Foreign tourists evacuated in Philippines

MANILA, Philippines (AP)—Government and rebel forces declared a temporary cease-fire Wednesday and began evacuating Americans and other foreigners from hotels in the financial district where they had been trapped for four days during a coup attempt against President Corazon Aquino.

Vicky Benito, a receptionist at the Manila Garden Hotel in the Makati district of this capital, said Wednesday morning that the rebels were freeing Americans.

"All Americans are safe," she said. "The Americans are all OK." On Tuesday, a rebel officer said the estimated 215 Americans might not be set free because of U.S. support for Aquino during the uprising, including providing air cover in the opening hours of the revolt.

"I just want to report that we have successfully evacuated the tourists and the guests here at the Manila Garden," said Narzalina Lim, an undersecretary of tourism. "I hope the other hotels will follow suit."

Max Motchmann, a West German expatriate who helped in the negotiations, said the rebels and government forces agreed to a cease-fire until the evacuation is complete. He expected the operation to be complete by midday.

He said rebels were allowing only two buses at a time to enter the battle zone. They were shuttling back and forth between the hotel district and a staging area a short distance away.

Manila radio stations said about nine busloads of foreigners had been taken out of the fashionable Makati suburb.

About 2,000 foreigners were believed trapped in the hotels and apartments in the area, which the rebels seized Saturday on the second day of their coup attempt.

But officials said the figure was an estimate and they had no firm idea how many foreigners were actually there.

Safe passage for the trapped foreigners was delayed Tuesday, although hundreds of others living in the district were able to flee to safer areas amid the most serious coup attempt so far against Aquino, who took office in February 1986.

Scores of Americans arrived Tuesday at the U.S. Seaford housing compound, where U.S. Marines were on guard. Others moved to hotels near Manila Bay, about five miles from the city.

Nagle: Chinese students at UI won't be deported

Sonja West
The Daily Iowan

The Daily Iowan

Nagle said work authorizations are guaranteed, and students in the United States on June 5, 1989 will not be deported.

Finally, Chinese students will be allowed to remain in the United States if they fear forced abortion or sterilization by the government, he said.

Nagle assured the Chinese students that the dispute between the two branches of government is part of the democratic decision-making and would not damage their immigration status.

There are about 300 Chinese students at the UI, and each one is concerned about how the U.S. government policies will affect their futures, said William Lan, president of Friendship Association of Chinese Students and Scholars.

"The Chinese government has found that the more students they send here and the longer they stay in the U.S., the more democratic ideology they pick up, and the more trouble they will have," Lan said.

Nagle explained that in the U.S. governmental system, the president has the power to veto congressional legislation. The president may then choose to offer executive regulations in place of the vetoed bill.

"We are now in this battle of what Congress has the authority to do and what the president has the authority to do. But the net impact of the action by the president is the same as if he had signed the law," Nagle said.

Despite a presidential veto, Congressman Dave Nagle (D-3rd Dist.) told Chinese students at the UI Tuesday that they will not be deported.

President George Bush pocket-vetoed the Emergency Chinese Immigration Relief Act of 1989 on November 30 and offered an alternative executive order.

"The president has not totally closed the door," Nagle said. "Although he doesn't approve of the bill, he approves of the meaning of the bill. He will do the same by rules and regulations."

Nagle told about 90 Chinese students in the Union Terrace that the Bush "memo of disapproval" is a political move in response to pressure from China.

Nagle read from a presidential memo that outlined the executive proposal which mirrored legislation approved by Congress following the June 5, 1989 Tiananmen Square Massacre.

"The two branches of government are each trying to do the same thing, but arguing over who has the right to do it," Nagle said. "I'm very curious to see how those regulations are drawn."

Under the policy, Chinese students are waived of their obligation to return to China after two years in the United States until January 1994.

Congressman Dave Nagle speaks to Chinese students Tuesday morning in the Union Terrace Room.

The Daily Iowan/Clare Thomas

Nagle said that Congress may override the president's legislative veto when it goes back into session January 22, 1990 and reconsider the bill.

"I think it is likely that the chances for the override are very good," he said. "I want to assure you; I haven't changed my mind. I do intend to vote to override."

In a prepared statement from the Chinese students, Xu Yu, a UI graduate student, expressed gratitude for Congress' support of Chinese scholars.

Chinese students studying in the United States are in danger if they return to China now, Yu said.

"In my case I don't worry about myself," Yu said. "I know that when I go back I will be in trouble. I have been expelled from my institution."

Secret police resign in E. German upset Communist army disarmed

EAST BERLIN (AP)—Erich Honecker and other disgraced former leaders were put under house arrest Tuesday, the government disarmed the Communist Party's private army and the chiefs of the once-feared secret police resigned.

East Germans, furious about past corruption, surrounded secret police offices in several cities to stop further destruction of documents that could be used to prosecute Honecker, who was party chief for 18 years, and his former lieutenants.

Under Honecker, the secret police were the main instrument for keeping people under control. The official news agency ADN reported Tuesday night that its 19 top officials resigned but the new chief, Lt. Gen. Wolfgang Schwanz, would remain in office.

Schwanz has criticized the organization's past role in crushing dissent.

Gunter Wendland, the chief prosecutor, also resigned following allegations that he was unfit to lead corruption investigations. Wendland was a holdover from the Honecker era.

Communist Party leaders appealed for calm to avoid "anarchy and chaos" in a nation that, in two months, has seen the dismissal of two sets of leaders, mass pro-democracy protests, the historic opening of its borders, and promises of free elections and other reforms.

The Interior Ministry said the government was disarming the "fighting groups," party-run militias based in factories.

It said the weapons taken away included automatic rifles, rocket-propelled grenades, anti-aircraft guns and armored personnel carriers.

Western estimates said the militias had 3,000 active members, but could draw on reserves of 500,000.

On Monday, militia officers had urged the rank and file to break their oath of loyalty to the Communist Party.

In Czechoslovakia, the army began Saturday to disarm the Communist Party's paramilitary People's Militia, which was created 40 years ago to protect factories from counter-revolutionaries. Opposition leaders had demanded the militia be disbanded.

East Germany's top lawyer, Wolfgang Vogel, was arrested Tuesday on suspicion of "criminal extortion," the official ADN news agency said.

Vogel handled spectacular East-West spy and prisoner swaps for years and was a confidant of Honecker. He also represented a fugitive East German official, Alexander Schabert.

Strategic Plan to guide UI toward prominence

Jean Thilmann
The Daily Iowan

Eleven months in the making, the UI Strategic Plan, which will be used to "guide the UI into the future," was made public Tuesday.

The plan, "Achieving Distinction," sets goals and strategies to guide all UI departments and colleges through 1994. The UI Strategic Planning Committee began meeting in January to study how the UI could better concentrate its resources.

UI Sociology Professor Edward Lawler, chairman of the committee, said there are "significant changes" between the strategic plan and a preliminary report submitted by the committee to UI President Hunter Rawlings last July.

The final plan identifies five areas of teaching and research where the UI should become nationally prominent and focus special attention and resources.

The areas are: the arts; basic science and technological innovations; See Strategic, Page 5A

Leaders of the Communist-controlled labor organization took the unprecedented step of endorsing a general strike that the opposition has threatened if the national government is not changed this week.

An Interior Ministry announcement said work on dismantling fortifications on the border with Austria would begin Monday. The government said last week some of the barbed wire, watch towers and trip wires would be taken down.

All survive as fire rages in L.A. building

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Fifteen people trapped by a fire raging in a nine-story downtown building Tuesday were plucked from the roof by a helicopter, authorities said. Forty people were injured in the fire.

The building housed apartments and businesses, said fire department spokesman Jim Wells. The fire broke out just before noon and was out in about a half-hour.

In addition to those rescued by helicopter, about 30 others escaped down ladders extended to the sixth and seventh floors of the building, said Manny Hernandez, another fire department spokesman.

"They were scared and crying. The women were crying and hugging each other when they got to the ground," Hernandez said.

Flames shot out the windows and smoke billowed across the downtown skyline from the fire, which started on the sixth floor and burned part of the seventh floor, Hernandez said. Smoke damage occurred throughout the upper floors, he said.

Marijuana seizure ruled invalid

Pot spotted through window deemed inadmissible in court

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

A marijuana plant which led to the arrest of three UI students on charges of possession of a controlled substance will not be admissible as evidence in court, a district associate judge ruled Monday.

The marijuana plant was seized on September 24 after police noticed it in the window of an apartment at 504 S. Johnson St.

The plant was visible through a well-lit window from the street, according to the police report.

Several officers, who all agreed the plant appeared to be marijuana, were called to the scene.

After knocking on the apartment door and hearing the residents say "come in," the police entered the apartment where the two defendants, Craig D. Zick, 20, Dean R. Ochnotnicki, 20, both of 504 S. Johnson St., Apt. 4, and six other friends were playing Trivial Pursuit.

Once police entered the apartment, they saw the marijuana plant and a bong, according to court records.

Police searched the apartment after Zick told them they could look around.

Since the search was conducted without a warrant, the state must prove the officers had a right to seize the plant because it was in plain view.

For a plain-view seizure to be valid, there must be a reason for police to enter a constitutionally protected area, the incriminating nature of the object must be immediately obvious and the discovery of the object must be inadvertent.

The police had a right to enter the apartment since they were invited in, but their presence in the apartment was not inadvertent, according to court records.

"The only purpose for the officers knocking on the apartment door was to discover the marijuana plant and determine its ownership," according to court records.

Thus, the discovery of the marijuana plant was not inadvertent, and therefore the seizure was not valid, the records say.

Farmers refute negative image, defend pesticides

SPARKS, Nev. (AP) — The nation's farmers are working to reverse a negative public image that has emerged with public fears about the use of pesticides and chemicals, the head of the American Farm Bureau said Tuesday.

Until the past couple of years, U.S. farmers were well liked by the public who trusted the products they grew and raised because farmers were considered "Boy Scouts in overalls," said Dean Kleckner, a hog farmer from Rudd, Iowa, and president of the American Farm Bureau Federation.

"Polls showed we were well liked," the four-term president told delegates to the 71st annual California Farm Bureau Federation meeting. Now, "the public does have some concerns about growth compounds."

"Eighty percent of the bad image we have is from people who think they know things that aren't really facts," Kleckner said.

Initial results of nationwide Farm Bureau surveys show people now are afraid of the U.S.-grown produce and animals they eat, he said.

"I believe that the safest food is grown in the United States," Kleckner said. "These focus groups we're surveying say that doesn't apply. They want us to say, 'Yes, there is a problem. We're working on it. And it's going to get better.' I'm not sure I believe that."

Still, Kleckner told some 800 delegates meeting at John Ascuaga's Nugget hotel-casino that farmers must battle that poor public image brought on by recent scares over pesticide use, such as Alar sprayed on apples.

Kleckner didn't advocate doing away with pesticides but said farmers must prove to the American public that chemicals can be safe, give produce the good looks and tastes people want and protect against disease and pests.

"People want to put the worms back in apples," Kleckner complained. "I wouldn't buy 'em" (without pesticides).

Kleckner also said farmers must quell any fears from themselves and consumers about the use of chemicals and growth hormones for such things as enhancing milk production in cows.

"Technology, folks, is where the future is in this country," Kleckner said. "There's always a temptation to ignore change, to turn our back on it. But if we turn our back on it, it'll run us over."

Kleckner also warned farmers they must be prepared for continuing attacks from animal-rights groups who hope to ensure animals are treated humanely before slaughter or not killed at all.

The Farm Bureau chief said those groups also are putting pressure on corporations such as McDonald's fast food restaurants. The chain recently sent letters to its suppliers urging that beef purchased for hamburgers come from farmers who treat livestock well, he said.

"I guess they want happy chickens for their McNuggets, too," Kleckner said. "So, folks, the pressure is on."

During his 40-minute speech, Kleckner also told farmers they must oppose any federal tax increases and urge Congress to control the rising budget deficit instead of increasing spending.

"Overspending is the root of all deficits and, just like any other junkie, Congress is hooked on spending," he said. "And they can't get unhooked."

Allen changes plea to 'guilty' in I.C. stabbing

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

An Iowa City man charged with attempted murder will change his not guilty plea to a plea of guilty, according to records filed at the Johnson County District Court.

The defendant, Michael J. Allen, 25, 2015 Bancroft Drive, is accused of allegedly stabbing a man in the chest and stomach in the parking lot of Mumm's Tavern, 21 W. Benton St., on September 24, according to court records.

Allen reportedly followed the victim into the parking lot after the two argued while playing pool inside the bar, according to court records.

The guilty plea was filed after Allen's attorney, Duane Rohovit, filed a motion to suppress statements made by Allen to police officers on the night the stabbing took place.

The statements were made before Allen was read his Miranda rights and while he was under the control of police officers, and therefore should not be considered as evidence, according to the motion.

Allen remains in jail on $50,000 bond after Judge August Honsell found that, due to the nature of the charge, Allen's bond would not be modified.

Gubernatorial candidate fires at Branstad's lottery program

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa should quit giving lottery money to big businesses and concentrate aid on emerging enterprises that show potential of booming, Democratic gubernatorial candidate Tom Miller said Tuesday.

"By this we'd stir the pot for entrepreneurs in Iowa. We'd create interest. We'd put Iowa on the map," said Miller, Iowa's attorney general.

Miller, one of four prominent Democrats seeking the party's nomination to oppose Republican Gov. Terry Branstad's expected re-election bid in 1990, took a kick at what has become one of the state's biggest political footballs — the economic development program that awards lottery money to businesses.

Officially known as the Community Economic Betterment Account, the program was created four years ago as part of a plan to use state lottery profits to lure businesses to Iowa. Since then, it has repeatedly been criticized, especially by Democrats who disagree with the way the funds are doled out by Branstad's appointees at the Iowa Department of Economic Development.

Critics have charged that some of the CEBA funds have gone to businesses that failed to live up to employment promises, competed with existing Iowa businesses or failed to provide decent pay and benefits to workers.

But Miller said IBP is simply undeserving of state aid because it is an established, profitable enterprise that does not need state help.

would rename CEBA the Atanasoff Fund, in honor of John Atanasoff, the former Iowa State University professor who has been credited with inventing an early prototype of the electronic digital computer while at ISU.

CEBA currently gets about $5 million a year in lottery profits, and Miller said that same amount would be used for the Atanasoff fund. He said an independent board of directors would have the power to grant up to $1.5 million from the fund to a single company.

"There will be intense competition for the grants," he said, adding that applicants would have to be new companies who promise to locate their operations in Iowa. He said he envisions most of the funds going to manufacturers, although other businesses would also be eligible.

Miller said most studies rank Iowa near the bottom of the 50 states in terms of activity by new businesses.

His call for revamping the CEBA program comes at a time when Democrats who control the Legislature are trying to shift funding for the program from the lottery to the state general fund. Under that plan, lottery funds now used for economic development would be spent on protecting the environment.

Miller said he favors using general fund money for the environmental programs.

Branstad talks education with student leaders

Jennifer Glynn
The Daily Iowan

Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad gave today's students a vote of confidence Tuesday at a luncheon with five UI student government members in Des Moines.

Branstad's educational assistant Phil Dunshee also attended the luncheon, which UI Student Senate President Pepe Rojas-Cardona called "extremely informal."

"It was a great meeting," Rojas-Cardona said. "We talked about hopefully putting together an educational summit for next year," Rojas-Cardona said. "It would involve not only universities but smaller colleges as well."

Rojas-Cardona said the governor expressed an interest to meet again with a larger group of UI students.

Jeno Berta, Student Senate vice president, said he thought the luncheon went very well.

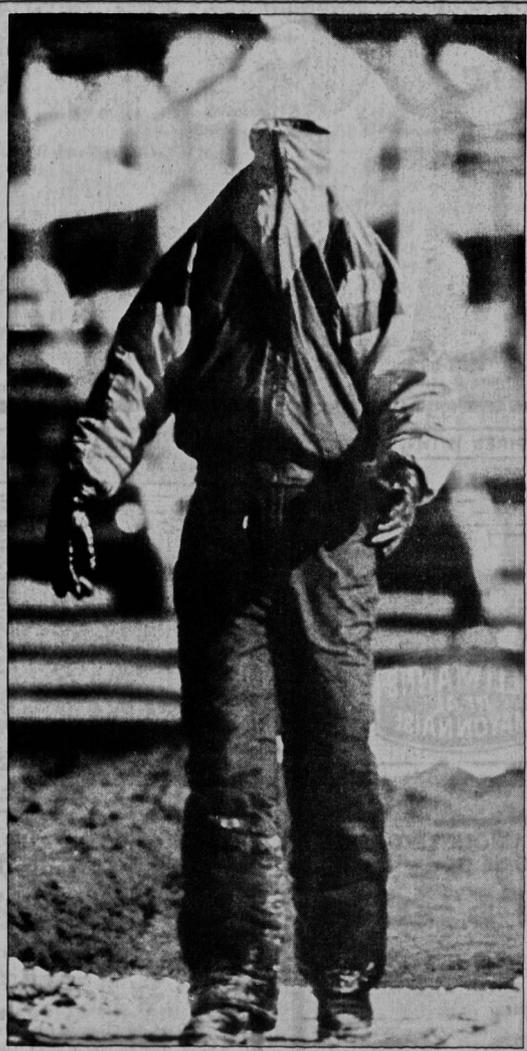

"We started off talking about all the events going on in Eastern Europe and we proceeded to talk about higher education issues such as tuition, and campus and fire safety and the need for better lighting on campus," Berta said.

Berta said he felt the meeting with the governor was productive for both sides.

"We both seemed to benefit from it," he said. "We got the chance to become better acquainted with the governor and he got the chance to hear about students — from students."

Mikel Durby, Interfraternity Council vice president, said "It was good for us to get to know him on a more personal basis."

"He is an Iowa graduate; he himself had to work his way through school — he knows where we, as students, are coming from," Durby said "he was easy to relate to."

McKinley, CAC members meet to air views, improve communication

Ann Marie Williams
The Daily Iowan

Relations between the UI Collegiate Associations Council councilors and CAC President Vernon McKinley may be returning to normal following an informal meeting Monday to discuss recent inter-council conflicts.

About 9 councilors met with McKinley and two CAC executives to air views and discuss the problems that have impeded the council's progress since McKinley's installation as president October 15, said CAC councilor Rafi Arbel.

Councilors presented their concerns to McKinley and gave him the chance to respond and bring up his views.

"We opened up some communication lines, and that's a good start," said CAC councilor LeAnne Cabalka.

McKinley said he agreed that communication will be much improved next semester because of the session.

"I know exactly what the Council expects when going into a meeting, and they understand my prime directive — to get to the business of the day," he said.

In order to facilitate better communication and smoother meetings, McKinley and the councilors agreed to convene before each regularly-scheduled CAC meeting.

They agreed to discuss goals for each meeting in an effort to avoid confrontations, Arbel said.

Cabalka said that the most important things to consider are mutual cooperation and respect within the organization.

"The councilors that were there seemed to leave with a little better feeling towards the situation," she said. "We're just trying to make the best of it."

McKinley said it was great to sit down and hear from the council and added there was relatively little hostility at the meeting.

"Personal differences shouldn't get in the way of CAC business," he said.

Midwest men!

Quarterly magazine designed to offer a better dating medium for busy heartland bachelors

GARY, Ind. (AP)—Hoosier hunks are in demand at Midwest Men, a quarterly magazine that focuses on eligible bachelors in America's heartland.

"We have a surplus of guys from states like Michigan, but we need more from Indiana and Ohio," said Richard Needham, a co-publisher of the Illinois-based magazine that debuted in July.

Males of all shapes and sizes from an eight-state area can find a more scintillating social life through Needham's magazine.

The former psychological tester began looking for new employment after the commercial use of polygraphs — lie detector tests — was declared illegal.

"About a year ago, I read an article about Alaska Men magazine and saw some of the guys from the state were featured on Oprah Winfrey."

"I thought the concept would go over well here since many Midwestern women are looking for a man but aren't likely to pack up and head for Alaska to find one."

The magazine, which sells for $5.95 a copy at newsstands and $22 for a yearly subscription, spotlights about 60 men every three months.

Each of their photographs is accompanied by a brief biographical sketch, what they are looking for in a woman, and a post office box where females can direct their responses.

Men don't have to be a super-

"We have a surplus of guys from states like Michigan, but we need more from Indiana and Ohio."

achiever to qualify for inclusion in the magazine. Most men are about 35, although older female subscribers would like to see more men their age.

"There's no stiff criteria," Needham said. "All that's required of a candidate is that he be sincere in wanting to meet a girl and start a serious relationship and that he answer everyone who writes to him."

To weed out potential Jack-the-Rippers, Needham said, "We do check each candidate's driver's license and call his place of employment to get a feel if he's a serious person."

The majority have passed the test. "Most have been very serious fellows who really want to meet the right lady, but have had problems finding someone for one reason or another. Some are tired of the bar scene or are older and have children; others just don't have the time to play the dating game because they travel or work too much, so our magazine is a good vehicle for them."

Larry Winston of East Chicago was one of 55 men selected to appear in the October issue. The venture started out as a ruse with his buddies, but the more the 25-year-old sales representative for Dictaphone thought about it, the better he liked the idea.

"I work in downtown Chicago and travel quite a bit, so I really don't have time to meet a lot of people," he said. "I thought the magazine publicity would help me come in contact with more women."

Unlike some dating services, which can set a man back $2,000 for just two names of eligible females, there's no expense involved with Midwest Men, other than a post office box.

Women have written from Scotland and the Philippines, with the average guy receiving 60 to 70 letters and cover guys getting up to 300 responses.

"One of our guys from Michigan was at a football game in California," Needham said. "There, in the midst of 100,000 people, two girls approached him and squealed, 'You're Keith Craig. We saw you in Midwest Men magazine.'"

That type of reaction has made it worthwhile to Needham and his partners.

"When you're new to the publishing business, there's a lot you don't know. We've learned it's very expensive to publish a magazine and the returns are slow in coming."

human and environmental health; literature, discourse and critical analysis; and social change.

"We are very pleased with the plan," said UI President Hunter Rawlings. "It represents a great deal of work on the part of the entire university community and especially the planning committee. While we intend to be flexible in our application of the details of the plan, this is the map that we will follow and these are the goals toward which will be heading for the next five years."

Six goals and methods of reaching them are also outlined in the strategic plan.

The committee said the areas will help the UI develop into one of the nation's top 10 public universities.

The goals are:

- A broad but not all-inclusive range of strong undergraduate programs.
- A core of exceptional graduate and professional programs.
- A faculty of national and international distinction, developed through aggressive recruiting of the best faculty in the country.
- A university community that is diverse in gender, race, ethnicity and nationality.
- Strong ties with external constituencies.
- A high quality of life which emphasizes the importance of a humane environment, a strong sense of community involvement in cultural affairs, support of the UI's health and respect for the time demands placed on faculty and staff.

To reach these goals, the strategic plan proposed that UI administrators more vigorously recruit students, but maintain enrollment at 29,000 students.

Lawler said the 29,000 "cap" was necessary because the faculty is understaffed and UI buildings are overcrowded.

The plan, however, also recommended that the UI hire 165 new permanent faculty, with 40 positions reserved for "world-class teachers and scholars," and strengthen support for day-to-day teaching, research and service activities.

The plan also requested additional funding for libraries, other information resources and the physical plant.

UI administrators would use the plan's recommendations when forming policy, and the plan would be implemented in phases, Lawler said.

He said it is difficult to estimate how much implementing the plan would cost because it will be done in stages throughout the next five years.

xander Schalck-Goldkowsky.

ADN gave no further details of the allegations against Vogel.

Honecker and several other members of the old leadership are the main targets of the corruption investigations. He has been expelled from the party and three members of his Politburo are in prison.

Authorities placed Honecker and other former top officials under house arrest Tuesday in their luxurious Wandlitz compound north of East Berlin. The compound has become a symbol of past corruption and abuse.

"The former general secretary (of the Communist Party) and president Erich Honecker are among those who are not allowed to leave their houses in the elegant compound," ADN reported. Wandlitz has 23 houses, once filled with Politburo members and their families.

The house arrests were an act of "national self-defense" and resulted from "the will of the people," said Harri Haarland, the deputy chief prosecutor.

The house arrests are intended to keep the former Politburo members from fleeing the country. Schalck-Goldkowsky, the former top official for trade with the West, fled after allegations that he was involved in huge weapons deals.

ADN did not specify the number under house arrest.

Honecker, 77, has been in ill health.

The prudent job-seeker should be well-suited

Floyd Akins Jr.
Special to The Daily Iowan

'Dress-for-success' suits comprise many styles and fabrics

John walks into the receptionist's office wearing black cap-toe shoes, a white shirt with a burgundy tie and a grey double-breasted suit with chalk pinstripes.

He takes a seat and awaits the interview that he has been working toward since his freshman year. Prepared to enter the corporate world, John sits confidently, knowing he is dressed for success.

For seniors and graduate students considering jobs in the corporate world, now is a good time to make an investment toward a successful career in the form of a few good suits.

There are four specialty men's clothing stores in downtown Iowa City which carry a full line of suits to help outfit current and future executives.

At Bremers, 120 E. Washington St.; A.J. August Menswear, 1115 Dubuque St.; Ewers, 28 S. Clinton St.; and Stephens for Men, Old

Capital Center, a suit can be bought off-the-rack or be custom-made to fit the physique and personal style of a man.

With many options available, men no longer have to settle for a navy-blue or grey suit unless they want to. A suit can be selected from many different colors, styles and patterns including solids, stripes and glen plaids.

But one should not be taken by a suit's designer label. There are many things to consider before an investment in a suit is made, with price always a major factor.

In Iowa City one can expect to pay an average of $350 for a good suit. This may seem high, but most of the better-made suits are wool. A high demand for wool has increased suit prices 20 to 25 percent over the last two years.

According to Paul Smith, manager of A.J. August, wool is a comfortable fabric.

"In the summer it absorbs perspiration, and wool allows that perspiration to evaporate," he said. "In the winter, it traps the cool air, allowing you to keep warm."

For the business traveler, a wool-and-polyester-blend suit may be better because it tends not to wrinkle as much as a wool suit or other natural-fiber suits such as linen, cotton or silk.

Although double-breasted suits are appearing with more regularity in Iowa City, the selection is still limited. About 90 percent of the suits sold here are two-button suits. Bremers and Stephens carry a few double-breasted suits, and A.J. August salesmen are trying to encourage more men to wear them.

Murphy believes that almost anyone can look good in a double-breasted suit. "It can make some short people look tall and large people look slim," he said.

Once a suit fabric has been selected, there are the options of buying an off-the-rack suit, having one altered or having a suit custom-made by the manufacturer that supplies suits to the store.

Although most suits are entirely made by machine, some manufacturers require that parts of the suit be hand-sewn. In general, the more hand work that goes into the suit, the better the quality and the higher the price. But this doesn't mean that suits made primarily by machine are not of good quality.

The shoulders of a suit are an important area to check thoroughly. A suit must be made well in the shoulders because this area receives the most stress.

Smith said hand-stitching in the shoulder area allows more freedom to move. "Although hand-stitching is nice, there are machines that emulate hand-stitching, and the quality is just as good as hand-sewn stitches," Smith said.

Other things to look for in a suit are the stitching on the lapel and collar. In better suits, these will be by hand. In addition, some suits come with pants that are lined to the knee, allowing extra comfort and movement.

Certain suit manufacturers use a process called fusing — where canvas material is fused or glued to the jacket to stabilize the shape.

The disadvantage of fusing is that over time the jacket will buckle in the fused areas. Smith said it would be hard to find a suit under $400 that has not been fused. The more hand work that goes into a suit, the less of a chance fusing was used in the construction.

The belief that a fully lined jacket is a sign of a well-made suit is a myth that needs clarification. According to John Murphy, of Bremers, more detailed workmanship goes into the construction of a partially lined jacket than for a fully lined one.

Smith believes there are three reasons for manufacturers to fully line a jacket. "A lining makes some jackets hang better, linings are used as a selling feature, and a lining also covers up poor workmanship," he said.

One of the most important factors one should look for in a suit is the fit, something Smith said is up to the individual.

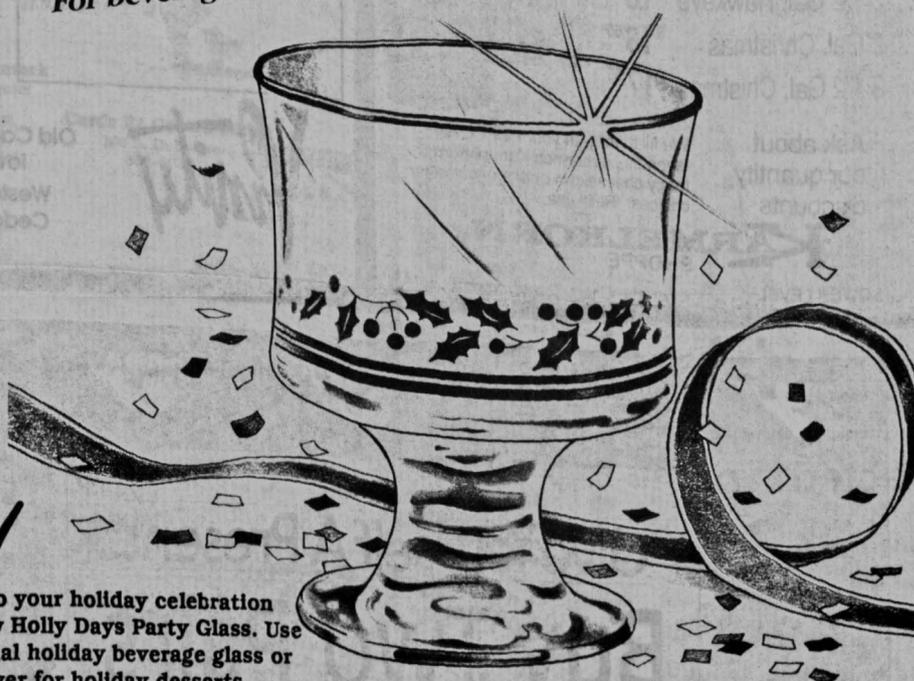

"It is a man's own mental attitude that will determine how he will look," he said.

Some men may need an athletic-cut suit — one that accommodates the shoulders and chest of a man who exercises or works out with weights. A European-cut suit, like a Nino Cerruti, wouldn't fit well on a man with large muscle-tone in the shoulders and chest.

If the European look is desired and money is no object, an alternative shopping site may be the Giorgio Armani Boutique in downtown Chicago.

Ortega offers to extend Contra deadline

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — President Daniel Ortega proposed extending until the end of the year Tuesday's deadline for the U.S.-backed Contra rebel force to disband.

The anti-Sandinista fighters say they will not demobilize until all conditions of the August Central American peace accord are met. Ortega said he will present his offer to extend the deadline to disband the Contras at a summit of Central American presidents set for December 10-12 in Costa Rica.

Speaking before thousands of people at the Plaza of the Revolution on Monday night, Ortega called for "a new popular insurrection to defeat the Yankees."

The occasion was the official start of campaigning for the general elections scheduled for February 25.

Ortega is running for re-election. His main challenger is Violeta Barrios Chamorro, the U.S.-backed candidate nominated by the 14-party National Opposition Union coalition.

NEW DELHI, India — Vishwanath Pratap Singh, India's new prime minister, presented a Cabinet on Tuesday that included two estranged relatives of Rajiv Gandhi, his predecessor and political rival.

Also among the ministers are three who, like Singh, had been members of the Cabinet under Gandhi.

President Ramaswamy Venkataraman administered the oaths of office at sundown to 15 Cabinet ministers and two lower-level ministers of state. They make up the Council of Ministers along with Singh and Deputy Prime Minister Devi Lal, who were sworn in Saturday.

Singh said more ministers would be announced later. "This Cabinet is not complete," he said. "You will find imbalances, but the imbalances will be removed soon."

Atlantis legend sparked by eruption

SAN FRANCISCO — Scientists have used ancient Chinese annals to date one of the most powerful volcanic eruptions in recorded history — a blast 3,600 years ago that inspired the legend of the sunken civilization of Atlantis, NASA said Tuesday.

The Santorini volcano destroyed much of the Aegean Sea island of Thera, and ejected enough sun-blocking debris into the atmosphere to chill Earth's climate and cause summer frost, heavy rain, crop failure and famine in China, said astronomer Kevin Pang of NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

"You're talking about (the equivalent of) 2 million Hiroshima atomic bombs going off at the same time," said Pang, who presented his study at the American Geophysical Union's fall meeting. "Santorini was roughly 100 times more powerful than Krakatau (Indonesia, 1883). Mount St. Helens is a little bitty volcano compared with this."

Record price paid for Hebrew Bible

LONDON — A 1,000-year-old Hebrew Bible sold for a world record auction price of $3.19 million Tuesday in London, Sotheby's said.

Yechezkel Toporowitch, identified only as a resident of New York and Israel, bought the Hebrew Bible, which is believed to have been written in the Jewish community in Babylon in the 9th or 10th century.

Sotheby's said it was the highest price ever paid for a Hebrew manuscript and the second highest price for any manuscript.

In 1983, a group of German financiers paid a record $11.7 million for the 12th century Gospels of Henry the Lion.

The Hebrew Bible was sold by the British Rail Pension Fund, which bought it for $286,000 in 1978 as an investment at a Switzerland sale.

S. Carolina receives aid for rebuilding after Hugo

NORTH CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — South Carolina opened an early Christmas present Tuesday in the form of a $32 million federal grant to repair highways damaged by Hurricane Hugo.

"Today marks a significant step in rebuilding this area of South Carolina," Transportation Secretary Sam Skinner told Gov. Carroll Campbell and a host of federal, state and local officials.

"The federal government is totally committed to help the people of South Carolina," he added.

The grant includes $25.5 million to build a new bridge from the mainland to the Isle of Palms, just outside Charleston. It also will pay for repairs made to the nearby Ben Sawyer Bridge to Sullivan's Island, as well as to the Battery Creek Bridge connecting Parris Island to the coast about 70 miles southwest of Charleston.

"You can't get a better Christmas than this," said Sen. Ernest Hollings (D-S.C.).

South Carolina has estimated that Hugo killed 29 people and caused at least $4 billion in damage in the state when it rampaged ashore with 135 mph winds on September 21.

The emergency aid will pay for cleaning up highway debris, repairing Charleston's computerized traffic signal system and repairing washouts, fences, lighting and highway signs in the 24 counties that were declared disaster areas.

The grant also includes reimbursement for running ferries to Sullivan's Island and the Isle of Palms after the storm. The Ben Sawyer Bridge, the only existing link between the islands and the mainland, was knocked out of service for two weeks when the hurricane threw one end of the span in to the Intracoastal Waterway.

Skinner said the quick action on the emergency grant shows "bureaucracy can be beaten."

Exxon reportedly spent $1.9 bil. to clean up oil

WASHINGTON (AP) — Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner says Exxon spent $1.9 billion cleaning up its Alaskan oil spill.

Skinner, repeating his high praise for Exxon's cleanup of the March 24 spill, characterized the amount as "an unbelievable number."

But Exxon spokesman Perry Smith in Alaska said the company has only claimed "over $1 billion" in spending on the spill. Les Rogers, a spokesman at Exxon central district headquarters in Houston, Texas, said he knew of no other cost figure.

Skinner, whose department includes the Coast Guard, has overseen government response to the spill. He said the full story of Exxon's efforts after the Exxon Valdez ran aground in March in Prince William Sound has not been told.

The ship spilled more than 10 million gallons of Alaskan crude oil that spread over a many miles of scenic coastland.

"The last number I heard from Exxon Corp. is that they have spent $1 billion, $900 million in their cleanup effort since the accident," Skinner said. "It should never have happened, but at least a very substantial, good-faith effort has been made to clean up that spill," he said.

Smith said Exxon's expenses include "over a billion dollars," including $160 million in claims paid to fishermen and others who said they were harmed by the spill.

Smith said no other breakdown of company spending was available. He said expenses would include salaries for cleanup crews, reimbursements to the Coast Guard for its work, equipment expenses and fees for scientists and consultants.

Skinner said nature is expected to contribute to the cleansing of shorelines this winter.

"Next spring, we'll go up there and decide what remains to be done, and they're committed to do whatever needs to be done," he said, adding he expected the need to be considerably less than last year.

Smith, speaking for Exxon, said the company would wait to see what the Coast Guard determines needs to be done in the spring, "and we'll respond to them."

He said Exxon's response contrasted with operations after other oil spills throughout the world "where no effort close to that was undertaken."

Colombian drug traffickers suspected in plane explosion

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Crash investigators said Tuesday that a Colombian jet carrying 107 people disintegrated in a fireball two weeks ago, moments after a bomb blew a hole in the fuselage and flooded the passenger cabin with fuel.

The disclosure came hours after a judge investigating drug traffickers was assassinated, the fourth judge killed in 15 weeks.

The government did not say who planted the bomb under a strategically located seat in the 15th row of the Avianca Airlines Boeing 727, bound for Cali from Bogota.

But suspicion immediately fell on drug lords who targeted schools, hotels, restaurants and other public buildings in bombings throughout Colombia after the government declared war on illegal drug operations last August. The 201 bombings have killed 29 people and wounded 238.

Authorities assume the traffickers are trying to force the government to stop extraditing Colombian drug suspects. President Virgilio Barco's administration has sent nine suspects to the United States since launching its anti-narcotics offensive.

Minister of Government Carlos Lemos told a news conference Tuesday the airliner bomb "is perhaps a sign of what lays ahead" for Colombia. Lemos is acting as president while Barco is on a state visit to Japan.

Flight 203 exploded minutes after taking off from Bogota's international airport on a November 27 domestic flight, killing all aboard.

Investigators said a bomb blast ruptured the fuel tank in the right wing.

"The bomb was placed strategically under seat 15F, which is very close to the fuel tank that burst and caused the fire that destroyed the aircraft," the director of the Civil Aviation Authority, Yezid Castano, told reporters.

"Around an emergency door there is evidence of an outward force of such power that objects inside the plane were blown out at 20,000 feet per second."

Police sought a mystery man suspected of planting the bomb, Castano said. He said one of two men who had reserved seats 15E and 15F returned to the Avianca counter after passing through security.

The man had purchased two tickets, one for himself in the name of Julio Santodomingo, the other in the name of Alberto Prieto. "Prieto" stayed aboard. "Santodomingo" left the Avianca counter and vanished.

The real Julio Santodomingo is owner of Avianca Airlines.

Telephone numbers left by the man being sought were those of other people. On Tuesday, Judge Bernardo Jaramillo Uribe was shot dead on a stroll in Medellin, hub of this South American country's drug trade.

And Central America?

By almost all accounts, President George Bush's summit at sea with Mikhail Gorbachev enhanced a positive relationship between the two leaders that will ultimately quicken the Cold War's demise. Judging from the conspicuous warmth of post-summit assessments in both camps, the United States and the Soviet Union are now on a path toward cooperation, and, quite possibly, alliance.

But it certainly wasn't easy. Besides battling tumultuous winds and waves, Bush faced stubborn and hypocritical Soviet foreign policy remnants left from an era before progressive reforms. Even before the summit officially convened, a Soviet spokesman addressed members of the media with stern criticism of U.S. support of the besieged Aquino government in the Philippines. The Soviets disapproved of Bush's decision to commit U.S. air support to Aquino's defense, because, as the Soviets put it, interference by an outside power in the internal affairs of a sovereign country "is destructive."

That assertion falls neatly in line with Gorbachev's recently unveiled "Sinatra doctrine," but it ignores rather stark realities of the past and the present. Considering the Soviet Union's ugly legacy of intervention, including such notable disasters as Afghanistan and the crumbling Eastern Bloc, the Soviets are hardly in a position to offer advice on the conduct of responsible foreign policy.

After such a preposterous scolding, Gorbachev's firm refusal to address the Soviet Union's continued intervention in Central America was especially troublesome for the president. Persistent Soviet involvement in both Nicaragua and El Salvador has made recurring crises there more acute. Equally persistent Soviet denials of involvement in those countries are becoming tiresome and obnoxious.

Bush, however, was able to steer discussion gracefully away from the Central America impasse, settling only for a condemnation of Sandinista "lies" to the Soviet government. But, while ensuring that the intervention issue would not stall the conference, Bush wisely made evidence of increased Soviet compliance an implicit condition of U.S. economic assistance to help Gorbachev's reforms.

One disagreement, even on an area as critical as the Soviet Union's involvement in Central America, can hardly dull the tremendous impact of the Malta summit, Bush seized a crucial opportunity and, without a doubt, historic advances were made. But Gorbachev's refusal to end, or even discuss, Soviet involvement in the United States' own hemisphere remains a hindrance to progress.

Losing faith

Transportation Secretary Samuel Skinner has been President George Bush's No. 1 man in dealing with national disasters, but his handling of the Exxon Valdez oil spill and ensuing cleanup makes one wonder where he is getting his information.

"It should never have happened," he told reporters earlier this week, "but at least a very substantial, good-faith effort has been made to clean up the spill."

The state of Alaska doesn't agree that Exxon's efforts have been made in good faith. They are suing Exxon for negligence in the spill and the cleanup. Exxon, in turn, is countersuing Alaska for hindering the cleanup by opposing the use of oil-dispersing chemicals.

Who is the damaged party? It's hard to see any motivation Alaskans might have had for delaying the cleanup — but according to many directly involved with and affected by the cleanup, Exxon has not shown the appropriate diligence.

Earlier this week, Skinner announced that Exxon had spent $1.9 billion dollars in the cleanup. He called this an "unbelievable number."

Don't believe it. Even spokesmen for the oil giant claim expenses at only half that, at "over $1 billion."

Meanwhile, Skinner seems to be working under the assumption that Exxon will return in the spring to finish the cleanup, but Exxon's promise to do so is might thin. Exxon spokesmen say they will wait for the Coast Guard's assessment and then "respond" to it.

Skinner is taking a lot of things for granted, not the least of which is Exxon's interest in actually cleaning up Prince William Sound.

One-upsmanship

Presidents George Bush and Mikhail Gorbachev at the Malta summit this week sounded more like school boys than statesmen.

Trouble started on Monday, when Gorbachev refused to visit the American cruiser Belknap because of choppy seas. The Americans said the Soviets were chicken. The Soviets then turned down Bush's request to visit the Soviet ship Slava and the summit quickly became, according to a New York Times headline, "an exchange of taunts."

Despite claims that the Cold War is over, the same old American and Soviet displays of one-upsmanship are still around. In fact, these taunts are an example of what the Cold War was, and will continue to be — an East-West popularity contest for global opinion.

Bush and Gorbachev have produced a comical heightening of tensions in jockeying for the image of world leadership. Their actions, and those of their staffs, illustrate the behind-the-scenes image-making that accompanies east-west diplomacy, and some of it is just plain vain.

Shame on you boys.

Ethnicity belongs to everyone

Ethnic allegiances are playing a major role in the current reorganization of Eastern Europe. The passion of such alliances and divisions is difficult for most Iowans to credit — because of the ethnic homogeneity of our state, and because of the American ideal of downplaying ethnic differences in favor of national allegiance.

Last month I attended a meeting of a committee composed of well-educated, well-meaning people. Our attention turned to ethnic groups.

"What about Native Americans?" suggested the chair of the committee. "I was surprised to learn recently that Native Americans are the largest ethnic majority in the state of Iowa."

"They may be the largest ethnic minority," I said. "But the 'largest ethnic majority' is people like you and me."

There was a short pause in which I wasn't sure whether I had offended people, or they didn't quite understand. "You know, white Northern Europeans. Germans. Scandinavians." (The night before we had all been to visit the local museum, a wonderfully impressive series of exhibits which commemorates Norwegian immigrants in no uncertain ethnic terms.)

"What do you know," chuckled the man across from me, who happens to be chairman of the board. "I'm ethnic."

Later in the meeting, apropos of nothing, he leaned across again to say, "You know, I'd never thought of it that way. I'm ethnic, too."

Marlena Corcoran

His response shows that, as Americans of Northern European descent tend to use the term, "ethnicity" belongs to other people. For example, a friend of mine remarked recently over dinner, "I love ethnic food." I was about to ask, "What kind?" when I realized that, for her, this meant something like, "I love food that tastes foreign to me."

Most of the time, a member of a majority ethnic group assumes that their position is the natural and neutral one. (Not to mention the right one.) So Iowans of Northern European extraction, for example, tend to think that their ethnic position is neutral — in effect, not ethnic.

It's easier to get perspective on this by looking at how it functions in someone not so close to home.

One of my favorite moments in the old comedy series "Taxi" is the episode called, "Guess Who's Coming to Breshin." As the allusion to a similarly-titled film implies, this is a story about love and marriage across ethnic boundaries. The mangled pronunciation of "breakfast" brings in a whiff of the former Soviet leader Brezhnev; and sure enough, the problematic romance involves two Eastern Europeans.

Latka Gravas has met the woman of his dreams. Wonder of wonders,

A friend of mine remarked recently over dinner, "I love ethnic food." I was about to ask, "What kind?" when I realized that, for her, this meant something like, "I love food that tastes foreign to me."

his beloved Simcha is even, like himself, an exile from a tiny fictitious locale that seems to be a cross between Latvia and an amalgamated Balkan state. Latka and Simcha, to an American audience, are culturally indistinguishable. They act and talk like twins. This is a marriage made in heaven.

Even Latka goes on and on about how happy his mother will be to hear that he is marrying one of his own people. Latka explains to his fellow taxi-drivers, and the audience, the lovable characteristics of his fellow-countrymen. They are this, that and the other wonderful thing, he says, praising Simcha by association.

"Not like mountain people." The mountain people of Latka's country are out of the question, in terms understandable only to Latka. The mountain people eat blank-blank, dress like nya-nya and are generally ha-ha-ha.

"I am mountain people!" shouts Simcha. "No!" cries Latka, in the identical accent. "How can I tell my mother!" The rest of the episode revolves on the question of whether these two indistinguishables can overcome their differences.

Secure in our membership in the dominant American ethnic group, Iowans of Northern European ancestry could have a smug laugh over this one — if such struggles were not front-page news today.

Do you remember the photo in The New York Times, of a group of Slovenes demonstrating for their right, in principle, to secede from Yugoslavia? The caption hastened to add that the Slovenes had no intention of acting on this principle.

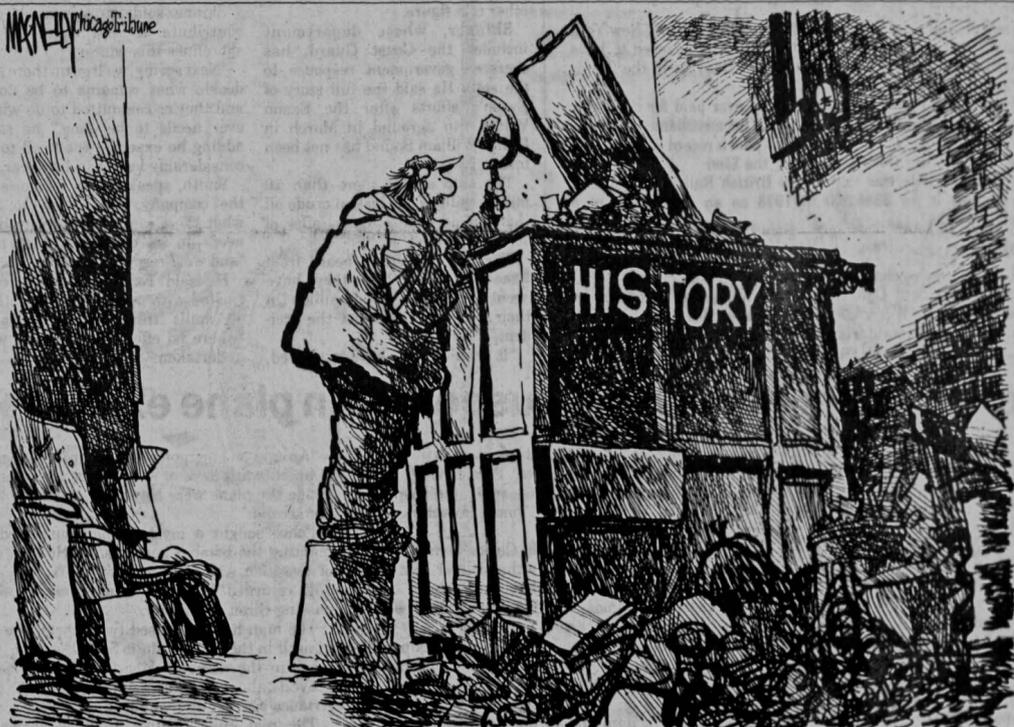

Now take Czechoslovakia. I once made the mistake of asking my friend Milada something about being Czechoslovakian.

"Czech," she corrected me. "I'm Czech."

Excuse me. I had no intention of implying that she is a Slovak. Just that she comes from that political entity, Czechoslovakia. Truthfully, I wasn't thinking about whether she might be a Czech or a Slovak.

That was my mistake. I only hope that in evaluating current events in Eastern Europe, American foreign policy officers do not make the same mistake.

Amen, Locke

To the Editor:

After reading Locke Peterseim's column in the Monday, December 4 issue of The Daily Iowan, I can only say, "Amen." In his article "Art in the '80s: Empty, shallow, trivial" he has put into words many of the sentiments I, an optimistic sort, have harcored about our culture in this past decade. Even if, as Peterseim has intimated, the '90s will be a "screaming nightmare," I believe that it will only be the impetus for the pendulum to swing back into something far rosier than a popular culture dominated by bozos and bimbos whose only concept of aesthetics is based on monetary worth, loud sounds, flashy colors, and kicking ass.

Let's have more of the same sort of writing.

Definition not enough

To the Editor:

After reading Jay Casini's editorial on the controversy surrounding New Wave's funding ["No Wave," the DI, November 30], one can only conclude that the journalism department is now teaching invective, rather than argumentation. While [Casini] restates the university definition of "political," he makes no argument as to why New Wave meets that definition. Unless you consider his assertion that New Wave is "definitely" political to be an argument.

It is non-sensical to contend that opposing or supporting a public figure's position on an issue is equivalent to opposing or supporting that person for political office. Taking a stand on an issue, even as it relates to a public figure, is not tantamount to supporting or opposing that person's potential candidacy.

Relative search

To the Editor:

I have recently been told that I have relatives living in the Iowa City area, and I am hoping that this letter will help us locate each other.

My father, Kenneth Leroy Gray, was born in Iowa in 1917 and was adopted as an infant by Walter Leroy Gray and Ida Ellenbogan Gray. I only know that they lived in Dalles County at the time of the 1920 census and moved to Sleepy Eye, Minn., later that year. Walter and Ida remained in Sleepy Eye for the rest of their lives and are buried there.

The problem is that my father quarreled with his parents after he graduated from high school. He left home and they never heard from him again. After World War II he settled in Minneapolis, married, and raised a family. We were told that our grandparents died when he was young, and that he had no relatives in this country. We never had a reason to doubt that, until recently, when we found papers overlooked when my father died five years ago.

We were surprised to find that he was adopted, and we were saddened to learn that his adoptive parents, the Grays, lived and died only 75 miles from our home near Minneapolis, without ever knowing about us.

Friends of the Grays in Sleepy Eye say that there are relatives in Iowa City. I would very much like to hear from any relative of Walter and Ida Gray, and also from anyone who knows about the circumstances of my father's adoption.

Israelis kill 5 Arab guerrillas

Planned attack linked to anniversary of Palestinian uprising

JERUSALEM (AP) — Israeli soldiers Tuesday killed five heavily armed Arab guerrillas who crossed the border from Egypt and planned a "spectacular" terrorist attack to mark the anniversary of the Palestinian uprising, the army said.

Israeli jets staged their second raid into Lebanon in the past 12 days in an attempt to forestall further infiltrations coinciding with the uprising's second anniversary on Tuesday. Lebanese police said seven people were wounded.

In the occupied Gaza Strip, a Palestinian teen-ager was killed and 20 Palestinians were wounded in stone-throwing clashes with troops, Arab doctors said.

The death raised to 626 the number of Palestinians killed by Israeli gunfire during the uprising against Israel's occupation of the West Bank and Gaza. Forty-three Israelis have died since the "intifadeh," as the revolt is called, began on Dec. 8, 1987.

The clash in the Negev desert occurred before dawn when an Israeli force encountered the five guerrillas and gave chase. The soldiers killed all the guerrillas in the hilly area of Mount Harif and suffered no casualties themselves, the army said.

Maj. Gen. Matan Vilnai, head of the army's southern command, said the infiltration was apparently linked to the uprising anniversary.

"We can assume there is a link between these things. . . . There is no doubt that organizations which we confront would try to carry out such an attack," he said on armed forces radio.

The guerrillas carried Soviet-designed Kalashnikov assault rifles, 51 hand grenades, a pistol with magazines, binoculars and wire cutters, and were on their way to a "spectacular attack" in Israel, the army said.

Vilnai said the guerrillas' equipment "shows they simply meant to kill. Not to argue too much, not to carry out a hostage-taking operation, but a killing operation."

"They carried no documents, and as a result we cannot know to what group they belonged," he added.

It was the first infiltration in nine months from Egypt, the only Arab country to have a peace treaty with Israel. The last occurred March 15, 1989, when two guerrillas from a fundamentalist Moslem group were captured near the border town of Rafah.

There have been at least 50 infiltrations this year from Lebanon, Israel staged its 17th raid of the year on guerrilla bases there Tuesday.

Four fighters struck the base of the terrorist mastermind Abu Nidal's Fatah Revolutionary Council in the Majdalioun Valley, east of Sidon, a Lebanese police spokesman said. Seven people were reported wounded.

On November 25, Israeli jets attacked bases of the Popular Front for the Liberation of Palestine-General Command in Lebanon.

In the occupied Gaza Strip, soldiers opened fire to disperse Palestinian stone-throwers, killing a 17-year-old and wounding 20 other demonstrators, hospital officials said. They said Nasser al-Kejek was fatally wounded in the chest.

The army said Tuesday that all schools in Gaza will be closed starting Wednesday "until further notice," apparently to prevent riots linked to the uprising anniversary.

Defense Minister Yitzhak Rabin, in a speech in Tel Aviv devoted to the anniversary, said that "politically, the Palestinians this year . . . are in a much weaker situation than they were a year ago."

Rabin said "stone-throwing in the Middle East" was low on the international agenda but noted it was bothering Israel, since 85 percent of violent incidents in the territories were stone-throwings.

Battles flare as Israel seeks control

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Israel's jets raided Palestinian guerrilla bases Tuesday, its surrogate militia shelled towns in south Lebanon, and fighting between rival Shiite Moslem militias spread to Beirut.

President Elias Hrawi said he would ask Syria to withdraw the 40,000 soldiers it stations in Lebanon if his new government can establish authority over a nation, factious for 14 years because of sectarian civil war.

Police said 20 people were wounded in fighting between the Syrian-backed Shiite militia Amal and the pro-Iranian Hezbollah, or Party of God, in Beirut and south Lebanon.

Four warplanes attacked Palestinian bases near Sidon, provincial capital of south Lebanon, in Israel's 17th air raid into Lebanon this year. Police said seven people were wounded.

The South Lebanon Army, a predominantly Christian militia that helps Israel patrol its border "security zone" in south Lebanon, shelled the Shiite market town of Nabatiyeh and nearby Hadatha village with 155mm howitzers. Eleven people were reported wounded.

Police said the Israeli planes hit bases used by guerrillas of terrorist Abu Nidal and the Syrian-backed Palestine Liberation Front on the northern edge of the Majdalioun Valley, east of Sidon.

A clinic operated by the Soviet-backed Democratic Front for the Liberation of Palestine also was damaged in the raid at 11:45 a.m., police reported.

South Lebanon Army opened fire on Nabatiyeh and Hadatha a few minutes later.

Police said 20 shells landed in Hadatha, eight miles north of the border with Israel, wounding 10 civilians. Hadatha is policed by Nepalese units of the 5,800-member U.N. Interim Force in Lebanon, to which nine nations contribute soldiers.

Militia gunners also fired intermittently at Nabatiyeh and the surrounding area, wounding a woman, said a police spokesman, whose name was withheld because of regulations.

Funeral processions for five people killed in similar shelling Monday were blocked by the shelling. Ambulances carrying the bodies could not enter Kfar Rumman village on Nabatiyeh's northern edge.

"They waited all day," the police spokesman said, and "finally, the victims were buried in Deir Zahrani," six miles to the west.

Security sources in south Lebanon said Hezbollah fighters responded to the shelling by firing four rockets into Marjayoun, a Christian border town where the Israeli-allied militia has its headquarters.

Lebanon protested the shelling to the U.N. Security Council, blaming the attacks on Israel, the Foreign Ministry said.

Amal, which lost control of Sohmor, Yohmor and Mashgara villages in the Bekaa Valley to Hezbollah in overnight fighting, was regrouping, apparently for a counterattack.

Syrian soldiers police the valley in east Lebanon. They stayed out of the battle.

THE IOWA CRITICAL LANGUAGES SCHOLARSHIP

an innovative program designed to prepare highly qualified secondary school teachers of Chinese, Japanese, and Russian is now accepting applications for its 1989-90 competition

The three-year program has the sequence:

- Intensive language training at a summer institute recognized for its excellence in these languages.
- One year of intensive preparation at The University of Iowa in language, history, and culture.
- A second summer of intensive language training at a more advanced level.
- One year of study abroad in the appropriate language area.
- One year of study at The University of Iowa to complete graduation and teacher certification requirements, including a semester of student teaching.

Scholarships are provided for the two summers of intensive language instruction and the year of study abroad. Other support based on eligibility available through the Office of Financial Aid.

Students who participate in the program are obligated to teach in a cooperating Iowa school district for at least three years after graduation. School districts currently cooperating in the program are Cedar Rapids, Des Moines, Iowa City, Marshalltown, Urbandale, and West Des Moines.

Bush, Quayle interpret Malta

Disagree over Soviet foreign policy, subsequent U.S. relations

WASHINGTON (AP)—The White House, dealing with aftershocks from the Malta summit, attempted to quell criticism from conservatives Tuesday and play down any differences between President George Bush and Vice President Dan Quayle on the Soviet Union.

On another summit topic, the administration said the meeting enabled Bush to look ahead to possible budget savings two years from now as a result of likely arms reductions.

White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater said that if an agreement is signed next year to slash long-range nuclear missiles, "I think that could have an impact, certainly" on the budget that would be submitted the following January.

Bush, on his first day back in the Oval Office, got a standing ovation from his Cabinet, summoned to the White House for a report on his two days of talks with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Bush ignored questions from reporters about Quayle, who has offered a more guarded and skeptical post-summit assessment of the Soviets than Bush has.

Quayle, in an interview with The Washington Post, called the Soviet Union "a totalitarian government" and said "I don't think they've changed much in foreign policy."

Bush, on the other hand, said after the summit, "We stand at the threshold of a brand new era of U.S.-Soviet relations." He also said Gorbachev's endorsement of reforms in Eastern Europe "absolutely mandates new thinking" by the West.

Explaining the difference, Bush's national security adviser, Brent Scowcroft, said, "We have an administration that is very closely aligned, but I think it is probably not possible for people to speak literally with one voice."

"And there may from time to time be difference of perspective, but there's no difference in the substance of the policies we're pursuing."

For months, Quayle has voiced a harder line than Bush toward the Soviet Union. It has been suggested the vice president was deliberately playing to the conservatives as part of a White House strategy to keep their support.

But Quayle said Tuesday that "there's no 'good guy-bad guy' strategy" between himself and Bush.

Quayle, in an interview with Knight-Ridder newspaper editors and reporters, tempered his comments to the Post, saying he should have called the Soviet Union an authoritarian — rather than a totalitarian — state.

Quayle credited the Soviets with remarkable changes in economic reforms and their campaign of openness, known as glasnost. "Where there has been a lack of 'new thinking' on the part of the Soviet Union is in the area of foreign policy, and particularly in Central America," the vice president said.

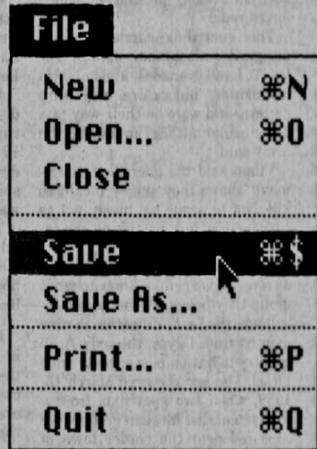

Bush and Quayle talked several times over the summit weekend, and then discussed the Post interview when they met Tuesday morning, officials said.

"Quayle has stated repeatedly that his No. 1 goal is to be a loyal, effective vice president to George Bush. If he felt he were in any way off the reservation, he would get back on," said Quayle spokesman David Beckwith.

Some conservatives have expressed unhappiness over the summit, saying that Bush gave the Soviets economic concessions without receiving anything in return.

Fitzwater minimized those objections. "I think it's quite natural to expect that when the president lays out as broad and comprehensive a set of initiatives as he did there (in Malta), that there are going to be those who have some concern about them."

Hawks have obstacles on, off court

Bryce Miller
 The Daily Iowan

Les Jepsen said it's a tribute that Iowa is undefeated with the hurdles that have sprung through four games.
 This week, Jepsen and the Hawkeyes will have obstacles to bound on the court — Thursday at Iowa State and hosting No. 17 North Carolina Saturday.
 "Being 4-0 is probably a little surprising," the 7-foot Iowa center said, "but I knew our team had the potential to be 4-0 at this point in the season... We've got to work hard this week. This is a big week for us."
 On Nov. 22, the Hawkeyes lost Matt

Bullard to a knee injury when he stepped on a teammate's foot in practice. Following arthroscopic knee surgery Friday, it was determined that he would be out for six to eight weeks.
 Bullard was on crutches Tuesday, and hadn't been able to put weight on the right knee. He said he has no timetable for a return.
 While Bullard was on the operating table Friday, information was just surfacing that the night before, sophomore Ray Thompson had been charged with public intoxication, simple assault and interference with official acts.
 He will enter counseling and evaluation, according to guidelines established by the Iowa Board in Control of Athletics, and earned a one-game suspension for breaking team rules.

 Tuesday, Thompson was only thinking about getting back to basketball.
 "It's tough, but I've got to think about basketball and helping the team," Thompson said. "I know I made a mistake and I'm sorry for what I did. Now, I have to put this behind me."
 Davis has left Thompson off the starting lineup for the game with the Cyclones, but said he wanted to retain "consistency" with Jepsen, James Moses, Michael Ingram, Wade Lookingbill and Troy Skinner getting the introductions.

 The Hawkeyes beat Iowa State 91-71 last year at Carver-Hawkeye Arena, but lost a 102-100 overtime battle at Hilton Coliseum in 1987. In that game, Lafester Rhodes exploded for a school-record 54 points.
 And after the game, a situation blew up on the sidelines between Cyclone coach Johnny Orr and Iowa assistant Gary Close. The two exchanged words and had to be separated.
 "It's forgotten," Close said. "We even laugh about it now. Sometimes those things happen, but I have a lot of respect for Coach Orr."

Snow named top college linebacker

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Michigan State's Percy Snow, who patterned himself after his boyhood idols, was named the top linebacker in college football and winner of the Dick Butkus award Tuesday.
 Snow, a 6-foot-2, 235-pound senior who made 163 tackles this season, grew up just 10 minutes from the Pro Football Hall Of Fame in Canton, Ohio, and said he had always looked up to NFL defensive stars Jack Lambert, Mean Joe Greene and Butkus.
 "They were my idols, my boyhood heroes, and I always wanted to be like them," Snow told reporters over a telephone hookup with the Downtown Athletic Club of Orlando, which makes the annual Butkus award.

Power board

Snow was picked by a 13-member panel over Keith McCants of Alabama, James Francis of Baylor, Ron Cox of Fresno State and Andre Collins of Penn State. The Michigan State senior collected 27 votes, based on a 3-2-1 system, to 21 for McCants. Both Snow and McCants received four first-place votes.
 Michigan State Coach George Perles said Snow's selection "should come as no surprise to anyone... He's a good student, a good citizen, and should be the first defensive player selected in the (pro) draft."
 His coach compared Snow favorably with the best NFL linebackers.

"He gets a tremendous break on the ball... (creating) an explosion through the line," Perles said.
 Rival Coach Bo Schembechler of Michigan said about Snow, "I haven't seen any better."
 Snow said he had "worked real hard all year," expecting to win the award. "It was on my mind all season... but the team goals came first."

In reply to a question, Snow said "defensive players should get more consideration for the Heisman Trophy," the annual award that recognizes the top collegiate player. No defender has ever won the Heisman, and Snow said he meant no discourtesy but that the Heisman should be designated as going to the best offensive player.

The award panel said "career consistency and tenacity in the best tradition of the legendary Butkus were factors in Snow earning the honor."
 Snow amassed 464 tackles in his four-year career at Michigan State, although he played only on special teams as a freshman.

Iceman returning to basketball

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — George Gervin, one of professional basketball's leading scorers, said Tuesday he is attempting a comeback at the age of 37 because "I feel I have a lot of basketball left in me."
 Gervin will sign a contract Thursday with the Quad City Thunder of the Continental Basketball Association and will participate in its drug and alcohol rehabilitation program, the team in Moline, Ill., said.
 The player known as the Iceman is hoping to make a strong enough showing to earn his way back into the National Basketball Association and said he hopes to play for a championship team.

 He had played 12 seasons with the San Antonio Spurs and one with the Chicago Bulls, accumulating 26,595 points before leaving the game three years ago.
 "I miss the game, first and foremost. I feel I have a lot of basketball in me," he told reporters in a telephone news conference Tuesday afternoon.

He said that when he retired, he was tired of traveling and training.
 Now, he said, "I want the opportunity to hopefully make a run with a championship team, to add an NBA championship to the goals I have set for myself to accomplish."
 To get there, he said he will have to prove "I don't look foolish" on the court.
 "I can't talk about what I used to do, we have to talk about the present and the future," he said. "I have to let my playing do the talking."

Bump Elliott

Elliott named to Foundation's Hall of Fame

NEW YORK (AP)—University of Iowa men's athletic director Chalmers "Bump" Elliott was honored Tuesday night by the National Football Foundation by being inducted into its Hall of Fame.
 Thirteen former college football stars and four former coaches were inducted into the Foundation's Hall of Fame.
 The ex-players are Elliott, Purdue and Michigan; Donny Anderson, Texas Tech; Paul Cleary, Southern California; Larry Csonka, Syracuse; Roman Gabriel, North Carolina State; John Green, Tulane and Army; Matt Hazeltine, California; Bob Johnson, Tennessee; Ted Kwalick, Penn State; Archie Manning, Mississippi; Edgar Manske, Northwestern; Bob Schloredt, Washington, and Aurelius Thomas, Ohio State.

 Elliott, who took over as Iowa's AD in 1970, joined such football greats as Paul Brown, who coached championship teams in high school, college and the pros, and former Notre Dame athletic director Ed "Moose" Krause as an honoree.
 Brown, who won a national championship at Ohio State in 1942, received the Gold Medal for his contributions to college football. Krause, who was Notre Dame's basketball coach in the 1940s before becoming athletic director, was given the Distinguished American award.

 After compiling an 80-8-2 record as a high school coach in his hometown of Massillon, Ohio, Brown coached Ohio State from 1941-43 and later guided the Cleveland Browns to seven league championships. After a five-year break from pro football, he returned to coach the expansion Cincinnati Bengals in 1968 and led them to a division title three years later. Brown is currently vice president and general manager of the Bengals.
 Known as a master teacher, Brown inspired dozens of his players and assistants to become head coaches, including Chuck Noll, Don Shula, Ara Parseghian, Weeb Ewbank, Lou Saban and Bill Walsh.

 "A good coach is a good teacher," Brown said in an interview before Tuesday night's ceremony. "The first word in my playbook always was 'Why?' I never asked my players to do anything without giving them a reason."
 The former coaches are Sid Gillman, Miami of Ohio and Cincinnati; Frank Howard, Clemson; Joe Aillet, Louisiana Tech, and Warren Woodson, who coached Conway Teachers, Hardin-Simmons, Arizona, New Mexico State and Trinity.

AP names All-American team

Associated Press
 Passing prodigy Andre Ware and record-setting runner Anthony Thompson, who battled to a photo finish in the Heisman Trophy race, were named to The Associated Press 1989 All-America college football team on Tuesday.
 Ware, who edged Thompson for the Heisman in the fourth-closest vote ever, shattered 13 NCAA marks and tied two others this season as the quarterback of Houston's run-and-shoot offense. He capped his remarkable year Saturday against Rice by setting single-season records for most completions (365) and passing yards (4,699), falling just one short of Jim McMahon's NCAA mark of 47 touchdown passes.
 While Ware was establishing passing standards, Thompson was running off with his own records. The Indiana tailback set NCAA career marks for touchdowns and points, led the nation in rushing with 1,793 yards and broke the single-game rushing record with 377 against Wisconsin.

Ware and Thompson were unlikely candidates for stardom. Ware had virtually no preseason publicity and wasn't seen on television because Houston is on probation. Thompson played on a losing football team at a school better known for basketball.
 But they are the top stars on an AP offensive team that includes Outland Trophy finalist Michael Tanks of Florida State and a trio of record-setting receivers — Clarkston Hines of Duke, Terance Mathis of New Mexico and Emmanuel Hazard of Houston.
 The defense features Butkus Award winner Percy Snow of Michigan State, Outland finalist Moe Gardner of Illinois and Lombardi Award finalists Chris Zorich of Notre Dame and Tim Ryan of Southern California. The Butkus honors the top linebacker in the country; the Outland and Lombardi awards are for linemen.
 Fourth-ranked Notre Dame is the only school with three players on the team — Zorich, defensive back Todd Lyght and return specialist Raghib "Rocket" Ismail. Top-ranked Colorado, No. 5 Florida State, No. 12 Southern Cal, No. 13 Houston and No. 22 Michigan State each placed two players on the team.

 Joining Ware and Thompson in the backfield is Florida running back Emmitt Smith. In addition to Tanks at center, the offensive line consists of guards Eric Still of Tennessee and Joe Garten of Colorado along with tackles Bob Kula of Michigan State and Jim Mabry of Arkansas. The placekicker is Washington State's Jason Hanson.
 Rounding out the defense are linemen Greg Mark of Miami, linebackers Keith McCants of Alabama and James Francis of Baylor and defensive backs Mark Carrier of Southern Cal, Tripp Welborne of Michigan State and LeRoy Butler of Florida State. The punter is Colorado's Tom Rouen.
 The All-America team has 12 seniors, 11 juniors and two sophomores, Ismail and Hanson. The juniors are Ware, Smith, Hazard, Todd Lyght and return specialist

Illini get past Gators

GAINESVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Marcus Liberty scored 21 points and Kendall Gill 19 Tuesday night to lead seventh-ranked Illinois (3-0) to a 74-69 victory over No. 25 Florida.

The Illini, winning for the 26th time in the last 27 games in which Gill has played, scored the first five points of the second half to pull away from a 34-34 halftime tie.

Dwayne Schintzius led Florida with 19 points, but missed the front end of two one-and-one free throw opportunities in the final 4:21 as the Gators fell to 1-1 under interim coach Don DeVoe.

Another surgery for Dravecky

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Dave Dravecky, who battled back from cancer to pitch for San Francisco this season, will have surgery in January because of a recurrence of a tumor in his left arm.

Dravecky, 33, will undergo the procedure at the Sloan-Kettering Memorial Cancer Center in New York on Jan. 4.

Dravecky spent most of the season in rehabilitation from surgery to remove a cancerous tumor from his left arm in 1988. He drew national attention when he returned to the Giants in August and beat Cincinnati at Candlestick Park in his first game back.

Changes planned for Kingdome

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The Seattle Mariners began construction Tuesday to change the outfield dimensions at the Kingdome.

The Kingdome, one of the best hitters' parks in the major leagues, often has been criticized as a place too easy to hit home runs.

Currently, the distances are 315 feet to left field and right field and 410 feet to center field. The new dimensions will be 324 feet to left field, 361 to left-center, 415 to center, 352 to right-center and 313 down the right-field line.

Carter may be a Padre in '90

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The chase for Joe Carter apparently is over and the winner looks like San Diego.

The Padres reached agreement with the Cleveland Indians late Monday night to get the slugging outfielder if they can sign him.

Padres manager Jack McKeon said there was time "to get it done."

The Indians would receive a package of players, notably highly rated young catcher Sandy Alomar Jr., if the conditional trade can be completed. Cleveland may also get Chris James and minor leaguer Carlos Baerga.

Gervin was the all-time scoring leader at Eastern Michigan, which retired his number in May 1986.

He was the leading scorer, averaging 20 points a game, in a four-game tour of Australia and the Orient last summer with a team of NBA all-stars.

Oklahoma

"All that stuff was stealthily done because the NCAA was investigating them at the time when I first started picking up the money," Armstrong told the Morning News.

But Armstrong said he did not know if any Oklahoma coaches were aware of the cash payments from the unnamed Tulsa booster.

"I would be stepping out of bounds if I said they did," Armstrong told the AP. "But I don't know, I really don't know at all."

"We will have no comment at this time," NCAA enforcement chief David Berst said when asked about the allegations.

Thompson is serving a two-year federal prison term at Big Spring, Texas, after pleading guilty to a charge of conspiracy to distribute cocaine.

Armstrong, Thompson and Brewer all are from Lawton, Okla. The newspaper quoted an anonymous former Oklahoma player who said

Armstrong "was hanging around Charles and knew everything."

Armstrong also told the newspaper that two visits Brewer made to the school were paid for by the football program. NCAA rules allow a university to pay for only one visit.

Thompson received money from a coach and paid for a hotel for Brewer's second stay, which occurred about a week before Feb. 8, the national signing day, Armstrong told the newspaper.

But he told the AP Tuesday that "I didn't see coaches give him anything."

Van Horn said school officials are "committed to a program of strict and total compliance with all NCAA rules and regulations."

"All Oklahomans and alumni can rest assured that the OU football program is presently in compliance with NCAA rules and regulations," Van Horn said in the statement.

All-Americans

Garten, Zorich, Gardner, McCants, Lyght, Welborne, Carrier and Rouen. There are no repeaters from last year's first team, although Thompson and Snow were on the second team in 1988.

The players were selected by AP sports editor Darrell Christian, college football writer Rick Warner and regional AP sports writers. The team will be featured on Bob Hope's annual Christmas show, Dec. 16 from 9-10 p.m. CST on NBC.

Smith ran for 1,599 yards this season, including a 316-yard performance against New Mexico, and was ranked third nationally in rushing. He holds 58 school records and is the fifth leading rusher in Southeastern Conference history.

Hines caught 61 passes for 1,149 yards and set an NCAA record with 38 career touchdown catches

Kula, who switched to tackle after three years at guard, replaced All-American Tony Mandarich as the anchor of a Michigan State offensive line that paved the way for the Big Ten's second best rushing attack.

Arkansas averaged 314 yards per game on the ground behind the blocking of Mabry and his offensive linemates. A four-year letterman, Mabry helped lead the Razorbacks to their second straight Southwest Conference title this season.

Still, the heavyweight of the team at 283 pounds, is smart as well as strong. The 6-3 guard made the All-SEC academic team for the fourth straight year and was the catalyst of an offensive line that, in Coach Johnny Majors' opinion, was "as good as any we've had."

Garten was the iron man of Colorado's offense, playing more downs than any other player on the undefeated team that is second nationally in rushing with 372 yards per game.

Ismail was a triple threat as a receiver, runner and kick returner, averaging 17 yards every time he touched the ball. He returned two kickoffs for touchdowns against Michigan and ran back a punt for a score against Air Force, giving him a total of five return scores in his career.

Hanson made 21 of 27 field goal attempts, missing only once inside 45 yards, and extended his point-after streak to 81 before having one blocked in the final game of the season. Five of his field goals were 50 yards or longer, including a 58-yarder that was the longest in the nation this season.

Women crown intramural hoops champ

Jay Nanda
 The Daily Iowan

The women's champion in the Pre-Holiday basketball tournament has been crowned, while the men's division came closer to doing the same.

Jamalots are the queens of the court, as they defeated Big Tennessees in the title game, 34-24. Jamalots had defeated Zeta Tau Alpha and Beastie Girls by a combined total of 40 points to advance to the title game.

In the men's division, the 100-team field is down to the elite eight. Kappa Sigma, Masters of the Hardwood, Jungs, Lambda Chi Alpha, The Franchise. The Gunners, Chazersize and The Untouchables will be vying for the final four starting tonight. The title game is on Sunday.

In other basketball news, the search for officials continues. Anyone interested should contact Recreation Services at 335-9293. Officials can also play in the league. Pay starts out at $4.90 per game, and although no experience is necessary, basic knowledge about the sport is encouraged.

Meanwhile, the deadline for men's and women's soccer is this Friday at 4:00 p.m. The men's league is a mini round robin tournament, while the women's is single elimination. A $40 fee is required for men and $30 for women.

Schedules will be available in Room E216 of the Field House on January 10. Games will be played on Tuesday and Thursday nights at the indoor practice facility. No team may have more than one soccer club member on their roster for both the men's and women's leagues.

Besides basketball and soccer, people looking to join any intramural team can sign up as a "free agent" in Room E216. Free agents are encouraged to write their name, phone number and the name of the sport they wish to join.

Meanwhile, the Iowa Mountaineers is celebrating its 50th Anniversary with a hiking trip to the Arizona Grand Canyon. A majority of the trip, which will be March 18-23, will be spent in the Havasupai Canyon.

The fee is $325, and includes meals, lodging, stoves and cooking equipment. A deposit of $100 is to be paid upon registration and another $100 should be paid by January 1. The balance is due February 1. Those who are not members of the Iowa Mountaineers need to include $15 for membership dues.

Brochures concerning the trip can be picked up at E216 of the Field House, but anyone seeking more specific information can call the Iowa Mountaineers at 337-7163 or 354-3457.

Joffrey's 'The Nutcracker' returns to home

'Iowa's gift to the nation' is a young girl's Christmas dream

Krista Hiser
The Daily Iowan

This evening will mark a Christmas homecoming as the Joffrey Ballet production of "The Nutcracker" is unleashed from five truckloads of fantasy, flowers and magical dancing. The ballet will return to Hancher Auditorium, the site of its 1987 premier, for five performances: 8 p.m. tonight and at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Thursday and Friday.

The well-known music by Tchaikovsky will be performed by the UI Symphony under the conduction of Joffrey musical director Allan Lewis and resident director John Miner. The production will also feature 69 young dancers from Iowa rehearsed by Linda Crist, a faculty member of the UI Department of Dance, as well as singers from Kantorei and the University Choir, prepared by William Hatcher, director of choral activities for the UI School of Music.

Robert Joffrey's distinctly American version of the classic ballet is set in Victorian America, circa 1850. This performance will feature spectacular props and costumes, including a 23-foot tall Christmas tree, exquisite hand-painted bouquet skirts for the famed "Waltz of the Flowers" and a battalion of medieval toy soldiers. An interesting facet of the production is its interpretation of child-like fantasy, as each of the "real" characters from the first scene is transformed into a character from a young girl's dream.

The Joffrey production was created in the spirit of the original 19th-century production at the Maryinski Theater in St. Petersburg, Russia, and was based upon the first American performance in 1940.

"The Nutcracker" was conceived and produced by Robert Joffrey — his last major project before his death in 1988. Special choreography for "The Waltz of the Snowflakes" and "The Waltz of the Flowers" was created by Gerald Arpino, now artistic director of the Joffrey Ballet. The production features staging by Scott Barnard, assistant artistic director for the Joffrey Ballet, and George Verdak, artistic director emeritus of the Indianapolis Ballet Theater; American Victorian sets by Oliver Smith, the dean of Broadway designers; costumes by John David Ridge, who has designed costumes for several Joffrey productions; and lighting by Thomas Skelton, a long-time Joffrey collaborator.

The mouse cavalry, rocking horse and Mother Ginger were designed by Kermit Love, creator of Big Bird and other Muppet and "Sesame Street" characters.

Legendary British character dancer Alexander Grant, who created the role of Drosselmeyer in the Joffrey production, will return again this season to scatter his magical fairy dust. Drosselmeyer is an important character in Joffrey's interpretation; he is a magician, a dollmaker, and a clockmaker. It is his magic and love, as Joffrey sees it, "that enables each of us to revisit the land of innocence: our childhood."

Following its triumphant premier in Hancher, the Joffrey performance captivated audiences and critics in Washington, New York and Los Angeles. Co-produced by Hancher Auditorium and the University of Iowa Foundation with the financial support of thousands of Iowa individuals and businesses, the Joffrey Nutcracker was billed as "Iowa's holiday gift to the nation." And, Alan Kriegsman of The Washington Post found the ballet "radiant with theatrical magic... a reflection of the loving care its makers took in assembling it."

Anna Kisselgoff of The New York Times reporting from Washington in a preview for the New York performance said, "The Joffrey Ballet has come up with something to write home about — a Christmas-card version of 'The Nutcracker' that has a distinct and original flavor of its own."

When "The Nutcracker" arrived in New York, Clive Barnes' review in the New York Post declared the Joffrey production "an enchantment, a Christmas bauble as precious, and one suspects as permanent, as anything fashioned by the Czar's own magic jeweler, Fabergé."

Edward Stierle as the Snow Prince in the Joffrey Ballet's production of "The Nutcracker."

Remaining tickets for the Joffrey Ballet production of "The Nutcracker" are $25 and $22 for adults, $20 and $17.60 for UI students and senior citizens, and $12.50 and $11 for young people 18 and under.

The Joffrey Ballet's 1989 National Tour is sponsored by Philip Morris Company, Inc.

A.C. Reed breaks stereotype, plays blues really blue on sax

Radoslav Lorkovic
The Daily Iowan

The lone saxophone player in a field of countless guitar and harmonica legends, A.C. Reed, and his Spark Plugs band are set for ignition, bringing their blues tonight to Gabe's Oasis, 330 E. Washington St.

Saxophone, regardless of the setting, implies jazz training and harmonic exploration. Reed breaks this stereotype, playing nothing but the blues with 40 years of experience on the instrument.

Too often in blues bands sax players (as well as other horn players) tend to show off their jazz chops with a few token "blues" notes. Not Reed. He keeps it way down in there, with simply phrased powerful playing. He bends and growls his way through solos, emulating a sound reminiscent of Little Walters' harmonica, eliminating unnecessary frills.

Ironically, Reed started out studying jazz at the Chicago conservatory of Music in the mid-1940s. At that time, he met his mentor, J.T. Brown, Elmore James' sax player. Brown showed Reed the difference between playing jazz and playing the blues. "The first thing he taught me," Reed said, "was to play less notes, play simpler and try to tell a story with my solos."

Opening the show will be Dennis McMurrin and the Demolition Band. McMurrin has the unique ability to play almost every conceivable style of music, as well as every possibly relevant note, and still have it sound like blues.

McMurrin twists his way through jazz runs and country flatpicking; he finds overtones and harmonics and twists them around, turns them inside out, and they come out blues. This one-of-a-kind approach is brilliantly echoed by saxophonist Bob Thompson. Thompson's consummate musicianship places him in a category that includes him in the above praise. Whether he is playing the most eclectic jazz or the funkier, grittiest R&B, Thompson is one of the few saxophonists capable of true essence of style.

Redundant decade dredges up memories 'Tired TV' and 'old art' given new life for sake of entertainment

Gregory Galloway
The Daily Iowan

The '80s began in fine fashion. Just a few hours into the new decade I was drunk and vomiting on an ex-girlfriend. It was a cathartic experience, and starting out of the chasm of the '70s I thought, "Things can only get better." Of course things can always get worse, and they did; the next 10 years dragged like a prolonged and agonizing hangover.

"No one will guide you/ in armageddon time," the Clash sang in 1980 in an urgent plea that prophesied the Reagan era. The decade was barely underway when Ronald Reagan manned the helm and tried to take us all back to the carefree conservatism of the '50s, but his way-back machine stalled somewhere in the late '70s.

If anyone should doubt, just take a brief glance at the popular entertainment of the day. Nixon, Kojak, Columbo and Farrah are still on television; Al Pacino and John Travolta are still making movies; the Bee Gees, Donny Osmond and Donna Summer are still making hit records. "When Harry Met Sally" is a remake of "Annie Hall." In fact, most of the new stars are wearing '70s fashions: Taylor Dayne, Jody Watley and Dwight Yoakam are sporting bell bottoms; men with pony tails are a common sight, and even wide ties with loud patterns are back in style. Disco (now called "dance music") and heavy metal top the charts, and of course, Elvis is alive.

Art in the '80s supplanted instant karma with instant nostalgia; everyone wanted to jump into a DeLorean and go back to the future. "The Big Chill" (itself a rip-off of John Sayles' "Return of the Secaucus 7") led the baby boom nostalgia charge, with Vietnam films, "thirtysomething" and "The Wonder Years" soon following. Rampant grave-robbing soon became the norm.

Retreads, remixes, revivals and reruns spawned like mutant medflies; all the old art was trotted out again, and everyone paid to give the dead horse another beating. Tiffany, Martika and even the Rolling Stones had hits by recording other artists' hits; Roy Orbison's career was revived and then re-revived when he died, proving that life is short but profits spring eternal, or at least cyclically. The Doobie Brothers, the Who, Jefferson Airplane/Starship, Poco — impor-knowledge it. The image of the thing had finally superseded the thing itself. It's no surprise that the best-selling album of all time also had the longest and most expensive video.

Mass marketing had produced commodity fetishism. The trailer for "Batman" appeared in theaters six months before the movie's release; the hype machine sufficiently whipped the public into such a frenzy of anticipation that no one seemed to mind that the film was mediocre. Nostalgia turned narcoleptic and art was created in order to make us all sleep more comfortably.

It was the Decade of Somnambulism; not only Reagan, but the entire populace nodded off in apathetic, tacit agreement of the status quo. "Stay the Course" was the mandate, even if the course would turn us all into corpses. "It's the end of the world as we know it/ and I feel fine," R.E.M. sang as the decade faded; the Clash's anger had been reduced to learned helplessness.

Very little art took big risks in the '80s, and that which did usually remained in the underground. The most commercially successful independent film in history was "Dirty Dancing," which bought the Hollywood formula (and its prevailing nostalgia) hook, line and sinker. College radio promoted many underground bands, and most of the better bands failed to survive (Big Black, Husker Du, the Pontiac Brothers), while others became safe commodities, most notably R.E.M. and rap music.

art in the 80's

Gregory Galloway

Art in the '80s supplanted instant karma with instant nostalgia.

tant and trivial artists alike — reformed and tried to cash in on the oldies-but-goodies craze.

Cable television revived rerun after rerun, from the lost "Honeymooners" episodes to MTV's "Monkees" marathon to Nickelodeon — an entire channel devoted to tired TV. Old movies were dusted off and re-released (e.g. "Lawrence of Arabia"), and Hollywood churned out sequel after sequel. "Indiana Jones" seemed to capture every impulse in a single film; it was nostalgic, harkening back to the Hollywood of old; it was part of a series; it romanticized escapism; and it was shallow, advocating style over substance.

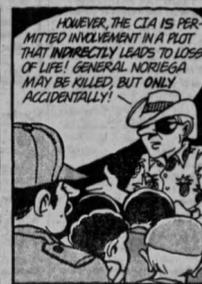

The '80s effectively transformed marketing into a religion. Popular Entertainment became equivalent to McDonald's; everyone knew the product was inferior, but bought it anyway — by the billions. 40 million people purchased Michael Jackson's "Thriller" album, not because they all liked it, but because they had been cajoled into thinking that they couldn't live without it. The triumph of "Thriller" was that it allowed people not to choose; no one had to like it, but everyone had to acknowledged it. The image of the thing had finally superseded the thing itself. It's no surprise that the best-selling album of all time also had the longest and most expensive video.

Mass marketing had produced commodity fetishism. The trailer for "Batman" appeared in theaters six months before the movie's release; the hype machine sufficiently whipped the public into such a frenzy of anticipation that no one seemed to mind that the film was mediocre. Nostalgia turned narcoleptic and art was created in order to make us all sleep more comfortably.
