The announcement of Martin Luther King Jr. Day was deemed successful by attendees who participated in the day's activities. They were pleased with the role the university played in the observance, said Greg Kelley, public relations director.

"I think it's about the same time for the students," Kelley said. "Most of the students are 18 to 20 years old. That means they've been in college for one year, two years, three years. They're in the middle of the road. They're not the older students, not the younger students. But they're in the middle of the road. They're about the same time for the students."

EAST GERMANY (AP) — About 100,000 East Germans stormed secret police headquarters Monday, tore up offices and burned fascism from the inside. State TV said the rampage put the once-dreaded agency "in gr8est danger." The interior minister said he planned to close branches of East Germany's spy agency by the end of the month.

"We have the right to demand that the secret police be abolished," said Gregor Gysi, leader of the opposition Social Democratic Party. "The interior minister should not be able to disband any organization without the consent of Parliament."

State TV said the situation at the headquarters of the one-man agency was "overwhelming." The ADN, the official news agency, reported several "violent clashes" throughout the day. A person was injured, the TV said.

Beckett fought so special-needs children can afford to go home

By Jennifer Messenger

Eight years ago, Julie Beckett of Des Moines was on her way to the hospital with her 29-year-old ventilator-dependent daughter when she realized something was wrong. She then turned to the driver, called 911, and was then taken to the hospital for her daughter, Katie, who had just had a seizure. Katie, who was born with a genetic disorder, had a rare lung condition called cystic fibrosis, which required her to be on a respirator at night.

Katie's condition was so severe that she was listed for a lung transplant. But the family was told that there was no waiting list for children, and that they would have to find a hospital in New York to have Katie's lung surgery. The family was told that the surgery would cost $300,000, and that they would have to pay for it themselves.

The family then turned to the Iowa City Children's Hospital, which has a program that helps families pay for medical treatments. The family was able to get the surgery for Katie, and she is now doing well.

The family used the money they had saved to pay for Katie's surgery, and they also used the money to pay for Katie's care at home. The family was able to get the money they needed to pay for Katie's care, and they are now able to keep Katie at home, where she is doing well.

Legislative scrap heap in House Judiciary Committee

DES Moines (AP) — The opening words of the final legislative session may sound banal, but many lawmakers estimated they may also be the most meaningful of the year.

"They go there as a journey to the Legislature's "burial ground," a place for the 'dead' bills and legislation." said Jay, 35, a six-term state lawmaker from Des Moines.

The session opens on Monday, January 22, with both the House and Senate set to vote on a bill to split the Department of Natural Resources.

The Senate, according to Iowa City Fire Marshal Larry Kinney, may have been the scene for a fire that caused a direct hit under a massive reorganization of the department.

Beason, chair of the Senate Resources Subcommittee, said his measure has been "scraped" by the rest of the committee because it "hasn't been controversial enough to get the interest it needs.

On the opening day of the session, Jay is in line for a bill to split the department, which would go to the House, but Wilson believes the measure won't pass.

"I'm not a capricious decision, but the people of the state want to see a change," Wilson said.

"We're asking the citizens to pick up the phone and call their lawmakers," Wilson added.

"We're not trying to be controversial, but we're trying to be realistic," Wilson said.

"We're trying to make a statement that we're not afraid of controversy.," said Jay, 35. "Because of the scope of our proposals, I've had to meet with many constituents and not a small number of opponents.

It also means Jay is assured in more resolutions and floor speeches than any other single legislator, with the possible exception of Speaker Dave Arrington, who also was a joke at public sessions.

"I've been in the Legislature for almost 20 years, but I've never been as confident as now," Wilson said.

"I've been in the Legislature since 1982, and I've got there via a journey to the Legislature's "burial ground," where thousands of bills have gathered dust for years."

"I'm not afraid of controversy, but I'm not afraid of controversy either," Wilson said.

"I'm trying to make a statement that we're not afraid of controversy," Wilson said.

"Even the smallest bill can be controversial, but it's the biggest issue," Wilson said.

SOVIET UNREST

Secesssion gambit

As an ethnic unities in the Soviet Union faces President Mikhail Gorbachev's call for a dual goal: the Union's survival and the Commonwealth's eventual disintegration, the United States needs to proceed with caution to the Sevastopol, the Crimean region of the Soviet Union, which Gorbachev pushed through the Soviet Parliament Monday, the announcement that more troops might be sent to tailor bloodletting there, are prudent uses of strength, not signs of reckless martialism.

In Lithuania, Gorbachev's (in effect) recognition of an immovable object. But the timely military presence in Afghanistan may cool Lithuanian zeal long enough to arrange for an orderly process toward Baltic autonomy — thus saving Gorbachev's political prestige.

The hatred between Shiite Muslems and Christians in the Lebanon's Sunni areas that Gorbachev is to limit serious bloodshed in a region that remains key to the political prestige and avoiding either bloodshed or secession of the Lebanese. The sunni leadership in Lebanon's confessional system is secular and despotic in that even many moderate sunni religious leaders agree that they would need a force to force the Lebanese to accept the need for a secular constitution.

Bulgaria abolishes Communist monopoly

Kosta, Bulgaria — Parliament voted Sunday to abolish the Communist Party monopoly on power, opening the way to free elections, and vindicating the abolition of hard restrictions on the ethnic Turkish minority.

National Assembly deputies agreed to remove constitutional guarantees that have been in place for 40 years, and they endorsed the party as "the guiding force in society and the C".

The vote Sunday follows a report by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on narcotics headed by Sen. John Kerry (D-Mass.).

The committee on narcotics "will continue, opening the one-time Noriega adviser, to the 1988 report of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on narcotics"

Animation celebrated in new feature-length movie at Bijou

Jacqueline Centro

"The Dark Hall" is a story by writer-director Theodor Bausman, who offers a series of event-driven minds. The story is set in the Soviet Union during the Cold War, just after the 1970s, where a group of Soviet filmmakers are invited to the United States to make a film about the atomic bomb. The filmmakers arrive in the United States and quickly become embroiled in a plot to prevent the release of their film, which they believe could be used by the U.S. government to undermine the U.S. nuclear arsenal.

The movie is a political thriller about the Cold War and the power struggle between the U.S. and the Soviet Union. The filmmakers are caught in the middle of this struggle, and they must decide whether to continue with their film or to bow to the pressure of the U.S. government.

The movie is a blend of historical events and fictional elements. The filmmakers are based on real-life filmmakers who were invited to the United States to make a film about the atomic bomb. The story is a fictionalized version of their experiences.

The movie is a cautionary tale about the power of the media and the importance of free speech. It is a reminder of the need for a free press and the importance of independent filmmakers who can tell their stories without fear of retaliation.

The movie is a powerful reminder of the importance of free speech and the need for a free press. It is a story of a group of filmmakers who fought against the U.S. government to make a film about the atomic bomb, and it is a story of their bravery and their commitment to telling the truth.

Air/Magic clash grounded; battle between top guns off

CHICAGO (AP) — The NBA says the Michael Jordan Show is no go. By NBA officials and the league's basketball operations committee, the NBA voted 21-1 to make Michael Jordan an "insider" in its investigation of the Bulls and Magic Johnson of the Los Angeles Lakers.

On the heels of the Chicago Bulls' 16-3 record, Jordan and the Bulls' star center, Michael Jordan, have been suspended by the league for one game. The ruling follows an investigation into allegations that Jordan took part in gambling activities.

The San Antonio Spurs, who had been expected to face the Bulls in the Western Conference semifinals, will now face the Portland Trail Blazers.

Oh, brother, hockey is family stuff

LANDOVER, Md. (AP) — The Washington Capitals coach, Mike Orren, and his family, including his brother, coach of the Chicago Blackhawks, Mike Orren, Jr., will have to wait for their first game together.

Terry Murray, 33, has been the Caps' coach for the past three seasons. Murray has led the team to the playoffs seven times. The Caps finished last year with a 1-12-1 record, but this is the first time they've been in the division semifinals.

The expectations for Murray to do this year have been high, both as a fan and as a player. Murray has played or been a part of this organization since 1980. He has been a player in the AHL and an assistant coach in the NHL.

Murray coached two years in the minors, including his 500th career game and winning 17. In eight seasons with Washington, Murray compiled a record of 102-84-65.

Preseason all-Americans:

Fans of the Iowa Hawkeyes have been treated to some exciting games this year. The Hawkeyes have compiled a 9-3 record, with three consecutive wins over the Wisconsin Badgers, Penn State Nittany Lions, and Purdue Boilermakers.

Tennis kings:

The tennis season has been exciting for fans of the Hawkeyes. The team has had some impressive wins, including a 3-2 victory over the University of Michigan. The team had a double-header against the Michigan State Spartans, winning both matches.

Quotable:

"I think we're doing a good job," said Coach Tom D'Amico after the match. "Our team is working hard and we're starting to see some results."

Time to put pride into perspective

Everyone has an opinion about Iowa basketball. Players. Fans. Coaches. And many should be kept outside the building. But when you are dealing with a team that is envied for its reputation over the years, it has to be against the Hawkeyes, but they've been the butt of jokes for years. When you have a coach like Rick Byrnes against the Hawkeyes, but they've been the butt of jokes for years. When you have a coach like Rick Byrnes, you can imagine the fun.

Boilers back on poll after Big Ten wins

(AP) — Purdue, a Big Ten dark horse when the season began, has earned a spot in the AP Top 25 after winning its first two Big Ten games. The Boilermakers, in beating both Big Ten teams this week, have made an impression, according to several voters, that the team will be a force to be reckoned with.

Last year was a disaster for Purdue, but that's not the case this season. The Boilermakers have won their first two Big Ten games, and they're off to a 5-1 record overall. Purdue has already beaten Indiana and Iowa, two teams that were considered to be strong this season.

Men’s Hoops

(AP) — Since the last time the Hawkeyes were ranked in the AP Top 25, they've been a team that has been high on everyone's radar. But now it's time to move on.

La. Tech, Stanford stay on top of women’s poll

(AP) — La. Tech and Stanford remain at the top of the AP women's basketball poll. The Lady Techsters, who are 10-3 on the season, have won their last two games, and they're off to a 5-1 record overall. Stanford is 10-2 on the season, and they're off to a 5-1 record overall. Stanford had a tough test this weekend, but they were able to come out on top.

Time to put pride into perspective

Everyone has an opinion about Iowa basketball. And many should look outside of the state to hear them. But the only one that counts is the one inside that counts — the Iowa fans who actually support the Hawkeye program.

When watching ESPN last night, it was quite obvious that college programs around the country are now in a death spiral. Iowa State, with the announcement by coach Richard Dames, has been declared dead as a relevant basketball power. And Iowa is just one step away from joining them.

The news from Gainesville, Fla., is that coach Billy Donovan was fired. Dr. Wayne Schillinger is a learning disability. The Hawkeyes are the only team in the country that has never been particularly successful at basketball.

It seems as if Iowa is the only team in the country that has not lost a game.

In the beginning, basketball was played the way it was meant to be played. Basketball was a game of skill and strategy, where the players were forced to think on their feet. But as the game evolved, it became a game of numbers and statistics, where the players were forced to rely on their training and conditioning.

The Hawkeyes are the only team in the country that has never been particularly successful at basketball. And it seems as if Iowa is the only team in the country that has not lost a game.
