Miami City Manager Nick DiDio announced that the city would hold a public meeting to discuss the future of College Green Park.

DiDio said the meeting would be held at 10 a.m. on February 10 at the City Hall.

The meeting will be open to the public and will provide an opportunity for residents to provide input on the park's future.

The park currently includes a playground, a playground for children, and a picnic area.

DiDio said the city is considering a number of options for the future of the park, including the possibility of closing the park to vehicular traffic.

Nagle elaborates on ag legislation

Nagle's speech was sponsored by the Iowa City Chamber of Commerce during a luncheon at the Iowa Athletic Club. Nagle discussed the future of U.S. farm legislation.

Changes of sexually exploiting those girls aged 18, 19, and 20 years, according to Johnson County District Court records. Lorens was sentenced to four years in prison or suspended for three years of probation. He was also ordered to pay back $15,000 in restitution for his crimes, according to court records.

According to recherches found that Lorens' equipment was used for ethical purposes based on an investigation from "Lorens' diary" indicating that he used and plotted to use the equipment to show the girls' entitlements and their child's age. The property owned by the investigation has been returned to the state of Iowa, according to court records.

Lorens wrote about "preparing equipment" or using "a camera" to keep the girls, according to excerpts of his diary filed at the Johnson County District Court. "I have to set up video cam in the house so I can get some nude shots of the girls," excerpts from Lorens' diary read. "I also wrote of facing the situation as he would record child sex and allegedly having pornography films playing while the girls visited so they would see the nnufic of the day before filming.

The property was estimated at $30,000, according to court records.

Students need ethics exposure

John Kepner

Graduates entering the business world used to be prepared for more than just number-crunching. A recent study on business ethics showed that the number of unethical business practices was overwhelming.

Conducted by John Delaney, UI associate professor of business, and Columbia Business School professor David Margolis, the study examined the ethics of over 1,000 businesses. The results were frightening.

One thousand alumni of the Columbia business program from the classes of 1964 to 1985 were asked about the frequency and severity of ethical dilemmas they had faced. While most alumni believed they had not engaged in unethical behavior, one in three said they had.

"There's a lot of guilt in people who make unethical decisions," Delaney said.

Examples of unethical behavior include illegal dumping of toxic waste, insider trading and kickbacks. Delaney hopes the study will show students that it's not as easy to be ethical in the workplace.

"The honest student to situate and combat ethical problems," he said.

The survey was conducted in response to a recent study on corporate ethics.

"We present the students with the situations in various classes," Kepner said.
SERIOUS-LEE
To the Editor:

Tuesday night in the main lounge I could hardly believe some of the things that were said during the "A & B" networks of Spike Lee.

Lee is the most political artist of our time. His position is brave and powerful; his visions are deep and multifaceted. The turning point for him was in the spring of 1987 when he abandoned all direct political approaches and decided that freedom was better than violence. In 1989, after the velvet revolution of Eastern Europe, he again felt it was right to express himself in the "A & B" networks.

Lee has always been a controversial figure, but never before has he been so bold and so powerful.

Yuppy angst
To the Editor:
The yuppy's "au naturale" in the "B" networks is simply that, "au naturale." The yuppy has a stake in the world, he has a political stance, he is a "natural" and he is "au naturale.

Can you imagine if all Americans were "au naturale"? Would we have a problem? We know all about Jewish people in the "A & B" networks.

Spike Lee is a black man, he is a black man, and he is a black man.

What's in a name?
To the Editor:

I read the other day in the Daily Iowan that Spike Lee is a black man.

Is that what you meant when you said "Spike Lee is a black man"?

Spike Lee

Unasked questions
Spike Lee is living proof that an artist — talented, diligent, truly artist — can have more impact on his culture than any other genre can.

He is also living proof that a political artist of such enormous talent and passion cannot escape the unhappy mantle of cultural guru.

In the past, any filmmaker could have filmed the IMU Main Lounge to bursting, could have inspired students to wait as long as four hours to get a seat, could have told the tongues of so many who took the microphone during the question-and-answer period hard to say how he tells — Spike Lee has won the election to the spirit of his generation.

It was disappointing, then, to hear Lee tell the audience not to ask: "What's in a name?" because, "I don't have the answers — so please, none of that!" Not surprising, but still disappointing.

What other filmmaker could have filmed the IMU Main Lounge to bursting, could have inspired students to wait as long as four hours to get a seat, could have told the tongues of so many who took the microphone during the question and answer period? None but Spike Lee.

Obviously Lee doesn't have the answers. No one does. But owing to his brilliance as an artist, he has the floor forever. And as an answer, he has certainly has beliefs — many of which he has managed, through the years, to find in his films and his public remarks, to keep hidden.

More of his argumentation, then, was the audience's failure to ask Lee the questions one might ask a controversial filmmaker, a filmmaker who shows us more about the state of race relations in this nation with such stunning effect as anything that Mr. Orwell wrote about the destruction of a long-repressed people.

Lee's vision of life and his own self has expressed warm support for Gorbachev's reforms; that Gorbachev's development has created a vacuum in the use of force. The political system of one-party totalitarianism has been liquidated.

Spike Lee is a racist film? Because of Lee's passion and talent, many of us have not been able to see that definition, blacks or any other historically long-repressed people. Even so, the director's response was that Freedom was better than violence.

Yes, in 1989, inflation, austerity, and resource decapitalization did not lead Poland, Czechoslovakia, East Germans and other Eastern Europeans to look back on 40 years of writing and a world war to get a response. For Orwell, it took four hours to hold a meeting that he himself called.

It's not necessarily true that "Freedom is better than violence". For Lee, it's not up to us to judge. We are not just "politicians"; we are also "intellectuals".

If this isn't good news, what is?
I hate to ask at the Soviet Union over the past few years and particularly misguide Gorbachev's "perestroika," "the new efforts" of the Soviet Administration, the Washington Institute [Soviet James Baker's departure for Europe, "It's all well and good, but..."

Debating the world's longest, most despairing experiment marked by the United States, he abandoned all direct political approaches and decided that freedom was better than violence. In 1989, after the velvet revolution in Eastern Europe, he again felt it was right to express himself in the "A & B" networks.

Weight

Exercise is the main proposed in its health benefits. A major part of the weight loss of some body, especially the facial area, is not to be achieved by reducing fat and muscle mass, but partly muscle and partly muscle. It is recommended that women exercise vigorously for at least 30 minutes, 5 times a week, with a focus on maintaining muscle mass and reducing body fat.

India

Socio economic situation of many of the poor is such that they cannot afford to eat well. The poor in India are often forced to eat a diet high in sodium, sugar, and fat. This leads to a high prevalence of cardiovascular diseases. The government of India is working towards improving the nutritional status of its citizens. One of the main issues is to improve access to affordable and nutritious food.

HANOICAO (AP)— A federal judge in a Chinese heroin case refused Wednesday to order the release of a Chinese defendant and said he had led under pressure from Chinese officials.

Senior Judge William Orrick halted parole for the one accused of being involved in the March 1986 shipment in the United States, and said he had been forced into acting.

Many of the defendants had been imprisoned in a Chinese prison.

Attorneys for the defendant, who is being held under conditions that are still not known to the public, said they had been repeating the request.

Cheney affirms U.S. support for S. Korea

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney reaffirmed "defensive" support for South Korea on Wednesday, after his visit to the Philippines. President George Bush offered "a little more assistance" to Congress, who has repeatedly declined to meet Cheney when he arrives this weekend.

Bush's trip to Seoul this week is a key moment in the Bush administration's efforts to reassure the government that its support is not wavering, while reducing the number of American troops and getting the president for a separate arms treaty with Korea.

One of the main reasons for the Bush administration's decision to send the president to Seoul is the need to reassure the South Korean government that its support is not wavering, while reducing the number of American troops and getting the president for a separate arms treaty with Korea.

The action comes amid growing concern about the situation in the Horn of Africa, where a new war is brewing.

UI Press publishes Parker's lost play

The Daily Iowan

A long-forgotten and previously unpublished play by one of America's great authors, Mark Twain, is being published by the University of Iowa Press.

Parker was a well-known literary personality of the 1890s and a member of the famed Algonquin Round Table. When he died in 1895, he left an unsold manuscript, "The Adventures of Colonel People." The story follows the life of a man who, after a series of adventures, becomes a colonel in the army.

UI Press editor, Paul Bloom, director of the University of Iowa Press, said he was interested in Parker's work. "I think this play has a lot of potential," he said. "It's a classic example of Twain's genius."

Garner returns to school
Former Iowa point guard Garner may be on his way back to the Iowa basketball program. The sophomore had said he wouldn't transfer as senior after being declared academically ineligible.

But in is back in class on the remainder of his scholarship after turning in some serious work the last month of summer school, Garner said he'll be back and open next fall since he has previously requested to be released from his scholarship.

But will Garner be in uniform in the fall as a walk-on?
"That's up to the coaches," Davis said. "It's back to school and will have options at the end of the year. But he's still on scholarship. We don't want to cut him out."

Jackie considered one of best
The senior center Les Kennedy is getting more and more notice these days.

The starter on the Hawkeye men's basketball team is one of the most impressive weapons for the No. 23 NCAA Midwest Regional.

"He's a pro, but operates on the same level as a senior," said Davis, "One of the best centers in the Big Ten".

Streak ends for Lenieux
NEW YORK—(AP)—Marine Lenieux's point-scoring streak ended at 17 games as the New York Islanders upset the New York Rangers.

"Robert is one of the best players in the league," said the Islanders' coach, "He's an offensive force and his presence will be missed against the Rangers" understands that he hasn't been seeing much of a scoring opportunity and that it's just a matter of time before he gets a chance to contribute.

"I'll like to play more when I see a lot of games in the lineup," he said.

"I'm looking forward to getting back to practice and playing in front of a home crowd." He added that he's also looking forward to competing against some of the league's top teams.

"I'm just waiting for the right opportunity to step up and make a difference in the team's success," he said.

you're looking at depth, look at Minnesota and you're looking at something special," said the coach.

"It's not just the Stars that have depth, but the whole league has. Everyone is doing well and everyone is making the most of it."

"I'm just happy to be part of this team and I'm looking forward to the future." He added that he's excited about the upcoming season and the potential for the team to achieve great things.

"I can't wait to see what we can do as a team this season." He concluded by expressing his confidence in the team's ability to succeed and achieve their goals.

Michael Ingram and Troy Skinner had an emotional moment as they dropped their 200-yard dash times.

Both have experienced problems along with Iowa fans, too. Their times were dropped to 20.58 and 21.01, respectively.

Ingram has been working on hitting the stripe, and Skinner is trying to improve his time.

Michigan coach charged on program-sales scam

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Former Michigan baseball coach Bill Long was charged with a felony in a state court in Ann Arbor, Mich., for allegedly having funneled money to his former assistant, according to court records.

The warrant alleges he diverted proceeds from football sales, and that he had been diverting them since 1985. If convicted, he could be fined up to $1,000 and face up to two years in prison. He was scheduled to appear in court Tuesday morning.
