Lack of funds puts maintenance of UI in 'crisis'

Andrea Vogel was attending class in the Chemistry-Botany building earlier this semester when she realized the ceiling was leaking water on her.

Leaking roofs are only one symptom of the $30 to $60 million deferred maintenance crisis facing the UI, according to Jim Christenson, director of the UI Physical Plant.

Lithuania obeys Soviet demands

Citizens forced to give up guns

VILNIUS, U.S.S.R. (AP) — Lithuania's government backed down Wednesday on one of its hottest points of conflict with the Kremlin, a plan to establish its own border guard, saying it wanted to avoid clashes with Soviet troops.

It also told citizens not to resist if Soviet officials try to seize their weapons.

Red Army troops refrained from occupying Lithuanian buildings or rounding up more Lithuanian military deserters, a day after the first violent confrontations in the standoff with the republic.

However, the Soviet military stepped up a war of words against Lithuania, complaining of increased attacks on soldiers and accusing it of a campaign to discredit the Soviet army.

President Vytautas Landsbergis of Lithuania said his government suspended its plans for the border guard for fear of sparking clashes with Soviet troops.

"At present, establishing border points would be stepping up confrontation," Landsbergis told a news conference in the Lithuanian capital, Vilnius.

Lithuanian officials said they had pushed for the border guards in hopes of winning formal recognition from foreign governments of their March 11 declaration of independence.

Landsbergis said even discussion of the subject had provoked conflicts with Moscow, and he said there had been reports of Soviet troops trying to control the roads between Lithuania and Latvia, the neighboring republic.

Gorbachev ordered the sign-up for the border guard halted as soon as it began. In the same decree last week, he ordered Lithuanians to turn in their weapons and said those not surrendered by Wednesday would be confiscated.

Landsbergis said he advised Lithuanians not to resist if Soviet authorities came to seize their hunting guns. At the same time, he said citizens should treat the official as uninvited guests.

This is in keeping with the Lithuanian strategy of refusing to obey "foreign" Soviet law while avoiding violent conflicts.

Only about 1,000 of the 30,000 guns registered in Lithuania have been turned in to local police, said a Lithuanian Interior Ministry official, Yaroslav Prokopovich. He said local police were refusing to hand them over to the Soviet Army as Gorbachev ordered.

In Moscow, the commander of Soviet paratroopers alleged there had been an increase in attacks on soldiers since the independence declaration.

The state-run news agency Tass said Col. Gen. Vladislav Achalov reported "a noticeable increase in incidents of provocation against soldiers and armed attacks by groups of young hooligans against both individual soldiers and military sites."

He listed three recent attacks in Kaunas, Lithuania's second-biggest city. Two of the cases involved "hooligans" throwing stones at military guards, he said.

Vilnius was calm Wednesday. In a continuing show of force, Soviet paratroopers guarded the republic's Communist Party headquarters, which they seized Tuesday, but removed their riot gear and no longer carried automatic rifles.

The military presence did little to intimidate Lithuanians. Some took their children to the party headquarters to show them the soldiers lounging inside.

The Ukrainian popular movement "Rukh" threw its support behind Lithuania's new government and urged rallies to support its independence.

Region's only poll released: Heartland Poll

Midwest approves of Bush

Brian Dick
The Daily lowan

Midwesterners are pro-choice on abortion, approve of President George Bush and are optimistic about the economy, according to a poll released Wednesday by the UI Social Science Institute.

The institute's third Heartland Poll, the only regional survey conducted in the United States, found that 7 percent of Midwesterners are pro-life on the abortion issue while 39 percent are pro-choice.

The study has a 2.1 percent margin of error for the region and a 5.6 percent margin of error for Iowa.

Pollsters interviewed 2,100 respondents by telephone, 300 per state, in each of the seven states that comprise the Midwest — Iowa, Illinois, Missouri, Nebraska, South Dakota, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The interviews, conducted in November and December 1989, asked respondents questions on broad social issues, politics and economics — not merely to comment on the hot topic of the day, said institute director Arthur Miller, who is a UI Political Science professor.

"What we find is that the Midwest tends to be more pro-choice than the country as a whole. There is a very small minority of people who take a pro-life position," Miller said.

The results show that if the Supreme Court were to hand down a decision that restricted the Roe vs. Wade verdict on abortion, that decision would not reflect the majority opinion in the Midwest, he said.

Based on the poll's findings, Miller

"If all other things were held equal, a pro-life candidate would lose the election. (Gov. Terry) Branstad's clearly on the wrong side of the issue," Miller said.

On the national level, President Bush had some problems with the Midwest during the 1988 campaign, but he now enjoys the popularity of a substantial proportion of people, Miller said.

Ballot return date extended

The Daily lowan

The return date for UI student government ballots has been extended until Monday, April 2, at 5 p.m.

Bulk mailing took more time than was originally anticipated, said Elections Board Director Kevin Taylor.

Students who have not received their ballots by this Friday should call the Office of Campus Programs at 335-3059, Taylor said.

Black Student Union holds rally on racism

Diana Wallace
The Daily lowan

ANYONE distributed this week on campus during "Vote for Students First — We're White," prompted the UI Black Student Union to hold today's Rally Against Racism on the Pentacrest.

BSU vice president Leslie Davis said the flier, posted on billboards in several campus buildings and in the downtown Pedestrian Mall, was the "last straw" in a series of racial attacks against individual Black UI students, including incidents of verbal and physical assaults.

Representatives of Students First, a party in the upcoming Student Senate elections, denounced the flier's content and said they have no association with it or knowledge of how it was distributed.

Christy Waskow, a Students First candidate running for a residence hall seat, said "I don't want to lose the election, but what's much more important to me is that I don't want anyone on this campus to think that I or anyone in my party holds these racist views."

"Of course it has occurred to us that this could have been a political stunt pulled by someone who supports the ASAP party," Waskow added. "But we don't want to point any fingers because we don't want to turn this into a political issue, and have it be a Students First vs. ASAP thing. We just want it to be known that we are not racist."

Waskow said the party has filed a complaint with the UI Elections Board in regard to the flier.

BSU member Reanae McNeal, who will speak at today's rally, said the event is not meant to be a protest against the Students First party, but would center around the racial problems on campus.

"We're not accusing Students First of doing it. We have no idea who did it," McNeal said. "But some-

'Sex, Drugs and Remote Control' promotes safe habits for students

Angela Egan
The Daily lowan

Young heterosexuals have made relatively few changes in their sexual behavior despite repeated education programs aimed at discouraging casual sexual relationships, a panel of experts said Wednesday.

Health educator Lisa Bruek told the public forum at the Iowa City Public Library, 123 S. Linn St., that many heterosexual students on campuses still "experienced and regretted unintended sex," particularly after having drinks.

As a response, an educational theater program called "Sex, Drugs and Remote Control" has been established to address the problem of educating young heterosexuals at risk of indulging in casual sex because of substance abuse.

The play has been performed in universities and colleges by students themselves and was useful because it revealed ways that relationships could go without involving sex.

Although there seems to have been little change in the sexual habits of the heterosexual population, Tom Skaggs, a person with AIDS, told the forum that there had been a significant change in the habits of homosexuals.

"People are not picking up others for sexual relationships; they are looking for wider social activities," Skaggs said.

Ellen Van Laere, a panel member from the AIDS Coalition, said that there was no reason to believe that because many members of the homosexual community had changed their habits, there was room for complacency.

Van Laere felt that as far as education was concerned, "we cannot say we are done now with the gay community; it is not true at all."

The Coalition felt that in small rural communities, like those of the Midwest there was less openness about homosexuality.

This "sheltered" attitude was something that could, and should, be overcome if the AIDS problem was to be properly confronted, Van Laere said.

UI Library to exhibit historically censored works

Deborah Gluba
The Daily Iowan

Book boycotts in South Africa, implications of the Webster vs. Reproductive Health Services Supreme Court decision, and restrictions on national art gallery exhibits are just a few of the topics addressed in a new exhibit in the UI Main Library.

"Intellectual Freedom: The Foundation of Democracy," a compilation of literature and artwork that have been dubbed controversial from the 1700s to present, will be presented in the North Lobby of the library until the end of May.

"The exhibit is important for the academic community because it deals with issues of academic freedom," said Barbara Dewey, assistant to the librarian. "It's important for libraries because we are the repositories of knowledge and we want to make sure that there is always access to that knowledge."

Among the exhibits are notable proclamations of intellectual freedom, including the U.S. Bill of Rights and the United Nations' Universal Declaration of Human Rights.

Newspaper and magazine excerpts detail current intellectual freedom debates while a sampling of popular fiction, literary classics and textbooks illustrate censorship controversies.

The exhibit will open tonight during a public reception in the North Lobby from 5-6 p.m.

Banned works in the display include Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn," John Steinbeck's "The Grapes of Wrath," and works by Judy Blume, Richard Wright and Salman Rushdie.

The exhibit also includes censorship cases that have appeared recently in the national press.

Among the displays is a discussion of the Webster Supreme Court decision.

Several civil liberty and library groups have said the ruling, which includes provisions against "encouraging or counseling" a woman to have an abortion, might be interpreted as prohibiting the full range of library services, including referral services as they relate to abortion.

Created and mounted by two UI Library employees, Mark Anderson and David Gregory, the exhibition on intellectual freedom includes materials from the general collections of the UI and the Office for Intellectual Freedom of the American Library Association.

"Personally, I think it's a good thing for people to be offended once in a while. To try to pretend that offensive things don't exist is immature," Anderson said.

Japanese visitor 'dogs' it to Chicago

Julie Deardorff
The Daily Iowan

For Takeshi Komatsu, telephones are a little frightening. When he walks through the streets of Iowa City, he can't always understand what people are saying to each other. He can't sit down and tell his best friend about the party he went to last night. Riding the bus is a challenge, and he often feels like a young child despite the fact that he's 23 years old.

But for Komatsu, leaving his friends, job and family in Japan and coming to a country where he knew just one person was a necessary step in his life. In his home country, there are only eight people who have achieved a National Athletic Certification. Komatsu wants to become the ninth.

Achieving the certification would greatly increase Komatsu's status as an athletic trainer back home in Japan. Training in the Japanese sense involves healing, acupuncture, cupressure and massage. Komatsu is licensed in acupuncture, moxibustion — a type of acupuncture without needles — therapeutic massage and Shiatsu.

Most major companies in Japan have their own track or volleyball teams, and recruit athletes directly out of high school to work for the company.

Komatsu was working as an assistant trainer for the Nippon Electric Company Corporation's volleyball team in Japan when he met UI women's volleyball coach Ruth Nelson. Nelson invited him to visit her in the states, and on Christmas Eve 1989, he arrived in Cedar Rapids with his luggage, a small vocabulary and his goal of becoming a certified trainer.

Komatsu is intent on becoming one of the few Japanese trainers with National Athletic certification because he feels the Japanese methods are slightly behind those of the United States.

"In Japan we don't have good education for trainers," he says. "It is a little different system in the sports field. We need trainers."

To that end, he is taking intensive English classes so he can pass his TOFEL exams and enter the Iowa training program. He observes a weight-training class twice a week and also attends Nelson's volleyball classes.

Sitting on the edge of a couch, his Japanese-English dictionary resting on his knee, Komatsu's nervousness comes through in his hesitant English, which he's only been speaking since August of last year.

"Everything is beautiful, bright," he finally says, referring to his view of America. "Um, and the people. They are kindly, yes, different."

When asked in what way the Americans seem different, Komatsu is quiet, perhaps thinking about how to phrase his answer. With a limited vocabulary, he must search for combinations of the words he knows to form a coherent sentence.

"For example, the greeting, hi, hello, how are you? In Japan, people don't say the greeting without knowing," he explains. "But I use the bus this morning. Good morning, good morning. Yes, I like American customs, habits."

Komatsu reads books on slang to learn words like "wimp," "jerk," "mooch" and "wasted." He rides the bus to practice conversation. He circles the phrase, "just a trim, please," in his conversation textbook and repeats it before he gets his hair cut.

And he entertains. Nelson explained how Komatsu once took a Greyhound bus to Chicago to buy a leather coat. "How are you going to get there?" she asked him. He extended his arms as if he was flying.

"On the dog."

Projects deal with students 'at risk' of failing

Sonja West
The Daily Iowan

The Iowa City School District is currently developing two projects to deal with students who may be considered to be "at risk" of failing or dropping out of school.

One of the projects involves a $45,000 grant to develop an in-school suspension program put together by teachers at South East Junior High School.

The other is an appeal for a $200,000 federal grant to assist students at risk throughout the district, according to Interim Administrative Adviser Jim Ferguson.

"The In-school Suspension Program is a unique and exciting idea that has been developed by some concerned citizens to address the needs of students at risk," said South East Associate Principal and Program Coordinator Debra Wretman.

The program will be called the In-school Support Program and will seek an alternative to suspension by combining tutoring and counseling for students, Wretman said.

"We want it to be a positive program where students will learn something about their own behavior and eliminate out-of-school suspension," she said. "We hope it will reduce socially inappropriate behavior and reduce the number of school days the student misses."

The program hopes for the district to contribute about 10 percent of the total funding or about $5,000. The additional money will come from outside of the school district budget, South East language arts teacher Pete Muir said.

"We want to provide the students with some skills and to build their self-esteem before they move on to the high-school level," Wretman said.

The committee is now trying to obtain the grants needed for the project. "I really commend this. I have always objected strongly to suspensions," said board member and At-Risk Committee member Connie Champion.

The District's second project involves the Federal School Improvement Plan.

The plan uses state legislation and federal funds to provide a school-based youth services grant to support involvement in the community, Jim Swain, executive director for the United Action for Youth, said.

The program would be a collaboration of the Iowa City School District, United Action for Youth, Neighborhood Centers of Johnson County and Mayor's Youth Employment Program.

"We feel it is necessary to respond to the tremendously complex youth needs that we see in our community," Swain said.

The program would give over 170 Iowa City students an opportunity to do voluntary services and earn up to $2,000 of credit to apply toward college tuition anywhere in Iowa, Swain said.

The state's decision on the grant money will be announced April 29.

"I think it is very encouraging that we can become a part of this operation," Interim Superintendent Al Azinger said.

Philosophy of self understanding presented

Brenda Mobile
The Daily Iowan

Self understanding may be achieved through texts, symbols and actions, according to philosopher Paul Ricoeur.

A series of presentations and discussions will explore Ricoeur's philosophy March 29 through April 1 at the 1990 UI House Humanities Symposium.

Ricoeur is a professor of philosophy at the University of Paris. Since 1960, he has taught part time at the University of Chicago Divinity School.

UI religion Professor David Klemm said Ricoeur is widely recognized for his work in hermeneutics, the theory and practice of interpreting meanings in languages and human existence.

"Ricoeur is a major voice in philosophical hermeneutics. From his visits to Chicago and his active lecturing, he has had an influence in American intellectual life," said Klemm, director of the symposium.

Two major paper presentations March 29 and 30 at the symposium are free and open to the public.

Gerald Bruns, an English professor from the University of Notre Dame, will present "Aristotelian Versus Platonic Hermeneutics" March 29 at 8 p.m. in Van Allen Lecture Room 2.

Robert Scharlemann, a professor of religious studies from the University of Virginia, will discuss "Textuality Between Literature and Theology" March 30 at 8 p.m. in Room 101 of the Communication Studies Building.

"One benefit of the symposium is to enable cross-disciplinary discussion concerning interrelation of meanings in different domains of human culture," Klemm said.

Four panel discussions will be held March 30 and 31 and on April 1.

The presentations cover topics on Narrative in History and Fiction, Theological Meanings, Time and Image in Film and Meanings in Ethics and Politics. They will be held in the Ohio State Room at the IMU with the exception of the presentation of Time and Image of Film, which will be held in 101 CSB.

The presentations are meant to spark discussion on various aspects of human life.

"Scholars form different humanistic fields and from a different institutional setting could better understand the interpretive dimensions of thought which cuts across the humanities," Klemm said.

A screening of Visconti's "Ludwig" will be shown twice in Room 101 CSB at 10 p.m. Thursday and at 3:45 p.m. Friday.

Seating is limited in the Ohio State Room so preregistration is requested. Call the Conference Center at 335-3231 to ensure a seat, Klemm said.

The symposium is sponsored by the University House Humanities Symposium Award, the UI School of Religion, the Institute of Cinema and Culture, the Project on the Rhetoric of Inquiry, the departments of Philosophy and English, the School of Art and Art History, and the University of Chicago Divinity School.

Courts

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

A man was arrested Tuesday after he allegedly obtained two payroll checks from his employer for the same pay period and cashed them both, according to Johnson County Court records.

The defendant, Ronald L. Webie, address unknown, was charged with third-degree theft February 27 after he reportedly told his employer that he not received his payroll check in the mail, according to court records.

The employer then issued a second check and asked that Webie return the first check if it arrived in the mail, according to court records.

Webie cashed both of the checks without notifying his employer, according to court records.

Webie was taken to the Johnson County Jail on $5,000 bond, according to court records.

Preliminary hearing in the matter is set for April 6, according to court records.

Chinese student documents fears of returning to China

Diana Wallace
The Daily Iowan

Fear of reprisal has kept UI graduate student Chang Qing Sun from discussing the politics of his native China's Communist Party — almost one full year after the massacre at Tiananmen Square.

Though Sun has had several requests for interviews since the incident last June, he has declined to discuss his opinion of the Chinese Communist Party because he doesn't want his views to go "on the air."

But now, as a means of exploring the sadness and fear shared by Chinese citizens studying in the United States, Sun, a student in the School of Journalism and Mass Communication, has produced a documentary for his master's final project called, "What Is the Future for Chinese Students in the United States?"

The half-hour program will be aired at 1:30 p.m. today on WSUI radio (AM 910), and again on Sunday at 6:30 p.m.

"The Chinese students in the United States are worried about going back," Sun said. "We cannot go back now without any fear. Nothing may happen to us immediately, and most students that go back will probably not be arrested, but there's a tremendous pressure."

"And there's problems if we don't go back," Sun continued. "It's hard for Chinese students to find jobs here, especially for social science majors. The language barrier is a problem, and there is always the fear of prejudice."

The Chinese Communist Party has assured Chinese students abroad that they can return without fear of being punished for speaking out against the massacre at Tiananmen Square.

The Chinese government also claims the students abroad were misinformed by the Western press about what really happened at Tiananmen Square.

"The government's trying to buy us back," Sun said.

Sun, who comes from Manchuria in the northeastern part of China, said he worries about his parents and brother who still live there, and he worries about the repercussions of his work with "Voice of America."

He said it's hard for Chinese students in the United States to know what to believe about the actual risk of their return to China or about what really happened at Tiananmen Square.

However, Sun said, "The facts are the facts, and the fact is that the government sent troops to kill the people. Maybe the press did sensationalize, but when you have tanks and machine guns, that's enough to know what's going on."

Sun's documentary includes interviews with Chinese students at the UI, recordings of machine gunfire during the massacre and excerpts from news broadcasts — including broadcasts from Radio Beijing's English Language Service.

Sun was working for Radio Beijing before coming to the UI in January, 1988, with his wife and child. He said UI Journalism Professor Kenneth Starck, who met Sun during a visit to Beijing in 1987, was instrumental in bringing him to the UI.

Sun's editor at Radio Beijing is now in jail in China and may receive a lengthy prison sentence.

"I have so much respect for the people at Radio Beijing. They risked their lives to broadcast during the demonstration," Sun said.

The documentary also discusses the misconceptions about the protests facilitated by Western press coverage.

"It's a misconception that the students in Beijing were trying or wanting to overthrow the government, at least not before the massacre. Rather, they were pushing the government to go faster with political reform," he said.

Sun added that the press coverage often focused on the most radical elements of the demonstrators, like camera shots of a student chanting an anti-Communist slogan.

"Before the massacre, people still had hope in the Communist party," Sun said. "The demonstrators wanted very much to have dialogue with the party leaders. Why would they have wanted that if their goal was to overthrow the government?"

"The Chinese people cannot believe, they just couldn't take the fact that the People's Army could open fire at them. Still, they can't believe it," Sun continued. "So now, many people have lost hope in the government."

Sun, too, was shocked when the machine guns began to fire. "I just cried. I couldn't help it. Even as I wrote this (documentary) I cried," he said.

Other misconceptions Sun said he hopes to correct with his documentary involve stereotypes about Chinese students in the United States, specifically the notion that all Chinese students wish to remain in this country.

"We have families, lives, careers back in China," Sun said. "No matter how much more free this country is, it's still not our country."

Motion made to strike detail

Charge claims information violates right to fair trial

Kelly David
The Daily Iowan

A motion to strike explicit detail of an attempted murder from court records was filed at the Johnson County District Courthouse Tuesday.

The motion alleges that trial information filed March 26 charging UI mechanic Michael Chism, 32, of Oxford, Iowa, with attempted murder violates his right to a fair trial.

Chism's attorney, Leon Spies, objects to a passage that alleges Chism shot a man with 12-gauge shotgun and then repeatedly hit him with the butt of the gun and kicked him.

The information also alleges that Chism told the victim, "I will kill you," before he shot him.

The detail of the information surpasses the necessary information needed to state the charge and violates the intent of the law to word indictments in short form, according to the motion.

Chism, 32, was charged February 12 after he allegedly shot a man in the parking lot of Hawk-I Feed & Relay Station, 903 First Ave., Coralville, according to court records.

Chism reportedly shot the man after finding him with his wife at the truck stop.

Poll

"Overall, 81.7 percent of the respondents approve of the job Bush is doing as president," Miller said.

But Bush has not escaped all of the problems that plagued his image back in 1988, Miller said.

Midwesterners saw virtually no improvement in Bush as a "man of action," he said. But Miller pointed out that the interviews were conducted before Bush's decision to invade Panama in January.

"Perhaps if we had been in the field after that, we would have seen some increase in the perception of George Bush as a man of action," Miller said.

In international politics, the poll found that there tends to be some skepticism in the Midwest about the changes taking place in the Soviet Union.

"Despite the fact that Soviet Premier Mikhail Gorbachev's rating went from 47 degrees in 1988 to 56 degrees in 1989 (on Miller's scale) ... only 10 percent of Midwesterners expressed a high degree of confidence in the Soviet Union," Miller said.

Midwesterners ranked Chinese leaders at only 24 degrees on Miller's scale — a low figure that was probably due to the suppression of the pro-democracy movement in Beijing last summer,

Miller said. "It's interesting that among Democrats in the state of Iowa, our vice president's (Dan Quayle's) ratings were only a 29 — slightly above what the Chinese leaders ranked," Miller said.

In four of the states in the region, there was a significant increase in economic optimism, according to the poll.

More Iowans thought their state showed the most substantial economic gain over the past year than did respondents in any of the other six states.

The poll showed that 31.7 percent of Iowans expect business conditions to improve in the next year.

BSU

Iowans held the highest expectations, compared with 28.2 percent of South Dakotans, 23.1 percent of Wisconsin residents, and 29.9 percent of Nebraskans who expected their state's economic conditions to improve.

All of the poll's indicators suggest that the quality of life in the Midwest is higher than it is in other parts of the country, Miller said.

"People seem to be quite pleased with the place they live, fewer people are saying they want to exit from the region ... and people are economically more optimistic," he said.

body on this campus is responsible, and that kind of thing is appalling to people of color."

McNeal said racial incidents, such as name-calling and harassment of black student leaders, have to be stopped to help curtail the national tension evident around the country.

"We cannot afford to have an inhospitable atmosphere for people of color on this campus, because that's going to hurt retention," McNeal said. "If we claim cultural diversity, we should back it up. (It's) about time the issue of racism on this campus be addressed."

BSU President Greg Kelley, who is also the vice-presidential candidate being endorsed by the Allied Student Advocacy Party, was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

The rally will be held at 12:15 p.m. today on the Pentacrest lawn. In case of rain, the rally will be moved to the Union's Northwestern Room.

million. But this $1.5 million is also used for building adaption — changing and upgrading facilities to meet new technology — leaving just $800,000 for capitol renewal, Christenson said. And much of the remaining $800,000 is used to keep obsolete components running and to patch up roofs that should be replaced, he said.

■ Deferred maintenance — backlogs in building and system repairs. This occurs when there is not enough funding in the first two areas to repair buildings annually. Currently, there are $30 million in known deferred maintenance projects, but Christenson said this figure is low.

"We can't afford to do an exact survey, but we need to look at $60 million of deferred maintenance," he said.

To solve this problem, the UI asked the state Board of Regents to appropriate $5 million per year.

The regents recommended $4.1 million for fiscal year 1991.

This figure was cut to $400,000 in December in Gov. Terry Branstad's annual budget recommendations and now awaits consideration by the state legislature.

The UI will need more than $400,000 to begin work on the UI Music Building — the top priority project on the list of deferred maintenance projects, according to Susan Phillips, vice president for Finance and University Services.

The estimated cost to replace a piping system in the UI Music Building is over $2 million. $400,000 may not even cover the cost of removing the asbestos around the current piping, Phillips said.

Christenson agreed that the amount Branstad recommended was too small.

"That amount is getting us no place at all," Christenson said. "Which means we'll add another $3 to $4 million to deferred maintenance for next year."

The lack of deferred maintenance funding occurred because it hadn't been a priority in the past, according to Phillips.

"It comes down to a question of priorities. Five years ago if I had suggested putting money into bricks and mortar, there would have been an uprising," Phillips said. "Deferred maintenance wasn't big ten years ago."

But growing faculty awareness of the state of the UI's facilities has allowed deferred maintenance to become a higher priority, Phillips said.

"Five years ago we were facing faculty salary problems and that was our priority. If you don't have faculty, it doesn't matter if you have buildings," Phillips said.

"But now we (the UI) can compete in salaries and now the faculty are starting to realize things look shabby and realize we need to spend money on these things," she added.

Last year the UI requested — but did not receive — money for deferred maintenance. Currently, the Iowa Legislature is working on the UI's operating budget which was previously vetoed by the governor because it was too high.

But Christenson said money must be put into deferred maintenance now because the options are growing slimmer.

"Up until now we've tried to do the best we can. But you reach a certain stage when you can't repair these things any more," Christenson said.

son said. "Sometimes it's patching a roof or keeping an obsolete piece of equipment working."

But Christenson said this type of management does not do any good in the long run and is consumptive of resources that should be spent in preventive and predictive maintenance.

"At some point the whole thing has to be cashed in," Christenson said. "The situation is very pathetic and frustrating."

The UI receives the least amount of capitol renewal funding — money to replace roofs annually — in the Big 10, Christenson said.

"Ohio State gets around $13 million and Michigan State gets around $8 million, but we're in a class by ourselves at $1.5 million," he said. "Nobody gets this little money in the Big 10."

If the legislature doesn't give UI enough money for deferred maintenance, bonding may be a possible solution, according to Phillips.

"Bonding is the most likely at this point, because the legislature has a real problem in terms of revenue," Phillips said.

But Christenson believes bonding will only cause a deficit in other areas.

"Bonding is a solution, but we'll have to have an increase in our operating budget to pay for the bond," Christenson said.

"We need money for these repairs. The regents, President Rawlings, and I are stewards of the taxpayer's money whose value is being consumed by deterioration," Christenson said.

"It's time we start to bite the bullet and treat the facility's needs before it is no longer here," he added.

pendence. But Tass said the Ukrainian government asked local authorities to ban the rallies.

The Soviet Defense Ministry reiterated Wednesday that the government considers Lithuania's declaration of independence invalid. The republic was forcibly annexed by the Kremlin in 1940, along with the Baltic states of Estonia and Latvia.

"No one should have any doubt that law and order will be restored on Lithuanian territory," said the statement, which was published in national newspapers. It accused the Lithuanian government of giving passports to deserters from the Soviet Army and sheltering them from Soviet authorities.

"The republic's Interior Ministry organs refuse to take steps to detain them and bring them back to their army units," the statement said.

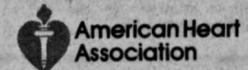

Gen. Valentin Varennikov, commander of Soviet land forces in Lithuania, said 23 deserters were seized Tuesday when Soviet troops raided two psychiatric hospitals in Lithuania. He contended they had become "militants" in the nationalist movement and were "undergoing special training" at one of the hospitals.

In Rome, Stasys Lozoraitis, head of the Lithuanian diplomatic mission to the Vatican and the United States, said he received a list from Lithuania of 38 deserters taken away by Soviet soldiers Tuesday.

Witnesses said some of the deserters were beaten as they were taken away, the first violence since the standoff between Lithuania and the Kremlin began.

Later Tuesday, Soviet authorities closed Lithuania to foreign journalists, diplomats and businessmen.

Contra forces remain armed

JINOTEGA, Nicaragua (AP) — Platoon leader Ivan and his Contra loyalists relax on a hillside, but they cradle M-16 rifles in their laps and wear hand grenades on their camouflage uniforms like medals, ready for battle should Sandinista guns break the silence of the countryside.

The Associated Press

A pact between leaders of the Contras and Nicaragua's new United National Opposition government calls for the rebels to lay down their weapons.

But the rank-and-file rebels have no intention of doing that.

"If they signed that pact, they made an error," said Ivan, whose real name is Monico Gonzalez Rivas. "In the mountains you feel things in your own flesh. Here is where we're going to decide."

Ivan and his men see the pact, signed Friday in Honduras, as a death warrant because it makes no mention of what had been a top Contra demand: that the Sandinista military also disarm to make way for the formation of a neutral army.

"I see it as something very difficult, this thing of giving up our weapons, because they would have to order our coffins at the same time," said platoon member Filadelfo Lopez Castro, whose nom de guerre is Filiberto.

Ivan and his platoon can afford to rest at least for a while in the rolling farmland 10 miles north of Jinotega, a provincial capital and important Sandinista military post.

Peasants in this region strongly favor the Contras, who they feed and protect.

Andres, an area ranch hand who asked he not be further identified for fear of the Sandinistas, strongly opposes the plan to disarm the Contras.

"If they make the boys disarm, then all of us might as well take to the hills. The piricuacos (an Indian word meaning dogs) would wipe us out," said Andres, referring to the Sandinistas.

Ivan, 25, has fought the leftist Sandinistas for eight years, seen them sign successive regional peace pacts and enjoyed the unexpected thrashing the Sandinista Front suffered in the February 25 elections.

"All these treaties, it's us who have made them sit down to negotiate," said Ivan. "If we're taken out and the Sandinistas keep their weapons, they can stage a coup against UNO at any time."

Ivan's view that the Contras will Contra rebels north of Jinotega, Nicaragua, contact their military command post Wednesday using communications equipment supplied by the United States. The Contras say they will not give up their weapons until the Sandinista armed forces are dismantled.

help assure the democratization of Nicaragua is not reflected in the latest negotiations between UNO and the Sandinista Front.

After a month of meetings, negotiators on Tuesday announced they had agreed to a protocol for transferring power on April 25, when President-elect Violeta Barrios de Chamorro is to be inaugurated.

The document calls on the Contras to respect the demobilization pact and return to civilian life. It also says the Sandinistas will turn control of the army and police over to UNO.

Officers now in the army and the Interior Ministry are Sandinista Front cadres who have undergone extensive political indoctrination.

"In a democratic country you can't have an army that belongs to a party," Ivan protested in an interview a few hours before the protocol was announced.

A few miles away, another Contra combat unit came down from the bush to a tiny shop by a dusty country road where they mingle with local people.

Patrol leader Caminante, a pseudonym of Juan Antonio Garcia that means "Walker," says a call by the United States for the rebels to dismantle or face a cutoff in the U.S. aid they have received since 1981 doesn't matter much.

"We've got the people behind us, and as long as we have that we won't starve," he said.

Enforcement of the accord in Tegucigalpa for disbanding the Contras depends on the will of the rebels to voluntarily give up their weapons.

LITHUANIA

Setting limits

The time has come for the Bush Administration to explicitly define the limits of its tolerance toward the escalating crisis in Lithuania.

The Bush Administration's reactions to the unfolding crisis have been marked by extreme restraint. But until Wednesday, the tone of its rhetoric had at least followed the pattern of escalation set by the Soviets. Then, when confronted with the reality of the violent capture of military deserters from a Lithuanian hospital, the White House fell suddenly silent.

The consistent response from Bush Administration officials throughout the secession conflict had been increasingly forceful urgings to both the fledgling Lithuanian government and the Kremlin for "compromise," along with vague threats that the use of military force could jeopardize Soviet-American relations. On Wednesday, however, even that ended.

The implicit Soviet response to the White House's careful pleas and nebulous warnings has been the escalation of Soviet threats against Lithuania from mere rhetoric to military intimidation, culminating in paratroopers storming a hospital and the Communist Party Headquarters. Now, with Moscow ordering all foreign diplomats, businessmen and reporters out of Lithuania, it appears that Mikhail Gorbachev is poised to crush the secession movement if necessary.

The situation is on the brink of disaster. Yet, instead of demanding no further violence, the Bush Administration has unwisely softened its stance.

It is not surprising that the besieged Lithuanian government has lost its patience with the United States. Even President Vytautas Landsbergis, who until recently has exhibited nearly impeccable poise, ranted Wednesday about the United States "selling out" Lithuania. And it is also not surprising that, considering the absence of any real pressure from the United States, Gorbachev has felt free to bring the secession battle perilously close to overmatched combat.

Now, however, it is imperative that the U.S. attempt to stop the situation from unraveling any further.

The current international environment — dominated by the widespread collapse of communism and warmed U.S.-Soviet relations — necessitates that the American crusade for worldwide Democratic freedom be conducted on a more subtle level. Thus far, through generally cautious conduct of foreign policy, Bush has proven incredibly adept at managing the struggle for democracy on that level.

The glaring exception to Bush's overall success has been China's Tiananmen Square, and the fatal flaw in Bush's China strategy was allowing that government's leaders to crush a rebellion without sufficient threat of U.S. diplomatic retaliation. Now, by allowing Gorbachev to steadily increase the pressure on Landsbergis, Bush is risking a repeat performance.

Bush understands that Gorbachev is ultimately in a losing position. A military strike to subvert the secession attempt, despite the nebulous risks of international reaction, would assert his control and keep the USSR intact — at least for now. Allowing Lithuania to leave the republic unmolested would pave the way for the other Baltic states, and possibly others, to follow.

The Bush Administration can, for a time, allow the situation to be maintained at the current level of tension, affording either side to initiate resolution of the conflict.

What Bush cannot do, however, is give Gorbachev the impression that any further escalation will be tolerated. A clear statement of limitations and potential retributions must be made. At this historical juncture in U.S.-Soviet relations, military support for Lithuania is out of the question, but Gorbachev must be told that further Soviet-initiated violence will be met with immediate U.S. recognition of Lithuania, severed high technology trade agreements and the cancellation of the upcoming superpower summit.

Ultimately, the fate of Lithuania rests with Gorbachev. But if the Bush Administration can establish tangible disincentives to military action, it will bolster the survival chances of an incipient democracy and diminish the risk of another tragedy like Tiananmen Square.

Commit to diversity

To the Editor:

Racism... has hit the UI campus. A flier recently distributed by an unknown source pictured a white angry face above the words, "Vote for Students First. We're white." Candidates for Students First denied involvement in the production and distribution of the flier. This kind of thinking, however, is incredible in today's day and age.

The issue of racism is too important to be ignored. Our generation cannot let the achievements of the Civil Rights Movement of the 1960s be forgotten.

Events with racist overtones have been occurring with increasing frequency on college campuses across the nation, the UI included. Prominent UI student leaders have suffered attacks solely because of the color of their skin and ethnic background. People must be made aware of these incidents, and efforts must be undertaken to see that they are stopped.

UI students and faculty are called upon to prove... that the embracement and celebration of the diversity of students on this campus goes beyond the face value of good public relations, and that this commitment is one we are striving for and do not take lightly.

Vote Students First: Competent leaders of good character

Michael Lorenger

There's really no need for me to tell everyone that it's time once again for the UI's student government elections. Unless you live in cave, you've heard that and much more — probably more than you've wanted to. But that time nevertheless is here, and for the benefit of those who are responsible enough to vote, I'm going to explain a few things I think are important to consider when casting a ballot. Take my advice if you wish, or ignore it, or write nasty letters to the editor about my debilitating ignorance. It doesn't matter, I'm writing anyway.

I am casting my ballot for the entire Students First slate and for Mark Havlicek and Heather Fenyk for president and vice-president, respectively. I do not do this because I am a former member of Students First. I do it simply because the Students First candidates have committed themselves to values I consider important. The other parties have failed to espouse concern for honesty and integrity, and the Allied Student Advocacy Party, known campuswide as ASAP, has thrown all interest in truth out the window. They have lied to and cheated the students of this university for too long.

Most students can not recall a time when ASAP did not hold power in the Student Senate. Well, there was such a time, and it was productive. Students First originally developed and initiated the Hawkeye Express Discount Card. But ASAP won't tell you that — it hurts their image.

And since ASAP has been in control, Students First Senators have been active and productive despite the railroad-like nature of the ASAP-dominated government. Prasanta Reddy, who led the Students First campaign last year, chaired the Senate's Student Services Committee in 1988-89, despite ASAP's majority. Reddy expanded the Whistlestop program to the residence halls and worked to increase awareness for Saferide. Also that year, it was Students First Senators who acquired funding for the residence halls' Safewalk programs. And this year, Amy Valley and Carolyn Nedder, both of Students First, initiated and directed "Students Speak Out," a video program of panel discussions on relevant student issues.

But ASAP ignores these facts and tells students that they are responsible for all of it. I guess truth in campaigning means nothing to them.

When I look at the current state of student government, my reasons for voting for Students First grow exponentially. Consider first that last semester more than 10 ASAP senators resigned. ASAP executives have spent most of their time looking for replacements. It seems ASAP senators are more concerned with resume-padding than with a real commitment to student service.

Students First senators, meanwhile, have assumed responsibility for that which ASAP has not been able to handle. There are only six of them, but four of their chair committees. Havlicek chairs the Student Service Committee, where he is starting a campus recycling program. Valley and Nedder are co-chairs of the Students in Society Committee, and Brad Tucker chairs the City Relations Committee. It is interesting that ASAP can not find enough qualified senators among their majority to chair these three important committees.

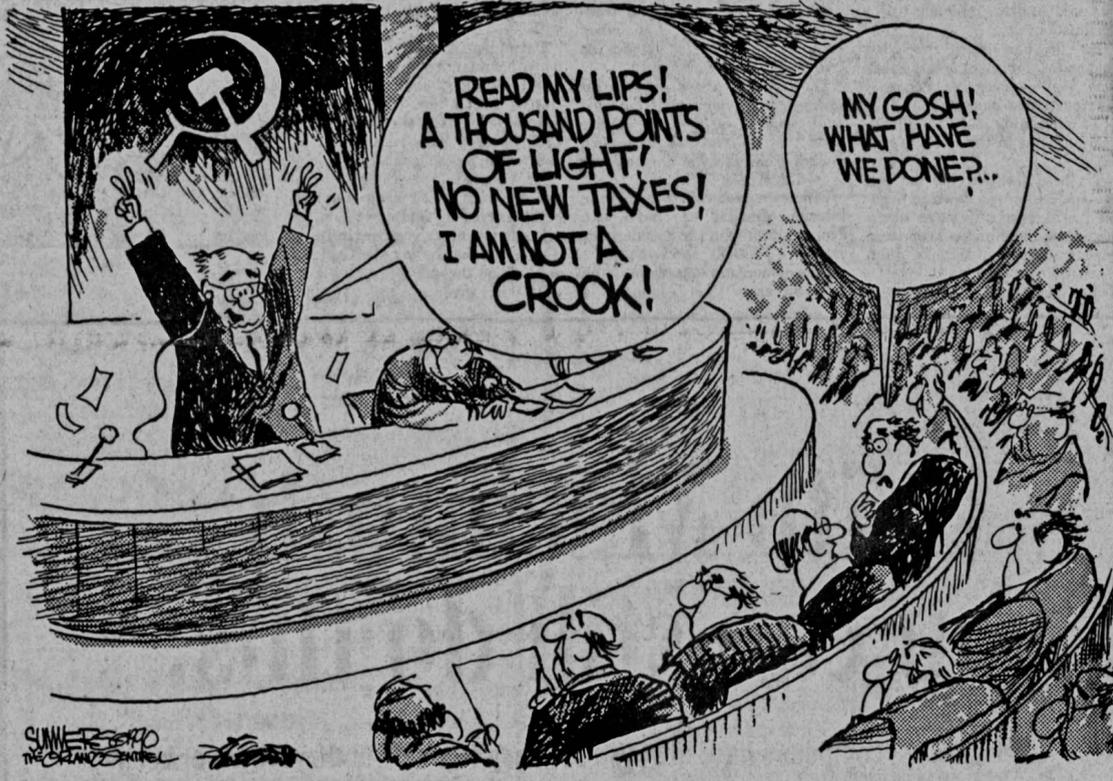

More important to me than Students First's productivity and competence, however, is their concern for honesty in government and their determination to stand up for what is right — even in the face of adversity. Students First released a flier on Monday that drew a storm of criticism from ASAP senators and supporters. They expected to be called liars and worse, and they have been. They knew the criticism could cost them votes, but the flier was released because of their determination to let the truth be known. Havlicek has supported the accusations with hard evidence: receipts and tape recordings. And he will stand by them because it is true. Is there any reason to doubt the claims? I don't think so. The flier makes specific charges and details them in terms of exact dates and monetary amounts.

ASAP seems unable to validate its campaign promises and charges as well as Students First. An advertisement in The Daily Iowan on March 9th claimed that ASAP has "given" students a tuition freeze and new campuses. Both claims are outright lies. There is no tuition freeze, and new campuses appear at the UI every 12 years without fail. Is ASAP going to claim responsibility for the new buses that will be purchased in 2001? Probably.

ASAP has made some progress in some areas, to be sure. But when ASAP senators shouted "Dynasty! Dynasty!" as election results were posted in 1988, things began to get out of hand. When a political party gets the mindset that it has the right to govern and that it holds an uncompromising mandate, it is time to make a change. The time for that change is now.

Vote ASAP: Diverse, experienced candidates pledge leadership and direction for the future

It is the time of year when the days start getting longer, the NCAA Final Four is days away, final papers, projects and tests loom closer, and of course, student government elections are before us. Though I am not running for office in this election, I have an interest in this election. Therefore, I am going to take a few minutes of your day and a few inches of this newspaper to express my opinions on the upcoming election.

Before I begin, I will expose by bias up front. I have been a member of the Allied Student Advocacy Party since 1987. I have been an at-large student senator, a committee chair, and am currently the Student Senate vice president. I state this because there have been statements made by people in the last few days regarding the campaign who have not revealed their past and present ties to the campaign, and I do not but he helped them because they wanted help at that moment. These two candidates are committed to this campus and have shown it every day. To call them "resume padders" is false. They already have excellent resumes, which they have earned with hard work.

Now let me explain why I support ASAP for the legislative branch of student government. ASAP has been in office since 1986. During that time, they have worked on issues from tuition and campus safety to the discount card and everything in between. Yet I support this slate not only for what has been done in the past, but what they offer for the future.

ASAP has assembled a very good and diverse slate. The candidates are people who are energetic about student government which is something this whole campus needs. They are dedicated to getting students involved on campus and showing them that they can make a difference. Their proposal for registering students to vote in state and national elections by absentee ballot is an excellent idea, one that can truly make a difference.

They stress the student part of student government, and if elected will use the committee system to involve as many students as possible. While there are differences between all of us, we have many things in common. A vote for ASAP will be a vote for bringing students together through our common interests.

Their opponents recently ran some very negative (not to mention false) statements. I wonder if Mark Havlicek really wants their opponent after the barrage of lies they have littered the campus with over the last few days. All I have to say is that mudslinging soils most the hands which slings it. I suggest Students First go buy a bar of Lava soap and wash their hands. To the rest, do not believe their hype.

The tragedy of this is that there are people running with ASAP who have never been involved with student government before and just want a chance to get involved and make a difference. I know because I felt the same way three years ago. One reason to vote for ASAP, and there are many, is the reason the party has thrived on campus for five years — its members offer a true and sincere representation of the UI. A vote for ASAP is a vote for students.

In a few days, the sun will shine a little longer, the Final Four will become the Final Two, that paper's due date will loom even closer, and it will be time to vote in the student government elections. It's a chance to make the future the best it can be. Please vote for Mike Heller, Greg Kelly and ASAP, they offer leadership, not only for the students of today, but for the students of tomorrow.

Jeno Berta is Student Senate Vice President.

Guest Opinion

Jeno Berta

wish to be guilty of the same thing.

Let me explain why I support Mike Heller and Greg Kelly for student government president and vice president. These candidates are second to none in executive experience. This year Mike has been an officer in the Collegiate Associations Council. He came on at a very difficult time and has performed very well under fire. He served on the national board for his fraternity, Sigma Lambda Beta, the first national Hispanic fraternity, which was founded here at the UI. He has also served as president of his fraternity.

Greg has been a student senator, and president and vice president of the Black Student Union, and has served with the Black Greek Caucus. It is evident they have the experience needed to be functioning executives from day one, as they will not have to learn the job as they go along.

However, this is not the main reason why I am supporting them. Their ideas are pragmatic, but at the same time visionary. I have talked to both, and they want to see student government expand beyond what it is today. They will supply the leadership necessary to make these visions reality. In my opinion, their strongest contribution will be made to this campus in their leadership style. I have worked with both and I have seen them lead by example. After the Spike Lee event at the Afro-American House, I saw Greg helping clean up. I have seen Mike spend literally hours with people on matters that could have waited,

Extremist groups confess to slaying

RASHAYA FOUKHAR, Lebanon (AP) — Extremist groups claimed responsibility Wednesday for the slaying of an American missionary, who was shot to death in his south Lebanon home by masked intruders who burst in as he prayed with his family.

The groups accused the victim, William Robinson, of trying to establish an Israeli settlement in south Lebanon, a predominantly Shiite Moslem area. The Israeli government and Robinson's relatives in his home state of Massachusetts denied it.

Robinson, 59, had since 1983 run an orphanage for handicapped children (Arab) the Christian Children's Home.

Israeli troops scoured their self-proclaimed security zone in south Lebanon for the killers, who entered Robinson's home in Rashaya Foukhar on Tuesday night. The village of 4,000 is inside the security zone, about eight miles northeast of Israel's border.

Lebanese security sources reported that the Israelis and their militia allies raided houses and arrested an undisclosed number of people.

The sources, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the three attackers were armed with 9mm pistols equipped with silencers. First they killed six German shepherds guarding the Robinsons' home.

The sources quoted Robinson's wife, Barbara, as telling U.N. investigators the men burst into the house at about 8:30 p.m. while Robinson, his wife, four sons and 26 children from the orphanage next door were singing bedtime prayers.

"Who is Robinson?" one gunman shouted in English.

The missionary said without hesitation: "I am Robinson."

According to Barbara Robinson, two gunmen ordered her to take the children into her bedroom, where one assailant tied her to a chair.

Another searched the room, took $4,000 and jewelry, the sources said. They then tossed a sleeping gas canister into the bedroom, knocking everyone out. An hour later, Robinson's 7-year-old son woke up and found his father's body in a pool of blood in the bathtub. He had been shot in the neck and chest, the sources reported.

The Lebanese Communist Party claimed responsibility in a statement issued Wednesday. "His execution brought an end to schemes to plant Jewish settlers in south Lebanon," it said.

The party and its militia have carried out numerous raids on Israeli targets, including an abortive suicide truck bombing in southern Lebanon on April 21, 1985.

Another claim of responsibility came from the Lebanese National Resistance Front, an alliance of 12 leftist factions that include the Communists. It did not specify which faction killed Robinson.

It accused Robinson of "seeking to establish an Israeli settlement on Lebanese territory." The National Resistance Front is made up largely of Shiite Moslems.

Israeli Army Spokesman Nachman Shai's office said the allegations of plans to settle Jews in south Lebanon, a predominantly Shiite Moslem area, were "totally baseless . . ."

Illegal export of nuclear devices foiled

LONDON (AP) — Customs officials said Wednesday they foiled an attempt to supply Iraq with 40 American-made devices for triggering nuclear weapons, and they arrested five people after an 18-month investigation by U.S. and British authorities.

The probe climaxed in a freight shed at London's Heathrow Airport as an attempt was made to put the devices — which may have been dummies — aboard an Iraqi Airways flight to Baghdad, British customs officials said.

Of those arrested in and around London, one was an Iraqi national who was immediately served with a deportation order, authorities said. Iraqi diplomats in London refused to comment on the affair.

In Washington, the U.S. Customs Service said sealed indictments had been returned at a U.S. District Court in San Diego.

Customs officials in London, speaking on condition of anonymity, said the devices were capacitors, electrical components of the detonation chain of a nuclear bomb.

Defense experts said it demonstrated Iraq's determination to become a nuclear power, even at the risk of being caught violating Western bans on the export of strategic high technology.

"There are only a very few countries in the world capable of manufacturing this type of technology, and there is no other use for a nuclear triggering device than to trigger a nuclear weapon," said Tony Banks, a Middle East expert at the respected Jane's Defense Weekly.

White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said: "This issue raises once again our concern for the nuclear proliferation in the Middle East. It continues to pose a serious risk to U.S. interests, and it continues to exacerbate regional problems."

There were indications the devices deposited at Heathrow were dummies, substituted for the real hardware as part of the U.S. Customs investigation.

British Broadcasting Corp. TV said customs officers made the switch after the packages arrived from the United States this week. Channel 4 TV News carried an interview with the manufacturer of the so-called krytrons, who said his company turned over dummies to U.S. Customs late last year.

House moves to increase Bush's aid request

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House committee moved Wednesday to more than double President George Bush's request for aid to emerging democracies in Eastern Europe to soften the shocks of changing from communism to a market economy.

"It would be a very serious mistake for us to conclude the survival of democracy in Eastern Europe is a done deal," said Rep. Stephen Solarz, D-N.Y., who offered an amendment boosting potential aid to the region to $719 million in the year that begins October 1.

That compares with $300 million the White House has sought for next year. The administration argues that the smaller amount would be as much as countries like Poland and Hungary, which have progressed far enough in their reforms to be eligible for U.S. help, can absorb immediately.

Solarz, however, said his package of environmental cleanup aid, housing grants and loan guarantees, and private sector development assistance is needed to soften the "cold turkey" switch from centrally planned economies to market systems.

East European countries will suffer severe shocks as they close down inefficient government-owned enterprises, throwing people out of work, and switch to private employment, he said.

Rep. Lee Hamilton, D-N.Y., agreed. "We have a unique opportunity to achieve goals we've sought for 40 or 50 years," he said. "The stakes are enormous. The risk is that we won't be bold enough in meeting the challenge."

Hamilton acknowledged there is a shortage of money for new programs, particularly in the area of foreign aid.

Republicans believe Democrats are using Eastern Europe as a political weapon, portraying Bush as weak by continually increasing aid beyond amounts the White House asks. A similar scenario last year led to a quadrupling of Bush's request.

Homes burned in Zulu battle

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Rival Zulu factions battled with guns, clubs and knives Wednesday in Natal province, setting scores of homes on fire and forcing hundreds of villagers to flee into the countryside.

Soldiers and police patrolled Natal in an effort to quell the violence, which broke out Tuesday and has killed at least two people.

"The whole so-called 'Valley of Death' is covered with blue smoke. I saw 120 homes burning at the same time in a radius of (15 miles)," said journalist Khaba Mkhize after flying over the Edendale Valley near the provincial capital of Pietermaritzburg.

From 1,000 feet up, Mkhize saw crowds of more than 1,000 gathering in streets and bodies lying in fields.

Police reported two deaths and 25 injuries since Tuesday but expected the figures would rise. Local reporters, who did not want to be named, said up to 14 people had been killed.

As night fell, officials and monitors reported 1,500 people fleeing the townships with their belongings loaded onto trucks.

Army units and extra police were deployed after some 2,000 Zulus supporting the Inkatha party went on rampage with guns and knives against supporters of the rival United Democratic Front. Observers and police say the violence was sparked by the stoning of Inkatha buses that drove through UDF areas after a rally Sunday.

Inkatha is fighting the UDF for control of the region. Both groups oppose apartheid, South Africa's system of racial segregation. However, Inkatha supports separate states for different tribes or ethnic groups, while the UDF wants a black majority government ruling all of South Africa.

Police said officers used shotguns and tear gas to disperse mobs attacking and burning houses. Maj. Piet Kitching said the army would patrol all night along major routes in the 120-square-mile area where fighting was reported.

"It almost looks as though the whole area is burning," said Kitching.

"In a field, on one side of a hill a battle was raging, we could hear the guns," said Peter Kerchhoff, of a Pietermaritzburg peace group.

"On the other side, we just heard the weapons being fired amongst the trees. Masses of people were watching the confrontations and masses of people were . . . trying to go to the rescue of other people in conflict on the hill."

Kerchhoff said dirt roads leading to townships were blocked by tree trunks, boulders, rubbish and burning tires. He said people were fleeing Caluza township, where much of the fighting was centered. Houses were burning in several townships.

As his group drove through the crowds taking four injured to the hospital, Kerchhoff said, "People were saying, 'Please, we need guns.'"

Several residents and local journalists said they saw some police giving Inkatha fighters ammunition, supporting them in the battles and refusing to confiscate their weapons. Township residents welcomed the army's arrival, said Mkhize, the journalist.

A 13-year-old boy in a house in Caluza said over the telephone: "The police is coming and shoot the people. A helicopter is up there."

The boy, who could not be identified because of safety concerns, said his father had left the house "because of the war" and "I am running away now."

Kerchhoff said he saw young and old men fighting on a distant hilltop with sticks, clubs and machete-like knives called pangas. Among the Inkatha fighters, Kerchhoff said he saw men in blue uniforms, but he could not be sure they were police.

AL West promises to be strong again

(AP) Finally, after all those years wondering whether the American League West would catch up with the East, there is no more debate.

The West, by far, is the best. Look at the hitters — Ruben Sierra, Kirby Puckett, Jose Canseco and Alvin Davis. Younger, stronger and faster than anyone anywhere.

Look at the pitchers — Dave Stewart, Bret Saberhagen, Dennis Eckersley and Nolan Ryan. And now Mark Langston and Mark Davis, too.

Look at the teams — Oakland, California and Kansas City. Each won at least 90 times, more than any East club.

ries, not including the eight they quickly tacked on in October. And they're better this season, even with Storm Davis, Dave Parker and Tony Phillips gone.

Why? Because the three free agents they lost can be replaced. And because Oakland can pitch. And, most importantly, because the Athletics have Rickey Henderson and Jose Canseco from the start.

Any doubts about Henderson's ability — did anyone ever really wonder? — were answered in the postseason. He's that great, especially at home in Oakland. Only one question this year for the man with the green-glow batting gloves: Will he get the 68 stolen bases he needs to break Lou Brock's all-time record of 938?

Canseco (17 home runs, 57 RBIs in 65 games) predicts he might someday become a 50-50 man. If he's healthy, and he is now, he might be.

Carney Lansford (.336), Mark McGwire (33 HR, 95 RBIs) and Dave Henderson (80 RBIs) provide punch. So can designated hitter Ken Phelps, who has that rare combination of power and a good eye. Phelps, misused at Yankee Stadium, led the league in pinch hitting and now will try to duplicate Parker's 97 RBIs.

Kansas City Royals

The Royals bought every free agent named Davis. Too bad Kansas City can't buy runs when it needs them. Also too bad this team doesn't play in the AL East, where it would be best by a lot.

Mark Davis (44 saves, 1.85 ERA in San Diego) joins Bret Saberhagen (23-6, 2.16 ERA) to make the Royals the first team ever to start the season with both Cy Young winners. Still, is a five-year contract for a reliever ever worth it?

Storm Davis will miss Oakland's offense, particularly if the Royals again are shut out a major league-leading 18 times. Mark Gubicza (15-11, 3.04 ERA) could've sued for non-support while rookie Tom Gordon (17-9, 3.64 ERA) faded in the stretch. Jeff Montgomery and Steve Farr each had 18 saves; there won't be that many chances for them this year.

See West, Page 2B

WEST

tomorrow - A.L. East

Combined, the West teams won 587 games last season, the division's best showing since Oakland dominated the early 1970s. Last year also represented an overall 22-game improvement by the West, a trend that was in the making for years.

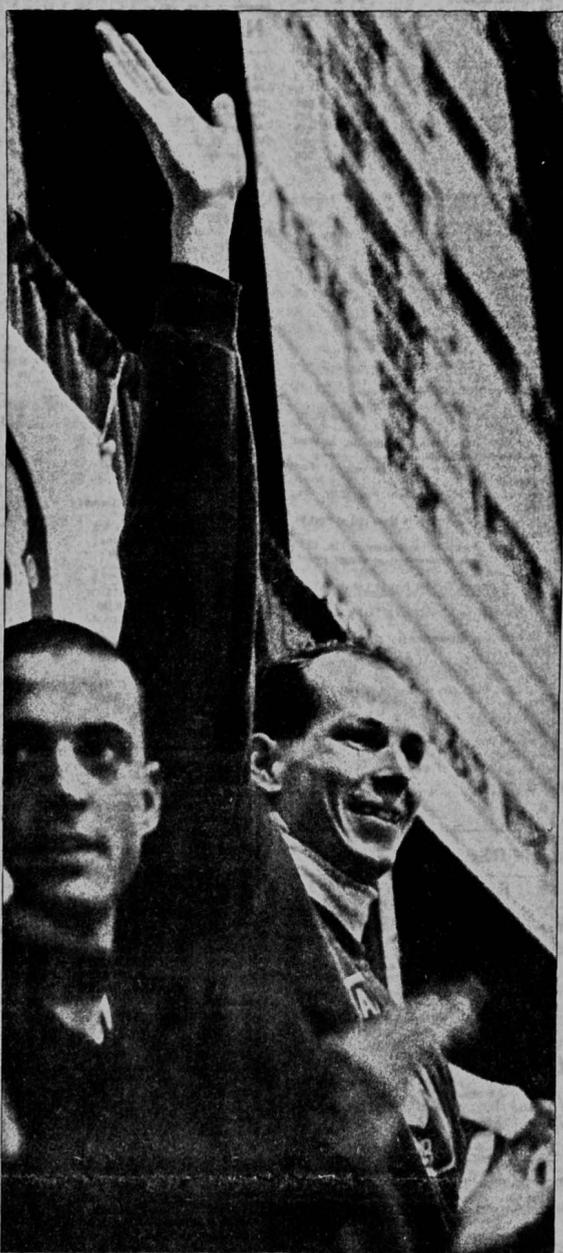

Can it continue? Maybe. Can Oakland become the first team to win three straight division titles since Kansas City, the New York Yankees and Philadelphia each did it from 1976-78? Probably.

The Athletics have the talent, certainly. They also have the attitude. Starting in spring training, the players wore T-shirts reminding themselves: "Contentment Stinks. Stay Focused."

Chances are, they'll do it, with Kansas City, California, Minnesota, Texas, Seattle and Chicago chasing until they drop one-by-one.

Oakland Athletics

They led the majors with 99 victo-

Tom Jager, hand raised, salutes the crowd Wednesday night after winning the $5,000 Oral-B "Dash for Cash" at the Field House pool. To the left is Olympic gold medalist Matt Biondi.

$5,000

Jager wins "Dash for Cash"

Erica Weiland
 The Daily Iowan

Matt Biondi stepped out of the tunnel at the Field House Pool Wednesday night in the Oral-B Dash for Cash and the crowd went wild.

He stepped onto the bulkhead to the screams of girls, the cheers of the crowd and the brilliant spots of light from flashing cameras.

Tom Jager stepped out of the tunnel next and stood in front of lane five, just to the Biondi's left. The crowd cheered, but it was polite at best.

But when Jager hit the wall at the end of the 50-yard race he had just won in 19.12 seconds, the cheers were for him.

And for the sport of swimming. "People are starting to see we are an exciting sport," Biondi, who finished second in 19.18 seconds, said. "The myth is that we're not capable of entertaining. We're proving that wrong."

The Oral-B Dash for Cash hosted by the University of Iowa was just another chapter of a recent saga in American money swims.

There have been three such swims in the last year — Long Beach, won by Biondi, and Las Vegas and Nashville, both taken by Jager.

In Wednesday's race, Jager took home $5,000 for his first-place finish. Biondi got $2,500, Steve Crocker received $1,500 for third and Eric Hansen $1,000 for fourth.

Three other competitors, Tom Williams, Doug Boyd and Brent Lang finished fifth through seventh, respectively, with the slowest time being 20.09 seconds.

A big goal of the "Dash" was to go under 19 seconds, which would be a new American record and would be rewarded by a 1990 Ford Bronco donated by O'Rourke Motors in Tipton, Iowa.

Jager's 19.12 fell just short of that ideal and the record, which he set last week at 19.05 seconds.

"I went out to win the race," Jager said. "I figured it would take breaking 19 to win, but that wasn't the case."

Jager did, however, break the Iowa pool record of 19.98 seconds, set by Williams in 1986 when he swam for the Hawkeyes.

"I had a good start but I boxed the turn a little," Jager said. "It wasn't a good turn. I was a little worried about that, but I've had good finishes this year... Had I had a good turn, I think I would have gone under (the record)."

Breaking records or not, Biondi and Jager, who came up with the idea for the races, both agreed that the events mostly serve to get their sport into the public eye.

"People are starting to see we are an exciting sport. The myth is that we're not capable of entertaining. We're proving that wrong."

Matt Biondi
 Olympic gold medalist

"Swimming is marketable and swimming is entertaining," Biondi said. "Tom and I got together and thought of what we could do in our sport to show people that."

"The limit is set by the amount of people there. Before we swam for $10,000, men bowled for $125,000. I have no doubt we are as good of athletes as they are. I think this will snowball."

"The race in Nashville last week was a two-hour event," Jager said. "And people were very excited for it. There's definitely room for these races."

"This type of swimming is down to its most simple form. If you talk about splits and shaving and tapering, that's too complicated for most people. This, people can understand... Someday Matt and I can look back and say, 'Look what we've done.'"

Coaches pick favorites as Final Four approaches

DENVER (AP) — UNLV coach Jerry Tarkanian, one of five coaches to win 30 NCAA tournament games, would prefer one little old national championship.

And two of his Final Four colleagues believe he'll get it.

"I think Tark has a tremendous basketball team," said Arkansas coach Nolan Richardson. "We got a chance to play them earlier in the year (losing 101-93). They've got a nice front line and good guards, and they've got that wild man, (Moses) Scurry. He scares me."

Georgia Tech coach Bobby Cremins came away impressed after UNLV's 131-101 rout of Loyola Marymount in the West Regional final. "Particularly after the Loyola game, I feel you've got to favor Tark's team," Cremins said. "But there might not be any favorite with how close the games have been."

In Saturday's semifinals, the Razorbacks (30-4) meet Duke (28-8) and UNLV (33-5) takes on Georgia Tech (28-6).

During a conference call Wednesday, the four coaches of the Final Four teams discussed the weekend's matchups.

Duke coach Mike Krzyzewski saved his praise for fellow-ACC team Georgia Tech.

"Bobby Cremins said all those nice things about me earlier and then he goes and picks someone else," Krzyzewski said. "I think he should do it. If not, the people of Atlanta should string him up."

Tarkanian was the most diplomatic.

"I don't think there's a clearcut favorite," Tark said. "If you took a poll after our game with Ball State, I don't think anyone would have picked us. I think it's about as equal a tournament as you'll find."

But Tarkanian said earlier that "if we play real well, there isn't a team we can't beat."

Tarkanian has a 31-15 tournament record while coaching at Long Beach State and UNLV. The other coaches in the 30-victory club are John Wooden (47), Dean Smith (43), Denny Crum (32) and Adolph Rupp (30).

The discussion then turned to the high altitude.

"I told our kids we'd be playing inside," Richardson quipped. "I remember when the Olympic team played there, some players were gasping for air. We may have to play a few more players."

Krzyzewski said the altitude "is a concern but it will be the same for all the teams."

Tarkanian insisted that high altitude "has always bothered us. We have trouble when we play at Utah State. I think everybody plays about a half-step slow up there. It will be real difficult to play two games with the type of intensity we like to play with, and it will be the same for the other three teams."

Weather, Westerwinds intrude on Hawkeyes in home-opener

Jay Nanda
 The Daily Iowan

It was bad enough that the weather didn't cooperate. But Western Illinois did its part as well.

The Westerwinds spoiled the Iowa softball team's home-opener by sweeping a doubleheader from the Hawkeyes at the Iowa Softball Complex Wednesday, winning both games by a count of 3-2 in rainy and chilly conditions.

In the opener, Western Illinois used two singles and a double, all after two outs, to get on the board in the first inning against Iowa hurler Tami Chown. But the Hawkeyes countered in the third.

With one out, junior second baseman Shelly Fowler singled and stole second. One out later, she advanced to third on a single by freshman Jenny Roe and promptly scored on another single by sophomore designated hitter Amy Hartssock. A third consecutive single by freshman Christa Davis brought home Roe.

However, the Westerwinds answered in the fifth, again after two outs. A single by Dawn Viti and RBI doubles by Jenn Jackson, the lone senior for Western Illinois,

Iowa softball

and Lori Tubbs, accounted for the 3-2 final.

Chown, who allowed seven hits in 4 1/2 innings, suffered the loss and is now 3-3 on the year. Hartssock relieved Chown in the fifth and held Western Illinois at bay the rest of the way, but the Hawkeyes could not muster any more runs.

Sophomore Mindy Dessert threw 103 pitches in going the distance for the Westerwinds, surrendering five hits, walking three, and striking out one.

"I wasn't getting tired; I kind of felt the same as the game went on," Dessert said. "It just seemed like my pitches started to move more."

"I could see in everybody's eyes that we were ready to hit," the pitcher said of her team's offensive support. "After the first inning when I saw how good they hit, there was no doubt in my mind."

Between games, Dessert boldly predicted, "I think we're going to sweep it."

Unfortunately for the Hawkeyes, she was right.

Sophomore righthander Terri McFarland, however, was staked to a 1-0 lead as this time it was Iowa's turn to score in the first inning.

Catcher Diane Pohl led off with a single and went to second when rightfielder Tubbs allowed the ball to scoot under her glove. Two outs later, Pohl crossed the plate on a triple by Hartssock.

Meanwhile, McFarland was coasting by retiring the first nine batters she faced, four of them by strikeouts.

Then disaster struck. Western Illinois did all their damage in a three-run fourth, when Jodi Osterberg broke up McFarland's string with a bunt single. Three more hits, a walk, a passed ball, and a wild pitch proceeded to open the floodgates for the Westerwinds.

McFarland settled down and only allowed one single the rest of the game, but again, the Hawkeyes could not score enough runs. Iowa stranded 13 runners on base in the

Jordan's 69 ranks ninth in NBA logs

RICHFIELD, Ohio (AP) — Michael Jordan scored 69 points, the ninth highest total in NBA history, as Chicago beat Cleveland 117-113 in overtime Wednesday night and clinched a spot in the playoffs.

Jordan made 23 of 37 field-goal attempts and 21 of 23 foul shots. He also had a career-high 18 rebounds, six assists and four steals.

It was the third time Jordan has scored more than 60 points. His previous career high was 63 against Boston in the 1986 playoffs. He also scored 61 twice in 1987.

Only two other players have had multiple games of 60 or more points. Wilt Chamberlain did it 32 times and Elgin Baylor three times.

Karl Malone of Utah and Tom Chambers of Phoenix each did it earlier this season. Malone scored 61 against Milwaukee on Jan. 27 and Chambers had 60 last Saturday against Seattle.

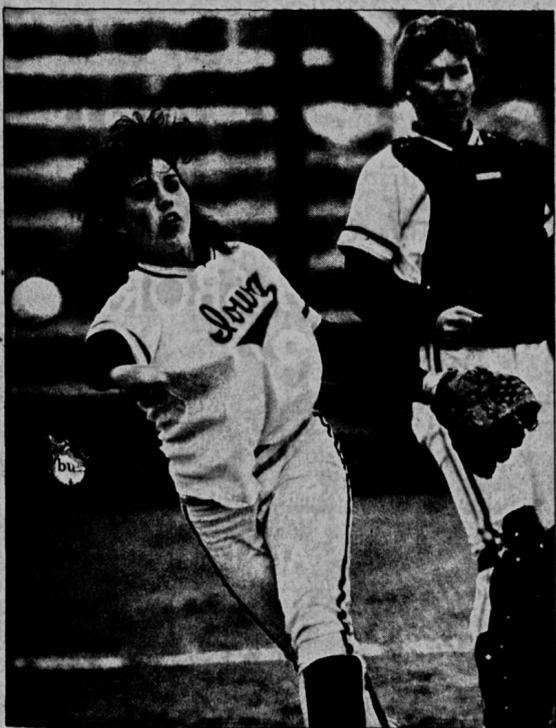

Fourteen players have scored 60 points or more in an NBA game. Jordan, who was averaging 33 points a game, scored 16 in the first quarter, 15 in the second, 20 in the third, 10 in the fourth and eight in overtime.

The victory was the eighth in 10 games for the Bulls, who tied a club record by winning their seventh straight on the road.

Mark Price led the Cavaliers with 31 points. Craig Ehlo added 26 and John Williams 23.

The Bulls led 87-70 late in the third quarter, but the Cavaliers rallied to tie at 105-102 when Ehlo hit a free throw with 49 seconds left in regulation.

Ehlo hit a 3-pointer to tie it at 105 with 11 seconds left and the game went into overtime when Jordan missed a desperation 30-foot shot at the buzzer.

Iowa relief pitcher Amy Hartssock fields a bunt Wednesday during the Hawkeyes game with Western Illinois at the Iowa Softball Complex. The Westerwinds took both games in the doubleheader, 3-2.

Commodores win NIT

NEW YORK (AP) — Vanderbilt won its first postseason tournament ever as Derrick Wilcox scored all of his 16 points in the second half of a 74-72 victory Wednesday night over St. Louis in the final of the NIT.

The Commodores (21-14), making their first appearance in a national tournament final, built a 17-point lead midway through the second half before the Billikens (21-12) rallied.

In the third-place game, James Barnes scored 19 points and backup forward Dave Degitz gave Penn State the lead for good with a three-point play in overtime, lifting the Nittany Lions to an 83-81 victory over New Mexico.

Hagler to divorce

BROCKTON, Mass. (AP) — Former boxing champion Marvelous Marvin Hagler and his wife Bertha have agreed to a divorce settlement.

The Patriot Ledger of Quincy reported Wednesday that Bertha Hagler testified two days earlier that her husband hit her in the face and punched her in the ribs hard enough to make her knees buckle in 1987.

He lost his world middleweight title that year to Sugar Ray Leonard.

Neither Hagler, 35, nor his 36-year-old wife would reveal details of the agreement, reached Tuesday. Their seven-year marriage will end officially in 90 days.

Hagler has $12 million of the $20 million he has earned since 1984, an unidentified source told the newspaper.

Bertha Hagler, who had been seeking $4 million, was smiling after the agreement was reached, the newspaper reported.

Mrs. Hagler also testified Monday that her husband hit her with a wine bottle and that she responded by hitting him over the head with a beer bottle. Hagler denied striking her.

Owens remembered

WASHINGTON (AP) — The late Jesse Owens, whose performance at the 1936 Olympics put the lie to Hitler's boasts of racial superiority, picked up a fifth gold medal Wednesday for "humanitarian contributions in the race of life."

President Bush presented the Congressional Gold Medal to Owens' widow, Ruth, in a ceremony at the White House also attended by three daughters and teammates of the track legend.

This Saturday marks the 10th anniversary of Owens' death at age 66.

Bush called Owens an "Olympic hero and an American hero every day of his life... born with the gift of burning speed."

"What was there to be pleased about today?" she asked. "We didn't do a good job of adjusting on the mound in terms of where they were hitting. They did a good job of taking advantage of openings that we created. You can't give openings when a team is struggling offensively."

After opening the season with 27 games on the road before Wednesday, the 17-12 Hawkeyes head for the road again Saturday and Sunday at the Jayhawk Classic.

start with the money races, though.

It started about five years ago, when Jager swam for UCLA and Biondi for Cal-Berkeley. Since then, Jager has beaten Biondi in 13 out of 19 meetings.

Despite the rivalry, though, Jager said he and Biondi are friends.

"Definitely we are outside the pool," the Santa Clara Swim Club member said. "And we're getting used to each other in the pool. It's difficult when people want to create a rivalry."

Jager then turned to Biondi, seated next to him. "I won," he said.

West

Okay, the Royals can pitch. But they still don't score. Kansas City's 690 runs ranked 11th in the league and Gerald Perry was its only addition.

George Brett (.282, 12 HR, 80 RBIs) turns 37 in May. Bo Jackson (32 HR, 105 RBI, 26 SB) slumped after his mammoth home run in the All-Star Game and struck out 172 times.

California Angels
Give the Angels some credit. They knew what they needed to do — trade a pitcher for power — but missed Joe Carter and weren't able to get Dave Winfield or anyone else.

A lot like Kansas City, California has plenty of arms. The Angels' pitching kept them ahead of Oakland until late August. Mark Langston (16-14) didn't help Montreal in the stretch, but should fit well in Anaheim. Bert Blyleven (17-5, 2.73) is strong at 39 and Kirk McCaskill (15-10, 2.93) bounced back. Rookie Chuck Finley (16-9) made the All-Star team and then got hurt; he still has never allowed a home run in the first inning of 50-plus big-league starts.

Jim Abbott was one of baseball's bright spots in a dark season. His stats were average — 12-12, 3.92 ERA with 5.5 strikeouts per game. The AL average last season was a 3.88 ERA and 5.7 strikeouts. Bryan Harvey got 25 saves despite a 3.44 ERA and Bob McClure (6-1, 1.55 ERA) was a pleasant surprise. Scott Bailes (5-9 in Cleveland) and Mike Smithson (7-14 in Boston) are newcomers.

Minnesota Twins
The Twins slipped back below .500 and might stay there, no matter how great Kirby Puckett plays.

Puckett (.339, 85 RBIs, 45 doubles) became the AL's first right-handed batting champion in a full season since Alex Johnson in 1970. Home-town hero Kent Hrbek (25 HRs) got even more popular when he turned down more money from other teams to stay at home.

This will be the first year to start judging whether the Frank Viola trade was a good one. Rick Aguilera, David West and Kevin Tapani join a rotation where only Allan Anderson (17-10) is established. With Jeff Reardon gone, Juan Berenguer's three saves were the most of anyone left.

Texas Rangers
It's probably time to stop talking about the Rangers as an up-and-coming team with a great future. Which is not to say, at least not necessarily, that they can't win.

Ruben Sierra (.306, 29 HRs, league-leading 119 RBIs) is the best and the brightest. Many Texas fans felt he deserved the MVP award more than Robin Yount, although the 24-year-old Sierra will get many more chances.

The stable of young pitchers Texas was raising has not developed as well as expected. Kevin Brown (12-9, 3.35) is the best of the bunch.

Still, the main man is Nolan Ryan (16-10, 3.20 ERA). At age 42, he moved within 11 victories of No. 300, reached 5,000 career strikeouts and became the first AL pitcher to fan 300 batters in a season since he did it in 1977. The only thing he missed was another no-hitter, coming with a few outs on several occasions, and he held opponents to a .187 batting average, lowest in the majors.

Seattle Mariners
Inevitably, people look at the Mariners and figure things have to get better. Well, that's not so.

Seattle did improve five games in Manager Jim Lefebvre's first year to 73-89. Still, that made it 13 straight losing seasons since expansion.

The biggest changes in the winter came at the homer-haven Kingdome, where the fences were moved back a few feet in left field and pulled in a bit in right. On the field, Seattle surprisingly outbid several teams for free agent Pete O'Brien (.259, 12 HRs), a first baseman with little power.

Rookie Ken Griffey Jr. (.264, 16 HRs, 61 RBIs) played well and Harold Reynolds hit .300, although continued to have unproductive stays on the bases — he stole successfully just 25 out of 43 times.

Chicago White Sox
The White Sox won only 69 games, their fewest since 1976, and without any new blood, their last season at Comiskey Park may not show much improvement.

Melido Perez (11-14, 5.01 ERA) was the top winner. Bobby Thigpen (34 saves) preserved nearly half of Chicago's victories, even with a 3.76 ERA.

Champs named in intramural hoops

Kory May
The Daily Iowan

After the road to Denver was paved and then etched in stone, the road to the Field House ended. Spring Break marked the end of the intramural basketball season. All the leagues have crowned champions out of the 220 that began.

Law — Juvenile Court knocked out the No Names.

Coed — Jamalots defeated Night Train.

Social — Kappa Sigma beat Team Delts.

Residence Hall — "V" came, saw and conquered the Death Squad.

Women's — Mad Dawgs took a bite out of the Jazz Devils.

Men's Rec — Senior Tau's triumphed over CHAD.

Independents — Stangs and No

Conscience both won a berth in the All-U tourney.

The All-U tournament was won ultimately by "V". According to Warren Slebos, director of Recreation Services, it was the first time in the history of the tournament that a dorm team won it all.

Slebos also said that the residence halls fielded some very good teams in both basketball and flag football.

Winners in racquetball were also crowned. Out of a field of 16, in the residence hall division, the final came down to Matt Miller and Mike Myers, with Miller prevailing. The team of John Yutzky and Janet Pribble beat Cheryl Conrad and Johann Mirard for the co-ed title. Cheryl Conrad entered the finals yet again in the women's division against Lettie Gonzalez. Conrad took the title.

Intramurals

As the semester winds down, several new activities are slated to begin soon.

Men's softball entries are due April 17th, while action in the tournament starts the 20th. The fee is $30.

Around this same time, volleyball leagues begin their playoff rounds.

Frisbee golf starts simultaneously, running the 18th and 19th with an entry fee of $2. The contest will take place at the Coralville Reservoir.

For the first time, intramural participants are offered the opportunity to play team handball or European handball.

"Team handball incorporates elements of basketball, soccer and

Perles to cooperate with steroid scope

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State coach George Perles pledges full cooperation with an internal investigation into allegations of steroid use by former Spartan football players.

"As far as someone coming in and looking into the program, please do, I need it. I need someone to look into, someone that has authority, someone that has the knowledge, someone that has the ability, that's what I need most right now," he said.

Perles said he has no quarrel with President John DiBiaggio for requesting the probe after reports published March 21 in The Detroit News said members of the 1987 Big Ten championship team had injected each other with the synthetic muscle-builders.

"He's the president and whatever he wants to have done, he will get done. It's the chain of command. If he wants something done, he'll get our full cooperation," said Perles, who last week blamed the stories on reporters who dislike him personally.

At a news conference Tuesday, Perles said he hopes to turn the controversy to his team's advantage.

"I'm going to make a positive out of this if it's the last thing I do," he said as his Michigan State squad prepared to start spring drills Thursday.

Perles, in his eighth year as head coach, said the health of his squad will be his top priority heading into the 1990 season.

"Our goal is to be the healthiest team in the country and the best team in the country, hand in hand," he said.

"I think it's important we take all this negative publicity we've gotten lately and make a positive out of it. How do we do that? We step everything up even a couple more notches."

Michigan State officials have maintained they do a good job of monitoring players for steroid use, despite reports claiming steroid use was widespread and that players fooled NCAA drug testers prior to the 1988 Rose Bowl.

Michigan State physician Dr. David Hough said the university has conducted internal drug tests for five years, after team officials became suspicious of the size of some players. A handful of players tested positive, he told the Detroit

Free Press in today's editions. He didn't say what happened to those players.

Former All-America Tony Mandarich, who played for Michigan State in 1985-88, passed the tests, Hough said.

Some former players had told The Detroit News that Mandarich, now with NFL's Green Bay Packers, had sold steroids and injected them in other players. Mandarich has said he never used steroids, but has been on vacation in Nevada and unavailable for comment on the most recent claims.

Starting Aug. 1, the NCAA will begin mandatory testing for the drugs, which are banned by the association and are linked to a variety of health problems, including cardiovascular damage, liver damage and psychological side effects.

Strength coach David Henry said he would never look the other way at steroid use and tells players that the manmade muscle-builders are no shortcut to strength.

"The bottom line simply is you got to do it the right way and not compromise your health and that's what I'm here for," he said.

Texas A&M names Davis hoops coach

COLLEGE STATION, Texas (AP) — Texas A&M began a coaching youth movement Wednesday by naming 30-year-old Kermit Davis Jr. its basketball coach.

"We wanted a young, aggressive coach that plays an up-tempo offense and aggressive defense," A&M athletic director John David Crow said. "We think we accomplished our goal."

Davis, who led Idaho to the NCAA tournament the past two years, replaces interim coach John Thornton, who finished the season for former coach Shelby Metcalf.

Davis, who signed a four-year contract, was the youngest Division I coach when he was named at Idaho in 1988 after two successful years as a junior college coach.

Nicklaus starting Senior Tour

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP)—Jack Nicklaus is expecting a familiar visitor this weekend. Its name is pressure.

"Every time I started something new, it's been there. It's the opportunity for someone to beat you," Nicklaus said Wednesday on the eve of his first official start as a senior golfer.

"It was there in junior golf, in the amateurs. It was there my first year on the tour; the first time I went to the British Open; the first time I went to Australia; the first time I went to Japan or France or wherever.

"For 20 years it was there in every major I played."

Nicklaus said that anticipating the pressure doesn't mean he will be ready to deal with it.

"Some of the times I've performed. Sometimes I didn't," he said. "It's the same here. Maybe I'll perform, maybe not."

He will know soon enough Thursday morning in the opening round of the Tradition at Desert Mountain when he makes his first appearance in a full-field event on the Senior PGA Tour.

"I'm looking forward to it," said the man voted the Player of the Century, holder of a record 18 major professional titles.

But his debut is not without problems.

"My golf game is semi-lousy," Nicklaus said before a final practice round for the 72-hole event that offers $800,000 in total prize money.

"I've had the chance to work on it.

Goodness gracious, I spent 20-some straight days playing golf. "But instead of getting better, things got worse."

Still, Nicklaus remains convinced things will get better.

"The work I've been putting in will produce results. It's just a matter of when. It could be soon," he said.

It will have to be soon if he is to handle such old friends and golfing foes as Arnold Palmer, Gary Player and Lee Trevino, who has won three of his four Senior Tour starts this year.

"It's not really a renewal of old rivalries," Nicklaus said. "They'll all be at Augusta (the Masters) next week, but nobody will be writing about old rivalries there because we aren't the guys expected to win."

East Germany beats U.S. in pre-World Cup action

EAST BERLIN (AP)—Ulf Kirsten scored three goals after bad defensive mistakes as East Germany beat the United States 3-2 Wednesday night in the first soccer game between the two countries.

The Americans showed some improvement over their 2-0 loss at Hungary last week. But Kirsten's finishing buried the American's hopes of pulling off an upset.

Peter Vermees scored for the United States with five minutes left in the first half, and Bruce Murray scored with five minutes remaining in the game.

The United States is now 2-5 on its buildup to the World Cup, which begins June 8 in Italy. The U.S. team beat Bermuda and Finland and lost to Costa Rica, Colombia, the Soviet Union, Hungary and East Germany.

The East Germans, beaten out by Austria for a spot in the World Cup finals, took the lead in the 16th minute. Hendrik Herzog broke through on the right and sent a cross to the far post. Kirsten, left unmarked by U.S. defenders, headed in from four meters.

Fourteen minutes later, Mathias Sammer robbed Tab Ramos at the center of the field, passed to Kirsten. The Dynamo Dresden forward beat U.S. goalkeeper Tony Meola from just inside the penalty area with a well-placed shot.

Vermees, who plays for FC Volendam of the Netherlands first division, put the Americans back in the game after a corner cross from Ramos. John Doyle headed off to Vermees who slotted home from close range.

The game lost pace in the second half and there was little excitement for the 4,000 fans on a cool night. But Kirsten again proved his scoring skill in the 66th minute.

Meola had to come forward to intercept an East German move but missed the ball when he tried to kick it away just outside the area. Kirsten slipped past the goalie and easily drove the ball into the empty net.

Attorney waiting for reaction to proposal

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP)—Saying "the ball's in their court," Jim Valvano's lawyer was awaiting a response to his proposal that North Carolina State retain Valvano as basketball coach.

The lawyer, W. Woodard Webb said he expected to hear from Raleigh attorney Howard Manning, who represents N.C. State, and Andrew Vanore Jr., chief deputy state attorney general.

Webb sent a written proposal Tuesday to the attorneys seeking guidelines that would help Valvano keep his job.

"It's an attempt to elicit specific duties that the university now thinks Coach Valvano should be performing so that he is on notice as to what is expected of him," Webb said Tuesday.

Webb said the proposal contained nothing different than what was discussed at his meeting Monday with Manning and Vanore.

"It's kind of a restatement" of Monday's talks, he said.

At first, Webb said, he attempted to outline duties Valvano thought were those he should be performing. But he decided against that type of proposal because "it would be in the nature of an employee writing his own job description."

A six-month study of the N.C. State basketball program last year found repeated abuses of academic standards to maintain player eligibility. After hearing similar information presented in a 2 1/2-hour emergency session last week, the university trustees voted 9-3 to seek Valvano's resignation.

"I met with him this morning," Webb said. "He was meeting with his team at noon and speaking to the Wolfpack Club. He's doing what he's always done."

Valvano's speech to the Wolfpack Club was closed to reporters, but a source told The Washington (N.C.) Daily News that the embattled coach talked about accountability.

The source, who asked not to be identified, said Valvano made the analogy that if a Wolfpack player would fail an English test, he would be criticized, whereas when N.C. State loses a basketball game, no one blames the English professor.

After Monday's meeting with Manning and Vanore, Webb said he believed there was a good chance Valvano could remain as head coach with some changes in his contract.

Committee picks Battle of the Bands' line-up

Rip Russell and Nancy Gormley

Kristin Carr and Matt Carberry
The Daily Iowan

The Riverfest Music Committee is pleased and excited to announce its 1990 Battle of the Bands Preliminary Night line-up. Sixty bands representing a wide variety of musical styles and influences submitted recordings of two original songs and one cover. After hours of intense deliberation and the occasional fistfight, the music committee selected the following eight bands representing the cream of the Midwestern college rock crop.

The Something Brothers — Hailing from Bloomington, Ill., this band invites the inevitable R.E.M. comparisons with its pop-ish arrangements, socially aware lyrics and heavy guitar rhythms.

Grab Ankles — Currier Residence Hall's answer to Fishbone, this high energy quintet (which has already captured the Group Name Most Likely to Offend Award), promises to serve up a heaping helping of funk-out boogie.

Piston Grind — Self-described as "mohellgrungecore", this Kansas City, Mo., band claims to keep the "fuzz level" at an "ear-splitting high." Pregnant mothers and the faint of heart, beware.

Steam Boars — This Iowa City threesome describes their style as "fusion with heavy doses of psychedelia, funk, and the occasional Latin influence."

n.i.l.s. — Products of Springfield, Ill., n.i.l.s. prefers to stick to original compositions, but admits to having done covers by the Cure, the Monkeys and Husker Du.

Head Candy — A Coralville band whose sound is paradoxically "melodic and heavy", a combination that lands them in the all-encompassing category of progressive/alternative rock.

Dizzy — Another hometown band who offers this poetic classification of their sound: an energetic teeter-totter of gravel and pearls, with an emphasis on melody and vocal intrigue.

Tropical Punch — A diverse Iowa City band finding strong influences in Latin-based percussion and a Santana-like string of melodies, but also including pieces ringing with eerie psychedelic overtones.

In addition, the committee chose two alternate bands: Box 10, self-described as "alternative progressive speed metal country," and Filler, a group who humbly claims to fit in with any college radio format.

The Something Brothers, Grab Ankles, Piston Grind and Head Candy will play 45-minute sets from 8-12 p.m. on Thursday, April 12, in the Union Ballroom. Scheduled to hit the stage on Friday, April 13 at the same time and place are n.i.l.s., Tropical Punch, Steam Boars and Dizzy. Four finalists will then be chosen to compete for the grand prize at The Fieldhouse on Friday, April 20.

The first place band wins an LP-length album produced by Catamount Studios in Cedar Falls, to be nationally distributed by Southeast Records. The bands finishing second, third and fourth will receive Yamaha gift certificates from West Music worth $500, $200 and $100, respectively; while the fifth- through eighth-place bands take home $50 gift certificates.

Don't miss your chance to see raw talent before it sells out and hits Top 40 radio. With an admission fee of $2, Battle of the Bands offers a musical bargain that can't be beat.

Williams' 'The Glass Menagerie' performed by Riverside Theatre

Martina Brockway
The Daily Iowan

Riverside Theatre will present its spring production of Tennessee Williams' "The Glass Menagerie," from March 29-31 and April 4-7, at Old Brick, 26 E. Market St. The March 31 performance of Williams' theater classic coincides with the 45th anniversary of its Broadway opening.

The play is presented in two acts and centers around three characters — Tom Wingfield, his mother Amanda and his handicapped sister Laura. The play, which is somewhat autobiographical, concerns Tom's recollections of his life in a St. Louis tenement with his mother and sister.

Referred to as a "memory play," its successful use of lighting and music develops a sense of nostalgia and sentimentality while separating itself from reality. As narrator, Tom considers his life in retrospect. His opening monologue begins: "Being a memory play, it is dimly lighted, it is sentimental, it is not realistic."

"The overall effect of the music, staging and lighting distances the audience. Williams called this 'plastic theatre,'" says artistic director Ron Clark, who plays Tom.

"The Glass Menagerie," directed by Jody Hovland, who also directed "A Walk in the Woods," takes a look at the individual problems of the Wingfield family, deserted by their father and living in a state of poverty and despair. Tom's mother Amanda, played by actress Nancy Gormley, is an aging Southern belle clinging to the memories of her youth and hoping that her daughter will soon marry well. Laura, played by UI student Melissa Threlkeld, is a delicate young girl who is crippled, and retreats from reality by living within her collection of fragile glass animals. Tom struggles between his responsibilities toward his family and his search for independence and self-expression.

Clark, a founder of the Riverside Theatre, which is now in its ninth season, was last seen in its fall production of "A Walk in the Woods." Guest artist Gormley, an equity actress from Minneapolis whose residency in Iowa City is supported by the Iowa Arts Council, was featured in the 1986 Riverside Theatre production of "Eleemosynary." Threlkeld was last seen in Riverside's "A... My Name is Alice." Rip Russell, who plays The Gentleman Caller, appeared in the 1988 production of "Driving the Body Back."

On Tuesday, April 3, the theatre will present a special performance to benefit ICARE, the Iowa Center for AIDS/ARC Resource and Education. Tickets are $15 for donors and $25 for patrons, and may be purchased at Things Things Things, 130 S. Clinton St., Getman Optical, 109 S. Linn St., or That's Rentertainment, or by calling ICARE at 338-2135. Tickets for the regular performances are available in advance at Prairie Lights Books, 15 S. Dubuque St., or can be reserved by calling Riverside Theatre at 338-7672.

Kronos Quartet program revised for April concert

The Kronos Quartet has made changes in the program for its April 7 concert at 8 p.m. in the UI Hancher Auditorium.

In addition to George Crumb's "Black Angels," "Doom. A Sigh" by Istvan Marta and the rock 'n' roll medley previously announced, Kronos will perform "Jabiru Dreaming" by Australian Peter Sculthorpe and "Mu Kkubo Ery" Omusaalaba" by Ugandan composer Justinian Tamuszuza.

Kronos also has provided additional information about its rock set, which will include Bo Diddley's "Road Runner," "Spoonful" by Willie Dixon and Howlin' Wolf, and "Foxy Lady" by Jimi Hendrix.

Tickets for the April 7 Kronos concert and the April 6 concert featuring Terry Riley's epic quartet "Salome Dances for Peace" are available from the Hancher Box Office.

Hancher Box Office is open 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. weekdays, 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday and 1-3 p.m. Sunday. To order by phone, dial (319) 335-1160 or toll-free in Iowa, 1-800-HANCHER. VISA, MasterCard and American Express are accepted.

Christian rock reaches new level at Ames concert

The Daily Iowan

A new level of intensity will be reached in Christian rock when White Heart performs at C.Y. Stephens Auditorium at Iowa State University in Ames, on Friday, March 30. The six member group will be promoting its new album, "Freedom." The lyrical focus of the album is to reach out to a wide variety of listeners. Under the guidance of a recently hired producer, the band has defined its image through the biting honesty in its music and lyrics.

Opening up for the group will be Teens for Christ, a youth group made up of students from Ogdan High School and United Community Schools. They will perform skits, songs and mime. The youth group has also performed in several church services and considers opening up for White Heart an exciting challenge.

The concert will be sponsored by Campus Conquest, a student group on the ISU campus. All seats are reserved. Tickets are available at Younkens-Ticket Master outlets, or by phone at 1-800-869-1414.

Art exhibit portrays hardships, tensions of circus life

The Daily Iowan

Byron Burford's inside world of show business and circus fantasy is on exhibit at the new Cedar Rapids Museum of Art through April 1.

Personally involved in the circus since childhood, Burford portrays the hardships and tensions of circus life in his artistic interpretation of the colorful, fanciful performers.

Many of the more than 30 paintings included in the Cedar Rapids exhibit capture performers moments before they go out into the arena. Burford describes his paintings and figures as having a dream-like quality. "They are sort of halfway awake and halfway dreaming," he said. "I kind of get into that state when I'm working."

Before he earned his bachelor's and master's from the UI, Burford traveled with the circus. He even owned a circus for a few years, and created many of his paintings from his trailer while on the road.

Since he retired from the UI Department of Art, Burford has played drums for the Culpepper and Merriweather Great Combined Circus, something he did most summers of his teaching career. His firsthand experience sets him apart from artists like Georges Seurat and Henri de Toulouse-Lautrec, who also painted circus scenes. "They are kind of spectators at an event," says Burford. "Because I'm in with it, I feel like I'm on the inside looking out."

The Cedar Rapids Museum of Art, 410 Third Avenue S.E., is open Tuesday through Sunday.

Cannon, brass band assist Cedar Rapids Symphony

The Daily Iowan

Sixteen cannon and a 25-piece brass band will assist the 82-member Cedar Rapids Symphony in a bombastic rendition of Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture," as part of the Symphony's "Fiedler Pops Tribute" on Saturday, March 31, at 8 p.m. and Sunday, April 1, at 2:30 p.m. in the Paramount Theatre in Cedar Rapids. Music Director Christian Tiemeyer will conduct the concert pair.

Featured artists include pianist John Jensen, local Follies dancers.

Cedar Rapids Fire Chief Ed McMickle will join the Symphony in a rendition of the "Fireproof Polka."

The Furr Cannons from Orem, Utah make their second appearance with the Symphony.

ABC's "America's Funniest Home Videos" has generated much more than its rightful share of sociological/aesthetic criticism — most of which has labeled the show as a sort of heir to "Candid Camera."

The rationale for this comparison is that both programs rely on the amusing foibles of people who, whether we admit it or not, are just like us. The invocation of "Candid Camera" gives "America's Funniest Home Videos" a benign glow, embracing a throwback to the goofy, experimental early days of TV, and the psyche of the American public has somehow reverted — happily — to the early '50s.

However, the real inspiration for "America's Funniest Home Videos" isn't "Candid Camera" or any other TV show, but rather the "Faces of Death" videos. You know, the tapes that come in spooky skull-emblazoned boxes and feature real footage of people being killed in various interesting ways and are hosted by a sinister looking doctor who claims to be fascinated with the end of life. Any adolescent with a driver's license and $2.07 can rent it at the local video hut. I certainly did (once), and I think anyone else who has seen it would agree that the likeness between the two programs — their respective hosts notwithstanding — is nearly identical.

The parallel between "AFHV" and "FOD" is that they both exploit accidents — stupid little things that happen to people which could easily have been prevented with a little foresight. The concept, and appeal, are the same; the only difference is that in "AFHV" the people don't get knocked off. So: In "AFVH" we get to see an unsuspecting man struck in the groin by his bat-wielding son (laugh, applaud); in "FOD" we get to see an unsuspecting tourist approach a bear and get mauled to death as his wife screams in the car (laugh, reach for the popcorn). In "AFVH" we see shots of unattended infants falling down painfully, with horrifying music in the background (laugh, say "Aww!"); in "FOD" we see close-ups of bloated drowning victims, accompanied by jaunty circus music (laugh, reach for the Everclear).

Assuming that this show will be canceled within a year (I give it four more months at the most), it is important that we not delude ourselves in the meantime with mistaken analogies. It is a thin line, after all, that separates "America's Funniest Home Videos" from, say, "America's Most Grisly and Tragic Home Videos" (a future spin-off, perhaps?).

Anyone who watched "The Simpsons" on Fox last week (March 18) probably saw the latest, infamous commercial from Reebok — the one in which two guys leap off a bridge and plummet for 20 seconds into a breathtakingly huge gorge. At the last second, the two are snapped back up by bungee cords that are attached to their feet. In the last frame, however, only one of the men is suspended in mid-air; the other cord is hanging from an empty pair of Nikes (their owner, presumably, shrieking in vain on his way to the rocks below). The gist of the ad, of course, is that Reebok Pumps fit better than other brands. It makes its point quite well.

If you were one of the lucky few who saw the commercial, hopefully you paid close attention, because you're not likely to catch it again. The ad was never aired on two of the three major networks (and CBS has shown it only after 10 p.m.). Also, because of viewer complaints, it may be pulled off all stations. Once again, America has proven itself a nation of paranoiac ninnies.

The ad is black comedy at its best — it is beautifully photographed, horrifying and hilarious. Now we are to be deprived of the legitimate amusement it may provide — and for what? Because some 12-year-old might get the urge to knot a rope around his ankle and take a dive off a footbridge? Such a fool wouldn't live much past 16 anyway. It is almost needless to point out that most of the pernicious influence on TV is directed towards children. The ads shown on Saturday mornings — the province of silly toys and empty calories — are turning millions of toddlers into mindless consumers who will buy any product, just as long as the commercial makes them feel instead of think. Just like parents.

Did Crystal or criticism lower Oscar's popularity at home?

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Oscar who? Hollywood's annual award gala drew its glitzy band of movie stars, directors and producers, but failed to lure a boffo TV audience, registering its weakest ratings in three years.

Preliminary ratings figures released Tuesday by ABC showed the 62nd Academy Awards scored a 27.9 rating, meaning it was viewed in fewer than 26 million U.S. homes.

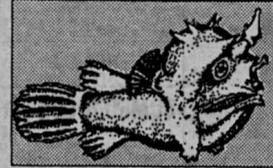

The figures indicate that 48 percent of all television sets in use were tuned to the show, according to the A.C. Nielsen Co. estimates. Last year's Oscars show, which featured a chancy duet between Rob Lowe and Snow White, was seen in nearly 27 million homes. The 1988 telecast also was more popular than Monday's edition.

The broadcast was marred by an annoying sound glitch during a satellite feed from Moscow and was characterized by several on-screen comments critical of nomination omissions.

Television critics were mostly kind in their reviews of the show, although some said it was too long and too conventional.

The broadcast ran 3 hours, 34 minutes. Overseas segments also were shown from England, Japan, Australia and Argentina, designed to show the film industry's global influence. It was the longest show since the 1984 program, which ran 3 hours, 42 minutes.

recognizes a country by his experiences, which are recalled by the scents he imbibes."

In the show at the Musee des PTT d'Alsace, people may jog their memories of Britain with smells of freshly cut grass offered in a picnic setting. Ireland smells of old whiskey; the Netherlands fresh cream; and Denmark features smoked fish. West Germany offers cinnamon, Belgium burned fat.

Greece is evoked with olive oil and oregano, Italy with capuccino. Spain features musty bull smells, and Portugal cod fish.

France is evoked by a perfume created especially for the exhibit.

Only Luxembourg has not been assigned a national smell. It is represented by a safe.

The show opened Sunday.

RIQUEWIHR, France (AP) — A museum in this eastern town is leading visitors on an aromatic journey through the 12 nations of the European Economic Community.

"By their power to evoke, odors are the vector of communication," said the aromatiician Michael Motsseff, who helped organize the exhibit. "Each person
