklahoma missed four chances at college basketball's first 100-point half before settling for a record 97 and the 17th-ranked Sooners got a career-high 31 points from William Davis in crushing U.S. International 173-101 Wednesday night.

Davis, who also had 18 rebounds, scored 20 points in the first half when the Sooners piled up a 97-45 lead. That broke the mark of 94 scored last season by Loyola Marymount — also against U.S. International.

Oklahoma failed to connect on four 3-point shots in the final minute of the first half in an attempt to reach 100 by the intermission. The Sooners used their press for the entire first half and forced 28 turnovers, setting up numerous easy baskets.

The Sooners also set an NCAA record for shots in a game with 147, surpassing the 132 by Illinois against Colgate on Dec. 30, 1948. The 173 points were eight short of the NCAA record set by Loyola Marymount against USIU in last year's 181-150 shootout. It was a Big Eight record, eclipsing the mark of 152 the Sooners scored against Oral Roberts last season.

Oklahoma actually started slowly, taking a 20-10 lead with 13:19 left in the half. But then they began to press furiously and the result was a 24-0 run in the span of 2:25, with 18 points coming off turnovers.

Then it was off to the record books. In the first half, Oklahoma took 90 shots and made 42, grabbed 50 rebounds and made 21 steals. All four were Big Eight one-half records. The Sooners forced 42 turnovers and a Big Eight record 86 rebounds.

Tony Martin and Skeeter Henry each scored 20 points in the first half and finished with 24 and 27, respectively. Jackie Jones added 20 points.

U.S. International (2-1) got 28 points from Steve Smith, 26 from Kevin Bradshaw and 20 from Demetrius Laffitte.

Hawkeyes rout Nebraska, 74-55

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — Katie Abrahamson scored 20 points and Franthea Price added 18 to lead the 10th-ranked Iowa women's basketball team past Nebraska 74-55 Wednesday night at the Bob Devaney Sports Center in Lincoln, Neb.

Abrahamson hit eight of 17 shots from the field and pulled down a team-high seven rebounds for the Hawkeyes.

Jollette Law had 12 points and Toni Foster 11 for Iowa, which jumped to a 19-9 lead in the first quarter, and was ahead 43-29 at halftime. Steph Schuler added six steals and six assists for the Hawkeyes.

Nebraska (1-2) was led by Karen Jennings' 14 points and Kelly Hubert's eight rebounds. Kim Yancey scored nine points for the Cornhuskers.

Iowa is now 3-0 with wins over both Howard and Connecticut in the fifth-annual Amana-Hawkeye Classic, and its current victory over Nebraska.

Coach C. Vivian Stringer's squad will travel to the campus of Louisiana Tech in Ruston, La., Dec. 1-2 for their next test to take on St. Joseph's University out of Philadelphia in the first round of the Dial Soap Classic.

Also in first round action, host team Louisiana Tech, who is currently ranked second in the nation, will battle Mississippi Valley State.

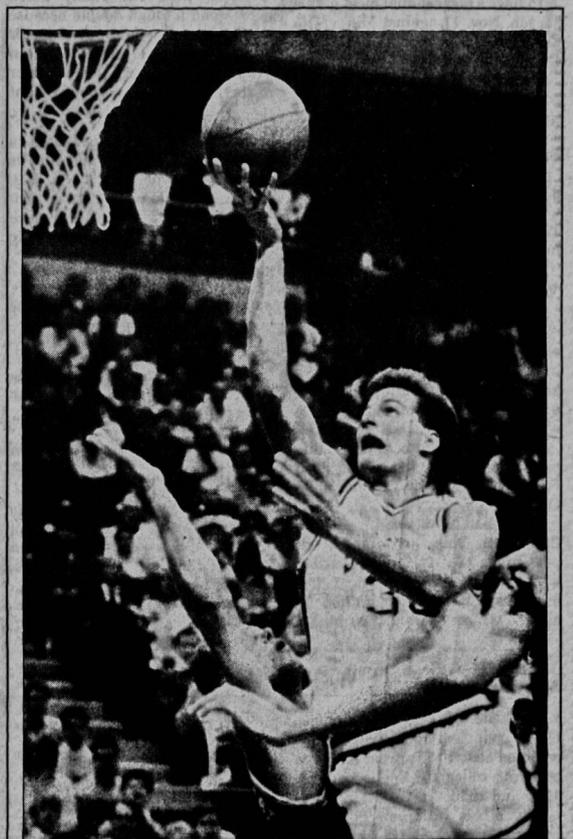

Last year at the Dial Classic held on the campus of the University of Kansas, the Hawkeyes pummeled Grambling State in the first round 80-66. But the Iowa women lost in a tight contest to Kansas, 67-63.

Another coach given walking papers

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Jim Fassel, who made inroads in improving the academic performance of his football players while they compiled a 25-33 record in his five years as head coach, has been fired by the University of Utah.

"We are pleased with the way Coach Fassel has represented the University of Utah," Hill said. "Unfortunately, we have not made the progress that we have expected in the football program. Therefore, we feel it is necessary to make a change. We will fulfill our contractual obligations to Coach Fassel."

Fassel had a year remaining on his contract, which was renewed in 1988 after a 6-5 season capped by a 57-28 victory over archrival Brigham Young.

Landry assesses former team

GREENVILLE, S.C. (AP) — Dallas coach Jimmy Johnson may have chosen the wrong path for his team, predecessor Tom Landry says, and the Cowboys are in danger of wasting quarterback Troy Aikman's career.

The Cowboys, who won only three games last year under Landry, are 1-11 with four games left in the regular season as Johnson embarks upon a rebuilding program accentuating youth.

"Everybody has their own thoughts," Landry said. But he said he would not follow the route Johnson is taking "because I believe a great deal in experience. I would have tried to blend the experience with new people as you try to rebuild."

"The problem they're having is they're starting over again, getting rid of Herschel Walker and a number of older players," he said. "Now they've got a complete rebuilding program to do before they come back again."

U.S. junior skaters battle Soviets

COLORADO SPRINGS, Colo. (AP) — John Baldwin Jr. kept his lead but fellow American Scott Davis slipped as two Soviets dominated the original program Wednesday at the World Junior Figure Skating Championships.

Baldwin, a 16-year-old from San Diego who won the compulsory previous day, was third in the original program. That left him on top going into Thursday's free skate, worth 50 percent of the total score.

Michigan St, Michigan post wins

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Kirk Manns scored 19 points and Steve Smith added 18 as Michigan State posted an 80-69 victory over Nebraska Wednesday night.

The Spartans improved their record to 4-0 in winning their home opener, while the Cornhuskers fell to 1-2.

Michigan State broke the game open early, using an 11-2 run to take a 17-7 lead with 12 minutes, 23 seconds left in the first half. Nebraska, which trailed 71-53 with 7:27 left, narrowed the gap to seven at 75-68 on Chris Cresswell's basket with 1:19 to go. The Cornhuskers could only manage a free throw the rest of the way.

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Sean Higgins scored 16 of his 20 points in the second half as No. 9 Michigan, playing its first home game since winning the NCAA championship last spring, rolled to a 85-70 victory over Grambling State on Wednesday night.

Grambling (1-2) committed 17 of the 26 first-half turnovers and Michigan (2-1), after a lethargic start, led 36-26 at the intermission.

The Tigers, playing against Michigan's reserves, led for the only time at 19-18 with 6:30 remaining in the first half on Claude Newell's 3-point basket. But the Wolverines put the regulars back in and Demetrius Calip, Loy Vaught and Terry Mills each had four points as Michigan outscored Grambling 18-7 the remainder of the half.

UNI wrestlers upset Minnesota

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (AP) — Outstanding performances by Gary Steffensmeier and Jamie Byrne allowed No. 13 Northern Iowa to dominate the lower weights and defeat sixth-ranked Minnesota 23-15 in college wrestling Wednesday.

The Panthers captured five of the first six matches and held on to defeat the Gophers in the season opener for both teams.

Steffensmeier decided Willy Short 15-4 at 150 pounds and Byrne beat Mike Marzetta 12-3 at 158 for Northern Iowa, which won only one match after 158.

Minnesota's Marty Morgan decided Rich Powers 15-6 at 190 pounds and the Gophers' Jeff Balcom downed Dave Williams 16-7 at heavyweight.

has been finishing his races this year.

The Hawkeye coach said that while last year Zschiegner tended to lose close races at the end, this year he is winning them.

In Iowa's biggest dual meet of this season, Nov. 11 against Minnesota, Zschiegner won both the 200-yard IM and the 200 fly.

His time of one minute, 53.78 seconds in the IM race beat out junior national champion Paul Nelsen's second-place time by less than two-tenths of a second.

In the 200 fly event, Zschiegner defeated Minnesota's Matt Moseman, whom he had lost to at Big Tens last season, by half a second in a time of 1:52.35.

"Usually I've always been beat at the end of a race," Zschiegner said. "And to come back and beat some of the top swimmers in the Big Ten felt really good."

"Those were two really tough events and a tough double because there was only one event (3-meter diving) between them," Patton said. "He was clearly the swimmer of the meet in the most important meet thus far in the season."

"Roland has developed into a winner of close races, and that is extremely important to a 3-0, sixth-ranked team," Patton continued. "That is the difference between a swimmer and a good Big Ten competitor."

we've stayed pretty injury-free up until the end of the season. We've kept the same people on the court all season. (And) we were able to win some close matches this year."

The Buckeyes' success is also due partly to the playing of Big Ten Player of the Year, junior Holly O'Leary.

The 5-foot-10 outside hitter from Cincinnati, Ohio, sports an attack percentage of .274 for the season, with 593 kills out of 1,394 attempts. She has also tallied 21 assists, 31 service aces, 80 blocks and 374 digs.

But according to Stone, O'Leary is not the only bright spot on the team.

"Holly O'Leary is our leading attacker," Stone said, "but we're generally fairly well-balanced."

Besides having the conference player of the year on their team, Ohio State also boasts the Big Ten Coach of the Year and three players — O'Leary, middle hitter Leisa Wissler and setter Audrey DiProzio — on the all-Big Ten team.

wanted the 6-foot-2, 236-pounder from Irving, Texas, who was selected as the nation's outstanding collegiate linebacker in 1985 and 1986.

"It's a sad situation because here's a player who was a marquee player and everybody had him at the top of their list as a great player and a can't miss," Flores said. "Whoever was pulled out of that hat during that draft would have taken him."

"There's no team in the league that I heard that would have passed because he was that kind of an impact player. The fact that he hasn't turned out to be yet is sad."

Flores also said he felt badly for Bosworth.

"I feel badly for all of us because we haven't had the benefit of his great talent, and he is disappointed and down because he hasn't been able to play. The fans have never seen the real one."

Flores said Bosworth is working out "at a local facility" under the supervision of Seahawks head trainer Jim Whitesel. Bosworth is lifting "very light" weights for his right shoulder.

The Seahawks will pay heavily if Bosworth can't play again. According to the players association, he is guaranteed $600,000 next season and $700,000 in 1991.

Helicopter crash kills one, injures five

PARK CITY, Utah (AP) — Ski resort executive Craig Badami was killed and five others were injured when a cable being trailed by a helicopter snagged on a trailer and the copter crashed, authorities said. Badami, 37, was vice president of marketing for Park City Ski Resort and was director of last weekend's World Cup competition at the resort. He was the son of Nick Badami, owner of the ski area and the Alpine Meadows Ski Corp. in Lake Tahoe, Nev.

Craig Badami was declared dead at the site of the Tuesday afternoon crash after efforts to revive him failed, police said.

"Craig was a visionary who really saw the big picture and the way things could be," ski area spokesman Mark Menlove said. "He was the driving force behind the World Cup and wasn't afraid of going all out."

Park City Police Chief Frank Bell said witnesses reported that the helicopter's steel cable snagged on a mobile trailer, snapped and flew upward into the rotor.

"It came down upside down. . . . There was no fire and nobody on the ground was injured," said Bell, who added that details were sketchy.

He said the trailer was one of about a dozen at the parking lot that had been used to store equipment during the ski races.

The helicopter, an Aerospatial Alouette SA316, was being used to clear equipment and transport personnel during cleanup after the races, Rocky Mountain Helicopter of Provo, owner of the aircraft, said.

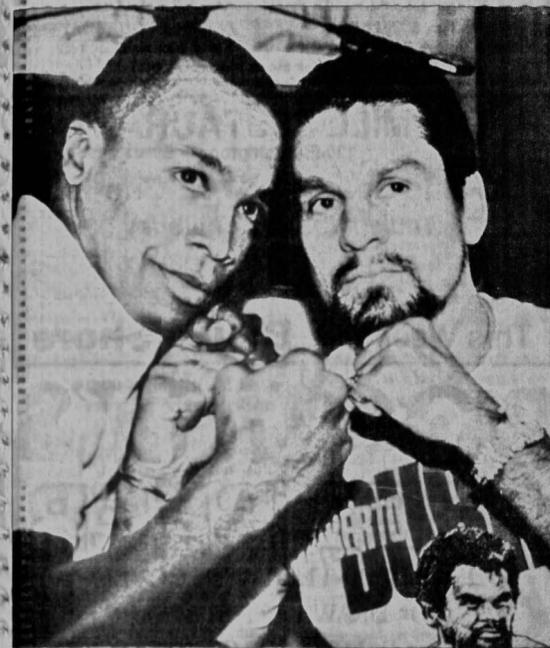

The crew was dismantling and transporting a sound system from the base of the mountain when the accident occurred.

The helicopter came down about 150 feet west of the parking lot, near the base of the Three Kings ski lift, sending fragments of metal 1,000 feet from the crash site, Bell said.

The Three Kings run was not open for public skiing. Federal Aviation Administration and National Transportation Safety Board investigators were sent to the scene.

Michael Simonsen, 29, of Kearns, and Ed Pratt, 38, of Salt Lake City, were taken to the University of Utah Health Sciences Center in Salt Lake City. Simonsen was in critical but stable condition and Pratt was in serious condition.

Taken to LDS Hospital in Salt Lake City were Lynn Gillies, 49, of Fairfield, the helicopter pilot, and Simonsen, 26, of Salt Lake City. Gillies was in critical condition with abdominal injuries and Simonsen was in serious condition with possible back injuries.

Sugar Ray Leonard, left, and Roberto Duran strike poses Wednesday at a news conference in Los Angeles to promote their WBC super middleweight fight scheduled for Dec. 7 in Las Vegas. It will be the third meeting of the two fighters.

'Uno Mas' will decide Duran-Leonard rift

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "Uno Mas."

Is it one more? Or one too many?

As the decade opened, Sugar Ray Leonard and Roberto Duran staged a memorable show in Montreal, with Duran taking a 15-round decision that remains to this day Leonard's lone loss.

Five months later, on Nov. 25, 1980, Leonard avenged the defeat, winning by TKO in New Orleans when the beaten Duran quit in the eighth round, uttering "No mas, No mas," — no more.

Afterward, Duran, who claimed he quit because of stomach cramps, announced his retirement, saying, "I've gotten tired of the sport and I feel it's time for me to retire."

Leonard retired two years later after having surgery to repair a detached retina in his left eye. He made his first comeback in 1984, then immediately retired again, saying after an unimpressive ninth-round knockout of Kevin Howard, "There's no sense fooling myself. That's it."

As the decade closes, Leonard, 33, and Duran, 38, meet again, with their Dec. 7 bout at the new Mirage hotel in Las Vegas dubbed "Uno Mas."

Duran says he's fighting for retribution; Leonard says he's always wanted the "rubber match."

There's also the matter of a guaranteed $12.6 million — $35,000 a minute if the bout goes its scheduled 12 rounds — for Leonard, and $7.6 million for Duran.

At a press conference Wednesday, the fighters seemed intense, but less than completely inspired as they shared the head table.

"This is a fight I take very seriously," said Leonard, who had indicated after his last fight, a 12-round draw with Thomas Hearns on June 12, that he didn't completely have his heart in that match.

But he said of the third meeting with Duran: "This is very important; it could possibly be my last fight . . . the one they'll remember. My last fight (against Hearns) was not that impressive; I think it wasn't and I'm my own biggest critic."

MacLeod receives axe, Mavs name interim boss

DALLAS (AP) — John MacLeod, who brought the Dallas Mavericks to the brink of the NBA finals two years ago, was fired as head coach of Wednesday for failing to motivate the stumbling club.

"Assistant coach Richie Adubato was named to coach the Mavericks (5-6) against the Charlotte Hornets on Wednesday night "as well as the next few games," vice president of basketball operations Rick Sund said.

"Adubato served as interim coach for the Detroit Pistons in the 1979-80 season.

"The Mavericks have a multitude of problems," Sund said. "Certainly John has not caused those problems but at this particular time in order to get the team turned around we feel a coaching change is necessary."

"We need to get the team going again. For the time being Richie is going to take over the team while we evaluate the situation."

"A stunned MacLeod was fired after a late-morning practice. The reasons being there were a multitude of reasons, and the team had a multitude of problems, and I am relieved of my job," MacLeod said. "They felt the change was needed, so I'm out."

The trigger for the firing was a 47-point loss to Seattle at home last Saturday. It was the worst home loss in team history and the Mavericks' second-worst loss ever.

"That was just one game in an 82-game season," MacLeod said. "I didn't have much of a chance to turn things around."

"A decision like this is never easy, especially when you have a person that we respect as much as we do John," said chief operating officer and general manager Norm Sonju. "After reviewing our overall basketball situation we felt that the present team that we have right now needs a coaching change."

The team also has been stung by the loss of forward Roy Tarpley, who was indefinitely suspended following his arrest on driving while intoxicated charges. Tarpley had been suspended previously because of drug problems.

"There are things in the coaching ranks that you don't have any control over," MacLeod said. "You don't have any control over injuries and you don't have control over drug problems. John MacLeod can't go out and play for the guys."

Sund said at a late-afternoon news conference that he made the decision to fire MacLeod because "the lack of effort was evident."

"I was a big fan of John MacLeod, and I recommended him for the job here. This is a very uncomfortable moment for me, and I feel badly that things didn't work out."

Sund said Adubato would coach Thursday night's game in San Antonio against the Spurs and also

John MacLeod

Saturday in Houston against the Rockets before any further decisions are made.

He also said "the possibility is there" that Adubato would continue coaching for the rest of the season, and that some personnel changes might be made.

"Nobody on this team is an untouchable," Sund said.

Subdued owner Donald Carter said that although it was Sund's decision to fire MacLeod, "Me and Norm Sonju will have to take the heat with Rick."

MacLeod joined the Mavericks on June 4, 1987, succeeding Dick Motta, who retired May 20, 1987. In 14 years with Phoenix before he was fired, MacLeod guided his team to the Western Conference finals four times.

Spurrier meets with Florida representatives

DURHAM, N.C. (AP) — Duke football coach Steve Spurrier said after a meeting with Florida officials that he will make no decision on his coaching future until after Duke and Florida have played their respective bowl games.

Spurrier met for nearly two hours Saturday at his home in Durham with a Florida selection committee made up of Athletic Director Bill Arnsparger, interim Florida president Dr. Robert Bryan and Dr. Nick Cassisi, a resident of Gainesville, Fla.

"I'm definitely planning on coaching the bowl game, just like I said last week," Spurrier said Monday night after returning from a news conference at Birmingham. "That wouldn't be good for anybody (to decide before the bowl game). That wouldn't be good for either side."

"It was just a general get-to-know-each-other thing. They're in a bowl game and we're in a bowl game. I want to coach the bowl game no matter what happens. So there's no need for any serious talks at this time."

Spurrier said a second meeting would be held in the next two weeks.

Instructor felt Nadia would flee

CLARENS, Switzerland (AP) — The coach of 1976 Olympic gymnastics champion Nadia Comaneci said Wednesday he was not surprised by her defection from Romania to Hungary, but he hoped she would come to the United States.

Bela Karolyi, who defected from Romania to the United States in 1981, said Comaneci "is still a big personality in Romania, and she has nothing against the Romanian population."

"But just like me, she was chased out of the country by Romanian authorities," he said. "I'm happy finally she made the step which would lead to a free life, what she fully deserves."

Her defection "is what I was really wishing would happen one of these days," he told The Associated Press in a telephone interview from Clarens, where he was coaching the U.S. women's team at an international gymnastics meet.

Karolyi said he did not think Comaneci would stay in Hungary, which unlike Romania has an open border, and he said he would "warmly and honestly" recommend that she go to the United States.

"It is still the country with the greatest respect for Nadia and at the same time a country still with the greatest opportunity," he said.

Replay to be Finks' first test

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Instant replay and its role in governing football games will probably be Topic A when Jim Finks chairs his first meeting of the NFL's competition committee. Finks wouldn't predict whether the rule will be around for another season or, if it returns, what form it will take.

Among other things, critics say that allowing review of calls made on the field slows the game and makes field officials tentative about their decisions.

"I don't have an agenda," Finks said. "But I know the top thing we're going to have to address is instant replay, because it's become very controversial. The question is: Does it work?"

New NFL commissioner Paul Tagliabue appointed Finks as chairman of the competition committee last week. Finks, general manager of the New Orleans Saints, succeeds Tex Schramm, former president and general manager of the Dallas Cowboys and now president of the budding World League of American Football.

Schramm had a reputation as an activist, using his position as chairman of the competition committee to influence the course of proposed rules changes.

"Tex took this committee chairmanship pretty seriously," Finks said. "He worked at it 12 months out of the year."

"I'm not saying this as a knock at Tex, but I don't intend to do that. I'm going to be the guy who coordinates things, and then let it flow."

"On the committee is Paul Brown, who has been on it since Year One. Don (Shula) has been on it for a long time. Don replaced me when I left the committee in 1974, and he's been on it ever since. Marty Schottenheimer and Tom Flores, and that's the committee. They've all seen a game or two."

"The way it works, each committee member, either directly or indirectly, comes up with suggestions they might want to make, and we just hash them around," he said.

"I have some strong feelings on certain things, and I will ventilate them, and everyone else will, too."

He said he will meet with Tagliabue and his staff on Dec. 11 for a sort of general get-acquainted round-table. The first meeting of the committee will be about two weeks before the league's spring meeting in March.

Becker, Lendl open strong with 1st-round Masters' wins

NEW YORK (AP) — Boris Becker and Ivan Lendl shook off ghosts of tournaments past Tuesday night to post opening-round victories in the season-ending Masters tennis tournament.

Lendl, in search of his sixth Masters title and confirmation of his No. 1 ranking, got a measure of revenge by defeating Michael Chang 6-1, 6-3 before Becker, the defending champion at Madison Square Garden, overcame Brad Gilbert 2-6, 6-3, 6-4.

It was Lendl's first match against Chang since the French Open, where the teen-ager, hobbled by cramps, surprised the world's top-ranked player in the fourth round. Chang went on to win his first Grand Slam title, becoming the first American to win on the clay in Paris in 34 years.

Lendl, more at home on the faster carpet surface, made sure he wouldn't lose this time.

"He's always pretty much overpowering," Chang said of Lendl.

Curators: Even art has a price

BOSTON (AP)—To update collections in today's high-priced art market, museums increasingly must put a price on the priceless.

Curators haven't quite reached the level of "I'll trade you two Picassos for a Van Gogh," but museum boards are being forced to sell off some works to buy others. Budgets are simply dwarfed by the exponential growth in the price of auctioned art works.

"In today's art market, museums have a hard time buying," said Lori Starr, spokeswoman for the J. Paul Getty Museum in Los Angeles.

The Museum of Fine Arts in Boston, for example, has an acquisitions budget of about $2 million. In a market where a Vincent van Gogh painting was recently sold for nearly $54 million, that doesn't go far.

Today the museum will put eight American paintings on the auction block to raise money to buy other American paintings. The 19th and 20th century paintings for sale include works by John Singer Sargent, Maurice Prendergast, Albert Bierstadt and George Inness.

"In the best of all possible worlds, we could keep every painting and be able to add through the regular purchase fund," said Theodore Stebbins, the museum's curator for American paintings. "It used to be you could go down and buy wonderful things on the market (with $2 million). Now you can't."

Stebbins expects each painting to bring at least $3.6 million at the auction at Sotheby's in New York — nearly twice the museum's acquisition budget.

The Getty museum planned to auction about 15 works today from J. Paul Getty's private collection, including paintings by Gauguin and Degas. The expected $13 million to $16 million from the Sotheby's auction will go toward new purchases.

The sale of art to buy art is a "very established, regular procedure," especially as a way of weeding out works of no great interest to the public, said John Ross, spokesman for the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York.

"If something has not been shown in 30 years, or no other institute has asked to borrow it . . . and if in the considered opinion of experts in the field, it is not up to the quality of other works, then it can be removed from the list of works in the museum and put up for auction," he said Monday.

No one in the art-loving public should be afraid of a favorite painting going on the block, said Eileen Harakal, spokeswoman for Chicago's Art Institute. "We have icons that will always be here; things that are always untouched. The overwhelming majority of our collection is not going anywhere."

Medieval tunes, chants to ring at art museum

The Daily Iowan

The Cantores, a 13-member group from the UI School of Music specializing in the performance of medieval sacred chant, will perform on the monthly Music in the Museum program at 2 p.m. Sunday, in the UI Museum of Art.

Under the direction of D. Martin Jenni, the singers will present "Women in Chant," a program of music devoted to the women whose festivals are celebrated in the Roman Catholic liturgy. Jenni is a professor at the UI and is head of the programs in composition and theory in the UI

School of Music.

The program begins with a roll-call of a small but representative number of women, from Mary of Nazareth in the first century to Mother Frances Cabrini in the 20th. Next the singers single out Teresa of Avila (1515-1582), whom the Church reveres as a distinguished teacher.

From the liturgy known as Common of Holy Women come some of the most extraordinary chant compositions. "The special place of Mary, the mother of Jesus, has inspired a wondrous outpouring of melody within this collection. These selections also suggest the wealth of forms, modal colors and performance styles of chant," said Jenni.

Next The Cantores will sing "O Jerusalem" by Hildegard of Bingen (1098-1179), one of the few known composers of chant. Jenni explained, "While the medieval repertory is nearly entirely anonymous, Hildegard is a remarkable exception. She was an administrator, international correspondent, scientist, mystic, poet and composer."

The program concludes with a chorus of praise from the festival of St. Joan of Arc (1412-1431) with a text from the Book of Judith.

A free tour of museum exhibitions will precede the Music in the Museum program at 1 p.m.

Disney to break into recording with Hollywood Records label

BURBANK, Calif. (AP)—Unable to buy a record company at a price it considers reasonable, Walt Disney Co. will start its own record label.

Tentatively titled Hollywood Records, it will include rock 'n' roll, movie soundtracks and other pop formats, and will start up early next year, Disney said Tuesday.

Michael Eisner, Disney's chairman and chief executive officer, said the move was prompted in part by the booming international demand for recorded music.

"The recorded music business is a bigger business than the movie business or the television business," Eisner said, referring to the other areas in which Disney operates.

While declining to reveal Disney's initial investment in a record company, Eisner said the costs were "infinitesimal," less than the average $17 million cost of a motion picture.

Disney already has a children's record label, Walt Disney Records, that it calls the largest children's music company in the world. The label will operate independently of the new record division, Disney said.

Eisner said he was not concerned that the sometimes controversial nature of rock 'n' roll music could tarnish Disney's family image.

"This is no more a Disney label than (Disney subsidiary) Touchstone Pictures is a Disney picture," Eisner said. "This is owned by our same shareholders . . . (but) this record division is separate and completely separated from Disney, and would therefore have no effect on anything at Disney."

Peter Paterno will head the new company. As an attorney, Paterno has represented such heavy-metal artists as Guns 'N' Roses and Metallica.

"If you're going to be in the record business, you've got to have some controversy," Paterno said earlier this month when rumors of Hollywood Records' launch circulated. "Even the 'clean' artists like Madonna and George Michael are very controversial."

Eisner said the Disney label would not follow the pattern of some recently launched record labels of signing top-dollar acts to establish a presence and prove to the industry that the label means business.

"It's going to be the opposite of that," Eisner said. "Our concept is — as our concept has been in the movie business and the television business — to find new, exciting talent that becomes your own."

Harrison: Stones, Who reunited, but Beatles can't

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Singer-composer George Harrison says three out of four Beatles equals no reunion.

Such a gathering would be a hollow exercise without John Lennon.

"What good are three Beatles without John?" Harrison told The Associated Press on Tuesday. "It's too far in the past."

Harrison made his comments after Paul McCartney was quoted as saying a reunion with Harrison and drummer Ringo Starr was possible now that litigation between the former band members has been settled.

"We might get to play together after all this time," McCartney was quoted as saying in Tuesday's Los Angeles Times. The former Beatle is ending a five-night solo concert at the Forum in Inglewood tonight.

Harrison, 46, said the future is more interesting than the past.

"Let sleeping dogs lie," said Harrison, who has become involved in the British film industry.

UI symphony features solo by Wang in Stravinsky piece

The Daily Iowan

The UI Symphony Band will feature pianist Sylvia Wang in a concert at 8 p.m. Friday, December 1, in Clapp Recital Hall.

UI Director of Bands Myron Welch will conduct the concert, which is free and open to the public.

Wang, a member of the UI School of Music faculty, will appear with the band as soloist in Stravinsky's Concerto for Piano with Wind Instruments, Double Basses and Percussion.

The band also will play an arrangement of the Overture to "Euryanthe" by Carl Maria von Weber, "Elegy" by Mark Camphouse, "Tocata Marziale" by Ralph Vaughan Williams and the Symphony for Band by Morton Gould.

Stravinsky's Concerto is one of several works for winds that he wrote in the early 1920s, including the Octet for Wind Instruments and Symphonies of Wind Instruments. The Concerto was completed in 1924 and premiered in Paris that year with the composer playing the solo part.

Stravinsky made his American debut with the concerto a year later, playing with members of the Boston Symphony. Serge Koussevitzky, then the new music director of the Boston Symphony, conducted both performances.

Director Welch commented, "The Stravinsky provides a unique experience for both the performers and the audience. The combination of winds and piano is rare and should be used more often, especially when you have an artist the calibre of Sylvia Wang."

Composed in the same year as the concerto but in a very different style, Vaughan Williams' "Tocata Marziale" was written for the Commemoration of the British Empire Exhibition of 1924. Together with other British works for military band, it has become part of the traditional cornerstone of concert band literature.

Gould's Symphony was composed in 1952 for the sesquicentennial celebration of the U.S. Military Academy at West Point. It is in two movements, "Epitaphs" and "Marches," both of which are subtly programmatic and pictorial.

The most recent work on the program, Camphouse's "Elegy" was composed in 1987 for the 190th anniversary of the U.S. Marine Band. It was premiered at a gala concert in the Kennedy Center in Washington, D.C., on July 11, 1988. The composer commented, "The work's intense lyricism and rich harmonic vocabulary serve as a sincere musical memorial to the heroic sacrifices made by men and women of the armed forces in the defense of freedom."

Sylvia Wang joined the UI music faculty in 1987. She is currently a member of the Cleveland-based Samaritan Piano Trio, which had its debut in that city in the fall of 1988.

Myron Welch has been director of bands at the UI since 1980. In addition to conducting the Symphony Band and Chamber Wind Ensemble, Welch teaches courses in instrumental methods and conducting. He is a frequent guest conductor, adjudicator and clinician with bands throughout the Midwest.

Joffrey readies cast of kids for 'Nutcracker' opener

Local children selected for roles in traditional Christmas Ballet

Kathleen Hurley
The Daily Iowan

Believe it or not, Christmas is coming, and many little people in Iowa City are bustling to prepare for Santa's season. No, they're not displaced elves. They are the Joffrey Ballet's cast of children for the Iowa City "Nutcracker" performed at Hancher Auditorium December 6 through 8.

Touring major cities with their Christmas production, the Joffrey Company requires a local children's cast to be selected in each location. An incredible opportunity for the local kids, the show brings a more realistic and expansive view of the dance world.

An impressive turnout of 150 kids showed for the October 8 audition in Iowa City, and 69 were chosen for the final cast. The decision was based not only on dance and acting ability, but also specific height requirements — the children had to be between 4 feet, 2 inches and 5 feet tall in order to fit into the reography, Crist teaches and directs the battle scene, the party scene and the Polichinelles/Mother Ginger piece. Crist says the kids have a hard time acting the roles when Joffrey members are not she noted. "I want to make sure they can adjust to the orchestra, which may or may not play at a different tempo."

The interaction with Joffrey members and stage experience will prove invaluable to the children, although the entire event demands much time and hard work. Olivia Mills, who appears in the battle scene and in the Polichinelles, said she was "tired, but very excited to be in the show."

"(I'm) tired, but very excited to be in the show." — Olivia Mills, member of Iowa City's children's cast for the Joffrey Ballet's touring production of "The Nutcracker."

Joffrey's traveling costume wardrobe. Overseen by Alicia Brown and Linda Crist of the UI Dance Department, the auditions ran smoothly and led to the present busy schedule, now run by Crist. Following the specific Joffrey cho-present for them to react and interact with consistently. Another problem for the youngsters Crist foresaw dealt with the transition to a live orchestra.

"Now the kids are accustomed to our piano version for rehearsal."

Showtimes for the Joffrey production of "The Nutcracker" at Hancher Auditorium are December 6 at 8 p.m.; and December 7 and 8 at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. Ticket prices are $22.40, $20 and $17.60 for UI students; $28, $25 and $22 for nonstudents; $22.40, $20 and $17.60 for seniors; and $14, $12.50 and $11 for children under 18.

Clockwise from upper right: UI dance instructor Linda Crist fills in as Clara's godfather Drosselmeyer as she mimics handing out nuts to a crowd of anxious children; a troop of mice is started by a barrage of gunfire from the Nutcracker's soldiers during the battle scene; Carrie
