Dancing, pinatas highlight festival

More than 3,000 people — about 800 students and 2,000 residents — attended the annual Latinx Festival and Cinco de Mayo celebration Saturday at the Red Skelton Center. The event included performances and traditional Mexican foods.

"It's nice to see a lot of people from different backgrounds," said one attendee who came here from all over to participate.

Kim McCarthy

Undergraduate assistant

The celebration attracted a diverse crowd of people, including four-legged friends, as well as people from all over Iowa City and even the lower land of the Red River.

"It's really exciting to see so many people," said one festival-goer. "It's a great place to hang out and enjoy the culture."

One huskies couple, flowered hats, and one person in costume walked by in Iowa City just to have a good time. Many of them decided to wear more traditional attire and won a gift bag for their efforts.

"I don't expect that," Chuck Bester said, "but it's definitely exciting just seeing so many people out here having fun."

"I love the warm weather," he said, "and it's a great way to celebrate Cinco de Mayo."

The celebration included a large variety of music, food, and entertainment, with performers from around the world. The event was held in the Red Skelton Center, which provided the perfect setting for the festivities.

In addition to the music and dance performances, there were also traditional Mexican foods available, such as tacos, burritos, and empanadas. The festival-goers enjoyed sampling the different types of food and learning about the culture.

Overall, the Latinx Festival and Cinco de Mayo celebration was a wonderful opportunity for people to come together and celebrate their heritage in a fun and welcoming environment.

An Iowa state trooper confiscated a handgun and 15 pounds, 11 ounces of marijuana from two Des Moines residents and a man shortly after midnight Friday.

The trooper, Sergeant J. T. Tollefson, 36, of Des Moines, Texas, was authorized to arrest the man, 32, when he pulled the couple over for speeding, according to Johnson County Jail records.

The marijuana was reportedly found during a search of the car after Tollefson arrested the man for speeding around 3:30 a.m. The driver was later released.

The three were charged with possession of marijuana and intent to deliver a controlled substance.

The probable cause for the arrest was a 12 minutes while a patient at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics was in the operating room.

Women are significant part of University's development

In 1868, the US became the first public university in the United States to admit women. In 1870, the number of women playing a role in the academic life increased, and the philosophy of the University's development increased greatly. Today, nearly one-fifth of the University's faculty — 17 percent — is female, according to Elizabeth Bunce, University's interim vice provost of institutional effectiveness.

"The number exemplifies a lot of gains from the working staff. The gains tend to increase the percentage," Bunce said.

Women are significant part of the University's development during World War II when UI women took over the Highlander's shelf, spread the marching band and assumed top positions on the Radio Network and The Daily Iowan. From 1944-45, The Daily Iowan was edited solely by women.

May Brodbeck, the first female UI president, is responsible for one of the most significant achievements of women in the UI campus, according to UI history professor Linda Kerber. Brodbeck served as provost from 1974-1981. At the time of her tenure, the number of women in academic affairs, her main responsibility, were fixed and organizational. She approved faculty and administrative appointments, and approved the appointment of women faculty and fellows.

"The most significant impact on the status of women," Kerber said. "The second biggest to regulation women's study. The women in the faculty appointments, so it would be important, and it's a big deal."

During the past 10 years, women at the University of Iowa have made a number of significant accomplishments. "Women are significant part of the relevant student population," Kerber said. "One of the most significant achievements in the last 10 years in the faculty of the Women's Studies Program is the number of women professors across the campus, faculty members in the late 1800s, the number of women playing a role in the academics, the administration, the number of women involved in the University's development.

"The number of women throughout history gained a lot of gain from the working staff. The gains tend to increase the percentage," Kerber said.

Iowa's State government consults group about Iowa's economy

State revenue growth is key to resolution of the budget dispute. Revenues are growing at only a 0.5 percent rate through the first eight months of the fiscal year.

Secretary of Revenue Mark Fitzer said the United States will urged the group to help the state's economy through tax reform, tax credits, and a reduction in the state's tax base. The group, which is expected to review its estimate of 6 percent growth in state revenues for the current fiscal year, will review the state's revenue growth at the end of the year.

Meanwhile, the Legislature is expected to vote on a $75 million education budget this week. The group is expected to have its final budget report for the current fiscal year in the November session.

Branstad stated in his veto message that the Legislature would have to be re-elected to pass a budget that would provide the state with a "balanced" budget.

The budget dispute has been a major issue in the past several months, with Branstad and the Legislature unable to agree on a budget that meets both the needs of the state and the state's citizens.

The group is expected to continue its discussions on the budget dispute in the coming months.
Afghanistan's new civilian president Patrick Aymyn raises his arm after greeting supporters during a ceremony after being sworn into office at the presidential palace on Sunday. Aymyn, 71, who assumed power on the last day of the former Afghan President Babrak Karmal’s rule and put more than 150 prisoners in a political prison era, was sworn in at the presidential palace on Sunday, ending a 24-year-old conflict.

He has vowed to respect basic human rights and civil liberties and put more emphasis on social services for the poor. He is to face a tough job in leading Afghanistan out of a war-weary country.

The United States, which supplied billions of dollars in aid to the mujahedeen during the anti-Soviet war, was expected to announce in the next few days that it plans to formally recognize the new government.

Aymyn, a former guerrilla leader, took the oath of office in a ceremony attended by about 10,000 jubilant people.

“Chile returns to democracy without our enemies, without blood, without riots.” He declared, “Chile returns by the road of peace.”

Hundreds of thousands of jubilant Chileans poured into the streets from Valparaiso to cheer Aymyn’s arrival. They poured through balconies, onto rooftops and into the streets of the national palace, waving banners and chanting “President Aymyn.”

Just before Aymyn spoke, some demonstrators broke through a police line beside the palace and policeEthnic groups headquartered in Kabul were wounded in the revolt by Soviet-backed government forces led by President Babrak Karmal. More than 1,000 Afghan civilians were killed in the fighting.

Israel wants redress from Germans

WEST BERLIN (AP) — Israel is entitled to seek any demand reparations for the Holocaust from a united Germany, the Israeli embas­ sy to West Germany said in an interview published on Monday.

"I can't rule out that Israel will demand reparations at some point," Benjamin Nesen, a Holocaust survivor, told the mound-circulation daily Bild on an interview to be published today.

A 1952 reparations agreement with West Germany "was not explicitly that we are entitled to be as in the state of Germany today," the ambassador said. The interview was released in advance of publication to other media.

West Germany has paid $44 billion in reparations to Israel and Jewish Holocaust survivors around the world under the agreement. By the end of this decade, payments are expected to total $50 billion. But East Germany for years refused to accept moral responsibility for the Holocaust or pay reparations. The former Communist leaders argued that they themselves were persecuted by the Nazis and therefore could not be held accountable for the genocide in which 6 million Jews perished.

After the Berlin leadership was toppled by a popular rebellion in the fall, the new govern­ ment announced that all German people should have "tangible against the Jewish people.

Also last month, Israel and East Germany held preliminary talks about establishing diplomatic ties. Israel has said it would only establish relations if East Germany reinvested more money for the Holocaust and said it would not accept a "forced and гроздь entail­ ing reparation to Israel that would be a violation of the treaty.

Israel officials have said privately that consider­ ing that Germany's criminal history, they would be willing to settle for token payments.

Nesen said in the 19th interview that East Germany was "hardly obligated" to pay reparations.

Asked about Israel's views on German unity, he said: "We have faith in the German democracy. We are convinced that a united Germany will sustain justice and friendly relations with my people and my country." However, Nesen pointed out that many Israel­ ians were concerned about the rapid move toward German unification. "There is a fear in thousands of Israelis that they will not get the single vote in the national elections in this or in the future."

"I have no regrets," the incumbent Bush said, "because I'm going to run an extremely vigorous campaign for re-election." It is clear from Bush's response that he is determined to take the offensive against his Democratic challenger, Al Gore. Bush's strategy is centered on portraying Gore as weak on issues of national security and budgetary surplus, while Bush touts his own record on these fronts. Bush's message is likely to resonate with many voters who are concerned about the economy and national security.

Free speech tested in high-risk waters

The recent events at the University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign have raised important questions about the role of universities in shaping public discourse. The controversy surrounding the 1990s "student power" movement and the recent demonstrations at the university have highlighted the tension between free speech and the need to maintain a safe and inclusive learning environment. The University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign has a long history of free speech activism, and the recent events have added to the ongoing debate about the role of universities in shaping public discourse.

The GREEK SYSTEM

Hypocritical attack

Greeks have historically been known for their social cohesion and support of their community. However, in recent years, there has been a growing controversy over the role of Greek systems on college campuses. Some critics argue that Greek systems are harmful and promote interpersonal conflict, while others defend them as a positive force for social cohesion and leadership development.

The Greek system is not immune from social problems, but it is a complex and multifaceted system that has evolved over time. While there are certainly problems within Greek systems, it is important to remember that they are not inherent to the system itself. Many argue that the problem lies not with the system, but with the individuals who participate in it.

In conclusion, Greek systems can be a positive force for social cohesion and leadership development, but it is important to address the issues that arise within them. By promoting a more inclusive and diverse environment, we can ensure that Greek systems continue to be a valuable part of our college campuses.
WASHINGTON (AP) - The chairman of the tax-writing House Ways and Means Committee on Sunday ruled out in a year's time the plan that House Democrats have been promoting in the past few years, producing a government surplus in 1993 and 1994.

Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., said his package would cut the deficit before the 1992 presidential election. He reiterated his plan last July, saying his plan was designed to cut inflation, raise taxes and cut government spending.

"As you know, I am a strong believer in deficit reduction," Rostenkowski said, "and I believe that the deficit must be reduced through a combination of tax increases and spending cuts." He said the plan would cut the deficit by about 50 percent in 1992 and 1993.

Rostenkowski's package would cut the deficit by cutting spending in a variety of areas, including Social Security, Medicare, defense and other programs.

"I believe that deficit reduction is essential for our nation's economic health," he said. "We must reduce the deficit now in order to ensure our future prosperity."
Haitian resignation produces violence

Chief of staff promises gov't will be civilian

PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti (AP) — Rival groups fighting in Haiti's capital said Monday they were ready to take steps to end the violence that followed the resignation of President Prosper Avril, who said he wanted to mend relations with the United States.

Opposition politicians, meanwhile, produced a draft constitution and said they would use the next three months to build a transition to democratic rule under a coalition government.

It was the latest in a series of political upheavals since Haiti achieved independence from France in 1804.

Iranians deny talks with U.S. to create ties

Tehran, Iran (AP) — Iranian officials said Monday they had not held secret talks with U.S. officials to create a government based on a coalition of Muslims, Shiites and Sunnis.

The officials, speaking to journalists, said the U.S. had offered Tehran a constitution that would include a national assembly, with each ethnic group represented.

Thousands of people streamed into the streets Saturday to celebrate Avril's downfall, and scattered violence soon broke out.

The provincial administration's rule would take the place of the central government until elections can be held. Those elections would be held in 2003.

Avril stepped down last Saturday after he was unable to form a new government.

In the battle for control of Lebanon's Christian enclave, the Syrian army's choice was Geagea, leader of the Lebanese Forces Christian militia. After a soldier killed an 11-year-old girl, apparently accidentally during a demonstration, the killing of a child in the wake of violence that followed the resignation of President Prosper Avril, ignited street demonstrations and put the genie back in the bottle.

The organizer of the demonstration, Mohammad Shami, a former Member of Parliament, said he was happy with the outcome.

For the 50th consecutive year, the Iowa women's basketball team will be playing in the post-season NCAA tournament. But this year the Hawkeyes will do it like they never have before— at home.

Iowa was picked as the No. 2 seed in the Midwest Region, earning a first-round bye and a second-round game on their own floor in Carver-Hawkeye Arena.

But that's not the only change that will be taking place at the Hawkeyes this year. For the first time in 10 years, the Midwest Regional semi-final and first-round March 21st in Iowa City, the Hawkeyes get a chance to play in their friendly confines up to Final Four competition, to be held in Knoxville, Tenn. March 31st and April 1st.

Iowa's Kristen Smith is Michigan's Pete Lazaris in the 108-pound final at the Big Ten Championships Sunday in Evanston, Ill. Simplot.

The Big Ten teams earn bids; MSU gets top regional seed

Michigan State coach Gene Keady says his Big Ten...
Northern Iowa, which hasn’t won a game since November, was snubbed by the selection committee in the NCAA tournament. The Hawkeyes, led by senior guard James Moses, are ranked 23rd in the country and just missed out on making the tournament.

The Hawkeyes lost to DePaul in the first round of the NCAA tournament, and just missed out on making the tournament.

It’s a tough pill to swallow for the Hawkeyes, who were hoping for a return to the NCAA tournament after last year’s disappointing season. They finished the season with a 22-8 record and were ranked 13th in the final AP poll.

Despite the loss, Iowa head coach Fran McCaffery was proud of his team’s effort.

"I thought both teams were competitive and played their best games," McCaffery said. "It’s a tough pill to swallow, but we have to move on and get ready for the next game."

The Hawkeyes will play in the Big Ten tournament this weekend and are looking to make a run to the NCAA tournament next season.
Mencil qualifies for national meet

Sara Wolter
"Mencil of both the Iowa and

Missouri softball teams had a thing to celebrate after the final inning, as the Hawkeyes took their second-straight SEC title.

The game was played in Tuscaloosa,

Alabama, on Sunday, with the Hawkeyes winning by a score of 6-3.

The win extended Iowa's current win streak to six meets, as the team impressed with their offensive efforts, scoring in both the first and fourth innings.

The loss marked Missouri's 13th defeat of the season, as they fell to Iowa's strong pitching.

Iowa coach Glenn Patton said,

"If Rhonda would've made it, we would have been in good shape.

But the loss gives us动力 to improve and come back stronger

next time."

The win also solidified Iowa's position as the SEC champions, moving them closer to a national championship.

"We're definitely in the hunt for the title now," Patton said. "But we still have a lot of work to do.

We need to keep improving and focus on the next game."

Mencil's performance was a key factor in the Hawkeyes' success, as she pitched a complete game with 10 strikeouts.

"I'm really happy with the way she has pitched in the past few games," Patton said. "She has been a true leader on the team and has shown great determination in coming back from setbacks.

I'm looking forward to see her impact in the national championships."

Upset victories earn Connecticut NCAA bid

(AP) — Connecticut charged into the NCAA tournament with a ballhawking defense, a strong bench and a string of near victories that earned the Huskies their first Big East postseason title.

The eighth-ranked Huskies defeated No. 7 Syracuse 79-73 in their first Big East championship game after beating the last three Final Four teams, Notre Dame, Villanova and Pitt, all with the help of two late-game three-pointers.

The Huskies had been in the NCAA since 1996, when they won the Big East regular-season title. This year, they won the Big East tournament title for the first time.

Connecticut's defense was the key to their success, allowing just 63 points per game in the tournament and holding teams to 39% shooting from the field.

In the championship game, Connecticut held Syracuse to 38% shooting and forced 12 turnovers.

Connecticut's bench contributed 32 points, with six players scoring in double figures.

Connecticut will face Florida State in the second round of the NCAA tournament. The Huskies are the No. 5 seed in the East Regional and face the No. 12 seed Florida State in the first round.

Florida State is coming off a three-game winning streak and is looking to advance to the Sweet 16 for the first time.

Connecticut is looking to win its first NCAA championship and could have their sights set on a national title.

Connecticut head coach Geno Auriemma said, "We've been talking about this for a long time. We've been talking about this for a long time."
Vietnam veteran O'Brien will read from latest book

Thomas Satt�

I've met a man and it's a good man. The man's name is Tim O'Brien. He's a Vietnam veteran who's been writing fiction for over 25 years. He's a recent recipient of the National Book Award for Fiction for his novel "The Things They Carried."

Though the man's career has been quite successful, he remains humble. "The Things They Carried" is a novel set during the Vietnam War, and it's a powerful story of the human cost of war. "Every soldier returns with something. It may be a physical injury, but it's also an emotional truth. I'm speaking directly from my heart," he says.

O'Brien read from his new book, "Watermark," on Monday, March 14, at 8 p.m. in Van Allen Lecture Room 2. The reading is sponsored by the University of Iowa English Department and by Prairie Lights Books.

The story's narrative follows a single place and time during the Vietnam War, capturing the real sights and sounds of the war. Many characters are introduced, and the story is set in a place known as the "Rice Paddy."

Eleven years ago, when O'Brien was challenged by traditional religious forces to write about Vietnam, he was unsure if the project was right for him. He had written about many other wars, but this one was different. "Vietnam is a fun word?" he remembers as a fun word? A non-existent doll was something designed to amuse the senses. This is today's home town.

He found the sweet reality part of the storytelling for him, it was a way to tell a story. A story to be told. Until next time, happy device for this word; they remember that the three rhyming letters of "Vietnam" carried a love of peace and will not be a polemic of war."

"What I would like to do most," he says, "is to write a book that has the heart attack of a novel, and my heart attack is a novel with a character who has been through war."

That's why - he says - truly has all the thrill of great art. The thrill of writing about war, when it's written from the heart. You never learn too much as a writer until you're writing from the heart. You make war during war the way you make war during peace. "They're the same word, a word,"

"O'Brien says that writing has been his work ever since the memories of war and self pity have interfered with his work. He says that he is an autobiographical work. His character, Kathleen, tells the story of a 43-year-old woman who's been writing these war stories so long that she's lost count of how many she's written."

"The Vietnam War was not a war of bigness..." he says. "The Vietnam War was a war of feeling. Just as a war is not about war, a war is not just about bigness. A war is about feeling."

"I hope my writing is seen. I hope my work is seen. I hope my heart is seen."

Worrell reveals destructive side of T.V.

Martha Sloniker
The Daily Iowan

In the age of TV serializations of novels and political films and not-yet-seen; James Worrell has been revealed as much as any other Iowan. He has been shown to be a man who is not only capable of destroying lives but also of having his effect.

In his role as playwright, Worrell has written a play that opens with the phrase "I know it." The play, called "Empty Revolution of Anderson's Style," was written and published by Worrell in the United States.

The play is being performed at the University of Iowa's Little Theatre, and it will be shown at various locations throughout the city. Worrell has been quoted as saying that the play is "a call for action." He also said that he hopes it will be seen by as many people as possible.

Worrell has been active in the arts community for many years. He has written plays, short stories, and novels. In addition to his writing, he has also been involved in photography and music. He has been a member of the Iowa City Writers' Workshop since 1970.

In his most recent work, "Empty Revolution of Anderson's Style," Worrell has taken on the controversial figure of the late American poet, William Anderson. The play tells the story of Anderson's life and death, and it includes a scene in which Anderson is shown being killed.

Worrell has been praised for his work, and he has won several awards for his writing. He has also been nominated for a Pulitzer Prize. He is currently working on a new play, which he plans to be completed by the end of the year.

Worrell has been married for 20 years, and he has two children. He lives in a small house in the heart of the city. He is an active member of the community, and he is often seen walking his dog in the parks.

Storyteller Anderson puts tales to music in solo performance

Henry Olen
The Daily Iowan

Louie Anderson, performance artist, poet and storyteller, brings his solo show "Through the Looking Glass" to Auditorium tonight.

Opening in the Midwest Festival of Music's 1990 season, "Empty Point," "Through the Looking Glass" will be presented at Auditorium as one of the featured events. The show has been described as "a poetic, lyrical, and entertaining" performance that will leave audiences speechless.

Louie Anderson is a recognized figure in the performing arts. He has won several awards for his work, and he has been nominated for an Academy Award. He is known for his powerful vocals, his talented poetry, and his unique storytelling style. His solo show "Through the Looking Glass" is a testament to his talent and dedication to his craft.

The show is scheduled to begin at 8 p.m. and is expected to last for approximately 90 minutes. Tickets are on sale at the Auditorium box office, and they can also be purchased online. The Auditorium is located at 1250N Third Street in Iowa City.
