Angry Fans Club balks attendance to protest baseball lockout

DES MOINES (AP) — A group of baseball fans angry at owners and players Tuesday called on fans nationwide to walk out of opening day games.
'I heard a voice saying, 'If you ask them, they will walk,' said Chris Busch of Fairfield, parodying one of the lines from the movie 'Field of Dreams.'
'I didn't know what it meant at first, but now I know that it means angry fans will walk out on opening day games,' he said. Busch and two others said they have formed the Angry Fans Club and want fans across the country to call a '900' number to express indignation at owners and players for the lockout that has blocked the opening of spring training.

'The fans are held hostage,' he said. 'We want to sponsor a nationwide protest.
'It's up to the owners and players to find a solution, but as fans, we have to say, 'We're the ones paying all the million-dollar salaries. We're the ones lining the pockets of the owners.'

'If we show this power, they'll think twice before putting the season in jeopardy.'
He said he takes neither side in the controversy.
'To me, it's the millionaires against the billionaires,' he said.
He said the two sides should compromise, just as his call for a fourth-inning walkout is a compromise.
'I love the game. I'll forgive. No fan will boycott games altogether. No fan will stop drinking beer and buying razor blades. But they will do a symbolic protest. We're not asking that they stay home for the whole game, but half a game, that they can stand,' he said.

He said those calling the toll number will be asked to register their feelings on an indignation scale ranging up to 'boiling mad.' And there will be a competition to see which major league city has fans who are most upset.

He said the poll part of the message would take about two minutes, costing the caller 95 cents a minute. About a third of the fee goes to the angry fans group, the rest to telephone companies.
Those who continue listening beyond the poll part of the recorded message will hear tips on how to weather the baseball deadlock.
The number for the Angry Fans Club is 900-454-3100. There is a charge for the call.

Local census near crucial 50,000 mark
City's fate up to UI students

Jennifer Ritzinger
The Daily Iowan
The UI student population could determine the financial fate of Iowa City in the upcoming 1990 census.

Marion Karr, Iowa City city clerk, said Iowa City could lose some of its federal funding if the population drops below 50,000 inhabitants in 1990.
If students fail to respond to census questionnaires distributed on Census Day, April 1, 'our federal funding allocations are at stake,' Karr said. 'We are talking thousands and millions in transit, human service and community block rent funds.

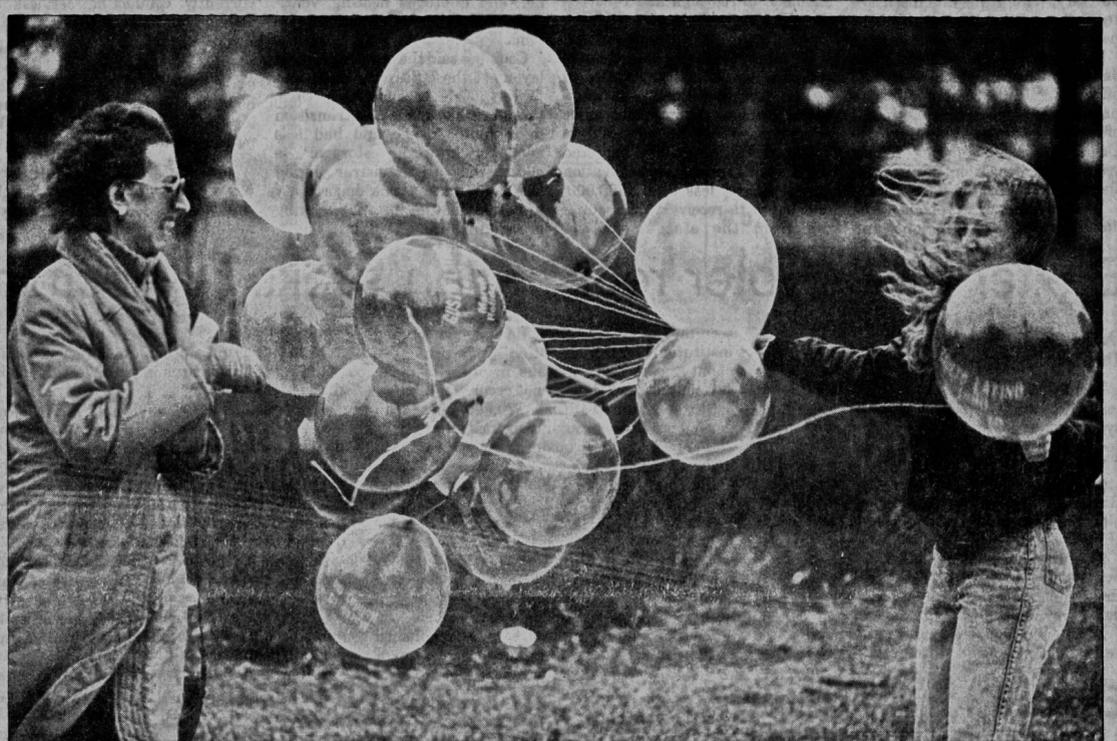

'It's very important that students respond,' she said. 'They are here nine months out of the year so they count as part of Iowa City's population. We are desperately trying to get the word out how important the students are.'
1990's census will be the largest, most technically advanced, automated collection project ever undertaken, according to the federal census bureau — a part of the U.S. Department of Commerce.
The census bureau expects to count 250 million people and 106 million housing units and will spend a total of $2.6 billion in executing the nation's 21st census.
Tom Moss, the Cedar Rapids census district manager, said the state could lose a representative in Congress if the state's population decreases in the 1990 census.

'The population determines our representation in Washington,' Moss said. 'The other big thing is that the federal funds for nearly every social program are based on the population numbers.'

Moss said that although counting everyone is impossible, a greater census participation rate would translate into more federal grants for the state.
'It's impossible to count everybody... but the closer we come, that is the bigger the number that we get for Johnson County, (and) the federal grants are paid for,' Moss said.

Ten years ago 80 percent of the population returned the questionnaires, Moss said.
'That means if we don't do any better than that, we'll have 20 percent of the questionnaires to collect,' Moss said. 'That means we'll have to go out and see 60,000 addresses — old fashioned door-to-door knocking.'

Moss is responsible for completing the census in the Iowa City-Cedar Rapids area, and to do this he needs to hire about 200 additional census counters.
'I have two big charges,' he said. 'One is to get the census done for our district and that means encouraging people to return the questionnaires. The other is to find the people to do the counting.'
The bureau must deliver the compiled census data to President George Bush by December 31.

Budget manager proposed for county

Lindsay Alan Park
The Daily Iowan

An upcoming proposal for a Johnson County budget manager has raised some controversy over how much influence such a manager would have over the Board of Supervisors' program evaluations and subsequent allocation decisions.
Unexpected growth in the county's social services budget led Supervisor Robert Burns to propose a county budget manager at an informal Board of Supervisors meeting Tuesday.

But Supervisor Dick Myers is worried that if instituted, the manager may influence the Board's program evaluation decisions via his or her budget evaluations.

Instituting a county budget manager would be 'totally desirable,' Burns said, because it would give the board more accurate budget projections, without changing the role of the supervisors.

Although the board manages well in many areas, such as budgeting for road projects, the board may benefit from a budget manager's assistance in 'complicated' areas like social services.

Myers said he agrees with Burns that the Legislation lets Soviets own industry

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet parliament today overwhelmingly approved legislation that will allow people to own factories and hire workers for the first time in nearly 70 years.
In the early 1920s, Soviet founder Vladimir Lenin and his Bolsheviks retreated from their drive to implement communism and allowed private ownership of the means of production under the New Economic Policy, or NEP.

Today's vote by the Supreme Soviet was hailed by supporters as a major step forward. It is one of the key elements of President Mikhail Gorbachev's economic reform package.
'This is an enormous step forward because it lays down the principle of pluralism in the forms of ownership and the basis of their equality and their protection from the government,' said deputy Alexei Yablokov.

After a section-by-section vote on each of the bill's six parts, the legislation was given final approval by a margin of 350-3. Eleven deputies abstained.

Bombing possible in bank explosion
3 reported dead, 14 injured

CRESTED BUTTE, Colo. (AP) — An explosion shattered a two-story bank Tuesday, killing three people and injuring 14 others, officials said. Three people were listed in critical condition.

Firefighters and volunteers dug by hand through the rubble of the downtown Crested Butte National Bank to pull out survivors, witnesses said. The entire building was leveled except for the vault.

The cause of the blast in this Rocky Mountain ski resort was not immediately determined, but authorities said they were investigating the possibility of a bomb or a methane gas buildup.
Crested Butte Police Chief Hank Smith said two restaurants received bomb threats over the week, and one of them was evacuated.

Mayor Wes Light said three bodies were pulled from the rubble, and all 15 people believed to be inside during the explosion were pulled out.

The federal Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms sent a 12-person response team to the scene, and Gov. Roy Romer made National Guard units available to provide assistance if needed.

The explosion occurred at 9:15 a.m., shortly after the bank opened.

About 200 people responded quickly to the scene and started digging with their hands.
'They started digging through the rubble, helping the people who were still alive,' said Mark Reaman, a photographer for the Chronicle & Pilot newspaper.

'The whole town would suddenly become silent, stopping to see if they could hear someone. It was the most eerie thing I've ever heard. Luckily, many times they found someone who was still alive.'

The dead were identified as bank employee Jade Woelk, Donna Smith and Monica Henning. Their ages were not available.

Hope Osteimer, who works nearby, said the building 'completely collapsed on itself.'
'People started running from their cars and businesses and just started digging,' said a passerby who identified himself only by his first name, Brad.

'I started digging, but I wiggled out when I saw the condition of one of the victims,' he said. 'One guy crawled out,' but the rest were trapped.

Dusty Demerson, who was in his shop at Color West Photography about a block from the bank, also went to investigate.

'The president of the bank... was hanging out the back of the bank by his legs and we got him down,' he said.

By that time, ambulances arrived and Demerson also started digging for survivors.

Six of the injured were taken to Gunnison County Hospital 30 miles away; the others were treated at clinics, the mayor said.

Brain tumor in Atwater is treatable

WASHINGTON (AP) — Doctors found a benign tumor on the right side of Republican Party chairman Lee Atwater's brain Tuesday and said it would be treated non-surgically with 'no difficulty.'

Dr. Edward Laws, chairman of the department of Neurosurgery at George Washington University Medical Center, said Atwater would be released from the hospital by the end of the week and able to resume 'a reasonable work schedule and normal activities next week.'

An aide quoted the party chairman as saying, 'I've never led a normal life.'

In a brief statement issued by the Republican National Committee, Laws said, 'Lee Atwater completed tests this morning which revealed a small non-malignant growth in the right side of his head. No surgery is planned and we expect no difficulty with follow-up treatments.'

Laws did not specify the treatment that would be used, but radiation is a common alternative to surgery in such cases.

Doctors performed a needle biopsy on Atwater, a procedure in which a thin needle is inserted into the affected area to remove cells for

Greek Week sets blood donation record

Laura Allen
The Daily Iowan

Greeks and non-greeks donated a record-breaking 896 pints of blood Monday at the Greek Week blood drive in the Union Main Lounge.

"This was the largest blood drive that has ever been held in Johnson County," said Lori Puricell, coordinator of Johnson County blood donor program. "There was a tremendous number of student volunteers. It could not have happened without the hardworking kids helping out."

One reason for the success of this year's blood drive was that more non-greeks got involved, said Mary Peterson, coordinator of campus programs.

A policy change contributed to the increased participation, according to Peter Paderubsky, president of the Order of Omega, who was in charge of the blood drive.

"This year we changed the policy and there were no points given if a person was not able to give blood," Paderubsky said. "So people had to bring in substitute donors if they could not give blood.

"These substitutes were non-greeks since greeks were donating for their own houses," he added. "We probably had 10 to 15 percent non-greek donors this year because of the substitute policy."

Paderubsky said the organizations involved with the blood drive included: the Red Cross of Mississippi Valley, the Galesburg, Illinois Mobile Blood Unit, Cedar Rapid's St. Lukes Hospital, Cedar Rapid's Mercy Hospital, and the South East Iowa Unit, a non-profit blood collection organization. The event was sponsored by the Order of Omega.

In addition, local franchises of Rocky Rococo's, Domino's, and Happy Joe's, supplied pizzas for students who donated blood. Students were required to eat before and after giving blood.

"The biggest reason this year's blood drive was so successful was the number of people that donated," according to Barb Washington, assistant director of Greek Week. "Our goal was 750 pints of blood, but we achieved almost 900 pints." Most people who gave blood Monday also brought a can of food for extra points.

"People donated 1,500 cans of food on Monday," said Washington. "It is another part of the philanthropy. The food will go to the Iowa City food bank.

"It is all part of trying to improve town-gown relations and public relations for the greek system," Washington added.

Tonight, each fraternity and sorority will send two volunteers to the Iowa City Care Center to set up a casino night for the elderly, Greek Week Director Brian Gregory said.

"The volunteers will set up craps, black jack, and poker and gamble with the members of the Iowa City Care Center," Gregory said.

Gregory said two remaining big events of Greek Week are the symposium on Friday night and Follies on Saturday night.

The symposium is a formal dinner with dancing and live music, followed by a setup of casino games.

Follies are seven-minute skits that groups of Greek people will perform on the UI Hancher Auditorium stage. Gregory said there are various themes that the skits can be about. The winners of the Rush award will perform for parents at the beginning of 1990 formal Rush week.

Jessup may be renovated following fire damage

Diana Wallace
The Daily Iowan

Before a fire gutted the UI Registrar's Office in Jessup Hall last January, UI officials had discussed renovating the office within the next two years.

Now, over a month after the January 29 fire which destroyed office furniture, computer terminals and other equipment, the UI office of Facilities Planning and Utilization is coordinating a joint restoration-renovation project for the registrar's ground-floor office.

Instead of just replacing the damaged office equipment and restoring the office to its pre-fire condition, Facilities Planning Manager James Coombes said preliminary estimates showed it would cost an additional $150,000 to $200,000 to redesign and renovate the office so it could operate more efficiently.

Coombes said the estimated cost of restoring the Registrar's Office to its pre-fire condition, plus additional costs of cleanup and office relocation, would be $300,000 to $350,000. But he said he expected the joint restoration-renovation project to cost less than $500,000, and hopes to receive partial funding from the state Board of Regents.

Specifically, renovation will include the installation of carpeting, newly-designed work spaces, a suspended ceiling with new lighting, and improved heating, ventilating and air-conditioning systems.

Coombes said the pre-fire physical layout of the office was inefficient for its needs because, over time, the office has made the transition to computer usage and had less need for hard-copy storage. He added that UI Registrar Jerald Dallam is taking this opportunity to reorganize the internal working procedure of the office.

"I would say that the newly renovated office will be nicer for living, working and producing job duties more efficiently," Coombes said.

The office and its 40 employees are currently conducting services in Calvin Hall and the Union.

Coombes said he expects construction on the new office to begin in early May, and Dallam said he hopes the office will be moved back into its Jessup Hall location by mid-September.

Iowa City Fire Marshal Larry Kinney determined earlier that the fire was caused by an electrical malfunction.

Baxter eases voter registration, seeks re-election

Margo Ely
The Daily Iowan

Elaine Baxter will seek re-election for a second term after implementing a more efficient filing system using fax machines in her first term as secretary of state.

"One of my major goals is to improve service for people who do business with our office," Baxter said. "We're open 24 hours a day by allowing the public to fax documents to our office."

The secretary of state's office processes business documents for over 60,000 corporations in Iowa, and using fax machines speeds the paperwork through, Baxter said.

During Baxter's term, information required to verify business loans has been faxed to the secretary of state's office. Baxter said lending institutions get information from her office about people seeking loans in order to make sure duplicate claims do not occur.

Baxter estimates that 170,000 such loan documents pass through her office annually.

"For people who do business in Iowa, I want to make filing and reporting of necessary information as simple and straightforward as possible," Baxter said.

Another goal of Baxter's was making voter registration more accessible and convenient. Her initiative in this area has led to voter registration forms being available at all state agency offices and also attached to driver's license applications and state tax booklets.

Another voter registration effort accomplished during Baxter's term distinguishes Iowa as a national leader.

Iowa is the first state in the nation to include voter registration cards in U.S. West telephone directories.

Baxter said Iowa City and Ames were the only two cities not included in the project that distributed 2.2 million phone books.

Iowa City and Ames were not included because printing of the directories in these areas had already begun when the legislation passed, but Baxter added that next year all directories will include the forms.

Baxter, a 57-year-old Democrat from Burlington, was elected in 1986 to secretary of state after serving three terms in the Iowa House of Representatives. She said nobody has officially announced his or her candidacy to run against her this term.

Evaluation to determine sanity during Chewing murder

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

Frank Chewing, accused of second-degree murder, will undergo another psychiatric evaluation to determine his mental state at the time of his wife's death.

Chewing, 42, of Monmouth, Ill., was charged with second-degree murder after Diane Chewing, 43, was found dead at the University Inn, Hwy. 6 West, Coralville, on Oct. 6, 1989.

Johnson County Attorney Patrick White filed an application for expert examination after Chewing's attorney, Patrick Peters, announced that he may use insanity as a defense, according to Johnson County District Court records.

Peters submitted to White a two-page psychiatric evaluation of Chewing, performed by Iowa City psychiatrist Vernon Varner February 26, according to court records.

Chewing will be evaluated by the Iowa Medical Classification Center, Hwy. 218, Oakdale, after his motion to suppress is completed.

Hearing on the motion to suppress is scheduled to begin March 8 and continue March 14, according to court records.

Courts

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

A 26-year-old man was arrested Tuesday morning after he allegedly rented several Iowa City hotel rooms and then left town without paying for them, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Randy E. Bowser, address unknown, was charged with second-degree theft by deception February 16, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for March 22, according to court records.

An Iowa City man was charged with possession of a controlled substance Tuesday after police allegedly found a pipe containing marijuana in his coat pocket, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Sean D. Coppens,

22, 139 Hilltop Trailer Court, was reportedly being searched in connection with a criminal mischief charge when police found the pipe, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for March 22, according to court records.

Out of Iowa and into the sun is UI junior Jeff Janes, after winning a spring break trip to Cancún, Mexico from The Daily Iowan and Meacham Travel Service.

Janes and his girlfriend, UI junior Kelli Kitchen — also a contest semi-finalist — are the winners of round-trip transportation from Chicago to Cancún, seven-night accommodations at the Calinda Cancún Quality Inn and $300 in cash.

The contest was a six-week event requiring contestants to clip coupons from The Daily Iowan, fill them out and drop them in entry boxes located in area businesses.

Three semi-finalists were weekly from all coupons collected. There were 21 businesses with entry boxes each week, and over 20,000 entries were collected.

Janes said that he and Kitchen had entered weekly until both of their names had been drawn as semi-finalists. He said they worked together to turn in all 21 coupons with him covering the downtown area stores and Kitchen covering stores outside the downtown area in her car.

"I've been visualizing winning this," Janes said. "Kelli and I will have had our one-year anniversary two days before we leave — we deserve this."

publisher William Casey drew the 17 runners-up and the winner.

According to Casey, the drawing was run similar to the Miss America pageant — drawing the runners up first and the winner last.

"That helps us build some tension in the room," he said.

Runners up received gift certificates and cash prizes donated by local businesses.

Runners up from 18th to second included: Dave Starcevic, Martha Wilson, Teresa Clark, Donna Loewen, Dawn Pressler, Teresa Lenihan, Vicki Green, Nicki Raitt, David Lesperance, Susan James, Kenai Sehgal, Murat Gokden, Kelli Kitchen, Mary Lorenz and Lora Knoop.

Proposed building of commercial waste incinerator draws criticism

Brian Dick
 The Daily Iowan

Medical waste will not be burned in Iowa if a local citizen's group has its way.

Riverside Area Persons to Save the Environment, in conjunction with citizens from across Iowa, have joined together in a statewide effort to delay siting any medical waste incinerators in Iowa for one year.

Although RAPSE has asked for a yearlong moratorium, Riverside resident Tina Burns said one year is not enough time for the Iowa Legislature to create laws prohibiting the siting of commercial waste incinerators in the state.

Instead, Iowa will create its own environmental guidelines for handling and disposing incinerator waste after the Federal Environmental Protection Agency comes out with its regulations, possibly in the fall of 1991 or 1992, Burns said.

"It won't be long enough, but it's buying us some time so nothing takes place — at least for a while," Burns said. "We asked for a moratorium just to stop companies from coming in right now."

If the group is successful and the Legislature passes the bill which carries the moratorium, the ban on siting commercial waste incinerators would go into effect July 1, Burns said.

The group's lobbying effort comes shortly after the Riverside, Iowa, city council voted unanimously not to sell land on which to site a for-profit medical waste incinerator to National Environmental Systems of Champaign, Ill.

At the February 19 city council meeting, Riverside residents turned out in droves to protest the sale of land in the city's industrial park and to guarantee the sale of that land to another company would not happen.

Despite the apparent February victory of citizens who opposed locating a medical waste incinerator in Riverside, some opponents traveled to Des Moines Tuesday to petition the Legislature to enact stricter zoning regulations, Burns said.

Waste disposal companies are looking at local zoning ordinances and the political climate in Iowa towns and counties. And in many instances zoning is not adequate to protect citizens or the environment from the hazardous effects of these operations, Burns said.

Burns said RAPSE members who met with Iowa senators at the State Capitol on Tuesday discussed out-of-state businesses and municipalities who are looking to place incinerators in Iowa because of its present lack of stringent regulations.

Airborne emissions and solid waste taken to landfills from incinerators affect surrounding area residents and adjoining counties in potentially hazardous ways, Burns added.

But Sen. Jean Lloyd-Jones, D-Iowa City, said Iowans do not want to site incinerators in Iowa, and a moratorium is needed until environmental specialists know more about the dangers of waste incineration.

"We don't want to become a dumping ground for other people's waste," Lloyd-Jones said. "It's wise to do a moratorium until we get some of the answers."

Locating an incinerator or any type of waste-disposal facility in the state is becoming more difficult, but getting rid of the waste is only half of the disposal problem, Lloyd-Jones said.

"I don't think we're in danger of becoming a target," Lloyd-Jones said. "Two things need to be done: We should not generate so much waste, and everybody should take care of their own waste."

Tax plan: Check off for scholarship

John Kenyon
 The Daily Iowan

A UI student's plan to keep Iowa college graduates working in Iowa after graduation may be proposed to the Iowa Legislature.

The plan, a creation of UI senior Jeff Garreans, is part of the Undergraduate Honors program in the College of Business Administration.

Garreans designed a check-off plan that would change the tax laws to include incorporating a special section on the state income tax return. The tax check-off would enable taxpayers to contribute to a scholarship fund.

"This provides an opportunity for some of the best students to gain experience in substantial scholarly research and writing," said David Wade, visiting associate professor of the College of Business.

Coordinated by Wade, the honors program was started in the spring of 1987, and participation has grown from six students to 35.

"They are provided with a journal-quality writing sample, as well as a letter of recommendation in most cases," Wade said.

A few of the projects, such as Garreans', fall outside of the business program, and faculty advisers come from a variety of departments to help in the endeavor, Wade said.

In developing his plan, Garreans spent many hours looking over existing state scholarships and determining their inadequacies.

He found that many Iowans who might not normally qualify for scholarships needed financial aid in order to attend school in Iowa.

His proposal requires that students who receive the scholarships remain in Iowa to work for at least one year after graduation.

"The final step of the plan is to present this to state legislators," Garreans said.

Run in three parts, the honors program begins in a student's junior year and spans three semesters.

The first semester involves participating in a seminar where a student chooses a project and a faculty adviser. The student completes the project in the next semester. During the student's senior year, the third semester of the program, the completed project is included.

"I learned many things, including time management and meeting deadlines," Garreans said.

JESSE JACKSON

First things first

Jesse Jackson's announcement last week that he would not run for mayor of Washington sparked speculation that the fiery preacher would either seek the Democratic presidential nomination, or that he would run for "shadow" senator for the District of Columbia.

Neither option is a desirable channel for Jackson's talent. Having never held government office — elected or appointed — Jackson is especially ill-suited for the presidency. If Jackson runs, he would likely plunge the already-floundering Democrats into an unprecedented level of presidential election atrophy. The splintering of the American left, which Jackson has accelerated, could continue to drain the moderate vote from future Democratic tickets.

Jackson would employ his other option, the so-called shadow seat in the senate, to lobby for D.C. statehood. The notion of statehood, however, contradicts the concept of a federal capitol that is free from the political influence of particular state pressures. Even if statehood were a viable option, it would not cure Washington's ills. Washington D.C. first needs to reform its decaying municipal government. A new city hall with a competent leader, such as Jackson, would be the best tool to rid D.C. of its most serious problems — crime and poverty.

Jackson's energy, creativity and charisma make him an outstanding candidate for mayor, but the job also entails the political risks associated with long-term accountability, occupational hazards that Jackson has thus far avoided.

Although he has an extensive agenda of reforms for each level and branch of government, Jackson has shown no commitment to the mundane administrative details or to the constant political pressures of government office. That kind of dedication is essential to the success of the office of chief executive.

Throughout his career, Jackson's publicity has been derived heavily from his association with the substantial achievements of others. His recent visits with Douglas Wilder and Nelson Mandela only confirm that proposition. Despite his two decades of public life, Jackson has done little in the way of direct public service.

Jackson has served the left-liberal establishment well as a catalyst toward awareness and change. But that role alone is insufficient to put him into the White House, and the office of shadow senator would be a waste of his talents. If Jackson wants to become a truly substantial leader, and actively engage in the implementation of his political visions, he must be willing to roll up his sleeves and get down to work. The best place for him to do it is in the mayor's office of Washington, D.C.

Then maybe he can look to the White House.

FOREIGN AID BUDGET

Nudging the president

The decision by Congress to pump up President George Bush's foreign aid budget is to be commended. In effect, it is telling the president to put his money where his mouth is.

All that the United States has wanted over the years is happening today: democracy sweeping over Eastern Europe, reform in the Soviet Union and South Africa, and a new government in Nicaragua. Many nations whose policies have changed to come into line with those of the United States now expect economic assistance. The foreign aid budget, however, has not been increased accordingly. In fact, the House Foreign Affairs Committee estimates that the budget will actually fall $291 million short of maintaining current foreign aid programs.

For a man who prides himself in foreign affairs, some of Bush's recent actions have seemed strange.

For example, he sent Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger and National Security Adviser Brent Scowcroft on a secret mission to China in the wake of the Tiananmen Square massacre. The stated purpose was to express concern over the events in China and to nudge the Chinese into reforms. The president said that as a former ambassador to Beijing, he understood the Chinese well. But the move was seen by critics in the U.S. and abroad as appeasement: The Chinese refused to budge and left Uncle Sam with a sore elbow.

Later, Bush vetoed the Pelosi Bill that would have made law the waiver of the two-year home residency requirement for Chinese students studying in the United States. The president said that his executive order would cover the provisions of the bill; more importantly, he felt that Congress should not direct foreign policy.

But if the president doesn't lead the U.S. response to democratic reform in nations that have had other systems of government, then the Congress must take the burden. Bush has fought all his life for democratic reform — but is now hesitating to come through with sufficient assistance when the opportunity is ripe.

Congress must now act to ensure that deserving countries receive appropriate assistance. The budget is as much the responsibility of Congress as that of the president.

U.S. policy: 'free and fair?'

Administration needs consistent definition of democracy

A decade-long era seems to be over in Nicaragua. In another stunning world political development, President Daniel Ortega and the Sandinistas were soundly defeated in what is being described as a "free and fair," open and democratic election.

The people were apparently voting to stop the war and for a better economic life.

President George Bush, reluctant to say exactly what he would do if the Sandinistas were victorious, has barely been able to contain his glee now that Violeta Barrios de Chamorro has been elected. Congress, always more clear on what it would do than the president, appears ready to join in support of Bush's moves to end economic and military sanctions, send an ambassador to Managua, and provide economic aid.

The hope now is that the Contras will be disbanded, and the killing will stop.

But just beneath these feelings of relief is a sad tale of American diplomacy and history. Maybe now is the time to recall some of it. If we can learn from it, maybe we are not doomed to repeat the mistakes of the past.

Nicaragua, of course, is part of Central and Latin America. The

Jesse Jackson

United States has invaded countries in this hemisphere dozens of times in this century. We invaded them, not to side with the democratic forces of reform, but on the side of the landed gentry. We did not invade to move the status quo toward justice, but to maintain a status quo of injustice.

In Nicaragua, we created and sustained the Somoza dynasty. The three million people of Nicaragua, mainly poor peasants, watched the most powerful democracy on earth side with a tyrant whose family controlled virtually the entire country.

The result? A Sandinista-led revolution, one that all agreed was a popular nationalist revolt even though Daniel Ortega and the Sandinistas were not saints. But the Reagan/Bush administration refused from the beginning to respect the Nicaraguan people's right to self-determination.

The U.S. government resisted, not only legally and through diplomatic means but illegally and through military means as well. When We invaded the countries of Central and Latin America, not to side with the democratic forces of reform, but on the side of the landed gentry.

President Ronald Reagan was unable to convince Congress and the American people of the rightness of his cause in Nicaragua, he "deregulated" foreign policy and let private money and private armies secretly carry on the war.

His administration sent the Ayatollah cakes and Bibles, attempted to trade arms for hostages, and his White House aides, including his national security adviser, funneled some of the Iranian money paid for the arms to the Contras. The plot came unglued when a plane flown by a White House operative was shot down in Nicaragua. That sparked the greatest crisis of the Reagan presidency. The drama is still being played out in the courts. During the decade of the 1980s, the United States has spent hundreds of millions of dollars to carry out the war in Central America. Thirty thousand Nicaraguans lost their lives.

We imposed economic sanctions until the economy was reduced to a shambles. We mined Nicaragua's harbors in violation of international law, then thumbed our nose at the World Court when its decision went against us. Finally, we openly financed the political campaign of Chamorro.

If a country we depended on — say, Japan — were to cut us off economically, finance terrorist attacks against us, and fund one party in an election campaign, we would be outraged at the violation of international law and treaties. We would hardly call the elections free and fair.

We should strive for democracy everywhere in the world. But we should define democracy and support it with one set of rules. As we seek to gain the trust of our children and encourage moral behavior and raise ethical standards, we must not let our hypocritical version of democracy in Nicaragua stand as the example.

Ritter should follow his own teachings

Sex and money — they've been the downfall of many a good man, and today, things look pretty bad for Father Bruce Ritter.

Father Ritter is a member of the Franciscan Order. He is the founder, and until his recent resignation was the director, of Covenant House. This international organization provides shelter and help to over 25,000 homeless and runaway kids each year.

Covenant House began on the night some kids knocked on the door of a young priest who had moved to New York's Lower East Side with the assignment "to be useful to the poor." The kids had been pimped off to make a porn film, and they wanted out.

Marlena Corcoran

There have been kids sleeping on the floor at Father Ritter's ever since. Covenant House now occupies a set of six-story buildings on New York's Minnesota Strip. This stretch of Eighth Avenue near 42nd Street takes its name from the hundreds of runaways from the Midwest and other unlikely places who flow into Times Square like water to a sewer drain.

Once there, the kids are the main source of labor for a multi-million dollar prostitution industry. "You see, the word on the street is, jehns prefer chickens — kids," as Father Ritter explains in "Sometimes God Has a Kid's Face: Letters from Covenant House."

"I've never met a young prostitute, girl or boy, who did not start as a runaway," writes Father Ritter. And once a kid has been working for a year, the odds are that he or she will never get back on society's main track.

Kids desperately need Covenant House. We all need Covenant House. We need the idea that there is a safe haven where a kid can walk in off the street, any time of the day or night, and into the arms of people dedicated to love and help kids in trouble.

That's why it's heartbreaking to read the allegations of both sexual misconduct and financial mismanagement that have been leveled against Covenant House in the last few weeks.

Two former residents have accused Father Ritter of seducing them into homosexual relationships, and Father Ritter has resigned.

And last week, The New York State Attorney General decided to look into the management of a million-dollar fund established by Father Ritter, allegedly for Covenant House.

According to The New York Times, "Little of the money has ever been disbursed to Covenant House," but plenty of it has been loaned to the charity's executives. Two members of the board, Father Ritter's sister, and Father Ritter himself have been beneficiaries of such loans.

The amounts of money in question are significant. But they are nothing compared to people's trust. There is also a large discrepancy between the amounts of money pushed around by the fund and, say, the amount of money paid to the volunteers at Covenant House.

Members of a "faith community" staff the Times Square house, as well as others across America and abroad. As Father Ritter writes, "They each promise to commit at least a full year to God and my kids. In exchange, I provide room and board and $10 a week ($12, if they insist; salary is negotiable up to $12 a week.)"

This contrasts rather sharply with Father Ritter's own salary, of at least $98,000. Over half of this salary is paid directly to the tax-exempt, allegedly charitable trust. According to The New York Times, Father Ritter made this arrangement partly because of "his concern that critics of his views on an anti-pornography commission headed by former Attorney General Edwin Meese 3rd would attack him for earning such a high salary."

"I thought I was doing a good thing," Father Ritter said. Father Ritter uses similar words in his book, to describe the actions of a pimp who makes quite a bit of money running a brothel across the street from Covenant House in Times Square. One day the pimp came over with a donation. Father Ritter was furious, and insisted that his staff return the money.

Thinking it over, Father Ritter later concluded, "I think he tried to do a good thing." He concludes, "suddenly I am overwhelmed by my friendship with this man, for we are both sinners hoping in the mercy of God and His forgiveness."

Greed and lust are denounced in Father Ritter's writing — as well we might expect from a Franciscan. The board of Covenant House would do well to remember the model left to the world by St. Francis, who practiced two great virtues: chastity and poverty.

State senators manifest support for 1-year freeze on tuition

DES MOINES (AP) — A one-year tuition freeze at Iowa's three state universities now might win Senate approval, according to Majority Leader Bill Hutchins, D-Audubon.

Last week Hutchins said the House-approved tuition freeze was in danger of rejection by the Senate, but he offered a different prognosis after a closed-door meeting of Senate Democrats on Tuesday.

Hutchins said there appears to be 26 votes in the 50-member Senate for the freeze.

"A lot of the legislators feel that, tuition being high enough, we ought to put the clamps on," Hutchins said.

The meeting of Senate Democrats lasted one hour, and Hutchins said the tuition freeze was the main topic of conversation. The freeze was included by the House in a $1.06 billion bill for state education spending in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The bill would include $2.5 million for the universities in lieu of a tuition hike for Iowa residents who are undergraduates. The Board of Regents is charged with setting tuition rates at Iowa State University, the UI and the University of Northern Iowa, but Democrats who control the House and Senate have criticized tuition hikes approved in recent years by Republican Gov. Terry Branstad's appointees on the board.

Annual undergraduate tuition for Iowans at the schools is now $1,826 at Iowa and Iowa State, and $1,810 at Northern Iowa.

Members of the Board of Regents have said they oppose the Legislature's intervention, adding that they are not planning any tuition hikes beyond the rate of inflation.

Hutchins said earlier that the Senate Democrats might look at alternatives to an across-the-board tuition freeze, in order to provide tuition relief only to needy students. But he said Tuesday that there are enough Democratic votes to approve the House plan.

"It's close," he said. "It's a one-vote difference."

Hutchins said the Senate Democrats agreed to add $275,000 to the House education budget bill to help finance textbooks for students attending parochial schools.

Fiesta! Music, dance, food, celebración of Spanish culture make Gusto Latino fun

Chicago wanting to know when Gusto Latino is so they and their friends can come for it," said UI junior Lara Wright, a Spanish House programmer.

The evening is organized by the Spanish House at the UI Foreign Language House.

Saturday night's musical entertainment will be provided by a new Davenport band, "Latin Rythm."

Pinata breaking, a wide variety of hispanic foods, limbo and dance contests will go on throughout the evening, and Spanish House members plan to perform a special dance, the mambo.

Last year, the festival was held in the IMU. The new location in the lower level of the Holiday Inn will allow more room for dancing, Wright said.

Tickets, which include admission and food, will be sold at the door of the dance Saturday night for $4.25 each.

Various groups including the UI Latin American Student Association (ADELA), UI Student Senate and the UI Liberal Arts Student Association fund the festival.

Outages hit two stations

DES MOINES (AP) — Ice and windy weather knocked out two Des Moines-area television stations for more than an hour Tuesday afternoon, and a third operated at reduced power.

The stations are located at Alleman, a community between Ames and Des Moines.

Iowa Power interrupted service to the transmitter sites because icing and high winds were snapping electric wires.

Bank

and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, said agents from Denver and a 12-person national response team were dispatched at the request of local authorities.

"There was an explosion, but there are no natural gas lines in there. We're puzzled by it," said Gillen. "It doesn't make sense."

"I'm not ruling out a bomb, and I'm not ruling out an explosion from methane buildup," Smith said. "We've just completed the rescue effort, and we're just now beginning the investigation."

Crested Butte, population about 1,000, is 9,000 feet high in the western Colorado mountains.

Heavy snow hampered rescue efforts and delayed the arrival of ambulances from Gunnison, Gillen said. An airplane did manage to land in Gunnison and stood by to take victims to St. Mary's Hospital in Grand Junction, western Colorado's largest hospital.

Bank officials said they plan to open up a temporary bank on Wednesday in another building.

Budget

board needs a qualified person to analyze cash flow of the county budget, but said he would oversee program evaluations by a manager.

"Analysis of the programs is the board's function," Myers said.

Myers said he wants the board to first carefully consider what a budget manager's role would be before taking any other steps.

"I don't want to appropriate money before we do a job description," Myers said.

To date, the board has relied on accountants in the Johnson County Auditor's office to make projections of expenditures and revenues, but changes in personnel from year to year have yielded inconsistent benefits, Myers said.

County Auditor Tom Slockett said he is against the creation of an independent office of budget manager.

"The taxpayers are the ones that will bear the burden if the board appoints someone to a position like this," he said.

For a modest salary, a clerk accountant could perform the budget manager role from inside the auditor's office and take advantage of the existing resources, Slockett said.

Slockett added that the most cost-effective way to manage the budget would be to continue doing the job through the auditor's office, which would prevent another department from being created, he said.

"I feel it would be advantageous to have the (current) budget director function improved," Slockett said.

He added that the office's budget presentation to the board this year was the best it has ever been, due to the professionalism of three accountants working with new office computers.

Burns said he wants to form committees to find out what other counties have done.

A public hearing on the 1991 proposed budget is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. March 12, at the Johnson County Administration building, 913 S. Dubuque St. Burns will speak in favor of hiring a budget manager at that time.

Soviet

Soviet's two houses broke into applause as the vote was announced.

The section on the property rights of Soviet citizens, which includes the right to own factories and other means of producing goods, passed 354-0 with 13 abstentions.

A Western diplomat watching the session said it would be the first time since the New Economic Policy that private individuals would be allowed to own industrial plants.

People have traditionally been allowed to own cars, summer homes, and other personal property.

The law also gives individuals the right to hire others to work for them as long as their pay and benefits are in keeping with Soviet law. Both the private ownership of factories and hired labor are regarded in classic Marxism as exploitation of workers, ers, and were one of the key targets of Lenin's revolution.

Despite its strong stand on property rights, the bill continued to skirt the socialist bugaboo of private property. It makes no mention of private property, but refers instead to the property of citizens.

"It's unfortunate that there is no mention of private property, but the principle is there," Yablakov said.

Noted political commentator Fyodor Burlatsky, also a deputy, said the bill was a good start but still inadequate to pull the Soviet Union from its economic quagmire.

Vice President Anatoly Lukyanov, who chaired the joint meeting of the Supreme Soviet's two chambers, urged the legislature not to drag its feet on the bill, which is to become law on July 1.

"We need this law to go into effect fast," he said.

Atwater

examination by a pathologist.

President George Bush telephoned Atwater to wish him well, according to White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater.

The 39-year-old party chairman, who was Bush's campaign chairman in 1988, also received calls from former Presidents Ronald Reagan and Richard Nixon.

Atwater was taken to the hospital Monday morning after he collapsed while addressing a breakfast meeting of supporters of Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas.

The Republican chairman was transferred by ambulance to Holy Cross Hospital in suburban Silver Spring, Md., Monday night for a special exam called magnetic resonance imaging, which provides computer analysis of internal organs and structures.

The test provides doctors a clearer look at soft tissue than is possible through conventional X-rays. The MRI is a diagnostic tool used to detect lesions such as tumors or blood clots in soft tissue.

After the test, Atwater was seen propped up on a stretcher, chatting with family members and aides and appeared in good spirits.

An avid jogger, Atwater exercises up to 90 minutes a day and often runs six miles.

He accompanied Bush to party fund-raising events in California last week and then spent the weekend in Puerto Rico on party business.

A native of South Carolina, Atwater managed Sen. Strom Thurmond's re-election campaign in 1978.

But, two years later in the campaign for the Republican presidential nomination, the senator and his campaign manager were in opposing camps in the South Carolina primary. Thurmond backed former Texas Gov. John Connally, while Atwater worked for Reagan, who swept the state's delegates.

Eight years later, a similar contest unfolded when Thurmond backed Sen. Bob Dole in the state's GOP presidential primary while Atwater was heading the Bush campaign. Once again, Atwater's candidate swamped the field.

Gas barge explodes; 1 injured

LINDEN, N.J. (AP) — A barge loaded with more than 621,000 gallons of gasoline exploded in flames Tuesday on a waterway plagued by oil spills this year, and at least one man was injured, the Coast Guard said.

The barge, anchored at a Citgo petroleum facility at Linden, broke its moorings after the explosion and drifted across the Arthur Kill waterway to Staten Island, N.Y., said Andrew Pasko of the Linden police department.

U.S. Coast Guard Chief Warrant Officer John Hollis said one person was taken to a hospital after the explosion aboard the barge Cibro Savannah.

Hollis said the barge carried 100,500 barrels, or more than 621,000 gallons of unleaded gasoline.

A Cibro Petroleum barge loaded with more than 621,000 gallons of gasoline burns in a Linden, N.J., waterway Tuesday after exploding while moored at a petroleum facility there.

New York confirmed that the barge belonged to the company, but said she had no details. She declined to give her name.

"It shook the world," said John McCabe, who works at Auchter Industrial, as he watched a plume of smoke rise thousands of feet into the air. People across the city could see the column of smoke.

Ben Francesco, 59, of Staten Island, owner of an auto wrecking yard about 1,000 yards from the scene, said flames from the barge were shooting about 1,000 feet in the air, and giving off a lot of black smoke.

Coast Guard, marine police and New York City boats headed to the scene.

Gephardt: Give aid to Soviets

WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democratic Leader Richard Gephardt said Tuesday the United States should offer direct aid to the Soviet Union to ensure that its reforms succeed.

"We should be investing in our own self-interest," Gephardt said. "And stability, democracy and a market economy in the Soviet Union are in America's strong self-interest."

The proposal brought immediate criticism from some quarters, with a presidential spokesman saying the Soviets don't want direct aid.

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., also said that the Soviets haven't requested U.S. help and that, if they did, it would be wasted without economic reform. "Unless they reform the economy, it's going down a rathole," Bradley said.

Others on Capitol Hill said that while they thought Gephardt's proposal would spark a useful debate, the idea would fall on disapproving public ears.

"If you're going to start giving foreign aid to the hated commies of 70 years' worth, you've got a real sales job to do in the United States," said Sen. Alan Simpson, R-Wyo.

Gephardt noted an appeal by Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel, in a February 21 speech to Congress, to help his country by helping the Soviet Union continue on its reformist road.

If Havel, who was imprisoned by the communists, can call for aid to the Soviets, "the least we can do is listen," Gephardt said in a speech that also contained his harshest criticism to date of President George Bush's policy toward Eastern Europe.

He accused Bush of "a lack of leadership in this most crucial moment," throwing billions of dollars into the military budget to defend against "communists who don't want to be communists any more" while ignoring their economic needs.

"It's as though George Bush's Pentagon budget were written by someone who hadn't read a newspaper in a year," Gephardt said, drawing applause. Indeed, most of the administration's budget was drafted last year, after the opening of the Berlin Wall but before many other dramatic developments in Eastern Europe.

At the White House, spokesman Marlin Fitzwater called the charges "general old political stuff" and added, "The Soviet Union doesn't want direct aid."

House Speaker Thomas Foley said he agreed with Gephardt.

GOP pushes bill to let elderly work

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional Republicans said Tuesday they will try to force votes this year on a bill allowing some older Americans with higher incomes to work without losing parts of their Social Security pensions.

"By penalizing seniors who wish to enhance their income and remain active members of the American work force, current law actually makes it tougher for many seniors to support themselves," said Sen. Connie Mack, R-Fla.

"Our bill gives senior citizens a choice of whether they want to work or retire," said Rep. Dennis Hastert, R-Ill., chief House sponsor of the legislation.

The bill has been signed by 181 of the 435 members of the House.

"The Senate ... will act" on the bill this year, predicted Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas. If the Democratic-controlled Finance Committee fails to approve the measure, he said, "we are going to vote on it over and over and over again" on the Senate floor. Eighteen of the 100 senators have voiced support for the bill.

A person who is at least 65 but under 70 may earn $9,360 this year without losing any Social Security benefits. For each $3 earned above that amount, a worker loses $1 of pension. A person 62, 63 or 64 gives up $1 in benefits for each $2 earned above $6,840. There is no earnings limit for those 70 and older.

Republicans have tried for a quarter century to repeal the earnings limit, contending it effectively imposes the nation's highest tax burden on older citizens. The Bush administration has not supported repeal.

The House approved a significant reduction in the earnings limit last year, as did the Senate Finance Committee. But the measure was dropped in the Senate as part of a deficit-reduction agreement.

The House Ways and Means Committee estimates that repealing the earnings limit would benefit only the best-off 10 percent of people between 65 and 70. About one of every five Americans in that age group earns an income.

Hastert cited a study predicting that if the limitation were repealed, 700,000 older people, who do not now work would rejoin the labor force, creating $132 billion in economic output. He said repeal would cost the treasury $7.2 billion in federal tax revenues, but $3.2 billion of that would be made up in tax collections on the new income.

Ortega refuses to surrender Sandinistas

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nicaraguan President Daniel Ortega's recently expressed reluctance to surrender control of the Sandinista armed forces is "very much at odds" with the conciliatory tone he struck after his election defeat, the State Department said Tuesday.

Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler expressed concern over Ortega's recent comments on retaining Sandinista control of the nation's military and on the leftist party's revival of local Sandinista militias.

She said the declarations and actions by the Sandinista government fall short of the expectations raised by the initial offers to cooperate in a peaceful transfer of power.

Ortega was defeated in the February 26 elections by Violeta Chamorro, now the president-elect.

"After the election, Mr. Ortega promised to respect the will of the Nicaraguan people and to transfer power in an orderly and peaceful manner to President-elect Chamorro," Tutwiler said.

"His most recent remarks, which talk of retaining control of the military, coupled with press reports that local Sandinista militia are being reactivated, are very much at odds with the spirit of peaceful reconciliation and President Ortega's own public comments," she said.

Nicaragua's electorate voted for peace, she said, noting that Chamorro "wants to demilitarize the country and to create safe and democratic conditions for the peaceful demobilization" of the anti-Sandinista Contra rebels.

The U.S. recognizes that after a decade of civil war there are fears on both sides, she said, adding that there is also considerable goodwill.

While the process of reconciliation will be difficult, sensitive and complex, she said, that does not change U.S. policy that the Contras should be repatriated under "safe and democratic conditions."

"We are aware of these comments by Mr. Ortega and we have pointed out that it is not necessarily in line with the original conciliatory tone," she said.

State of emergency declared in Ciskei

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — The new military rulers of the Ciskei homeland declared a state of emergency Tuesday in a bid to end looting and rioting following their coup that has left 27 people dead and 550 injured.

There were reports of more looting despite the presence of South African troops, who were sent in to quell the violence at the request of the new rulers in Ciskei.

Dissident army officers led by Brig. Gen. Oupa Gqozo staged a bloodless coup Sunday that ousted Ciskei's President Lennox Sebe while he was in Hong Kong on a trade mission.

Ciskei, a 3,600-square-mile territory of about 1 million people on the Indian Ocean coast, is one of 10 black homelands in South Africa. They are recognized only by the Pretoria government.

South Africa established the homelands in the 1960s to try to create separate, tribal-based states for blacks while whites retain control of national politics and the economy.

Looting and rioting erupted Sunday evening, and more than 50 stores and factories, many owned by Israelis and Taiwanese, have been destroyed.

FAA: More rules for aging planes

WASHINGTON — The Federal Aviation Administration imposed rules Tuesday for preventing fatigue damage in aging Boeing airliners and proposed tough rules for detecting corrosion in the same planes.

The fatigue rules require replacement of some parts when an airliner reaches set numbers of flights, while the corrosion rules call for periodic inspections of all Boeing 707, 727, 737 and 747 airliners as they age.

The fatigue rules were proposed last May after a task force of U.S. and foreign airlines drew up plans for ensuring that the world's aging airline fleet can keep flying safely. Foreign regulatory agencies generally follow FAA requirements for U.S.-built planes.

The aging airliner effort was started after the roof of an Aloha Airlines 737 ripped off at 24,000 feet over Maui, Hawaii, in April 1988. A stewardess was swept from the plane to her death and 64 passengers were injured. The plane was 19 years old with nearly 90,000 flights.

The accident was caused primarily by metal fatigue, but corrosion was also found, the FAA said.

Liz Taylor lobbies Congress on AIDS

WASHINGTON — Elizabeth Taylor told Congress on Tuesday that "the darkest days of the AIDS crisis still lie ahead of us" as she lobbied for a bill providing $600 million in emergency aid to care for people with the disease.

The movie star and outspoken advocate of more AIDS spending lent her celebrity appeal to the cause at a pair of congressional events — a news conference at which Sens. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass., and Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, unveiled their bipartisan AIDS bill, and a House hearing on AIDS.

"We need money — we need lots of money, and we need it now," she said. "Our cities and states are being choked by the enormous cost of caring for AIDS patients."

The bill has 21 Senate sponsors, and its backers sought to display bipartisan support. Appearing with Taylor were lawmakers from both parties, AIDS leaders and mayors including Democrats David Dinkins of New York and Ray Flynn of Boston and Republican Dick Berkley of Kansas City, Mo.

The bill would provide $300 million in direct emergency assistance to 13 cities with the worst AIDS problem. Another $300 million would go to states to develop comprehensive programs to care for people with AIDS, or acquired immune deficiency syndrome.

Rate increase proposed by ailing Postal Service

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. Postal Service today began the complex process of adding a nickel to the price of mailing a letter.

With a record $1.6 billion loss looming in his fiscal year, Postmaster General Anthony Frank says the increase is necessary.

First-Class Rate

Announcement to be made Tuesday revealing plans for rate increases in all mail classes.

The postal Board of Governors voted for increases averaging 19 percent and affecting virtually all classes of mail.

The charge for first class is to rise from a quarter to 30 cents next year, with each additional ounce increasing from 20 cents to 23 cents.

Post cards would cost 20 cents rather than 15 to send. And rates will also rise for advertising, magazines, parcels and other types of mail.

"Even at 30 cents, postage is one of America's best buys," said Frank.

That increase would be somewhat more than the rate of inflation, said Frank, who promised to hold postal spending below the inflation rate at least through 1995.

Unlike a store manager, however, Frank can't simply slap a new price tag on the goods.

The proposal must go to the independent Postal Rate Commission, which has 10 months to consider the request, hold hearings and issue a report.

If the commission agrees, rates can go up. If not, it's back to the drawing board unless the postal service board of governors votes unanimously to overrule the commission.

Any rate increase would not occur before early 1991.

But even though the process is only beginning, sides are being chosen for the battle.

Vincent Sombrotto, head of the 315,000-member National Association of Letter Carriers, contends that stamps today are cheaper than they were in 1971, if inflation is taken into account.

Sombrotto held a news conference Monday to defend the rate hike and to denounce critics of the post office, who have called for private business to be allowed to compete in mail delivery.

James Miller, who was federal budget director under President Reagan, is spearheading the campaign in favor of private competition. And consumer advocate Ralph Nader is trying to organize opposition to the proposed rate increase.

Postal charges last increased in 1988. Frank has said he hopes to have only one more price rise in this century.

Resweetened, reformulated Coke renamed for testing

ATLANTA (AP) — New Coke, the reformulated, sweeter version of Coca-Cola that inspired a consumer rebellion before sinking to the bottom tier of soft drink sales, is trying out a new name and a different look, its maker said Tuesday.

Coca-Cola Co. said it plans to test market new Coke under the name Coke II. Spokesman Randy Donaldson said Coke II would be sold initially in one city, which he would not identify, within the next few months.

The formula of the newly renamed drink will not be changed, Donaldson said.

Industry observers speculated that if the new name were adopted, the company could return the Coca-Cola brand name to the original formula, now called Coke Classic.

Jesse Meyers, the Greenwich, Conn., publisher of the industry newsletter Beverage Digest, said the Coke II test marks the first big shot of the 1990s in the cola wars between Coca-Cola and Pepsi Cola.

Meyers said he has seen the proposed packaging for Coke II, and its red, white and blue design with blue lettering closely resembles that of Pepsi. However, Donaldson said that unlike Pepsi, the Coke II can has a red background with white letters and a blue outline.

THE PALESTINIAN INTIFADA 1990 THROUGH THE EYES OF IOWA CITY WITNESSES

Since Dec. 9th, 1987, and till the very moment Palestinians have been engaged in a just struggle for dignity and freedom. The Israeli occupation authorities have acted with an "iron-fist" policy which has claimed the lives of more than 1,200 Palestinian civilians and left thousands of others injured or homeless.

At the end of Dec., Israel's largest peace organization, Peace Now, organized the "1990: Time for Peace" initiative. The event featured a 30,000-person "Human Chain" with participants from Europe, the U.S., Latin America, Israel and Palestinian East Jerusalem (inhabitants of the Occupied Territories were prevented from attending the event because of the total curfew on the area). The rendezvous served as a climax to a three-day conference which brought peace activists together to show support for a peaceful two-state solution to the Palestinian-Israeli conflict. Labeled as "the largest, most important event ever in support of peace in this region of the world," the demonstration and its participants were victimized by what organizers called "a brutal and unnecessary attack" (which took place before the event actually got started) perpetrated by Israeli occupation soldiers.

Our two speakers were in the Occupied Territories from Dec. 27th to Jan. 9th and participated in several activities of the conference including the peace march. Also, they were part of a 4-person delegation that researched the "Law of the Intifada" and the implication of the establishment of a Palestinian legal system vis a vis the Israeli Occupation.

Afghanistan halts guerrilla coup attempt

ISLAMABAD, Pakistan (AP) — The Afghan defense minister and Moslem guerrillas attempted to overthrow the Kremlin-backed government in Kabul Tuesday but failed, Kabul radio said. Pakistan-based guerrillas and diplomats said they had reports of widespread fighting in Kabul.

In Moscow, official Soviet sources said the palace of President Najib was bombed by unidentified planes, and that there was fighting around the Defense Ministry.

Official Kabul radio, monitored in Islamabad, said Defense Minister Shah Nawaz Tanai had plotted with guerrilla leader Gulbuddin Hekmatyar and his fighters to overthrow the government.

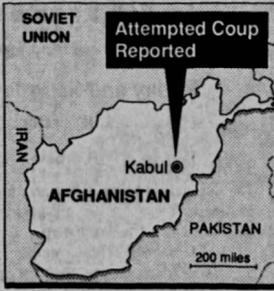

But the attempted coup was crushed, it said, and Tanai had escaped. Security forces were searching for him and his backers.

The radio appealed to Afghans to join the military and help capture Tanai "dead or alive."

A curfew was imposed at 7 p.m. in Kabul, the radio said.

Hekmatyar, leader of Hezb-i-Islami, one of the most fundamentalist of the seven resistance groups based in Pakistan, said the guerrillas were broadcasting appeals on the Afghan army's military frequency urging soldiers to help oust Najib and his government.

people to join hands, topple this regime and finish the fighting," Hekmatyar said at a news conference in Islamabad.

Najib has been president of Afghanistan since 1986. He has made various offers to the guerrillas, known as mujahedeen or Islamic holy warriors, to try to end the civil war that started when his Marxist party seized power in a 1978 coup.

Tanai is considered a party hardliner who opposes the peace overtures. He was implicated in a December coup attempt but was never charged.

Guerrilla sources based in Pakistan said they had reports from their commanders of widespread fighting in Kabul.

"If Kabul radio says it (the coup) has been crushed, it doesn't mean it has," said a guerrilla source.

Tanai, one of the leaders of the revolution that installed the Soviet-backed government, has reportedly had contacts recently with the Moslem guerrillas.

Guerrillas in the Pakistan frontier city of Peshawar indicated they would give the general sanctuary. "Probably," said one guerrilla source when asked if the rebels would help Tanai evade Afghan troops.

The Soviet news agency Tass, quoting eyewitnesses, said "unidentified planes bombed the presidential palace," and that anti-aircraft guns returned fire. Shooting also was heard in the vicinity of the airport and near the Defense Ministry, Tass said.

Soviet Foreign Ministry spokesman Gennady Gerasimov told reporters earlier in a news briefing that a coup attempt possibly was under way.

"There is fighting at the airport. The situation is unclear, it may be a coup attempt," he said. "We must wait for information, we don't know who is fighting who."

He said it was too early to say what action the Soviet Union would take in the event Najib was overthrown.

Western diplomats in Islamabad also reported street fighting, aerial bombardments by the Afghan air force, tank movement around the Soviet Embassy and fighting around the presidential palace. They did not know if the tanks were being moved to defend the embassy or to attack it.

The diplomats, speaking on condition of anonymity, said they had received their information from numerous sources.

Radio Kabul said Aslam Watanjar the country's interior minister, will replace Tanai.

Tanai has been involved in at least three of five known coup attempts since Najib became president in December 1986, Afghan sources in New Delhi said.

The most recent was in December, when at least 100 members of the Khalqi faction of the People's Democratic Party of Afghanistan were detained, the sources said on condition of anonymity. Similar accounts were given by Kabul residents.

Tanai, thought to be in his mid-40s, has a reputation as an ultra hardliner, especially when it comes to making any concessions to the mujahedeen or modifying the stand of his party. Although its origins are Marxist, the party under Najib has sought to portray itself as a defender of Islam and champion of a free-market economy.

1st free Czech elections since '46 will be in June

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia (AP) — Czechoslovakia's first free elections in more than four decades will be held on June 8 and 9, Parliament announced today.

The balloting for both houses of Parliament will be based on the principle of proportional representation, said a parliament statement carried by the official CTK news agency. Parties will need 10,000 signatures to run a candidate and at least 5 percent of the national vote for a mandate, CTK said.

Czechoslovakia's peaceful revolution late last year toppled the hard-line Communist leadership of Milos Jakes, ending more than 40 years of Communist rule and paving the way for the first free elections since 1946.

In keeping with a decision to streamline the country's legislative body, the number of seats in the House of People, one of Parliament's two chambers, has been reduced from 200 to 150 seats.

Of those, 101 will go to candidates in the Czech lands, while 49 will be allocated to deputies from the country's smaller republic, Slovakia, CTK said.

In the second chamber, the House of Nations, the 150 seats were divided evenly between representatives from the two republics.

The decision to cut the number of seats came under a move to transform the parliament into a less unwieldy, full-time legislature. Under Communist rule the parliament was largely a rubber-stamp institution for party policy that met only a few days a year.

In another development, the Czech National Council, the regional Parliament, approved an amendment to the republic's constitution Monday dropping the "Socialist" from its name, "Czech Socialist Republic," CTK reported.

Deputies of the Czech council also supported a proposal by Czechoslovak President Vaclav Havel to drop the word "Socialist" from the country's formal name, making it the "Czechoslovak Republic."

The Czech and Slovak lands were united in Czechoslovakia in 1918 after the dissolution of the Austrian Habsburg monarchy in World War I.

Protestants, Catholics talk of peace in Northern Ireland

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — All sides in Northern Ireland, from the IRA to Ian Paisley, are talking about peace, but not to each other as yet.

With Catholics and Protestants both unhappy with the status quo, feelers sprout from many directions: from Irish Prime Minister Charles Haughey, the Protestant leaders of the Unionist parties, the main Roman Catholic parties and the British government.

The contacts continued Tuesday as Peter Brooke, the top British official in the province, met with three Unionists.

"We didn't expect there would be any startling development," said Ken Maginnis, a member of Parliament from the Ulster Unionist Party. Maginnis, whose goal is the creation of a provincial government to end 18 years of direct rule from London, said no one should expect a sudden breakthrough.

"I want to see a devolved government... but I want to see something that people will feel confident with, not something that becomes just another millstone around our necks," Maginnis said. The "millstone," as Unionists see it, is the Anglo-Irish Agreement signed by Britain and Ireland in the Northern Ireland village of Hillsborough in 1985.

The treaty guaranteed Ireland an advisory role in Northern Ireland affairs and pledged the two governments to cooperate against terrorism.

Outraged Unionists, who saw it as a step toward Irish unity, retreated into a policy seen on walls and billboards all around Northern Ireland: "Ulster says no!"

Earlier this year, a poll for The Belfast Telegraph and the BBC found that 81 percent of Catholics and 87 percent of Protestants believe the Hillsborough treaty had harmed relations between the two communities.

While 53 percent of Catholics said the status quo would be "acceptable" for the future, only 22 percent of Protestants agreed. In other words, two-thirds of the total rejected the status quo.

Versace turns coture world heads, moving his skirt hem to show more than just legs

MILAN, Italy (AP) — If Gianni Versace was daring last season when he hiked his hemlines 10 inches above the knee, this time he's darn right fresh with skirts so tiny they no longer cover anything.

The peek-a-boo effect of the new fall-winter collection presented in Rome on Sunday was no accident. The flamboyant designer, favorite son of the showbiz crowd, presented them in a variety of styles, from corset-hugging jersey dresses and skirts to elaborately embroidered silk cocktail gowns.

Also super short was the 1990 Versace version of the loose trapeze dress first launched in the 1960s.

Gianni was a bad boy when it came to his evening wear too, glitting the side of a floor-length gown straight up the leg. The same gown has a plunging neckline which joins the slit at the waist in a single snap. What happens if the snap were to pop is anybody's guess.

Apart from a few raised eyebrows, mainly from the staid Milanese crowd on the first day of the four-day ready-to-wear collections, the general consensus was that whatever Gianni does he does so well he can get away with it.

One of the things Versace does best is jeweled embroidery, which this season he uses heavily to divert attention from the many bare spots in his collection.

Thus a tiny A-line silk dress, which is really no more than a slip, becomes a sumptuous cocktail gown when Versace cristles a myriad of shimmering crystals and pearls in the form of a heart down the back or across the front.

Bustier tops made up entirely of encrusted jewels give substance to the micro skirt below, while simple silk stretch pants turn into sophisticated evening wear when decorated with paisley or floral prints shaped entirely out of rich sequins.

Plumage on hemlines and waistlines are another filler in the collection.

To further make up for the skimpy styles underneath, the Versace jacket is loose and full with wide sleeve and generous shawl collar, in bright shades of blue, green, yellow and red.

Speaking of red, Versace uses cardinal red heavily in his new winter fashion, throwing down the gauntlet to fellow Italian designer Valentino, who up to now had the monopoly on the rich and elegant shade.

The four-day Italian ready-to-wear shows got off to a fresh start Sunday morning with the Emporio Armani (a Giorgio Armani label aimed at the younger set) fall-winter 1990-1991 collection full of fun ideas for the chilly months ahead.

According to Armani, heavy knit sweaters will be worn over jackets next winter, boots will reach the thigh to protect legs bared by melonuda mini skirts and bermuda shorts, and jump suits will be knitted and worn with a scarf tied around the waist for extra coziness.

I'm happy, she's happy — here, we're all happy when Gianni Versace presents a new ready-to-wear line!

During the trend-setting Milanese fashion week such top Italian names as Krizia, Ferre, Fendi, Missoni Genny and Byblos will present their new winter wear. Most of the shows take place in the fashion pavilion of the modern trade fair on the outskirts of Milan. However, some of the big names in Italian style prefer to show in more exclusive surroundings.

The five Roman Fendi sisters have rented an elegant palazzo for their much awaited fur show Tuesday night, while Armani, the "numero uno" of Italian ready to wear, will close the shows Wednesday night with his label collection presented in the theater of his downtown Milan headquarters.

Time-Warner to open Soviet theaters

WASHINGTON (AP) — Not to be outdone by McDonald's, Time Warner Inc. announced plans Tuesday to open American-style, multiple-screen movie theaters next year in Moscow and Leningrad, where audiences will be allowed to eat popcorn in their seats for the first time.

The two ultramodern theaters are expected to open in late 1991 at a cost of $28 million, and will offer the Soviet Union's avid moviegoers a total of 19 new screens and 7,400 new seats to enjoy popular foreign and domestic films, U.S. and Soviet officials said. The theaters will feature state-of-the-art projection and Dolby stereo sound systems, computerized ticket booths, concession stands in marble and neon lobbies, restaurants, souvenir shops and video game arcades — with parking lots out front.

American popcorn, a novelty to Soviet audiences, will be sold along with candy and soft drinks. And in a break with Soviet tradition, moviegoers who formerly were required to consume refreshments at buffet counters in theater lobbies will be able to carry them to their seats in the new theaters.

"Hooray for Hollywood and Leningrad and Moscow, too," said Time Warner President N.J. Nicholas Jr. at a news conference at the Soviet Embassy where Ambassador Yuri Dubinin toasted the healthy future of this Soviet-American child.

The announcement came less than two months after McDonald's opened its first fast-food restaurant in the Soviet capital January 31, serving an opening-day record of 30,000 meals

Ozzy's red-faced mad at cardinal

NEW YORK (AP) — Rock singer Ozzy Osbourne, who's been known to bite the heads off bats and pigeons, chose to send a telegram when faced with a righteous cardinal.

"You are ignorant about the true meaning of my songs," Osbourne wrote Monday to Cardinal John O'Connor, who in a sermon singled out the heavy-metal musician as especially satanic.

"You have also insulted the intelligence of rock fans all over the world, and I recommend you do a little research before making your opinions in the future," Osbourne said.

The former lead singer of Black Sabbath took offense when O'Connor singled out Osbourne's "Suicide Solution" as typifying the songs that lead to demonic possession and even suicide.

"If you want to discuss this matter with me personally, you can call me any time and I will only be too happy to discuss this with you in private. God bless you," Osbourne wrote.

Osbourne was sued in 1987 by parents of a 19-year-old who committed suicide while listening to another Osbourne song. The lawsuit was later dismissed.

The thrash rocker says that "Suicide Solution" was really about the dangers of alcohol, which caused the death of his friend, Bon Scott, lead singer of AC-DC.

Redgraves to star in 'Three Sisters'

LONDON (AP) — The theatrical Redgraves are planning an onstage family get-together in Chekhov's "Three Sisters," with Vanessa and Lynn Redgrave joining Vanessa's daughter, Joely Richardson, in the title roles.

The two sisters, Vanessa and Lynn, have never performed together publicly, Thelma Holt, the play's producer, said Tuesday.

"These are three great, great roles and it was an absolute stroke of genius because the relationship we have is so strong and loving," Lynn said.

The play is scheduled to open in London in November.

UI bands band together in concert

Staci Sturrock
The Daily Iowan

The UI's University and Concert bands are banding together tonight for a joint concert in Clapp Recital Hall. Morgan Jones, associate professor in the UI School of Music, directs the Concert Band, and music doctoral student John Bell will conduct the University Band.

The Concert Band's program features a theme of motion. "All the selections are tied together by a common thread in that each suggests a kinetic response," Jones says. "Motion is inherent in all the selections, if not in the title, then in the music."

Three pieces on the program were originally written for orchestra and subsequently transposed for band. Two are selections from operas by Rimsky-Korsakov, "Procession of the Nobles" from "Mlada" and "Dance of the Tumblers" from "The Snow Maiden." The third is "March to the Scaffold" from Hector Berlioz's "Symphonie Fantastique."

Three other pieces were written specifically for band. "Tiger Triumph March" by Karl King and

"The Free Lance March" by John Philip Sousa are standard marches written in duple meter with a steady pulse and rhythm.

The other piece originally written for band, the Third Suite by Robert Jager, uses an unusual combination of mixed meters, creating a somewhat uneven rhythmic flow.

Jones says "March to the Scaffold" will probably be the high point of the Concert Band's program. "It's the finale of the program, and the composition is very solid musically."

The University Band's program consists of "The Crosley March" by Henry Fillmore, "Epinicion" by John Paulson, "Fantasia on a Southern Folk Hymn" by James Curnow, "Three Sketches for Winds" by Clare Grundman and "Gaelic Rhapsody" by Elliot Del Bargo.

Bell says that "Gaelic Rhapsody" was purposely chosen to finish out the band's program. "I think it will be a well-received number," he says. "The tunes in the arrangement are in a familiar vein, and the piece fits the ensemble quite well."

The concert, which begins at 8 p.m., is free and open to the public.

UI Press releases Giamo's 'Bowery'

The Daily Iowan

Long before the homeless began appearing on the streets of cities across America, the Bowery came to typify the problem of homelessness. A new book from the University of Iowa Press, "On the Bowery: Confronting Homelessness in American Society" by Benedict Giamo, examines the relationship of the homeless to the mainstream culture that surrounds them and yet doesn't quite include them.

Author Giamo spent three years, from 1977-80, going into New York City's Bowery where he observed and recorded the lives of the men living there. He talked with them, drank with them, ate with them and even accompanied them as they went begging from passersby. But Giamo goes beyond the perspective of his actual encounters with the homeless to look at how the Bowery developed historically and how it has become, through literature, not only a "street and section of New York City, but also the embodiment" of urban poverty and homelessness.

For his study, Giamo won the 1988 Ralph Henry Gabriel Prize of the American Studies Association. "At a time when thousands of Americans in city after city live utterly marginal, forsaken lives, we all need to know that there is, alas, a tradition for such a manner of living," says Robert Coles, a Pulitzer Prize-winning writer and leading child psychiatrist. "This is a lively and edifying book."

"On the Bowery" is available in hardcover for $27.50 from the University of Iowa Press, Iowa City, 52242.

fun," he said. The unabashed free spirit, when asked why he was wearing a skirt in downtown Portland one summer day in 1984, said, "I believe in wearing no clothes at all, and this is the closest you can get to it in public."

Beskirted actor Merrill dead at 74

FALMOUTH, Maine (AP)—Gary Merrill spent his final years on the Maine coast doing very little — which suited the actor who died at his home of lung cancer. He was 74.

"I've spent my life doing as little as possible... and I intend to keep doing exactly the same thing," Merrill told an interviewer in 1981. He said he enjoyed being "a hermit."

Merrill, who moved to Maine in 1965 and spent most of his time playing golf and reading poetry in schools, died Monday at his small cottage overlooking the ocean in the wealthy Portland suburb of Falmouth Foreside.

Merrill was best known for his supporting roles in the movies "Twelve O'Clock High" and "All About Eve" and for his stormy marriage to actress Bette Davis. He also was a long-time escort of actress Rita Hayworth. His first movie role was in "Winged Victory" in 1944.

The colorful, spirited actor, whose penchant for skirts on hot days was known in the Portland area, appeared in 42 films over more than 40 years.

His trademark, a deep, rich voice, was heard in commercials after he quit acting, including eight years as the voice for a beer company's ads.

Merrill met Davis in "All About Eve" in 1950 and married her in July of that year, the same day his divorce from his first wife became final.

The marriage with Davis ended in divorce in 1960. Davis ended a 15-year silence in 1985 by writing a note to Merrill after he paraded outside a bookstore with a sign urging shoppers not to buy "My Mother's Keeper," a critical biography of Davis by her daughter.

In his 1988 autobiography, "Bette, Rita and the Rest of My Life," Merrill said his best times were spent with Davis and their children in Cape Elizabeth.

He insisted he had been only an "adequate actor" because he "never worked at it. I had no drive, really. I just like to get by and have

Panthers roll to championship

CEDAR FALLS, Iowa (AP) — Dale Turner did what Coach Eldon Miller expected him to do — heave the basketball to a teammate nearly 94 feet away with two seconds left and the score tied. Turner executed the pass perfectly. He hit Jason Reese, who laid the ball in the hoop as the clock expired to give Northern Iowa a 63-61 victory Tuesday over Southwest Missouri State in a semifinal game of the Association of Mid-Century Universities post-season tournament.

"He threw a perfect pass to him. It was right on the money," Miller said. "You don't have any choice with two seconds to play. You've got to throw it the whole way."

"This is what you're hoping for all year," said Miller, whose Panthers never won a game in the AMCU tournament until this year. Now they find themselves in the championship game on Wednesday night.

"The last shot was tremendous, but what you have to talk about is the way we fought back," Miller said. "Unbelievable."

Gathers' services set

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Services will be Monday for Hank Gathers, the Loyola Marymount star who collapsed and died during a West Coast Conference tournament game Sunday.

His family and members of the Loyola Marymount basketball team will arrive here by plane Thursday for the funeral, said Rick Yankowitz, who coached the 23-year-old Gathers in high school.

Yankowitz, coach at Murrell Dobbins Tech in Philadelphia, said a viewing will be held from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Monday, followed by a service at Emmanuel Institutional Baptist Church and burial after that.

Details on the burial were unavailable.

Hornacek shines for Suns

ATLANTA (AP) — Jeff Hornacek broke a tie with 25 seconds remaining and came up with a loose ball in the final five seconds as the Phoenix Suns beat the Atlanta Hawks 113-111 Tuesday night for their 11th victory in 13 games.

The Suns won despite a 43-point performance by Dominique Wilkins, who now has 123 points in his last three games. Tom Chambers led Phoenix with 31 points, Kevin Johnson had 24 points and Eddie Johnson 20 points for the Suns.

Moses Malone had 21 points and 16 rebounds for Atlanta.

Iditarod pushes on

ROHN, Alaska (AP) — Leaders in the Iditarod Trail Sled Dog Race faced the deep snow and bitter cold of interior Alaska on Tuesday after leaving more sheltered terrain where one man had to kill a moose that attacked his dogs.

Defending champion Joe Runyan held the lead after passing four-time winner Rick Swenson.

Twenty-eight racers, nearly half the 68 remaining in the race, were reported Tuesday morning at the Rohn Roadhouse, checkpoint No. 9 and 271 miles from the start of the 1,160-mile trek commemorating the 1925 emergency delivery by relay dog teams of life-saving diphtheria serum to Nome.

The race from Anchorage to Nome, named for a ghost town along the route, started Saturday.

N.C. State refuses coach's terms

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Jim Valvano and North Carolina State remain at odds over the financial terms on which he will leave as head basketball coach.

University counsel Becky French said Monday that if Valvano refuses the school's offer of $106,000 — a year's base salary — to leave after this season, then he can remain as coach for the 1990-91 season.

Art Kaminsky, Valvano's agent, said the coach wants to be paid $500,000. Valvano has three years remaining on his contract.

The university will not agree to Kaminsky's terms.

"Jim has two options," French said. "He resigns and he can do whatever he wants to do. The other option is to treat Jim like any faculty member, and either party gives notice a year ahead of their departure."

The buyout negotiations, which intensified in the past few days, follows point-shaving allegations against former N.C. State players, including Charles Shackleford.

Valvano says only that he has a contract and will honor his end of it if the school stands by its commitment.

"I have said from the beginning that I want to coach basketball at North Carolina State," Valvano said. "I've also said that I wanted to do, in a sense, what was in the best interest of both the university and me."

Valvano has been under fire since last week, when ABC reported allegations of point-shaving at the school. The only player named in the report was Shackleford, who now plays for the NBA's New Jersey Nets.

On Monday, however, Morris County, N.J. prosecutor Lee S. Trumbull said there was insufficient evidence to warrant criminal charges in New Jersey in connection with the alleged point-shaving scheme.

Meanwhile, interim chancellor Larry Monteith said the university had agreed to accept Valvano's resignation if it were offered.

"We're trying to come to some conclusion about him leaving the institution," Monteith said.

Asked if that meant if he was prepared to fire Valvano if the coach did not resign, Monteith said: "I'm not going to draw anything from that."

The university issued a statement on Monday.

"As a result of Mr. Valvano and his agent's overtures, the university has been listening to their proposal concerning Mr. Valvano's resignation. The university realizes the tremendous stress that Mr. Valvano and his family and program have suffered and both parties agree that it is of mutual interest to reach a resolution as soon as possible."

Howe given OK to return to baseball

NEW YORK (AP) — Steve Howe, suspended six times in his baseball career for drug and alcohol problems and unofficially banned the last two years, will be allowed to return to the major leagues starting in 1991, Commissioner Fay Vincent said Tuesday.

Howe, released by the Texas Rangers on Jan. 19, 1988, for using alcohol in violation of his aftercare program, can return to the minor leagues this season, Vincent said.

Howe was the National League Rookie of the Year in 1980, but was released by Los Angeles, Minnesota and Texas because of his problems. He was suspended for the 1984 season by Commissioner Bowie Kuhn for cocaine use.

"While I believe that a lifetime ban from baseball is fully warranted in this case, I resolve the doubts raised by the conflicting medical and psychological opinions in Howe's favor and will offer him yet another chance to return to the game," Vincent said in a statement.

The statement said Howe would be "removed from the game" if he tests positive or incurs a relapse. He will be tested as often as every other day, the statement said.

Golfers finish second at Utah Dixie Classic

Rita Heimes
 The Daily Iowan

It was a close call, but in the end the Iowa women's golf team snuck by Lamar to take second place in the Utah Dixie Classic in St. George, Utah, Tuesday.

The Hawkeyes shot their best round of the two-day, 54-hole tournament, with a 310 on the final 18 holes to edge Lamar by one stroke, 941 to 942.

"We're right with the teams we thought would be big teams," Iowa coach Diane Thomason said after Monday's competition, adding that she would like to beat Brigham Young University, the tournament host.

It was not to be, as the 22nd-ranked Cougars, in first after 36 holes, remained on top of the 17-team field after Tuesday, winning their own trophy with a 936.

Kansas redeemed itself after a poor second round, shooting a 313 in the third to move into fourth place with 960. U.S. International was just one stroke behind in fifth, followed by Texas A & M, which fell from Monday's fourth place standing to sixth.

Each of the Hawkeyes shot under 80 in the third round and three earned spots in the top 10 individual standings, led by senior Shirley Trier in fifth place overall. Trier shot 79-77-77—233 over three rounds on the par-73 course.

Close behind Trier at sixth place overall was Iowa junior Stacey Arnold, who shot 81-77-76—234. Arnold was one of the Hawkeyes' leaders in the fall season, averaging 77.5 strokes over 15 rounds, and even earning a trophy for a first place finish in the Hawkeye Invitational.

"Stacey is swinging at the ball so much better," Thomason said.

W. Golf

"This is a good team."

Sophomore Becky Fuglestad of the Hawkeyes hit a 75-83-78—236 to finish in seventh among the 90 competing golfers.

Other finishers for Iowa were senior Kelly Brooke in 12th place overall with a 79-80-79—238, and senior Sarah Ward who landed in the 44th spot, tallying a 83-87-79—249.

Brooke, a native of Bettendorf, Iowa, was also one of the team leaders last fall, finishing fifth among 92 players in the Dick McGuire Invitational to guide the Hawkeyes to a tie for sixth place.

The second-place finish may move Iowa up in the national rankings. In a pre-season poll, the Hawkeyes were ranked 22nd in the country, their highest ranking ever. But other schools began outdoor competition before the Iowa golfers saw action, and the Hawkeyes dropped to 28th.

Smith, Pritchard top AP All-Big Eight list

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Missouri's Doug Smith and Kevin Pritchard of Kansas lead all selections in a youthful 1989-90 Associated Press All-Big Eight basketball team.

Pritchard, a play-making 6-foot-3 guard and the Big Eight's leading active scorer, was the only senior selected to the first team by a panel of sportswriters and sportscasters.

In a year which had Big Eight teams No. 1 in the Associated Press poll the last nine weeks of the regular season, the All-Big Eight first and second units include four seniors, four juniors and a pair of sophomores.

The only unanimous first-team choice was Smith, a 6-10 junior who averaged almost 28 points in a six-game stretch that netted Missouri the regular season conference title. Pritchard, who led Kansas in scoring, assists, steals and free throw percentage, was named on every ballot but one.

Missouri sophomore Anthony Peeler, 6-4, who played brilliantly in January, was named to the first team despite ending the regular season in a shooting slump.

Joining them on the first team are Byron Houston, Oklahoma State's forceful 6-7 sophomore, and Shaun Vandiver, Colorado's 6-10 junior who led the league in scoring and rebounding while toiling on a team that finished last for a fifth consecutive year.

Skeeter Henry, Oklahoma's high-energy, 6-7 senior, heads the second unit. Also in the second five is Kansas State's Steve Henson, 6-1, the pre-season choice for player-of-the-year who failed to hit full stride until February.

Iowa State center Victor Alexander was also named to the second team.

The 6-foot-9, 265-pound junior from Detroit, averaged 20 points a game, making him the league's second-leading scorer.

Cyclone junior guard Doug Collins and senior guard Terry Woods of Iowa State received honorable mention honors on the all-conference team.

Nathan Buntin, 6-9, who averaged almost 10 rebounds for Missouri's regular season champions, was also named to the second team, along with Kansas' Mark Randall,

AP All-Big Eight

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — Here are the first team, second team and honorable mention selections in the AP All-Big Eight basketball team as chosen by a panel of media representatives, with players listed by name, school, class, height, weight and hometown:

FIRST TEAM
 Doug Smith, Missouri, Jr., 6-10, 215, Detroit, Mich.
 Kevin Pritchard, Kansas, Sr., 6-3, 180, Tulsa, Okla.
 Anthony Peeler, Missouri, Soph., 6-4, 168, Kansas City, Mo.
 Byron Houston, Oklahoma State, Soph., 6-7, 225, Oklahoma City.
 Shaun Vandiver, Colorado, Jr., 6-10, 220, Bowlingbrook, Ill.

SECOND TEAM
 Skeeter Henry, Oklahoma, Sr., 6-7, 180, Grand Prairie, Texas.
 Steve Henson, Kansas State, Sr., 6-1, 180, McPherson, Kan.
 Mark Randall, Kansas, Jr., 6-9, 230, Englewood, Colo.
 Nathan Buntin, Missouri, Sr., 6-9, 215, Detroit, Mich.
 Victor Alexander, Iowa State, Jr., 6-9, 265, Detroit, Mich.

HONORABLE MENTION
 William Davis, Oklahoma; Clifford Scales, Nebraska; Stevie Wise, Colorado; Jean Derouillere, Kansas State; Rick Calloway, Kansas; Lee Coward, Missouri; Jackie Jones, Oklahoma; Damon Patterson, Oklahoma; Rich King, Nebraska; Doug Collins, Iowa State; Terry Woods, Iowa State; Jeff Guelndner, Kansas; Royce Jeffries, Oklahoma State; Smokey McConery, Oklahoma; Terry Evans, Oklahoma.

6-9. Underscoring what has been the Big Eight's greatest regular season in terms of national recognition is the fact that Oklahoma, named No. 1 this week, does not have a player on the first team. Moreover, two first-teamers from last year — Alexander and Henson — were muscled onto the second unit by the league's developing influx of talent.

When league coaches were asked recently which Big Eight player they would choose first in a draft, they split nearly evenly between Pritchard and Smith, who despite a tendency to fall into foul trouble blossomed into the most dangerous big man in the conference in the final half of the season.

Smith finished the regular season averaging 19.4 points and nine rebounds. Smith, who was named to Missouri's all-decade team for the 1980s, already has 1,423 points and 718 rebounds in his career, putting him fifth and 10th, respectively, in school history.

"Doug Smith can hurt you in so many ways," said Oklahoma State Coach Leonard Hamilton. "He has the speed and quickness of small

Boeheim denies allegations about team

Book poses questions on recruiting

SYRACUSE, N.Y. (AP) — Syracuse University basketball coach Jim Boeheim defended his program Tuesday after a newly-released book suggested the Orangemen were guilty of recruiting violations. Boeheim said there wasn't "an ounce of truth" in the allegations made by writers Alexander Wolff and Armen Keteyian in their book, "Raw Deal," which the authors say sheds light on illegal recruiting practices in college basketball. The book links Syracuse to a "street agent" whose job is to sell the Syracuse program to elite New York City players, giving them tickets to games, expensive sneakers, free transportation and other incentives.

"We don't even think of buying recruits," Boeheim said. "We travel, my staff and I, hundreds and hundreds of thousands of miles a year to recruit."

"We're on a lot of kids' lists before we even contact them. They've seen us on television. We don't have to cheat to get involved with them," Boeheim said.

The Syracuse coach criticized the book at a news conference late Tuesday afternoon, saying it represents "the abuses of journalism."

The book alleges that Robert Johnson, working on behalf of Syracuse, steered current Syracuse freshman Conrad McRae and former Orangemen Tony Bruin to Syracuse. The book also questions Syracuse's involvement with Marcus Liberty and Jamie Brandon, two Chicago prep stars successfully recruited by Illinois.

Johnson, who is unemployed and lives in a New York City housing project, is often seen sitting by the Syracuse bench or in the locker-room after games, according to the authors.

Johnson admitted being a diehard Syracuse fan, but denied that he pressures or entices athletes to go to particular schools.

"I try to help them (players) as much as I can. I try to keep them off the streets and try to help them stay in school," Johnson said.

"I have nothing to hide," he said. "I just know the coaches. I think it's a real good program. If someone seeks me out and asks me, I say good things."

Wolff, a Sports Illustrated writer, and Keteyian, who broke a story alleging point-shaving at North Carolina State, stop short of accusing Syracuse of violating NCAA regulations, but if the allegations made in the book are true, the university could be guilty of recruiting violations.

"We stand by our reporting. It's solid reporting through and through," said Keteyian, a former Sports Illustrated writer now working for ABC News.

Syracuse is not being investigated by the NCAA, said Chuck Smrt of the organization's enforcement office. However, Wolff said Johnson has been interviewed by the NCAA.

NCAA officials would neither confirm nor deny that they have talked to Johnson.

The book says Johnson took McRae to the 1987 Tip-Off Classic in Springfield, Mass., to watch Syracuse play North Carolina. See Syracuse, Page 11

Baseball talks grind on with need for quick fix

NEW YORK (AP) — Baseball negotiations resumed Tuesday night after a nine-day layoff and took on a sense of added urgency when management's Player Relations Committee canceled an owners meeting scheduled later in the week.

Milwaukee owners Bud Selig, the PRC chairman, made the announcement just before negotiations resumed in Commissioner Fay Vincent's office at 6 p.m. EST. The PRC met for about three hours Tuesday afternoon before the negotiating session and Selig said it will meet again Wednesday morning.

The meetings continued throughout the night and the two sides were still talking at 11 p.m.

"We have been in close contact with other 20 clubs," Selig said. "They have been not only cooperative but totally supportive."

Management's lockout hit its 20th day on Tuesday and both sides say that if camps don't open by Monday, there's little chance opening day could remain on April 2 as scheduled.

A quarterly meeting of owners had been scheduled for Thursday morning in Irving, Texas, but the PRC thought it was better to negotiate than to spend a day traveling and briefing owners.

"To come to Dallas just merely to be given an update which they can be given by telephone ... would be a waste of time," Selig said. "What could have more top priority than negotiations with the association. So to take another day or two off to go to Dallas seems to be unproductive and unreasonable on our part."

The PRC meeting on Tuesday started late because a morning snow caused some delays at New York's airports.

The sides remain apart on salary arbitration, the benefit plan, roster size, minimum salary and collusion protection language. The biggest obstacle is the union's demand to roll back arbitration eligibility from three years to two years, the way it was before the 1985 agreement.

Hawks hope Drake meet will continue win streak

Jim Kearney
 The Daily Iowan

The Iowa men's tennis team will be hoping to win their fourth consecutive meet today, as they take on intrastate rival Drake at 6:30 p.m. at the Recreation Building.

The 3-3 Hawkeyes are coming off an 8-1 victory over Illinois State this past weekend.

Drake hasn't beaten Iowa in 11 tries, but Iowa coach Steve Houghton said he thinks this will be a competitive meet.

"They've got a very respectable program," Houghton said. "We wouldn't consider playing them in the past, but they've brought in a new coach and really improved their game."

M. Tennis

The two teams didn't see each other during the fall tournament season, but they have had one common opponent.

Drake faced Iowa State earlier in the season and lost to the Cyclones 5-4. Iowa defeated Iowa State 7-2, two weeks ago.

Houghton said his team will have to play at the same level they did during the Cyclone victory if they hope to garner a win today.

The Hawkeyes' past four opponents have a combined record of 5-75-1 against Iowa. Houghton thinks it helps to play weaker opponents during the early part of the season.

"There's no substitute to getting a few wins under your belt," the Iowa coach said. "These meets build confidence which will help us during the Big Ten season."

"Our first three meets at Notre Dame were against very good teams," junior transfer Tommy Heiting said. "Our goal against the weaker teams we've been playing recently is to go out and beat them."
