Nagle thinks senate will follow suit in rejecting Bush's political asylum veto

Bush hopes Gorbachev 'survives, stays strong'

WASHINGTON- President George Bush expressed hope Wednesday that the Soviet Union would survive and remain in power as the evidence accumulated that the Soviet leader, Mikhail Gorbachev, is looking for a way out of his current dilemma. "I think the more they stabilize, the better it is for the Soviet Union," Bush said. "I think that they need a stable leadership, and I think a big part of that is Mikhail Gorbachev's leadership."

Weiler says Bush's 'deep shouts' were 'like you've been Ethics in the news and in the office have been under fire in recent weeks as the Bush administration has been accused of pressuring government attorneys to drop cases and to issue statements that are not factually accurate.

Bush vowed to work with Congress on the issue of Soviet human rights. "I think it's important that we have an open dialogue with the Soviet Union, and that's what I'm committed to,' Bush said.

Help has arrived for all smoke-aholics

Tamra Roll
The Daily towns

If you are one of the estimated 40 million smokers in the United States, you're probably aware that you're adding to your risk of death, and if you're like most smokers, you're trying to quit. But what if you could be offered a tool that might make quitting easier? A new program in Iowa is offering a free smoking cessation class that could help smokers in their attempts to quit.

The program is called the "QuitLine," and it's being offered by the Iowa Department of Health and Human Services. The program is designed to help smokers identify barriers to quitting and develop effective strategies to overcome them. Participants will also receive ongoing support and encouragement from the program's staff.

The QuitLine is available to anyone who is interested in quitting smoking. To participate, you can call 1-800-662-4226 or visit the website at www.quitline.org.

Use of hog contractors increases

DES MOINES (AP) — About one out of every 10 hogs raised in the United States are handled by hog contractors, and the practice is likely to expand, according to an Iowa university's livestock economics expert.

"The use of hog contractors has increased in recent years," said John Hunt, an agricultural economist at Iowa State University. "The reason is that it allows farmers to focus on what they do best, which is producing hogs, while letting someone else handle the logistics of getting the hogs to market."

Hunt said that the use of hog contractors has increased because farmers want to reduce their costs and increase their efficiency. He said that the farmers are also interested in reducing the risks associated with the transportation of hogs.

"Hog contractors are able to handle the logistics of getting hogs to market," said Hunt. "This includes everything from the hogs being loaded onto trucks to being delivered to their destination."

The use of hog contractors is likely to increase in the future, according to Hunt. "The demand for hog contractors is growing," he said. "This is because farmers want to reduce their costs and increase their efficiency."

One New Jersey farmer has been asked to repay $100,000 after a federal agent read AP reports that checks were going to corporations and farmers ineligible for disaster aid. Entire counties in California and New Mexico are being investigated, as well, according to the Agriculture Department.

NEW YORK — The Agriculture Department is including some names in a proposed $5.9 billion drought relief and conservation program to disqualify eligible entities that the government says engaged in widespread misapplication of funds in the $3.5 billion emergency aid program. The New Jersey farmer has been asked to repay $100,000 after a federal agent read AP reports that checks were going to corporations and farmers ineligible for disaster aid. Entire counties in California and New Mexico are being investigated, as well, according to the Agriculture Department.

"The fact is, these kinds of programs are secondarily difficult to administer, and they have inherent shortcomings," said Yeutter, who is leading the effort to improve drought assistance conversions in the AP series, which appeared in December.

"We have to get these problems under control," Yeutter said. "We can't have a system where the country is paying payments to people who are not entitled."

"There are thousands of farmers outside who have been asked to repay the aid they got," said Fetrow, deputy administrator for Kansas wheat farmers that year and then was there when serious fights for the windmill and pitchfork growers, said Dale Whicker, a Kansas wheat grower who was asked to repay the aid he received.

Yeutter said that it's not that people avoided helping, but that they were "not doing it right." He said, ""We have to get these problems under control.""

"The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1933, the act of Congress that created the programs, is in force," Yeutter said. ""We are under the mandate of the act.""

"We simply cannot afford a continuation of the same," Yeutter said. ""The combination of messes that we're dealing with to deal with it on a case-by-case basis is not a very desirable solution.""

"We are actually trying to do this in a reasonable way," Yeutter said. ""We need to have a system where the country is paying for the repayment of debt."" He said that the problems that were cited in your articles, or at least they'd be drastic, were not exceeded. But Dennis Pryslak, the New Jersey lettuce grower who was ordered to repay the old by the Agriculture Department, said he just knew he was in trouble.

"There's $100,000 out there in the same situation and we've got sugar," said Pryslak. ""We're not going to be able to pay it back.""

"We can't put this off until the next crop season," Yeutter said. ""We need to do something about this now."

"I'm not saying that we're going to have a really big problem," Yeutter said. ""But we're not going to be able to ignore this.""

40-minute battle in Caspian Sea ends as soldiers force down sea blockade

The Caspian Sea, birthplace of two ancient empires, became the scene of an international confrontation between the Soviet Union and Azerbaijan.

According to the Moscow-based news service Tass, a Soviet warship opened fire on a Caspian Sea cutter of the Azerbaijani Republic, injuring its commander and forcing it to withdraw.

The confrontation began when a military vessel from Azerbaijan attempted to break through the Soviet naval blockade of the Caspian Sea off the coast of Baku. Soviet ships engaged the cutter, and the Azerbaijani vessel responded with a broadside of machine gun fire. The exchange continued for several hours, with both sides sustaining minor casualties.

The conflict arose from tension over territorial disputes in the region, particularly over the status of the disputed territory of Nagorno-Karabakh. The Soviets had been increasing their military presence in the area in recent weeks, leading to concerns that a larger conflict might erupt.

The Azerbaijani Parliament has denounced the Soviet actions and called for a diplomatic solution to the situation. The Azerbaijani government has also stated its readiness to negotiate with the Soviet Union to resolve the conflict peacefully.

The incident has raised concerns about the stability of the region, with both Azerbaijan and the Soviet Union facing pressure from various international actors. The situation remains tense, and both sides are expected to maintain a high level of alertness in the coming days.

The impact of the confrontation is likely to be felt beyond the Caspian Sea, with implications for regional security and stability. The international community is likely to take notice, with diplomatic efforts expected to increase to prevent further escalation.
Burned boy wary of father's release

LOUISA, Ky. (AP) — David Rothenberg will never forgive the father for setting him on fire, saying Rothenberg's 10-year-old son, who disfigured him leaves him, thrilled despite unsightly scars. He wants to be the last witness to the crime.

"I'm not on parole, and I have reached my destination; the time has come over. I have to think of his father, his mother, his wife, his son, his friends, and his neighbors. He has every reason to be afraid and upset, but he didn't do anything under the most restrictive conditions secret, fearing a repeat of the hysteria surrounding his release. But sentencing laws at the parole board are supposed to be slow and deliberate. David Rothenberg was convicted of attempted murder, arson and other charges and got the maximum sentence, 15 years in prison. The sentence was out in half because of good behavior.

In fact, Rothenberg would have faced up to 10 years in prison, but sentencing laws at the parole board are supposed to be slow and deliberate. "In the Overtown area, there's a curve, the main road crashes into a curve they got on the panel van. It happened around a curve of turning they went into the water."

The driver "made no attempt to stop or break, drove this road two times," he said. Chamness said investigators couldn't determine the cause of death, but the vehicle crashing into a tree and the vehicle's occupants not wearing seat belts may have contributed to the deaths.

"I don't think it was probably due to a lack of control," Chamness said. "It may have been a lack of turning, the road was投入ad from a tree and black motorcyclist on a motorcycle's death."

Lozano, 31, was convicted of two counts of murder, and was sentenced to 15 years in prison for the deaths of the two men who died in the accident.

The driver had been driving a van with a passenger when he crashed into a tree, killing both occupants. Chamness said the driver was charged with second-degree murder and reckless driving, and was released on $300,000 bail.

Israel off the Dole?

Senator Bob Dole's controversial suggestion last week that the U.S. reduce a small percentage of funds to five nations hostile to Israel, including Pakistan, Turkey, Greece and Israel and give them instead to newly democratic nations in Eastern Europe presents the Dole administration with a tough decision as it stands on Capitol Hill, and precisely for that reason, he will never propose it.

Dole proposed that the U.S. cut off percent of the aid it supplies to Pakistan, Turkey, Greece and Israel and give the money instead to newly democratic nations in Eastern Europe because of their perceived lack of support. The decision, which is being weighed by the Dole administration, would be a strong blow to Israel, which has been a major recipient of U.S. aid. The Dole administration, which is considering the proposal, has not yet made a decision.

Japan to deport 378 Chinese

TORONTO — Japan will deport 378 Chinese who entered the country posing as Vietnamese refugees, bringing to 679 the number of people to be deported to China, the Justice Ministry said.

The deportations are the result of an investigation by the Immigration Bureau. The bureau said 400,000 Chinese have entered the country in the past five years in an attempt to avoid being deported by posing as Vietnamese refugees.

The deportations will be carried out in seven batches, with the first group of 50 to be deported tomorrow.

Central planning may topple economy in E. Germany

East Berlin — E. Germany's economy crumbled under a series of scandals in recent months, including a raging postal scandal and a massive misbranding of electronic products, a new government report showed.

The report, entitled "Gray Heart," was a scathing attack on the government's mismanagement of the economy and its failure to address the country's deepening economic problems.

The government has been under pressure to take action to address the crisis, and the report is expected to trigger a political crisis in the country.

WADSWORTH, Ohio — A man who killed two women for two years in a jealous rampage was sentenced today to life in prison without parole.

Robert Secord, 53, was sentenced by Judge Timothy Gerig to life in prison for the murders of his former wife, 41-year-old Carol Secord, and her 20-year-old daughter, 20-year-old Brandy Secord, in their Elyria home.

Secord admitted that he killed the women in a jealous rage after his ex-wife left him.

"I deeply regret not being more careful," Secord told U.S. District Court Judge Audrey Beijing. "If I could do it again, I certainly wouldn't do it the same way again."

Party ends as Gophers wait

Bruce Miller
The Daily Iowan

The celebration is over, or at least it should be. After all, Gopher hockey was the title game of the Minnesota State Fair and the central event of the Clearwater Arena Saturday afternoon. The fans had expected quite a lot.

It is not because one game is seen as a title. The win snapped a five-game losing streak and the Gopher's sixth straight loss. It is the first Minnesota victory in the Midwest Collegiate Hockey Tournament.

The game was a blowout of sorts, with the Gophers winning 6-0. The Michigan State University (MSU) Spartans entered the game with a record of 1-3, while Minnesota was 3-1. The Gophers were coming off a 3-3 tie with Wisconsin.

The Gophers had the better of the first period, scoring three goals in the first 15 minutes. The only goal for Michigan State was scored by Michigan State's Dave Friesen in the first period.

In the second period, the Gophers continued to dominate, scoring three more goals. One of the goals was scored by Gopher's left wing Mike Scherf. The final score of the game was 6-0.

The Gophers were able to control the game in the third period, and were never really threatened by the Spartans. The Gophers' victory was their first of the season, and their first in the Midwest Collegiate Hockey Tournament.

Grace: Iowa holds good memories

Ella Waiden
The Daily Iowan

Chicago-Chicago free thrower Mark Currie has gone his way through life. After all, Currie was the first African American to play for the Chicago Bulls in 1950. He is a man of many talents.

Currie was born in Chicago on March 19, 1929, and grew up playing basketball and baseball. He attended Chicago's Roosevelt High School, where he played both sports. Currie later attended DePaul University, where he played basketball for four years.

Currie was drafted by the Chicago Bulls in 1950, and played for the team for two seasons. He was the first African American to play in the NBA, and was known for his work ethic and his skills.

Currie's career was cut short by an injury in 1952, but he continued to play in the NBA for a short period of time. He later became a successful businessman, owning several businesses in Chicago.

Currie is the father of two children, and has two grandchildren. He has been involved in many community activities, and has been a mentor to many young people.

There's a chance that Grace will be at the University of Iowa, where he arrived in Iowa City in 1950. He was a member of the first African American basketball team at Iowa, and was a great influence on young people.

There's also a chance that Grace will be at the University of Iowa, where he arrived in Iowa City in 1950. He was a member of the first African American basketball team at Iowa, and was a great influence on young people.

Iowa

1. Iowa Cyclones let Manning, who won an Indiana high school scoring championship last year, go 14 of 16 in the top five in 3-pointers per game and 80 rebounds. Manning was the UWPII's leading scorer last year, averaging about 16.5 points per game and 10.5 rebounds.

2. The 1999-2000 season was the Iowa men's basketball team's 12th consecutive winning season, and the Hawkeyes are one of the few programs that have never won a national championship. They have had three NCAA titles and one Final Four appearance.

3. The Hawkeyes are the No. 3 ranked team in the nation, and they have a tough schedule coming up. They will play defending national champion Kansas in the Big Ten Conference.

Basketball

The two games weren't similar. In the first game, Iowa's point total was 70, while in the second game, Minnesota's point total was 130.

When the Gophers traveled to Iowa, they were 4-8 in the Big Ten Conference, while the Hawkeyes were 13-5.

Minnesota won the first game, 120-112. In the second game, the Hawkeyes won, 125-116. The Hawkeyes have never lost to the Gophers in the Big Ten Conference.

1. The Hawkeyes have the best defense in the Big Ten Conference. They have allowed only 60.1 points per game, ranking them third in the nation. They also have the best field goal percentage defense, allowing only 41.6%.

2. The Hawkeyes have the best rebounding defense in the Big Ten Conference. They have allowed only 23.3 rebounds per game, ranking them second in the nation.

3. The Hawkeyes have the best turnover percentage defense in the Big Ten Conference. They have forced 14.8 turnovers per game, ranking them third in the nation.

Gymnastics

In the senior class, both men and women will be finishing their college careers. The seniors will be competing for national titles.

When the seniors graduate, the Iowa men's gymnastics team will have won 16 national titles and 10 Big Ten Conference championships.

When the seniors graduate, the Iowa women's gymnastics team will have won 16 national titles and 10 Big Ten Conference championships.

When the seniors graduate, the Iowa men's and women's gymnastics teams will have won 32 national titles and 20 Big Ten Conference championships.

Iowa carries feet $15..

Iowa State University said against the Miami Heat.

Iowa's basketball team was guests of the LPGA Tour.

Elaine Scott, a spokeswoman for the LPGA Tour, was mugged and robbed in Miami.

Jan Stephenson's golfing career may be in jeopardy after she sustained a fractured left ring finger when she was mugged and robbed in Miami.

As she got out of her car in the Miami Arena parking lot before the game, Stephenson said an unknown man snatched a $1,000 Rolex watch, a ring and a pair of earrings and took her wedding ring.

The purse strap got caught on her left neck-retching exercise, then tried to rip her purse away.

Police said the man - identified as Kevin Scott, 42, of Miami - fled, but was taken into custody.

Colangelo said that after Stephenson had her right hand surgery on Christmas Day, a native Australian, joined the LPGA Tour in 1983, told reporters after Tuesday night's incident that she likely will undergo neck surgery after the season that she sustained a double fracture in her ring finger.

There will be a lot of Stephenson fans on Sunday.

Revised version of 'Chess' appears tonight at Hancher

The Daily Iowan

A brand new production of the 1989 show created by Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice and presented by the American Theatre Productions, "Chess" opened in London in 1986, where it was a major pop and critical hit. The Broadway version was unveiled in 1988. The American national tour of the hit production, directed by Tim Rice, and his American Theatre Productions, Mobile also produced several acclaimed musical productions that have appeared at Hancher in past years, including "All My Children," "Big River," and "Les Miserables.

"Chess" is a bittersweet, bittersweet, bittersweet, bittersweet, bittersweet rock musical about the Cold War, which became a top-five hit. "Chess" is the story of a love triangle between a bratty American, a Russian, and a Hungarian, and is set against the background of the Hungarian uprising of 1956, they fall into a love triangle that becomes a top-five hit. The show will come to Iowa City directly from its premiere in London, and it will be presented at 8 p.m. on February 20, and at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. on February 21. The show will also be presented at 8 p.m. on February 26, and at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m. on February 27, in Hancher Auditorium.

Tickets for "Chess" are $85, $65, and $45. Tickets are available at the Paramount Theatre Box Office. The box office is open 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday through Friday, and on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Smoking is not permitted in the Theatre. Pink Floyd may keep Expo out of Venice

VENICE, Italy (AP) — Even in this seaside city that allows the echoes of Venice's past to reverberate, the specter of Pink Floyd Rule might yet prevail.

A summer concert by the British rock band that began more than 40 years ago here in 1965 would make a fitting bookend to the 40th anniversary of a floating stage in the St. Mark's basin that grew to be the main stage of the city's annual carnival. It is being used as aanssonist in a battle to reverse the site of an international fair that promises to blight the city with commercialization.

The band's manager, Don Van Vliet, said Monday that Pink Floyd would return to Van Vliet for a third time in 2013, but only if there is no fair. The band's lead singer and songwriter, Syd Barrett, would have been 70 this year. He was a founder of the band, which was formed in 1965.

Pink Floyd's concert would be part of a 40th anniversary of the Venice carnival that has been held in the city's Grand Canal since 1965. It was started by local residents who were fascinated by the atmosphere of Venice and its floating stages.

The concert would feature science and culture. For the group's control, Van Vliet 7000 was "the right way to bring Venice into the new century," said a band member.

The concert will go on as in other years, but the site could attract new businesses and lead to the renaissance of local enterprises. The band's management has announced plans for the event, which has grown in scale each year.

The band has left Venice to the summer season, and to the Venetians. The city's fine art, music, and culture is the last month in August, and it will be the highlight of the annual carnival, which is held on the third Sunday of August.

The concert is expected to make its return in June.

For a city as dependent on outsiders, even Venice's arrival of tourists seems to have been the first and hope Venice is kept out of the 40th anniversary of the Venice carnival. The concert would be more than 25,000 people a day during the three-week run.

The now-announced Panorama reported that one study predicts a fair would attract more than 150,000 people a day during the three-month run.
It's eeze tuuse nu Canadean

TORTONO (AP) — You spell it easy, say speakers at the University of Iowa. It's for 'Canadyen,' which means Canadian.

The new pronunciation reflects a growing desire to call the whole thing off, language hater and activist Col. Probably wouldn't be able to work because it's embedded in the old-fashioned pronunciation.

The Iowa City School Board adopted last week the Recommendations of the International Union for the Canadian Languages, which campaign for referring English into Canada — as it says Caniadian — as an international language.

"If the battle is already won, and the war is over, what's left is just to win it and why? Why should change its name to "Torie An?"

He puts out regular newsletters and has started a small newspaper, The Iowa Tones, that has made it through three four-page issues.

"We say all our readers to show that the battle is won, opening again regular language, and to adopt the seven, national number language, an official calling for linguistic unity, and it is in every country," Culp said.

And, if you're thinking why a reformed English should be called "Canadian," well, say Col.

"All the other languages of the world are in a crisis," Col said. "When they're linked in a nation, it becomes any sense of the world. The years need an international language.

UI wins acting, costume competition

The Daily Iowan

Graduate students in the UI Department of Theatre Arts won the acting and costume design categories at the Midwest Collegiate Arts Festival (MCAF) Jan. 25-26 in Urbana.

As winners in Region V of ACTF, set designer Kaoime Novak will represent the university at the national festival, held in April at the John F. Kennedy Center for Performing Arts in Washington, D.C.

Novak was the first winner in the Iowa Regional Acting Competition, and her costume design was selected from a field of 150 entries representing six states and four countries in the Midwest.

Her piece will be part of the UI Theatre production of "Manon," and she will compete in the regional competition for the upcoming UI season.

Several other UI Department of Theatre Arts students were also invited to the regional competition.

A native of rural Iowan, 20-year-old student from Moline, Ill., and the UI Theatre department, was invited to the regional competition for the upcoming UI season. She will work on a production of "Manon" and on a production of the UI Theatre's production of "The Three Musketeers," which will be performed Feb. 26 through March 5, 1990.

Novak's costume design will be used in the production of the Midwest Collegiate Arts Festival (MCAF), which will be performed Feb. 26 through March 5, 1990.

"There's no such thing as a language that one can speak," said a graduate student at West Central University in St. Paul.

Malley won first place in the regional ACTF costume competition for the costumes that he fashioned in "A Midsummer Night's Dream," which opened the current season.
