Police await autopsy of local woman

Kelly David The Daily Iowan

The naked body of a 34-year-old Iowa City woman was found dead Sunday behind a wooded area in her yard.

The woman, Christine Sue Sandberg, No. 40 Showers Addition, was found by a male friend after he tried to phone her several times and received no answer, Iowa City Police Chief R. J. Winkelhake said.

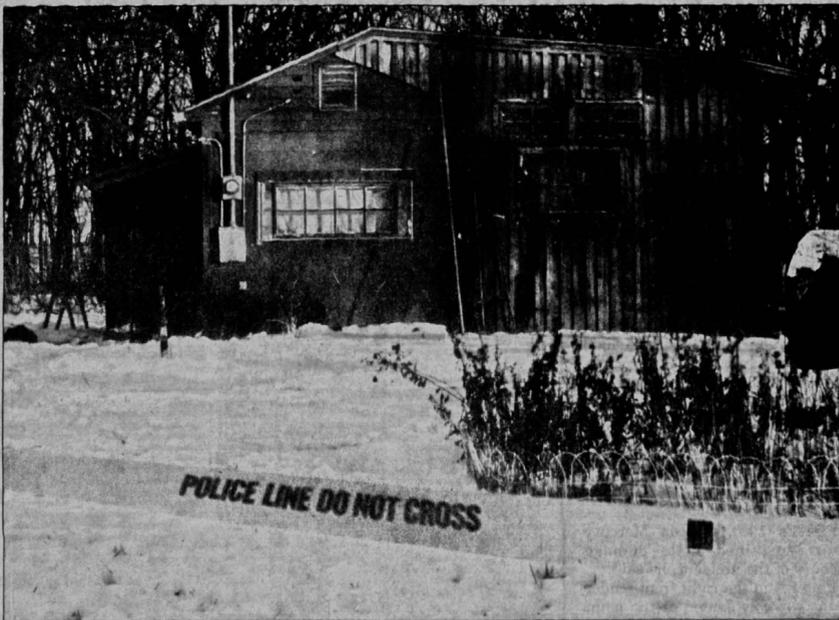

Sandberg, who lived alone and worked as a nurse's aid at the Veterans' Administration Hospital, Highway 6 West, was last seen Saturday morning. The death was reported to the Iowa City Police Department at about 5:45 p.m.

Neither the time she died nor the cause of her death has been determined, but there is no reason thus far to suspect foul play.

The body was not marked with obvious bruises, gunshot or knife wounds, Winkelhake said.

The results of an autopsy performed Monday are expected to be released today.

"(Our top priority is) to determine the cause of death," Winkelhake said. "The sooner the better, See Body, Page 4A

CAC audit to aid with guidelines

Audit will examine checks and balances

Ann Marie Williams The Daily Iowan

Results of an audit of UI student government will be released within the week, announced Collegiate Associations Council president Vernon McKinley at Monday's meeting.

Pete Husak, UI internal auditor, recently conducted the audits at the request of student government leaders, said McKinley, adding that the results should give added integrity to the Student Senate and CAC.

"The purpose is to make sure all the necessary checks and balances are there," McKinley said. "If there's anything wrong, it will be found."

McKinley said that when he came into office, he was concerned about the condition of the CAC books and called for an audit.

In addition, McKinley said this is a good time to have an audit considering the current restructuring of student government — and, he added, there is a real need to establish universal budgeting guidelines for student government.

"The Student Senate has a budget protocol, but the CAC does not," he said.

Mike Heller, CAC treasurer, explained that although the CAC has extensive funding guidelines, the audit will help the Budgeting Committee to specifically set a policy which will control the allocation of funds.

McKinley said he was looking forward to receiving the results of the audit, but added that it would have no effect on student groups seeking CAC funds.

"I have no idea what to expect," McKinley said. "But I think the audit is necessary."

In other CAC business, a resolution was passed to congratulate and thank the CAC Book Co-op on its status as a financially stable self-supporting entity.

The CAC Book Co-op will also be audited along with the other student government organizations.

The resolution acknowledged the Book Co-op director Krista Milani for her "successful efforts in developing the solid performance of the Co-op."

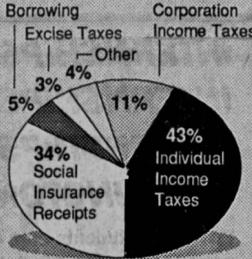

"It's time the Co-op be recognized," said CAC vice-president Kristi Holcomb, adding that the Co-op is now operating without CAC financial assistance.

The CAC also passed Monday a resolution commending the UI's observance of Martin Luther King Day.

President unveils 1991 budget proposal

Budget scales back defense spending

WASHINGTON (AP)—President George Bush on Monday sent Congress a $1.23 trillion budget for fiscal 1991 that keeps new spending below inflation and recognizes "remarkable changes" in the world by scaling back defense and rewarding emerging democracies.

Bush called the spending plan an "investment in the future." But Democratic leaders in Congress pounced on it as a "standpat budget" and challenged its claim to halve the federal deficit, to $63.1 billion.

Fights loomed with the Democratic-controlled Congress on a range of fronts: Bush's desire to cut Medicare and capital gains taxes, to close military bases he considers outmoded and, on the other hand, to preserve some expensive weapons.

Bush would increase spending on space, education, the environment and the war on drugs. Losers this year are Medicare, college student loans, farm subsidies, energy conservation grants and mass transit.

The president's budget for the fiscal year that begins October 1 calls for $36.5 billion in spending cuts and other deficit-reduction measures.

On the domestic front, his budget would leave in place the Social Security tax increase that took effect earlier this month. But it honors Bush's 1988 campaign pledge to propose no general tax increase.

Still, the budget recommends $15.6 billion in lesser tax increases and a $5.6 billion increase in user and service fees — most of them recycled from Reagan budgets and previously defeated in Congress.

The budget calls for "family savings" accounts under which families could bank up to $5,000 a year and pay no tax on interest on deposits held for seven or more years.

"With an eye toward future growth, and expansion of the human frontier, the budget's chief emphasis is on investment in the future," Bush said in a brief message to Congress accompanying the 1,569-page document.

But Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., called it a document of "low aspirations. . . . It predicts huge fiscal problems ahead and then goes on to propose no change in course."

And House Majority Leader Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., said, "I think it's a standpat budget" but he said lawmakers would "take it very seriously" rather than pronouncing it "dead on arrival" as Democrats had done with several Reagan budgets.

Bush's budget director, Richard Darman, opened the annual budget battle by proposing a truce. "We fully expect to negotiate with Congress over priorities," he told a briefing.

Bush's budget asserted it was meeting the $64 billion deficit target for fiscal 1991, under the

'Robin HUD' pleads guilty to embezzlement charges

BALTIMORE (AP)—A real-estate agent dubbed "Robin HUD" said Monday she tried to help as many poor people as she could before getting caught for embezzling at least $4.75 million in housing funds from the government.

Marilyn Louise Harrell smiled throughout a hearing in U.S. District Court, where she pleaded guilty to charges that she stole money from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and lied on her tax returns and to federal officials. Her trial was to have begun Monday.

"I thought I'd get caught a long time ago," Harrell, 46, said after the hearing. "I'm sorry for what I did. I figured I was history and would help as many (people) as I could before I went down."

Harrell, who claims she gave millions to charity because she is a born-again Christian, said she had decided to plead guilty as part of a plea agreement because she did not want to spend taxpayers' money on a trial.

She pleaded guilty to stealing government property and failing to report income for taxes. As part of the plea bargain, prosecutors dropped two other tax counts, two counts of lying to HUD officials, and one count of lying to a bank on a loan application.

But prosecutors say they do not believe her story that she gave most of the money to charity in the name of Christ.

Harrell confessed to government officials in December, 1988, and became a symbol of mismanagement at HUD under the Reagan administration when scandal erupted there last summer. After her indictment last November, U.S. Attorney General Richard Thornburgh called it the largest theft of federal funds by an individual.

"My assertion that she has been her own biggest charity will be fact" by April 20, the date she is to be sentenced, U.S. Attorney Breckinridge Willcox said after Monday's hearing.

Prosecutors say Harrell stole at least $6.6 million from HUD — money generated by sales of HUD properties that Harrell handled as a private escrow agent for the agency. Although prosecutors acknowledge that some of the money went to charity, they say much of it went to Harrell and her family.

Harrell said she has documents to prove that she took only $4.75 million and said that less than 6 percent of the money benefited her family. Prosecutors had said earlier that she had taken at least $5.6 million, but revised the figure

Monday after identifying six more properties for which she allegedly did not remit settlement proceeds.

As part of the plea agreement, prosecutors and Harrell will determine the exact amount of money she stole.

Prosecutors recommended a sentence ranging from 37 months to 46 months in prison. The two charges to which she pleaded guilty carry a maximum sentence of 13 years in prison and $500,000 in fines. Willcox said prosecutors would also recommend a fine but he said they had not yet determined how much they would recommend.

Group wants UI to teach of other cultures

Amy Davoux The Daily Iowan

Diversity is a fact of life — you can find it in the faces, places and personalities that make up the UI community. Yet some believe the UI curriculum is not giving this diversity the respect and attention it deserves.

The UI People of Color Course Committee believes a class in diversity needs to be incorporated into the UI curriculum as a requirement for each student, according to committee member Geneva Kachman.

The committee will hold a forum on February 13 so people can express their views about implementing such a program. The forum will run from 7 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. in the Union, Illinois Room.

Currently, suggestions include making the program a general education requirement or coordinating it into the rhetoric sequence.

Greg Kelly, committee member and president of the Black Student Union, indicated the committee prefers the rhetoric alternative rather than increasing the current GER levels.

Woman hit by car near UI library

Driver claims seeing her too late to avoid collision

Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

A woman was hit by a car Monday afternoon while crossing Madison Street near the Main Library. Eyewitnesses said the woman attempted to cross from the street's east side about 3:30 p.m. but was hit by a southbound car and knocked to the curb on the street's West side.

The driver of the car, UI senior David Pinter, said there were a number of pedestrians stopped in the middle of the street near the Communications Center. After passing by them, traveling about five miles an hour, he did not see the woman in the library crosswalk and hit her, he said.

"There were people trying to cross before and they had stopped," Pinter said. "It's like you're out there playing a game of cat and mouse. There's no crosswalk light or anything."

Pinter said when he saw the woman it was too late to avoid hitting her and all he could do was put on his brakes. The woman was knocked about five feet to the curb as a result of the contact but did not appear seriously injured, he said.

Pinter's 1981 maroon Mercury Capri sustained little damage because of the accident, he said.

Pinter said the right front fender of the car was dented at the point of impact. A cracked windshield and broken hood grill occurred prior to the accident, he said.

A bystander, UI junior Rick Baker, said the accident was unavoidable and that Pinter skidded to a stop to avoid the woman.

"She was trying to beat him across the street, but she couldn't beat him across," Baker said.

The victim's name was not released Monday afternoon, pending notification of her family.

Pizza delivery man robbed at gunpoint

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

A UI student was robbed at gunpoint by two masked men while he was delivering pizzas to Pizza Pit Sunday night.

The driver was accosted at 10:45 p.m. in the 600 block of south Van Buren St. by the two men who forced him to give them $28.75 in cash and the pizzas he was delivering.

One of the men threatened him with a silver-colored handgun.

The driver then called Pizza Pit, 214 E. Market St., from a friend's nearby apartment. A Pizza Pit employee then reported the robbery to the Iowa City Police Department. "(The driver) was kind of shook up," said Pizza Pit owner Jim Wirig.

An Iowa City police officer saw two men in the area who fit the description given by the driver but no charges have been filed, Iowa City Police Chief R. J. Winkelhake said.

One suspect was described as a black male about 6 feet 2 inches tall with a thin build and short dark hair. He was wearing a calf-length dark wool coat and covered his face with a dark scarf.

The suspect who was carrying the gun was described as a black male about 5 feet 11 inches tall with a medium build. He was wearing a gray or light-colored waist-length nylon jacket and covered his head with a cloth hood in which holes had been cut for the eyes. Pizza Pit delivery drivers are instructed on how to respond to robberies, Wirig said.

"This is the first time this has ever happened," he said. "We do take precautions but we can never be 100 percent sure," he said.

One precaution is taken by limiting the amount of cash drivers can carry with them.

"The amount stolen is indicative of how we try to keep the least amount of money on our drivers as possible," he said.

Police expect to interview several people in connection with the robbery, Winkelhake said.

Courts

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

Two Coralville men were charged Monday with second-degree burglary and second-degree theft after they allegedly entered a motor home and robbed a local business, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Terry D. Smith, 22, 504 First Ave. Apt. 2, and Keith A. Stanfield, 21, 505 First Ave., allegedly stole items valued at $530 from vehicles at Hora Automotive, 1640 West Highway 1, according to court records.

The two were apprehended when police officers pulled over their vehicle as they were leaving Hora Automotive. The stolen property was found in the car, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for February 6 for Smith and February 10 for Stanfield, according to court records.

Smith is being held in the Johnson

County Courthouse on $7,600 bond, and Stanfield has been released, according to court records.

An Iowa City husband and wife were charged with two counts of possession of a controlled substance Thursday after police officers found cocaine and marijuana in their residence, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The defendants, John C. Hanson, 28, and Gloria Gomez-Espinoza Hanson, 20, 321 Finkbine Lane, reportedly called the police to report strangers on their property. When police officers arrived, they found the husband in an excited state holding a hunting rifle, according to court records.

Investigation revealed the couple had allegedly been using cocaine. Police discovered cocaine and marijuana in the house after both Hansons had given them permission to search the residence, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is scheduled for February 13, according to court records.

A North Liberty man was charged with going armed with intent and two counts of assault causing injury Friday after he allegedly attacked his children and wife with a six-inch butcher knife, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Tu Le, 53, 105 Hickory Street, reportedly beat his wife and then waved the knife at his children as he was hitting them, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for February 6, according to court records.

Le was taken to the Johnson County Jail on $11,100 bond, according to court records.

A Coralville man was charged with assault causing injury Monday after he allegedly struck his girlfriend in the nose with an open hand, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Gerald B. Moore, 46, Coral Trailer Park, Lot C-7, was put in the custody of the Department of Corrections, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for February 13, according to court records.

A Waterloo, Iowa, man was charged with fourth-degree criminal mischief and assault causing injury Monday after he allegedly slapped a woman he was arguing with, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Joseph T. Farmer, 24, 125 Lincoln St., was reportedly kicked out of the apartment after he slapped the woman. He then punched the apartment door, causing a fist-size hole, according to court records.

Farmer told police he will continue to make the victim "pay," according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for February 13, according to court records.

Committee votes to aid hunters

DES MOINES (AP) — A House committee Monday approved a bill prohibiting animal rights activists from harassing hunters and chasing away animals.

Committee members argued about who could use the outdoors and what constitutes hunting.

The 25-member Natural Resources Committee approved the bill 13-6, sending it to the full House and a questionable future.

Opponents of the bills said they were concerned about the potential for violent confrontation if animal rights activists interfere with hunters.

"One of these times we're going to see violence because of anti-hunter activity," said Rep. Phil Tyrrell, R-North English, floor manager of the bill.

"It's always been my fear that one of them would get shot and killed, and the news media would make a big deal out of it," Tyrrell said. "Hunters would get one more black eye."

Supporters said the bill would give hunters preferential treatment over sightseers and nature lovers who like to roam the woods.

Rep. Deo Koenigs, D-McIntire, said those arguments miss the point — which he says is that most problems in the woods involve hunters who fight over who gets the best spot.

"I've had problems with hunters fighting among themselves about who was going to hunt there," Koenigs said. "In that case, both sides have guns."

The bill would call for up to 30 days in jail for people who harass people legally hunting or fishing.

"I think hunters more than anything else want to call attention to the seriousness of the situation," said Tyrrell.

He said there have been instances where animal rights activists have headed into the woods in front of hunters, making noise to chase away animals.

"We've had some instances of anti-hunters ... chasing ducks off ponds and chasing deer out of the timber," Tyrrell said.

Mismanagement cited in late payments by state

DES MOINES (AP) — State payments to hospitals, poor people and schools have been delayed because of Gov. Terry Branstad's "pure and simple mismanagement," a state legislator said Monday.

"I have lost patience with the governor," said Rep. Tom Jochum, D-Dubuque, chairman of the House Appropriations Committee. "There is no excuse for these delayed payments."

At a Statehouse news conference, Jochum said he has learned of more delayed state aid payments. Late last year state aid payments to schools were delayed, forcing many schools to borrow to keep running.

Jochum said he has since learned that payments for Iowa's basic welfare program, Aid to Families with Dependent Children, and for hospitals caring for Medicaid patients also have been delayed.

Those payments, as much as $7 million, were delayed despite a budget surplus.

"The governor may not feel that $100,000 in late ADC payments amounts to much when compared to a $3 billion budget," Jochum said. "But it's a whole month's income for 300 families who cannot afford to heat their homes or clothe their children without it."

The heart of the dispute between Democratic legislative leaders and Republican Branstad is a state program where officials routinely borrow money to pay bills. Last year Branstad announced that he would not borrow money this year. Democrats say that is the reason the payments are late.

Branstad aides rejected the charges, saying delays in state payments were minimal, amounting to no more than a matter of days.

Branstad spokesman Richard Vohs questioned Jochum's motives.

"He is just injecting more politics into the session at a time when we don't need it," Vohs said.

Jochum said the delay not only hit at poor people and hospitals — particularly struggling rural hospitals — but cost local property taxpayers, because the short-term borrowing it forced was financed by local governments.

"This is pure and simply mismanagement by the governor," said Jochum.

'I had the cash'

Former drug agent gave relatives large loans with no repayment planned

DES MOINES (AP) — Relatives of former drug agent Dennis Harker testified Monday that he gave them large amounts of cash during the same time West Des Moines businesswoman Susan Terry is accused of trying to evade a federal banking law and conceal $160,000 that he provided to her business.

Harker's father, his father-in-law, his wife's sister and her husband said they received one-time loans, two of them with no arrangements of repayment, and all said they accepted Harker's explanation that he dealt in cash because of his electronics business in Mexico.

"I asked why he didn't send a check," said Harker's father-in-law, Glenn Tyler, who received $50,000. "He said, 'Oh, I had the cash.'"

Susan Terry is charged with three counts of trying to avoid a federal law requiring banks to report cash deposits of more than $10,000 and one count of conspiring to avoid the law.

Terry is accused of "structuring" deposits of cash from Harker so they would be made in amounts of less than the $10,000 reporting limit. Harker pleaded guilty to evading income taxes on about $1 million that he obtained in 1986 and 1987 and to a charge of failing to turn over money seized in narcotics raids.

Tyler said he received the loan to build a garage for garbage trucks in his trash business, Tyler Refuse Co. of Des Moines.

"He said he'd loan it to me at one percent less than what I could get it for at the bank," Tyler said. Tyler's daughter, Mary Harker, pleaded guilty to tax evasion.

Tyler said he got $15,000 and $35,000 in cash, the first amount in the mail and the rest in a visit to Harker's former home in Laredo, Texas.

Tyler said he kept the cash in a home safe, using it as needed during construction. He said he deposited $9,900 and was told by a bank teller that if he broke the $10,000 limit, the bank would have to make out a report to the government.

He said he asked his daughter how he should deposit the money and she said, "Dad, put it in any way you want to."

Harker's brother-in-law Dan Miller testified that Harker sent him and his wife, Lori, $60,000 to buy a farm adjoining the Miller's farm near Wever, which is between Fort Madison and Burlington. Miller said his family rents the land from Harker.

Lori Miller said Harker agreed to buy the land "as an investment and to help us." The Millers testified that drought over the last three years hurt their farm. They said Harker gave them a $10,000 loan, by check, with no arrangements for repayment. Harker also waived the rent on the land in 1989.

"He said if you can't pay it, we'll take care of it some other time," Miller said.

The Millers said they did not know about the $10,000 reporting law and deposited the $15,000 and $45,000 bundles of cash without breaking it down to smaller amounts.

Harker's father, Marion Harker of West Des Moines, said his son lent him $10,000 to fix up the interior of a house that the elder Harker was considering buying in Texas. There were no arrangements for repayment and the elder Harker, retired after 38 years with the U.S. Postal Service, said he still has the money.

Diversity

"I think if the University of Iowa were to establish something like this it would further establish them as an academic innovator," he said.

The committee wants to change the mandatory rhetoric sequence so that all sections focus on diversity, according to the committee's literature.

"We believe reading, writing, and speaking, and the issues surrounding diversity, are so entwined there is no separating them out," committee literature states. "We believe this 'separating out' would, and does, occur in history, social sciences, and humanities courses."

Kachman said the committee initially looked toward the rhetoric department because its structure is well suited to these issues.

"There are discussions in which everybody can participate, as well as assignments including persuasion and argument papers in which students can look at their own views," she said.

Kelly said he would like to see the diversity course focus on issues involving all major ethnic groups in the U.S., including the African-American, Native American, Asian-American and Latino cultures.

"People of color get tired of having to learn about other people and not having others learn about them; it is as if their contributions to history weren't as important," Kelly said.

Committee member Sharon Hernandez-Dorow said she also believes people of color need more exposure to the successes of their own culture through education.

"As a person of color, I know that all of our heroes have been stripped from the history books; we need these heroes," she said.

"I think it's the reason lots of colored people drop out of school. They think, 'No one else has made it, why should I?'" she said. "The American melting-pot is sort of a myth... whoever didn't fit a certain mold, their history was stripped."

Kachman said the diversity curriculum could be implemented in the rhetoric department with course-packs containing readings from different cultures.

She said there may be some initial opposition to the program, but if the program is implemented with broad limitations on its content, it could succeed.

"I think there must be some variation and experimentation with the course content before any specifics are established," Kachman said.

Hernandez-Dorow said, "We've got struggles ahead of us... possibly some tears or bloodshed, but we are willing to fight."

Kelly said much of the committee's inspiration was taken from other American universities who have similar, successful programs, such as Stanford, University of California at Berkeley, and the University of Michigan.

The Liberal Arts Student Association also indicated interest in implementing a new GER which would encompass culture, ethnicity, gender and sexual orientation awareness in a recent bulletin.

They said they will not expect this addition to increase the current number of GER hours required.

Budget

Gramm-Rudman budget balancing law, "with specific and defensible measures — and without gimmicks."

However, critics claimed the administration's prescription for getting the budget deficit down to $63.1 billion — from a projected $123.8 billion this year — does rely on accounting gimmicks.

"They continue to jimmy the figures," said Sen. Ernest Hollings, D-S.C., "It's another fraud."

For one thing, Bush's budget uses an optimistic set of economic projections that assume both declining interest rates and falling inflation. The budget also calls for overall growth this year of 2.4 percent — compared to the 1.7 percent forecast by private forecasters and the Congressional Budget Office.

The government's most recent figures showed economic growth slowed to an annual rate of 0.5 percent during the last three months of 1989.

"Obviously, the slowdown in the fourth quarter makes everybody nervous," Treasury Secretary Nicholas Brady conceded.

Bush recycled many proposals which did not reach enactment in 1989 — a tightening of the Clean Air Act, a reduction in the capital gains tax rate, a $3,000 tax credit for adoptions, tax breaks for child care and more money for fighting crime and drugs.

The most dramatic element of the budget was the scaleback in defense.

Propelled by relaxed East-West tensions, the Pentagon budget calls for a reduction of 38,000 troops and closing dozens of military bases. It was the most restrained defense budget submitted by the White House in more than a decade.

"Remarkable changes have occurred during the past year. The Berlin Wall has been opened and democratic forces are on the move in Eastern Europe," Bush said. "As a result, savings in the defense budget are now possible."

Bush said defense and international policy "must take advantage of the opportunities provided" by these changes.

However, claiming Soviet military capability "will remain formidable, even after announced reductions," Bush said he was proposing a military budget that would allow the nation "to hedge against an uncertain future."

His plan calls for five costly new B-2 stealth bombers, another $1 billion Trident submarine and funds for two controversial intercontinental nuclear missile systems. He also called for an additional $900 million for the Strategic Defense Initiative, known as Star Wars.

House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., said defense spending will be a crucial battleground and predicted Congress would make "larger reductions" than Bush proposed.

The president's budget calls for a $3 billion increase in outlays for foreign aid, to $14.2 billion. It calls for $300 million in special assistance "for those countries in Eastern Europe that are moving toward democracy" and another $200 million for the Philippine government of Corazon Aquino.

It also requests $270 million in outlays for the Andean countries of Colombia, Peru and Bolivia to help stem the international flow of drugs.

The administration renewed its call for a lower capital gains tax, proposing that 30 percent of assets held for more than three years be exempt from the tax. The measure was similar to a proposal that passed the House but was blocked by filibuster in the Senate last year that would lower the effective rate of the tax — on real estate, stocks and other assets — to 19.6 percent.

Currently, capital gains are taxed at the same rate as other income — 15 percent, 28 percent or 33 percent.

The administration did not embrace a proposal by Sen. Daniel Moynihan, D-N.Y., to provide a $62 billion cut in Social Security taxes this year and next.

small town in southern Maryland, said she has prepared herself for imprisonment since 1985, when she started diverting HUD funds.

"I really truthfully consider it an honor to give up years of my life to help some of the people I've helped," she said.

Asked if she would mind being imprisoned, Harrell responded: "No, not at all. A lot of my friends and former employees are ex-offenders, and they're fine people. They're nice people."

Harrell appeared relaxed at the hearing before U.S. District Judge Herbert Murray.

When asked by Murray how she felt, Harrell replied, "Terrific, your honor."

Supporters who said they had benefited from Harrell's largesse attended the hearing. One held up a giant card, decorated with balloons, reading, "Marilyn, We're Remembering You."

Charlotte Chepaitis, who said she runs a Baltimore homeless shelter, said Harrell helped provide incidentals for the facility, but declined to give details. "Jesus said to do your alms in secret, and that's just what Sister Marilyn did," Chepaitis said.

"And like Jesus said, she cried out today for forgiveness. Now there are millions praying for her."

Bush said defense and international policy "must take advantage of the opportunities provided" by these changes.

Detained Lockheed workers back in U.S.

MARIETTA, Ga. — Three Lockheed engineers detained in the North African country of Chad for 20 days have returned home to Georgia, the company said.

Lockheed officials said the three employees arrived by private plane Saturday and were met by relatives.

"As far as Lockheed is concerned, the book is closed and we will have no further comment on the situation," spokesman Dick Martin said in a statement Monday from Lockheed's Marietta plant.

The three engineers — Irving Thrash, Marvin Gambill and Ernest Ruse — were held at police barracks in N'Djamena for 10 days starting January 5 for destroying a technical manual for two C-130 aircraft the Chad government purchased from Lockheed. The men said they were not licensed to export the manual.

Lockheed arranged with the State Department for an export license and brought a new copy of the manual to give to Chad authorities.

The men were confined at a hotel until they left the country Thursday.

Rifle mailed to federal prosecutor

NEW YORK — A sawed-off .22-caliber rifle, loaded and set to go off, was delivered Monday to an assistant U.S. attorney who prosecutes drug cases, authorities said.

A briefcase containing the gun was delivered by mail to the Brooklyn federal courthouse office of Catherine Palmer, an experienced prosecutor who has investigated major Asian heroin drug traffickers.

"It could have killed the person opening it," said Andrew Maloney, the U.S. attorney for the Eastern District of New York.

The briefcase had not been considered suspicious when it arrived at Palmer's office. The gun was disarmed by federal agents working with the prosecutor on another case, authorities said.

"They happened to be there and opened the package. . . I think it was more luck than anything that it didn't go off," Maloney said.

Emergency measures rescinded in Haiti

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti — The military government lifted the state of siege in Haiti and rescinded other emergency measures Monday night, state television announced.

The decree said the measures had "produced their full effect and permitted the settlement of the crisis which threatened the future of Haitian democracy."

Three banished critics of the government shrugged off the action, saying free elections on this impoverished Caribbean island remain an impossibility under the military leadership.

A 30-day state of siege was declared January 20 to put an end to "subversive machinations," President Avril told the nation last Saturday night.

The government had also suspended four articles of the Constitution, including those that prohibited exiling opponents and limited to civil war and invasion the conditions under which a state of siege could be decreed.

NASA sets new shuttle launch schedule

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — NASA announced Monday it is shuffling its space shuttle launch schedule, reducing from 10 to nine the number of flights this year and aiming for 12 flights in 1992 and 13 in 1993.

The new 1990 schedule reflects a delay in two of the first three missions and a shifting of some flight priorities.

The dropped 1990 flight, that of a Strategic Defense Initiative payload, was put off nearly 14 months until January 1992. No specific reason was given for the long delay.

This year's schedule originally listed nine flights, but was increased to 10 when a planned December launch of Columbia was delayed into January. That flight, launched January 9, deployed a communications satellite and retrieved a long-orbiting science laboratory.

Hazelwood will have his day in court in Alaska

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — Attorneys for former Exxon Valdez skipper Joseph Hazelwood lost another bid on Monday to have charges against him dismissed on the opening day of his trial in the nation's worst oil spill.

"I feel that this show should not go on, at least not here," Hazelwood attorney Dick Madson said in arguing that the New York seaman should have been charged under federal rather than state law.

Hazelwood, 43, was the captain of the Exxon Valdez when the tanker ran aground March 24, spilling nearly 11 million gallons of North Slope crude oil into Prince William Sound.

He faces a felony charge of criminal mischief and misdemeanor charges of operating a vessel while intoxicated, reckless endangerment and negligent discharge of oil. If convicted on all counts, he faces up to seven years and three months in prison and $61,000 in fines.

Superior Court Judge Karl Johnstone denied Madson's motion for dismissal of the charges, saying it lacked substance. Earlier defense efforts to get the indictment against Hazelwood dismissed also failed.

Madson said federal law prevails to guarantee consistent rules from port to port regardless of which state a vessel is in.

"Federal laws and regulations have covered this field for 200 years, and there's a good reason for it," he said.

Hazelwood sat in the courtroom as Johnstone dealt with preliminary matters for 90 minutes before instructing attorneys to spend the rest of the day examining standard, three-page questionnaires completed by prospective jurors.

Johnstone said he expects jury selection to take less than the two weeks attorneys in the case predicted.

Still pending is a defense motion to keep from evidence the results of a blood-alcohol test that Hazelwood failed about 10 hours after the tanker struck Bligh Reef.

About 90 people have been summoned as candidates for the 12-member jury.

The questionnaire for jurors includes questions about experience with vessels, work in the oil and fishing industries, familiarity with the oil spill and personal economic loss or gain tied to the spill.

Mobil Oil fined for 2 ruptures that dumped crude into river

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mobil Oil Corp. was fined $4,500 on Monday and placed on two years' probation for two pipeline ruptures that poured more than 130,000 gallons of crude oil into the Los Angeles River and city sewers.

The fine imposed by Municipal Court Commissioner Joseph Spada was the maximum permitted for two misdemeanor charges, to which Mobil pleaded no contest in December.

A restitution hearing was scheduled March 6.

The first pipeline break occurred Sept. 10, 1988, in the suburban Encino area and sent 90,000 gallons of crude oil onto city streets. The oil eventually flowed into sewers and the Los Angeles River.

The second break occurred 17 days later as the pipeline was being repaired.

The line carries 2.6 million gallons of oil daily from Kern County oil fields to Mobil's Torrance refinery.

Temperature changes in the oil caused the pipeline to corrode and rupture the first time, said Deputy City Attorney Vincent Sato, adding there was no indication of negligence.

Mobil attorney Ernest Getto said at the time of the no contest plea that the company had revised its monitoring procedures and had begun replacing older sections of the pipeline.

City Attorney James Hahn wants Mobil to pay for the cleanup. Only two restitution claims were filed by Monday — a Fire Department bill for more than $200,000 and a $17,000 state Department of Fish and Game bill.

The police, city Department of Animal Control and county Flood Control District have yet to complete claims.

Hurricane Hugo leaves S. Carolina's residents looking for good lawyers

CHARLESTON, S.C. (AP) — In the days after Hurricane Hugo smashed into South Carolina, people needed ice, food and clothing. Later, they needed carpenters and building supplies.

Now, many coastal residents find they need a good lawyer.

In the wake of disputes over rental agreements, insurance payments and building repairs, South Carolina's judicial system is bracing for an expected influx of cases stemming from the killer hurricane.

And with the courts already overburdened by a backlog of criminal cases, there is concern that Hugo-related cases will further bog down the system.

"Somebody is bound to not be happy out there," said Louis Rosen, director of the state Office of Court Administration. "It's one of those factors that will make a bad situation worse."

Hugo, which came ashore at Charleston on September 21, caused an estimated $5.9 billion in property damage, making it the most damaging hurricane to hit the U.S. mainland. The storm was named for 29 deaths in South Carolina alone.

People are speculating that a storm of that extent of damage will raise construction disputes and insurance disputes," said Rosen, whose office oversees the flow of litigation through the court system.

But the Hugo cases will not really have an impact before summer, he said.

"You have to look a year after the fact," Rosen explained. "Even after a person thinks he may be engaged in a legal dispute, it takes some time to consult an attorney and look into it."

People with small claims will probably end up in magistrate courts, which can handle cases involving amounts of less than $2,500, Rosen said.

But bigger cases — insurance settlements and contracting disputes — will probably be more complicated and have to be settled in common pleas courts.

In the days after the storm, the South Carolina Bar offered free legal advice at the Disaster Assistance Centers established by the Federal Emergency Management Agency.

Volunteer attorneys fielded thousands of calls and questions, although there is no estimate on how many people received legal advice, said Eve Stacey of the bar staff.

But the questions raised may give an indication of the types of lawsuits that may follow.

Among the questions were concerns about landlord-tenant relations, damage caused by trees and structures from an adjoining property, houses washed across property and insurance disputes over what was flood damage and what was wind damage.

"I can see a lot of those as potential actions," Stacey said in a recent interview.

Many disputes over what a tenant was liable to pay when his or her home was damaged in the storm have already been addressed in magistrate courts, said Donna Taylor, an attorney with Neighborhood Legal Services in Charleston.

"They were handled at the magistrate's level and were handled right then," she said. "It was one of the times when the system operated well. If we had to wait to go to circuit court, people would have been homeless or penniless."

Down the road, she said, "The courts are going to be flooded with suits stemming from insurance claims — the insurers' failure to pay the extent of the policy."

SOUTH AFRICA

Clarity long overdue

South African President F.W. de Klerk is expected to outline his plan for government reform Friday, and he has much explaining to do. Amidst rumors about where his intentions lie, he must clear the air and make his policy known — for too long, the international press and South Africans themselves have had to guess where de Klerk is going.

De Klerk has gone on the record that he intends to dismantle apartheid, the official policy of racial segregation. He has said he will see that Nelson Mandela, president of the outlawed African National Congress, is freed.

However, he hasn't said when — and this is typical of the way things are going.

Unidentified sources told The Associated Press on Monday that Mandela may not be released until as late as March because the government is concerned about the possibility of violent clashes between blacks and ultra-right wing whites — especially after recent protests against a touring British cricket team.

Other sources, unnamed, indicated that de Klerk won't allow the ANC to be legalized, at least not now, presumably for the same reasons.

Sources close to Mandela insist he will stay in prison until there are significant changes in government policy. "If and when he is released and there have been no major changes, then he will report back to his organization that three years of talks have been a waste of time," said Dullah Omar, a friend of the Mandelas.

Mandela has reportedly been advising de Klerk on how to quell racial unrest and negotiate the tricky waters of change; the president insists that their talks have proven fruitful. But what exactly has been said remains a mystery.

The cruel injustice of apartheid makes violent revolution almost a foregone conclusion for South Africa, unless de Klerk can diffuse the hostility of whites and blacks. This he certainly cannot do without, at the very least, making his intentions known.

De Klerk has maintained all along that the problem facing South Africa won't be solved by violent revolution. "For if this Armageddon takes place — and blood flows ankle deep in our streets and four or five million people lie dead — the problem will remain exactly the same as before the shooting started," the Sunday Times quoted him as saying.

De Klerk is right about the stakes in South Africa, and the futility of bloodshed; the challenge facing de Klerk is no less than avoiding apocalyptic violence in his country. But unless he delivers justice to the 28 million blacks disenfranchised by apartheid, delivers it soon, and delivers it on a declared schedule, that bloody day will come. Making his plans clear for the future of Nelson Mandela would be a good start.

Friday, the world will be watching to see if he can elicit sufficient compromise from both sides to avoid horrific bloodshed. More than that, the world will be watching to see if de Klerk even has a workable proposal in mind for peaceful change.

COURTS AND RACE

Loaded accusations

Issues of race have become so loaded that the fear of being called racist can sometimes overrule common sense. This could not be more clearly demonstrated by a recent court ruling here in Iowa.

On Thursday, the Iowa Court of Appeals ruled that a black man should retain his parental rights and be granted custody of his mulatto daughter, who had been living in a foster home since a fire had destroyed the house where she and her half-sister had lived with their white mother.

The father, who was identified only as "J.L." and who is not married to the mother, subsequently accused the state of racism and filed suit. Although the court ruled that there was no evidence of racism by state agencies, it said the child should be returned to her natural father.

"We recognize we must demand sensitivity to racial and cultural differences by the state when it works on family issues," said Judge Rosemary Sackett, who wrote the majority opinion. The majority agreed with the father that if his mulatto daughter was raised by white foster parents, she would lose her racial identity.

Certainly racial identity is an important factor in a case such as this. The child has a black father and white mother, but her skin color causes her to appear more black than white. If deciding the case solely on the basis of the child's developing racial identity, it would undoubtedly be better to place her with her black natural father.

But the court ignored the father's desperate inability to care properly for a child. Social workers requested the child not be placed with her natural father because he had a history of drug and alcohol abuse and a violent temper, and has been unable to hold a steady job. The court ignored these factors and decided the case on qualities of race alone.

The crux of a child custody decision should be the qualifications of the guardians. Racial identity, while sometimes an important deciding factor, is a minor issue when compared to the physical well-being of the child. The court discarded common-sense and their responsibility to the safety of a minor to avoid a decision that would appear racially biased.

They may have protected their own reputations; but they did nothing for the child, whose interests should have come first.

Washington deserved Barry

When the late John Mitchell compared the D.C. government to the Amos 'n' Andy Taxicab Co., it now seems clear he grievously libeled the Kingfish and Knights of the Mystic Sea Lodge.

A week ago Thursday night, in a delicious scene, our bimbo-crazy, coke-happy mayor was lured by a sweetie to a downtown hotel where he performed magnificently for the candid cameras of the FBI, pipe-smoking crack cocaine. As laughter reverberated around the world, the Sunday editorial page of Dame Katharine Graham's Washington Post archly intoned: "Certainly there is not the slightest cause in this to question the city's basic capacity for self-rule."

Can you stand it, brothers and sisters?

Coming around to the view that the poltroon they visited upon us should step down, the Post invited us to look to Barry's court at city hall with hope: The mayor "would leave good people in place in the upper reaches of the city administration, who would run the city until the next election. Their professional presence is part of the legacy and evidence of the good (Marion Barry) has done."

Comforting thought, until one reads the lead story in Monday's Washington Times: "Drug use among District employees is epidemic and involves some of the city's highest-ranking officials as both users and dealers, according to law enforcement authorities."

"Some of us have actually seen a few of the people in charge here snorting cocaine at their desks," said an employee.

Which explains a lot. This one the can't blame on Old Dutch. A conservative in D.C. has all the influence of an Armenian in Baku. What Washington, D.C., today represents is the end result of America's decades-long urban experiment in secular humanism and liberal politics.

Everything the Left has preached we practice here. Our public schools long ago embraced the ACLU-NEA dogma: busing, teachers' union, an end to the track system, an iron prohibition against religious training and moral instruction. We did it all in the Secular City. And, our schools are among America's worst, hellholes of crime and drugs, where teachers are terrified and test scores lag behind a national average that is years behind the Western average.

Where the churches, black and white, once preached salvation, the necessity of living a Christian life, most are now given over to that degenerate form of Protestantism known as the Social Gospel. All the preachers are into politics. And, among their congregations, divorce, drugs, crime and abortion are rampant, and two-thirds of the black kids are born out of wedlock. But the preachers have clout at city hall, and isn't that what the New Testament is all about?

Liberalism's answer? More government. But we are saturated in government. Though D.C. occupies only 64 square miles, it has 46,000 employees. Though the city is rich, its taxes are exorbitant and D.C. is handed by Congress almost $1,000 a year for every man, woman and child, garbage collection is episodic, snow removal is done by Mother Nature, and anyone who goes down to get a car inspected or a license renewed comes home with a horror story. The schools don't work, the courts don't work, the prisons don't work, the ambulances don't work. Send a check to D.C. and expect it to be outstanding for months. One lady, returning from Bonn, says the big difference she experienced is our axle-busting potholes.

We are first in narcotics, first in murder, second only to San Francisco in AIDS cases per capita. We have gay rights laws, civil rights laws, racial set-asides, affirmative action and quotas, and race relations are as poisonous as anywhere in America.

Black militants on radio talk shows and in local politics keep the pot boiling. They are pandered to by guilt-besotted white liberal journalists, who soothe their always agitated social consciences by massaging the city's persecution complex.

Before Thursday (perhaps after), Mayor Barry could have routed any white in America for re-election, which speaks volumes about the character of this city and the mindset of its people.

The Washington Post notwith-

tanding, after two decades it is self-evident that D.C. is not ready for self-government. Yet, today, the Democratic Party is deriding that D.C., 5 percent of the size of Rhode Island, be made a state, so that Jesse Jackson, who OSicked races in South Carolina, where he was born, and in Illinois, where he lived, can be given an affirmative action chair in the U.S. Senate. And, the Republican Party is too fearful of being branded racist to condemn this absurdity for what it is: a corruption of the Constitution.

But there are touches of poetic justice. Jilted by the Post after a torrid affair, Mayor Barry in 1987 decided to place in Georgetown, down the street from Katharine's manse, in the old Hurt Home for the Blind, a "mental health facility" for 40 "emotionally disturbed youth." The home is across the street from Montrose Park, where the NIMBY (Not In My Back Yard!) liberal matrons like to air their Yorkies and Jack Russell terriers. On a clear day, you can still hear the howls of the Georgetown trendies, so titillated years ago by the idea of a "black militant" at city hall, all the way to McLean, Virginia.

The cure for the ills of democracy is more democracy. Al Smith used to say. He was wrong. Given freedom, a corrupt people will choose a corrupt government every time. Thirty years ago, D.C. was a terrific town, black and white; today, it is a corrupt city; it voted three times for Marion Barry; it deserved him, and it deserves Jesse Jackson, to whom the cry of "Save us! Save Us!" is already going out.

Prevailing winds

To the Editor:

[Last weekend] I enjoyed every moment of "All the President's Men" on TV — this despite its three-hour length and impenetrable twistiness, my ignorance of the vanished political figures involved... and the constant, infernal clackety-clack of all that typing in the background. When Watergate broke in the summer of '72, I was going on seven years old. My first political memory is watching Nixon resign on TV.

Although [Watergate] occurred nearly two decades ago, I was riveted by this film. Two junior Washington Post reporters expose a galaxy of political scandals and precipitate the toppling of an administration. An exciting story, inspiring admiration for journalists and the vital necessity of their profession. The Post's exposure of Watergate, and the appearance of the film a few years later, must have triggered an explosion in journalism's popularity as a major and a career.

How disheartening, then, to discover the DI editorial page tickling itself with President George Bush's fame ["Not bad, George," the DI, January 22]. Yes, Bush's approval rating is quite high. But given the opportunity to engage in some serious thought and commentary upon this fact, The Daily Iowan chooses instead to report the phenomenon (calling it an editorial) with a gee-whiz grin. Given the opportunity to take a stand on any number of issues raised by the rating, the DI opts to poke a wet finger into the prevailing winds and marvel at Bush's unexpected good fortune. They even congratulate him for it.

No sign of which issues the DI itself considers vital; instead there's a listing of three popular events: the invasion of Panama, democracy sweeping Eastern Europe, and low prices at the grocery store.

"All the President's Men" is exciting because it's about an arduous search for truth. The Post reporters sense rotteness in a lofty place and won't let go for anything, not even when warned their lives are in danger. Their aim is high and their demeanor serious, lending their mission both significance and dignity. My objection to the DI's editorial is its lack of these qualities. I'm disappointed in its shallow endorsement of Bush. Presidential politics are too important to be treated thus.

The pertinent question which I believe should have been asked: Do Bush's first-year activities and policies merit widespread approval? I believe not. His environmentalism is fake; his capital gains tax break for the rich unjust; his call for a constitutional antiflag burning amendment dangerous; his intervention on behalf of the homeless and impoverished nonexistent; his continued support for the government of El Salvador and the Nicaraguan contras unconscionable; his lukewarm wrist-slapping of Chinese despots while dispatching conciliatory messengers, first secretly and then publicly, unacceptable.

All of which suggest that Bush's popularity must be based largely upon personality and media manipulation rather than merits. A corollary comes to mind as well: Popular polls are of little or no significance. Elections are the only polls that matter. The fact that people seem to agree that George is a pleasant fellow must not cloud our serious consideration of his actions and policies.

Former Polish Communists form new party

WARSAW, Poland (AP)— Former Communists on Monday elected a 35-year-old sports official to lead a new party in its quest for popularity in the East bloc's first democracy.

But one day after its founding, the new Social Democracy of the Republic of Poland was accused of "political sabotage" by Solidarity leader Lech Wałęsa for taking over the holding of offices amassed by the Communists during their rule.

It also contended with a breakaway group of reformers who were organizing a rival Social-Democratic Union that would have nothing to do with the old party's leadership or assets.

Parliamentarians for the Communist party, which was officially disbanded early Monday, reflected the confusion among the remnants of their party.

Twenty Communist deputies lined up behind the Social Democracy party, 25 joined the Social-Democratic Union, and the remaining 125 members — including caucus leader Marian Orzechowski — withheld support from either side, state TV reported.

In lopsided votes, Aleksander Kwasniewski became the Social Democracy party's chairman, and Leszek Miller, a 43-year-old former

Associated Press

Aleksander Kwasniewski, right, Chairman of the new Social Democracy Party, celebrates his election with Leszek Miller, left, General Secretary and Mieczyslaw Rakowski, middle, leader of the dissolved communist party. Kwasniewski and Miller were elected Monday on the new party's founding congress in Warsaw.

Communist party secretary, its general secretary.

Kwasniewski, who has close ties to the former Communist leadership, will lead the new party's Supreme Council, while Miller will be the administrator overseeing party bureaucracy.

Kwasniewski received 1,049 votes for chairman and Miller 926 votes for general secretary out of about 1,200 votes cast.

The two men immediately were embraced and congratulated by Mieczyslaw Rakowski, the first secretary of the dissolved Communist party.

"We feel very moved by this election, and also terrified, because we are aware of the immense tasks," Kwasniewski told the delegates.

Kwasniewski, who leads the state sports and youth committee, said he wanted a party capable of rallying leftist opinions and winning popular backing after the demise of the Communist party.

"The most important thing is votes, not members. The better party is one with 100,000 members and (capable of getting) 1 million votes, than a party with 1 million members and only 100,000 votes," Kwasniewski said.

Honecker arrested after hospital release

EAST BERLIN (AP)— Erich Honecker, who ruled East Germany for 18 years until his downfall in October, was arrested immediately after his release from a hospital Monday and will be tried for treason, the national prosecutor said.

Plans to put the former Communist Party chief and three members of his Politburo on trial in March were announced by Prosecutor Hans-Juergen Joseph at a session of Parliament, where Premier Hans Modrow offered a grim account of the state of the nation.

The swift action against Honecker, 77, indicates the strength of a nationwide backlash against corruption in his Stalinist regime.

Economic problems and widespread unrest have forced Modrow, the embattled Communist premier, to move the country's first free elections up from May to March 18 and bring the opposition into a coalition that will govern until then.

In Washington, State Department official Richard Boucher said, "They seem to have accelerated the schedule in order to move quickly to a more stable, more long-term regime that's based on the popular will. That's something that we support."

More than 100,000 people demonstrated in Leipzig and other cities Monday night. Many called for the election defeat of the Communists and reunification with prosperous West Germany.

ADN, the official news agency, said Communist Party chief Gregor Gysi postponed a trip to the United States planned for this week so he could help prepare for the elections.

Chancellor Helmut Kohl of West Germany said in Bonn he would campaign for any East German Christian conservatives who wanted his help, and put off a visit to Chile and Brazil planned for early March.

He said negotiations on an agreement to strengthen ties between the two Germanys should be conducted with the government chosen in March.

Honecker had recuperated at Charite hospital from the surgical removal January 8 of a malignant kidney tumor. He was arrested as he left the hospital and taken to Rummelsburg prison in East Berlin, ADN reported.

It said Dr. Peter Althaus, director of the hospital's urology clinic, considered Honecker too ill to be imprisoned.

Romanians rally to support new government

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — The government accused opponents Monday of attempting a coup, and supporters rallied behind it, occupying the offices of one opposition party and forcing another's leader to flee in an armored car.

More than 15,000 people rallied in Bucharest to support the self-appointed government that took over when Communist dictator Nicolae Ceausescu was deposed and executed last month. News media reported similar demonstrations in several other cities, but gave no details.

On Sunday, about 15,000 people protested in the capital, demanding the resignation of the Council of the National Salvation Front, the name adopted by the government that is running the country until elections planned for May 20.

After initially declaring its only purpose was to guide Romania through the immediate post-revolutionary period, the Front recently said it would enter candidates in the elections.

That decision angered the fledgling opposition, which says the Front — 150 intellectuals, technocrats and former Communists — has an unfair advantage.

Many opposition politicians have pointed to the Communist pasts of leading Front members and suggested it really is the Communist Party in disguise.

Soviet industry falls far short of projections

MOSCOW (AP) — New government figures have confirmed what Soviet shoppers already know: Most industries in 1989 failed miserably at fulfilling President Mikhail Gorbachev's promise of more consumer goods.

A diplomat who spoke on condition of anonymity said what little increase there was in consumer goods could be attributed to inflation, a greater emphasis on producing alcohol and imports from the West.

Wheat farmers had a good year, but they were about the only ones in agriculture, according to statistics printed in most newspapers this weekend. After an investment of $110 billion in agriculture in 1989, food production rose just 1 percent — not the 6.6 percent expected.

Most of that small increase came in grain, sugarbeets and potatoes. Soviet consumers will find the increase in the last category hard to comprehend, since the normally ubiquitous potatoes are hard to find and are several times more expensive on the farmers' markets this winter.

Alcohol production leaped 19 percent as authorities eased sharp restrictions on alcohol production imposed by Gorbachev in 1985 to try to cut the Soviets' severe problem with alcoholism. The restrictions caused long lines at liquor stores, and housewives trying to buy a bottle of champagne were furious at being forced to queue up for hours with obnoxious drunks. Gorbachev's crackdown, however, has transformed public attitudes toward drunkenness from chortling acceptance to disapproval.

Bureaucrats' desperate move to import food, medicine, cosmetics, soap and other consumer goods from the West to satisfy citizens led up with long lines for shoddy domestic goods led to a 24 percent increase in imports from the West, Tass said Monday.

Economists blamed irregular supply deliveries, resistance to government orders and failure to fulfill contracts for a mere 1.7 percent rise in industrial production; Tass said.

The grain harvest reached 211 million metric tons again, a good year like 1986 and 1987. But the new program of paying farmers in drought-after foreign currency for growing extra hard wheat brought in just 223,000 tons, the reports said. Soviet media said farmers found the program had too much red tape and not enough cash.

Authorities hoped the program would help them to obtain grain more cheaply than in the West, but they had to import 36 million tons, 1 million tons more than in the previous year, according to the statistics.

Agriculture particularly suffered in areas with ethnic violence and strikes. Vegetable output dropped 27 percent in Azerbaijan and 16 percent in Armenia — two republics that have been engaged in a territorial dispute for two years.

Strikes and lack of materials caused 40 million worker days to be lost in 1989, according to V.N. Kirichenko, chairman of the government statistical commission, who wrote an article in the current issue of Government Herald.

Wade's bomb lifts Hawkeyes to huge upset

3-pointer banks Iowa comeback

Bryce Miller
The Daily Iowan

Iowa forward Wade Lookingbill banked in a 3-point shot to tie with 35 seconds left, and Les Jepsen hit a driving layup with :02 to shock No. 11 Illinois 69-67 Monday at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

Illinois had an inbounds pass picked off by Lookingbill with :01.5 left to seal the final.

Jepsen was nearly unstoppable, collecting 18 points and 17 rebounds as the Hawkeyes won only their second Big Ten game against six losses. Iowa is now 10-8 overall, while the Illini slipped to 15-4 and 5-4 in the league.

"I had a wide-open lane and there was only one guy back, so I decided to take it to the basket," Jepsen said of the final basket. "I didn't think about it. It's my last year, so I feel like I have to do it."

Lookingbill has never hit a 3-point shot in his career. At Fort Dodge High School, he put in only one from that distance. He had missed two earlier in the season, and coach Tom Davis said he was the fourth option on the play.

"We were looking for Troy (Skinner), Matt (Bullard) or James (Moses)," Davis said. "That was great courage to take the shot."

Illinois forward Marcus Liberty tried to force a pass inside with :57 on the clock, but Jepsen intercepted it.

Davis' club ran the clock to :44.5 before calling a time-out with :34

"You've got to be lucky too," Illini Coach Lou Henson said of the ending. "When you play like that, you deserve to lose, and we deserved to lose."

The Illini came out of a time out with 3:03 left and a seven-point lead. But a miss by Steve Bardo, a lob to Bullard, an Illinois turnover and a Hawkeye basket by Moses made the score 65-62 with 1:52 left.

One of the biggest moments came when an apparent steal by Skinner, the Iowa point guard, squirted around the floor and Illinois' Ervin Small got a lay-in and foul, but missed the free throw. The Illini then led by six.

Pearl spent $10,000 to get Deon

DES MOINES (AP)—The University of Iowa spent at least $10,000 last year in an unsuccessful bid to recruit Chicago high school basketball star Deon Thomas, according to expense vouchers provided by the school.

Thomas wound up attending the University of Illinois and the recruiting battle led to an NCAA investigation of practices at Illinois.

Bruce Pearl, an assistant coach at Iowa, spent $10,431 on seven trips in an attempt to recruit Thomas, according to the vouchers. He also watched other potential recruits during those trips.

The expenses included $1,721.18 for a March 1989 trip to the Netherlands, where Thomas was playing on a tour with other U.S. high school players.

Pearl said the trip to the Netherlands was unusual but necessary and came at a time when Thomas was leaning toward attending Iowa.

"I wanted him to know just how badly we wanted him to come to Iowa and to demonstrate how we would support him," Pearl said.

Transportation for all seven recruiting trips came to $4,726.

Pearl's expense vouchers also listed $550.86 for dinners for four separate weeks on the road in 1987 and 1988, in which he picked up the tabs of coaches, recruiting experts, a former player and a television sportscaster.

Concern about rising college athletic recruiting bills has led to a review of recruiting practices by the NCAA. Proposals to further limit contacts with high school players are expected to be considered at the January 1991 National Collegiate Athletic Association's annual convention.

Tennis team has strong showing at MSU meet

Jim Kearney
The Daily Iowan

If last weekend's performance in the Spartan Invitational foreshadows any events, Iowa men's tennis coach Steve Houghton should be very pleased.

The Hawkeyes finished the Big Ten singles tournament with a 5-0 record, but more importantly, they left East Lansing with a lot of confidence.

"We proved that we can play against good players and good teams," Houghton said.

One of the teams the Hawkeye squad played well against was defending Big Ten champion Minnesota.

Seniors Paul Buckingham and Tim Reynolds, both inexperienced singles players, each won a match over a Gopher opponent. Buckingham defeated the Gophers second-seeded player, Phillippe LeBlanc.

Houghton found that encouraging. "We're definitely excited to play dead even with a team of Minnesota's caliber," Houghton said.

Another Iowa player who fared well in the tournament was senior Thomas Adler. Adler, seeded fifth in the invitational, reached the quarterfinals before bowing out to Minnesota's Bryan Uihlein.

"Thomas is quickly gaining the respect of all the coaches around the conference," Houghton said.

Senior Dave Novak won three matches before losing to the Gophers' number one player, Rafer Leach. Senior Jay Maltby and sophomore Greg Hebard also performed well in the tournament.

"Maltby proved that he can play with some of the better guys in the Big Ten, which is something he'll have to do," Houghton said. Maltby has moved up to the number two position on the Hawkeye team this year, after playing at number six a year ago.

Adler thinks the experience gained in this tournament will be very beneficial in the long run. "We got a lot of practice in against teams we'll face later in the season, and that could prove to be very helpful to our team," Adler said.

Buckingham seems to agree. "We had a lot of people play opponents above their level, and play well," Buckingham said.

"That will mean more confidence for us and less confidence for them, when we play them again in the Big Ten season."

La. Tech, Stanford stay on top; Hawkeyes keep No. 13 ranking

(AP) — Iowa held onto its 13th-ranked spot in The Associated Press women's basketball poll this week.

Louisiana Tech (16-0) and Stanford (18-0) maintained their stranglehold on the top two positions in the poll for the seventh straight week.

The Techsters received 52 first-place votes and 1,612 points from a nationwide panel of 65 women's coaches. Stanford, whose victims included then-No. 6 Long Beach State at home last week, received 13 first-place votes and 1,582 points in the poll, which was announced Monday.

Nevada-Las Vegas (18-1) moved up a step to third with 1,451 points to match its all-time ranking position, which was achieved in December 1976, the year The AP poll began.

Voting was extremely tight through the next three positions with Georgia (17-2) moving up from seventh to fourth with 1,385 points after upsetting then-No. 3 Tennessee at home Sunday in a Southeastern Conference game. The loss dropped the Vols (15-4) two spots to fifth with 1,363 points.

Texas (13-3) slipped a notch to sixth with 1,351 points, despite adding two more Southwest Conference schools to its string of 177 straight victories over league rivals.

Washington (15-2) moved up a spot to return to its all-time high ranking at seventh, achieved earlier this month. The Huskies, which had a win over Washington State, received 1,189 points.

Long Beach State (13-4) dropped two spots to eighth with 1,182 points after the loss at Stanford. The 49ers defeated Big West rivals Fresno State and San Jose State to stay a game behind Nevada-Las Vegas in the league standings.

Stephen F. Austin (15-2) and Purdue (14-3) held the ninth and 10th spots, but voting was extremely close.

Colorado's Reggie Morton finds himself double-teamed by the likes of the Missouri Tigers' Jamal Coleman, left, and Doug Smith in recent Big Eight play.

Razorbacks climb three places; Tigers nab top spot for 2nd week

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark. (AP) — Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson told his Razorbacks last week that if they won their next five games, they'd be ranked in the top five.

This week, he has a new message. Arkansas beat Houston and Texas in Fayetteville last week, then went on the road and knocked off Alabama-Birmingham. On Monday, the Razorbacks climbed from sixth to third, their highest ranking since they were No. 1 for one week in 1978.

"Now, I'm telling them that if we win our next four games, we could be No. 1," Richardson said.

Top-ranked Missouri and No. 2 Kansas meet on Feb. 13, and both teams must still play No. 9 Oklahoma twice.

Arkansas (17-2 overall and 8-0 in the Southwest Conference) plays at Rice on Wednesday and at Texas on Sunday. Next week, the Razorbacks play Texas Tech at home and Baylor on the road.

Richardson insists the Razorbacks aren't looking ahead, but adds, "If it happens that sometime in the future that we're ranked No. 1, we'll be glad to get there."

"Being ranked this high is good for recruiting and for our fans but I also think it reflects well on our players and the things they've done," he said. "I hope we can play up to that level because if we are the third best team in the country, it means we must have a chance to make the Final Four."

The No. 3 ranking is the highest for a Richardson-coached team. His Tulsa squad reached No. 6 when Paul Pressey was a senior in 1982.

Missouri (19-1) held the top spot for the second straight week with 59 first-place votes and 1,569 points from the nationwide panel of sportswriters and broadcasters. The Tigers struggled to beat Rutgers 89-84 last week, then easily defeated Colorado.

Kansas (20-1), which was No. 1 for two weeks before losing to Missouri on Jan. 20, received the other four first-place votes and 1,510 points.

Bobcat coach O'Hara named to Fry's staff

IOWA CITY (AP) — Iowa football coach Hayden Fry has filled one of the vacancies on his staff, hiring John O'Hara of Southwest Texas State as offensive line coach.

O'Hara, 46, has been the head coach at Southwest Texas for seven years and was an assistant at Baylor, Fry's alma mater, for 10 years. He succeeds Kirk Ferentz, who was named the head coach at Maine.

"We feel very fortunate in obtaining a coach with the qualities and experience of John," Fry said. "He's a coach that will enable us to continue molding some of the best offensive linemen in college football."

O'Hara was 36-41 at Southwest Texas, including a 9-2 record in 1983 and a 7-4 mark in 1984. At Baylor, he was offensive coordinator for four years and also coached the offensive line.

Malone scores 61 in 33 minutes

SALT LAKE CITY — Karl Malone's week of personal insult has ended in a personal triumph. Malone, snubbed in the All-Star voting released on Thursday, redeemed the performance of his career Saturday night, scoring 61 points in just 33 minutes as the Jazz handed the Milwaukee Bucks their worst defeat ever, 144-96.

"I knew he'd come out and make a statement," Milwaukee coach Larry Harris said after Malone ran roughshod over his road-weary Bucks. "I just didn't know he was going to write a whole book. I'd like to see him before the game that if he wanted to make a statement, he should do it while the issue is hot and not play tonight." Malone left no doubt that he belongs in the All-Star Game in Miami on Feb. 11.

The Mailman had 17 points after one quarter and by halftime achieved his season average of 30 points. He then scored 20 points in the first 9:30 of the third quarter and returned to score more in three minutes of the final quarter, finishing with 61 points by sinking 21 of 26 shots.

Nehemiah proves the critics wrong

NEW YORK — Renaldo Nehemiah has spent eight years proving his critics wrong.

When Nehemiah, the world record-holder in the men's 110-meter high hurdles, left track in 1982 for pro football, they said he wouldn't make it in the NFL.

He spent four unspectacular years with the San Francisco 49ers and walked away with one Super Bowl ring.

When he returned to track in 1986, after some disillusionment with the 49ers and a court battle with track officials to regain his amateur status, critics said he never would be among the elite hurdlers again.

Who's better? Steelers or Niners?

NEW ORLEANS — The comparisons are inevitable.

Who's better, the four-time Super Bowl champion San Francisco 49ers or the four-time Super Bowl champion Pittsburgh Steelers? Joe Montana grew up in western Pennsylvania and was a fan of the Steelers team. So on the day after being named MVP in the 49ers' 55-10 rout of the Denver Broncos in the Super Bowl, the quarterback was asked to compare his 49ers to the Steelers.

"We're pretty close," Montana said. "We both have great defenses and great running backs, similar types. Franco Harris and Roger (Craig) Tom (Rathman) and Rocky (Bleier)."

And what about the quarterbacks? How did he match up with Terry Bradshaw?

Montana thought about the loaded question and smiled.

"I still have my hair," he said.

And a third Super Bowl MVP award. Bradshaw owns two of those trophies.

Montana said that his team's past Super Bowl appearances helped mold Sunday's methodical victory.

"I'd like to say no, but I think it does help psychologically, not only for me but for our team," he said. "I think it carries over."

"We were all in synch, not just me but our whole team."

Coach George Seifert saluted his team and said he thought it served to be rated one of the best of all time. "I believe we match up quite well with the Steelers," he said. "This happens to our time."

As good as this team is, it will not be the same next season, Seifert said. There will be changes, part of the natural progression of pro football.

Records fall at the Super Bowl

NEW ORLEANS — The NFL record book took a beating Sunday as the San Francisco 49ers' 55-10 victory over the Denver Broncos Super Bowl XXIV.

Here are some of the most notable achievements and what some people had to say about the game:

- San Francisco became just the second NFL team to win four Super Bowls. The Pittsburgh Steelers were the first.
- "If you want to go for another, that's fine with me," 49ers owner John DeBartolo told his team in the locker room afterwards.
- The 55 points scored by San Francisco were the most ever in a Super Bowl. The Chicago Bears set the previous record with their 45-10 victory over New England in Super Bowl XX, also in New Orleans.
- "This is the best team in the history of football," 49ers offensive tackle Bubba Paris said of his team.
- San Francisco's victory broke a 3-3 AFC-NFC standoff in the previous six Super Bowls played in New Orleans, where the past four Super Bowl losers each was held to just 10 points.
- Montana, who set five career and two game records in Sunday's game, was named the Most Valuable Player of the Super Bowl for record third time. Bart Starr and Terry Bradshaw have been MVP twice each.
- Montana, on his offensive line: "I don't think I was touched in the playoffs, really. Things go this way, I could play for a long time."
- Montana, on the 49ers' defensive unit: "It always is. Our offense, or defense, but nobody's getting any points on us. Our defense is executing, getting us the ball."
- 49ers coach George Seifert, on Montana: "Here he is, this great athlete, this great athlete, and he constantly credits other people."
- Montana's touchdown pass to John Taylor in the third quarter gave him five TD passes in the game, one more than Terry Bradshaw had in Pittsburgh's 35-31 Super Bowl victory over Dallas in 1979.
- Montana's 28-yard touchdown pass to Jerry Rice early in the third quarter was the San Francisco quarterback's 10th Super Bowl career touchdown pass, surpassing another of Bradshaw's records.

7 players agree to new deals

NEW YORK (AP) — Chuck Crim and Herm Winningham agreed to two-year contracts Monday and five players agreed to one-year deals, reducing the total of players in salary arbitration to 109.

Crim, a right-handed pitcher who made $225,000 last season with Milwaukee, will get $600,000 from the Brewers in 1990 and $860,000 in 1991. Winningham, an outfielder who made $230,000, will get $337,500 from the Cincinnati Reds this season and $437,500 in 1991.

Right-hander Scott Bankhead and the Seattle Mariners agreed to a one-year contract for $755,000, a raise of $540,000, and right-hander Rick Aguilera and the Minnesota Twins settled at $648,000, a $353,000 raise.

Third baseman Mike Pagliarulo and the San Diego Padres settled at $575,000, a $20,000 cut, but he can earn $90,000 more in performance bonuses. Catcher Dave Valle and the Mariners agreed to $485,000, a $167,500 raise.

Right-hander Mike Birkbeck and the Milwaukee Brewers agreed to a split contract. Birkbeck, who made $140,000 in 1989, will get $155,000 if he is in the majors and $144,000 if he is in the minors.

Arbitration hearings begin on Friday, with five scheduled cases: outfielder Bo Jackson of Kansas City, outfielder Glenn Braggs of Milwaukee, outfielder Chris James of Cleveland and first baseman Franklin Stubbs and left-hander Ray Searage of Los Angeles.

VAL D'ISERE, France (AP) — Helmut Hoeflehner of Austria scored his second World Cup downhill victory in three days Monday and Steve Locher of Switzerland captured his first World Cup title as the surprise winner of the super-giant slalom.

Hoeflehner's victory widened his lead in the downhill standings over Pirmin Zurbriggen of Switzerland. The Austrian has 91 points over 71 for Zurbriggen, the leader in the overall competition.

Hoeflehner scored his ninth World Cup downhill victory in 1:58.09 minutes on the packed snow.

Mayes suspended for fighting

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Tharon Mayes, the leading scorer on the Florida State University basketball team, was suspended indefinitely Monday for a fight on campus, athletic director Bob Goin said.

Coach Pat Kennedy was in South Florida recruiting players and was unaware of the suspension, which took effect immediately, his secretary said. Kennedy is scheduled to return to Tallahassee on Tuesday. "Tharon Mayes is suspended indefinitely pending further study of the incident," Goin said.

Mayes, a three-year starter, is averaging 23.1 points a game this season for the Seminoles, 13-8 overall and 4-3 in the Metro Conference.

ter Price, publisher of a new daily sports newspaper called "The National" poses with a gold metal sculpture of the paper's logo in the lobby of its New York offices. The all-sports tabloid, which will run six days a week, is scheduled to debut Wednesday.

Newspaper aimed at sports readers to dive into market

NEW YORK (AP)—The National, a new all-sports newspaper, promises to indulge an unsated appetite for sports with 30-plus pages of stories, analysis, photos and statistics six days a week. But not enough sports fans that hun-

Publisher Peter O. Price thinks so. "Most men read metropolitan dailies every day for the sports, not to find out what happened in Bulgaria," he said.

Price said The National will give some readers "a regular diet of what they like."

The 125-person editorial staff is led by ex-Sports Illustrated writer Frank Deford. Price says the owners have the patience — and the money — to give the new tabloid whatever time is needed to succeed.

Wednesday's launch in New York, Los Angeles and Chicago is expected to cost $25 million. The cent paper will be published Monday through Friday. It will be sold only at newsstands and vending machines at first; no home-delivery or mail subscriptions will be available.

The National is being backed by Emilio Azcarraga, a publicity-shy media baron from Mexico who is a major exporter of Spanish-language TV programming. Azcarraga is the lead member of a partnership that includes Price and others and is prepared, Price said, to spend $100 million to make the paper work.

The New York-based The National will offer a core of national sports coverage including columns, investigations, gossip and cartoons. Each city's issue will have expanded coverage of its local teams.

Plans are to expand gradually into other major cities such as Detroit, Dallas, Philadelphia, Boston and San Francisco with a target of 15 cities by the end of 1990.

Commonwealth Games hit by drug problems

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — The specter of Seoul has appeared to scar another sports festival. In the first multi-sport international event since the Ben Johnson scandal at the 1988 Olympics, the Commonwealth Games has been marred by the same scourge — drug abuse.

It's a tragedy for the athlete, it's a tragedy for his country and it's a tragedy for the Games, said Dr. Howel Jones, medical commissioner of the Commonwealth Games Federation after an Indian weightlifter tested positive for anabolic steroids.

Indian officials said Subrata Kumar Paul, winner of two silver and one bronze medal in the 67.5-kilogram category, was on his way home after being caught in random testing.

Hours later, Commonwealth Games Federation secretary David Dixon confirmed that a second athlete had tested positive for drugs, but declined to give further details. Dixon said that until a second test on the athlete's urine sample had taken place, "there will be no indication which athlete, country or sport is involved."

Delegation chief Kanwaljit Singh Bains confirmed late Monday that the athlete who had tested positive. "He has been sent home to India, he is very upset," Bains said. "We are feeling very bad."

The launch comes at a treacherous economic juncture. Forecasters are divided on whether a recession looms ahead, national ad spending has been sluggish and competition among media outlets for ads has never been fiercer.

In addition, the paper faces the longer-term test of winning over a national audience.

John Morton, newspaper analyst for the investment firm Lynch, Jones & Ryan, notes the United States has never had much of a tradition of backing national newspapers. He said one of the few successes, Gannett Co. Inc.'s USA Today, already provides considerable sports information.

Local papers, on the other hand, can easily expand their sports coverage if they sense a threat from the new national sports daily, he said.

The key issue facing The National, Morton said, is this: "Is there that much interest in spectator sports news on a daily basis?"

Price said the success of all-sports programming on cable television has demonstrated the hearty U.S. appetite for sports. A former publisher of the New York Post, Price said readers will buy The National in addition to their local paper.

The National's ad sales director,

Peter A. Spina, said discounted advertising sales are ahead of projections with almost 1,200 pages of ads ordered before the launch, surpassing an initial goal of 1,000. Advertisers include Procter & Gamble Co., Philip Morris Cos. and General Motors Corp.

The newspaper is counting heavily on circulation for revenue, at least at the start. The initial target is average daily circulation of 200,000.

"Readers can expect the best-written and best-looking newspaper in the country," said Deford, who has hired big-name columnists like Mike Lupica of the Daily News in New York and Scott Ostler of the Los Angeles Times.

Each day's newspaper will run 32 to 48 tabloid-sized pages with a minimum of 30 pages of editorial material and color photography, Deford said.

Price said the venture is expected to reach the break-even point in five years, which would be something of a feat given that USA Today expects to make its first yearly profit in 1990 after losing $800 million over seven years.

"Putting out a national newspaper is an extraordinarily costly endeavor," said USA Today President Thomas Curley, adding that it would be difficult to contain losses for a national startup to $100 million.

Some industry analysts expect The National will compete for readers with USA Today. One of USA Today's drawing cards has been getting West Coast scores into the papers distributed on the East Coast.

Price said The National will "be comparable to most of the papers" in terms of getting late scores into the New York and Chicago editions. But he said that for the first month, only one edition will be printed for those two cities and the deadline will be between 12:30 a.m. and 1 a.m. EST.

Father Bob will retire from pulpit

IOWA CITY (AP) — The Rev. Robert Holzhammer, known to sports fans across the state as the public address voice of the Iowa Hawkeyes, is retiring from the pulpit.

Holzhammer, 67, has been rector at Trinity Episcopal Church in Iowa City for 27 years. He presided at a service for the last time Sunday, but will stay in the city and continue as the PA announcer for Iowa football and basketball games.

"Never having done it before, I can't say how it will feel to be sitting in the congregation," said Holzhammer, whose last day in church office will be Wednesday.

Holzhammer was ordained in 1952 after attending Iowa and Virginia Theological Seminary. He began his ministry in Iowa Falls, then served in Dubuque before moving to Trinity in September 1962.

Super Bowl

S.F. 49ers

Look to 3-peat, set new standard

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — For a team of the decade, the 49ers sure thought they had a lot to prove in the Super Bowl. Or so they thought.

Joe Montana was upset by old drug allegations. Jerry Rice wanted to silence Denver's supposedly high-talking safeties. The once-magnificent offensive line was determined to look good.

No one was exactly questioning the defending champions' manhood — or their 16-2 record — but the 49ers took out their frustrations on Denver for every perceived slight they could think of Sunday in the most lopsided Super Bowl ever.

"I think we were all ready," third-time game MVP Joe Montana said. "There was a lot of talk about them and there were some things that happened out in the streets and they weren't talking to us, and I think that all helped motivate our team."

Evidently, nothing short of Cajun voodoo could have prevented the 49ers from taking their place alongside the Pittsburgh Steelers as four-time winners of the Vince Lombardi Trophy.

The proving started early, when key blocks by Harris Barton and Jerry Rice sprung Roger Craig for an 18-yard gain, and finished late — eight touchdowns later, in a 55-10 lashing. Barely a minute had gone by before San Francisco sensed it was in control, having shut out John Elway on three straight passing plays and broken a sweep for big yardage on its second play.

"We kind of saw fear in their eyes

Grogan relieves to Denver's

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The stigma of being the losing quarterback in the biggest Super Bowl blowout in history lingers long after the last interception.

"In some respects," New England's Steve Grogan says, "you don't even want to show your face in public."

Until Sunday, Grogan had the distinction of taking the snaps in the most lopsided Super Bowl loss, a 46-10 rout of the Patriots by the Chicago Bears in 1986. Then Elway and his Denver Broncos were whipped by the San Francisco 49ers 55-10.

"If it had stayed on the books, it wouldn't be any big deal," Grogan said Monday. "The Broncos had a great year. They had one bad game. They have nothing to hang their heads about. It's frustrating. He was up against a tremendously good football team. We were in the same situation."

The parallels between the routs are uncanny. To start with, both games were played in New Orleans. Then notice that the scores after each of the first three quarters of the 1986 game were 13-3, 23-3 and 44-3. On Sunday, they were 13-3, 27-3 and 44-10.

The Patriots trailed 44-3, then scored their only touchdown. The Broncos' only touchdown came

Broncos evaluate dejectedly

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It felt no better morning after. Still burdened by the humiliating 55-10 thrashing in the Super Bowl, the Broncos meekly boarded a team charter Monday for the flight home.

They might have preferred leaving under a dark sky.

"It hurts to play the way we did and get that," coach Dan Reeves said at a news conference before the team departed. "People have been so kind to console us, but it doesn't help."

"Everybody in life goes through those situations — although maybe not in front of people."

Montana shredded the Denver defense to 167 total yards, while the 49er defense limited the Broncos to 167 total yards.

John Elway, Denver's offensive leader, was ineffective. He completed only 10 of 26 passes for 107 yards and threw two third-quarter interceptions.

Denver's defense, which had allowed 20 points in the NFL this season and which had itself in preventing the big play, yielded to passes of 20, 38, 28 and 35 yards.

The Broncos were plagued by missed tackling assignments. Second in the NFL in forcing turnovers, they produced none Sunday while the near-flawless 49ers forced four.

"I can only give credit to the 49ers," Reeves said. "We knew going into the game that they were an outstanding team and that we'd have to play as well as we possibly could and without mistakes."

S.F. 49ers prove themselves

Look to 3-peat, set new standard

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — For a team of the decade, the 49ers sure thought they had a lot to prove in the Super Bowl. Or so they thought.

"We kind of saw fear in their eyes

when he came out in the first series," Craig said. "We set the tone of the game as far as how we were attacking, just coming straight at them and letting them know that they were going to be in for a long day."

Montana took the Broncos to school with a heavy dose of the three R's — Rice, Rathman and Roger. The threesome's damage figures: 332 total yards and six touchdowns.

Rice bounced off safety Steve Atwater to score on a 20-yard play on San Francisco's first possession, then broke wide open down the middle for easy TDs of 37 and 28 yards in the second and third quarters.

Tom Rathman rushed for a career-best two touchdowns, succeeded on two fourth-down runs when the game was still close and caught four first-half passes to help break it open.

And Craig, while scoring only a late TD that gave the 49ers a franchise record for points, had 69 yards rushing and five receptions and broke Lynn Swann's record of 16 career Super Bowl receptions. He handled the ball 15 times on their first three scoring drives.

"It was like we were in the twilight zone," Craig said. "I mean, we were scoring at will, the defense was playing well — everybody was in sync. It was unreal."

Grogan relinquishes QB title to Denver's Elway after rout

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — The stigma of being the losing quarterback in the biggest Super Bowl blowout in history lingers long after the last interception.

"In some respects," New England's Steve Grogan says, "you don't even want to show your face in public."

Steve Grogan

quarterback

after they fell behind 41-3.

Both games already were decided when the quarterbacks suffered further humiliation in the fourth quarter. Grogan was tackled for a safety that made the score 46-10. Elway's fumble was returned by the 49ers to the Denver 1-yard line, and Roger Craig's run on the next play put the final score at 55-10.

Chicago won its first two playoff games 21-0 and 24-0 and entered the Super Bowl with a 17-1 record. San Francisco posted 41-13 and 30-3 playoff victories and went into the championship game at 16-2. Both beat the Los Angeles Rams in the NFC title game.

But Grogan was the losing quarterback in just one Super Bowl. Elway is 0-for-3. In Denver, a town that takes its pro football much more seriously than New England, a long and agonizing offseason looms.

"It's got to be difficult for him because he's been there three times," Grogan said. "I was kind of pulling for the Broncos. I would have liked to see them win one."

"You get farther and farther behind. It seemed like nothing you could do was right. It's tremendously frustrating," he added. "Outside of the Bears when we played them, I don't think I've ever seen a team play as well as San Francisco did over a period of time. They just devastated people all year."

Grogan knows what Elway and his teammates will be going through.

"You replay the game a million times in your head, wondering what you could have done differently," Grogan said.

"There's not much comfort knowing you were beaten by a team that was acclaimed as the one of the greatest of all time, Grogan said.

"I don't know if you'd call it a consolation," he said. "There are no excuses."

Broncos evaluate Super loss; dejectedly go back to Denver

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — It felt no better the morning after. Still burdened by the humiliation of a 55-10 thrashing in the Super Bowl, the Denver Broncos meekly boarded a team charter Monday for the flight home.

They might have preferred leaving under cover of darkness.

"It hurts to play the way we did and get beat like that," coach Dan Reeves said at a news conference before the team departed. "People have been trying to console us, but it doesn't help."

"Everybody in life goes through those kinds of situations — although maybe not in front of as many people."

Montana shredded the Denver defense for five touchdowns, while the 49er defense held the Broncos to 167 total yards.

John Elway, Denver's offensive leader, was ineffective. He completed only 10 of 26 passes for 108 yards, was sacked four times and threw two critical third-quarter interceptions.

Denver's defense, which had allowed the fewest points in the NFL this season and which had prided itself in preventing the big play, yielded touchdown passes of 20, 38, 28 and 35 yards.

The Broncos were plagued by missed tackles and botched assignments. Second in the NFL this season in forcing turnovers, they produced none Sunday — while the near-flawless 49ers forced four.

"I can only give credit to the 49ers," Reeves said. "We knew going into the game that they were an outstanding team and that we'd have to play as well as we possibly could and without mistakes. We made some mistakes, and they didn't make any.

"I'm not sure if I've seen a better team. They have a lot of offensive weapons, and the most underrated part of their team is the defense."

"They're one of the great teams of all time. I think it's more difficult to win back-to-back titles now than it was in the '60s and '70s. It's more difficult to dominate now, but they are dominating. On film, we didn't see them have a bad game, and they wiped everybody out in the playoffs."

Reeves said the tone was set early.

"On their first drive, they made three great third-down plays (actually two)," he said. "We're in position on all of them, but they make the play."

"It was 7-3 and our defense holds and we get the ball back with a chance to drive down and score. We fumble. There's no way of telling what might have happened if we hadn't turned it over there."

"We wanted to keep their offense off the field, and we didn't do that. They beat us deep, and that's something we knew we couldn't let them do."

Reeves said he hadn't looked at film of the debacle. "I might be dumb but I'm not stupid," he said. "I don't need to see it again. I thought our game plan was solid. I don't have any answers for it."

He said Elway was victimized by inadequate pass protection but didn't believe the performance would permanently scar him.

"John is tough enough to realize the way this game is," he said. "I know how competitive he is. It hurts to come up short in a game of this magnitude, but I think he'll be more determined than ever."

Former director of UI art school dies

Frank Seiberling, former director of the UI School of Art and Art History, died from internal bleeding on Wednesday, January 24, at UI Hospitals and Clinics. He was 81.

Seiberling, a native of Akron, Ohio, attended Princeton University and received his Ph.D. in art history from the University of Chicago.

He worked for the Toledo Museum of Art 1938-43, first as assistant to the director in charge of publications, and then as head of the education department. His career in art was interrupted by three years' service in the infantry, 1943-46, during which time he saw action in Italy.

He was on the faculty of Ohio State University from 1946-58 and was director of the School of Fine and Applied Arts there from 1948-53. He joined the faculty of the UI as head of the School of Art and Art History (then the Department of Art) in 1958. He stepped down as the head of the school in 1972, and retired from the faculty in 1976.

Early in his career, Seiberling published a number of articles in Art News magazine and the American Journal of Architecture, and a weekly column for the Toledo Blade. In 1959 he published an important textbook in art appreciation and theory, "Looking at Art."

Although he was not a studio artist, Seiberling served on panels and juries for art exhibitions, and was president of the Midwest College Art Conference in 1970. He once described his own creative work, saying "I took an active part in a little theater acting, and am a bumbling pianist. My only real sally into the studio art field, apart from a course in drawing, has been to design and build some furniture."

"Frank Seiberling's contribution to the University of Iowa was extremely important in two areas," Wallace Tomasini, director of the UI School of Art and Art History, said. "As head of the school, he was able to maintain the fine tradition that had been established, while at the same time introducing into the program both creative and historical research into the avant garde.

"His other contribution was that he was able to see his dream of a Museum of Art for the University of Iowa become a reality. He was instrumental in organizing and establishing the museum, which began from his efforts."

There will be no memorial service, but there will be an occasion for remembrance in the late spring. Seiberling's family have requested that no flowers be sent and that contributions go to the Frank Seiberling Memorial Fund for the School of Art and Art History at the UI Foundation.

Get ready for a season of action and adventure!

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Lights! Camera! Action-adventure! That seems to be the movie ticket for the winter and spring as the film industry moves into 1990 with hopes of another record-breaking year.

Comedy is king this summer, and drama plays a strong role in the Oscar-conscious fall and holiday season. The first five months of the year (Memorial Day is the official opening of the summer season) brings a host of action-adventure from the major studios.

There will be cop movies galore, and the streets of Los Angeles will again be littered with cars demolished in high-speed chases. Among this season's officers: Jamie Lee Curtis, Brian Dennehy, Steven Seagal, Tom Berenger, Lou Diamond Phillips, Gene Hackman and Dan Aykroyd.

"White Hunter, Black Heart" is also likely to draw attention. It is based on Peter Viertel's novel about an adventurous film director (obviously John Huston) on location in Africa. It's an offbeat role for Clint Eastwood, who also directed.

The most eagerly awaited adventure is "The Hunt for Red October," the first of Tom Clancy's novels to be filmed. Sean Connery stars as the Russian sub commander and Alec Baldwin is the CIA analyst probing why the sub is approaching the eastern U.S. seaboard.

The police sagas include: "Loose Cannons," Hackman as a hard-boiled cop and Aykroyd as his partner, who switches personalities under stress; "Hard to Kill," Steve Seagal as a detective who seeks revenge after seven years in a coma; "The Last of the Finest," Brian Dennehy as a suspended cop who uncovers drug millions; "Love at Large," Tom Berenger and Elizabeth Perkins as two detectives who fall in love; "The First Power," Lou Diamond Phillips in pursuit of a serial killer; and "Blue Steel" with Jamie Lee Curtis also in pursuit of a serial killer.

Black History Month celebrated by presentation of 'The Escape'

In celebration of Black History Month, UI Theatres and the UI African-American World Studies program will present a landmark in black American literature, "The Escape, or A Leap to Freedom," the earliest surviving play by a black American. Performances will be at 8 p.m. February 1-3 and 3 p.m. February 3-4 in Theatre B of the UI Theatre Building.

A panel discussion will follow the opening performance February 1, featuring Darwin Turner, chairman of the UI African-American World Studies program and a nationally recognized pioneer in Blackwell that place the performance in the context of a pre-Civil War abolitionist meeting. These framing devices introduce the playwright as a character, and as he introduces the play the audience becomes, in effect, the crowd at the meeting.

Of the first production, Mike Steele wrote in the Minneapolis Tribune, "As part of our theatrical past, it fascinates. In its way, it's first-class dramatic muckraking, and one can only guess what impact the play could have had it been widely produced. Its strength now is as a document. Its strength back then could have been wrenching."

Jones subsequently presented the play in New Haven, Conn., where for the past three years she was assistant to the director of Yale Repertory Theatre. Jones' other directing credits include the South African play "Woza Albert!" at the Unadilla Theatre in Vermont, starring Geoffrey Owens (Elvin in "The Cosby Show") and Michael Kachingwe, a UI theatre student from Zimbabwe. The production was presented in Iowa City by University Theatres last season.

As director of UI Black Action Theatre in the mid 1980s, Jones directed several productions and created "Bought With Our Baggage," a theatrical collage tracing the contributions of black artists to American culture and the obstacles black artists have confronted.

The UI production of "The Escape" is supported by Opportunity at Iowa, a campuswide program that seeks to enrich the diversity of the UI community by attracting minority students, faculty and staff. Tickets are $3 in advance from Hancher Auditorium Box Office. Remaining tickets will be sold at the door. Box office hours are 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. weekdays, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday and 1-3 p.m. Sunday. From cities outside Iowa City call 1-800-HANCHER. Locally or outside Iowa call (319) 335-1160.

Although the play was written in a style that is far out of fashion and calls for an unwieldy cast of 30, Jones felt it was important to perform a play that characterizes slavery from the viewpoint of a slave. "Slavery has a longer history in this country than freedom for black folks," she said. "It's important not to forget about it."

Through the work of Jones and her collaborators, the first production of "The Escape" was presented in 1978 by the Penumbra Theatre in St. Paul. As part of her research, Jones tracked down period music for the play, including the popular tunes to which Brown set his lyrics. Jones played the piano for the performances, using the instrument in melodramatic style to introduce entrances of a sneering villain, or add romance to love scenes. Jones will once again play the piano in the UI production.

The UI production will use the prologue and epilogue written for the Penumbra Theatre by Phil black studies; Geneva Southall, pianist and ethnomusicologist from the University of Minnesota; and Art Borreca, theater historian on the faculty of the UI Department of Theatre Arts.

"The Escape" was published in 1858 by William Wells Brown, a self-educated fugitive slave who drew on his experiences as a slave. Brown wrote the play in a broad, melodramatic style that was popular at the time and added to the play's appeal by including humor, romance and music. Earlier, in 1847, Brown had written an autobiography, "Narrative of William Wells Brown, a Fugitive Slave," which traced his life from his unhappy childhood as a slave in Kentucky and Missouri to his escape in 1834 at the age of 20. He also wrote books on history and anthropology and an earlier play that has been lost.

"The Escape," while written as a melodrama, parallels the autobiography. The ending, in which the characters Glen and Melinda must fight off pursuers to launch their boat to Canada, could have been a theatrical device, but, in fact, it was based directly on Brown's own experience. Brown and his friends, both other slaves and whites assisting the escape, fought off a

Grammy Award nominees perform at Hancher

Artists who will perform this spring in the UI's Hancher Auditorium were honored with nine Grammy Award nominations, according to the nomination list announced Thursday, January 11.

Upcoming Hancher artists capturing Grammy nominations are Diane Schuur, the Count Basie Orchestra, American Indian Dance Theatre, Emanuel Ax and Yo-Yo Ma, Kathleen Battle and the Kronos Quartet.

Vocalist Diane Schuur and the Count Basie Orchestra, who will appear in concert February 15, accounted for four of the Grammy nominations. Schuur was nominated in the Female Jazz Vocal category for her rendition of "The Christmas Song." The Basie Orchestra was nominated in three categories: the band was recognized in Big Band Jazz Instrumental for "The Legend, the Legacy" and Arrangement on an Instrumental for "The Count Basie Remembrance Suite" and band leader Frank Foster received a nomination in the Instrumental Arrangement category for "Bring on the Raindrops."

Opera star Kathleen Battle, whose solo concert will be April 1, is in contention twice in the Classical Vocal Soloist category, for her "Shubert: Lieder" recording and her duo with Placido Domingo, "Live in Tokyo 1988."

Tales of the Bizarre

ALEXANDRIA, Ind. (AP)—When the Monroe Township Groundhog Society members meet, they shake hands and then snort at each other.

The snort as a form of greeting is no laughing matter to a society in which members wear fake fur and groundhog hoods with ears, according to David Steele, the group's historian.

The society requires the 18 members to "pass the snort test and take at least one snort a year."

The society was formed in 1929, but folded in 1935. With the discovery of some old society papers, the group re-emerged last January.

Steele said that many people can't understand why a grown man wants to become a groundhog member, although the civic group raises funds for community projects in the central Indiana town about 30 miles northeast of Indianapolis.

"Each year we have $1,000 to $1,500 to put back into the community. At the same time, we get to act silly — like little boys," he said. And to celebrate Groundhog Day in proper style.

On Friday, at the society's annual "swill" breakfast on Groundhog Day, member Sam Lower will emerge from a groundhog mound made of pipe, bushes and canvas only after hearing the group's chant:

"Groundhog, groundhog, we must know. Is it spring or is it snow? Tell us, tell us, we can't wait. Come on out, you reprobate."

Rushdie angered by 'Verses' paperback delay

LONDON (AP)—The publisher of "The Satanic Verses" has angered its author, Salman Rushdie, by deciding to delay publishing a paperback version because of the Moslem death threats, a newspaper said.

"Mr. Rushdie is now claiming that his life will never be safe until the publishing cycle is completed," The Observer said in its report Sunday.

Rushdie has been in hiding under police guard since February 14, when the Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini, the leader of Iran, urged Moslems to seek out and kill the author and others involved in the publication of "The Satanic Verses." Khomeini died in June. Many Moslems believe the book, which has caused worldwide protests, is blasphemous to Islam.

In a statement later Sunday, publisher Viking Penguin addressed plans for publishing the paperback.

"No firm date has been established, but even if it had it would not be the company's policy to reveal such information for obvious security reasons."

The Observer, quoting an unidentified company source, said the publishers will not produce the paperback as long as there is risk to its staff, bookshops or the public.

The Observer, which occasionally publishes book reviews by Rushdie, said Viking Penguin's decision has strained the company's relations with Rushdie. It said Rushdie is claiming the company has a contractual obligation to publish a paperback edition without delay.

In August, the company indicated to Mr. Rushdie it hoped he would agree that the paperback should be delayed at least until the excitement about it had subsided, The Observer said.

The newspaper quoted the company source as saying "Salman turned this down flat."

relinquish
leadership

WASHINGTON (AP)—Bush officials said they could not confirm Tuesday that Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev was considering relinquishing his post as Communist Party leader.

"All I can tell you... is that therefore it's not something that should respond to or react to," James Baker told reporters after a meeting with Gorbachev's aide announced in Moscow with Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze and said Gorbachev would avoid interfering with the Communist Party Central Committee Moscow February 8-9, said a source.

"We're following the story, as I will have a comment if we see something more than just a rumormongering account."
CNN, quoting a "well-informed" party source, said from the emergence of Gorbachev on television did not rule out a dramatic reshuffle of the Central Committee.

Before the TV appearance on Tuesday was last seen in public January 1989, Soviet troops had been sent to the Baltic states.
