UI professors deny sexual relationship in final testimony

By Diana Wallace
The Daily Iowan

The final day of testimony in the defamation trial of a UI anatomy professor brought denials by both Jean Jew and Terence Williams that they ever maintained a sexual relationship.

Robert Tomanek, a UI anatomy professor who is being sued by Jew for alleged sexual harassment, said during his four hours of testimony Monday that "thinking as a scientist," he never had any "hard proof" that Jew and Williams, also UI anatomy professors, were ever having an affair.

Jew filed lawsuit against Tomanek in October 1985, claiming he sexually harassed her between 1973 and 1985 by spreading rumors throughout the UI anatomy department that she was having an affair with Williams.

These "false and defamatory rumors," the lawsuit contends, prevented Jew from receiving job advancements, including a promotion denial in 1983. It was then that, after fellow anatomy faculty voted against promoting her to full professor, Jew filed a formal grievance with the UI.

The main players in the trial — Tomanek, Jew and Williams — all took the witness stand Monday to complete the submission of evidence for the case.

Tomanek testified that he had overheard or been told, by various faculty members within the department, stories pertaining to Jew and Williams' alleged "affair" — the two been seen together at odd hours, Williams' car was seen at Jew's residence during the night and Jew had been mistaken as being Williams' wife on several occasions.

Furthermore, Tomanek testified that he'd been told about two more incidents — both of which came out during earlier testimony — in which Jew and Williams had been seen together by UI employees in a "compromising position," once in the anatomy library and once in Williams' office.

Williams testified that he had never engaged in sexual or physically intimate contact of any kind with Jew and characterized his relationship with her by saying she was "a very valuable colleague and friend."

Williams said he and his wife had socialized with Jew on several occasions, that he sometimes would "go to Hardee's or someplace like that" with Jew after a collaborative work session in the laboratory, and that Jew had allowed him to store automobiles in her garage on a few occasions.

Although Williams said he became aware after time of the rumors that he and Jew were engaged in a sexual relationship, he never attempted to dispel the rumors by denying them to faculty members or discontinuing his collaborative research with Jew.

"It would be very damaging to the research we were doing together (to discontinue the collaboration)," Williams said. "And I didn't want Dr. Jew to be isolated by these attacks. I felt it was important to continue socializing and working with her."

Williams added, "My mother always said, 'If you've not got something to hide, don't try to hide it.' ... I did not go to Dr. Tomanek and say, 'We did not do these things together.' ... I feared it would go into the corridors and damage Dr. Jew even more."

Under cross examination, Tomanek attempted to respond to earlier testimony by other anatomy department employees who said Tomanek had asked, informed or implied to them, sometime between 1973 and 1986, that Williams and Jew were maintaining a sexual relationship.

Mob attackers sentenced for death of black

Prosecutor labels slayings as 'Neanderthal-type behavior'

NEW YORK (AP) — Two 21-year-old white men on Monday were dealt the longest possible prison terms for the mob-beating and death of a young black man who had come to their neighborhood to buy a car.

Justice Thaddeus Owens handed down the sentences after a prosecutor called the slaying "Neanderthal-type behavior" by the white mob.

The August 23 shooting death of 16-year-old Yusuf Hawkins in Brooklyn's Bensonhurst section inflamed racial passions in the city.

"It's a small joy for myself but a great victory for black people all over the state," Hawkins' father, Moses Stewart, said after the sentences.

Owens sentenced Joseph Fama, named by prosecutors as the triggerman, to 32½ years to life in prison. He was convicted of second-degree murder, riot, unlawful imprisonment, weapons possession and other crimes.

Defense lawyer David DePetris said he would appeal and added that he wasn't surprised.

Earlier, Owens handed Keith Mondello five and one-third to 16 years in prison, plus a $2,000 fine. Mondello, identified as the ringleader, had been acquitted of murder and manslaughter charges, but convicted of riot, unlawful imprisonment and discrimination.

As Owens delivered Fama's sentence in the packed courtroom, Stewart watched intently and said, "Yes!"

Hawkins' mother, Diane Hawkins, put her head on his shoulder and cried as he looked at Fama.

"I'm glad the decision came out like it did ... even though it won't bring my son back," Hawkins said.

While supporters of Hawkins' family applauded, members of Fama's family screamed in Italian and wept.

"Not my son! Not my son!" shouted his mother, Josephine Fama.

A cousin of Fama shouted, "Joey! Joey!" She went toward Hawkins' family but was restrained by her relatives and court officers.

At his sentencing, Mondello declined an offer to address the court.

"Without Mr. Mondello, there would not have been the death of anyone. It was a senseless death," said the judge, of the trial-level state Supreme Court.

Hawkins and three friends had gone to Bensonhurst, a primarily white neighborhood, to look at a used car. A mob of whites, having been warned by Mondello's ex-girlfriend about "outsiders," set upon the black teen-agers.

The judge said that if Mondello had felt threatened, "All he had to do was go home and call the police."

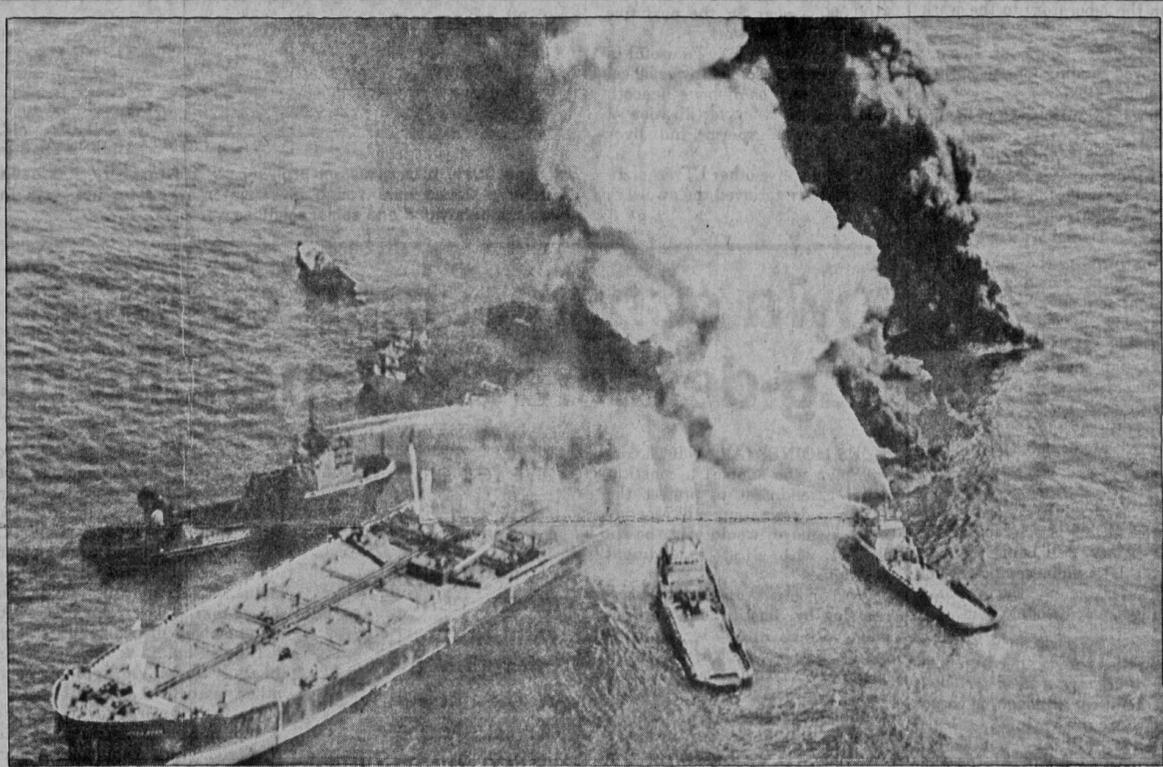

Instead, he said, the gang "pursued Mr. Hawkins. If they had stayed where they were, none of this would have happened."

Paul Burns, arguing for the maximum term, called the killing "a Neanderthal type of behavior."

Defense attorney Stephen Murphy told the judge, "I believe that the law should rise above public opinion."

Later, Murphy said Mondello was "very distraught" over his sentence.

Mayor David Dinkins said: "Now that the criminal justice system has spoken, we all must join our hearts, heads and hands together to rid our city of the racism that destroys lives and communities."

Supreme Court reverses flag-burning law

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court ruled Monday that Congress violated free-speech rights when it outlawed flag burning last year. The decision immediately set off a new political fight over amending the Constitution to protect Old Glory.

Speaking for the 5-4 majority, Justice William Brennan said, "Punishing desecration of the flag dilutes the very freedom that makes this emblem so revered."

President George Bush and Republican congressional leaders urged quick election-year action to overturn the ruling by amending the First Amendment for the first time in its 199-year history.

Bush told reporters he strongly favors changing the Constitution, and that he would "continue to press for what I strongly believe is in the public interest."

House Minority Leader Robert Michel, R-Ill., predicted an amendment would be backed by overwhelming majorities in both houses. "Who wants to be against the flag, mother and apple pie?" he said.

However, Democrats prepared to fight what they saw as a dangerous effort to alter the Bill of Rights.

"I hold no brief for the flag-burners. I condemn their ugly actions unequivocally," said Sen. Edward Kennedy, D-Mass. "But I also reject the suggestion that the only means left for us to honor the flag is to carve a loophole in the First Amendment. We don't need to destroy the First Amendment in order to save the American flag."

A vote in the House could come within two or three weeks, said a spokesman for House Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash. Foley opposes revising the First Amendment but has promised not to block House action on the proposal.

A constitutional amendment requires approval by two-thirds of the members of the House and Senate and then ratification by 38 state legislatures.

The issue is expected to be a hot issue in this fall's congressional and state legislative races.

In the case, Brennan wrote for the court, "We are aware that desecration of the flag is deeply offensive to many."

But, he said, "If there is a bedrock principle underlying the First Amendment, it is that the

Gorbachev, Baltic leaders to meet

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev has agreed to meet with the presidents of the three Baltic republics for the first time since he branded their independence moves unconstitutional, spokesmen said Monday.

Tuesday's scheduled meeting comes after other new contacts between the Kremlin and Lithuania — the Baltic republic that has taken the boldest moves toward independence and has suffered most. Moscow's economic blockade against Lithuania enters its third month next week.

It also comes one week after Gorbachev returned from the United States, where congressional leaders made clear they would hold up approval of a U.S.-Soviet trade deal that Gorbachev wants until the embargo on Lithuania is lifted. The session between Gorbachev and the Baltic presidents could signal a new Kremlin diplomatic initiative to try to break the impasse over the republics' independence campaigns.

Gorbachev has said the republics are free to pursue independence, but insists they do so in accordance with Soviet constitutional guidelines that were set down in April and require a referendum, legislative approval and a wait of up to five years.

Presidents Vytautas Landsbergis of Lithuania, Arnold Ruutel of Estonia and Anatoly Gorbunov of Latvia will meet with Gorbachev, as well as his Federation Council, a new presidential advisory body, according to spokesmen from the three republics.

Also on Tuesday, Lithuanian Prime Minister Kazimiera Prunskiene will meet with Soviet Premier Nikolai Ryzhkov to discuss the economic embargo and her government's halt of the conscription of Lithuanians into the Soviet army, a Lithuanian spokesman said.

Landsbergis and Gorbunov met Monday in the Lithuanian city of Panevezhis to map strategy for the Kremlin session, said Rita Dapkus, a spokeswoman for the Lithuanian parliament, the Supreme Council.

The three presidents formed a united front last month to press their drives to restore the independence they lost 50 years ago when forcibly annexed by Josef Stalin.

Gorbachev later met with Ruutel and Gorbunov, as well as Prunskiene, but he has remained firm that they must either suspend or revoke their declarations of independence.

Although Estonia and Latvia have taken a more cautious path toward secession, Lithuania declared its independence March 11 and immediately began passing laws to back up the declaration. Among those laws was one suspending conscription of Lithuanian youths into the Soviet army.

Demonstrators plan picket of Emma Goldman Clinic

By Roberta Branca
The Daily Iowan

Members of the Dubuque, Iowa, Apostolic Church will picket the Iowa City Emma Goldman Clinic at 227 N. Dubuque Street today at 10 a.m. Spokeswoman Cynthia Schlichting said the demonstration is intended as a peaceful statement.

"We want young people to know that there is an alternative to abortion, and we want people to know that we are not a minority," Schlichting said. "We believe that the majority of people are pro-life, but are not doing anything about it."

The group does not intend to forcibly prevent women from entering the clinic, Schlichting said, but added that it is hard to predict what individual members of the group will do.

"Sometimes the spirit of God comes over you, and you want to throw yourself in front of these women and say 'Please don't kill your baby,'" she said.

The Iowa City Council granted twelve individuals a permit to picket the clinic Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday this week. Schlichting claims the council's permit requirement is a violation of the group's constitutional rights, and that they intend to picket without a permit next week.

"We're just taking it one week at a time. Next week we will picket without a permit to see what happens," she said.

City council holds hearing on rezoning request

By Roberta Branca
The Daily Iowan

A public hearing at tonight's Iowa City Council meeting could shed some light on a developer's request to rezone a parcel of land south of Court Street and east of Scott Boulevard.

The developer, Plum Groves Acres, Inc., is requesting that the 11.3 acre parcel be annexed by the city and rezoned from residential suburban to low-density single-family residential. Rezoning that land, however, would constitute a deviation from the most recent comprehensive plan drawn up by the Iowa City Planning and Zoning Commission last year.

At an informal City Council meeting Monday, members of the commission and city staff presented arguments both for and against approval of Plum Groves' proposal.

City staff members cited three criteria that should be met before any annexation is approved: There must be a net benefit to the city, the proposed construction must not change the character of the area and the increase in residential units must not contribute to overcrowding in local schools.

Because the annexation would lead to increased use of city services without providing adequate tax revenue to counteract costs, the staff said the criteria have not been met and recommended against annexation.

Members of the Planning and Zoning Commission, however, are recommending approval of the proposal on the grounds that the development will provide more lots in the eastern part of the city, an area that is in high demand but where few developers own land.

Research park nears completion

By Jenny Hanna
The Daily Iowan

The UI College of Medicine should be able to move into its new 50,000 square foot research facility at the Oakdale Research Park by the beginning of the fall, developers say.

The building, the first planned as part of the Oakdale project, will provide the college with more laboratory and office space, according to John Eckstein, dean of the College of Medicine.

The research park, located on the northern third of the UI's 500-acre Oakdale campus, is intended to promote both corporate and university research while transferring technology from the laboratory to the workplace.

The state Board of Regents approved funding for the park in December 1988.

The office and laboratory facility, which is privately owned and financed by CPMI-CRE Coralville Venture, composes three-fifths of the area projected for development by CPMI-CRE, says Project Manager, Daniel West.

Two-thirds of the space in the new building, which is located on an eight acre parcel of land in the park, are leased to the UI's College of Medicine.

Eckstein says research will be conducted there by faculty members of both the Department of Pediatrics and the Department of Internal Medicine. They should begin utilizing the new location in the fall.

But he added the college's plans for the facility are temporary. A new facility, still being planned, on the UI's main campus would be preferable to the Oakdale arrangement, Eckstein said.

Land at the park can be leased to corporations and other organizations that have a need for separate facilities. Although no corporations are presently under lease at the building, some are expected to commit shortly, said Bruce Wheaton, director of the Technology Innovation Center on the Oakdale campus.

According to Wheaton, the developers are on schedule and the CPMI-CRE building, by design, can be extended to fit any tenant's demands. Wheaton noted that marketing efforts are targeted at identifying corporations that are interested in locating in the area as well.

UI researcher earns NSF award, grant

The Daily Iowan

The National Science Foundation has chosen a UI College of Medicine researcher to receive its highest honor awarded to young faculty members.

Madeline Shea, a UI assistant professor in biochemistry, is one of 26 researchers nationwide who will receive a Presidential Young Investigator award for her work in biological, behavioral and social sciences.

According to the UI, the awards are intended to attract and retain young scientists who might otherwise be lured away from teaching as a career.

Shea is studying the role of calcium-binding proteins in regulating physical and chemical processes within cells. She will be eligible to receive as much as $100,000 a year for the next five years to fund her work.

Shea's research may be useful in understanding some physiological processes such as diabetes, smooth muscle contraction, fertilization of an egg by a sperm and liver function.

Shea joins five other UI researchers who have received the award in previous years.

Iowa congressmen consider flag-desecration amendment

DES MOINES (AP) — Iowa congressmen who support a constitutional amendment to protect the flag from desecration said Monday such a move would not be in conflict with First Amendment guarantees.

"We're going to protect the American flag by constitutional amendment without in any way infringing on verbal speech," said Republican Sen. Charles Grassley. "We obviously are saying the burning of the flag is not speech."

Republican Rep. Tom Tauke, a candidate for the Senate, characterized a flag-protection amendment as "a clarification of the First Amendment."

But Sen. Tom Harkin, a Democrat, said an amendment is not the way to protect the flag.

"You do not honor the flag by destroying what the flag stands for — those most precious freedoms for which countless Americans have fought and died," Harkin said in a statement from his Washington office.

The Iowans were reacting to a 5-4

"We're going to protect the American flag by constitutional amendment without in any way infringing on verbal speech. We obviously are saying the burning of the flag is not speech."

Sen. Charles Grassley

Supreme Court decision that struck down a federal law that made it a crime to burn, mutilate, deface or trample the flag. The majority of the court held that the Flag Protection Act of 1989 violates freedom of expression guaranteed by the First Amendment of the Constitution.

Harkin said he was disappointed the court struck down the law.

"Personally, as a veteran, I would like to see people who burn our flag punished, and I supported this legislation which made desecration a punishable offense," Harkin said.

Harkin and Tauke are waging a heated campaign against each other for the U.S. Senate.

Tauke and Grassley said they would press for adoption of the flag-protection amendment. Tauke said getting the necessary two-thirds approval in the House and Senate would be difficult.

Grassley initially was a co-sponsor of the federal law. But he later withdrew his backing and voted against it because he did not believe protecting the flag could be accomplished by law.

In addition to the House and Senate tests, a constitutional amendment also would require ratification by 38 state legislatures.

Courts

A Cedar Rapids man was charged Sunday with possession of cocaine with intent to deliver, according to Johnson County District Court records.

The defendant, Michael W. Mitchell, 28, 1317 Oakland Road, Apt. No. 2 NE, was stopped by Iowa City police after a warrant was issued for his arrest from an unrelated incident, records state.

A routine search of the vehicle revealed a black travel bag containing several grams of a powder that tested positive to be cocaine.

Mitchell was also charged with carrying a concealed weapon — a knife with a blade over five inches long. The knife was found in the glove compartment of Mitchell's car, according to the record.

Preliminary hearings for both charges are set for June 28.

An Iowa City man was charged with two counts of forgery, according to court records.

The defendant, William W. Frye Jr., 23, 711 E. Davenport St., reportedly wrote checks in the amount of $40 and $52, made payable to himself, records state.

Frye allegedly forged the checks in the names of two residents of the Systems Unlimited house at 2125 Broadway St. Systems Unlimited houses and cares for people with disabilities.

Frye was employed by Systems Unlimited.

A preliminary hearing in the matter is set for June 19.

An Iowa City woman was charged Friday with fourth-degree theft, according to court records.

The defendant, Christy M. Behrens, 22, 825 Oakcrest St. No. 7, reportedly stole articles of clothing from both Vanity and Younkers in the Old Capitol Center, according to court records.

A preliminary hearing in the matter is set for June 19.

Gallon by gallon, these guys scoop their way to fame Ice cream's a living for them

By Ami Shaw
The Daily Iowan

There's just something about ice cream, and Iowa City entrepreneurs Paul Heyn and Larry McClure have a pretty good idea what that something is.

Heyn, 22, and McClure, 24, are co-owners of Dane's Ice Cream Store No. 2, 811 First Ave., and are well on their way to making their homemade ice cream an Iowa institution.

The ice cream, which is made five gallons at a time in a small freezer located at the back of their store, has begun to appear on store shelves in places from Econofoods, 987 Broadway St., to the Melrose market, 1006 Melrose Ave. It is

"We want people to know who is responsible for all of this. Paul and I do everything. We make the ice cream, we market the ice cream, we man the store, we handle the advertising."

Larry McClure
Dane's Ice Cream Store No. 2

Served with pizza at Legends and Classics of Lone Tree, and alongside souvenirs at Sugar Plum in West Branch.

Heyn and McClure purchased Dane's No. 2 from John and Allie Dane last September. Heyn had worked for the Danes for several years, first at Dane's Dairy No. 1, 360 Willow Creek Drive, which the Danes still own, and later as the manager of Dane's No. 2. McClure joined him in the fall of 1988, and the two became the store's principal ice-cream makers.

In 1989, when the Danes decided to sell store No. 2, Heyn approached McClure with an idea. "I didn't know what to think," McClure said. "I was kind of speechless." McClure said he would sleep on it, but 20 minutes later had made up his mind: They were going into the ice-cream business.

Financing was arranged, and the partners had their store, along with permission to use the name "Dane's" until September, 1991. At that time Dane's No. 2 will become "Heyn's," since Heyn is from Iowa City and his name is better known in this area.

The partners see the name change as their biggest obstacle, "but we want people to know who is responsible for all of this," McClure said. "Paul and I do everything. We make the ice cream, we market the ice cream, we man the store, we handle the advertising."

Letting customers know that only the name will change will be a primary concern, especially where their wholesaling is concerned. "Our regulars come in all the time, and they don't care what the sign outside says; they know that it's Heyn's already," Heyn said. "But people that go shopping don't have anybody there to explain it to them."

But, according to the two ice-cream makers, the market patrons have been gobbling up their contribution to the frozen food section. In addition to the 300 scoops sold each week at their store, Dane's stock on supermarket shelves is rotating about twice a week.

In other words, Dane's No. 2 is holding its own.

"We just want everybody to know who we are. We know our product can take care of itself. We have a good product. We make it, and we're very confident in it," Heyn said.

"Our biggest push is wholesaling.

Among their most popular flavors are S'mores (chocolate ice cream, marshmallows, chocolate chips and graham crackers), and Chocolate Covered Cherries (cherry ice cream, chocolate chips and maraschino cherries).

If you can get the stuff on the shelf and get more people to buy and recognize your product, it makes your store busier," Heyn said. Eight flavors of Dane's ice cream are now available at six stores in Iowa City, and the partners are working to raise that number. "But we don't want to go too fast," Heyn said. "We want to be able to control what we do."

Among their most popular flavors are S'mores (chocolate ice cream, marshmallows, chocolate chips and graham crackers), and Chocolate Covered Cherries (cherry ice cream, chocolate chips and maraschino cherries). They also make their own version of Pralines and Cream. Instead of a caramel ribbon, the ice cream itself is flavored caramel, with candy-coated nuts mixed in. It looks a little different, but, Heyn said, "I give (people) a taste, and they say, 'Oh, you gotta be kidding!'"

The store features 26 flavors of hard ice cream, plus soft-serve ice cream and yogurt, and four flavors of hard yogurt, which is available nowhere else in Iowa City. There's even a weekend sundae bar: $1.75 on Friday or Saturday, or $1.50 on Sunday buys a pint of ice cream and unlimited trips to a bar with more than 20 different toppings from the ordinary to the exotic.

"It's just a fun place. I've never had so much fun working," Heyn said.

UI Press rejects fed money

Zimmer won't take any until law is dropped

By John Kenyon
The Daily Iowan

The UI Press rejected a $12,000 grant from the National Endowment for the Arts last week in protest of anti-obscenity legislation recently passed by Congress.

The funding would have helped meet the production costs of the Iowa Short Fiction Awards. According to Paul Zimmer, UI Press director, the costs will be met through other means.

"Supportive private parties have donated funds to help make up some of the difference," Zimmer said.

A grant from the NEA is not a common occurrence for the UI Press, which has received five over the last six years according to Zimmer. "This was the fifth, and the first accompanied by these Congressional restrictions," Zimmer said.

The legislation in question was passed following the controversy surrounding NEA funding for an exhibit of Robert Mapplethorpe photos. The photos, some of which depicted homo-erotic acts, were deemed offensively obscene. The legislation prohibits NEA grant recipients from producing works that are obscene or deemed to be of no artistic value.

The existence of this law may affect the UI's acceptance of similar grants in the future. "Before we will apply for another NEA grant, I must be assured that restrictions like those currently enforced no longer exist," said Zimmer.

The decision to deny the money was Zimmer's, but he said he "touched base" with other UI administrators.

According to Ann Rhodes, vice president of UI Financial Affairs, the UI Administration supports the decision. "The administration completely understands and shares the concerns of Mr. Zimmer," Rhodes said.

The UI Press publishes scholarly works.

UI Museum of Art examines Japan

Ceramics, kabuki costumes, screens, workshops featured

By Henry Olson
The Daily Iowan

In conjunction with the 1990 Iowa Festival, the UI Museum of Art is sponsoring two exhibits of Japanese culture, accompanied by a series of workshops and lectures.

"Traditional Japanese Ceramics," at the museum through June 24, features 66 works of contemporary Japanese pottery. The exhibit's Iowa City stop is the first destination on its tour of the Western hemisphere.

Jane Ju, coordinator of the Japanese exhibits, says that there are three main components of Japanese pottery. "The first component is the traditional, which is originally Chinese. It is more polished than the indigenously Japanese folk element, which concerns itself with daily wares. Contemporary pottery uses both of these traditions to create the relatively new decorative style."

The exhibit focuses on the works of younger artists. However, it also contains the pottery of several master craftsmen whom the Japanese government has declared "living national treasures."

Until recently, Japanese pottery was designed mostly for utilitarian purposes. The popularity Japanese pottery gained in the West gave artisans a chance to change their identities from "craftsman potters" to modern artists. Incorporating Western styles such as art deco, the potters have tried to attain a balance between function and decoration.

"Japanese Pastimes," running from June 6 to September 16, features 25 pieces centering around Japanese theater. Drawn from regional collections, the exhibit displays prints, Kabuki costumes and screens.

Because of the Grand Kabuki Theatre production coming to Hancher Auditorium on June 19 and 20, the exhibit focuses mostly on the art stemming from Kabuki theater. "We wanted to do a series of exhibits on Japanese life during the Edo Period, but decided to focus on the art of the theater because of the upcoming production," Ju says.

Perhaps the highlight of the exhibition is a screen that depicts scenes of both Kioto and Kabuki plays.

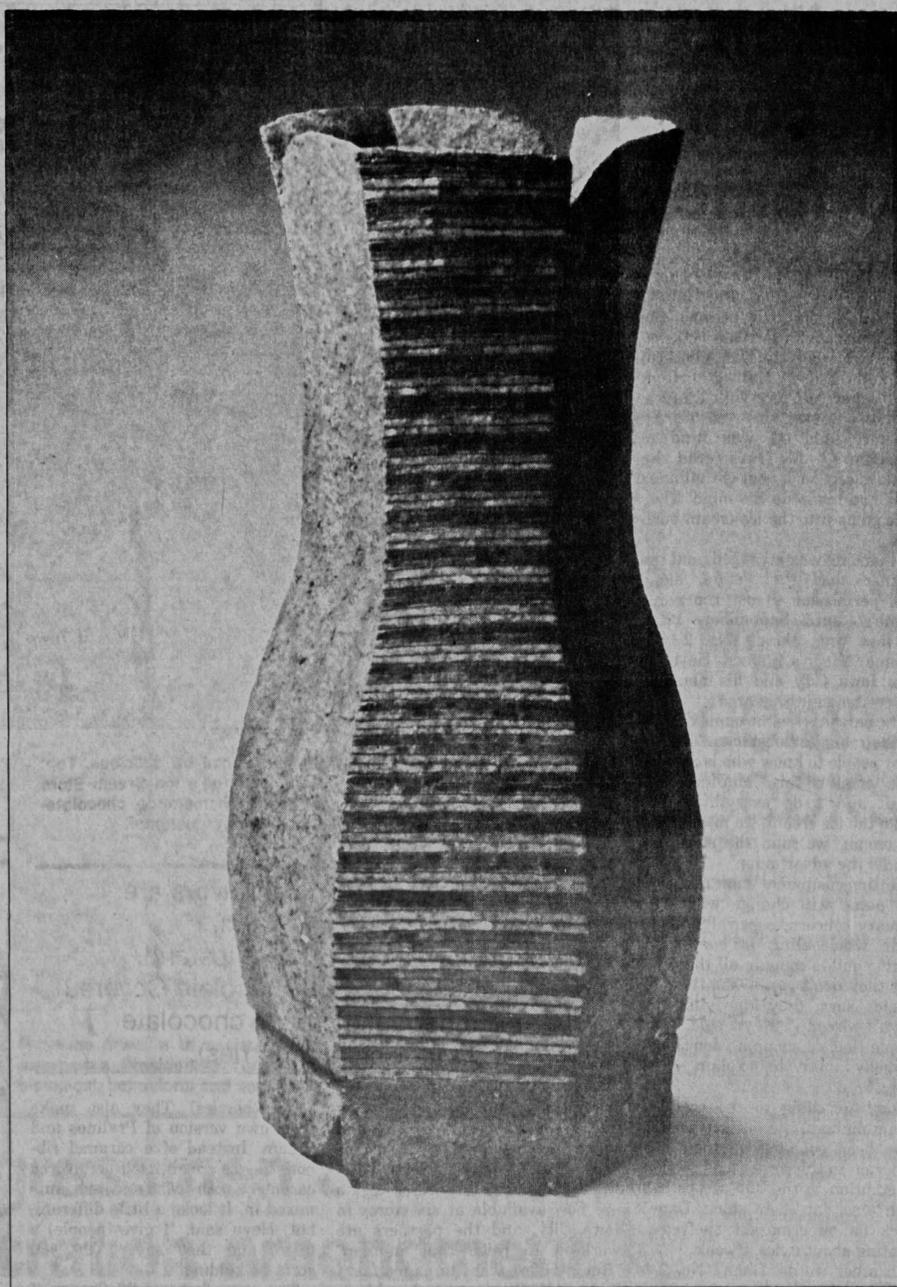

In addition, the Museum is sponsoring a series of workshops on Japanese culture:

"Come Fly a Fish!," June 14, from 1-3 p.m. is a chance for Iowa City tots in grades 4-7 to celebrate Japanese Children's Day and to make brightly colored fish kites.

Sunday, June 17, from 2-5 p.m., the museum will feature traditional Japanese family activities. The afternoon will include a concert featuring two pieces by the Chusei Koto Society.

In addition, Noriko Tarumi, who studied flower arrangement in Japan, will present a "Japanese Flower Arrangement" at 10:30 a.m. June 9. Finally, Robert Rorex, UI professor of Asian art history, will speak on "Japanese Genre Screens" June 24 at 2 p.m.

Flower jar (ceramic) by Shoji Kamoda, part of the UI Museum of Art's traditional Japanese ceramics exhibit, is on display through June 24. The exhibit is in conjunction with the Iowa Festival.

Film staid but offers diversion

By Steve Cruse
The Daily Iowan

The name of Arnold Schwarzenegger's character in "Total Recall" is Doug Quaid, but for the sake of convenience I'll refer to him as Arnold. It'll just make things easier, since Schwarzenegger's characters never change much from movie to movie, and so a generic moniker seems appropriate ("Conan" might work too).

"Total Recall" is a pretty hip title for a movie which, ultimately, is a rather staid and old-fashioned piece of action-mongering. That's not to say it's dull: Everything is wonderfully choreographed, with blood and bodies flying in all directions (one of the coolest scenes features a bullet-riddled corpse used by the protagonist as a shield); on the surface, it's just one bitchin' shootout after another.

Movies

The film is set during the space-age future, when travel between planets is discussed as glibly as a trip to the supermarket. Schwarzenegger's character, a mine worker on Earth, is having disturbing dreams about Mars — a planet that he supposedly has never visited. In spite of his wife's reassurances, he can't shake the hellish red planet images.

To attack his predicament, Arnold submits to a psychological experiment that supposedly will re-create his memories of Mars. The result of this technological mind probe is the revelation that Arnold isn't really who he thinks he is, and in fact has had his entire memory erased — for sinister purposes, of course — by the bureaucrats (a.k.a. The Agency) who rule Mars.

The result is a major identity crisis — one that he has to suffer a few more times before the movie's over. He learns, for example, that his wife isn't really his wife but a fake stand-in recruited by The Agency. From that point, the film is off to the races as Arnold, packing numerous deadly weapons, flies to Mars seeking justice, revenge, true love, etc.

The movie's freakish pop Freudianism creates a subtext reminiscent of "The Manchurian Candidate," to which "Total Recall" owes its sense of psychological paranoia. (In fact, there's one scene that's practically a direct lift from that film — an out-of-the-blue domestic karate fight between Arnold and his phony wife, featuring some of the best flesh-punching sound effects in recent memory.)

After a while, though, the psychic plot twists start seeming too glib and easy. By the second or third time we learn that Arnold isn't really who he (and he) think he is, it feels as though the filmmakers are just stringing us along. This is the kind of plot that's supposed to lure people back a second and third time to try to "figure out what happened," but one wonders whether even the screenwriter really knows.

(I was somewhat disappointed, though, that Arnold's main love interest wasn't revealed to be a turncoat as well — it would have given the entire movie a truly scary existential edge.)

As is usually the case in this type of movie, all of the non-stop action has a dulling effect — the endless chase sequences and the climactic fire-and-smoke scene in the Martian mountains (on which director Paul Verhoeven pulls out all the special-effects stops) actually pale next to the husband-wife karate face-off earlier in the movie.

None of the violence is particularly frightening, either; even when the camera lingers on someone's death throes, it's too cartoonish to elicit any kind of emotional response.

But none of this spoils the overall effect. "Total Recall" is a well-made summer diversion, nothing more; it's such blatant Product that I didn't even mind the egregious corporate ads that kept popping up in the background (Pepsi, ESPN, The Sharper Image, USA Today, et al.).

Probably the most telling moment, in fact, came during the minutes before the movie started, when a Bart Simpson wanna-be down in the front row kept yelling something along the lines of: "Do you recall the name of this movie? I don't totally recall the name of this movie."

Well, yes, I still recall it... and probably will for at least a few more months.

Nathan Bell and Susan Shore will be performing June 13 at the Carver Garden Courtyard in the UI Hospitals and Clinics. The performance is part of Folk Fest VII, which runs until June 22.

Project Art presents folk arts fest

By Jacqueline Comito
The Daily Iowan

Project Art presents its seventh annual summer festival of folk arts June 11-22 at the garden courtyard of the UI Hospitals and Clinics. This year's Folk Fest includes American, Czechoslovakian and Irish art performances.

According to project coordinator Kathleen McCright, the festival is a unique sort of benefit for patients, visitors and staff of the UI Hospitals and Clinics. Folk Fest gives them needed time to relax and temporarily forget the pressures of their work or medical problems.

"We always have a full patio audience. It's a wonderful break for everyone here," McCright said.

Project Art's first Folk Fest in 1984 consisted mainly of bluegrass music. Since then, they have added different types of folk music and art.

"Folk music has a wide audience appeal," McCright says. "Iowa is filled with quality folk performers."

The duo of Nathan Bell and Susan

Shore is representative of this pool of Iowa talent. On Wednesday, June 13, at 7 p.m., they return to Folk Fest with their unique combination of rock, country, folk and bluegrass. Based in eastern Iowa, the group has performed across the United States and Canada to an ever-growing coterie of fans.

Shore describes their music as "new country." She said, "When you look at what's happening in Nashville, you see some of the performers making a move away from a traditional country sound and lyrics. The songs reflect more contemporary themes. We fit in that new mold, drawing from many different styles — especially rock."

Bell writes most of the duo's music. His lyrics capture the fabric of today's society — Vietnam vets, wife abuse, dissolution of relationships, alcoholism and alimony. The Wednesday evening concert features songs from their two albums, "Little Movies" and "L-Ranko Motel."

Another highlight of the festival is a puppet theater workshop held by Monica Leo of Eulenspiegel Puppet Theatre and musician J. Knight. The workshop, offered for pediatric patients, is on Thursday, June 14, at 2 p.m. After building their own shadow puppets, the patients will rehearse and perform a show.

The puppets, according to Leo, will be designed to illustrate Knight's "Duck Song" and the traditional "There Was An Old Woman Who Swallowed A Fly." The evening performance features the music of Knight.

This is the first year Leo has offered the workshop. McCright says it will be a challenge because of the different age groups and abilities of the patients, but they look forward to seeing the results of their efforts.

Today at 12:15 p.m., Mary Hudecek, 1989 winner of the first Iowa Cultural Heritage Fellowship, will demonstrate the art of Czechoslovakian Hardanger embroidery. Other artists in the Folk Fest are Mike Haverkamp, Lorkovic and Larson, Ankrum, Collins and Cole, Mullane School of Irish Step Dancing, CeMar Cloggers and Cedar Creek Band.

For reserved group seating or more information on Folk Fest, call Project Art at 353-6417. Admission to Folk Fest VII is free and open to the public.

Grateful Dead guitarist works and plays in Hawaii

HONOLULU (AP) — It's a different kind of reefer madness these days for Jerry Garcia. The man they used to call Captain Trips has become Captain Cousteau.

The unassuming singer and guitar wizard of the Grateful Dead, whose music sprouted from the "Acid Test" LSD parties of the 1960s and remains an enduring legacy of the psychedelic era, now gets his kicks underwater.

"I like the water. I like the way it feels. I like slipping around in it," Garcia said. "I feel like a fish. It's sort of like having an infinite aquarium to swim around in."

Garcia is on a "working vacation" in Hawaii that includes two concerts with his Jerry Garcia Electric Band and as much scuba diving as possible. His first show on May 19 at Waikiki Shell was Garcia's first Hawaii performance since 1970, when the Dead last played Honolulu.

The second concert May 20 at Hilo Civic Center was a benefit for The Ocean Recreation Council of Hawaii. TORCH is trying to preserve Hawaii's coral reef by placing anchor mooring pins in ocean waters. The moorings would be used by fishing and tour boats that currently drop anchor into the coral reef and destroy it.

"I've seen what anchors do to coral," Garcia said. "The reef is the bottom of the food chain. It provides food for the fish and so on, and the fish end up on people's plates and so on. If you do away with the coral you're basically thrashing the whole economy of the islands, or at least a large percentage of it."

Garcia also is active in the rain forest movement. The Grateful Dead has raised more than $1 million for environmental groups such as Greenpeace and the Rainforest Action Network.

Garcia, 47, started scuba diving three years ago, shortly after recovering from a 1987 coma caused by untreated diabetes and exhaustion. That illness, which almost killed him, occurred a few months after he stopped using cocaine and heroin.

In more than one way it was a rebirth for the beloved and reluctant figurehead of the Dead Heads subculture that spreads across the globe and numbers in the hundreds of thousands.

Garcia's recovery was followed by the 1987 release of the most successful Grateful Dead album ever, "In the Dark." The current album, "Built to Last," also has gone gold, but never caught on with radio stations and didn't fare as well commercially as "In the Dark."

Not that Garcia cares very much. "We certainly aren't Top 40. That's not what we do; it's not who we are," he said. "Our relationship to Top 40 is pretty remote. It's almost as remote as our relationship to classical music or mainstream

"We certainly aren't Top 40. That's not what we do; it's not who we are. Our relationship to Top 40 is pretty remote. It's almost as remote as our relationship to classical music or mainstream jazz. We're about 90 degrees off of just about everything."

Jerry Garcia

jazz. We're about 90 degrees off of just about everything."

Garcia said the Dead is working on a live album that will feature material performed on tour this spring. It should be out by summer, and the band is planning a series of stadium shows with a European tour — the band's first in a decade — slated for fall.

Also, the band has begun work on releasing vintage concerts from its massive tape vault on compact disc. The first of these should be available by the holidays. The ongoing project should keep the band busy "well past the turn of the millennia," he says.

Despite the success, there's trouble in Grateful Dead land. It's booming more difficult for the band to find places to play, as more and more venues say the problems, real or perceived, associated with the Dead outweigh the big economic boost a series of Dead concerts provides to a community.

As the success of the band increases — 1990 is its 25th anniversary — many people come to concerts without tickets to take part in the "parking lot scene" of hanging out and partying. Sometimes this leads to confrontations with police when ticketless fans try to crash a concert.

There also is the problem of drugs. As the band that made its name at the famous LSD parties thrown by Ken Kesey and his Merry Pranksters, the Dead and its fans always have been associated with mind-expanding substances. While the band frowns upon drug use now, there still are significant numbers of fans who don't.

The band and most of the Dead Heads are making a very conscious effort to minimize their presence, cutting down on outside vending, camping and working to keep concert areas clean and positive.

"The audience has been behaving so well lately," Garcia said. "We've been communicating with them what it is we have to deal with."

Farmers plant soybeans and corn after rain delays process

DES MOINES (AP) — Farmers finally completed rain-delayed corn planting last week and turned their attention to getting soybeans in the ground, according to the Iowa Agricultural Statistics report.

Still, both crops are behind the norm for this time of year, with farmers completing their first cultivating run on only 15 percent of the acreage compared with the 27 percent.

Ernest Stadlman, executive director of the Iowa Corn Promotion Board, said most farmers are happy to have the moisture and are willing to put up with planting delays.

"I'd rather be a week to 10 days behind and have extra moisture than have the crop in the ground suffering from poor emergence and dry conditions," Stadlman said.

"It's unfortunate that there have been delays and we know some farmers will suffer reduced yields as a result. But cooperative weather the rest of the growing season will help to compensate," he said.

He said many farmers are planting earlier-maturing varieties to compensate for the delays, thus avoiding dangers of an early frost.

"The majority of the crop is probably safe from an early freeze, although there is a threat for any crop that was delayed more than two or three weeks," Stadlman said.

The Agriculture Statistics report, compiled by the Iowa and United States Departments of Agriculture and the National Weather Service, shows that 99 percent of intended corn acreage is planted, compared with 94 percent last week.

Usually at this time of year, 99 percent of the crop would have been planted by last week but farmers have been kept out of their fields because of unusually heavy rains. State Climatologist Harry Hillaker said the state received an average of 14 inches of rain for the year as of last Friday — double the amount received last year.

Plants have emerged on 90 percent of the corn acreage, compared with last year when all of the seeds had germinated at the normal rate of 98 percent. The reporting service rated the crop as six percent excellent, 41 percent good, 46 percent fair and seven percent poor. Three percent of the acreage has been or will be replanted due to washouts.

The soybean crop is lagging as well, although progress was rapid last week.

A week ago, only 65 percent of the soybean crop had been planted, but by Saturday, 90 percent of the intended acreage was in the ground, according to the service. Last year, the entire crop was planted and the normal rate is 97 percent.

relationship.

Tomanek did concede that he had discussed Jew's relationship with Williams among faculty and students in the department, but that it was within the context of the favoritism and cronyism he felt had accompanied Williams' tenure as department head.

Williams served as chairman of the anatomy department from 1973 to 1983. In August of that year, according to earlier testimony from Richard Remington, Williams was asked to resign from the position, partially because of the political climate and tension in the department. Remington was then the UI vice president for academic affairs.

Tomanek said he mentioned Jew in conversations with colleagues as an example of someone he believed was getting favored treatment from Williams. He said that whether Jew's relationship with Williams was sexual was a secondary matter.

Tomanek said he felt Williams showed favoritism — involving matters of salaries, promotions and the allocation of laboratory space and equipment — to those faculty members Williams had recruited from Tulane University in New Orleans.

Prior to taking his position at the UI, Williams worked in the anatomy department at Tulane, where he met and employed Jew in his laboratory. When he came to Iowa City in 1973 to head the UI's anatomy department, he recruited Jew, as well as other Tulane colleagues, to join him at the UI.

"I did not go to Dr. Tomanek and say, 'We did not do these things together.' . . . I feared it would go into the corridors and probably damage Dr. Jew even more."

Terence Williams
UI anatomy professor

"A number of us saw Williams tended to be more supportive of those (faculty) he brought from Tulane," Tomanek said. "I became concerned that polarization was going to develop within the faculty, and then it did."

For example, Tomanek said on some occasions equipment would "disappear," and later turn up in Williams' laboratory, which Jew also used.

Furthermore, several different grievances concerning promotions and salary raises were filed with the UI during Williams' tenure as department head, including one by Tomanek himself, and another by former UI Anatomy Professor Asa Black, which became a lawsuit that went to the Iowa Supreme Court in 1985.

Tomanek said the department became a "double-tiered faculty of the people (Williams) liked, the people who were totally open to whatever he wanted to do . . . and the others, who voiced reservations."

Another student Williams recruited from Tulane in 1973 also testified Monday.

Joan King-Tobet, whose testimony was presented to the jury via a pre-recorded videotape, agreed that the anatomy faculty was beginning to polarize into "pro-Williams and anti-Williams camps" during her year at the UI. The polarization, she said, was among the reasons she chose to leave the UI after one year.

King-Tobet, who is now an associate anatomy professor at Tufts University in Boston, also testified that during her work with Jew and Williams both at Tulane and the UI, she never witnessed any behavior between Jew and Williams that led her to believe their relationship was anything other than professional.

Other testimony Monday came from Paul Reimann, a program associate in anatomy, who testified that he vacationed in Florida with Jew, Williams and other faculty in 1978.

He said Jew and Williams didn't share a hotel room during that trip, nor did he ever believe the two were having a sexual relationship.

Deliberations among the jury — made up of seven women and one man — are expected to begin today, after the lawyers for Tomanek and Jew give their closing arguments.

government may not prohibit the expression of an idea simply because society finds the idea itself offensive or disagreeable."

Justice John Paul Stevens said in a dissenting opinion that the government has a legitimate interest in banning flag burning.

"The flag uniquely symbolizes the ideas of liberty, equality and tolerance — ideas that Americans have passionately defended and debated throughout our history," he said. "The flag embodies the spirit of our national commitment to those ideals."

But Stevens also criticized unnamed political leaders who he said urge allegiance to the flag for partisan gain.

"The integrity of the symbol has been compromised by those leaders who seem to advocate compulsory worship of the flag even by individuals whom it offends, or who seem to manipulate the symbol of national purpose into a pretext for partisan disputes about meaner ends," he said.

Brennan was joined by Justices Thurgood Marshall, Harry Blackmun, Antonin Scalia and Anthony Kennedy. Siding with Stevens to allow a ban on flag burning were Chief Justice William Rehnquist and Justices Byron White and Sandra Day O'Connor.

The vote split was identical a year ago when the court struck down a similar Texas law against flag desecration.

The 1989 decision touched off a political firestorm that led to the federal law invalidated Monday. Democrats in Congress, hoping to head off a constitutional amendment and neutralize Republican use of the flag issue, sponsored the legislation.

Bush, who emphasized patriotic values in his 1988 campaign against Democratic Gov. Michael Dukakis of Massachusetts, allowed the bill to become law without his signature. He said he preferred a constitutional amendment.

Protesters who burned the flag in Seattle and in Washington, D.C., in defiance of the law were jubilant Monday.

U.S. to aid China with drug rehab

BEIJING (AP) — An American drug rehabilitation center has agreed to help the government tackle China's growing problem with drug addiction, the head of the U.S. program said Monday. Monsignor William O'Brien said his New York-based Daytop Village would collaborate in a drug treatment center in Kunming, capital of Yunnan province in southwestern China. Yunnan borders Burma and Laos and has long been a favorite route for heroin and opium smugglers from the so-called Golden Triangle, the lawless border areas of those Southeast Asian nations and Thailand. The Beijing government, which until recently denied the existence of drug addiction in China, now acknowledges that narcotics abuse is common in rural Yunnan and that 70 percent of the province's crime is drug-related. The government also revealed late last year that 146 AIDS-infected intravenous drug users were discovered in a remote village on Yunnan's border with Burma. Previously, only seven Chinese nationals had been recognized as carriers of the AIDS virus. Under the agreement, Daytop Village will help set up a 30-bed "therapeutic community," based on the organization's principles that former addicts should help others kick the habit in a drug-free, family, work-oriented environment.

Barry to abandon re-election bid

WASHINGTON (AP) — Marion Barry has made a firm decision to abandon his re-election plans but has put off an announcement for several days in an angry reaction to pressure from Jesse Jackson and others, sources close to the mayor said Monday. Barry had planned to make his decision public Monday night in hopes of restarting stalled plea bargain talks as jury selection continued in his drug possession and perjury trial, the sources said. However, a scheduled interview on a local television program was canceled, Barry press spokeswoman Cheryl Crowell said. More meetings with campaign officials are in the planning stages, but the mayor is now expected to announce his decision later this week, one Barry aide said. The embattled mayor met with about a dozen top advisers and fund-raisers Sunday night to discuss his political future. The aide, who attended the meeting and described it only on condition of anonymity, said Barry was clear in telling the group he would not seek a fourth term. "He was resolute, as firm as he could be," said the aide. "With him, he can always change his mind, but he's pretty far down the road." Barry is delaying making the announcement because of pressure from Jackson, from District Delegate Walter Fauntroy — who is a candidate to succeed Barry as Mayor — and from others who have urged him publicly to drop out of the race, the sources said.

19 million jobs expected in Calif.

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of every six jobs created through the turn of the century is expected to be in California, reflecting the continued shift of economic activity to the Sun Belt, the government said Monday. "California is projected to gain 3.4 million of the 18.9 million new jobs created nationally" from 1988 to 2000, said the forecast by the Commerce Department's Bureau of Economic Analysis. That would give the state 19 million jobs. "Florida and Texas are projected to have increases of more than 1 million jobs each," to 8 million and 9.7 million respectively, the department said. National employment opportunities are expected to rise 14.3 percent to 151.5 million jobs. The study projected that the fastest job growth will be in Nevada, up 31.5 percent to 847,000, and Arizona, up 26.7 percent to 2.3 million. Those two states also should show the fastest growth rates in total personal income and population, the department said. "The projected growth in Nevada and Arizona reflects rapid population growth and strength in their economies, in part due to the continued shift in economic activity toward the Sun Belt," the study said. "Florida, Utah, California and Hawaii also are projected to show rapid growth."

U.S. dissatisfied with PLO reproach of attacks

BAGHDAD, Iraq (AP) — The Palestine Liberation Organization, in a bid to salvage its dialogue with the United States, on Monday condemned attacks on civilians. But it did not specifically denounce a guerrilla raid on an Israeli beach. Washington criticized the PLO for failing to explicitly condemn the raid, implying that the statement failed to meet U.S. anti-terrorism conditions. However, the PLO news agency Wafa reported that another U.S.-PLO meeting took place Monday in Tunisia. The United States has threatened to cut off its 18-month-old dialogue with the PLO over its refusal to condemn the foiled May 30 attack by a PLO faction. PLO Chief Yasser Arafat has disassociated the organization from the raid but has not personally condemned it. "The PLO position remains unchanged. We are against any military action that targets civilians, whatever form it may take," said Monday's PLO statement, issued by a representative in Baghdad and distributed by the official Palestinian news agency Wafa. The statement made no direct reference to the Tel Aviv beach attack, carried out by 16 guerrillas of the Palestine Liberation Front, one of the nine factions under the PLO umbrella. Four of the guerrillas were killed in a shootout with Israeli troops and 12 were arrested. There were no casualties among the Israelis. In Washington, State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said the United States was pleased with the disavowal of attacks on civilians but expressed displeasure that it did not condemn the beach raid. She said there was no question that the PLO knew what it should do to meet U.S. conditions. "There is not much doubt," the spokeswoman said. Tutwiler said the Bush administration had not decided whether it would suspend its dialogue with the PLO. "We've never put a time frame on it," she said. Over the weekend, Robert Pelletreau Jr., the U.S. ambassador to Tunisia and the sole American diplomat in direct touch with the PLO, met with PLO officials. White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said the fourth such meeting since guerrillas tried to storm the Tel Aviv beach. The PLO news agency reported that Pelletreau met with PLO representative Hakam Balaoui in Tunis. It said the two talked about "moves to achieve peace in the Middle East" but did not say whether the latest PLO statement was discussed. The statement was distributed by Wafa in the Iraqi capital and Tunis.

Liberian peace talks delayed

MONROVIA, Liberia (AP) — Peace talks between government officials and rebels who control most of the country were delayed Monday, and rebel officials said they could not get their representatives to the site. Meanwhile, authorities arrested three military officers in a dozen grisly murders in the Liberian capital. The peace talks were to have begun Monday at a U.S. Embassy facility in Freetown. Delegations from the government and Liberian Council of Churches — which is mediating the conflict between the forces of President Samuel Doe and Charles Taylor's insurgent National Patriotic Front — arrived in Sierra Leone Monday. But rebel sources in Abidjan, Ivory Coast, said their delegation had to travel more than 600 miles overland — some of the route on unpaved roads — to reach Abidjan and make flight connections to Freetown. The sources also said the rebels sought assurances that any flight would be safe while flying over Liberia. Even before the talks began, they threatened to stall over the rebel demand that Doe step down.

Poll shows Americans favor state support of environment

NEW YORK (AP)—Four in five Americans say pollution threatens the quality of their lives, and most favor a tough counteroffensive that would outlaw disposable diapers and cancer-causing pesticides, a poll has found.

Respondents to the national Media General-Associated Press survey favored an array of tough new restrictions, including bans on plastic fast-food containers and excessive packaging of consumer products.

Of those who live in neighborhoods where recycling is not mandatory, nine in 10 said they would support such a rule. And nearly seven in 10 supported creation of an elected statewide post to enforce environmental law.

The notion of a state environmental sheriff will come before California voters in November in a referendum dubbed "Big Green." Other steps in that measure also won wide backing in the national MG-AP survey.

For example, the California act would ban 19 widely used pesticides that cause cancer in laboratory animals; such a move was favored by 70 percent in the survey, "even if the risk to humans is very slight."

"Big Green" calls for a fee on oil shipping to fund spill prevention and cleanup; in the poll 80 percent supported such an effort, even if it raised oil prices. A separate proposal in California would restrict woodcutting in old forests; in the poll, 61 percent backed a ban on such timbering.

Overall, the survey found a continuing high level of concern about the environment. Three in four respondents said anti-pollution laws are too weak, and about as many gave local, state and federal government negative marks for protecting the environment.

Those numbers were essentially unchanged from a poll a year ago that asked the same questions. The new survey, conducted by telephone May 11-20 among a random sample of 1,143 adults, had a 3-point margin of error.

Strong support also continued for air pollution measures that have been suggested in California, including strict emission controls on power plants and bans on household aerosol products, charcoal lighter fluid and non-radial tires, which release rubber into the air.

Oil spill delays tanker cleanup

GALVESTON, Texas (AP)—A burning supertanker with 38 million gallons of oil stabilized Monday in the Gulf of Mexico, but a new release of oil delayed plans to smother the blaze with foam, the Coast Guard said.

A flotilla of six fireboats shot 14 streams of water on the Mega Borg, crippled since the first of a series of explosions jolted the engine room early Saturday 57 miles southeast of Galveston. Two of the 41 crewmen died, two were missing and presumed dead and 17 were injured, none seriously.

The foaming, planned to begin Monday morning, was hampered by the new release of an undetermined amount of oil from the 853-foot tanker.

The oil was flaring and occasionally shooting new balls of flame out the left side of the pumphouse, forcing fireboats to back off.

At midday, a pool of oil about 500 feet long was burning on the surface of the water trailing from the ship. Farther away, several boats with booms extending from their decks tried to collect some of the rusty brown oil off the water.

The Coast Guard said Monday there was a slick about one mile long north of the ship and one about 15 miles long to the south. A sheen on the water around the ship appeared to be covering an area about 5 by 7 miles Monday afternoon.

The spills were estimated to contain 10,000 to 100,000 gallons, according to Officer Mark Sedwick. A plane dropped 4,000 gallons of oil dispersant on one of the slicks late Sunday and it appeared to be working, Sedwick said. The larger slick had shrunk early Monday to 15 miles long from 21 miles, Coast Guard officials said.

The firefighting operation appeared to be having some effect, with the black smoke at times changing to white and gray.

"As the fire goes down, they'll put teams on board to fight it," said Chief Petty Officer Rich Muller. "They'll work step by step until the fire is out. They attack it from the edges and then move in."

Calm seas and good weather aided firefighters, he said.

"They expect to have something positive within an hour after the foaming starts, and about four to six hours after that, they'll have pretty good control if it's successful," said Coast Guard Capt. Tom Greene.

Coast Guard Rear Adm. William Merlin told reporters the Mega Borg, whose rear deck was just 5 feet above the water, was in a stable position in the Gulf. "There is no danger, in our view, of the vessel sinking," Merlin said.

Earlier, officials had expressed concern that the intense heat of the fire could cause the vessel to warp, break apart and sink.

By Sunday, the superstructure at the rear of the tanker and the stack over the engine room had buckled in the heat. By midday Monday, the superstructure was obscured by thick clouds of black smoke and flames.

The rear of the tanker has dropped 58 feet since the first explosion, indicating that either the cargo shifted or the ship was taking on water, officials said.

Poindexter given 6-month prison term

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former National Security Adviser John Poindexter was sentenced Monday to six months in prison, becoming the first Iran-Contra figure to draw a prison term. The judge said a lighter sentence would send the message that lying to Congress was "of no great moment."

U.S. District Judge Harold Greene, delivering a stern lecture along with the sentence, said Poindexter violated "a principle fundamental to this constitutional republic — that those elected by and responsible to the people shall make the important policy decisions."

"Their decisions may not be nullified by appointed officials who happen to be in positions that give them the ability to operate programs prohibited by law," the judge said.

He said Poindexter showed "no evidence of recognizing that principle and the seriousness of its violation."

Greene allowed Poindexter to remain free while he appeals five felony convictions of conspiracy, making false statements and obstruction.

And the judge did not impose a fine, noting that Poindexter had already incurred huge legal bills.

However, Greene said that allowing Poindexter to get off without a prison term "would be tantamount to a statement that to lie to and obstruct Congress was of no great moment."

"The Congress can't fulfill its constitutional duties if it is obstructed by high-ranking officials," the judge said.

Poindexter, 53, who served as President Ronald Reagan's national security adviser from late

The Associated Press

Former National Security Adviser John Poindexter and his wife depart U.S. District Court Monday in Washington after he was sentenced to six months in prison for his role in the Iran-Contra affair.

1985 until revelations about the Iran-Contra affair forced his resignation in November 1986, is the highest-ranking Reagan administration official to be convicted of a felony.

He was found guilty of lying to Congress in 1986 by falsely assuring lawmakers that his staff was not secretly helping arm the Nicaraguan Contras and by giving false testimony and preparing an inaccurate chronology to conceal U.S. involvement in a 1985 shipment of missiles to Iran.

Six other men, including retired Marine Lt. Col. Oliver North, a former Poindexter aide, have been placed on probation after being convicted or pleading guilty to crimes in the Iran-Contra affair.

Poindexter showed little emotion, except to smile at his wife, Linda, after the sentence was announced.

The couple kissed and walked arm-in-arm out of the courtroom after the 40-minute proceeding. As the Poindexters left the U.S. Courthouse, they briefly joined a throng of 30 supporters who were carrying banners and chanting, "Full pardon now."

Greene said that Poindexter, North and others involved in the Iran-Contra affair "carried out their own private policy" by helping arm the Nicaraguan rebels after Congress passed legislation forbidding further U.S. military aid.

"Admiral Poindexter and his associates obstructed the Congress, nullifying the decisions that body had made on the issues of supplies to the Contras," Greene said.

"They decided the policy of the Boland Amendment was wrong — they went about to violate it on a large scale and for a lengthy period, and then to lie about their activities to prevent the public from finding out," Greene said.

Prosecutor Dan Webb had urged the judge to ignore any argument that lying to Congress "is a technical violation of the law."

"This case is a classic example of what happens when these laws are violated," Webb said. "We literally had this admiral and one very misguided and confused lieutenant colonel operating a private war in Nicaragua and Congress didn't know about it."

Afterward, Webb said Greene had imposed "a very fair and very proper sentence" that would be a warning to other public officials.

Defense attorney Richard Beckler urged Greene to spare Poindexter a prison term, saying the retired rear admiral had "always put his devotion to the country above any selfish interests of his own."

While he held a high office, "I don't think anyone can appreciate the power and pressure that bears on that," Beckler said.

"Every step can be a misstep," the defense lawyer added. "Clearly missteps were taken here."

11,000 Contra rebels lay aside arms under accord

MANAGUA, Nicaragua (AP) — More than 11,000 Contra rebels have laid down their weapons under a peace accord signed with the government, and another 4,000 were expected to disarm this week, officials said Monday.

Although the rebels did not meet the Sunday deadline for disbanding the entire Contra force, the remaining resistance members were expected to report to U.N. officials by the end of the week.

"We trust it will end this week," Fernando Castanon of the U.N. peacekeeping force in Nicaragua said of the demobilization.

The disbanding of the U.S.-backed army that fought the former Sandinista government effectively ends Nicaragua's 9-year-old civil war, which cost 30,000 lives and helped push the economy to ruin.

President Violeta Barrios de Chamorro was expected this week to announce the next step in the peace process — a plan to trim the Sandinista People's Army, the government forces and most powerful weapon of the former government.

Chamorro, who took office April 25, wants to carry with her to a Central American summit later this week proof that her 6-week-old conservative government is fulfilling regional peace accords signed by her predecessor, Daniel Ortega.

Castanon said that since the May 7 start of the disbanding through Sunday night, 11,228 rebels had handed in their weapons and registered with U.N. peacekeepers.

About 4,000 rebels remained to be demobilized.

The rebels include about 12,000 fighters and others who have served as messengers, cooks and in other roles and now want the benefits and protection offered by the disbanding program.

Those registering have included children as young as 11.

The Contra forces are turning in their weapons at security zones set up from the northern Honduran border to the southern Costa Rican frontier. Yatama rebels have been demobilizing in their home region, the remote Atlantic area.

After several suspensions, the disbanding picked up following May 30, when rebels and the government signed a protocol establishing regional development centers where former rebels and their families could live.

couldn't get a key hit in the ninth. Rudy Seanez, a 21-year-old rookie reliever, earned his first major league victory and Doug Jones got his save.

Seanez began the 12th with a single to center against ex-catcher (0-2) and took second on Seanez's sacrifice. Chris Seanez entered the game in the 11th and pitched to left field.

The elder Dumars was a patient at the Alexandria Veterans Affairs Medical Center for three weeks, said his widow Ophelia. He had suffered from diabetes since 1985, she said.

Dumars did not learn of his father's death until after Sunday's game.

"I told his wife not to tell him until after the game," said Ophelia Dumars, who was with her husband at the time of his death, along with their sons Ronald, Paul, Danny, and Mark.

According to Thomas, Dumars and his wife Debbie had discussed the possibility of his father dying on a game day and had agreed that he not be told until afterwards.

The only NBA coach younger than Dunleavy is 34-year-old Stu Jackson of the New York Knicks.

A bad back forced Dunleavy to retire as a player in 1985 after seven seasons. He worked in program trading on Wall Street for two years before taking the Milwaukee job, which he held for three seasons.

Dunleavy attended South Carolina and played for Philadelphia, Houston, San Antonio and Milwaukee in the NBA. Although he retired in 1985, he played briefly for the Bucks during the last two seasons when the roster was depleted by injuries.

Dumars

Dumars was voted most valuable player of last year's NBA Finals against the Los Angeles Lakers. He promised to give his championship ring to his father.

That presentation was made last Nov. 29 at the V.A. Hospital by Debbie Dumars, who married the younger Dumars three months earlier. Her husband was in Sacramento for a game and could not present the ring.

"It was very special to him," Martha Dumars said Monday. "He couldn't wear it at the end but he kept it with him. It meant a lot to him."

Following his son's career had been a big part of Dumars' life the last few years, said Chris Maggio, whose father operates a store across the street from the Dumars' home and who grew up with Joe III.

Riley, meantime, declined to comment on reports he was returning to the broadcast booth. NBC said it would have no comment on its NBA lineup until the finals conclude.

Riley worked as a color commentator with broadcaster Chick Hearn for two seasons before being hired as an assistant to Westhead in November 1979. When Westhead was fired 11 games into the 1981-82 season, Riley took over and guided the team to the NBA championship that season.

Three more championships followed — 1985, 1987 and 1988. Riley promised after the 1987

"Joe's dad always worked so much. He didn't get to see Joe play much when he was younger because he worked so late. That's where Joe gets his desire to work so hard and do well."

Dumars had followed his son in the finals, Martha Dumars said.

"He was with them all along. He wanted my mother to bring a TV into ICU for Sunday's game but he was just too sick to watch it," she said.

Dumars talked to his father Wednesday night, the day before Portland beat the Pistons in Game 2 of the series, she said.

Ireland ties England in Cup action

CAGLIARI, Sardinia (AP) — Kevin Sheedy took advantage of a defensive error and lifted Ireland into a 1-1 tie with England on Monday night in a World Cup game without incident among the fans.

Playing before heavy security — including 2,000 police, some equipped with guard dogs — England tossed away an early lead gotten on a goal by Gary Lineker, the leading goal-scorer in the 1986 World Cup in Mexico.

Ireland, making its World Cup debut, had seven players who also play in the English first division and has an English manager, Jack Charlton, who won a World Cup medal in 1966.

The game was a grim battle of physical strength rather than soccer ability, with the ball constantly aimed for heads rather than feet. A swirling wind and a thunderstorm did not help conditions, but the players did little to entertain.

Lineker, who scored six goals in Mexico four years ago, struck in the eighth minute, taking a long pass from Chris Waddle off his chest and nudging the ball into the net as goalkeeper Paddy Bonner dived for it.

Although defenders Chris Morris and Mick McCarthy tried to clear, Lineker followed up to force the ball in.

Ireland got it back against goalie Peter Shilton, who equaled the record of 119 international appearances set by now-retired Northern Ireland goalkeeper Pat Jennings.

England's Steve McMahon, a substitute three minutes earlier, lost possession on the edge of his own penalty area and the ball came to Sheedy, who beat Shilton with a 23-yard drive.

The days leading to the game produced several clashes between police and fans on this island. But all remained calm Monday.

day with a stunning 1-0 victory over Scotland on a goal by Juan Cayasso and spectacular goalkeeping from Luis Conejo.

The Costa Ricans, who qualified ahead of the United States in the North and Central American and Caribbean group, were outplayed for much of the game and particularly after Cayasso scored in the 49th minute. But Scotland could not beat Conejo, whose diving arm save on Mo Johnston's point-blank shot in the 65th minute was his best stop.

Cayasso beat goalie Jim Leighton from close range with his left foot. But the major work was done by Claudio Jara, whose clever back pass with his heel, while closely covered, sprung Cayasso to the right of Leighton.

From there on, Scotland attacked furiously. But Conejo and their own poor marksmanship did in the Scots, who have been to the World Cup six times without advancing to the second round.

Padres sale a 'virtual certainty'; Werner partnership grows to 15

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The group that will seek approval this week from major league baseball owners to buy the San Diego Padres for $75 million has been expanded to 15 members from the original 10 partners.

Tom Werner, the Los Angeles television producer who will be the managing general partner, announced the identities of the five new partners Sunday to the San Diego Press Club.

"We've got enough people now for a partners-players baseball game," said Werner, whose group signed the letter of intent to purchase the franchise from owner Joan Kroc on April 2.

Werner and Padres president Dick Freeman plan to leave Tuesday for Cleveland, where the owners are expected to approve the ownership change on Wednesday. A three-quarters vote of National League owners and a simple majority of American League owners is required.

If the owners give their final approval, which Commissioner Fay Vincent previously described as a virtual certainty, the Werner group would assume control of team operations on Friday.

The city of San Diego, which leases San Diego Jack Murphy Stadium to the Padres, also has approved the club's sale to Werner's group, it was announced Sunday.

Werner, 40, co-producer of "The Cosby Show" and other highly rated TV series, said the new owners plan no immediate changes when they assume control of the Padres.

"I think once the deal finally closes, our feeling is to go in and assess and evaluate the organization," Werner said. "From what we've seen, we are very impressed with the personnel both on the field and off the field, and I don't expect to see any changes in the near future."

Manager Jack McKeon, who was restored to his earlier position of vice president of baseball operations by Kroc on Dec. 3, also will continue reporting directly to the owner instead of Freeman, said Werner.

"I think for the time being, the structure where both Dick Freeman and Jack McKeon report to me will stay in place," he said.

Werner also confirmed that Jerry Kapstein will not be involved with the new Padres front office in any capacity. Kapstein, a one-time player agent, was in charge of Padres operations as Kroc's personal representative from Feb. 22 until his resignation April 18.

"Jerry has, on his own, decided that he doesn't want to be involved," Werner said.

Werner, who will be the Padres' chairman, is the largest single investor. The three vice chairmen, who have the next-largest shares, are Los Angeles partner Russell Goldsmith, chairman and chief executive officer of Republic Pictures and a director of City National Bank in Beverly Hills; Arthur Engel, president of Southwest Marine Inc.; and Arthur Rivkin, former president of Coca-Cola Bottling of San Diego.

The five new partners are: Peter Peckham of San Diego, president of Investcal Realty Corp.; Keith Matson of San Diego, a former Navy pilot and residential real-estate developer who also researches arbitration and salary cases for San Diego player agent Tony Attanasio; John Earhart of Corona del Mar, a senior fellow for forestry with the World Wildlife Fund-The U.S. Conservation Foundation and son of a prominent Escondido family; Los Angeles labor attorney Michael Monk; and Bruce Corwin of Los Angeles, chief executive of Metropolitan Theaters.

The other local limited partners announced previously are Malin Burnham, chairman of First National Bank and John Burnham Co.; Jackson Goodall, chairman, chief executive and president of Foodmaker Inc.; L. Robert Payne, president of Mission Valley Associates Inc.; Leon Parma, owner of Coast Distributing Co.; Ernest Rady, chairman of American Assets and Insurance Co. of the West; and lawyer Scott Wolfe, a partner in the San Diego law firm of Latham & Watkins.

Canseco still in traction for back pain; surgery not expected for A's slugger

Jose Canseco

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Jose Canseco will remain in traction for at least a few more days, according to a hospital spokeswoman who said Monday the Oakland Athletics' right fielder was undergoing a treatment plan of rest, therapy and medication for back pain.

Canseco, who has a history of back problems, spent the weekend undergoing physical therapy and taking oral anti-inflammatory drugs, said Children's Hospital spokeswoman Ann Heglin, adding that Canseco also spent time in traction to help reduce the inflammation of a bulging lower disc.

Canseco was admitted to Children's Hospital on Saturday. A CAT scan revealed a bulging lower disc pressing against the sciatic nerve, causing pain in his lower back and right leg.

Heglin said Canseco will remain in traction for "at least a few more days."

Despite earlier reports of possible surgery for Canseco, team orthopedist

Rick Bost said surgery "is not even being discussed."

"He shows some encouraging signs of improvement," Bost said. "It's hard to make a prediction — it's a day to day situation."

Bost said Canseco's injury is "in response to his activity — swinging a bat."

Doctors remained uncertain when Canseco will play again and speculation varied from a few days to a few weeks.

"With disc problems, you are never entirely certain," A's physician Dr. Allan Pont said.

Canseco, who was able to continue playing baseball several years ago when he suffered from back pain for about three months, started feeling increased pain during last weekend's series at Oakland.

The injury has disrupted what could be Canseco's best season. He started the A's first 52 games and posted a .320 average with 20 home runs and 50 RBIs.

Riley leaves Lakers; Dunleavy to succeed

Mike Dunleavy

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Pat Riley bade a tearful farewell to the Los Angeles Lakers on Monday, saying that after nine years and four NBA championships "there are other things I want to do with my life."

Mike Dunleavy, an assistant coach for the Milwaukee Bucks, was named as his successor, and at age 36 becomes the second youngest head coach in the NBA.

Riley, who was 36 when the Lakers hired him as head coach on Nov. 19, 1981, said goodbye at a packed news conference inside the Forum.

"It's just time for me at age 45 to move on," he said. "There are other things to do. There isn't anything specific I can say right now. I had a choice to make, a decision to make, as a person."

Accompanied by his wife Chris, who also teared up, Riley said he was neither "fed up" nor "burned out" — just ready for a change.

"The last 10 years have been the greatest experience of my life," he said. "It was a wonderful decade of memorable experiences I've had. Basketball has been my life. I've been 20 years in this game."

"There are other things I want to do in my life. I don't want to be an old timer before I do them," he said.

Riley, who still has two years left on his contract, is reportedly in line for a broadcasting job with NBC, which becomes the NBA's prime network next season.

Riley guided the Lakers to an NBA-best 63-19 record this season and was named NBA Coach of the Year for the first time in his career. But Los Angeles was eliminated by Phoenix in five games in the Western Conference semifinals — the first time the Lakers didn't reach the conference finals since 1981, their final season under Paul Westhead.

Under Riley, the Lakers went 533-194, a .733 winning percentage. They also went 102-47 in playoff games, the most playoff wins by one coach in NBA history.

But following the Lakers' early playoff exit, reports surfaced of rifts between Riley and General Manager Jerry West and between Riley and some of his players.

Riley, however, denied there were problems.

"I never felt any separation" from the players, he said at the news conference.

"The reason why this team won five championships during the '80s and 63 games this season is that the team was together."

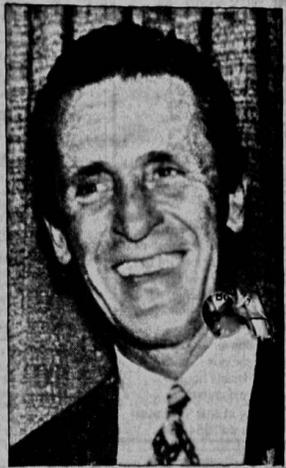

He said he made his final decision to leave about 10 days ago, but kept it quiet so the Lakers could look for a replacement without a lot of fanfare and then make just one announcement.

"He's a tough act to follow," said Dunleavy, who has never been a head coach. "I respect Pat Riley. I look up to Pat Riley. If I can be half as good a coach as Pat Riley I'll be very successful."

Asked why he thought the Lakers hired him, Dunleavy said: "I think I'm a lucky guy. I've been very lucky all my life and this is no different."

Neither Dunleavy, West nor Lakers owner Jerry Buss would be specific about the length of Dunleavy's contract, but all confirmed it was a multiyear deal.

"I'm looking forward to playing in

Pat Riley

Sandberg and Grace lead Cubs to win over Mets

CHICAGO (AP) — Ryne Sandberg had four hits, including a home run, and red-hot Mark Grace added three hits as Chicago beat New York for its fourth straight victory.

In his last 11 games, Grace has reached base safely 22 times in 39 plate appearances (16 hits and six walks) to raise his average from .258 to .292.

Reliever Alejandro Pena (1-2) walked Dwight Smith leading off the seventh and one out later Sandberg singled Smith to third. Grace, who has hit in 14 straight games, put the Cubs ahead 5-4 with a grounder to third. Following two walks, Curtis Wilkerson's two-run single made it 7-4.

The Mets, who had their three-game winning streak snapped, fell to 7-15 on the road.

Expos 5, Phillies 0
PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Len Dykstra's 23-game hitting streak was stopped Monday and so was Philadelphia, as Kevin Gross pitched a four-hitter that led Montreal to 5-0 victory in the first game of a doubleheader.

Dykstra struck out, walked, flied out and grounded out. Despite going 0-for-3, he stayed the top hitter in the major leagues at .401.

Gross (8-4) gave up four singles, struck out nine and walked four in his first shutout of the season. He improved to 2-3 lifetime against the team that traded him away before the 1989 season.

Mike Fitzgerald homered and drove in three runs. Larry Walker also connected as the Expos won for the 10th time in 15 games.

Dennis Cook (5-2) took the loss.

Giants 8, Braves 3
ATLANTA (AP) — San Francisco won for the ninth time in 10 games as Brett Butler's run-scoring double snapped a seventh-inning tie, helping the Giants beat Atlanta.

The Giants won three of four from the Braves, scoring 43 runs in the series, to move within two games of the .500 mark. San Francisco has won five of seven from Atlanta this season, averaging 9.6 runs a game.

Robby Thompson started the seventh with a one-out single off John Smoltz (3-5) and Butler doubled with two outs to put the Giants ahead 4-3.

Scott Garrelts (3-6) allowed three runs and five hits in 6 1-3 innings to improve his lifetime record against the Braves to 10-4. Jeff Brantley got two outs in the seventh and Steve Bedrosian finished.

Astros 5, Dodgers 3

HOUSTON (AP) — Casey Candaele delivered the game-winning hit for the second straight game with the third homer of his career, leading Houston past Los Angeles. The Astros have won four straight.

Candaele's seventh-inning RBI triple on Sunday rallied the Astros to a 4-2 victory over Cincinnati. Three of Candaele's five RBIs this season have come in the last two games.

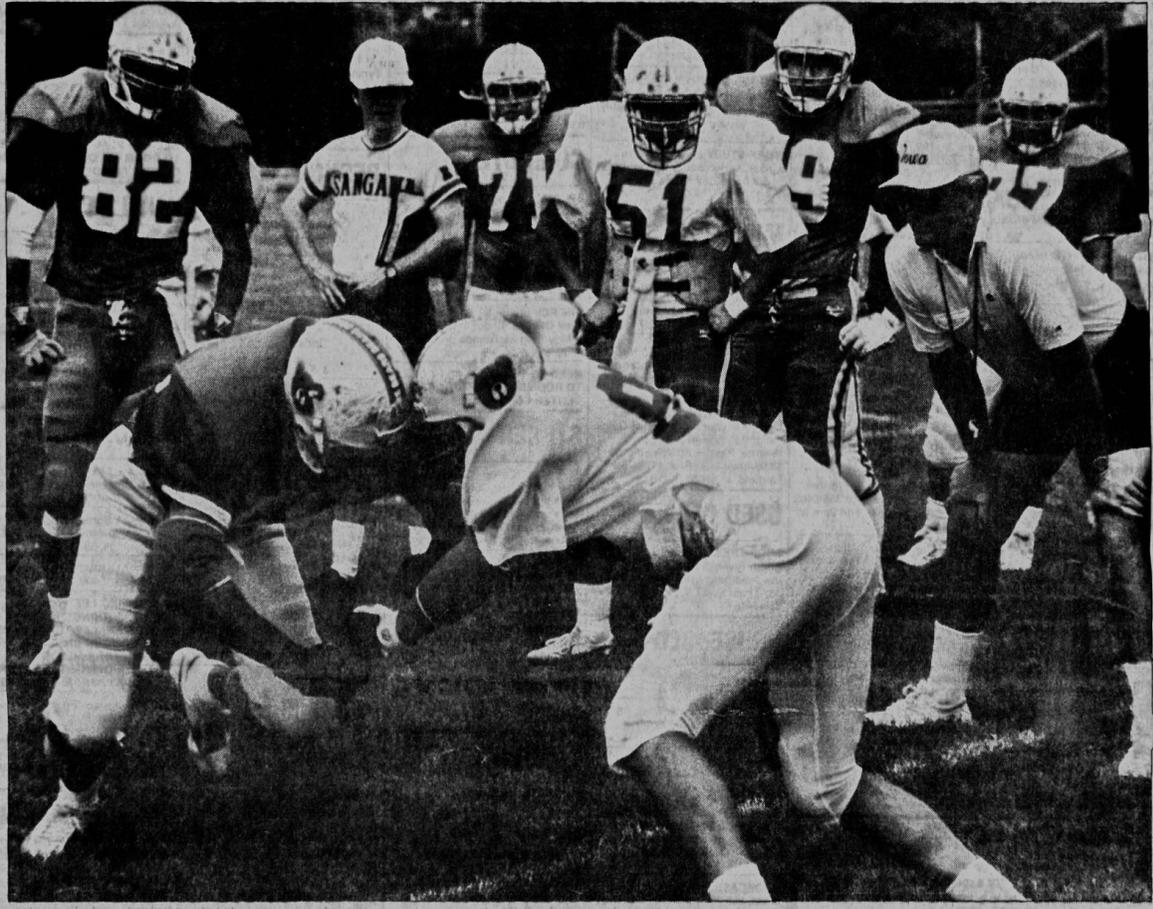

Rafael Ramirez singled to start the Astros seventh inning off starter Mike Morgan (6-5) and after Rich Gedman sacrificed Ramirez to second, Candaele homered over the right-field fence.

Larry Andersen (3-1) got the victory in relief and Dave Smith pitched one inning for his 12th save.

Indians 4, Red Sox 3

BOSTON (AP) — Tom Brookens lined a two-out single to score Jerry Browne from second base in the 12th inning, giving the Cleveland Indians a 4-3 victory Monday night over the Boston Red Sox, who

Mascot charged with sexual battery

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The group sales director of the Nashville Sounds, who also worked as a mascot at their baseball games, has been arrested on charges of sexual battery involving a team bat boy.

Claude Randall Little, who performed as "Mr. Big Country" during the seventh-inning stretch of the Triple-A team's games, was charged Friday with two counts of sexual battery and was released under $15,000 bond.

Little was put on leave by the club, team president Larry Schmittou said. "We will take appropriate action at the appropriate time," Schmittou said. "I feel for both sides of this. I'm shocked and disappointed."

Metro detective Tim Mason said officers planned to interview other children who may have been in contact with Little, whose overall-clad character challenged a youngster in a race around the bases as part of his routine.

Games tickets on sale
SEATTLE (AP) — Almost 11,000 Goodwill Games tickets, most returned by sponsors and tour operators, went on sale Monday, four days before some ticket prices were to be hiked.

About 2,000 tickets were sold in three hours Monday morning, said games spokeswoman Barbara Smith. The returned tickets were for previously sold-out events, such as the men's basketball finals, women's gymnastics and figure skating.

The Olympics-style games will be held in Seattle and six other Washington cities July 20-Aug. 5. Organizers also were able to open up with additional public seats at some venues by rejiggering press accommodations, Smith said.

Norman looks forward to Open MEDINAH, Ill. (AP) — Curtis Strange, shooting for his third straight U. S. Open championship, says Medinah is Greg Norman's kind of golf course.

"He's the longest, straightest driver in the world," Strange said. "You have to look at Greg as a probable favorite anytime you're talking about the majors."

For his part, Norman is quite happy with the course selection.

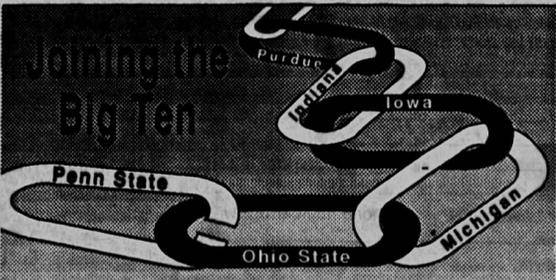

Questions will remain as Penn State enters Big Ten

By Erica Weiland
The Daily Iowan

The Big Ten has been existence for 96 years, but it may not live to see a century.

In a move that has been discussed since December, the Big Ten presidents voted in the beginning of June to include Penn State in the league.

Now there is more talk of expanding to a 12-team, two-division conference. And Pittsburgh President Wesley Posvar has talked to his counterparts at Big Ten schools about possibly joining the league.

For now, however, there is a four-year moratorium on further expansion, which the university presidents decided on during their Council of Ten meeting here at Iowa last week.

It was during the Council of Ten meeting that Illinois president Stanley Ikenberry announced Penn State's addition to the league — the first change since Michigan State replaced the University of Chicago in 1949.

Dumars still in doubt about tonight's game

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — Joe Dumars remained with the Detroit Pistons at the NBA Finals Monday, although doubt remained whether he would play Tuesday night, two days after the death of his father.

"He stayed in Portland, but I think he still has a decision to make about playing," teammate Isiah Thomas said. "I've lost loved ones before and your mind changes about things. His mind is probably fluctuating hour to hour about what he should do."

Thomas said he talked to Dumars Sunday night, but did not discuss his teammate's decision to stay in Portland rather than fly home to Natchitoches, La., as the club had reported after the game.

"We're going to support him whatever he decides to do," Thomas said.

Joe Dumars Jr., 65, died of congestive heart failure 90 minutes before Sunday's game, in which his son scored 33 points in Detroit's 121-106 victory.

"I'm sure he knows the support is there from us, but it's hard for us to know what to say to him," Coach Chuck Daly said. "I'm usually nice to Joe because he's a nice person, but I'll be nicer to him than usual."

Daly said Dumars' decision to stay in Portland was "individual and personal."

Pistons spokesman Matt Dobek said Dumars is officially listed as "probable" for Tuesday's Game 4 against Portland. Dobek said Dumars planned to practice with the team on Monday, but he was not at the pre-practice media session.

Funeral services are scheduled for Saturday morning in Louisiana. Dobek said Dumars would fly home after Thursday night's Game 5, remain there Friday, attend the funeral and return to Detroit on Saturday.

Game 6 is scheduled for Sunday at the Palace of Auburn Hills, Mich. Family members and friends indicated that Dumars decided to stay in Portland so he could play.

"My mother talked to Joe and told him his father wanted him to play," his sister, Martha Dumars, said. "He'll wait to come home for the funeral so he can keep playing. That's what we decided."

The finals schedule does not conflict with the funeral and it appears likely that Dumars will be

Four A's lead in AL voting

NEW YORK (AP) — Four Oakland Athletics, headed by top vote-getter Jose Canseco, were the leaders at their positions for the American League All-Star team in voting announced Monday.

Canseco, who had 534,812 votes was joined in the outfield by teammate Rickey Henderson. Catcher Terry Steinbach and first baseman Mark McGwire also led in the voting.

The A's right fielder, however is currently in traction for back pain. Although surgery is not in the plans for Canseco, his doctors are unsure when he will be able to resume playing.

Other leaders by position included Steve Sax of the New York Yankees at second base, Baltimore's Cal Ripken at shortstop, Boston's Wade Boggs at third base and Seattle's Ken Griffey Jr. in the outfield.

The final results of the AL fan balloting will be announced June 26.
