Regents may require notice for fee changes

Brian Dick
The Daily Iowan

Student government leaders will have at least 30 days' notice of tuition- and fee-related proposals being considered by the state Board of Regents in the future if a proposal by board Executive Secretary R. Wayne Richey is accepted at the board's Wednesday meeting in Des Moines.

Richey's proposal comes after student lobbying groups at Iowa's three state universities questioned the legality of the regents accepting a lower tuition increase proposal after they initially proposed a higher increase.

Although the Board adopted tuition and student health fees for fiscal year 1991 at its October 1989 meeting, the October rates were lower than those given preliminary consideration in September.

In early January, the educational lobbying group United Students of Iowa requested that the board freeze the 1991 tuition rates because the group was not given sufficient notice of the figures in the October proposal.

But instead of freezing the increase as requested by USI members, Richey recommends the regents relay the legal advice of Deputy Attorney General Elizabeth Osenbaugh, which rules in favor of the regents' decision to implement the tuition increase.

Osenbaugh cited the Iowa Code, which stipulates that the board must send notice of any proposal to increase tuition, fees or charges "no less than 30 days prior to action by the board... to the presiding officers of the student government organization of the affected institutions."

Since the October tuition rate was lower than the preliminary September rate, Osenbaugh said the board did not err in not allowing an additional 30 days' notification.

"The question raised is whether the regents were precluded from approving a lower tuition increase than that proposed in the notification or whether an additional notification was required," Osenbaugh said.

Festival offers a cultural variety

Event celebrated with food, games

Tonya Feit
The Daily Iowan

Experiencing different cultures by tasting their foods, playing their games and seeing their displays drew about 4,000 people to an international celebration Sunday.

As the UI Field House was transformed into an international festival marketplace, the Iowa City community experienced the cultural diversity of more than 50 countries.

"Celebrating Cultural Diversity Through Games, Foods, and Entertainment" began with an opening ceremony by the UI Scottish Highlanders, who were dressed in their traditional tartans.

Throughout the afternoon, the Field House was buzzing with activities ranging from a demonstration of the African game, Ajua, to a presentation on Pakistani wedding customs.

"This really allows people to see different cultures," said Sharon Hernandez-Dorow, who worked in a booth displaying artwork and a pinata she was making. "It's a good learning experience. People can ask us questions about what we're doing and see our artwork. It's important to us for our culture."

Hernandez-Dorow's booth was rep-representative of the many displays on the Field House running track. The "circular marketplace" was full of a variety of international foods, jewelry, and clothing for sale. Literature was also provided to passers-by about the countries represented at the event and other minority student organizations.

Darlene Hill was distributing literature about the upcoming census at the event.

"This allows people to get together and experience different cultures in a non-threatening manner," Hill said. "We're making sure individuals get counted. Minorities are often undercounted and in a diverse cultural place such as Iowa City a lot of people may not be informed of the democratic process.

We're trying to get that information out."

In other areas of the Field House, international students demonstrated a variety of games including rugby, sepakraw, tai chi, See Festival, Page 7A

Gangsters in Chicago politics

Republican chairman at center of scandal

CHICAGO (AP) — The city of Al Capone and feisty politics has been abuzz for a week over claims by a suspected crime boss that the mob bribed local politicians and even helped engineer Mayor Richard Daley's election last year.

James Dvorak, Cook County Republican Party chairman, at the uncomfortable center of the controversy over allegations he was paid thousands of mob dollars in bribes. He and others hit by the tape-recorded allegations, including his one-time boss, Sheriff James O'Grady, deny the claims.

There also are questions about why federal prosecutors would let explosive taped allegations against known officials be played in open court with no advance notice, little follow-up and, to date, no criminal charges filed.

The tapes dominated local newscasts and had wide play in Chicago's two largest daily newspapers, the Chicago Tribune and Chicago Sun-Times. Tribune columnist Mike Royko, though a longtime critic of politicians, said the feds' tactics were unfair.

"It seems to me that the federal prosecutors, out of fairness, should do something more than play a tape that causes a media uproar, then clam up," wrote the Pulitzer Prize-winning commentator.

"It's great fun for the news business and for the political enemies of those mentioned on the tape," Royko wrote. "But I didn't know that the Justice Department believed in trial by a jury of gossip See Mob, Page 4A

U.S. sex: Prolific as we seem?

Surveys say Americans have decreased action

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — American adults say they have intercourse an average of once a week, but those over 70 have sex less than once a month and one person in five claims to have abstained entirely in the past year, according to a survey released Sunday.

The findings, based on a long-running survey of 1,500 households across the country, suggest that Americans are not as sexually adventurous as they are often portrayed.

"This shows that the sexual behavior of Americans is more circumspect and traditional than the libertine impression we get from the popular media and fiction," said Tom Smith of the University of Chicago, who directed the survey.

A separate survey found that teen-age boys are also less sexually active than their on-the-prawl image would imply. It found that adolescents seem to be having sex less often, with fewer girls and at a later age than teen-agers did a decade ago.

"This contrasts sharply with the view that most young men are sexually promiscuous," said Freya Sonenstein of the Urban Institute in Washington, who analyzed the results.

Both reports were among sex surveys outlined at a meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

The University of Chicago results were based on interviews and questionnaires administered to a cross-section of adults in 1988 and 1989. The questions were added to the General Social Survey, which has been conducted annually since 1972.

Surprisingly little is known about the sex lives of ordinary Americans, said Smith.

His survey found that on average, adults have sex 57 times a year, or about once a week.

"We don't know what night of the week," he said, "but it sounds like the traditional stereotype of every Saturday night."

Sexual frequency dropped with age from about 78 times a year for those under 40 to eight times for those over 70. Overall, married people have sex 67 times a year, separated people 66 times, divorced and never-married people 55 and widowed people six.

However, 22 percent said they had no sex partners at all during the previous year. Nine percent of See Sex, Page 7A

Germanys could join with NATO

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Soviet Union may ultimately accept full NATO membership for a reunified Germany because it would provide stability that is in Moscow's own interests, two top Western officials said Sunday.

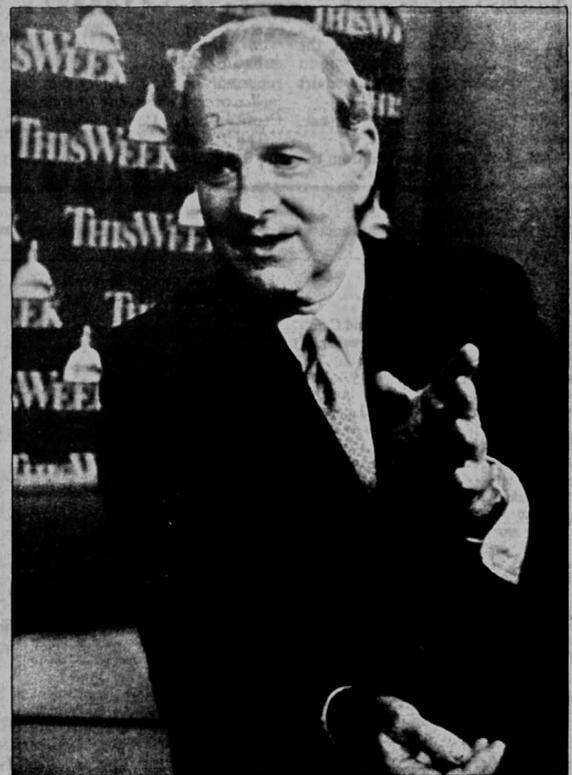

Secretary of State James Baker and Manfred Woerner, secretary general of the Western alliance, said they do not believe objections to full NATO membership voiced by some Soviet officials are the final word.

"We're going to have to see the degree to which they really feel that way," Baker said on ABC-TV's "This Week With David Brinkley" program. "For myself, I would tell you that I'm not so sure that they really strongly feel that way."

Baker said the alliance, as the basis for the presence of U.S. troops in Europe, is something that few on either side of the former Iron Curtain want to dissolve in the current unstable climate in Eastern Europe.

"I think, without putting words in the mouths of the Soviets, that they see the stability that is afforded by the continued presence of United States forces in Europe," he said.

On Saturday a top adviser to Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev, Valentin Falin, said in a radio interview monitored in West

Medical waste incinerator plans on hold

DES MOINES (AP) — A company that met stiff opposition from prospective neighbors has backed down from plans to build a medical waste incinerator in the Des Moines area. BFI Medical Waste Systems has withdrawn its appeal of a decision by the Polk County Board of Adjustment to deny a permit for its proposed incinerator in Delaware Township, said district manager Robert Peterson. It also withdrew its application for a "special use permit" to operate the plant. "People just don't understand this right now, and we were unable to get our message across," Peterson said. "We want to be good neighbors, and the people in the area were just too unhappy." Peterson said the company is considering other locations for the project, but he declined to identify them. Opposition to the Delaware Township project was led by the Association of Community Organizations for Reform Now. ACORN member Cathy Accordino, who lives near the site proposed for the incinerator, said the agency will fight any plans for such a facility. "Our problem with an incinerator being put any place is that there aren't sufficient guidelines or rules governing them, nor are there sufficient personnel to enforce anything," she said. Twice last spring, the Board of Adjustment rejected an application by BFI, a subsidiary of Browning-Ferris Industries of Houston, for a permit to build the $1.5 million incinerator. Attorneys for the company contended the board did not give sufficient reason for rejecting plans to build the plant, which would have burned 1,350 pounds of medical waste an hour. BFI asked for a special permit to begin construction.

Election to be run fairly in Nicaragua: int'l law specialist

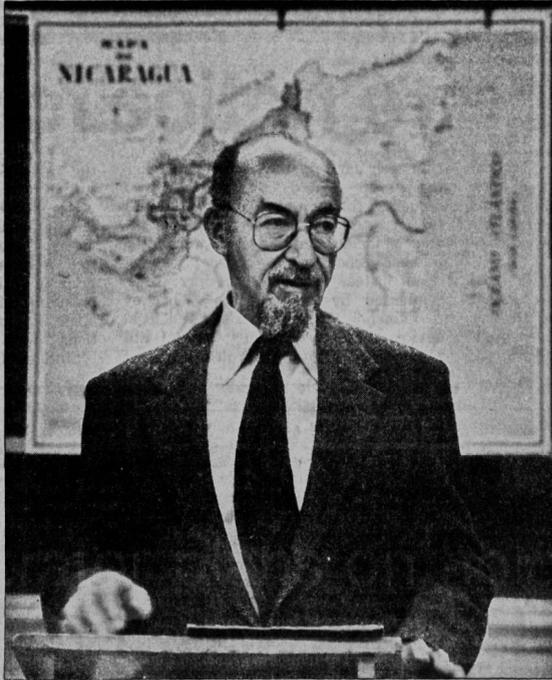

Brian Dick
The Daily Iowan

Ballot-stuffing and vote fraud will not characterize Nicaragua's February 25 elections as expected, international law specialist Peter Weiss told an audience of about 50 in the UI College of Law Friday. Weiss, vice president of the Center for Constitutional Rights, recently returned from an observation mission to Nicaragua where he assisted in monitoring preparations for the upcoming election. The Nicaraguan elections — under sharp criticism for possibly fraudulent voter registration practices — will not be affected by such traditional corruption, Weiss said. "Nobody's saying these elections are going to be fraudulent in the traditional sense," Weiss said. "They won't because this will be the most scrutinized election in history." Already over 2,500 foreign observers and tens of thousands of poll-watchers are taking their places to ensure the elections are carried out without the fraud with which the democratic world expects them to be riddled, Weiss said. "These observer groups are confident in the registration process," he said. "There has been no padding of registered citizens." Election results will be mechanically supervised, counted in public and faxed to two or three observer groups, Weiss said. "That's not the problem," Weiss said. "The way Nicaraguan society is structured, it's difficult for an opposition group to win." Although Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega is waging an American-style campaign, having buried his military uniform in mothballs, the government has democratically allowed opposition parties to receive more media coverage and television air time than they did in the past, Weiss said. This measure is not a facade to fool the observers and give the Nicaraguan government the appearance of holding a fair election, he said. So far, worldwide election scrutiny has produced no calls for alarm, Weiss said.

'Dreams' field to be restored so summer tourists will come DIERSVILLE, Iowa (AP) — The farmer who owns part of the "Field of Dreams" outfield says he'll restore the land to playing shape in time for tourists this summer. People came by the thousands last year to see the field created for the Kevin Costner movie, but all they saw was the infield and most of right field maintained by farmer Don Lansing. The rest of the outfield was planted in corn on land owned by farmer Al Ameskamp. People came anyway, just as baseball greats of many years past appeared when a farmer played by Costner listened to a dream voice telling him, "If you build it, they will come." On some Sundays last summer, traffic was nearly bumper-to-bumper on the gravel road past the Ameskamp's farmhouse on the way to the field. "We ate a lot of dust," he said. Ameskamp said the field will once again return to crops in 1991.

Polly files to appeal assault conviction; sentence delayed

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

Iowa football player Edward Polly was granted an extension Friday to file a brief to appeal his assault conviction. Polly, 20, was sentenced to two days in jail and one year of probation on January 31 for punching UI student Gina Weerts in the face with a closed fist last August, according to Johnson County District Court records. At the January 18 sentencing, Polly was ordered to pay court fees, but was not ordered to pay victim restitution since Weerts had filed no claims for restitution. He was also ordered not to contact Weerts during his probationary term. Polly has not served the sentence — pending action taken on appeal. Leon Spies, Polly's attorney, requested the extension so that he would have time to prepare the brief without neglecting commitments to other clients, according to court records. Polly was given until next Friday to file the brief.

Courts

An Iowa City man was arrested Thursday on charges of assault causing injury after he allegedly bashed his girlfriend's head into a car window, according to Johnson County District Court records. The defendant, Lonson J. Luloff, 38, RR 1, allegedly entered the woman's car while she was stopped at a crossroads, according to court records. He then attacked her in the car, according to court records. After the victim escaped from the car, Luloff reportedly knocked her to the ground, according to court records. Luloff was taken to the Johnson County Jail on $1,000 bond, according to court records. Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for February 15, according to court records. An Iowa City man was charged with possession of a controlled substance Friday after police reportedly found marijuana in his jacket pocket, according to Johnson County District Court records. The defendant, Joseph T. Locher, 32, 625 S. Dodge St., was released on his own recognizance, according to court records. Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for March 6, according to court records. An Iowa City man was arrested Friday on charges of second-degree fraudulent practices after he allegedly falsified unemployment records, according to Johnson County District Court records. The defendant, Benjamin S. Sheeler, 624 S. Gilbert St., Apt. 3, reportedly obtained $812 worth of unemployment pay while he was employed, according to court records.

Sheeler was taken to the Johnson County Jail on $2,500 bond, according to court records. Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for March 6, according to court records. An Ames, Iowa, man was arrested Thursday after he allegedly used another person's credit card to charge over $500 worth of merchandise, according to Johnson County District Court records. The defendant, Donnell D. Lowe, 18, was taken to the Johnson County Jail on $5,000 bond, according to court records.

In Brief

Briefs

- City offices in Iowa City and Coralville will be closed today for Presidents' Day.
- The Iowa City Public Library will be open for its regular hours, but the Coralville Public Library will be closed.
- Buses in both cities will operate on schedule and recreation centers in both cities will be open for activities, but offices will be closed.
- The Senior Center will be open 10:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. and congregate meals will be served.
- An open forum on a proposal to build a multi-use community arts center will be held at 7 p.m. Monday in the Iowa City Public Library, 123 S. Linn St., Meeting Room A.
- Members of the Iowa City Area Chamber of Commerce Arts Committee will be available to discuss their proposal which has already been endorsed by the Iowa City Council and the Chamber of Commerce board.
- A limited number of copies of the proposal will also be available at the meeting.
- Testing for baseline cholinesterase — a natural enzyme which can be used to determine an overexposure to an organophosphate or carbamate insecticide — will be available in over 100 rural hospitals and clinics across Iowa

- this week as part of Pesticide Safety Week declared by Iowa Gov. Terry Branstad.
- Organophosphates and carbamate insecticides are pesticides most often involved in serious human poisoning, according to the Iowa Fertilizer and Chemical Association.
- Through inhalation, skin absorption or ingestion, cholinesterase levels can be reduced, causing muscles to maintain a state of contraction.
- The level of cholinesterase is highly variable from person to person, but fairly constant for an individual, so baseline testing should be done to determine a person's normal level before exposure to pesticides.
- Restaurant managers and workers can learn how to serve safe food and avoid outbreaks of food-borne illnesses such as salmonella during a February 19-20 seminar in Amana, Iowa.
- Offered by the Iowa Department of Inspections and Appeals and the Iowa Environmental Health Association, the seminar will be held at the Ox Yoke Inn from 1-5 p.m. Monday and from 8 a.m. to noon Tuesday.

Registrar's office: Enrollment decline normal for spring

The Daily Iowan

Though UI enrollment figures for spring 1990 are down 275 students from the spring of 1989, UI officials claim the decline is not cause for alarm.

In addition to the loss of 275 students, UI Registrar Jerald Dallam reported a 1,802 decrease from fall 1989 enrollment Friday. This spring's figure of 27,082 students represents a 6.2 percent decline from the fall of 1989.

"These figures are what we had expected," Dallam said. "Spring enrollment is always less than fall semester because of December graduation."

The UI graduated 1,441 students in December 1989 and 1,648 students in December 1988.

Though most colleges reported enrollment declines from fall to spring semester, the colleges of business administration and medicine reported increases.

This overall decline of students is in line with the UI's target enrollment of 29,000 students, as reported in the UI Strategic Planning Committee Report, Achieving Distinction — A Strategic Plan of Rapid growth in the number of students during the late 1970s and early 1980s, combined with no corresponding increases in faculty or facilities, created UI classroom overcrowding, according to the report.

Funding requests should be structured to make "the physical plant more suitable for an enrollment of roughly 29,000 students," the report added.

Fire forces UI students out of apartment

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

Fire blazed through a UI student's apartment bedroom Sunday morning while he was out of town.

Damage to the apartment, estimated at $15,000, has forced him and his five roommates to seek temporary shelter.

Smoke from the fire spread through the entire six-bedroom complex at 622 S. Johnson St., according to Iowa City Fire Inspector Richard Craig.

No one was injured in the fire, which was detected by the student's roommates at about 9:30 a.m.

When Iowa City firemen arrived at the scene, smoke was pouring out of a bedroom window which had been broken by the roommates when they tried to smother the blaze with fire extinguishers.

Smoke was also drifting out of a back entrance to the 12-unit apartment building, Craig said.

Iowa City firefighters extinguished the fire immediately upon arrival.

Day-care issues discussed at forum

Amy Davoux
The Daily Iowan

Issues of day-care choices, quality and governmental responsibility dominated discussion at the National Issues Forum on Sunday.

About 50 people attended the discussion, designed to facilitate lawmakers' awareness of local concerns, which was offered to provide a forum where local citizens could discuss validity, implications and possible solutions to national problems.

"During the forum we hopefully hear opposing viewpoints on issues, although sometimes in Iowa City we get amazingly uniform points of view," said Carol Spaziani, NIF Steering Committee member.

The three choices/solutions for discussion were:

■ The pro-family solution — supporting the belief that surrogate day care for preschoolers is not in the best interest of children or society and government should provide sufficient incentives for parents to care for children in the home.

■ Social investments solution — the belief that government has a clear involvement in day care only in the cases of disadvantaged children.

■ A public commitment solution — the belief that the government should be responsible for regulating accessible, affordable, high-quality child care for all families.

Following opening remarks and a videotape outlining the three proposed solutions, community members broke up into small discussion groups led by NIF Steering Committee members to address issues.

Following these small groups, spokespeople presented a brief report of each group's reactions and concerns.

"We don't try to work to consensus. We instead work from polar views to something closer," said Mildred Lavin, former NIF convenor.

Most people in attendance found none of the three solutions was absolutely acceptable.

The belief that each family should have access to day care was widely accepted, but concern that families also be offered the choice of home care was prevalent.

"We don't like these categories," said one group spokesperson. "They're exclusive and they're judgmental."

Among the group suggestions offered were: day-care fees on a sliding scale to even out the percentage of income spent by each family; better maternity or paternity leaves offered to parents to take care of young children; and tax breaks for families who are taking advantage of public day care or choosing instead home care. "Offering day care shouldn't mean that everyone must use it," said another group spokesperson.

Participants were also asked to fill out both pre- and post-forum questionnaires on their opinions concerning day-care issues.

Questionnaire results will be tallied and forwarded to lawmakers and the NIF National Committee, said Paul Slappey, NIF convenor.

Dan Daly, NIF Steering Committee member, said that the forums are similar to town meetings where the results are passed on to local, state and national governmental representatives.

"We cover three issues yearly. They always seem to be real burning issues of the times and foster informed discussion," Daly said.

Past issues addressed by the NIF forums include AIDS, the national deficit, and health care for the elderly.

Optometrist justifies actions in spite of doctors' doubts

MONTICELLO, Iowa (AP) — Optometrist Gary Fisher says he should have had relatives of patients or other members of his staff in the examining room when he had some women strip to the waist during eye exams, but he says it never occurred to him that some would think the exams were inappropriate.

"It never crossed my mind, honestly, that anybody would perceive scoliosis screening as sexual gratification," said Fisher.

"Retrospectively, there should have been a mother or one of my nurses in the room" during the exams, he said. Or perhaps, he said, he could have asked his wife to step in from her nearby office.

Although he insists the tests were justified, Fisher no longer conducts topless exams and he is fighting the state Board of Optometry Examiners, which found he made an error in judgment and placed him on probation.

A week ago, two former patients filed damage suits against Fisher, alleging the exams caused them emotional damage and were "voyeuristic." They said he touched them during the exams and that there was only a "dubious" connection between scoliosis, or curvature of the spine, and eye problems.

Mob

Ira Raphaelson, acting U.S. attorney, declined to comment on the tapes' release.

The story began with a continuing federal probe into organized crime that yielded indictments of 20 people and allegations that they used murder, other violence and threats to run a gambling operation.

U.S. Attorney General Dick Thornburgh jettied in to announce the busts in a February 7 news conference, calling the operation one of the largest crackdowns ever on organized crime in Chicago.

That generated some interest, but nothing like the detention hearing two days later that sent politicians scrambling to clear their names.

At that hearing, prosecutors played a secretly recorded conversation of Rocco Infelise, a reputed mob gambling boss, in which he talked about payoffs to officials and about influencing the last Chicago mayoral race.

In the September 14 conversation with William Jahoda, a bookie-turned-informant who was wearing a "wire," Infelise said he had been making $35,000 in monthly payoffs to police and officials. Included, he said, was $10,000 a month to the sheriff's office.

"I lay out $35,000 a month for guys that are away and the coppers," Infelise said on the tape. "Between you and I, 10 goes to the sheriff."

Jahoda then asked Infelise what he gets for the $10,000.

"Sheriff never bothers us," he replied. "Then we've got a guy at the state's attorney's office. We got another guy downtown." Media reports interpreted "guys that are away" as jailed mobsters and "another guy downtown" as a federal law enforcement official.

The tape said the payments were made through somebody called "the Bohemian." IRS agent Thomas Moriarty said in court that Jahoda, who also is under indictment, identified the Bohemian as Dvorak, the county GOP chairman who had been O'Grady's top assistant.

Dvorak denied the allegations, as did O'Grady. "If this were true, I would be in Argentina right now, not before you," Dvorak said at a news conference.

But the political firing line was established.

membership for a united Germany and the prospects for an impasse as the two sides begin the so-called two plus four discussions among the two Germans and the allied powers associated with them: the United States, France, Britain and the Soviet Union.

Woerner, also speaking on the ABC-TV program Sunday, was even more direct.

"I think the Russians will accept such a solution, of course under one condition: that we give them a clear guarantee this is not turning against them," he said.

"What you see at this very moment is a kind of tactical play, which is very natural," Woerner added, contending that Gorbachev himself has made no firm commitment on the question of German alignment.

"He was very cautious and non-committal on that, and you have very different and vague responses from high Soviet leaders," said Woerner.

"So I think if they really think their own legitimate security interests through, it will be better for them to have a Germany which is in a stable condition and is firmly embedded in safety and security structures, than to have a neutral Germany floating around trying to form alliances," Woerner said.

Without an anchor in NATO, Woerner added, a neutral Germany would "revert into national rivalries" of the sort which led to World Wars I and II, "and we want that not to happen again."

Both Baker and Woerner repeated assurances that under NATO membership, military forces of the alliance would not be advanced into what is now East Germany.

The discussions are likely to be driven ahead faster than either side is prepared for because of economic discontent in the East and a flow of fortune seekers across the border to the West.

"Unification is taking place as we sit here this morning, on the ground, economically," Baker said. "There is de facto economic integration, unification, taking place," he said, adding that there is "an excellent chance" that the two Germans will be back together before the year is out.

ANC leader responds to party myths

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — A top-ranking exiled leader of the African National Congress, in an unprecedented interview shown Sunday on state-run television, appealed to whites to help build a post-apartheid South Africa.

Thabo Mbeki, the ANC's equivalent of a foreign minister, told viewers they had been the victims of a long-misinformation campaign that depicted his organization as seeking to impose a communist-style one-party state.

"What has inspired the ANC for all these 70-plus years of its existence has been the vision of a South Africa that belongs to all the people," Mbeki said from Lusaka, Zambia, the group's headquarters. "If they acted together, they could transform this country into something great."

It was the first time the South African Broadcasting Corp. has conducted and broadcast its own in-depth interview with one of the ANC's exiled leaders.

On Thursday, it carried an interview by two of its reporters with Nelson Mandela, the ANC leader freed February 11 after 27 years in prison.

Until February 2, when President F.W. de Klerk lifted a 30-year ban on the ANC, it was a crime for South African media to quote Mbeki and other senior ANC leaders.

Asked about de Klerk's peace initiative, aimed at starting negotiations on a new constitution, Mbeki replied: "The road ahead is still a long road, with lots of problems in front of us. But hopefully the doors to a political settlement of this problem have been opened."

"What white South Africa needs to do is to join the process of ending the apartheid system," he said.

He said whites have "a very, very wrong perception of the ANC, the result of many decades of misinformation... that the ANC is some communist-dominated group whose intention is to impose itself on the people of South Africa with a one-party state, that it's going to destroy the economy."

"It is important that the ANC should not be demonized in the eyes of the people," Mbeki said.

He said he was not surprised at a backlash among right-wing whites opposed to de Klerk's reforms.

"A lot of white South Africans like the idea of political power being monopolized by the whites," he said. "It is important that this small minority should not be given a right of veto, not be treated as a force to block change which the overwhelming majority of our people want."

Nicaraguan opposition coalition holds rally

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — The United National Opposition closed its election campaign on Sunday with the largest anti-government rally in 10 years, and its presidential candidate promised peace in Central America if she wins.

The broad, U.S.-backed coalition of 14 parties and one native Indian organization — known as UNO — is the major rival of the ruling Sandinista National Liberation Front in general elections next Sunday.

"On this bright day, which announces the end of the dark night of Sandinismo, I raise my flag of national reconciliation," Violeta Barrios de Chamorro told a crowd of about 60,000.

Chamorro repeated campaign promises to end the draft, rebuild the economy and reduce the size of the army, the largest in Central America.

"Next Sunday... the vote of the people is going to knock down the wall of shame, as the German people did with the Berlin wall," she told cheering supporters at the Plaza of the Revolution.

She is challenging President Daniel Ortega for a six-year term, in an election that has been called a referendum on 10 years of Sandinista rule.

About 1.7 million Nicaraguans, nearly half of the population of 3.8 million, have registered to vote in the elections for president and vice president, National Assembly, 144 municipal councils and two regional councils.

The rally drew the biggest opposition attendance yet.

Romanians attack gov't headquarters

Demonstrations most truculent since Ceausescu

BUCHAREST, Romania (AP) — Demonstrators yelling "Down with Communism!" smashed their way into interim government headquarters with rocks and iron rods Sunday in the most violent protest since the December pro-democracy revolution.

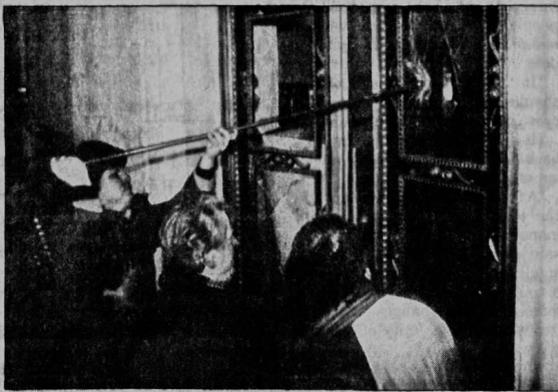

Soldiers fell back before the demonstrators, who numbered more than 1,000. An official said not enough troops were on hand to keep order.

The state news agency Rompres said more than 20 paratroopers were severely wounded, but reporters saw only two injured soldiers. The building on Victory Square has been used by Prime Minister Petre Roman since the revolution that toppled longtime Communist dictator Nicolae Ceausescu, later executed.

The enraged crowd occupied the offices, shouting for interim President Ion Iliescu to resign and accusing the provisional government of being dominated by Communists from the Ceausescu regime.

The only member of government in the building apparently was Vice Prime Minister Gelu Voican Voiculescu.

Demonstrators seized him, punched him and dragged him onto

Associated Press

A Romanian demonstrator using an iron rod tries to break the windows of one of the entrances of the government headquarters in Victory Square Sunday. Hundreds of Romanians outside the building called for the resignation of Interim President Ion Iliescu.

a balcony, where he was jeered. Soldiers hustled him to his office, where they guarded him from hundreds of demonstrators yelling "Voican! Voican!"

The crowd broke inside the building after soldiers hauled away protesters who scaled the building and waved Romanian flags from a balcony.

Protesters told the crowd one man who was hauled away had been shot, prompting cries of "Assassins! Murderers!"

More than 1,000 people in front of the building cheered as protesters smashed the windows and glass doors. More than 500 people poured in.

Authorities later sent infantry reinforcements, who kept demonstrators from entering the building. Many protesters left the building, but the crowd outside grew to more than 5,000, more than half merely curious onlookers.

No trouble was reported elsewhere in Bucharest or in the country.

Roman, who was in Paris on a four-day official visit, said the protesters represented an insignificant portion of the population. He told French TV network Antenne-2 that he spoke with officials of the ruling Provisional Council for National Unity who assured him, "All is in order."

"At this time we are only a provisional council," Roman said. "We do not have a real legitimacy, but these 200 persons that entered the building of the provisional government, they represent nothing."

Roman said arrests were made, but gave no figure.

He told French journalists earlier Sunday that his Eastern European nation had reached political stability under the leadership of Iliescu, increasingly disliked for his Communist past.

Armored personal carriers pulled up on the south side of the building, near Voiculescu's office.

Voiculescu told The Associated Press the demonstration caught authorities unprepared, with not enough paratroopers on hand to contain the crowd.

He said, "The only thing left to do would have been to shoot at the people. The army's job is not to shoot at the people. Let them run around."

He accused opposition parties of inciting the violence and charged that they were using the Securitate, the hated secret police under Ceausescu.

Protesters shouted that the government had not disbanded the Securitate as it had promised. "The only solution is another revolution!" they yelled.

Notice

Osenbaugh said the regents could vote a lower tuition increase without 30 days' notice since the lower rate fell within maximum of September's rate proposal. "The purpose of providing an opportunity to comment is satisfied, we believe, where the ultimate decision is within the maximum proposed," Osenbaugh said. An important purpose of the notice-and-comment procedure is to provide affected persons an opportunity to affect the final decision, Osenbaugh said. "If the regents were required to provide additional notice to vote a lower tuition increase, this would discourage changes in response to the comments and concerns raised in the process," she said. "If the rate increases are within the scope of the original notice and the differences from the notice are a logical outgrowth of the comments, the regents need not issue an additional notification before adopting the rate increase," Osenbaugh said. While the regents are not likely to rescind the tuition proposal Wednesday, UI USI representative Jo-Ellen Huss called their resolution, which gives an additional 30-day notice before amending future rate changes, the third of three major USI victories. "One, we're on the docket, and two, we get the docket earlier," Huss said. "Three, we now have that 30 days notice for any changes."

married people were abstinent, as were 86 percent of widowed people. Among other findings:

- Adults say they have had an average of seven sex partners since age 18. Divorced people have had 13, the most of any group.
- Only 1.5 percent of married people admitted cheating on their spouses during the previous year.
- Between 91 percent and 93 percent have been exclusively heterosexual during their adult lives. Five percent to 6 percent have been bisexual, and less than 1 percent are exclusively homosexual. About 3 percent have never had sex.
- Married people who say they are the happiest also have the most sex.

- Seven percent of adults are at relatively high risk of catching AIDS because they have multiple sex partners, have sex with strangers or are homosexual.
- Smith said some people probably lied about their sex habits, especially unmarried men, who seemed to inflate the vigor of their sex lives, and unmarried women, who claimed to experience less sex than they actually were having. But in general, he said he had "reasonable confidence" in the data.

The survey of boys was based on interviews with 1,880 people ages 15 to 19 in 1988. The results were compared with a similar survey in 1979.

The boys said they had had six sex partners, compared with seven a decade earlier. They reported having had sex an average of three times during the previous month, compared with almost five times in the earlier survey.

catch, peteca, fencing, soccer, lacrosse and capoeira. After the demonstrations, those in attendance were allowed to participate in the games with the demonstrators.

The UI foreign language house also offered demonstrations of various international dances.

For those who preferred to participate in less rigorous activities, backgammon, Spanish bingo, African American hand games and Native American storytelling were also offered.

Traditional dress from Colombia, Japan, Turkey, Taiwan, Thailand, Malaysia, Brazil, India and even the U.S. were displayed at an international fashion show.

Festivities continued until 6 p.m. with a closing ceremony featuring the Voices of Soul choral group.

The celebration was sponsored by UI Recreational Services, the UI Physical Education Skills program, the UI Office of International Education and Services, and the UI Office of Campus Programs and Student Activities.

KUWAIT

Restoring freedom

There are moments when a leader gets to choose the path of a Gorbachev on the one hand, or a Ceausescu on the other. Such a moment now faces Sheik Jaber al-Ahmad al-Sabah, the Emir of Kuwait.

Since last month, the Kuwaitis have staged massive demonstrations calling for increased political freedom. If the lesson of Eastern Europe means anything at all, the Emir should give it to them without delay.

Until three years ago, Kuwait could rightly be called the most liberal nation in the Islamic world. It was one of the few Islamic nations to have a parliament, which, though limited in its power, nevertheless provided a forum for all kinds of views — fundamentalist and radical. Kuwait's press was not state-controlled, a rarity in the Arab world. But when the parliament criticized Iran during the escalating Gulf War, the Emir dissolved it and imposed stringent press censorship.

Though Arab leaders say that autocracies suit their nations better than Western-style democracies, people in some countries such as Algeria, Iraq and Jordan have demonstrated for more say in their affairs. Islam supports the notion of shura (consultation), and surely it will not harm to consult the people as well as elder statesmen.

Nobody in Kuwait wants to overthrow the Emir or abolish the monarchy. They want the freedom — however limited — that they had enjoyed until recently. In restoring it to them, the Emir can set an example to the Islamic nations that they, too, can keep up with the changing times and still retain their Islamic identity.

IOWA POLITICS

Unexpected edge

The emergence of abortion last year as a polarizing issue in the Iowa gubernatorial race suggested impending doom for anti-abortion candidates in a state with a majority of pro-choice voters. But so far, anti-abortion stances appear to have given one candidate the inside track toward the Democratic nomination and virtually guaranteed another's reelection.

Armed with a potentially potent weapon against incumbent Gov. Terry Branstad, an anti-abortion Republican, Iowa Democrats have fumbled the pro-choice torch by diluting the issue among a crowded field of rather feeble candidates.

According to recent samplings of state Democratic party leaders, Tom Miller — the lone anti-abortion Democratic candidate — remains the front-runner. And, while Don Avenson appears to be cutting into Miller's lead, campaign organizers of Jo Ann Zimmerman and John Chrystal contend that the race is still wide open.

Which is good news for Branstad.

The governor has studiously avoided bold anti-abortion statements, but the incendiary nature of the abortion debate, properly nurtured by a strong Democratic candidate, could have generated a serious threat to his re-election chances.

Instead, Branstad can watch as his brawling Democratic challengers ensure their party's November demise. If Miller wins the nomination, abortion becomes a gubernatorial non-issue and Branstad emerges, once again, unscathed. If any of the other Democrats can seize the nomination, they are likely to be too weakened by lengthy infighting to pose much of a threat.

And once again, when Democrats are faced with the November reality behind the private boasts of Branstad staffers that their man will be governor 'as long as he wants to be,' they will have their party's own ineptitude to blame.

DEMOCRATIC PARTY

War-chest politics

A plan under consideration by the Democratic National Committee to move the California primary to number three on the 1992 schedule can produce only one effect:

It will favor the candidate with the biggest war chest.

Californians have long complained that the California primary, despite the number of delegates at stake, has little impact. As late as it comes, the result has tended to be a foregone conclusion.

But the purpose of the proposed change is not to cheer up Californians, or to de-emphasize Iowa, which may find itself even more important with a California primary close on its heels. By favoring well-financed candidates, who tend to be both well-known and politically moderate, the Democratic Party hopes to produce a more mainstream candidate.

The plan may yet work. But in their obsessive strategizing to capture the elusive White House, Democratic leaders have strayed far from their political origins, and forgotten the charisma factor. It was Jesse Jackson, the most liberal of all the Democratic contenders, who energized the party in 1990; Dukakis' popularity fell off dramatically when Jackson disappeared from the campaign trail.

One has to wonder: Just how far away from its ideological and historical self is the Democratic Party willing to go to produce an "electable" candidate?

'M' searches for the perfect everything

"Dear Friend," the letter begins, amicably. "Is it an attitude — or a way of life? Are you born with it — or is it acquired?"

What is "it," I'm thinking, but my correspondent is quick to explain: "I'm talking about style. And because I'm writing to you, I trust you know the answers."

Actually, I don't know the answers. Truth is, I can't say that I've ever even pondered the questions. My general position on style is to leave it alone and maybe it'll go away.

That is not, however, the position of my correspondent, who continues:

"Style — quality — is an attitude. But it's also a way of life. And while some aspects of style can be acquired, I'm convinced that the seed of the gentleman's psyche is carried into life at birth."

The writer expounding this rather novel theory of beau monde genetics is one Mr. John Fairchild, editor of M, "the extraordinary magazine for the man who demands the best of everything." And because my "friend" John considers me one of those few men "of quality and style," he's offering quite a deal if I subscribe right away to his publication: 12 issues for only $9.95, "a savings of $8.05 off the basic subscription rate of $18 and over 72 percent off the newsstand price."

It seems like a good deal, all right, but I suspect that John's demographic team may have seriously erred when they identified me as one of their targeted "civilized men." Not that I'm uncivilized, mind you. I eat most of my food using the appropriate utensils, and when I don't, I lick my fingers clean. I say "please" and "thank you" as necessary. And I seldom belch or pick my nose in public.

J.L.

But I don't think that I'm quite yet ready to explore the airy heights of sophistication that apparently are the focus of M. According to John's letter, fashion is a primary concern of the publication: "M will be your inside track to the very latest and the very best" in men's clothing. "You'll find the best ties, the best shoes, the best belts, the best pajamas, the best slippers, and the best grooming aids. With tips and suggestions for putting it all together to create your own individual style."

The fact is, I've already created my own individual fashion style, and without the help of a magazine. Essentially, it involves periodic bathing and making sure I walk out the front door each morning with my hair combed, shoes on my feet, and everything in between relatively neat and not likely to draw undue attention. The apex of my sartorial splendor is wearing a pair of socks that match. No doubt John would consider my sense of fashion "crude," at best, but it's gotten me by all right so far.

"The right night light. The right bikes. The right places and the wrong ones. Men and their toys. How to feel great. The perfect wife."

John Fairchild

Fashion, however, is not the only concern of M. "Month in month out," John writes (neglecting a comma), "I've seen to it that our readers have been treated to a steady stream of insider tips on what's best: the best cars, the best wines, the best coffees, the best cocktails (with recipes), the best rainwear, the best fountain pens ... The right music for the right parties. The right chocolate. The right night light. The right bikes. The right places and the wrong ones. Men and their toys. How to feel great. The perfect wife."

While one might question John's ability to write a complete sentence, the comprehensiveness of his interests certainly can't be denied. And I must admit that even I am somewhat curious to find out what M considers to be "the best fountain pens" and "the right chocolate." Not to mention "the perfect wife."

But I'm afraid I still have to pass up John's generous subscription offer. To me, it all seems so overwhelming, this insistent pursuit of "quality, taste, and style." I don't think I could handle the pressure. What if I found that "the best slippers" selected by M didn't fit me? What if I couldn't afford "the best cars" or "the best wines"? What if "the best coffees" caused me intestinal eruption? What if "the best night light" kept me awake? What if I discovered my wife wasn't "perfect"?

No, I don't think I'm ready for that kind of self-revelation. It's enough for me to live each day worrying only about minimizing personal embarrassment; to have to worry additionally if I possess the "best" things or if I'm doing the "right" things is a burden I just don't care to shoulder.

I guess I wasn't born with "the seed of the gentleman's psyche" that M magazine aims to cultivate. But then someone has to be a weed in the garden of style. Might as well be me. Besides, it's a savings of 100 percent off the basic subscription rate and the newsstand price. Now that's a good deal.

To some S. Africans, change is heresy

BOXBURG, South Africa — On the veranda of his unassuming middle-class home a half-hour outside Johannesburg, a stocky, affable 39-year-old Afrikaner named T.J. Ferreira offers his visitor coffee or tea, exchanges pleasantries, and explains why he and his fellow conservatives maintain they are willing to start a violent uprising if necessary to preserve white rule in South Africa.

At a time when the ruling National Party has abandoned its commitment to apartheid, through which it came to power in 1948, at a time when President F.W. de Klerk recognizes Nelson Mandela as a national leader rather than as a terrorist, a significant minority among whites is watching its entire world turn upside down.

Jeff Greenfield

T.J. Ferreira is a political force among them; as Conservative Party chairman for Boxburg — a largely blue-collar community — he helped lead the fight to bar blacks from the lake, playgrounds and other town amenities.

For Ferreira and his followers, de Klerk's move toward negotiations with the recently legalized African National Congress is, in the most literal sense, treason.

"F.W. — we call him 'Farewell Whiteman de Klerk' — is part of the enemy, worse than the Communists, because he is in our midst." To share power with blacks, Ferreira maintains, is to destroy the country. He makes no bones about why: Blacks, he maintains, are simply inferior to whites.

It is important to understand this. Unlike some American Southerners, who opposed the civil rights movement on constitutional grounds, such as states' rights, the Afrikaners who oppose an end to apartheid do so because they believe a black majority will destroy the economic and moral fiber of the nation.

"You can't show me one prosperous country north of South Africa," Ferreira says. "Look at Zimbabwe: The moment the Europeans have pulled out, the country has gone for a loop."

Could the reason be the wholesale adoption of socialism in black Africa?

No, Ferreira maintains, it is because of the innate incompetence of blacks.

"If the Europeans had been here in Africa and the blacks had been in Europe, Africa would have been one of the best places to live in the world. And we wouldn't have any blacks left, because they would have died in the cold, because they wouldn't have been able to think for themselves."

If you point to the American civil rights movement, where the bitter-end opposition of white segregationists crumbled within a few years of the landmark laws of the 1960s, Ferreira rejects any such analogy.

"We have a difference in population," he says. "Being in the majority, as you whites in America are, I would have no fears of these people. But we here in South Africa are not willing to have their culture forced upon us."

In voices such as that of T.J. Ferreira, the National Party government finds itself a dilemma of its own making. The party came to power, ousting the British-based governors in 1948, on a set of assumptions now faithfully clung to by the conservatives: that blacks were divinely ordained to serve whites and to be ruled over by them, and that any notion of racial equality was a step toward inevitable black onslaught.

For years, the National Party denied the franchise to blacks, created boards to judge whether the kink of a citizen's hair or the shape of a citizen's lips meant he should be classified as white or colored or black, created "Bantu" schools to teach blacks just enough to make them loyal servants, and created fictional black "homelands" from which blacks were assumed to come, thus making them non-citizens of South Africa.

These and a hundred other deprivations have brought South Africa to its present state. Now, F.W. de Klerk is attempting to do what "on did in going to China, what Gorbachev is doing in abandoning Leninist faith."

He is attempting to cast aside the ideological framework in whose name he came to power. Sadat got murdered for his troubles; Gorbachev may not survive his own conversion. And if men like T.J. Ferreira have anything to say about it, F.W. de Klerk will not survive his own heresies, either.

Soviet officials inspect space station

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. — Russian defense committee lawmakers toured the Kennedy Space Center Sunday as NASA prepared the shuttle Atlantis for a Thursday launch with a secret satellite that reportedly will spy on the Soviet Union.

The committee chairman and head of the delegation, Vladimir Lapygin, said he was impressed by the shuttle launch facilities, and when asked by a reporter what he thought of Atlantis' spy satellite, he replied with a smile:

"We have no special secrets. . . . I think you are wasting your money."

The unprecedented five-hour Soviet visit here and stops at other U.S. military installations is a result of the new openness in the Soviet Union and follows a similar trip to that country last August by members of the U.S. House Armed Services Committee.

Mubarak, Gadhafi meet for fourth time

CAIRO, Egypt — Former archenemies Libyan leader Moammar Gadhafi and President Hosni Mubarak on Sunday discussed Arab and African issues, Egypt's government-run news agency said.

It was the leaders' fourth summit meeting since relations between their neighboring north African countries started improving last year.

However, Libya remains the only Arab state that has not officially resumed diplomatic relations with Egypt, severed in 1979 to protest the Egyptian-Israeli peace treaty.

The Middle East News Agency quoted Information Minister Safwat el-Sherif as saying the leaders met privately for two hours and then had a working lunch.

El-Sherif said they discussed "Arab issues, especially the developments of the Palestinian issue . . . also the deteriorating situation in Lebanon . . . (and) African issues."

Following the talks, Mubarak said he would present an Egyptian suggestion for the resettlement of Soviet Jews during his meeting next month with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Mubarak did not elaborate but said the issue would top his agenda for the meeting.

Four dead, 10 injured in motel explosion

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — A natural gas leak apparently triggered an explosion and fire that ripped through a three-story motel Sunday morning, killing at least four people and forcing some guests to jump from the windows.

The 5:30 a.m. blast blew out the middle front of the 62-unit Super 8 Motel, throwing debris as far as 300 feet from the building, Fire Chief Gary Hawbaker said.

Hawbaker said there was a natural gas line in the middle of the fire, "so we couldn't put out the rest of the fire until the gas was shut off." It took firefighters about 30 minutes to shut off the gas, he said.

Quoted . . .

At this time we are only a provisional council. We do not have a real legitimacy, but these 200 persons that entered the building of the provisional government, they represent nothing.

Japan's conservatives hold on to the majority

TOKYO (AP) — Japan's conservative governing party held on to its 34-year-old majority in Parliament's powerful Lower House Sunday, but scandals and an unpopular tax may have cost it nearly three dozen seats in the closely watched election.

Prime Minister Toshiki Kaifu called the preliminary results "a form of purification" for his troubled Liberal Democratic Party.

The secretary-general of the main opposition Socialist Party, Tsuruo Yamaguchi, disagreed: "Simply being elected does not mean one is absolved." The Socialists made strong gains.

The political outlook was clouded because the opposition holds a majority in Parliament's Upper House, making it difficult to pass major legislation or deal with trade problems with the United States.

The Liberal Democrats needed at least 257 seats to maintain control of the 512-seat Lower House, which chooses the prime minister and can pass a budget without assent of the Upper House.

With 80 percent of the 66 million ballots counted late Sunday, election officials declared the Liberal Democrats had won 240 seats, compared with 114 for the Socialists. The Clean Government Party had 31 seats, the Communist Party 13, the Democratic Socialist Party 12, the United Social Democratic Party three, and 18 independents were elected.

Votes for the remaining 81 seats were to be counted Monday.

Kyodo News Service predicted 271 seats for the Liberal Democrats, enough to control all standing committees in the House but far short of the 295 they held after the last election in June 1986.

"I think we have defended our majority at least," said Ichiro Ozawa, secretary-general of the party, while conceding the loss of rural seats where farmers reacted angrily to increased imports of agricultural products.

About 73 percent of the 90.5 million eligible voters — a high turnout — cast ballots. The election was seen as a test of whether the Liberal Democrats had recovered from a disastrous year of scandals and implementation of an unpopular 3 percent sales tax.

Two conservative prime ministers resigned in quick succession last year amid sex and money scandals, and the Socialists' popular chairwoman, Takako Doi, 61, seemed to have a chance to tilt Japan to the left.

"Simply being elected does not mean one is absolved."

Tsuruo Yamaguchi
Secretary-general
Socialist Party

But the conservative Japanese voters rejected that bold step, though the Socialists enhanced their standing as the No. 1 opposition party. They had 83 seats in the outgoing House.

Doi refused to concede defeat or comment in detail before the final count.

Yamaguchi, the Socialist secretary-general, attributed the Liberal Democrats' success to "support from big business and large contributions from corporations."

At least a dozen Liberal Democrats won re-election despite being linked to last year's so-called Recruit scandal, in which influential politicians profited from cut-rate stock offered by the Recruit Co. conglomerate in return for political favors.

Koshiro Ishida, chairman of the Komeito (Clean Government Party), denounced the results, saying, "There has been no 'purification.' I'd like to know how the Liberal Democrats plan to take responsibility (for corrupt politics)."

Todt's mile shines at Big Tens

INDIANAPOLIS — Angi Todt had trained for just a little over a month before the Big Ten Women's Swimming and Diving Championships.

After catching mononucleosis in the beginning of the season, the Hawkeye freshman from Elkhart, Ind., came down with tonsillitis and had her tonsils removed. Then she returned to the water.

But that didn't show, as her teammates lined the pool during the 1,650-yard freestyle race Saturday and cheered her on to a sixth-place finish in 16 minutes, 37.96 seconds — a considerable drop from her 17:10 at the season's start.

"I don't know where that swim came from," Todt said. "I guess I was in better shape than I thought. It really helped to have everyone yelling for me; I could see all the black shirts. But I can't see how any coach could get someone in shape in four and a half weeks to drop 20 seconds in a mile."

Her coaches seemed equally as impressed.

"Todt's swim was phenomenal," Iowa coach Pete Kennedy said. "To come back from what she did and swim the longest race the way she did was great."

"It shows the ultimate will to win," assistant coach Jim Sheridan said. "That something everyone can take note of. She just wasn't about to let people beat her."

Unfortunately for the Hawkeyes, who had hoped to contend for second place in the league, there weren't too many other swims like that over the weekend.

After holding the No. 5 position after the first day of competition, the Iowa squad fell to seventh place, where they stood at the end with 260 points.

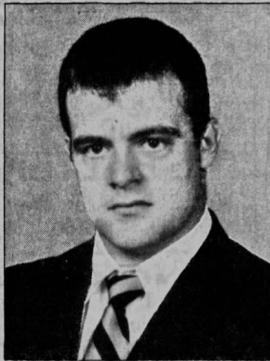

Defending league champion Michigan led throughout the event, finishing with 699 points, followed by Northwestern with 502, Ohio State with 485, Minnesota with 474 and Purdue with 422.5.

The bottom half of the conference was made up of Wisconsin, Iowa, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan State, respectively.

"We all had higher expectations," sophomore Stacie Gilleo said. "But everyone tried as hard as they could and didn't give up. Definitely no one gave up."

"We're disappointed with the seventh place but not with the swims," Kennedy said. "We had two kids make it to nationals and that's more than last year. And a few just missed."

Wrestlers demolish 'Clones for 4th time

Jay Nanda
The Daily Iowan

Like a broken record that repeats the same old sounds, the Iowa wrestling machine skipped past intrastate rival Iowa State — again.

The Hawkeyes' 29-8 destruction of the host Cyclones marked the fourth time in as many tries this season that coach Dan Gable's squad had manhandled Iowa State. The combined score of those matches was 113-29.

"I had hoped that we would win this one and dominate it based on how good we had been before we went on that Okie State trip (last weekend)," Gable said. "I think we wrestled pretty well."

Although assistant coach Mark Johnson said prior to the match that the Hawkeyes had "a rough week of practice," one wouldn't know it by the way Iowa took care of the Cyclones.

Iowa, which is now ranked second in the country by virtue of last weekend's 18-18 tie at Arizona State, scored the first 19 points of the match.

Steve Martin put the Hawkeyes on the board with a narrow 6-5 victory over Cyclone Cale Sponsler at 118 pounds. That was followed by fourth-ranked Terry Brands's 23-11 major decision over No. 7 Dan Knight at 126.

"Terry dominated and he was able to show why he should be the No. 1-ranked wrestler in the country right now," Gable said.

At 134, top-ranked Tom Brands defeated Mike Moreno by a major decision of 20-7, and at 142, No. 7 Troy Steiner took on Cyclone Rob Watt in a rematch of Steiner's 9-0 win in Iowa City last month. This time, the Hawkeye won by a bigger margin, 16-4.

Sixth-ranked Doug Streicher defeated Torrae Jackson 12-4 at 150 pounds before Iowa State was able to record the first of its two victories.

That came in the 158-pound class, where second-ranked Cyclone Steve Hamilton defeated Iowa freshman Keith Trammel 15-5. Hamilton, who went into the match with a slightly pulled hamstring, came up limping afterwards.

"We actually looked like the winner at the end of the match," Gable said. "We had him several times See Wrestling, Page 2B

OUCH!!! Hoosiers crush Hawks

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — It could've been worse, but not much.

Rodell Davis could've missed the last-second 3-pointer that "cut" the final in Saturday's Iowa-Indiana game to 118-71. That's a 47-point margin. It sounds only slightly better than getting beat by 50 points.

The Hawkeyes were offensively impotent at the beginning of both halves, scoring six points on one field goal after the first eight and a half minutes of the game.

And it was :25 short of 10 minutes for Iowa to get its second field goal in the last half. Throw in 31 Hawkeye turnovers, compared to five assists, and the second worst Big Ten loss in school history isn't as large a surprise as it originally seems. The worst Big Ten defeat honor also goes to Indiana for their 102-49 thrashing of Iowa in 1975.

"Every season, there are times when everything rolls your way, and on the other end, nothing goes their way," a sympathetic Indiana coach Bobby Knight said.

Davis scored a career-high 20 points to lead Iowa, with forward James Moses knocking in 17. No other player managed more than five points.

Blowout lacks bright spots

Joe Levy
The Daily Iowan

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. — There really were only two memorable moments for Hawkeye fans in Iowa's 118-71 defeat at the hands of Indiana Saturday.

Les Jepsen and Troy Skinner combined to win the opening tip for Iowa in the game's opening second. And Rodell Davis nailed a final-buzzer-beating 3-pointer that held Indiana's margin of victory under 50 points.

What's sandwiched in-between might just as well be forgotten. It wasn't pretty.

It took 2:25 for Iowa to get its first points on a Les Jepsen lay-up and another 4:07 before the Hawkeyes would score again, on two Wade Lookingbill free throws. That put the Hawkeyes at a 14-4 disadvantage right from the word go, en route to a 46-25 halftime deficit.

The second half began much the same way, with Indiana bolting out on a 17-2 run in the first five minutes, on their way to a 72-point half. See Blowout, Page 2B

No letdown in sight; Iowa beats Gophers

Rita Heimes
The Daily Iowan

There was concern that the Iowa women's basketball team would have difficulty getting inspired for Friday's matchup with Minnesota after the Hawkeyes' exciting upset of Purdue the previous Sunday.

After all, the Gophers were unranked and in last place in the Big Ten. Purdue was in first place and ranked 10th in the nation before the Iowa game.

But no letdown of intensity was to be found, as 14th-ranked Iowa crushed Minnesota 87-58, behind 24 points from forward Franthea Price.

"I don't think it's ever hard for me to get up for a game," Price said. "I'm easily self-motivated. Sometimes, though, I forgot my teammates may need me to say something."

Her teammates needed no encouragement, however, as Iowa Coach C. Vivian Stringer substituted early and often, and received balanced scoring from the bench. Each of the Iowa players saw action in the victory, and all but two put points on the scoreboard.

"I felt good about everybody off the bench being able to contribute," Stringer said. "It was a big plus for us. Because of their efforts, we're a better team."

The win didn't come without a bit of a struggle, however, as the Gophers stuck close to the Hawkeyes for most of the first period, and even held a one-point lead, 24-23, at the 8:31 mark.

But Iowa came alive, scoring 12 unanswered points, six on fast breaks, to take a 47-32 lead at intermission from which the Gophers never recovered.

The game was the 200th for Stringer since she came to Iowa seven years ago. She and Minnesota coach LaRue Fields have been friends since they faced each other as coaches of Cheyney State and Morgan State, respectively, and Stringer has won every contest between them.

"It's a little easier losing to your friends than losing to other people," Fields said. "It's not so much the win or lose, it's giving each other a good game."

"We definitely had a good game in spots," continued Fields, who will resign from Minnesota effective June 30. "But when Iowa went to that next level, into fifth gear, then we weren't able to keep up."

Iowa improves to 17-5 overall and 9-3 in the conference, with renewed hopes at a possible conference championship, as first-place Northwestern (19-3, 10-2) suffered a 70-68 overtime loss to Michigan, and second-place Purdue (18-5, 10-3) was upset by Ohio State 84-80 Sunday.

With the loss, Minnesota drops to 6-16 overall and 1-11 in Big Ten play, and remains in the conference cellar.

Contender Holyfield gets heavyweight shot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Evander Holyfield will meet heavyweight champion James "Buster" Douglas in the fall, forcing Mike Tyson to wait a year for a rematch with the man who took his title, Douglas' manager said Sunday.

Holyfield, the top-ranked challenger, and Douglas will fight in September under an agreement manager John Johnson said he reached Saturday with Holyfield's manager, Dan Duva.

"Right now, we're planning for Holyfield in September," Johnson said. "It looks like (a rematch with) Tyson will be next February."

Johnson said financial terms for the Holyfield fight have not been finalized, but said Douglas would earn "many times the $1.3 million" he was paid for his 10th-round knockout over Tyson at Tokyo on Feb. 10.

In an interview on NBC-TV Sunday, Johnson said one factor in the decision to fight Holyfield was the lack of respect Tyson and promoter Don King showed toward Douglas after that fight.

"Don King had tried, and for a very short time, successfully kept James Douglas from being the heavyweight champion of the world," Johnson said. "James Douglas didn't get the true glory and all the things he should have gotten after that fight because of Don King's actions."

"We're going to go with James Douglas' wishes not to have anything to do with Don King, and I agree with that, but we're going to be more than fair with Don King."

King could not be immediately reached for comment. A telephone message for him at Don King Productions in New York was not immediately returned.

Douglas and Johnson also rejected a suggestion that by fighting Holyfield, who is undefeated in 23 fights and rated by oddsmakers as a 2-1 favorite for the September bout, they were jeopardizing Douglas' chance of retaining his title for a rematch with Tyson.

"I don't put any stock in the odds," Douglas said. "I know how I feel and the outcome will be another shocker."

"I wanted to accept a challenge and be a true champion. He's the No. 1 contender, and that's all I can do."

Johnson said he planned to travel to Las Vegas on Sunday on a plane owned by Mirage Hotel owner Steve Winn, and said he would meet later in the week in New York with billionaire Donald Trump about the Holyfield fight.

Cubs coach dies

BELLEVILLE, Ohio (AP) — Larry Cox, bullpen coach for the past two years for the Chicago Cubs, died unexpectedly Saturday while playing racquetball. He was 42. Cox, a native of nearby Lima, spent 17 years as a player in the minor and major leagues and five years as a manager in the Cubs' organization, including three years in charge of the team's Triple A franchise in Des Moines.

Earnhardt nipped at Daytona

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt looked as deflated as the right rear tire that took him out of the lead in the Daytona 500 with a mile to go. "Damn. That was so close," he mumbled. "I can't believe that happened." Earnhardt's Chevrolet appeared unbeatable for most of Sunday's race. It clearly was the fastest car and led for 155 of the 200 laps. But entering turn 3 on the final lap, Earnhardt suddenly slowed. Derrike Cope quickly passed on the inside and went on to the win. Terry Labonte, Bill Elliott and Ricky Rudd also passed Earnhardt, and he staggered home fifth. "We ran over some debris and cut the right rear tire," Earnhardt said. "I heard it hit the bottom of the car and then it hit the tire, and that's when it popped."

OSU upsets Michigan

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Jim Jackson scored 16 points, including a key tip-in off a missed free throw with 12 seconds left, as Ohio State upset No. 5 Michigan 64-61 Sunday. Neither team led by more than four points in the second half, and there were 15 lead changes and 13 ties, the last with 14 seconds left.

Then Mark Baker of Ohio State (13-10, 7-6 in the Big Ten) hit a free throw to break a 61-all tie. His second shot sput out, but Jackson tipped it in from the right side of the lane to end a four-game Michigan winning streak and drop the Wolverines to 19-5 and 9-4.

Michigan had two opportunities to tie the game at the finish. Rumeal Robinson, who led the Wolverines with 24 points, missed a 3-point field goal with three seconds left.

Loy Vaught, who had 10 points and nine rebounds, got the rebound and dribbled behind the 3-point line, but his shot at the buzzer was short.

Jordan powers Bulls

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Michael Jordan scored 39 points and the Chicago Bulls went on a 18-0 run in the fourth quarter, holding Milwaukee scoreless for more than seven minutes and routing the Bucks 111-88. Horace Grant added 18 points, Scottie Pippen 16 and Stacey King 14 for the Bulls, who beat the Bucks for the ninth time in the last 10 meetings.

Davis said the wheels really started coming off Iowa's cart when Wisconsin took a game from Iowa 80-71 Feb. 10 at Carver-Hawkeye Arena. "We really have not been the same since," Davis said of his team that impressively knocked off No. 5 Michigan and No. 15 Illinois in January. Since then Davis' Hawkeyes have watched team after team launch successful 3-point baskets. Ohio State hit five of them. Wisconsin made seven and both Michigan State and Indiana connected on nine. "I was definitely surprised they made so many shots as they did," Rodell Davis said after the Indiana blowout. Davis' play perhaps was the lone bright spot for Iowa Saturday. The sophomore guard, who averages just 2.2 points a game, finished with a team-high 20 points.

Blowout

"How do you explain it?" asked Indiana coach Bob Knight, whose 1975 Indiana club pummeled Iowa 102-49 in Assembly Hall. "You just don't." All totaled, there were 31 Iowa turnovers, compared to just five assists. And there was the defense that allowed one uncontested shot after another. There was 38 percent shooting for the Hawkeyes, compared to Indiana's 62.5 percent mark. There was also Iowa's 2-for-11 3-point shooting, while the Hoosiers nailed down nine of 14 from the arc. But that's nothing new, said Iowa coach Tom Davis, whose team has faced 20-plus point deficits in each of its last four games and 30-point deficits in two of those tilts.

Tom Davis and his players had difficulty remembering a game this tough, and after falling to 11-12 overall and 3-10 in the Big Ten, are trying to re-evaluate goals. "We've got five left and we've got to win as many as we can," point guard Troy Skinner said. "It's time to put the pieces back together. We're not going to quit on the season." In Iowa's last four games, opponents have won by an average of 21 points. That comes after home upsets over Michigan and Illinois, and a strong win over Northwestern at Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

The last time an Iowa team had a losing record was during the 1983-84 season. "I'm really worried about this team," Rodell Davis said. "Every-one is still working hard, but that's not so easy when things are going like this."

Basketball

transition opportunities into points while racking up 28 assists compared to 15 turnovers. The two teams' turnover-to-assist ratios allowed the Hoosiers to inflate a 21-point halftime bulge. Indiana nailed nine of 14 3-point attempts, while Iowa found only two of 11. And the Hoosier guard-court outscored Iowa 64-19. heavyweights Mike Ferroni's 14-1 loss at the hands of Iowa State's Todd Kinney. But at that point, the match had long been over. Ferroni, a freshman guard on the football team, was making his mat debut for the Hawkeyes. He replaced fourth-ranked John Oostendorp, who suffered "a slight knee injury" at Oklahoma State, according to Gable. However, it is not expected to keep him out of action at Notre Dame next week. "I'm hoping the team can now go back and start peaking for the Big Ten Championships."

and just couldn't take advantage." At 167 pounds, Iowa's seventh-ranked Bart Chelavig prevented a second consecutive win for Iowa State when he squeezed out a 6-5 triumph over No. 9 Matt Johnson. However, Gable did not seem particularly satisfied with Chelavig's performance. "He got ridden for the whole two minutes (in the final period), and that's unusual. That's the kind of thing I don't want to see at this time of the year."

Hawkeye Don Finch replaced a struggling Pat Kelly at 177 and handled Iowa State's Brad Knouse, 16-9. At this point in the match, Iowa was in command by a score of 25-4. "It was a pleasant surprise," Gable said of Finch's win. "Knouse was winning the first part of the match but Finch was able to come back and win the last part." Rounding out the meet was No. 3 Brooks Simpson's 14-6 win over No. 12 Jim Nelson at 190 and most of the early season with a foot injury, and has recently been seeing more playing time for the Hawkeyes, much to the delight of Stringer. "We were hoping to get Trisha back to a healthy state," the Iowa coach said. "She brings to us experience that we need. It was important to have her back and able to play for us." The Hawkeyes' next contest is a 7:30 p.m. matchup Friday against long-time rival Ohio State.

with 19 points, said Minnesota is not giving up. "We had nothing to lose when we came in here," Olson said. "And we're not done yet. We have six games left and we're not quitting." Other scorers in the contest for Iowa were 5-foot-3 guard Stephanie Schueler, who had 14 points and three rebounds, senior guard Jollette Law with 10 points, five rebounds, and reserve forward Trisha Waugh with nine points, five rebounds. Swimmers' record tarnished

Erica Weiland
The Daily Iowan

A chance of having its first undefeated dual-meet season, since 1980 slipped through the fingers of the Iowa men's swimming and diving team Friday as it lost 128-117 to Nebraska in Lincoln, Neb.

But, according to assistant coach Rich Draper, the Hawkeyes didn't give up without a fight. "The second half we weren't with it," Draper said. "But the second half we got into it and took it to the last relay ... We were down by 25 points after diving, but the guys pulled together. If we had won the last relay, the meet would have been tied."

The Iowa squad of Eric Kirch,

Todd Kellner, Matt Smith and John Wilson went three minutes, four seconds in that relay, the 400-yard freestyle relay, as opposed to the Cornhuskers' first-place 3:02.

"(Nebraska) swam real well," Draper said. "We weren't quite as sharp as we were the week before ... Nebraska deserved to win; they swam hot."

The only first places for the Hawkeyes were Artur Wojdat's 45.03 in the 100 free and Tomasz Gawronski's 9:26.95 in the 1,000 free and 4:29.98 in the 500 free.

"We had some outstanding performances, but it was probably the depth that carried us," senior Knut Landboe, who finished third in the 200 backstroke and fourth in the

M. Swim

1,000 free, said. "In a meet like that, racing for third and fourth is just as important as going for first. The depth is what shines through in a meet like that."

The Hawkeyes ended their dual-meet season Saturday with a 65-42 win against Iowa State in Ames.

Iowa took first in both relays and eight individual events, including Mark Kohmetscher's double win in the 200 individual medley and 200 back and Roland Zschiegner's two victories in the 1,000 free and the 200 breaststroke.

Injuries mar Iowa team in W. Virginia

Pat Axmear
The Daily Iowan

All hope might have been lost after the Iowa women's gymnastics team lost yet another competitor to injury this Saturday.

But once again they pulled together to have some of their best performances of the year at the West Virginia meet in Morgantown, W.Va.

Going into the meet the Hawkeyes already had to pull injured all-rounder Suzanne Gorny from all but one event. Then, due to illness, Jamie Lynne Hedley was forced to withdraw from competition. If that wasn't enough, all-rounder Lori Cole, during her second vault, injured her thumb.

"In a situation like that you can do one of two things, let down or get up; we didn't quit at all," Iowa coach Diane DeMarco said. "It was a tough-minded, highly-spirited and good competitive

West Virginia won the meet with 182.6 points, Bowling Green took second with 178.8, Iowa finished third with 177.8 and Rhode Island placed fourth with 176.8. Iowa's highest placer in the all-around was Tracy Junker in the fourth with 37.75 points.

The Hawkeye's scored 44.95 on the beam for their best performance of the year. Junior Michelle Cahal posted 9.5 to capture the title while sophomore Jane Powers placed second with a 9.45;

Hawk gymnasts split on weekend road trip

Pat Axmear
The Daily Iowan

The weekend's travel schedule took its toll on the Iowa men's gymnastics team as it lost to Minnesota Saturday, 281.15-275.1, after narrowly escaping defeat against Iowa State Friday night, 264.2-263.65.

"The Minnesota score was our second best of the year," Iowa coach Tom Dunn said. "It wasn't a bad meet; it just looked bad because Minnesota trounced us. They are an outstanding team. They are a real strong team and are pretty healthy."

Although the Hawkeyes had some of their best performances of the year, it wasn't enough to overcome the tough Gopher team.

Iowa's Jeff Dow posted his season-high all-around score of 56.2, only to finish second behind Minnesota's Mark McKiernan. Freshman Chris Kabat also had his best score of the season in the all-around with 55.30.

"I did pretty good, but I was disappointed with my parallel bar routine and I missed on the vault," Dow said. "There is always room for improvement. I haven't gone six for six all season. I'm waiting for that day."

After hitting an impressive 80 percent of their routines at the Penn State meet Feb. 2, Iowa only hit 50 percent at Iowa State and hit about 65 percent at Minnesota. According to Dunn it's always harder to hit away from home but when they face Minnesota again in two meets at home, the gap should lessen.

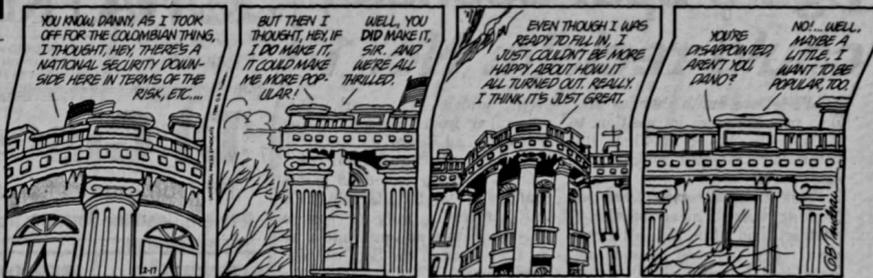

The Hawkeyes didn't use their top lineup at Ames, but they pulled out a win that came down to the last event.

"I figured (the Iowa State meet) would be real close, but when we got down to the end and we were losing, I got a little nervous," Dunn said. "We had a little trouble on parallel bars but the score was enough."

Tigers beat Sooners; could reclaim No. 1

(AP)—Doug Smith's heroics Sunday put Missouri in position to reclaim its No. 1 ranking. But coach Norm Stewart couldn't care less.

"This time of season, the top ranking doesn't mean anything," Stewart said after Smith's three-point play with 40 seconds left gave the Tigers a 92-90 victory over No. 11 Oklahoma.

"If somebody else wants it, they can have it. If we can, we'll mail it to them."

Smith sat out much of the first half in foul trouble, but dominated in the final eight minutes, when he got 11 of his 23 points. He also had 14 rebounds, including one after Oklahoma had three shots at tying the game in a frantic final 10 seconds.

No. 1 Kansas 94, Nebraska 67
Kevin Pritchard and Rick Calloway led Kansas, igniting 14-4 and 20-5 runs in the Jayhawks' win at Lawrence.

No. 3 G'town 68, Seton Hall 60
At the Meadowlands, Dwayne Bryant scored a career-high 24 points, including six late free throws to lead the Hoyas and give coach John Thompson his 13th straight 20-win season.

N. Dame 66, No. 4 Syracuse 65
Notre Dame's chances for an NCAA berth were enhanced when Elmer Bennett hit a 3-point field goal at the buzzer to give the Irish their first road win against a ranked team in six tries.

O'ho St. 64, No. 5 Michigan 61
Jim Jackson scored 16 points, including a key tip-in off a missed free throw with 12 seconds left, as the Buckeyes won for the 10th time in 12 home games.

No. 6 Duke 71, Wake Forest 56
Robert Brickey scored 10 of his 14 points in the first half as No. 4 Duke built a big lead en route to a 71-56 victory over Wake Forest Sunday.

No. 7 UNLV 95, No. 20 Ariz. 87
Larry Johnson scored 17 of his 26 points in the second half, hitting three straight late baskets to put the game away as seventh-ranked Nevada-Las Vegas got its eighth straight victory.

No. 8 Arkansas 77, SMU. 46
Oliver Miller scored 19 and Mario

Credit added 14 as Arkansas rebounded from losses to Texas Christian and Baylor.

No. 9 LSU 121, Vanderbilt 108
Chris Jackson scored 46 points Sunday as No. 9 LSU held off a late Vanderbilt rally to post a 121-108 victory and pull into a tie for first place in the Southeastern Conference.

No. 10 Conn. 89, Boston Coll. 67
John Gwynn scored 18 points to lead five players in double figures as Connecticut defeated Boston College to remain in a first-place tie with Georgetown in the Big East.

No. 12 Purdue 62, Wisconsin 55
Purdue beat Wisconsin for the 26th straight time as Stephen Scheffer scored 26 points to go over the 1,000-point mark for his career.

No. 13 G.Tech 95, N.C.St. 92 (2 OT)
Brian Oliver scored six of his 28 points in the second overtime as Georgia Tech rallied from a 25-10 first-half deficit.

No. 21 Mich. St. 70, No. 15 Ill. 63
Matt Steigenga scored 17 and low-scoring Mark Montgomery had 12 for the Spartans.

No. 17 Minn. 90, N'western 72
Willie Burton led Minnesota with 21 as the Gophers broke open a tight game with a 17-2 run for a 48-34 lead early in the second half.

No. 18 Louisville 72, Virginia 56
Everick Sullivan scored 22 points, hitting 6 of 6 from 3-point range, as No. 18 Louisville beat Virginia on the road.

Pepperdine 131, No. 19 Loyola 123
Dexter Howard had 32 and Craig Davis a career-high 29 as Pepperdine set a school scoring record in upsetting Loyola Marymount.

No. 22 Xavier 74, St. Louis 58
Jamal Walker's 19 points led five starters in double figures for Xavier.

Prov. 77, No. 24 St. John's 74
Carlton Screen scored 23 as Providence held on to beat St. John's.

No. 25 N. Mex. St. 65, Full. St. 62
Keith Hill scored five of his 14 points in the final 4½ minutes as New Mexico State held off Fullerton State.

Hawks win 9 events in Iowa meet

Jay Nanda
The Daily Iowan

In its final preparation for next week's Big Ten meet, the Hawkeye men's track team captured nine out of 12 events at the Iowa Open Saturday.

Iowa was paced in the non-scoring meet by shotputters Maurea Crain, Andy Flaherty, and Doug Joens, who claimed the top three spots, and Rod Chambers, who won the mile run by almost four seconds over Jeff Albers of Western Illinois.

"I was basically using this race as a workout," Chambers said. "Coach (Ted Wheeler) had decided that this meet would be a tuneup for Big Tens."

The Hawkeyes also grabbed the top three positions in the 55-meter dash, with Paul Jones coming out on top with a time of 6.44 seconds. Football running back Tony Stewart tied Wes Wright of Western

Kevin Herd

Illinois for second, with a clocking of 6.56, and Brad McCorkle was third at 6.65.

In the 800-meters, freshman Kevin Herd out-distanced Paul Hammel of Western Illinois with a time of 1:55.9. Hawkeye Robert Cook came in third at 1:57.2.

"I'm trying to earn a spot on the 4 X 800 team so I had to come out here and prove something," Herd said. "My tactics went well and I'm very, very pleased with the way things turned out."

AP gives man of year award to San Francisco's Montana

(AP)—Joe Montana, who had the best season of any quarterback in NFL history in leading the San Francisco 49ers to their fourth Super Bowl victory, has been named The Associated Press' male athlete of the year for 1989.

Montana began the year by capping a 92-yard drive with a 10-yard touchdown pass to John Taylor with 34 seconds left to beat Cincinnati for the 49ers' third Super Bowl. Then, during the 1989 regular season, he threw 26 touchdown passes and had only eight interceptions in leading San Francisco to a 14-2 record.

And although it didn't count in the balloting because it occurred in 1990, he threw five TD passes in the 55-10 Super Bowl win over Denver that made the 49ers the first team in a decade to repeat as NFL champions and the second ever to win four Super Bowls.

Montana won the honors in a three-way race with Bo Jackson, who plays both baseball and football, and cyclist Greg LeMond. He is only the third NFL player to win the award in the 49 years it has been given. The others were George Blanda in 1970 and O.J. Simpson in 1973.

He had 36 first-place votes in the national balloting by sports writers and editors and 253 points. Jackson received 33 first-place votes and 228 points. Jackson hit 256 with 32 home runs, 105 RBI and 26 stolen bases for baseball's Kansas City Royals, then gained 950 yards in 173 carries, a 5.5 average, in 11 games with football's Los Angeles Raiders.

LeMond, who won his second Tour de France after recovering from gunshot wounds sustained in a hunting accident, was third with 26 first-place votes and 218 points.

Completing the top 10, in order, were baseball's Nolan Ryan, hockey's Wayne Gretzky, pro basketball's Magic Johnson, college basketball's Chris Jackson, and three Bay Area baseball players, Kevin Mitchell, Rickey Henderson and Will Clark.

"He was the difference between the Super Bowl 49ers and the rest of the clubs in the league this year," said Jim Finks, president of the New Orleans Saints. "They could lose just about anybody else, but they couldn't lose No. 16."

Petty: Singin', strummin' and free-fallin' at Carver

As from Valhalla, Petty gives 2-hour concert

Steve Cruse
The Daily Iowan

U nless years of touring have added Tom Petty's memory, Saturday night's concert at Carver-Hawkeye Arena was the first time ever that he and The Heartbreakers have played in Iowa.

At least, that's what Petty told the audience about halfway through the show. To which most people in the crowd would have probably replied: Well, gee, Tom, don't be a stranger. The show was solid, innovative, and thoroughly enjoyable for both hardcore Petty fans and those who came just to hear the hits.

Taking the stage to "Full Moon Fever" s "Love Is a Long Road," Petty and his band proceeded to plow through two hours of music representative of their career. Nearly all the best-known tunes had their moment: "You Got Lucky" featured a scathing guitar solo, "Free Fallin'" was (surprise) a huge sing-along, and "Refugee" received a strong rendition worthy of its rock-anthem status.

The concert's highlight, "Don't Come Around Here No More," was preceded by a futuristic solo bit by Heartbreakers keyboardist Benmont Tench. Backed by projected lava lights, the band launched into the hypnotic, trebly strains of the song that might be described (musically speaking) as Petty's own "Stairway to Heaven." Things reached a bizarre, strobe-lit climax during the final minute, when a suit of armor next to the drum set suddenly came to life and began chasing Petty hither and yon around the stage.

Throughout the show, Petty admirably sustained a personal connection with the audience. After leading the fans through an extended "Breakdown" call-and-response ("Who-oh... Ye-eh-ah... Who-oh"), he applauded gently and smiled as if to say, "Very nice, my fine young friends!" Later he took snapshots of the crowd, offering the flattering yet vaguely disquieting explanation, "I like to look at these when I get back home." It was kind of him, too, to dedicate "I Won't Back Down" to Iowans in general.

The stage was a pastiche of Valhalla imagery that included hanging velvet curtains, totem poles and a polar bear statue looming in the background. A huge disco ball hung overhead as well, periodically turning the arena into a pleasing swirl of colored lights.

It's always easy to gripe about the set list, but here goes: I would have perfectly happy not to have heard "Depending On You," which Petty dedicated "to the children." Notable omissions, meanwhile, included "Don't Do Me Like That" and "Jammin' Me," as well as two of the best songs from "Full Moon Fever," "Feel a Whole a Lot Better" and "Zombie Zoo."

Aaron Rapoport

Tom Petty & The Heartbreakers: Howie Epstein (bass), Benmont Tench (piano/keyboards), Stan Lynch (drums), Tom Petty (singing and strumming), Mike Campbell (guitar). Reclining in front is an unidentified canine.

Overall: About as good a show as one could want.

Oh, yeah — Lenny Kravitz. I have to admit that I was pleasantly surprised by his opening "Flower Child," which featured a rockin' piano sound and churning guitar.

After that, though, musical homogeneity ruled: Lots of percussive whomp and sax solos and scant melodic content. The hit "Let Love Rule," which, I swear, I could have written while blindfolded and experimenting with a bass flute, closed out the set with a stomping, interminable community sing. "Don't you people forget what you're singin' when you leave this building," Kravitz admonished us. Well, I didn't forget, but then I was taking notes.

Keith Haring

Creator of I.C. school mural dies of AIDS complications

The Daily Iowan
and The Associated Press

Keith Haring, the New York artist famous for his cartoonlike drawings on the walls of subway stations, died Friday at his Manhattan apartment of complications from AIDS.

Haring, 31 at the time of his death, was active in AIDS fund-raising; he did a great deal of work for free, including anti-crack "Crack is Wack" murals and posters for the anti-apartheid movement.

In 1984 and again last year Haring visited Ernest Horn Elementary School in Iowa City and painted a mural for the media center of the school.

His work is characterized by cartoonlike human and animal figures. One of Haring's best-known works was a 300-foot mural he painted on the Berlin Wall in 1986, a chain of black and red human figures on a yellow background incorporating the colors of the East and West German flags. At the time he said, "It's about the ridiculousness of all walls and enemies and borders." Other Haring murals include those at Children's Hospital in Washington, D.C., Grady Hospital in Atlanta, Necker Children's Hospital in Paris and the maternity ward of Princess Grace Hospital in Monte Carlo.

Haring, who had been diagnosed with the AIDS virus more than a year ago, fell ill with flu-like symptoms after returning on January 18 from a trip to Europe. He had been under the full-time care of a nurse at his home, said Margaret Slabbert, an assistant to the artist.

Haring's drawings first appeared on blank advertising space in New York's subways about 10 years ago. His motifs — a glowing baby, dancing figures and creatures with TV heads — caught the eye of art dealers and eventually led to The Pop Shop, which Haring opened in 1986 in Manhattan to sell products bearing his artwork.
