Lithuania obeys Soviet demands
Citizens forced to give up guns

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) - Lithuania's government backed down Wednesday in one of the biggest escalations in the Soviet Union's confrontation with its Baltic republics, official sources said.

The Soviet Union ordered all troops trying to force Lithuania to give up its independence to pull back to the Russian border, an official source told the Associated Press on condition of anonymity.

But the Soviet military stacked up a war of words against Lithuania, complaining of "provocations." Soviet troops have already crossed Lithuania's border.

"Lithuania is a republic of the Soviet Union and we respect the constitution and laws of the Soviet Union," Interior Minister Aidas Landsbergis said in the Russian capital, Vilnius.

Landsbergis said he advised President Vytautas Landsbergis of his decision to suspend forces outside Lithuanian territory.

"The Soviet military stepped up a war of words against Lithuania, complaining of "provocations." Soviet troops have already crossed Lithuania's border."

"Lithuania is a republic of the Soviet Union and we respect the constitution and laws of the Soviet Union," Interior Minister Aidas Landsbergis said in the Russian capital, Vilnius.

"I told them we had the border guards in our country and we will not give in to any pressure," Landsbergis said.

"I told them we have the border guards in our country and we will not give in to any pressure," Landsbergis said.

Meanwhile, Landsbergis said he would order Soviet troops trying to control the secession to leave the republic.

"If there is any pretense that the Soviet Union is prepared to let Lithuania go on its own way as an independent state, it will probably be bad for us," said Landsbergis on the condition of anonymity.

"I told them we have the border guards in our country and we will not give in to any pressure," Landsbergis said.

"I told them we have the border guards in our country and we will not give in to any pressure," Landsbergis said.

In Moscow, the commander of troops deployed behind the Soviet border said his forces were being strengthened.

"I told them we have the border guards in our country and we will not give in to any pressure," Landsbergis said.

"I told them we have the border guards in our country and we will not give in to any pressure," Landsbergis said.

Lithuania's years of tension with the Soviet Union over autonomy and self-governance are a chapter in the history of the republic.

"I told them we have the border guards in our country and we will not give in to any pressure," Landsbergis said.

The statement echoes a message in a Moscow newspaper that Moscow's forces are prepared to defend Soviet territory.
Japanese visitor dogs it to Chicago

For Takeshi Komatsu, telephones ring through the silence of Iowa City.

What people are saying to each other is a challenge, and he can't sit down. But for Komatsu, leaving his home and family in Japan to enroll as a college student in Iowa City is a step forward.

"I'm not married yet," he said.

Komatsu reads books on slang to learn words like "wimp," "jerk," "mooch" and "wasted." He rides the bus to practice conversation. He circles the phrase, "just a prime," in his conversation textbook and repeats it before he gets his hair cut.

"I don't want to have good education for 'tigers,'" he said. "I want to have a little different in the sports field. I need tutors." Komatsu, 20, arrived in Cedar Rapids on Feb. 12 to begin his philosophy major and his goal of becoming "an international famous philosopher." He is one of five Japanese trainees with the University of Iowa's athletic certification program.

"This is a wonderful opportunity because it feels the Japanese culture is a little behind these in the United States," he stated.

Jeffrey John

Professor of Philosophy

"The first thing that Komatsu will learn is how to deal with students who object to the display," he said.

Komatsu's journey to Iowa City is part of an in-school suspension program put in place by the University of Iowa. The other is an appeal for a federal ruling against encouraging the use of the state's educational budget.

But for Komatsu, leaving Iowa City is a challenge, and his voice in American intellectual life, with a Greyhound bus to St. Louis.

"I'm not married yet," he said.

"I want to get to school," he added.

"The In-school Suspension Plan." The program began for the district to contribute less than $1,000. The additional money came from an increase in state funds, a state language arts teacher Peter Mortensen said.

The program is unique and exciting. It is not only being praised for its success, but also for its potential to increase Komatsu's status.

Chinese student documents fears of returning to China

Tackle classes this summer is a bright move, but spending Summer in the Topics at Drake is even smarter.

I've found more than 300 Drake courses under the sun. Classes of the same calibre as in the regular year are offered during six summer sessions beginning June 4. And your efforts this summer will be fully transferable to your degree program come fall.

The SMARTEST PLACE TO SPEND YOUR SUMMER IS IN THE TOPICS.

10 Ways You Can Help Improve The Environment With Your Grocery Cart.

1. Use your own shopping bag. The best tactic is to use a cloth bag that can be reused for years. This saves trees and reduces garbage.

2. Buy products in bulk, filling your own containers with the quantity you want. This by-passes unnecessary packaging.

3. Buy organically grown products. Organic foods are grown without the use of chemical pesticides and fertilizers contaminated by groundwater pollution.

4. Purchase packaged products in containers that you can reuse or that can be returned to the company to be reused.

5. Purchase products from companies that have good environmental practices and that produce products from companies that you know exercise environmental disregard. How much would your food dollars be worth in a powerful voting tool!

6. Avoid single-use throwaway products and choose reusable, refillable products instead. By taking your reusable containers to dinner, you can eliminate take-out food, you'll avoid a major source of energy waste.

7. Choose products made from or packaged in recyclable or reusable materials. This prevents recycling and reduces garbage.

8. Buy local products. This cuts down on the energy usage of moving goods around.

10. Purchased unbleached paper products. Bleaching paper is a major cause of air pollution.

Contra forces remain armed

JINOTEGA, Nicaragua (AP) —

Juan Ortega, Nicaragua's leading rebel, said today that his forces remain ready to fight, despite an accord that calls for them to turn over their weapons.

"The Contras and Nicaragua's United National Opposition govern­ment calls for the rebels to turn over their weapons," he said. "But the rebels and the rebels have no intention of doing that."

Instead, the Contras are calling for journalists to visit their bases, where they are said to have 300 miles north of Jinotega, Nicaragua, contact their military command post Wednesday using communications equipment supplied by the United States. The Contras say they will not give up their weapons until the Sandinista army forces are dismantled.

Help ensure the dismantlement of Nicaragua is not reflected in the final legis­lative draft between the Sandinista Front and the Contras.

The document outlines the steps Contras must take to dismantle the Contras Front and return to civilian life. It also says the Contras must turn over all their weapons and military equipment to the United Nations. The United Nations has agreed to take over the Contras' weapons if the Contras agree to dismantle them.

The Contras say they will not give up their weapons until the Sandinista army forces are dismantled.

LITHUANIA

Setting limits

The time has come for the Bush Administration to explicitly define its current foreign policy toward Lithuania.

The Bush Administration's remarks to the unifying clause of the Ostpolitik have been marched by extreme rhetoric. But until Wednesday, the Administration showed little sign of understanding the need for an explicit commitment toward the unification of the Soviet Union. It was disheartening to see that White House had suddenly fallen silent.

The consistent response from the Bush Administration officials throughout the past weeks, including a recent visit to Lithuania, was that the unification could go on purpose to prove...that the Lithuanian government is committed to the diversity of students on this campus and to the development of good public relations, and that it has the support of a large proportion of the student body, the White House has suddenly fallen silent.

The situation is the brinks of destruction. Instead of demanding no further violence, the Bush Administration has unequivocally offered its support.

It is not surprising that the bemused Lithuanian government has lost its patience with the United States. Even President Vyshebskiy Landseer, who until recently exhibited nearly impeccable poise, recently expressed his concern about the Bush Administration's leadership deficit.

The current international environment — dominated by the withdrawal of Soviet troops in Afghanistan and the U.S.-Soviet relations — necessitates that the American crisis for world affairs be contained on a more serious level.

The Lithuanian government has been marked by an absence of boldness, while the United States, Gerthske has felt it to be the season of the battlefront for the Lithuanian government.

Now, however, it is imperative that the U.S. attempt to stop the situation in Lithuania from deteriorating.

The Bush Administration can, for a time, allow the situation to unfold as it is. However, its recent commitment cannot be accepted without new, conflicting conditions. In my opinion, their visions reality. In my opinion, their visions reality. In my opinion, their visions reality. In my opinion, their visions reality. In my opinion, their vision

Extremist groups confess to slaying

KABUL, Afghanistan, 5/11 — Extremist groups claimed responsibility Wednesday for the slaying of an American missionary, who was shot to death in north Lebanon by masked intruders who shot her as she was playing soccer.

The groups around the world have repeatedly asserted that the terrorist organization known as the Taliban has launched attacks in Afghanistan.

The Taliban, which ideologically opposes the World Trade Organization, said the attackers were paid by the Islamic State militant group, which has been fighting for control of Afghanistan's northern region.

Extremist groups have been known to carry out attacks in Afghanistan, where the Taliban is a major player.

House moves to increase Bush’s aid request

WASHINGTON — A House committee is preparing to send a Senate version of President George W. Bush’s request for aid to emerging democracies to its floor late Tuesday, with the aim of getting legislation to the White House this week.

The legislation would authorize up to $4 billion in aid, which Bush needs to modernize and strengthen the military in Afghanistan.

Homes burned in Zulu battle

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) - Widespread panic and torching spread across a Mfengu township outside Durban early today as Inkatha Zulus armed with bows, arrows and spears, went on the attack against whites who were trying to stop Inkatha fighters from entering the township.

Umkhanyakude: Inkatha Zulus attacked the town of Esikhawini, burning homes and and killing at least 10 people. The battle was reported to be raging when police arrived.

Johannesburg (AP) - A rich, rrory-tom-story romance with a breathtakingly colorful set and a view from the top of the world's tallest skyscraper.

The opera, Salome, was performed at the Royal Opera House in London. The cast included the soprano, Sondra Radvanovsky, as the title role, and the mezzo-soprano, Mariane Cremona, as the part of the evil Queen of the Harem.

The story is based on the Aeschylus play and the libretto by Oscar Wilde. The music is by Richard Strauss.

The opera was directed by Sir Peter Hall and conducted by Sir Charles Mackerras. The production was designed by Warhol, with costumes by Kirsten Sandberg.

The performance was heralded by critics as one of the highlights of the season. It received standing ovations from the audience, who were thrilled by the spectacle of the stage and the power of the voices.

However, the opera was not without controversy. Some members of the audience expressed their disapproval of the explicit content and the nudity on stage. Despite this, the opera was a commercial success, with tickets selling out quickly.

In the end, Salome was considered a masterpiece of 20th-century opera, and it continues to be performed to this day. It is one of the most popular and frequently performed operas in the world, with productions in every major opera house around the globe.

Perles to cooperate with steroid scope

"As far as something coming in and looking into the program, please Mr. I. need someone to look into, I am one of the decency someone that has the authority, someone that has the resources, give us the evidence," Perles said.

Perles said he has no objection with President John DiBullo saying the probe after reports published March 21 in The Detroit News and members of the 1987 Big Ten championship team had used the synthetic muscle-building.

"If the president and someone he wants to have done, well, I will get done. It's the chance someone he wants something done, will get it done," Perles, who last week blamed the stories to reporters which would like his program.

At a news conference Tuesday, Perles said he hopes to turn the controversy to his team's advantage.

"We're going to make a positive out of this," he said as his Michigan State squad starts spring drills Thursday. Perles, in his eighth year as head coach, said he hopes to turn the health of his squad will be on target heading into the 1990 season.

"One goal is to be the healthiest team in the country and the best team in the country, hand the best team in the country," Perles said.

"If it's important we talk to the students and we're going to get positive out of it. We are going to do that. We are going to do that. We will be happy to do everything that we can do to help the people that we can help to help people that are good people," Perles said.

Texas A&M names Davis hoops coach

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M began a recruiting youth movement Wednesday by naming Gary Davis Jr., its basketball coach.

"We have a veteran, aggressive coach that played on state, conference and national championship," athletic director John Drougas said. "He is somebody that I am very pleased with our team."

Davis, who led Kahle to the NCAA tournament in the past two years, replaces coach John Thornhill, who finished the season for former coach Sherley Mensil.

Davis, who signed a four-year contract, was the younger Davis coach when he was named at Kahle in 1986 after two seasons as a junior college coach.

Nicklaus starting Senior Tour

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus is expecting a familiar scene of the sort that has become routine at the annual Phoenix Open this week. It’s a scene that has been repeated so many times over the years: the slow(fout)

The annual tradition of the Phoenix Open has become a staple of the golfing world, and Nicklaus himself has been a constant presence. The tournament is known for its slow pace and the popularity of its pre-tournament events, which feature an array of stars from the golfing world. It’s a scene that Nicklaus has come to enjoy, as he has won the tournament a record 6 times.

The tournament is also known for its unique Par 3 tournament, which features a fun and fast-paced format that attracts a large crowd. Nicklaus has been a regular participant in this event, and his presence has helped to keep the tournament at the forefront of the golfing world.

Overall, the Phoenix Open is a testament to the enduring popularity of the sport of golf, and Nicklaus has been a key figure in its development. His two-decade-long association with the tournament has helped to cement it as one of the most recognizable events in the sport, and his continued participation will no doubt ensure its continued success.

Attorney acting for request to proposal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Saying “the ball’s in their court,” Jim Valvano’s lawyer said Monday that his client had not had his day in court and that the university now thinks it has the opportunity to present its case.

The lawyer, W. W. Webb said he had been told by Raleigh attorney Howard J. Vanore, that the university now thinks it has the opportunity to present its case.

Vanore said that the proposal doesn’t have to be ready to deal with it.

Webb said he had planned to outline the proposal in a meeting Monday with Manning and Vanore. He said he had been told that the university now thinks it has the opportunity to present its case.

At first, Webb said, he attempted to outline the proposal as it was being discussed at the university but the University of North Carolina at Raleigh said it was been told by Raleigh attorney Howard J. Vanore, that the university now thinks it has the opportunity to present its case.

A six-month study of the N.C. State basketball program during the December 1987 to June 1988 was completed. The study was done by Edward J. BC's "America's Funniest Home Videos" has been around for some time now and has rightfully earned a spot among the popular TV shows of this era. We have to admit, though, that both programs rely on the same formula: we see the same kind of video clips every week. But, at least we have the luxury of watching them back to back in the comfort of our homes. On the other hand, watching "America's Funniest Home Videos" is like watching a collection of videos of our friends and family. The humor and the joy they bring to us are what makes them so special. In this show, the footage that is shown is not always the funniest, but it is always the most interesting. It is like watching a collection of memories of our lives. Just like us, they have their own way of doing things, and that's what makes their videos so entertaining.

The parallel between "America's Funniest Home Videos" and "Candid Camera" is striking. Both shows rely on the same formula: we see the same kind of video clips every week. If you were one of the lucky few who saw the commercial, hopefully you paid close attention, because we don't want to catch it again. The ad was never aired again, and it's a shame it didn't get the attention it deserved. The commercial was a hilarious parody of the famous "Funniest Home Video" ads that aired on television. It was a perfect example of how making people laugh is a serious business. The ad was a huge success, and it's a shame it didn't get the attention it deserved.

Did Crystal or criticism lower Oscar's popularity at home? A

LOUISIANA (AP) — Oscar was the hit of the night. The Academy Awards were held in a star-studded event, but the movie was snubbed by the Academy. The film was a huge success, and it's a shame it didn't get the attention it deserved. The Academy Awards are a way to celebrate the best of the best, and it's a shame that this year's event was overshadowed by a movie that was snubbed by the Academy.
