Air pollutants may help spread cancer
Study of mice supports theory

daytona, fla. (ap) -- preliminary studies in mice suggest that an air pollutant may hasten the spread of cancer within the body, researchers said Tuesday. New tools that can detect air pollutants in or near the lungs that are thought to penetrate the alveoli, said Roberta Pickering, an associate professor of pathology at the University of Southern California School of Medicine in Los Angeles. She spoke at a science seminar sponsored by the American Cancer Society.

In other presentations, researchers said doctors often overlook a warning sign for cancer in the mouth, and said a new treatment could be developed that would be safe and effective for the elderly.

About 1.2 million new cases of cancer are diagnosed each year, and 900,000 people are thought to die from cancer in the United States. Until now, no one has been able to develop a treatment for lung cancer.

When Trefz considered returning to school in 1986, she found problems that were unique to non-traditional students. She sought guidance from the CISS, the UI student group that deals with non-traditional students and the Center for Credit Programs, and was told "the Center isn't concerned with the workshops." She believed the workshops would be of value to other non-traditional students, and had to be told that "we did not need a workshop on those subjects" before she could continue.

Lithuania

Outside the Parliament in Vilnius, said a nurse at the hospital, where windows and doors were broken.

Vladislav Shved, a leader of the Lithuanian government, said the troops were acting in other countries as they had done in Lithuania. "We have not received any orders to return deserters," he said.

In a furious letter to Gorbachev, former Lithuanian President Vytautas Landsbergis warned Lithuania they would use force if they were not allowed to return deserters. "We are not going to let them go," he said.

Separate groups, indicated on the map as loyal to Moscow, indicated on the map as a result of Soviet soldiers storming two hospitals before dawn Tuesday and arresting deserters.

Hungary's rules were the only Communists in the Soviet bloc to opt for full democracy without mass demonstrations or violence.

Election shuts out Socialists

BUDAPEST: Hungary's national elections were significantly tinged by the Soviet Union's domination of the Socialist Party, according to Communist observers. But the vote was unlikely to bring the current political climate thinking of past excesses.

In the central city, the Social Democratic Party, which also suffered a setback, was among those suffering a loss.

The result echoes the mood hard on the Grand Conven tion, where the Social Democratic Party is looking for the future as the Social Democratic Party looks on, but some observers seemed to have been shot out of Parliament.

As in East Germany on March 18, the new party was joined by the Social Democratic Party, which defeated the ruling party, and removed the Social Democratic Party of Parliament.

On last year. With most votes went to the Socialists, who are facing political problems.

Election shuts out Socialists

Hungary's majorities are being threatened by the Hungarian Democratic Alliance and the Hungarian Socialist Party, which claims its new status as the chief contender going into round of voting, Nemeth urged the people to expect miracles from the Hungarian Socialists as it prepares for the painful but necessary round of voting.

But neither can offer immediate solution in the Hungarian Socialists' economic woes. Inflation was 17 percent in 1989 but has been handed on to Hungary's voters used in response to the world's appetite for Hungary's new freedom to travel abroad and to the country's assumption of the country's economic woes.

Friends, veterans praise 'Ike'

WASHINGTON (AP) - American and British leaders hailed Dwight Eisenhower on Thursday to mark the 100th year of his birth, but Eisenhower's son said his father would be "the most remembered person of all the good soldiers who have led war.

John Eisenhower said his father, who worked closely with Gen. Dwight Eisenhower during World War II and was key to the victory in Berlin, was the supreme test," Bush said at a rally in New York City. "We'll have a made case even today, to see the peoples who made that sacrifice," Bush said.

Prosecution begins for fatal N.Y. fire

NEW YORK (AP) — Prosecutors on Thursday investigated the tangled ownership of the Happy Land Social Club in documentary that killed dozens of people. The owner of a club where a fire killed dozens of people was arraigned Thursday on charges of criminally negligent homicide.

Deputy District Attorney Peter W. S. F. Cullen said the owner, Anthony Panza, was arraigned Thursday on charges of criminally negligent homicide.

"We'll have a made case even today, to see the peoples who made that sacrifice," Bush said.

Eisenhower's family, including his son, John, got a moving demonstration Friday of how the armed forces have grown to protect the peacefullness of the world.

You get what you pay for

To the Editor:

While policy is cheap, it is also, often, ineffective. The Student Health Insurance Program (SHIP) provides a small amount of coverage for hospitalization, but nothing for emergency room visits or doctors' fees.

The largest deterrent of the current student health policy is the price. The average student spends $50 a month on his or her policy. That means the insurance for each person easily runs up thousands of dollars. This amount is too expensive for most students to pay.

The policy also requires a physical examination before it will cover you. Further, the attending physician might not be able to see you if you have any condition that the insurance would not cover. This means that you will need to pay for the physician's expenses.

Student government's goal is to reduce these costs and provide better health services. The policy should be immediately reevaluated.

Pollution threatens America

It is the 1989 presidential race, and a campaign ad features the leisurely sun-kissed candidate George Bush nude at his ranch. Bush is campaigning to save the environment, and the ad is promising that he would do even more for the environment.

But Bush has courted trouble with his environmental record. As Virginia Governor, the Bush record was recorded by the Environmental Protection Agency as 39 percent clean. Bush is now campaigning on the environmental record of the future.

In contrast, the Environmental Defense Fund has given the Bush record a 9 percent rating. The EDF rates Bush's past term as governor of Texas as 6 percent clean.

Bush's past environmental record is in direct contrast to his campaign promises. Yet Bush is winning the election. Why?

Bush's ad is the result of a direct mail campaign that is being used to influence the election. The mailer, a well-known environmental group, sent out 50 million letters to registered voters nationwide.

The mailer is a direct response to the Bush campaign. The group sent out 50 million letters in one week.

You get what you pay for

To the Editor:

While policy is cheap, it is also, often, ineffective. The Student Health Insurance Program (SHIP) provides a small amount of coverage for hospitalization, but nothing for emergency room visits or doctors' fees.

The largest deterrent of the current student health policy is the price. The average student spends $50 a month on his or her policy. That means the insurance for each person easily runs up thousands of dollars. This amount is too expensive for most students to pay.

The policy also requires a physical examination before it will cover you. Further, the attending physician might not be able to see you if you have any condition that the insurance would not cover. This means that you will need to pay for the physician's expenses.

Student government's goal is to reduce these costs and provide better health services. The policy should be immediately reevaluated.

Apartheid continues to breed violence

J ohn Mandela is free and Nambia is independent. South African President de Klerk has invited all political parties to talks. And yet the violence in South Africa continues.

Surprisingly, it should be expected. Apartheid is a system that is still in force. The so-called "reforms" that have been announced have not been implemented.

For example, de Klerk made a speech about reconciliation. However, his government has not taken any steps to implement his words.

As a result, violence continues.

9 blacks killed in S. Africa

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Black leaders Tuesday denounced police as having used excessive force in a protest march against the government's policy of using "show trials" to handle political offenses.

African National Congress leader Walter Sisulu and black leaders who complained about Monday's incident when the "show trials" were held said police fired on them with tear gas and rubber bullets.

Police officers, who declined to be named, said nine people were killed Monday when police fired on the march in the black township of Soweto south of Johannesburg.

The officers, who were commenting on the first day for the first time, said about 150 people were hurt, half of them by tear gas.

But officials at the Soweto Hospital said that nine people were killed and 457 treated for injuries, mainly from police tear gas.

It was the worst confrontation between police and protesters in the last three weeks.

The government had agreed to hold an inquiry into the "show trials" but police were not present.

Police told the demonstrators they would be allowed to proceed with the meeting.

The officers said they were told to disperse the crowd and fired rubber bullets to try to control the escalating confrontation.

Arafat: Israel stalls forming new govt.

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — PLO leader Yasser Arafat said Thursday that Israel's political leaders were yielding up former crown of a new government in an effort to give time against the Palestinians upring in the American-occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

"They want adiors," the Palestinian Liberation Organization told reporters in a news conference. From the very beginning they are trying to win time.

Referring to Israel's internal political turmoil following a traumatic victory against PLO President Yassine Kadda and other new leaders in the West Bank and Gaza Strip, Arafat said, "They want to start new elections in order to change the government of the Palestinian people."

"I think he will have a slight majority," he added. Arafat who would make it easier to start talks on the occupied territories. Arafat gave a slight nod. "But I don't want to say anything," he said.

During the half-hour news conference, Arafat outlined U.S. senators who last week adopted a resolution that said, "Gaza and East Jerusalem should remain the capital of the state of Israel."

This is a reunification. Like other resolutions, that the Congress has been adopting without really studying them, they shouldn't be taken seriously in the unfolding of the peace process.

But Arafat did not underestimate the influence of Congress on the future of the peace process, saying that a new resolution would "serve as a strong point of reference for the Palestinians in their struggle."

PHOENIX (AP) — As if baseball didn’t already have enough problems, team owners and players didn’t need another one.

"It’s enough, enough," said Oakland Athletics general manager Billy Beane.

"The gloves are too big," said Montreal Expos right fielder Tim Raines.

The biggest problem is that the big, mammoth gloves aren’t illegal, but the hands that wear them are.

"If a batter is wearing a 12-inch glove and hits a pop fly, it’s legal," said Rawlings spokesman Eric Nieman. "But if an umpire catches a ball, it’s a strike."
Symphony concert features version of Mozart’s Requiem

Jacqueline Crofts

The UI Symphony Orchestra will close its regular season with a concert of Mozart’s Requiem this evening at 8 p.m., in Hancher Auditorium.

William Hatcher, director of choral activities at the UI, will conduct.

The two choral works use a quartet of choirs: Singing in both works is the UI Kantorei, under the direction of William Gatti, university director of the UI School of Music. The other choirs are the university choir, under the direction of Donald Miller, the UI Men’s Glee Club, under the direction of Frank Boucher, and the University of Iowa Women’s Chorus, under the direction of William Sanger. The men’s choir is the UI Honors Men’s Chorus, under the direction of Robert Ziegler.

Program

The concert begins with a new version of the Requiem composed in 1986 by Richard Strauss, a German composer. The work is a setting of the Latin text that appears in the Roman Catholic Mass.

The Requiem is divided into five sections. The first is a setting of the Dies Irae, followed by the Dies Irae, the Kyrie, the Requiem Aeternam, and the Libera Me.

Glass Stain fell short Monday night when Glass Stain, another of the nine films nominated for Best Picture of the year, was voted best foreign-language film for the annual Oscar Awards ceremony by the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

In a surprise, Glass Stain was honored over films from France, Italy, Japan, Bulgaria and Germany. In previous years, the foreign-language film award, selected by a separate foreign-language film committee, has been given to a film from a Latin-American country. The film was honored for "its technical and artistic excellence and because it is significant as a contribution to world culture and entertainment." A joint delegation of representatives of the Indian government and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences presented the award.

The decision of juries and committees of the Academy, which has 4,500 members, was announced Monday night in the Dolby Theatre in Hollywood. The ceremonies Tuesday night will be telecast worldwide.

In London, a joint delegation of representatives of the Indian government and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences presented the Oscar, which is the highest honor in the film industry. The award was presented to a joint delegation of representatives of the Indian government and the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

The Academy has named Glass Stain as the winner of the Best Picture Oscar. The Academy announced Glass Stain as the winner of the Best Picture Oscar for its film "Driving Miss Daisy." The film was directed by Steven Spielberg and stars Meryl Streep and Kevin McCarthy.

The other nominated films were "The King's Speech," "The Social Network," "The Girl With The Dragon Tattoo" and "The Descendants."
