By Ann Marie Williams and Sara Langenberg
The Daily Iowan

UI student government leaders said Tuesday they are displeased with a report issued last week outlining the status of salaries in several UI student commissions.

Furthermore, the student government officials contend that Dean Phillip Jones has overstepped his "advisorial authority" by making decisions about student government money without their input.

Jones, UI vice president of academic affairs and dean of student services, released a report last week calling for the elimination of some student commissions' salaries based on a review of the commissions that began last academic year.

The UI student association executive cabinet issued a press release Tuesday "expressing its displeasure with the procedures and findings" of Jones' report.

The release states, "The control of the commissions, according to the UIA constitution, rests with the student government. By acting on his own, Dean Jones has overruled his advisory authority."

Mark Havlicek, UI student body president, said he was particularly disappointed with Jones' justification for eliminating some student salaries.

"His rationale for taking compensation away wasn't sound at all," he said.

But Jones said he has acted in accordance with university policy and has not overstepped the realm of his responsibilities.

"The administration of all fees is the university administration's responsibility," Jones said. "The administration appropriates and authorizes the spending of fees, and I think it is an important point that at the time of the review, student government oversight of fees was lacking."

Jones added that student government oversight of compensation of the undergraduate activities senate, said the report was vague and neglected to use sufficient resources to determine which commissions merit paid positions.

Troy Raper, executive director of the undergraduate activities senate, said the report was vague and neglected to use sufficient resources to determine which commissions merit paid positions.

Havlicek said students within commissioned organizations and student government leaders should be included in administrative decisions concerning the salaries of those organizations.

"We were elected by UI students to decide where mandatory student fees should go," Havlicek said. "It's our responsibility, not the university administration's."

Raper said student commissions are funded with mandatory student fees allocated by student government, and therefore the commissions are funded by students.

"The students elected us to represent them," he said. "We have the accountability to the students."

But Jones said that the compensation system that has been in use in recent years is against university policy.

Phillip Jones acting in accordance with policy

"Student organizations requesting from the administration compensation for jobs became so arbitrary that no one was asking for permission anymore," Jones said. "So what the student commissions are claiming as their 'right' is actually

Souter prepares for Senate hearings

By Steven Komarow
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Supreme Court nominee David Souter worked with White House officials Tuesday preparing for tough Senate confirmation questions. He declared his blood was "circulating a little bit better" as the astonishment of his selection began to wear off.

He brushed aside questions about his views on abortion, one of the issues senators are sure to emphasize during the confirmation hearings that are expected to begin in September.

President George Bush cautioned the Senate not to accept or reject Souter on the basis of any single issue and predicted "he will be a great justice."

Congressional leaders' comments were mostly muted, as were remarks from interest groups on the left and right. Souter was still an unknown quantity.

Elliot Minberg of the liberal People for the American Way said, "He doesn't have much of a track record." Pat McGuigan of the conservative Heritage Foundation said, "Nobody knows anything about him. In terms of Senate confirmation, this is very helpful."

Souter spent several hours in the White House where he was told by presidential aides that his life would be picked apart and everything he had ever written or said closely scrutinized.

One participant, who spoke only on the condition of anonymity, said Souter calmly listened to the advice and indicated there was nothing in his past that he felt uncomfortable with.

Souter met with the president's congressional liaison, Fred McClure, and other aides while the president himself touted his choice while out campaigning for GOP candidates in the Northeast.

Bush called Souter, whom he met for the first time Monday, "a great man of enormous intelligence, strength — a tough trial court judge with a great legal mind and an impartial quality that will serve the court well."

There was no immediate argument to the glowing portrayal from Capitol Hill. In Souter — 50, a longtime New Hampshire state judge and since April a member of the 1st U.S. Court of Appeals in Boston — Bush found a candidate without a record on abortion.

"At this point it's no hits, no runs, no errors. It may not be a good thing in a justice, but it's a good thing in sending up a nominee to be confirmed," said Sen. Howard Metzenbaum, D-Ohio, a liberal member of the Senate Judiciary Committee.

Sen. Orrin Hatch, R-Utah, a senior conservative on the committee, said he hadn't heard a single senator express misgivings about Souter.

Mubarak flew to Kuwait following talks with Iraqi President Saddam Hussein and then flew on to Jeddah for talks with King Fahd of Saudi Arabia.

Iraq continues to boost troops, accuses Kuwait of conspiracy

The Associated Press

KUWAIT — Iraq accused neighboring Kuwait on Tuesday of conspiring to harm its economy and massed tens of thousands of troops and hundreds of tanks on the border.

Informed sources in Kuwait said the Iraqi troop buildup had increased over the last 48 hours to at least 30,000, and that more than 200 Soviet-made tanks were posted along Iraq's 100-mile-long southern border with Kuwait.

The area of the troop buildup is rich in oil reserves and has been a source of contention since Kuwait gained its independence from Britain in 1961. The border demarcation has never been agreed on by Iraq, and a portion of it crosses the Rumaila oil field.

The same sources said Kuwait on Tuesday reinstated its state of alert, declared July 16 and canceled after three days of tension between the two oil-producing countries. Iraq has 17 million residents, including 1 million troops. Kuwait has 1.8 million residents, and 20,300 members of the armed forces.

The U.S. Defense Department, meanwhile, announced that U.S. Navy warships and aircraft were holding a "short-notice exercise" in the Persian Gulf with the United Arab Emirates, about 600 miles south of the Kuwait-Iraq dispute.

The United States has at least seven warships in the Gulf at any given moment. The State Department announced at the beginning of the crisis that it backs Kuwait's territorial integrity.

Iraq has accused Kuwait of being an American puppet and of conspiring with the United States to throttle the economy of Iraq, which has the world's second-largest oil reserves but endured a costly war from 1980-88 with Iran.

In Washington, U.S. State Department spokeswoman Margaret Tutwiler said both Iraq and Kuwait had strengthened their armed forces.

"Iraq and others know there is no place for coercion in a civilized world," she said. "All disputes should be handled through peaceful means."

Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak flew to Baghdad and Kuwait on Tuesday to mediate the crises with leaders of those countries. Mubarak said his mission was successful, but Iraq downplayed his efforts.

Iraqi President Saddam Hussein claims his country lost $14 billion during the past year because of a world oil glut that has sent crude prices tumbling. He has accused Kuwait and the United Arab Emirates of overproduction.

In a long letter Tuesday to the Arab League, Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz charged Kuwait with stealing Iraqi oil from the Rumaila field, which he said was entirely owned by Iraq. The field extends two miles into Kuwait.

Many observers said they believe Saddam, who has spent an estimated $50 billion on sophisticated arms since coming to power in 1979, is engaging in saber-rattling to back his demands for lower oil production and higher prices.

Iraq has said it will push for a $7 increase in oil prices at the Wednesday meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Geneva.

The 13-member group is to set production and prices for the rest of the year.

$8,000 audit states that Rojas-Cardona should repay UI $59

By Julie Creswell
The Daily Iowan

The UI is seeking the repayment of $59 — the price of a train ticket — from former Student Senate President Pepe Rojas-Cardona.

This, the administration's final response to the state auditor's findings of "misappropriation" and "extravagant" spending practices by Rojas-Cardona and other student government officials last year, is the recommendation of an external audit of UI student government records.

Furthermore, the UI will implement written guidelines for future handling of travel expenses, alcohol purchases and consumption, non-senator expenses, and proper expense documentation.

Tuesday, UI administrators released this response to the external audit by the Coopers & Lybrand accounting firm of Des Moines, which was motivated by past audits and recommendations regarding student government expenditures at the UI.

Last March, a group of UI students, calling itself the Committee for Ethics in Student Government, charged Rojas-Cardona and other former senators with misappropriation of student fee funds.

The group's report prompted an internal audit of the Student Senate, which, while deeming some senate tactics "inappropriate," did not find evidence of financial misappropriation.

Weeks later, however, the state auditor's office, in an investigation ordered by Gov. Terry Branstad, called the UI's internal audit "superficial" and cited instances of "extravagant" spending by the student government members.

Coopers & Lybrand's $8,000 to $9,000 audit was compiled using information and recommendations contained in both audits.

Pepe Rojas-Cardona 'Improprieties' ruled insignificant

But Coopers & Lybrand focused on areas where disciplinary actions may have been warranted and where controls and procedures should have been established or needed improvement, rather than the financial aspects, according to Ann Rhodes, acting director of University Relations.

"Everyone had the same material to review, and (Coopers & Lybrand) believed the amounts involved weren't significant in their report," Rhodes said.

The state auditor's report detailed occurrences where travel expenses, dinner tabs and the purchase of alcohol came into question. But in the Coopers & Lybrand report, only two incidents were cited involving the possible misappropriation of money.

The first case involved a conference in Washington, D.C., that was attended by Rojas-Cardona.

UI sophomore found hanged; coroner rules death a suicide

By Dan Zinkand
The Daily Iowan

The death of UI sophomore Garry Lee Frank, 21, was ruled a suicide by Johnson County Medical Examiner T.T. Bozek.

Bozek's decision was announced Tuesday morning by Don Hogan, chief of the UI Department of Public Safety, formerly known as UI Campus Security.

Frank was found hanging from a rope in a maintenance room on the top floor of the Eckstein Medical Research Building about 9:40 a.m. Monday.

Hogan said Bozek made the determination at the scene Monday.

"There is no question about it being a suicide," Hogan said. He added the time of death "was presumed to be sometime early Saturday morning."

Hogan said he did not know if Frank worked in the building.

Iowa City Chief of Police R.J. Winkelhake said Frank's parents, who live in Waterloo, called the police Monday morning to make a missing person report. Winkelhake said the police suspected the body found on the UI campus was the Franks' son. He said the Franks met with UI public safety officers and Bozek at the police department.

Iowa gaming official draws accusations

By Tom Seery
The Associated Press

DES MOINES — A special meeting of the Iowa Racing and Gaming Commission is planned to discuss a report accusing the agency's top administrator of playing a fantasy baseball game while on the job.

An aide to Gov. Terry Branstad said Monday that the report could be grounds for removing Mick Lura as executive secretary of the commission.

Commission Chairman L.C. "Bud" Pike of Grundy Center on Tuesday declined to comment on the matter but said he plans to have the five-member commission tackle it as soon as possible.

The commission regulates pari-mutuel racing in Iowa and has authority over casino boats that will begin operations next year.

Branstad's press secretary, Dick Vohs, has said the governor asked the Iowa Division of Criminal Investigation to look into the matter after receiving a complaint about Lura from a Racing and Gaming Commission employee.

The DCI briefly investigated the complaint but ended its involvement after determining that no criminal activity took place. Vohs said state personnel department officials then investigated and found that Lura and three other state government employees had used state computers to play a baseball game during working hours.

Vohs declined to name the other workers but said Branstad feels the Racing and Gaming Commission should consider removing Lura from his post.

Maquoketa may get new plant

The Associated Press

MAQUOKETA, Iowa — A Florida auto parts company announced Tuesday it wants to build a plant here that eventually will employ 75 people, but city officials said they need $210,000 in state grants to pave the way for the project.

S&H Manufacturing and Engineering Inc., based in Sanford, Fla., announced it will build the $1 million plant in the Maquoketa Business Park. The company makes air-conditioning hoses and tube assemblies for General Motors Corp. cars and trucks.

Maquoketa City Manager Patrick Callahan said the plan for the 52,500-square-foot plant is contingent on the city's receiving two grants from the Iowa Department of Economic Development to extend city sewer and water lines and to pave a street.

He said city officials estimated they will need a $110,000 grant to extend water service and a $100,000 grant to pave the street.

"Right now, we are their first choice," Callahan said. "They're ready to come to Maquoketa if we can get this."

He said city officials were working on their application in Des Moines and said he would not know if the application will be approved for a few days.

Todd Jones, a spokesman for the IDED, said the department had not yet received an application for the S&H project. He said applications for state grants or low-interest loans for S&H must be made by Maquoketa officials.

The plant, scheduled to open Nov. 1, will employ 30 people when it opens. Company officials expect the plant to employ 75 people eventually.

S&H employs 1,500 people in nine plants in Canada and the United States.

Nursing center opens

A third off-campus nursing center has been established in Emmetsburg as part of a UI project to help rural nurses complete their bachelor's degrees while still living and working at home in northwest Iowa.

The UI College of Nursing, in conjunction with Iowa Lakes Community College, has established a program to help nurses in an eight-county region continue to pursue their nursing degrees off campus.

The Emmetsburg addition, announced in late June, was made possible through a $296,561 grant from the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation's "Manpower Development" program.

A satellite hook-up and a sophisticated two-way telephone link allows UI faculty members to lecture and conduct discussions with classes around the state.

Twenty-six students have graduated from satellite center programs, which are currently held at Mason City and Waterloo. A fourth center is scheduled to open this fall in Fort Dodge.

Considering suicide is asking for help

By Dan Zinkand
The Daily Iowan

Eight people have committed suicide on the UI campus and 33 have attempted suicide since 1982, according to Don Hogan, Chief of the UI Department of Public Safety.

"It's alarming to see that many," Hogan said. "One never knows what goes through the mind of someone contemplating suicide."

According to the Iowa City Police Department, 12 people have committed suicide in Iowa City since 1987. These figures exclude those suicides that occurred at the UI.

Feelings of hopelessness and failure, along with the stress of major life decisions and relationships, are contributing factors to suicide, said Gerald Stone, director of University Counseling Service.

Women are four times more likely to commit suicide than men, but men are four times as likely to successfully complete suicide, Stone said.

According to Stone, there are warning signs to suicides. Suicidal behavior includes loss of appetite, energy and ability to concentrate, abrupt changes in behavior and talk about suicide.

"We need to take (it) seriously when people talk about it," Stone said. "People who talk about it do it."

He added that people who talk about suicide may be asking others for assistance.

Stone said friends of someone who exhibits suicidal behavior need to take action.

"You need to get them to some

Casino revenues and salaries fall short of projected figures

By Roger Munns
The Associated Press

DES MOINES — Half of the projected 854 jobs created by an Indian-owned casino-hotel project in Council Bluffs would pay $13,500 or less, a casino spokesman told city officials Tuesday.

Mark Ramsey of Omaha, Neb., a public relations expert hired by Harvey's Casino-Resort of Stateline, Nev., also said revenues — and thus fees paid to local governments — would be about half of estimates made by a consultant. He also said the casino would not promise to assist a Council Bluffs dog racing track, whose operators maintain competition from the casino would force the track to close.

Harvey's wants to build a $67.5 million casino and hotel complex in Council Bluffs that would be owned by the Sioux Santee Indians of northeast Nebraska.

Backers of the project have said the casino would be an economic shot in the arm to Council Bluffs. Critics said the new numbers should make the city cautious about the project.

"These wages are not that bad, especially for the types of employees we're talking about here."

Richard Wadehe
Council Bluffs City Attorney

"It hardly seems what was portrayed originally," said Bill Ballenger, a member of the Citizen-Police Advisory Board who says a casino runs counter to Iowa's way of life.

"I would think it would bother (promoters)," said George Beno, executive director of Iowa West Racing Association, which operates the Bluffs Run dog track.

But Ballenger also said the salary figures probably would not discourage workers.

"There would be some people who would think that was a good-paying job," he said.

City Attorney Richard Wade agreed.

"These wages are not that bad, especially for the types of employees we're talking about here," he said. "These are not $20 an hour union jobs, but they exceed what a lot of people are getting paid in this county for the same type of work."

Ramsey gave the numbers during a meeting of the mayor's negotiating committee Tuesday. They were among responses to 88 questions the committee had asked Harvey's to clarify.

"I did not get the impression in the meeting that anybody was terribly disappointed in these figures," Wade said.

Wade said officials were told 146 jobs would pay the Iowa minimum wage of $3.85 an hour for an annual salary of about $8,000. Another 434 workers, including 153 dealers, would make $10,400 to $13,499. Dealers generally earn an additional $15,600 a year in tips, Ramsey said.

Boyfriend convicted in baby's death

The Associated Press

CEDAR RAPIDS — A 19-year-old Center Point man has been convicted of involuntary manslaughter and second-degree sexual abuse in the death of the 18-month-old daughter of his girlfriend.

Jurors in Linn County District Court returned the verdict Tuesday in the trial of Darren Farmer, who was accused of the more serious offenses of first-degree murder and first-degree sexual abuse in the November death of Jade Horkheimer.

The jury began deliberating Monday morning and reached the verdict shortly before 4 p.m. Tuesday.

The prosecution claimed the child died of a brain hemorrhage brought on by severe shaking. The defense claimed it was the child's mother who shook the child and caused her fatal injuries.

Farmer was living with the child's mother, Angie Cummings, 20, in Center Point when the girl was injured Nov. 18, according to authorities. Life-support equipment was removed on Nov. 20. Sentencing is set for Sept. 7.

NEGATIVE CAMPAIGNING

Destructive legislation

Bipartisan efforts to curb or eradicate negative television campaigning during presidential elections are currently being negotiated in Congress. At first glance, these efforts may appear harmless, even beneficial. But members of Congress must remember to give serious thought to what any resulting bills will actually accomplish.

First, trying to define "negative campaigning" for the purpose of censorship is no less ridiculous or destructive than attempting to define or censor art. Each insults the intelligence of the public and violates the First Amendment rights of the creator.

First, trying to define "negative campaigning" for the purpose of censorship is no less ridiculous or destructive than attempting to define or censor art. Each insults the intelligence of the public and violates the First Amendment rights of the creator.

Second, by what logic is negative campaigning necessarily wrong — morally or otherwise? Technically, attacking an opponent's voting history is a negative tactic. However, it is also a means by which voters can gain valuable information and discover discrepancies between rhetoric and fact.

Certainly, negative advertising has a potential for abuse, but inherent mechanisms already exist to keep that potential in check. With very few, if any, exceptions, a negative ad that attempts to do anything but reiterate a widely held belief will backfire.

For instance, Lyndon Johnson's brilliant and controversial "Daisy Girl" ad was effective only because the public already believed that Barry Goldwater was too hawkish. The same ad launched against John F. Kennedy or Hubert Humphrey would have lacked impact and been unsuccessful.

Similarly, the "Willie Horton" ad of 1988 was effective only because the public perceived Gov. Mike Dukakis as soft on crime. While it is more than likely that Horton's skin color was used for the purposes of appealing to and confirming the racial fears of more ignorant Americans, the fact remains that the same ad would have lacked any such influence if it had been used against George Bush. It was Dukakis' voting record, not Horton's race, that fueled the power of the advertisement.

In this country, a political campaign should be an open competition of ideas. As such, there should be no legal restrictions to prevent a candidate from challenging the platform or history of an opponent — in whatever manner he or she deems most effective. As always, the market will determine what is desirable and what is not. That's why cheap shots cost more votes than they buy, and sensational or inaccurate attacks come back to haunt the attacker.

Ultimately, each voter should decide what is fair play. Discernment, common sense and conscience cannot be legislated. And any politician who proposes to do so is ignoring the human capacity for independent thought and the inalienable right to free speech.

Domestic summit needed

There have been three important international summits recently. Such meetings are useful because they foster direct communication, break down barriers and build relationships. Their success shows why we need a new kind of summit for the people of urban and rural America.

First, the Bush-Gorbachev meeting in Washington continued to reduce tensions between the Soviet and American people — even as Mikhail Gorbachev sought U.S. economic assistance for the ailing Soviet economy.

Then there was the NATO summit in London. With the changes taking place in the Soviet Union, and the democratic revolutions in Eastern Europe in 1989 and 1990, NATO is adjusting its purpose and structure. It is shifting from providing stability primarily by military might to maintaining stability through political and economic development.

Following the NATO meeting was the G-7 economic summit in Houston. The seven most industrialized nations in the world considered the environment, world agricultural policy and aid to the Soviet Union and China.

Bilateral and multilateral summits help focus attention on trends and critical issues. They educate leaders and the general public and they continue the public debate of important issues.

In that spirit, what is most needed in the United States today is for President Bush to convene a "domestic summit" focusing on social and economic development.

In the United States, the unjust economic and bad social policies of the 1970s and 1980s appear to be cresting. The shift in wealth and income from the poor, workers and the middle class to the rich has resulted in budget deficits, national debt, slow growth, slow job creation, high real interest rates, infrastructure collapse, non-competitiveness and more.

It has also resulted in rising poverty, malnutrition, infant mortality, homelessness, a health-care crisis, an educational crisis, hopelessness and nihilism. If these problems are not addressed, drug abuse, crime and violence will continue to rise also. And in response, more repressive, expensive and less effective policies for combating these ills will emerge. We will build more jails and put more people to death.

How is this different from our fear about the Soviet Union and Europe? We fear that if the underlying social and economic development needs of the Soviet and Eastern European people are not met, repressive and autocratic leaders will return to replace the current ones. They will repress democracy and retreat to ineffective economic policies in order to restore order.

The international summits analyzed the problems confronting the countries involved, weighed the costs of inaction, and came up with a plan, a budget and a timetable for solving them. But there is no such analysis, plan, budget and timetable for the social and economic redevelopment of America — no plan for Philadelphia, New York or Chicago; no plan for Flint, Waterloo or Anderson, Ind.; or for rural America.

In fact, President Bush has inflamed racial fear rather than inspired our common hope for racial justice. In the debate over the 1990 Civil Rights Act, he used the term "quota bill" to incite anxiety and divide the people as he once used Willie Horton in his presidential campaign for the same purpose.

Why do we need a domestic summit conference? Because America needs an urban redevelopment plan, a rural redevelopment plan and a plan to achieve gender equality and racial justice that has a budget and a timetable attached to it.

In the United States, the unjust economic and bad social policies of the 1970s and 1980s appear to be cresting.

My grandmother used to tell me how everyone would stop what he or she was doing and huddle up close to the radio when President Franklin Delano Roosevelt would give his fireside chats. There was hope and help in his messages.

Currently, there is no such hope or help coming from the leadership in the White House. But if President Bush were to convene a domestic summit conference, including representative and broad range of domestic leadership, and put forth a plan, budget and timetable for national economic and social development, the people would rise to the occasion and rally around him.

Back downtown — This time it's the women's rooms

The underlying theme in the flood of letters and telegrams and phone calls inundating The Daily Iowan newsroom in response to the bathroom ratings of downtown bars two weeks ago was, "Hey, the piece really stunk. Now do one on women's rooms." Being a member of the Fourth Estate and a servant of the people — and having nothing better to write about — I acquiesced.

For the unseemly task, I enlisted the assistance of Iowa alumnus Margaret Quinn (hereafter known as THE Margaret Quinn, as in: "Are you THE Margaret Quinn, who assisted in that Pulitzer Prize-winning series about bathrooms in downtown Iowa City?"). Margaret was uniquely qualified for the task because she was visiting from Chicago for the weekend. I felt comfortable letting her call the shots since we got the same grade on the Data Structures final and our ACT scores were identical.

Be forewarned, however, that Ms. Quinn needed several martinis to get through the night, so she is solely responsible for any misrepresentation of the facts.

I awarded a score of one to 10 for each category, with the exception of "sitability." Being paramount, sitability could garner as many as 20 big ones. Scores of 10 and zero were awarded for the "Soap," "Condom Machine" and "Tampon Machine" categories (10 points for having them, otherwise none).

The other categories, most of which are self-explanatory, were judgment calls. An absence of graffiti merited 5 points, good graffiti scored higher and bad graffiti scored lower. "Stall" ratings included whether the door locked and whether it opened in or out (in's a problem, guys), the size of the area and whether purse space was provided. Lines were rated not only on their size, but where they would form (e.g., a line forming in a hallway earned more points than a line forming on a dance floor). As in the men's competition, special points were awarded for bathroom extras. A glance at the graph reveals that the perfect score of 120 was not quite achieved.

The heavily favored Yacht Club, coming off a first-place finish in the men's division, grabbed top honors. Tremendous sitability, special points for "nice, clean" wastebaskets in each stall and a chair by the vanity lifted the Club to another first-place finish.

Bars	Pleasant odor	Grffiti	Soap	Condom Machine	Tampon Machine	Mirror/Vanity	Line	Sitability	Stall	Toilet Paper	Special	Total
The Yacht Club	7	5	10	0	0	6	8	14	7	6	2	65
Babe's	3	8	0	10	10	8	4	6	8	6	0	63
The Fieldhouse	3	3	0	10	10	8	7	4	8	6	0	59
Micky's	6	5	10	0	0	4	8	8	6	4	0	51
Vito's	6	5	10	0	0	7	6	4	7	6	0	51
The 'Que	4	3	0	10	0	4	7	6	8	6	0	48
The Deadwood	4	3	0	0	0	8	8	6	8	9	0	46
Mama's	4	3	0	0	10	4	7	6	8	3	1	46
The Airliner	6	5	0	0	0	4	5	12	7	6	0	45
Joe's Place	2	7	0	10	0	4	5	4	7	6	0	45
One-Eyed Jake's	3	4	0	0	0	4	3	12	5	10	1	42
Sports Column	4	5	0	0	0	4	4	6	5	8	0	36

Gabe's recovered from a poor showing in the men's division to grab second place in the women's, with the daily double of condom and tampon machines. The writing was on the wall for the local favorite, which swept the graffiti honors as well.

Cinderella story at The Fieldhouse, which finished third and had the only other daily double (shame on the rest of you). Pundits reviewing early returns were bemused by the difference in results at The Fieldhouse between the men's and women's divisions. The question on their minds: How do you account for the high finish in the women's division and the low one in the men's?

Pundits should know that this is just another case of discrimination against men at the Iowa City landmark. I mean, how many of you guys have been turned away for being too young, only to see your little sister's friends pop by the bouncer? Are these doormen being groomed for positions with the highway patrol, or what? But I digress.

Micky and Vito treat their women just about the same, though Margaret said she wouldn't have sat down in Vito's to save her life. Harsh, yes, as it was Saturday night.

Further down the list was The Deadwood, which could have been a contender by just sticking some soap on the counter. I thought nobody who frequented the bar really cared about a vanity, but Margaret said there sure was a nice one in there. And she fancied the dual rolls of toilet paper.

Mama's fared better in the men's competition. In the women's room they needed some toilet paper work and better graffiti. Although space for a line was inadequate, I gave them a seven for that category, as you could read the selections on the juke box while waiting. If you were tired of the juke box, you could look at the Marilyn Monroe and Albert Einstein posters on the restroom doors (one special point).

Once again, One-Eyed Jake's finished near the bottom for general bathroom squalor. Jake's did get a special point for its own Monroe. And Margaret said there was toilet paper everywhere, so I awarded 10 points for that.

Oh, before I forget, we hit Chauncey's last. Margaret returned from the bathroom gushing about how nice it all was in her I've-had-six-martinis way. I don't like seeing Margaret act like this, so I disqualified Chauncey's.

Well, it was the Sports Column that started this whole mess with its tough thing, and it's the Sports Column where it ends. Once again the Column bottomed out. If the owners would just take all the profits from one night's sale of some wildberry kamikaze punch and put it into a few condom machines, some soap and a real urinal, they would liberate themselves from bathroom hell and save me and everyone else a lot of trouble.

Speaker teaches occult awareness

By David Sims
The Daily Iowan

Satanic worship and occultism are practiced in Johnson County, and area youth are vulnerable targets, an ordained minister said last night.

"It does happen right here in Iowa City," said the Rev. John Wilder, director and founder of the Network for Occult Awareness and Education in Iowa City.

Wilder warned the crowd of about 25 at the Iowa City Public Library, 123 S. Linn St., about the dangers and symptoms of satan worship, the occult and the New Age movement.

The group also watched a video titled "Devil Worship: The Rise of Satanism," which consisted of interviews with former satanists and descriptions of satanic violence.

Wilder diagrammed differences between satanism, the occult and the New Age movement but said all three were dangerous.

In an interview Sunday, Wilder said, "Iowa City is about the New Age capital of the Midwest."

He said these philosophies have a negative effect on society and warned that television programs often express New Age ideas. He said "Bewitched," the 1960s sitcom, "planted the seed that got me interested in the occult."

Wilder stressed that his concern was not only spiritual but sociological as well.

"In terms of the sociological and psychological effects of the occult, I don't care if you're an atheist," he said. "Occultism causes psychological deterioration."

Wilder said teen-agers sometimes turn to the occult as a means to obtain power when they feel powerless. Many are motivated by a desire for revenge or a lust for love and popularity, he said.

Tarot cards, astrology, witchcraft and fortunetelling are all parts of the occult, according to Wilder.

"The occult offers a delusion of power," he said.

Wilder said his newly formed network's goals are to educate people about the dangers of the occult and to counsel "victims."

He said he wants to teach more people about the dangers of the occult and New Age movements by conducting all-day seminars sponsored by local churches.

But he cautioned his audience not to jump to conclusions about people who may seem to be expressing questionable ideas. He advised concerned people to call and talk to him.

"I have and will again sneak through the bushes and see what I can find," he said.

Wilder noted that while Satan worship is not illegal, some of its rituals are, including animal sacrifice, against university policy.

Jones also said student government representatives were included in the 11-month review process. Pepe Rojas-Cardona and Vernon McKinley — UI student government leaders before last spring's restructuring — were listed on the report as participants in the review.

But Havlicek said the inclusion of the former student government officials in the review was irrelevant because the report's conclusions affect the current budget of the UISA, not last year's student government budget.

Cabinet members also stated they felt Jones had not followed through on his promise "not to take the power of self-determination away from the students of this university," which he made at the UISA inauguration last spring.

"Since (the inauguration), he has misinformed, misled and prevented student leaders from fulfilling their duties," stated Tom Lunde, UISA executive officer of the undergraduate collegiate senate, in the release.

"I think he's wrong," Jones responded. "He may not like the decision (to cut salaries), but the procedures are in the process of being put in place."

Nancy Anderson Mortenson, the executive officer of the graduate and professional student senate, said Tuesday the UI administration has been attempting to set the agenda for student government.

"I think it is time that (the administrators) realize that they have an opportunity to submit items to the agenda," she said, "but that the UISA creates and executes the agenda."

Audit

rented a car and drove to New York City to speak to student leaders and corporate sponsors for the Big Ten Conference. After the meetings, Rojas-Cardona made a "personal" trip to Boston while the others returned to Washington, D.C. The following day, Rojas-Cardona took a train at a cost of $59 back to Washington, D.C.

The UI decided to seek repayment of the amount for the train ticket because it did not involve university business, the report said.

Another area cited by the report involved $635 in vouchers submitted by several senators for the reimbursement of meals where non-senators were present.

But the UI has chosen to not seek repayment for that amount, according to Phillip Jones, associate vice president of academic affairs and dean of student support services.

"We have further investigated this and found that those people involved in these dinners were not outside the realm of that activity," Jones said.

Jones said the goal of the report was to analyze student organization systems and procedures for allocating funds for expenses.

"The report and audit reaffirms the system of accountability that Student Services has been putting in place for 1 1/2 years," Jones said.

In regard to travel and expenses, the UI is planning to install a system of guidelines in a manual that is being written by the Office of Campus Programs and Student Activities.

The manual will focus specifically on the four items listed in the Coopers & Lybrand audit report, which included the purchase and consumption of alcohol, the reimbursement of non-senator expenses, prior-approval procedures for travel and documentation needed for expense reimbursement.

"We decided that more communication with student units was needed and that there would be written guidelines for every activity," Susan Phillips, vice president for finance and university relations, said.

The Coopers & Lybrand report also found the UI's internal audit function, which consisted of two full-time personnel, to be substantially understaffed and unable to meet the demands of the university.

Therefore, Phillips said, the UI has decided to hire another internal auditor.

Alzheimer's finding is a surprise

By Paul Raeburn
The Associated Press

BAR HARBOR, Maine — Researchers have found a genetic abnormality that could lead to the cause of the most common form of Alzheimer's disease, which afflicts about 4 million Americans.

The finding was a surprise to most researchers studying the genetics of Alzheimer's disease, who have been busily studying a different genetic abnormality.

"We're betting the output of our laboratory" that the new abnormality is the cause of all but a rare form of Alzheimer's disease, said the discoverer of the new finding, Dr. Allen Roses of the Duke University School of Medicine in Durham, N.C.

In a presentation Tuesday at the Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor, Roses said that Alzheimer's disease appears to be linked to a genetic abnormality on chromosome 19, one of the 23 pair of human chromosomes.

Previous studies had found a defect on chromosome 21 linked to a rare, early-onset form of Alzheimer's disease in which memory loss and other symptoms begin to appear around age 40. That form of Alzheimer's disease has been found in only 10 or 20 families in the world, Roses said.

Other researchers are now rapidly trying to determine whether their genetic samples from Alzheimer's disease victims also reveal an abnormality on chromosome 19, said Dr. Peter St. George-Hyslop of the Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston. He is one of the discoverers of the defect on chromosome 21.

"The follow-up studies need to be done," said St. George-Hyslop. "This area of genetics of late-onset neurological disease is extremely difficult to do."

One of the problems is that Alzheimer's disease normally appears in people who are in their 60s, 70s or 80s. Many people who carry a genetic predisposition for Alzheimer's disease die of something else before they get old enough to develop Alzheimer's disease, Roses said.

That makes it difficult for geneticists to determine those who do not carry the Alzheimer's defect and those who do but die before it can be observed.

"There are a lot of people in the field who have doubts about whether late-onset Alzheimer's can even be approached by genetic techniques," said Roses.

Researchers differ in their view of Alzheimer's disease. Roses believes that virtually all people would develop Alzheimer's if they lived long enough. Some merely have an abnormality that makes Alzheimer's show up in their 60s. Others might not get it unless they lived to be 120, he said.

In fact, the condition normally thought of as senility in very old people is indistinguishable from Alzheimer's disease, Roses said.

The genetic research could ultimately lead to a way to delay the appearance of Alzheimer's disease, if not cure it outright, Roses said.

"If we can delay it from the age of 80 to 105, I think people would be satisfied," he said.

It could turn out that the rare, early-onset form of Alzheimer's disease is a different disease.

Fast-food fries to boil in different oil

By Carol Zuegner
The Associated Press

OMAHA, Neb. — The millionaire campaigning to lower Americans' cholesterol levels to reduce the risk of heart attacks said Tuesday his fight against fast-food fat isn't finished despite a victory on the french-fry front.

Phil Sokolof, president and chief financial backer of the National Heart Savers Association, said he was pleased that McDonald's Corp. and Wendy's joined Burger King and several other fast-food chains in switching to all-vegetable oils for cooking french fries.

McDonald's officials said the company's announcement Monday to switch to cottonseed and corn oil had nothing to do with Sokolof's anti-fat campaign against the fast-food restaurants.

But Sokolof said his ads criticizing McDonald's and other restaurants for cooking foods in beef tallow or a vegetable-beef combination oil rather than using what he called heart-healthy oils speeded up the process.

Sokolof, who claims to have spent more than $2.5 million in the ad campaigns, said the fat issue has been forced in front of food company executives by the public, not by him.

"The American public as consumers have the power to move mountains," he said. "McDonald's is a mountain."

Wendy's international spokesman, Denny Lynch, said from Columbus, Ohio, Tuesday that converting to corn oil will cost more but he wouldn't say how much.

"It would be safe to say that each chain will spend millions more" each year, he said.

He said equipment will not need to be changed, but there will be changes in training employees, such as how often the oil should be changed and cooking time.

MEMORANDUM

TO: All University of Iowa Bargaining Unit Employees

FROM: AFSCME/Iowa Council 61 and AFSCME Local 12, University of Iowa Employees Union

RE: BI-WEEKLY PAY

BACKGROUND

As you know, employees on a monthly payday receive their paychecks on the first of each month which covers the month just worked. (Example: Your July 1st paycheck covers your regular pay for work in the month of June.) Overtime and premium pay for work on a holiday is not received until the second month following the actual work. (Example: You do not receive your pay for working any overtime on June 1st until August 1st!) This means that the Universities can use your pay for up to 60 days. The AFSCME/Iowa membership and leadership felt very strongly that you should receive your pay more promptly so that you could use it rather than the Employer. We made a proposal for bi-weekly pay during negotiations for the 1989-1991 contract for that purpose and the Employer agreed to our proposal. AFSCME's intent and understanding was that the implementation of bi-weekly pay was to be mutually agreed upon between the Union and Management.

On December 8, 1989, the Union opened up discussions with Management on how to implement bi-weekly pay. No agreement was reached because the Employer's stance is to hold back 11 days of your pay (lag-time). AFSCME's stance is NO LAG-TIME! AFSCME explained to the Employer that lag-time is not necessary under a bi-weekly pay plan just as it is not necessary under monthly pay. AFSCME remains strongly opposed to the Employer holding back up to 11 days of your pay (lag-time) on your paycheck when bi-weekly pay starts. Management says they need this lag-time (8 work days) to figure payroll. We also pointed out to them that Board of Regents employees at Iowa School for the Deaf and Iowa Braille and Sight Saving School have had bi-weekly pay for many years and they receive their paychecks 5 work days after the pay period ends. 20,062 State of Iowa employees receive their paychecks 6 work days after the pay period ends.

Discussions with the Employer have continued with the latest meeting being held on July 20, 1990. This meeting was held at the University of Northern Iowa and AFSCME and Management representatives from all the Universities and the Board of Regents office were in attendance. We explained to Management that we have received a clear message from both members and non-members that supports the Union's position of NO LAG-TIME. Once again, Management flatly refused to compromise with the Union. Because of this, we feel it is necessary to publicly inform all bargaining unit employees (members and non-members) of these facts regarding bi-weekly pay.

The following examples show you AFSCME's position and Management's position on implementation of bi-weekly pay. YOU DECIDE WHO IS WORKING IN YOUR BEST INTEREST!

AFSCME'S PROPOSAL		MANAGEMENT'S PROPOSAL
Committee Members: Jan Corderman (Council 61) Don Winter (Local 12) Kathy Shaffer (Local 12) Marilyn Simpson (Local 12) Ed Alcock (Local 12) Steve O'Donnell (Local 12)		Committee Members: Kevin Ward (UI Employee Relations) Marvin Lynch (UI Dir. of Personnel) Robert Rasley (UIHC Staff Rel.)
(NO LAG-TIME)		(ELEVEN DAYS LAG-TIME)
EXAMPLE
October 1, 1990	Pay for Sept. 1-30	October 1, 1990	Pay for Sept. 1-29
October 17, 1990	Pay for Oct. 1-16	October 17, 1990	Pay for Sept. 30-Oct. 6
October 31, 1990	Pay for Oct. 17-30	October 31, 1990	Pay for Oct. 7-20
(Regular bi-weekly checks to following on November 14, November 28, etc. on both proposals)

Agreements between AFSCME/Management regarding bi-weekly pay implementation include:

1. Deductions which are on a percentage basis will be made from every paycheck (26 per year). These would include FICA, TIAA/CREF, Union dues.
2. Deductions which are specific dollar amounts will be made from the first two paychecks of each month (24 per year). These would include parking, insurance payments, loan payments, UI bills, etc.
3. The work week will continue to be Sunday through Saturday.
4. Although the Union proposed that payday be every other Friday, we have indicated that any week day would be acceptable.

There remains one issue (that of overtime and holiday premium payouts) which cannot be resolved until the lag-time issue is resolved.

BENEFITS OF BI-WEEKLY PAY

With bi-weekly pay, you will receive 1/26 of your regular annual pay every two weeks. Ten months of the year, you will receive two paychecks and two months of the year you will receive three paychecks. People who have already switched to bi-weekly pay tell us that their standard of living was not altered during the ten months of the year. They often use the extra two paychecks per year for Christmas and vacation.

As we mentioned above it was the Union's intention to have you receive your pay as soon as possible for the work you do. Rather than the Employer using your money to draw interest you should be able to use your money as you see fit. For instance, the following example for paying off a mortgage shows one of the benefits of bi-weekly pay:

Paying Bi-Weekly Payments		Paying Monthly Payments
Loan Amount:	$60,000	Loan Amount:	$60,000
Loan Date:	7/5/90	Loan Date:	7/5/90

Savings of $33,269.79 in interest and paid off mortgage 6-1/2 years sooner.

IN SPITE OF RUMORS TO THE CONTRARY, EMPLOYEES WILL NOT BEAR ANY COSTS FOR CONVERTING TO BI-WEEKLY PAY! AS NEGOTIATED, YOU WILL RECEIVE YOUR 5% INCREASE IN PAY ON AUGUST 1, 1990.

Car bomb kills 4 in Ireland

The Associated Press

BELFAST, Northern Ireland — A huge car bomb exploded Tuesday on the outskirts of the border city of Armagh, killing a Roman Catholic nun and three policemen, police said.

The murder of the nun was thought to be the first time a nun has been killed in 21 years of sectarian violence in British-run Northern Ireland.

There was no immediate claim of responsibility, but suspicion immediately fell on the Irish Republican Army. The killing of a nun would be seen widely as a grave embarrassment to the mainly Catholic IRA.

The bomb blew apart an unmarked police car, instantly killing the three officers traveling in it, police sources said.

The nun, who died later in a hospital from severe injuries, was traveling with a social worker in a separate car caught in the blast, Jim Cantwell of the Catholic Press and Information Office said.

He said he could not identify the nun until her family had been notified.

Police and troops rushed reinforcements to the area near the border of the Republic of Ireland. The area is considered prime territory for operations by the outlawed IRA.

The blast was the deadliest terrorist attack in the province since an IRA bomb April 9 killed four soldiers of the locally recruited Ulster Defense Regiment.

Paul Corr, who owns a gas station near the Killylea Road where the bomb exploded, said, "the ground shook beneath us and it was accompanied by a very large explosion."

"We were first on the scene and saw a white Mini Metro with two young lassies in their 20s in the car unconscious," Corr told reporters.

"The ambulance then arrived and they managed to get them out. It wasn't until then that we saw the police car on the opposite side of the hedge buried in there." The bomb, which blasted a crater in the two-lane road, was apparently detonated by a timer device or by guerrillas lying in wait, police sources said.

Politicians and church leaders expressed outrage. "This is one more example that when terrorists want to do something they do it in an indiscriminate manner and it doesn't matter what happens to others," said the Most Rev. Robin Eames, the Anglican primate of Ireland.

The blast occurred two miles outside Armagh, the ancient religious capital of Ireland and seats of the heads of the Catholic and Anglican churches throughout Ireland, north and south.

Seamus Mallon, deputy leader of Northern Ireland's main Catholic political party, the Social Democratic and Labor Party, described the attack as "wanton and brutal savagery."

"That is four more murders to add to the spiral of murders we have had over this past 20 years," said Mallon. "But it is not just that. It is four more families bereaved, four more families having this type of suffering heaped upon them."

Nearly 3,000 people have been killed since Protestant-Catholic violence erupted in Northern Ireland in 1969 and the British government sent in troops.

The IRA is fighting a guerrilla campaign to end British rule and unite Protestant-dominated Northern Ireland with the Republic of Ireland under a leftist administration.

Liberal Party threatens to exit German coalition

By Mark Fritz
The Associated Press

EAST BERLIN — A political party quit East Germany's coalition government Tuesday, and another group threatened to follow suit in a political crisis over how united German elections should be held.

The Liberal Party, which controls 21 seats in the 400-member Parliament, said it was leaving the seven-party governing coalition of Prime Minister Lothar de Maiziere.

Rainer Ortleb, chairman of the Liberal faction in Parliament, said his party's decision was based partly on de Maiziere's "scandalous" alliance with the deposed former Communists on the election question.

The dispute is over whether December elections for a single German Parliament should be held separately in each nation, or whether the two countries should be treated as a single electorate.

Separate elections would give West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl an edge over his main rival, Social Democrat Oskar Lafontaine, in the elections of a unified German nation.

The left-leaning Social Democrats, the second-biggest party in East Germany, also have threatened to resign from de Maiziere's government.

After a meeting of party leaders, the Social Democrats said they will leave the coalition Friday unless de Maiziere's Christian Democrats meet their demands, according to a statement carried by the East German news agency ADN.

Such a collapse would cause de Maiziere to lose control of the Parliament, where a two-thirds majority is needed to enact unification.

However, all major parties are committed to unification. The strife, if not settled, would more likely slow the process than derail it.

The fight that began last week has been derided by the press and by Germans appalled that the historic quest for a united Germany has been reduced to political infighting.

De Maiziere said the Liberals' decision was purely political and against the interests of East Germans.

"The Liberal faction preferred to tell me of their decision to leave the coalition through a news agency, despite my offer of a bridge that was supposed to lead to a solution of the conflict today," he told ADN.

The Liberal's sister party in West Germany, the Free Democrats, are the junior partner of Kohl's governing coalition. The rift in East Germany was mirrored in West Germany, where political parties greatly influence the decisions of their surrogates in the East.

Free Democrat chief Otto Lambsdorff blamed de Maiziere for the break in the coalition.

He said de Maiziere's decision to ally his party with the former Communists was "unforgivable."

West German Interior Minister Wolfgang Schauble, a Christian Democrat, said the Liberals and the Free Democrats were acting "irresponsibly" and would pay for it at the voting booth.

De Maiziere and several smaller parties, including the former Communists, want the two nations to formally unify immediately after German elections are held on Dec. 2.

Simultaneous elections would be held in each nation. The votes would be counted separately, and political representation would be based on how each party did in its own country.

Under de Maiziere's proposal, smaller parties in East Germany — including the former Communists — would stand a better chance of winding up in the united Parliament.

That would help Kohl's Christian Democrats.

Soviets plan restructuring of foreign aid

By Andrew Katell
The Associated Press

MOSCOW — President Mikhail Gorbachev warned developing countries Tuesday that aid the Kremlin provides them will be reviewed to take into account the "real capabilities of our country."

Gorbachev made the statement in a decree released by the Tass news agency.

It could be primarily aimed at Cuba, one of the Soviet Union's biggest recipients of aid, and could signal the end of the era when the Kremlin propped up the economies of its Marxist allies at the expense of its own.

Gorbachev is under pressure to cope with pressing domestic economic problems such as a low standard of living, a huge budget deficit and a poor credit rating on international financial markets.

Economic aid must be given taking into account the real capabilities of our country.

The Soviet Union spent $19 billion, or 1.4 percent of the gross national product, on aid to developing countries last year, the labor daily Trud reported in February. This figure does not include military aid, and Western estimates are much higher.

Gorbachev's statement could be intended to attract more Western aid for his country.

Leaders of the world's richest democracies said at their Houston summit this month they would provide aid to the Kremlin if it cut military spending and stopped supporting regional troublemakers. That was an apparent reference to Soviet aid to Cuba, North Korea, Syria, Libya and Vietnam.

Gorbachev's decree said future economic relations with developing countries will be based on "the principles of mutual advantages and mutual interests."

"Economic aid must be given taking into account the real capabilities of our country," he said. Earlier trade agreements based economic aid on the principle of "socialist fraternity."

The same decree also directed the Soviet Council of Ministers, or Cabinet, to transfer economic relations with members of the East bloc trading group COMECON to a system of world prices and convertible currency starting Jan. 1. This had been expected for months.

Soviet officials have spoken publicly about the possibility of a phased reduction of economic assistance to Cuba.

Cubans are bracing for a cutoff by using oxen instead of gas-guzzling tractors and doing without air conditioning.

Deliveries of bargain-rate Soviet oil supplies to Cuba, averaging about 90 million barrels annually, are already being reduced.

Liberian loyalists repel rebel attack

MONROVIA, Liberia — Soldiers loyal to the president fought off rebels and appeared in control of the city Tuesday after an ambush on the capital. Insurgents launched another attack from the sea.

A spokesman for President Samuel Doe said the seaborne attack appeared to have been launched by a U.S. submarine. The State Department denied the allegation.

A presidential spokesman, Selly Thompson, also told the British Broadcasting Corp. in London that government troops were advancing against rebels in Monrovia.

Followers of rebel leader Prince Johnson penetrated the city center Monday after wading through swampland and evading troops guarding bridges into town. Followers of Charles Taylor, a rival rebel commander, were blocked by government troops in the city's eastern suburbs. Taylor said some of his men had infiltrated the capital, but only in small numbers.

Taylor and Johnson split sometime in the past three months, and some foreign diplomats have said Johnson's group is now stronger than Taylor's.

Witnesses said an unidentified vessel approached the coastline in the darkness and fired at least six rounds at Doe's mansion. Doe was believed to be inside the compound.

Troops inside returned fire, and the booming of cannon shots echoed through the city. The damage to the heavily fortified mansion could not be immediately determined.

Pierce investigation may expand

WASHINGTON — A House panel urged a special prosecutor Tuesday to widen the investigation of former HUD Secretary Samuel Pierce, saying it had evidence Pierce steered lucrative federal grants to his former law firm.

In its most detailed finding, congressional investigators questioned whether Pierce's former law firm, a former top aide and Pierce himself may have violated federal bribery, conspiracy and conflict-of-interest laws during his tenure as secretary of Housing and Urban Development.

The panel said evidence also suggested Pierce, who served throughout the eight-year Reagan administration, may have committed perjury at a panel hearing when he denied involvement in the awarding of key grants.

"It is obvious that Secretary Pierce did not give us the full story," the panel wrote. "However, some of his statements stand out in that they are inconsistent and at odds with the sworn testimony of other witnesses."

Pierce testified in the early stages of the probe, then invoked his Fifth Amendment right against self-incrimination in refusing later questioning.

Urging independent counsel Arlin Adams to substantially expand his investigation, the House Government Operations subcommittee said its 14-month investigation uncovered "widespread abuses, influence peddling, blatant favoritism, monumental waste and gross mismanagement" at HUD during Pierce's tenure.

Man finds lost ring around carrot

OAK HILL, N.C. — George Gross got more than a few vegetables when he went gardening this week. He pulled up a one-carrot diamond ring.

The retired high-school biology teacher was pulling carrots on Monday when he found the ring, which he'd lost about a year ago. It was buried in the ground with a carrot growing through it.

Gross said the ring, a cluster of small diamonds, was a Christmas gift from a friend, Ruby Ledford. Since losing it, he had looked everywhere, not only hunting through his house but using a metal detector to search his yard and garden.

He said he found plenty of nuts, bolts and nails, but no ring. Ledford presented him with another ring, but Gross said he missed the original gift "because it was so special to me."

After finding the old ring, Gross said he asked Ledford if he had to give one ring back.

"She couldn't believe that I found it," he said. "She said I could keep both rings."

Indictment likely for Eastern Airlines

By Stefan Fatsis
The Associated Press

NEW YORK — Eastern Airlines and some executives will be indicted on conspiracy and other criminal charges for safety maintenance violations at airports in early 1989, the company said Tuesday.

A criminal indictment, which would be unprecedented in the airline industry, could deal a further blow to an airline still struggling under federal bankruptcy court protection induced by a bitter strike.

Martin Shugrue, the bankruptcy-court appointed trustee running Eastern, said the airline was prepared to admit fraudulent maintenance and record-keeping but not conspiracy. The refusal led to the collapse of plea-bargain talks with the U.S. attorney's office.

"We cannot and will not plead guilty to violations of the law for which we find no evidence," Shugrue, who has been in charge of Eastern since April, told reporters.

An indictment probably naming seven top- and mid-level Eastern managers is expected to be handed down by the end of the week, according to a law enforcement source familiar with the case. The source spoke on condition of anonymity.

Andrew Maloney, the U.S. attorney in Brooklyn, declined to comment. His office has been investigating the alleged violations for about a year.

Shugrue said he did not know who would be named in the indictment or at what airports the alleged criminal activity occurred. All the alleged violations occurred before Eastern sought federal bankruptcy court protection in March 1989.

The probe reportedly has focused on allegations that Eastern altered maintenance and safety records early last year at Kennedy International and LaGuardia airports in New York and Hartsfield International in Atlanta.

Mechanics allegedly were ordered to disregard safety guidelines and then falsified log books to show that proper checks were made.

The criminal investigation began last year after the Federal Aviation Administration fined Eastern $839,000 for alleged maintenance violations, primarily at Kennedy.

Eastern cooperated with that investigation and closed its maintenance operation at Kennedy last year. The FAA regularly fines airlines for improper maintenance practices but does not seek criminal charges.

Federal Reserve upholds position against inflation

By Martin Crutsinger
The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan sought to reassure financial markets on Tuesday that the central bank has not quit fighting inflation as part of some deal to support trimming the budget deficit.

Greenspan said the Fed was still intent on achieving, "within a few years," its goal of pushing inflationary pressures close to zero.

Private analysts saw Greenspan's comments before a House Banking subcommittee as an attempt to remove doubts in the financial markets that the central bank was wavering in its commitment to fighting inflation.

There had been concerns that the Fed was bucking to heavy pressure from the Bush administration to ease credit conditions during an election year, even though inflation is still viewed as a threat.

Last week, Greenspan said the central bank stood ready to cut interest rates once Congress and the administration agreed on a credible $50 billion to $60 billion deficit-reduction package — if such a move were needed to keep the economy out of a recession.

In his Tuesday testimony, Greenspan said the actual response of the Fed to any deficit-cutting agreement would depend very much on how financial markets viewed the package.

He predicted that a deficit agreement that was seen as "credible and enforceable" would invoke a "very significant response" toward lower interest rates in financial markets. He said any action on the part of the Fed to accelerate a move to lower interest rates would be taken only "in the context of not inducing inflationary pressures."

Greenspan said a flare-up of inflation would have the effect of offsetting the economic benefits of a lower federal budget deficit.

Greenspan's comments came in response to a series of questions by Rep. Stephen Neal, D-N.C., who is sponsoring legislation that would require the Fed to pursue a goal of achieving "zero inflation."

Neal said he believed Monday's steep drop in the stock market was caused by general worries that the

Alan Greenspan

Fed was wavering in its inflation battle.

Greenspan said that the central bank was not backing away from its support of Neal's legislation. He said the Fed has been clamping down on the amount of money it provides to the nation's banking system and because of this the nation's money supply over the past three years has been growing at a slowed rate not seen since the 1950s.

The goal of the Fed is to provide enough money to the banking system to keep the economy growing while guarding against supplying so much that it results in renewed inflation.

Greenspan said a decision to ease credit slightly two weeks ago should not be viewed as a deviation from the Fed's overall goal of pushing inflation down.

"If we don't fritter away the benefits of the last 2½ to three years, and I can assure you we don't intend to do that, then I see no reason to expect other than the achievement of general price stability over the next several years," Greenspan told Neal.

Elliott Platt, director of economic research at Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette, said that Greenspan's comments should help to ease market anxieties.

"It took away from any negatives he created when he seemed to be wavering" last week, Platt said.

New York scored four more runs in the eighth to take a 6-4 lead. Darryl Strawberry and Kevin McReynolds singled with one out off reliever Dennis Cook, who was then replaced by Roger McDowell.
 Johnson doubled on McDowell's first pitch to score Strawberry and McReynolds and tie the game. Sasser followed with his fifth homer of the season, giving him the first multi-homer game in his three-year major league career.
Braves 9, Astros 3
 ATLANTA — Rookie Dave Justice hit a three-run homer as Atlanta won the first game of a doubleheader.
 It was Houston's 22nd loss in its last 24 road games.
 Winner Charlie Leibrandt (4-3) allowed seven hits, walked one and struck out eight in eight innings.
 Jim Deshaies (4-9) lost for the seventh time in his last eight decisions. He gave up four runs on six hits in four innings.

The Braves broke the game open with a five-run seventh inning off reliever Juan Agosto.
Pirates 5, Expos 3
 MONTREAL — Doug Drabek won his fourth straight start and Barry Bonds celebrated his 26th birthday with three hits and three stolen bases.
 Drabek (12-4) gave up six hits, struck out four and walked one in 7 1/2 innings. Stan Belinda pitched a perfect ninth for his fifth save.
 The Expos capitalized on a pair of infield hits and a throwing error by second baseman Jose Lind to take a 2-0 lead in the third. But the Pirates tied it in the fourth when Sid Bream hit a two-run homer off loser Kevin Gross (8-7).
Cardinals 9, Cubs 4
 ST. LOUIS — Vince Coleman went 4-for-4, scored four runs and stole four bases, including home, as the St. Louis Cardinals ended the Chicago Cubs' eight-game winning streak with a 9-4 victory Tuesday night.
 Coleman homered, tripled and had two singles as the Cardinals stopped the Cubs' longest winning streak since 1978.

 He stole home with Willie McGee batting and two outs in the eighth, beating pitcher Mike Bielecki's throw to the plate. It was the eighth time in Coleman's career that he stole four bases in a game.
 McGee had two singles to extend his hitting streak to 17 games and raise his average to .332. He is batting .429 during the streak (30-for-70) with 11 RBIs.
Royals 5, Blue Jays 3
 TORONTO — Hot-hitting George Brett's two-run homer in the 13th inning lifted the Kansas City Royals to a 5-3 victory over the Toronto Blue Jays Tuesday night.
 Jim Eisenreich singled with one out off loser Duane Ward (1-6) before Brett followed with his fifth homer of the year, over the center-field wall. Earlier, Brett extended his hitting streak to 14 games, and he's 25-for-58 (.431) in that span.

Steve Farr (8-4) pitched the last three innings, allowing one hit, for the win.
Brewers 6, Red Sox 5
 MILWAUKEE — Mike Felder singled in the winning run in the 10th inning Tuesday night as the Milwaukee Brewers beat the Boston Red Sox 6-5.
 Darryl Hamilton opened the 10th with a single off Jerry Reed (2-2) and moved to second on a sacrifice by Greg Brock before scoring on Felder's single to center.
 The loss was the Red Sox' fourth straight and 15th in their last 20.
 Dan Plesac (2-3) was the winner despite giving up Wade Boggs' game-tying two-run triple in the ninth.
 Plesac hit Kevin Romine with a pitch and gave up a two-out single to Tim Lincecum. Boggs hit a liner down the left field line that grazed the top of the wall and was just over the leaping reach of Hamilton. The ball bounded off as Hamilton hurt his elbow and Romine and Naehring scored.

Walker

"We hired him for a lot of reasons," Davis said. "In particular, as we went through the applicants, we separated him because of his combination of experiences as both a player and as a coach and his experiences academically. He has a nice blend of experience."
 Both Davis and Walker said one issue that didn't come into the hiring process was race, even though Washington and Walker are both black and the rest of the coaching staff is white.
 "We look for the best person for the job," Davis said. "You try not to pocket yourself."

"I'm really just a coach who happens to be black," Walker said. "I didn't have anything to do with it; you'll have to talk to my parents about that."
 "At Miami, the question was how do I feel about being a black coach at a Cuban school. We all work for Iowa, we're all Iowans. The good thing in sports is harmony. It doesn't have anything to do with me being black."
 "The reality is being on the same pace, being in harmony, winning. The issue for the moment is being the best you can be."

tournament in 16 years when they were beaten in Seoul.
 Now, make it two in a row for the Soviets, although this was in the round-robin part of the tournament and the two teams could meet again.
 Valeri Tikhonenko, the only man on either team who was in Seoul, had 30 points. The United States now must beat Italy Wednesday night to have any chance of advancing to the medal round.
 The Soviets outplayed the United States defensively, and they used their patience and outside shooting to dominate offensively.
 Alonzo Mourning had 20 points and 14 rebounds for the United States.
Swimming

Biondi, who won five gold medals at the Seoul Olympics in 1988, claimed his third and fourth of these games in the men's 100-meter freestyle and 400-meter medley relay. He already had won gold medals in the 50-meter freestyle and the 400 freestyle relay.
 His time in the 100 was 49.02 seconds, well off his world mark of 48.42. Biondi holds the eight fastest times ever in this event.
 "I came to the Goodwill Games thinking I was going to swim some special things, and none of them ever really materialized," he said after the 100.
 It materialized a little later in the evening. Biondi swam the freestyle anchor of the medley relay. He started out 4-5 meters behind the Soviets but won at the finish in 3:40.97. The Soviets had 3:41.26.

 Wharton, who won a gold medal in the 400 individual medley in a rare dead heat two days ago, won his second race in another near dead heat. He beat U.S. teammate Ron Karnaugh by .09 seconds in the 200 individual medley.
 Sanders, meanwhile, capped what became a U.S. women's rout in the pool with an easy victory in the 200-meter butterfly, giving the 17-year-old Californian three gold medals. U.S. women won 9 of 13 individual swimming medals.

after two events of the decathlon. He was second in the 100 at 10.99 seconds and won the long jump at 25 feet, 11 1/2 inches.
 Nadzhdha Ryashkina of the Soviet Union broke the world record in the women's 10-kilometer walk by 29 seconds. Ryashkina, 23, was timed in 41 minutes, 56.21 seconds, erasing the mark of 42:25.2 set by Kerry Saxby of Australia last May 26.
Team Handball
 The U.S. team finished the preliminary round with a 1-1-1 record and in second place behind the Soviet Union in Group B. The United States won a silver medal in the last Goodwill Games in 1986 under a different format.

Briefs

After another one-time Iowa assistant, Barry Alvarez, was named Wisconsin's head football coach.
 "I became very close to McCarney and Wyatt when they were here," Malchow said. "I'm sure they kind of sold me to Barry, and that got me an opportunity to go up there and meet with Barry one on one."
 Malchow has been at Iowa for 11 years, first as a student, then in the sports information office. He has degrees in management information systems, marketing and journalism.

At Wisconsin, he'll have specific responsibilities for football, basketball and hockey, with a heavy emphasis on football.
Harold "Red" Grange, football's legendary Galloping Ghost, has been diagnosed as having Parkinson's disease but should be home from an extended-care facility in a few weeks, his wife said.
 "He won't be going dancing," said Muggs Grange, his wife of more than 49 years, "but he's going to outlive all of us."
 The 87-year-old Grange, one of the 17 charter members in the Pro Football Hall of Fame, went in for a checkup last month at Lake Wales (Fla.) Hospital and was hospitalized briefly, Mrs. Grange said Monday.

 He was moved to the extended-care facility early this month and is receiving physical therapy because the disease has affected his mobility and speech, she said.
 Grange was the rage of the 1920s when he made the number "77" famous during a fabulous career as a running back at the University of Illinois and later in the NFL with the Chicago Bears.

Gene Shue, one of only four coaches to win NBA Coach of the Year honors twice, returned to the Philadelphia 76ers Tuesday, this time as general manager.
 Shue, 58, succeeds John Nash, who resigned after last season and became general manager of the Washington Bullets. Terms of Shue's two-year contract were not disclosed.
 Owner Harold Katz also announced Bob Weinhauer had been promoted from director of player personnel and chief scout to assistant general manager.

Ryan

can pitch a complete game.
 "I want it to be my best personal performance, but I don't want to try to do more than I can," he said.
 "If we have to win it going to the bullpen, then that's what we'll do."
 Ryan used only 77 pitches in winning No. 299 with a 5-3 victory over Detroit, but pulled himself out of the game because of another flare-up of the stress fracture in his back.
 The 43-year-old Ryan altered his routine this week because of the back and sore Achilles problem.
 "I didn't push it when I threw on the side," Ryan said. "The way my back has been acting, I decided not to throw as long as I normally do. I don't want to aggravate anything."

 The Texas bullpen has been inconsistent since ace reliever Jeff Russell hurt his arm earlier in the year.
 The Rangers went through four relievers before Kenny Rogers saved No. 299 for Ryan as Texas almost blew a 5-0 lead.
 "It would be special to save 300 for Nolan, particularly at home," Rogers said. "Of course, you'd hear it from the fans if you didn't."
 Ryan said he hopes to win for the home fans and said, "When they walk out of the stadium, I want them to be glad they paid to see me pitch."

 Ryan's pass list will be about 60, with his immediate family and friends coming all the way from California.
 "Win or lose, I'll get together with my friends after the game," Ryan said.
 Ryan will go against Dave LaPoint, who joked, "I don't understand all this fuss over my 79th victory." LaPoint is 78-82 lifetime.
 "I'm not worried about him. I never thought he was a very good hitter," LaPoint cracked. More seriously, he added, "He's pitched this long, and to throw as hard as he does and as strong as he is now is unbelievable."

 LaPoint hasn't pitched against the Rangers this year and is 5-7 against Texas during his career.
 With a sellout crowd of 42,000 assured, Ryan hopes he can treat the homefolks to the milestone victory.
 "That would be great to be able to do that," Ryan said. "I don't want this thing to drag on."
 If Ryan doesn't win, he will try again next Monday on four days rest in Milwaukee. The next scheduled start after that would be Aug. 5 against Toronto in Arlington Stadium.

Montana tops Marino, Elway as best active QB in the NFL

The Associated Press

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Fifteen former NFL quarterbacks disagree on what makes greatness in a signal-caller. But they have no trouble naming the best in the game today — Joe Montana.

The former quarterbacks, in the final day of the first Quarterback Club gathering, were asked to rate the top five active quarterbacks in the NFL.

Montana, said Hall of Fame member Otto Graham, is "a smart football player."

"He's different than most quarterbacks today. Everybody wants to throw the long ball. He throws the ball 10 to 20 yards long, and he does it all day and scores touchdowns," Graham said.

"That's the way it should be. But, it's a team sport. I don't remember throwing any touchdowns passes lying flat on my back."

Montana has led the San Francisco 49ers to four Super Bowl victories.

"What else can you say?" said former Cincinnati great Ken Anderson, who lost to Montana and the 49ers in the Super Bowl in 1982.

Anderson would not vote for anyone else.

The 15 raters, including Hall of Famer Johnny Unitas and Super Bowl MVPs Jim Plunkett and Doug Williams, ended up with a top five of Montana, Miami's Dan Marino (11), Denver's John Elway (9), Philadelphia's Randall Cunningham (5) and Houston's Warren Moon (5).

49ers quarterback Joe Montana

"Today everybody worries about statistics," said former Dallas quarterback Danny White. "But that's not how you determine a great quarterback. It's touchdowns, marching your team down the field and most important — leadership and winning."

"I was caught up in it, too. Every week I looked at that silly rating chart, and said to myself, 'If I hit 65 percent of my passes this week, I'll move past so and so.' They do the best they can with statistics, but there's more to it than that," White said.

White, a founder of the Quarterback Club, declined to rate today's quarterbacks.

Earl Morrall, who led the Miami Dolphins to the only undefeated season in NFL history, likes Marino.

"I know Miami, and he's got a quick release. He can get it down the field. He's fantastic," Morrall said.

Marino ranks second in all-time passing efficiency behind Montana.

Unitas said he has grudging respect for Denver's John Elway.

"I've never been a real big fan of his," Unitas said. "I don't like the way he plays. Never have."

Philadelphia's Randall Cunningham, who led the league in rushing by a quarterback the last four seasons, is on the threshold of greatness, said former Oakland Raider great Daryle Lamonica.

"I put him on the same level as (Phil) Simms (of the New York Giants), but he's not the same kind of leader," Unitas said.

Houston's Warren Moon has a couple of fans in former Oilers Dan Pastorini and Gifford Nielsen.

"He's the best athlete in the game," Nielsen said. "His throwing motion is unbelievable, and he can do it all on the run."

Last year, Moon completed 60 percent of his passes for 3,631 yards and 23 touchdowns. His rating was second in the AFC to only Boomer Esiason — who came within one vote of tying Cunningham and Moon on the QB Club's top five.

Pastorini picked Andre Ware as one of the NFL's top five quarterbacks, even though last year's Hesiman Trophy winner has yet to play his first game as the Detroit Lions.

"Have you seen him?" said Pastorini. "He will change football forever. He will revolutionize the game."

"He can throw the ball farther and more accurately than anyone."

U.S. pride: Biondi, not basketball

By John Nelson
The Associated Press

SEATTLE — Basketball was another bust for the United States at the Goodwill Games, where America's pride rode high on the waves of swimmers Matt Biondi and Summer Sanders.

It's been a wet and wild Goodwill Games for the United States. In the pool, it reigns supreme. On the basketball court, it was just another mortifying night against the Soviets.

The American men lost 92-85 in the first meeting of the two teams since the Soviets won at the Seoul Olympics in 1988 en route to the gold medal.

Goodwill Games

Biondi won two more gold medals, giving him four for the games, and Sanders won her third. Dave Wharton also won a U.S. swimming gold as American muscle continued to assert itself in the water.

This was the day that the show-down of Seattle moved off the cinders, where Leroy Burrell proved the day before that he was the fastest man in the world — at least for now — as he beat Carl Lewis in the 100 meters.

While the United States sought domination in some sports, it sought only a foothold in others. In team handball, the odd sport that looks like basketball with soccer-style goals, the U.S. men reached the medals round for the first time in any major international meet with a 23-22 victory over Japan.

Basketball

These were different players, the coaches are different, and it certainly wasn't an Olympics, but there was a lot riding on this game. The Americans hadn't lost to the Soviets in a major international

Devereaux spoils no-hit bid but Robinson, Tigers top O's

The Associated Press

DETROIT — Detroit's Jeff Devereaux pitched the ninth for the Tigers, completing the two-hitter.

Robinson got more than enough support from the Tigers' long-ball attack that featured three RBIs each by Lloyd Moseby and Larry Sheets. Cecil Fielder, Moseby, Sheets and Travis Fryman all hit home runs.

Robinson held his no-hit spell until Devereaux blasted one of his pitches off the facing of the second deck in right field at Tiger Stadium, his fifth of the season. Brady Anderson promptly followed with another homer, his first, for all the Orioles' runs off the big right-hander.

Robinson, 8-7, struck out seven, walked five and hit a batter in eight innings. The six runners all reached base in the first four innings. Jerry Don Gleaton pitched the ninth for the Tigers, completing the two-hitter.

Mariners 8, Twins 2

MINNEAPOLIS — No. 9 hitter Omar Vizquel knocked in a career-high five runs with a three-run homer and a two-run double, and Matt Young pitched a six-hitter for eight innings as the Seattle Mariners beat the Minnesota Twins 8-2.

Vizquel broke open a scoreless game in the fifth with his second home run of the season. Vizquel, whose previous career-high RBI game was two, capped a five-run Seattle sixth with a double.

Young (5-10) pitched out of a bases-loaded jam with one out in the sixth to preserve the shutout, but an infield single by Kirby Puckett finally gave the Twins a run in the eighth. Al Newman doubled home Minnesota's other run in the ninth.

Mets 7, Phillies 4

PHILADELPHIA — Mackey Sasser hit a pair of two-run homers as the New York Mets rallied to beat the Philadelphia Phillies 7-4 Tuesday night.

The Mets trailed 4-0 when Howard Johnson walked to open the seventh and Sasser followed with a homer off starter Pat Combs.

Inmates await arrival of Rose

By Shera Gross
The Associated Press

MARION, Ill. — Pete Rose will be arriving soon at a federal prison camp to begin a five-month sentence, and that's welcome news to the inmates. They're already taking bets on whether they can sign him to a prison softball team.

"Everyone here wants to meet him and talk to him," said Mark Bailey, an East Chicago, Ind., native finishing the last two weeks of a seven-month sentence.

"We are betting on whether he will be in the rec department," Bailey said, referring to the prison's inmate-staffed recreation department.

"We don't know if we want Pete Rose on the team. The other guys might quit," said William "Catfish" Haas, an inmate who manages the Undertakers, one of five or six prison softball teams.

Rose was sentenced to the Federal Prison Camp at Marion after his conviction on two counts of filing false income tax returns that did not report his income from gambling and baseball card shows.

Baseball's all-time hits leader and former Cincinnati Reds manager must report to the camp by Aug. 10. His attorneys have said Rose wants to report as soon as he heals from the knee surgery he underwent Friday.

No arrival date has been set, said assistant warden Randy Davis. Rose spokeswoman Barbara Pinzka said Tuesday in Cincinnati that the reporting date will not be announced.

The prison camp is next to but separate from the nation's toughest federal penitentiary.

The camp has a softball diamond, weight room and tennis, handball, basketball and bocce ball courts. About 200 inmates are housed in a year-old, art deco style dormitory surrounded by manicured lawns and flower beds. Umbrella-shaded patio furniture adds to the decor. There is no fence around the place.

The air-conditioned dormitory, which looks more like a summer camp than a prison, sleeps two men in each of its spartan cubicles. Ceiling fans whirl overhead and the men move freely about the aqua-and yellow-walled building.

But, Bailey said, "It's not easy time when you're away from your family."

Visitors on an approved list are allowed Friday through Monday, Davis said. Husbands and wives are not permitted to visit.

No special considerations will be given to Rose, who is without a doubt the most famous inmate to stay at the prison camp, Davis said.

Texas Rangers right-hand pitcher Nolan Ryan, shown here during action in his 299th victory last week, has the opportunity to win his 300th tonight against the New York Yankees.

Ryan seeks No. 300 vs. 'ideal' opponent

By Denne H. Freeman
The Associated Press

ARLINGTON, Texas — Nolan Ryan has a bad back, a bad Achilles tendon and a bad bullpen. The baseball gods, however, gave him an ideal opponent for career victory No. 300 — the Yankees.

Ryan hasn't lost to New York in 13 years and is 3-0 against them as a member of the Texas Rangers.

The 1990 Yankees have the worst record in baseball and are the lowest scoring team in the American League. Ryan has already beaten them twice this season.

"It'll be fun. We faced Seaver when he got 300, and we'll try to keep (Ryan) from doing it," the Yankees' Don Mattingly said. "He'll get it, but hopefully not against us."

Seaver wasn't the only pitcher to find the Yankees accommodating for No. 300; Gaylord Perry got his against them, too.

Box seats are being scalped for as high as $175 for Wednesday night's game at Arlington Stadium, in which Ryan will bid to become the 20th pitcher in major-league history to reach 300 victories.

At a Tuesday afternoon news conference, Ryan admitted he was a little nervous, saying "I guess anybody would be with the buildup. I'm feeling a little pressure, a little anxiety."

Ryan said he hopes he doesn't miss the turn into the stadium on Wednesday — like he did a year ago, before the game in which he struck out his 5,000th batter. He was concentrating so hard on how he would pitch to Oakland batters that he passed the street he was supposed to turn on.

History indicates to win the 300th game you have to go all the way. Only Early Wynn and Steve Carlton failed to go the distance. Wynn lasted five innings and Carlton pitched eight.

Don Sutton was the last to win 300, in 1986.

Ryan said Tuesday he hopes he

Journey brings Walker to Iowa

By Erica Weiland
The Daily Iowan

New Iowa assistant men's basketball coach Rich Walker sounds more like a philosophy teacher than a basketball coach at times.

"I know peaks and valleys," Walker said. "I know from experience that there are a lot of peaks and valleys on the journey."

"I think of life as a journey. Success is part of the journey. There are good times and not so good times. That's one thing I can help these young men see."

Replacing former Hawkeye assistant Rudy Washington, Walker is beginning another phase of his journey in basketball.

Walker earned all-American honors at Bowling Green and was a draft selection of the NBA's Cleveland Cavaliers and the ABA's Indianapolis Pacers.

His jaunt then took him to the coaching staffs of Western Michigan and Bowling Green and to head coaching positions at Elmhurst College in Illinois and, most recently, at Florida International University in Miami.

"I was one of those guys who got cut by the pros and went back to grad school," Walker said. "That was in 1973 and I've been on the college coaching level ever since."

Walker began the program at FIU and guided the Golden Panthers to a 19-8 record in 1985 and a 17-9 mark in 1986.

According to Walker, the FIU team accomplished all its goals during his tenure, including having a new gym built, becoming a Division I squad, going to the NCAA Tournament, traveling to Europe and making basketball a more popular sport in the Miami area.

"It was a great opportunity for me," Walker said. "Out of 150 applicants, I got the job of starting a basketball program at the school."

"That gives me insight into the necessities, and what is problematic to you is not necessarily problematic to me. Going from a nontraditional program to a tradition program, I can appreciate the advantages that we have here — a greater opportunity for academics, alumni."

As an assistant to Iowa coach Tom Davis, Walker said his only goals at the moment are to help the team in any way possible.

"In this program, I can contribute to the development of the student-athlete whether in the coaching aspect, teaching, social, spiritual, moral," Walker said. "I'm a living example of what's capable of happening."

"I haven't had time to define every one of my goals. In September, I'll be better able to pinpoint them. In November, I can define them even more. For now, I'm just going to help — that's a key word for my role — Coach Davis, the coaching staff, future prospects, academic progress and just human development."

Following Washington, who is now the head coach at Drake, could be difficult, especially with all the success Washington has had as the executive director of the Black Coaches Association.

But Walker said he doesn't expect any problems with fitting in at Iowa.

"Rudy became an entity because of his involvement in the Black Coaches Association," Walker said. "Sometimes you have to establish yourself in what you believe in. I have a tremendous amount of respect for Rudy, and I think Rudy has a tremendous amount of respect for me."

"Sometimes being well-known doesn't always have positive effects. I've been a head coach. I don't need to be out front on a lot of things."

According to Davis, it was Walker's variety of experiences — as a player, student and coach — that enticed the coaching staff as they searched for a replacement.

Illinois, NCAA discuss results of hoops probe

The Associated Press

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Officials of the NCAA and the University of Illinois held a pre-hearing conference Tuesday in Kansas City to discuss the probe of the school's basketball program.

"It's a meeting where both sides say, 'Here's what we have found,'" said Dick Barnes,

David Berst, assistant NCAA executive director for enforcement, said in a telephone interview from Mission, Kan., that Tuesday's meeting with UI officials "was something we do in every case."

"It's the kind of a hearing where information is reviewed and issues that can be resolved are resolved so that the hearing came be as short as possible."

Steve Malchow, an assistant sports information director at Iowa since 1984, has become the latest member of the Hawkeye athletic department to take a job at Wisconsin.

Malchow, 29, will succeed Jim Mott as Wisconsin's sports information director. He'll begin the job Aug. 1 and join former Iowa football assistants Dan McCarney and Bernie Wyatt on the Badger staff.
