Mandela supports violence as last resort for negotiations

By Terrence Hunt

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — When Mande la defended the use of violence to topple the South Africa regime, he told President Ronald Reagan that he was willing to be linked with “su perheroes” to achieve his goal.

But Mandela said that he was not at the same time advocating for the South African government, but in¬ stead for the struggle against violence, which he said was an “essential tool”
in the struggle for freedom.

In the words of the great Martin Luther King Jr., Mandela said that “you must do everything to protect that freedom.”

City Council split over land development issue

By Roberta Bracco

"The City Council has no choice - we have to move," according to City Council member Karen Rynes.

The council was sharply divided Monday night over whether to grant the requested rezoning of 13 acres along the north side of the city for subdivision purposes. The council could not agree to a moratorium on subdivision applications.

Recent council sessions have focused on the controversy surrounding the possible subdivision of an adjacent 26-acre wooded lot of Scott Bendorff to be subdivided as individual lots for residential owners.

"The developer substantiates that land, we have no choice over that," Rynes said Monday night.

Branstad, who was present Monday night, mentioned in supporting the request that the concept was "a very sophisticated" one. The developer, he said, is preparing a "very good" proposal.

"I want to lend a binding agreement making people responsible," Rynes said. "We have to pull in the legal end," she said.

Other council members objected that this would infringe on private ownership rights.

Council member Naomi Novak said that landowners fundamentally need to have rights to sell land and trees should specifically be listed on it.

"Anyone who purchased a lot with extra trees, they would have an interest in keeping the trees," Novak said.

Joy Comning ratified despite opposition

By Mike Glover

The Iowa City Council on Monday night unanimously approved a two-year contract with Joyce Comning, an Iowa City resident since 1975, to manage the county's human resources department.

Regardless of the council's approval, Comning's position is still considered an optional position because the council has not authorized funds to hire an executive director of human resources.

The Iowa City Council is expected to consider the matter at its next meeting on July 30. The City Council will make a determination at that time on whether to hire an executive director of human resources.

Comning will be paid $16,000 a year, the same amount she was paid last year. If the council approves the optional position, it will be her first 2 years as director.

The Iowa Artisans' Gallery expansion
Store features community art

By Susan Stapleton
The Daily Iowan

It is years ago, the Iowa Artisans' Gallery expansion. A small establishment that was a gallery, with 35 artists regularly, then it grew and is now in a new location downtown.

The Iowa Artisans' Gallery, at 1510 E. 29th St., between two windows in a small building, is now a functional work of art. This first establishment, called the Woodwork Gallery, never quite got off the ground. The gallery started as a project of the Iowa City Community Foundation, which has since expanded into a gallery. Shortly thereafter, the gallery's mission expanded to include more artists from the community, in a larger space, in a larger building.

After several years at the original location, the gallery moved to its current location, 1510 E. 29th St. With the addition of space and support, the gallery has been able to expand into more work opportunities for artists. The Iowa City Artisan's Gallery has grown and expanded into a larger space, in a larger building, but we have more space now, said Joe Parry, executive director of the gallery.

"We want to keep people interested in the mysteries of art," said Donna Parry, executive director of the Iowa Artisans' Gallery.

The gallery also offers an opportunity for each of its regular artists to display their work in a way that is consistent with the artist's style and interest, while hopefully broadening horizons.

The Iowa City Artisan's Gallery has a team of artists, who are often themselves, unusual people who can bring out the best in the artist's work, Donna Parry said.

David Lusk, an Iowa City metalworker and jeweler, has been with the gallery since it opened.

"I'm interested in the craft of metalworking as a way to express myself," Lusk said. "David is a top-notch jeweler.

The gallery's new facility will allow the Iowa City Artisan's Gallery to continue its mission of exposing young people to the mysteries of art, said Donna Parry.

Mortgage rates fall; home sales decline

by John D. McGlone

WASHINGTON—Sales of existing homes confirmed to drop in May, but falling mortgage rates helped limit the decrease, a real estate trade group said Monday.

The National Association of Realtors and members of a single-family homes totaled a seasonally adjusted annual rate of 3.59 million in May, down 1.2 percent from April's 3.63 million. Sales in April were the lowest since November 1990.

Existing home sales have dropped at a rapid rate since the first of the year, except during March when they were unchanged. They totaled 16.4 million in 1990.

Mortgage rates, on the other hand, are generally predicted since hitting double-digit figures in January. They dropped from 10.07 percent at the beginning of May to 9.1 percent at month's end, according to surveys by the Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation.

Mortgages rates also have plunged on prime homes, which dropped 1.6 percent in April. The 9.05 percent in April, the 0.05 percentage points stabilized since late last year.
Iran receives aid for quake damage

BUCHARA, Iran — Aid poured into the city on Monday from dozens of countries, including Iran's bitterest enemies, to help an estimated half-million people who were injured and thousands who were believed lying beneath tons of debris. The United Nations' Geneva-based Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs estimated that 20,000 injured and 6,000 dead. Thousands of people were believed still trapped in rubble. Helicopters flew over the stricken area spraying antiseptic because of fears that the unburied bodies would cause an outbreak of disease in the region. "Health experts and the government have...

Unheralded Delsing wins Amana title

By Brian Saul

The Daily Iowan

The Amana VIP golf tournament title didn’t go to top-ranked Tom Watson, but local favorite Ted Delsing. It didn’t go to Jim Dent or Curtis Strange, either. The local favorite had to settle for the runner-up spot.

Monday afternoon wasn’t the best day to play golf, and it didn’t help that Finkbine Golf Course was a wet and windy mess. But Delsing didn’t let that stop him. He went on to win the tournament, finishing with a score of 70-69-68 for a total of 207. Watson, who finished with a score of 70-67-70 for a total of 207, was second.

Becker deals aces to hold on WASHINGTON, England — From the terrace and the Wild Man across the street, Westside’s opening act of a day of suspense and tension was the first 15 minutes of play. It’s a game everyone was looking forward to, but not quite sure how it would play out.

All of 13-year-old Matthew’s careful plans to progress to the next round after 10 years of chasing the golf ball were undone in the first round Monday by a opponent they had never seen before. The tournament was on again, but not for long.

The top-seeded Becker, who had virtually been on tour since April, dropped the first set against Arkansas Christian Mission, ranked No. 10, and avoided an embarrassing exit by taking the next three sets, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.

"I just had a terrible time with the hitting," Long said of his first set. "I just couldn’t get any rhythm. I was in the same room with a racket and a ball too long, and I decided to change with them."

He lost the first two sets, 6-4, 6-3, and then fought back in the third, but lost 6-3. He was down a break in the fourth set, but managed to hold for the win. Becker took the next three sets, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3.
