Traveler speaks about Central Europe

Jeff M. Hamilton

The Daily Iowan

A Bolivian farmer standing in the Cock of the L o w Curtains, Marilyn Conner began speaking last night over the imaginations of people.

Conner will present a lecture on the history and culture of Bolivia. She was in Iowa City recently to complete her master's degree in the UI Humanities program and will return in October for the Iowa City Festival of Poetry, sponsored by the UI Humanities program and the Iowa Arts Council.

Although she traveled extensively in Europe during April and March, she said the trip was her first to see what life is like in Bolivia. Conner said she would like to return to the country at a later date.

"I'm going to bring back a lot more, from that experience," Conner said.

Several senators expressed concerns about the bylaws, including the need for more transparency and accountability. However, the vote was passed with a majority of senators in favor of the bylaws.

BATAVIA, ILL.- (AP) — The quick thinking and fast action of some 200 people, including those on the train, saved 13 lives Wednesday when Amtrak's Chicago to St. Louis train was thrown from the tracks and derailed south of Elsberry, Mo. It was the third time in less than a week that something went wrong with the train, which runs between Chicago and St. Louis.

Winning ticket for Iowa Lotto sold at Iowa City drug store

DER MINDEN (AP)—A single winning ticket in the record-high $812 million Iowa Lotto was sold at an Iowa City drug store on Wednesday, lottery officials said Wednesday night.

The winning ticket with all six numbers was sold at a Drug Town, and lottery officials from Iowa's Department of Revenue said the store immediately claimed the prize.

Voorhees said that between 3 a.m. and 6 p.m. Wednesday, the lottery sold $8.2 million in tickets so far to try and win the record jackpot. Voorhees said that a record amount for Wednesday sales was reached.

A check of lottery computers showed that 13 people matched all six numbers to win $5.3 million; and 567 won three numbers to get a free play, Voorhees said.

The election prevented the Rwandan Board from "torturing" many aspects of the election.

But Nathan said it remains to be established whether the administration and the student government were not co-opted by the student government.

"There are checks and balances in student government," said James.

While many said the administration was not in touch with the student government, reaching out to the student government sufficiently.

"This ruling is just indicative of the whole thing," said James, adding that there was a great lack of publicity for the ruling.

Measles

Measles outbreaks cost $2 billion as the nation faces the worst outbreak in 20 years.

Measles, which is usually a mild illness, can be life-threatening for babies and the elderly. It is spread through the air and is highly contagious.

The vaccine for measles is one of the most effective vaccines ever developed. It is given as a shot and is usually given at 12 months of age.

The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) recommend that all children receive the measles vaccine.

Rawlings also said the current administration needs to re-establish its credibility.

"The administration is the new student government to do from this the need to communicate effectively," Rawlings said, adding that the administration has a "great" role to play in the student government.

FDA might OK home AIDS test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Food and Drug Administration will test homeOfSize AIDS tests next week, officials said Wednesday, to see if they can be placed on the market.

The tests would not measure the presence of antibodies, but would instead measure the presence of HIV antigens, which are proteins on the surface of the virus.

The tests would be used to screen for HIV infection, and if someone tests positive, they would be referred to a healthcare provider for confirmatory testing.

The FDA is expected to announce the test results in the coming weeks.

The FDA has approved several home tests for HIV in the past, but they have all been used to confirm the results of a blood test.

Israel begins construction of new Jewish settlements

ALON, Occupied West Bank (AP) — Israel broke ground for a new Jewish settlement in the West Bank on Wednesday, as the government approved a new round of settlements.

The settlement, called Alon, will be built on land that was previously owned by Palestinians, according to the government.

The opening ceremony was attended by Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu, Defense Minister Avigdor Lieberman, and other high-level officials.

Netanyahu said the new settlement will help to expand Israel's borders and secure its future.

The Palestinians have condemned the new settlement as illegal and a violation of international law.

Census workers invade home front

WASHINGTON (AP) — Census workers turn to door-to-door counting today with the bureau facing constant cuts and criticism of its efforts so far for this

Only 63 percent of the nation's households have been completed so far, leaving the bureau faced with the task of driving, riding and walking to the remainder of homes.

Original plans had anticipated a 70 percent response, and the latest update projects and revised cost of $315 per household.

Counting Thursday covers more than 100 metropolitan areas across the nation, as census takers knock on doors of those who either don't get a return visit or failed to mail back their forms.

Tribal counting expects to add an additional 200 thousand followers by May 3, Census officials report.

In other news, which were not included in the mail count, personal visits by census takers to mail back forms are being undercounted and seeking to force a statistical adjustment of the final counts.

In addition, a coalition of cities and states is trying to fight back against the bureau, complaining that the work they're doing is being underestimated and seeking to have a statistical adjustment of the final counts.

PENTASTRIPRENT STOP the Wave

As for the members of New Wave are concerned, Americans should be able to stand up and say what they damn well please. Unless, of course, they decide to "perpetuate the myth of democracy" or promote "right-wing propaganda."

Jeanne Kirkpatrick

"It is not governments which corner their will, but the people who work as little as possible to influence their government. In a democracy, it is our duty to do what we can to change the government. That means that we must work to elect candidates who will be more responsive to the needs of the American people."

"And this is why I reject, with all my strength, the idea that Socialism in Europe is not for us. I believe that it is an illusion to think that Socialism can be imposed on us from outside."

"The real threat to freedom in Europe is the rise of the Right, which is the enemy of all progressive forces. The Right is not only a threat to democracy, but to economic growth and to the welfare of the people."

"Therefore, I call on all Americans who are concerned about the fate of Europe, and who believe in freedom, to join me in the struggle against the forces of reaction."
LBJ interviews slams Kennedy, New Deal

NEW YORK — John F. Kennedy may have been young, but he certainly had the charges coming his way in a way that few other men have. In 1947, Joseph McCarthy was the main target of the House Un-American Activities Committee. But in 1990, a different target was set for Kennedy — the summer home of the New Deal. The Washington Post reported that Kennedy was in New York, where he was scheduled to appear at a Democratic fund-raiser. The Post quoted a Democratic official as saying that Kennedy was likely to be in New York this weekend.

WILLIAMSBURG — President George Bush, bitterly criticized in Lithuania, yesterday defended his effort to persuade the Soviet Union to forgo its current approach to the country.

"The politics, decisions I've made have had some impact from the American people, and I'm sure it's a good impact," said Bush. The president did not say why asked a "fair" question about Lithuania.

While Bush has been supportive of American policies, his administration's approach to the country has been subject to criticism from some quarters.

The White House said it would not comment on the president's actions in Lithuania, and it did not rule out the possibility of a visit by the president to that country.

For a second straight day, Lithuania's President Vytautas Landsbergis denounced Bush's refusal to encouraging countries to reduce arms sales. Soviet was, the president's term was ending.

The president's stance on Lithuania is controversial, with some viewing it as a step in the right direction, while others see it as a continuation of previous policies.

Landsbergis, who was elected in 1988, has been a vocal critic of the Soviet Union, and has been involved in several efforts to improve relations between the two nations.

He suggested slowdowns in the president's term were ending.

The president's actions in Lithuania are likely to be watched closely by other nations in the region, as they seek to determine the direction the president's administration will take on future foreign policy issues.

IN THE Mix, especially in Calgary, the 1987 World series was a battle of two配置s, Lombardo, the pitcher, and Tagliabue, the advisor. Because Versace was a Florida native, Tagliabue called steroids a competitive advantage. Lombardo argued that the use of anabolic steroids was rampant in the league and that it was a problem. Lombardo said, "Steroids are a reality in the league."

NEW YORK (AP) — Mike Comisar, a local football scout, has been a key figure in the Los Angeles Lakers' decision to re-sign Jeff George. The 33-year-old quarterback, who was cut by the Lakers earlier this month, has agreed to a $15 million contract.

Comisar said that Riley is not a natural leader and that he is not sure if Riley can handle the media and the pressure of being a head coach.

"Riley is a good player, but he's not a good leader," Comisar said. "He's not a natural leader and he's not sure if he can handle the media and the pressure of being a head coach."
Iowa playwright’s ‘Conspiracy’ depicts truth-seeking reporter in societal battle

Jacqueline Contrera

T he evening Iowa Playwrights Forum’s season opener, "The Big Conspi­ racy," by Iowa City-based playwright Daniel Geller, begins in the middle of the action. Director Mark Johnson, an independent filmmaker with a background in theater, had not seen the play before beginning rehearsals. "I think that’s the beauty of it," he said. "It’s not a novel or a movie, or a short story. It’s a play, and you have to understand the characters and the setting from the beginning.

Iowa City-based Daniel Geller, a 20-year-old playwright, has created a play that's both political and personal. "The Big Conspiracy" is a story about a young journalist who travels to Europe to investigate a mysterious event that could have global implications.

Geller, who is also a film student at the University of Iowa, said he was inspired by the recent news about the Panama Papers and the tax havens revelation.

"There's a lot of information that's not being shared with the public," Geller said. "And I think that's what makes this play so interesting."

Johnson, who directed the production, said he was pleased with the way the cast brought the story to life.

"It's a challenging role for the actors, but they all did a great job," he said. "I think they really captured the essence of the characters and the setting."
