Johnson County assesses flood damage

By John Kenyon

The Iowa City Express

All floodwater from the weekend’s floods should be considered contaminated, according to Kim Flatt, environmental protection manager for the Johnson County Health Department.

“Floodwaters back up into flood-control areas such as Iowa City and Cuming County,” Flatt said. “As such, everything is considered contaminated.”

Atkins said that the city is not planning to test the floodwaters, but has been getting inquiries from citizens. “Let’s lay the groundwork now,” Atkins said. “Let’s make sure we do it right.”

The city manager’s concern has also been raised by the Iowa City Public Works Department. “We’re making progress in the process of cleaning up,” Atkins said. “We’ve got to make sure we do it right.”

Pride Week activities begin
Event celebrates gay and lesbian rights and achievements

By Ann Marie Williams
The Daily Iowan

Members of the Iowa City gay and lesbian community will celebrate Pride Week this week with a series of films, festivals, concerts and discussions as an extension of Gay Pride Month, which continues through the weekend.

Lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender rights activists will be fighting for equality and increased recognition for their cause in the city this week. Pride Week is also a way for the community to celebrate the existence of their community and the accomplishments of the last year.

"It's an opportunity to learn more about this group and its history," said David Tingwald, also a Pride Week organizer. "Pride Week is a way for gay people and lesbians to celebrate the existence of their community. We're going to have a really fun time this year!" Tingwald said.

Many said one goal of Pride Week is to bring gay and lesbian rights back into the conversation and allow the chance to show their support.

Malone said one goal of Pride Week was to create a climate where gays and lesbians have made strides in this society, and also to be able to talk about gay activism in the media.

"We're letting people know about gay rights and lesbian civil rights," said Malone, who said the week was a way for the community to celebrate its accomplishments.

Flood victims receive aid for damages

DES MOINES - Iowans who suffered flood damage face a bewildering array of aid policies.

The Iowa Farm Service Agency is warning farm owners and operators in the eastern two-thirds of the state that they are eligible for aid from the Federal Emergency Management Agency under a new program.

Flood damage from June 26 to July 5 inundated about 200,000 acres of farm land in the Missouri River Valley, according to the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

Tingwald said another goal of the week is to back gay rights and bring the community together.

Farmers face rain damages; water remains

By John Kurger
The Daily Iowan

Most corn and bean crops around the southern Johnson County town of Hills are under water and deemed beyond repair, according to farmers. Agriculture officials said that bright skies dominated the weather for much of the weekend, the farmers started to assess the damage from the weekend's deluge.

"We have had water standing on over 40 acres of corn and beans," said Shirley Clausen, wife of farmer Dick Wisner. "I went out Monday, and the damage is preferred not to be identified, the state will prevent anything else growing in that land."

According to one Hills farmer, who preferred not to be identified, the state will prevent anything else growing in that land.

"I can still plant beans, but that depends when they can get into the fields."

"The crops report said that as of Tuesday, 87 percent of the soybeans were planted. At this time last year the entire crop had emerged."

The report said 98 percent of the crop has emerged, compared to last year when the entire crop had emerged. The first cutting of alfalfa hay was 52 percent harvested as of Sunday.
Kellior's performance oozes excess nostalgia ime was the time when young Thespians through the years had to choose carefully which role to play and which directorial style to adopt. When I was a student at the University of Iowa, I was never overwhelmed by the sheer number of opportunities available. Auditions for roles often took place at 9:00 a.m. on Saturdays, and I was expected to attend. It was not uncommon for me to be given a role in a play that I had never seen before. I was fortunate to be chosen for a role in a production of "Nunsense," a musical comedy written by Dan Lipson. I was thrilled to be part of a production that was set in a convent and featured a group of nuns who were performing in a production of "Nunsense." The audience was delighted with the performance, and I was happy to be a part of it.

Residents mourn victims of Ohio floods

By Bob Lewis
Associated Press
SHARPSVILLE, Ohio — Townspeople in Ohio are mourning the death of two men who died after the town of Townsville was washed away.

The victims, 21-year-old James DeNoon and 18-year-old Kimberly DeNoon, were found in their home on Friday morning. They had been camping with friends near the town's levee when floodwaters from the Pipe Creek started to rise.

"It's hard to believe," said Townsville Mayor Tom Maier. "We had just finished a memorial service for James DeNoon Sr. on Saturday." DeNoon Sr. was killed in a flash flood earlier this month.

Residents are cleaning up debris-damaged homes and businesses as they mourn the loss of two more residents. Three other residents are still missing.

"It's just been a tough week," said one resident. "We've lost two good people and we're still trying to figure out how to move forward."
Too many issues slow German reunification

By George Bohm

BERLIN, West Germany — More than a year after the death of Helmut Kohl, the government is still struggling to fulfill its promise of unification within a year, even as an East German leader is calling for talks on the future of the divided nation.

The departure of Kohl, who governed Germany from 1982 to 1998, has cast a pall over a country that was already struggling to cope with the challenges of reunification. The new leader, Olaf Scholz, has called for a “new beginning” in relations with the Soviet Union, but many are skeptical of his promises.

The government has been unable to agree on a strategy for dealing with the influx of refugees from Eastern Europe, and there is growing concern about the rise of far-right groups in the country. The left-wing opposition has also been vocal in its criticism of the government’s handling of the situation.

Kohl’s successor, Anthony办公, has promised to continue the policies of his predecessor, including the introduction of a new currency, the euro, and the expansion of the European Union. However, many are concerned that these moves will further undermine the country’s economy.

In the meantime, the government has been forced to make difficult decisions about how to allocate resources, and there are concerns about the impact of these decisions on the country’s future. The government has also been criticized for its handling of the refugee crisis, with many arguing that it should be doing more to help those in need.

The future of Germany remains uncertain, with many looking to the new leader for guidance. However, there is a sense that the country is facing a difficult period, with many challenges to overcome.

Soccer displaces war in Lebanon

Libya may add chemical weapons plant

WASHINGTON - Libya took a step toward building a second chemical weapons factory at a remote underground base in hundreds of miles south of Tripoli, Bush administration officials disclosed Monday.

The officials said they are 80 percent sure they have the evidence to make the claim, based on two separate, classified U.S. intelligence reports and on a second declassified assertion by the Arab League.

The officials did not say how much of the plant has been built, but said that the project has been under way for several years.

``There is no question that this is an important development for the Libyan government, and it is a significant step forward in the Libyan effort to develop chemical weapons capabilities,' sauces officials.

The officials said they have not seen any mention of the project in the Arab League's annual report on chemical weapons capabilities, which is to be issued in October.

The officials did not say whether the plant is to be built for production or for testing.

The officials also said that the U.S. government is not yet ready to publicize the existence of the project.

Thompson may join Nuggets

DENVER (AP) — Georgetown coach John Thompson Jr. is considering an offer to become general manager of the Denver Nuggets.

"We’ve been approached with an offer that he’d be interested in," Denver Nuggets’ Thompson, a former player, said Monday. "It’s more of a business thing, and I’m not sure about suggesting something doesn’t change."

Thompson said the Nuggets have tried to reach him since last year if he has an interest in joining the franchise. "We have a 12-year contract," Thompson said of the Nuggets. "Someone needs to do some things, and I know he was the man for the job."

"I usually go with the gut feeling and after spending a couple of years there, I’d say yes," said Thompson. Faber joined the Nuggets as a general manager in 1988. He previously had said with the Philadelphia 76ers, the National Basketball Association’s franchise in that city, before returning to the Saunders family’s franchise.
